rewark's unemployment rate is up sharply from a year ago. However, the city's jobless figure is the lowest among cities and counties in Delaware

The 7.9 percent reported for Newark does not contain seasonal adjustments used to calculate statewide unemployment.

Delaware's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose to 8.4 percent in June as nearly 39,000 of the state's residents were listed in the jobless category. That was up from 8.1 percent in May and 4.6 percent in June of last year.

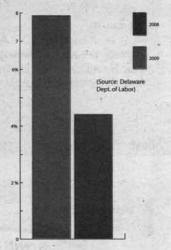

The losses came in most categories, with the one exception being education and health.

One distressing statistic in the report from the Delaware Department of Labor came in the rate of job loss. While the nation saw a 4 percent drop in total employment, Delaware's job loss rate was 5 percent. At the same time, the First State jobless rate stayed a percentage point above the nation's unemployment figure.

The June figures did show that state government employment was down 900 on a seasonally adjusted basis from a year ago, reflecting a long-running hiring freeze. That state is also eliminating current vacant positions, which should result in further reductions, following the passage of the state budget.

In the meantime, the city of Wilmington posted a 12.8 percent unemployment rate, compared to 7.6 percent a year ago.

County rates were 9 per-cent for New Castle, 8.7 for Kent and 7.8 percent for the summer-oriented economy in Sussex.

Muggers, who assaulted man who later died, not identified

New Castle County Detectives are getting tips, but have not yet been able to identify the individuals who assaulted a 75-year-old man early Wednesday mornning at Christiana Meadows Apartments.

Pair breaks windows on Cleveland Ave.

Police are investigating several acts of criminal mischief in the 100 block of E. Cleveland Ave. On Sunday, July 19, police responded to a call from Joe Shub, of E. Cleveland Ave., stating that someone had thrown a piece of concrete through a front door window. When Shub went outside to investigate, he said he saw two white males, approximately 5' 10" to 6' tall, with thin builds, and both wearing white t-shirts, walking eastbound. He lost sight of them when they walked down the driveway of another residence.

Witness S Derek Sukeena and Matt McConnell, from further up the street, also stated that they saw two white males walk down a driveway and then heard the sound of breaking glass. Sukeena and McConnell later saw these individuals enter the residence at 143 E. Cleveland Ave. and not come out.

Police went to the address, but no one inside the house would respond to the officer's calls and knocks. Police are attempting to identify the residents of the house in order to develop possible suspects.

Options offered for followed by homicide, is the younger teens any teens say there is not a whole lot for them to do with their free time. I think Newark is a great place to live and work.

I do feel there are opportunities for teens to be involved in activities through Newark Parks and Recreation programs, sports programs, art programs, park programs, bowling, movies, and 4-H youth groups. But many teens aged 11-14 are looking for places to hang out together later in the evening.

They also want to hang out with lots of friends. I can't blame them - hanging out with lots of your friends is fun. Unfortunately, there aren't a lot of places for young teens to do that.

Most of the places are geared toward young adults. Many of the establishments in Newark involve places that serve alcohol which is not a good environment for teens. With time on their hands, possibly unsupervised, (as parents work long hours to make ends meet to provide for their families), teens can get into trouble which includes alcohol, drugs, gambling, and violence.

Delaware is not different than any other area or state, in that unintentional injury, leading cause of death among youth aged 10-24 years of age.

Violence is a major cause among of non-fatal injuries among youth. Violence is defined by the Center for Disease Control as harmful behaviors such as bullying, slapping, or hitting which can cause more emotional harm than physical harm. Other defined violent behaviors, such as robbery, assault, or rape, can lead to serious injury or even death.

Youth can be involved in violence as an offender, victim, or witness of violence. So what we can we do about this issue? We can prevent violence to help our youth live healthier and more fulfilling lives.

We can create communities where youth are safe from violence. Newark is a safer place to live than most, but violence has increased since I moved here 20 years ago. We can do more to provide safe alternative activities for our youth.

One such organization, the Building Bridges Coalition of the Newark High School Parent Teacher Association (PTA) has done just that. The coalition applied for and received a grant from the City of Newark to hold a "Summer Fun for Teens" event in the community. The event was held July 16, 2009 from 6-10pm at the Newark Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) of otorists are advised to take care when crossing the Route 4/Chestnut Hill Road rail crossing. The Department of Transportation (DelDOT) announced that the Newark crossing has been reopened to through traffic, but work is not yet complete.

The improvements being done at the railroad tracks are part of DelDOT's railroad safety crossing program by Norfolk Southern Corporation. In addition to the paving and crossing repairs, automatic crossing gates and lights will be installed. The project has received some federal funding. Contract cost is $800,000.

Following the installation of the gates, another surface layer of hot mix will be applied, which will help to smooth the road surface. The final layer of hot mix will be applied by Norfolk/Southern railroad upon completion of the project. That is expected to occur in September. Until the work is fully completed, drivers traveling through the area should slow down and exercise caution when crossing the tracks, DelDOT advised.

Opinion The high price of gambling

editorials · columns · letters to the editor · out of the attic

By MARK SISK

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Editor's note: Sisk is a Newark attorney

Tack Markell is, so far as I can tell, Delaware's first Newark townie governor. I know he's got a lot on his plate these days, and I wish him well. the General Assembly, at Gov. Markell's direction, expanded the scope of legal gambling in Delaware. Coming soon to a casino near you—and that casino may be nearer than you think if plans to build more casinos proceed-are sports betting and table games.

This is a devil's bargain. Let me explain.

When gambling was legalized in Delaware, it seemed like a harmless diversion. And perhaps having it here would save one's older relatives a long bus trip to Atlantic City every now and then. And oh yes, there was the money, the jobs, and the promise of eternal low taxes.

Then, something like once a year, a living reminder would appear in my office and remind me of G.B. Shaw's words on the subject: Gambling pays only the casino owner. Then why is a passion (in modern parlance read 'addiction') for gambling quite common, but an addiction for keeping casinos virtually unknown?

Okay, I'm hypocrite since, in my pocket, you will find two tickets for the Powerball and Delaware Lotto, respectively (unless the Lotto is over $1 million, then I splurge and go for two tickets). I played and lost the 50/50 at the Rotary Club last Thursday, I'll play it again (and likely lose) next Thursday. While it has been said that lotteries are a tax on the mathematically inept (I plead guilty), as a friend of mine said, where else can you buy hope for a dollar? (at Rotary, hope costs $2, or three chances for $5). It's a matter of degree.

But I see faces in my mind that changed my views. Hope in the casino setting, apparently, costs a lot more than a buck. One was the widow who came into money when she sold land

OUT OF THE ATTIC

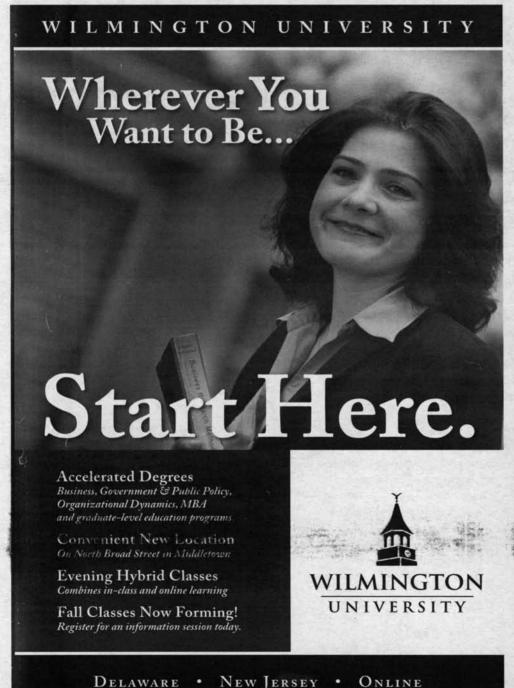

This week's Out of the Attic features an 1893 view of the west side of Academy Street between Delaware Avenue and Main Street. Note the series of duplex homes between the original fire station and the large building on the right (built as Caskey Hall, later named Newark Opera House) that is on the southwest corner of East Main Street and Academy Street. By the 1950s the houses had all been converted to commercial uses including a barber shop, sandwich shop, and recorded music store. The property is to a developer. Tens thousands of dollars—gone. Another is a client for whom my former partner had recovered a large sum of money in a personal injury case. Over a hundred thousand dollars—gone. Or there was the man who had worked many hours over time in the automobile industry after some reverses to recover his family's fortunes, and found his wife had drained their bank account gambling. Ninety thousand dollars—gone (now, along with the job he had that enabled him to accumulate that money).

If I'm one person in one office, how many times is this repeated across Delaware? And these things happened before the advent of sports betting and table games.

None of this is the casino owner's fault. We're all responsible for ourselves. The problem is availability. At ten o'clock at night, my gambling addicted client, prior to legalization, had to go to a fair amount of trouble to gamble. Now, he or she simply gets in the car and drives a few minutes. Yes yes I can hear you saying that the person would find some outlet even if there were no legal gambling in Delaware. This may be true, but I don't like that my state is now the pusher for this particular addiction and just, as they say in retail, added product in the form of table games and sports betting.

Gambling can't be abolished. The toothpaste, simply, is out of the tube, and I know that the gambling we have is staying. But the proposals for expansion are bad economics and bad social policy. It doesn't matter they are presented in a near panic mode in light of the current economy.

Too much of our state budget is now paid by gambling revenues. It's shameful, and the way to cure it is not to make it worse by making us more addicted to revenues that come out of the pockets of people who can ill afford it. If neighboring states want to sell their citizens out this way, that's their business, not ours.

The worst part, as Talleyrand famously said in other circumstances, it's worse than a crime, it's possibly a blunder. Maryland is moving to expand its legal gambling. A new casino is open in Chester, with more coming in the Philadelphia area as soon as they can be built. New Jersey can't be expected to sit still.

The National Football League has already attacked Delaware in Court concerning the sports betting, and no doubt more challenges are to come.

The goose only has so many golden eggs. Do we want to pay the social costs and maybe not get the anticipated benefits? Legalized gambling originally promised jobs, money and eternal low taxes. At most, it's delivered some jobs and some tax revenues.

I'll fess up, up front, that these times are difficult and I don't have an easy answer. But if our experience so far teaches us anything, it's that more legalized gambling is the wrong answer.

A second County Police officer responded to the scene and observed the suspect on Diminish Drive who fled after the officer attempted to stop him. The suspect was then chased through multiple back yards and over many fences.

It so happened that New Castle County Police Canine Coordinator, Corporal Mark Tobin, was conducting a multi-agency canine training program a mile from the incident. He, his partner "Nike" and a total of seven police canines and their handlers heard the dispatch and responded to assist in the incident.

Additionally, Delaware State Police Aviation, canine and patrol sections assisted with the pursuit. The pursuit continued through Harmony Woods to the 300 block of Ruthar Drive where the fleeing suspect ran into the front offices of a manufacturing facility (Rath Incorporated) with Corporal Tobin and Nike right behind him. Several office workers directed the officers to the rear of the building where the suspect barricaded himself in an office supply closet.

Officers broke the door down as Nike entered the closet and apprehended the suspect after a brief struggle as he kicked and punched the dog. The suspect, 22year-old Elijah Pressley of the first block of Martin Drive, was treated at the Christiana Hospital for his injuries resulting from the canine apprehension.

He was later released to the custody of the New Castle County Police. Pressley has been charged with theft, resisting arrest (felony and misdemeanor), burglary, and harassment of a law enforcement animal. asked his manager to put his wallet in the safe. Romero stated that he told a coworker, Justin Lloyd, 17, of New Castle, about the wallet. Police obtained permission to talk to Lloyd, who was working a drive-in window at the time of the robbery. During his interview, Lloyd received a text message on his phone that police were unable to locate in the phone logs. Lloyd stated that his phone automatically deletes all messages at midnight. Police have noted Lloyd as a person of interest and are attempting to obtain a subpoena for his phone records. Suspects point guns and threaten to shoot William Sharp, employed at Porter Chevrolet, reported an altercation where three men pointed hand guns at him and threatened to kill him. Alan Fowler, 18, of Brookside Park, Newark, entered Porter and told Sharp that a male, Joel Milburn, 19, of Elkton, MD, was outside pointing a gun and threatening him. Parked in the entrance to the dealership was a white four-door sedan that was occupied with Seth Jedlicka, 16, and an unknown black male, also reportedly brandishing guns. When police arrived at the scene, Sharp, Fowler and additional witness, Kenneth Fowler, 24, were seen arguing with the occupants of the vehicle, which then left the lot. Both Milburn and Jedlicka were known to Sharp and the Fowlers, but police were unable to gather any other useful information from either the victim or the witnesses. A trace of the car's registration revealed it is owned by Jedlicka's sister. Police are attempting to contact Milburn and Jedlicka for questioning.

Former Newark optometrist faces additional charges

Abduction of children added to indictment avid Matusiewicz, a former Newark optometrist, was indicted by a federal grand jury on additional charges that included abducting his children.

www.thesilverbuckle.net

Matusiewicz, 42, formerly of Middletown, had earlier been indicted in April 2008 on one count of bank fraud and one count of making a false statement on a loan application. That indictment was returned after Matusiewicz had fled Delaware in August 2007 with his mother, Lenore Matusiewicz, and his three children.

His actions came as a surprise at the time. As a story in the University of Delaware Review newspaper noted, his Newark practice was busy and he was active in community service activities.

In March 2009, federal law enforcement officials located Matusiewicz and determined he was living in Nicaragua with his mother and three children, after having residing briefly in Mexico, Costa Rica and Panama. He would leave when suspicion of his reasons for living in those countries would grow among his neighbors, or when he believed that authorities were closing in.

Matusiewicz was subsequently taken into custody by the United States Marshals Service and was returned to Delaware to face the federal charges against him. In April 2009, he was ordered detained, pending trial, by United States Magistrate Judge Leonard P. Stark.

The Matusiewicz case and his capture had been featured on the popular TV show "America's Most Wanted."

In the latest indictment Matusiewicz was again charged with bank fraud (Count One) and making a false statement on a loan application (Count Two). The indictment also includes two new additional charges: one count of engaging in monetary transactions in property derived from specified unlawful activity and one count of international parental kidnapping kidnapping.

Count One is punishable by a maximum term of 30 years imprisonment and a maximum fine of $250,000. Count Two is punishable by a maximum term of 30 years imprisonment and a maximum fine of $1 million. Count Three is punishable by a maximum term of 10 years imprisonment and a maximum fine of either $250,000 or two times the amount of the involved transaction. Count Four is punishable by a maximum term of 3 years imprisonment and a maximum fine of $250,000.

The indictment alleges that in August 2007, Matusiewicz obtained a $249,000 home equity line of credit from WSFS Bank, through fraud. It states that Matusiewicz was informed by the bank that both he and his ex-wife, Christine, were required to sign various closing documents in order for the line of credit to be approved by WSFS Bank. On August 15, 2007, Matusiewicz arranged to meet with a WSFS bank representative at Matusiewicz's office, in order to sign the closing documents.

Matusiewicz did not tell the bank representative, who believed that the defendant and his ex-wife were still married, that the two were in fact divorced. Instead, the indictment alleges, Matusiewicz signed closing documents and indicated that Christine was in another room at the office, when in fact Chistine was not present.

Matusiewicz then left the room, and later returned, presenting the bank representative with the closing documents that purported to be signed and initialed by Christine. In fact, Matusiewicz had falsely and fraudulently forged or caused to be forged Christine's signature and initials on these closing documents, the indictment alleges.

After obtaining the approximately $249,000 in funds regarding the home equity line of credit, Matusiewicz is alleged to have transferred those funds into another bank account in the name of T.M. and L.M.

The indictment also alleges that days after obtaining the funds, Matusiewicz kidnapped his three children, and removed them from the United States. Matusiewicz then kept his children outside the United States for approximately a year and a half, until his arrest in Nicaragua in March 2009. This conduct is the basis for the new Count Four in the Superseding Indictment.

The case was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the New Castle County Police Department, and the United States Marshal's Service. It is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Christopher J. Burke.

VFW Post 3420 plays for more than just victories outs and between the baselines of American Legion baseball is the true meaning behind the summer tradition. And it's not in the form of wins and losses.

By JON BUZBY

"American Legion baseball honors our military servicemen and women in the form of America's favorite pastime – baseball," says Larry Bianchino, manager of VFW Post 3420. "It's not just about a player's skill level, competitiveness, or providing an extended season for high school players."

The young men from the Bear, Christiana and Glasgow area who make up Post 3420 are reminded of why they play the game every time they take the field at Christiana High School. They do so under the watchful eyes of several war veterans who line the fence with their lawn chairs and support the team.

Post 3420 was founded in 2008 and in just its second season is struggling on the field, as any new team usually does. In fact, just recently the team picked up its first win of the season, a 12-8 victory over Durney Post 27.

"We are a relatively new team and the kids that are age eligible in the area do not know we are even out there," Bianchino said. "I am as proud of the group of kids I have this year as I was last year, and I will continue to be proud of whatever team that has my name attached to it."

While the team is struggling in the win column, the coaching staff is optimistic about the future. The tryouts at the beginning of this second season produced twice as many players as last year, and Bianchino is confident the lessons learned during the struggles of the first two years will pay off in the long run.

"It's no secret that our first two years have not produced many wins," he said. "However it has helped players learn how to accept losses while having a good time as a team.

"My goal as a coach is always for my players to play from the heart. I would like to see the players continue to grow as a team, play hard and win or lose, have fun."

Canal wins Little League District 2 Major League Tournament

Canal defeated Brandywine, 2-0, to win the District 2 Major League Tournament (game coverage on newarkpostonline. com).

"I am very proud of this team and the winning attitudes each player has shown throughout the tournament," Canal manager Eric Frost said. "I feel the key to our success is that each player has accepted his role on the team and unselfishly worked hard to contribute."

Canal will begin play in the Major League State Tournament against District 3 champion Nanticoke on July 25 at 7 p.m. The winner will face the District 1 champion (not determined at press time) on July 26 at 7 p.m. All games in the double-elimination tournament will take place at the Camden-Wyoming Little League complex following an opening round loss to District 2 runner-up Brandywine.

Newark American (1-2) opened up the tournament with a win against Wilmington before then dropping consecutive games to Brandywine and Newark National.

"We are very disappointed to have been eliminated so manager Tom Brackin "However, the boys played hard and did an excellent job of being good ambassadors for Newark American Little League. The highlight was playing our first game on our home field and treating our fans to a 9-0 victory over Wilmington Little League.'

Other partners in the event were Newark High School Staff and Wellness Center, the Newark PTA, Newark High School students, a local realtor, Open Door, Newark Post, Newark Police, DE Council on Gambling Problems, Office of Prevention, the Office of Volunteerism, Arcadia University, UD Cooperative Extension and Center for Drug and Alcohol Studies, parent volunteers, local community members, City council members, and local religious organizations.

The event was advertised on Newark TV, their website, first 120 youth who arrived and provided a can of food which will be donated to a Newark program to give back to others in the community who need assistance.

The Building Bridges Coalition has been in existence since 1998 to facilitate constructive interaction between students, parents, the community and Newark High School for the purpose of recognizing and eliminating high risk behaviors among adolescents.

The coalition promotes prevention activities and alternative activities to youth to provide a positive violence free and drug free environment for teens to have fun and build relationships.

Many of our events have been held at the Newark High School on a Friday night attended by several hundred local high school students. We wanted to broaden this concept to the community and include middle age students aged 11-14.

What next? We need more members, partners, money, and locations to conduct more events like this in the future.

As a community, let's come together to support our youth and work together to provide more activities for them that include lots of their friends, fun, and no drugs or violence.

Our youth are our future high school students, college students, residents, and community leaders. Let us help shape their lives with positive experiences.

The city of Newark and the Building Bridges Coalition has made a bright beginning let's keep it going. To offer support or to join the coalition, please e-mail Linda Brasel at BraselL@arcadia.edu or by phone at 302-356-9446.

as having learning disabilities may actually have a visionrelated problem that is impeding their learning ability. The fact is that so-called "slow learners" often are simply unable to read words or numbers due to blurred vision (or some other symptom of poor vision). Because a vision-impaired child knows of nothing else with which his or her vision can be compared, he or she is unaware that a problem even exists. It is the responsibility of the parent to schedule a comprehensive eye exam with an eye professional. While many schools use the Snellen eye chart (the "E" chart) to test school children's eyes, this test does little to reveal the vast majority of eye problems.

In the late 19th century, Delaware was king of peach production, in the United States and the world. Throughout southern Delaware, towns were born as farmers planted huge orchards and the railroad pushed south.

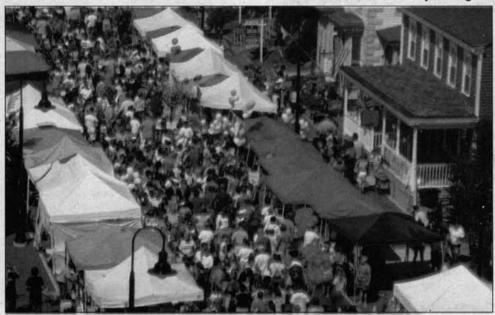

At the peak of production in 1875, nearly six million bushels of Delaware peaches were shipped to market.

By 1895, Delaware orchards contained more than 800,000 peach trees and the legislature voted to adopt the peach blossom as the state flower.

Festival film lineup announced

Schlecker says showings feature movies that matter

ohn Malkovich, an insider's look at the making of A Chorus Line, and the controversial documentary Food, Inc. are among the movies that will be featured in this year's Newark Film Festival, announces Barry Schlecker, producer."Once again, we are selecting 'movies that matter,' Schlecker says, quoting feedback he has received in the five years since establishing this fes-"Altogether we'll have about 30 movies scheduled from September 10 to 17 in Newark with the highlights of the week being shown in the Delaware Art Museum the weekend of Sept. 25-27.

The Great Buck Howard features Colin Hanks as a recent law school dropout who, much to his family's dismay, accepts a job as assistant to a belligerent has-been magician (Oscar-winner Malkovich plays the Great Buck Howard) struggling to resurrect his career. This leads to a journey across the country staging the comeback of a lifetime.

Every Little Step traces the evolution of the long-running Broadway musical A Chorus Line from one man's idea through its 15 year run and recent revival. This documentary has been a hit at international film festivals in Berlin and Toronto and features the song and dance routines beloved by A Chorus Line aficionados around the world.

Food Inc. explores the US food industry, from seeds to packaging to our dinner tables, much of which is hidden. It's an eye-opening documentary that asks, and answers the question 'what is food doing to us?'

At least two Holocaustthemed films will be featured, including Delaware Liberators, a look at World War II veterans who live in Delaware and describe their experiences liberating concentration camps. Delaware native Steve Gonzer is the producer. In addition, No Denying, a film that looks at one community's response to Holocaust denial, will return this year.

New this year will be a series of 30-second advertisements for sponsors of the Newark Film Festival, all produced by Delaware filmmakers.

The full schedule for the Newark Film Festival will be announced in the coming weeks and at www.newarkfilm.com. All films will be presented at Cinema Center 3 in

UD gets $1.2 million in research funds

The path to job creation is through leading-edge science, according to Delaware's Congressional delegation, which announced $1.2 million in federal funding to the University of Delaware on Monday at a press conference at the Delaware Biotechnology Institute.

The funding, through the Omnibus Appropriations Act of 2009, will support research in environmental science, avian influenza, biomedicine, and substance abuse.

Specifically, the federal dollars will provide facilities upgrades for avian influenza monitoring critical to the state's poultry industry, programs and equipment for "critical zone" research on soil and environmental quality, infrastructure for cancer and neuroscience research, an expansion of the Delaware School Survey project to assess prescription drug use among teens, and a satellite receiving station at the Hugh R. Sharp Campus in Lewes for accessing real-time data on the Delaware Bay corThe funded programs directly involve five of the University's seven colleges and have interdisciplinary implications for all seven, according to University President Patrick Harker.

"That's important to us because this kind of collaboration isn't just the way of the future; it's how the University of Delaware is doing business today," Harker noted.

Senator Thomas Carper, who also is a UD alumnus, talked about the genesis nearly a decade ago of the Delaware Biotechnology Institute, an interdisciplinary center for life sciences research at the University, and its rapid evolution as "one of the principal economic engines in the State of Delaware."

Nearly 12,000 new primary

Nearly 12,000 new primary and secondary jobs have been created since the Delaware Biotechnology Institute opened in 2001.

"With some of the work we're doing here at the University of Delaware, we're addressing problems facing the state and the world," Carper noted

During his remarks, Senator Ted Kaufman noted that when he came to the state in 1966, Delaware was the nation's leader in science.

"It's really important that we get back to being the science capital again," Kaufman said.

Kaufman, who is the only engineer in the U.S. Senate, praised the University for expanding its engineering curriculum and noted that there are "incredible opportunities" for students in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics and fields like biotechnology that bring all of those disciplines together.

Representative Michael Castle praised Harker, noting: "The University is thriving and doing extraordinarily well under your leadership."

He said of the Delaware Biotechnology Institute and the University's larger research programs, "There's a lot of scientific interest here and we need to develop it in every way we can for the benefit of our community."
