Council rejects plan for student rentals

By MARK CORRIGAN

MCORRIGAN@CHESPUB.COM

At last week's City Council meeting, the Mayor and Council turned down, by a four to two vote, a request to allow more occupants in a slow-selling townhouse community developed by EDDAN, LLC.

The builder of the Sutton Place development at 711 Barksdale Road wanted to change their original deed restriction that provided for a maximum of one family or two unrelated tenants per unit to an agreement that would allow student rentals of up to four unrelated tenants.

EDDAN proposed limiting the additional occupants to a five-year period.

Builder Richard Longo, representing owner Dan Kandra, told Council that the student renters were needed to help finance the remainder of the project in a difficult market.

Presently, Sutton Place has three townhouses completed, with the developer hoping to bring the total to 12 units. The townhouses are located in an area with a mixture of commercial and residential development.

Longo said that by allowing student renters, the money brought in would greatly reduce the debt on the project and would possibly induce future builders to consider higher quality housing, thereby improving the appeal of neighborhoods around the Main Street and Elkton Road areas.

Longo predicted that the

Sutton Place, at 711 Barksdale Road, presently has no buyers as owners sought assistance from the City Council to amend their original agreement for renters.

Power to the people

City of Newark electric linemen worked through the blizzard conditions of the Feb. 10th storm to restore power. The most significant outage affected 900 customers when a tree fell on primary lines on Nottingham Road at Casho Mill Road. Most of the affected customers were only without power for two hours. Between 20 and 30 customers were without power for six hours as crews removed the tree, replaced poles and installed new transformers and conductors during whiteout conditions. By midnight all power was restored. The 17-person crew returned the next day continue other repairs. Separately, the city reported that 650 tons of salt were spread on city streets.

Officer rushes to save occupants of car on tracks

A Newark Police officer may have saved the lives of two occupants of a car headed for a collision with a CSX freight train.

On Wed. February 17 around 1 a.m., PFC James Skinner was on patrol on West Main Street when he saw a car in front of him leave the roadway and drive down the railroad tracks that run parallel to Elkton Road. The officer turned on the emergency lights and siren of his patrol vehicle in an effort to alert the car's driver that the car was no longer on the roadway, but the driver failed to notice.

The car traveled over 100 feet down the tracks, straddling one of the rails, and the officer was not able to follow in his patrol car.

At that time, the officer saw the train crossing gates activate and heard a train horn blow. The officer could then see the train approaching the car head on. Police said ran toward the car and yelled for the occupants to get out. One person exited from the driver seat, the other from the front passenger seat. Within seconds of both getting out of the car, the train struck the car and pushed it from the tracks before coming to a stop.

The car, a 2004 Audi A4 sustained severe damage to its front end. Neither the driver nor passenger were injured. The train suffered no damage, and the tracks were cleared for train traffic after the car was removed.

The driver, Jennifer L. Murphy, 23, of Westfield, Mass., was charged with Driving Under the Influence of Alcohol and other traffic offenses. Police reported her blood alcohol content was found to be over .220 (legal limit .08).

Skinner, the officer who went to the aid of the driver and passenger, has been a Newark Police Officer for four years and is assigned to the Patrol Division.

Love gets 2nd chance at Arts Alliance event

You can't hurry love, they say – and the recent snowstorms delayed both of the Newark Arts Alliance's valentine-themed events. The good news is that they've been rescheduled for Saturday, February 20. The artist reception for the "All You Need Is Love" exhibit will be held from 4:30-6:30 p.m. Even the jurors are a couple – Peter and Peg Saenger. Peter is well known for his "buddies" ceramic vases, and his work will be on display. Other artists with work in this show are Julianne Darrow, Jenny Davies-Reazor, Terry Foreman, Caryn L. Hetherston, Karin Long, Hope LaChance, Terri Lee, Jen Mrozek, Emily Reed, Karen Schueler, Susan Schulz, Ken Segal, Jeff Smith, Linda Steere, and Sr. Mary Grace Thul. Media include jewelry, a quilt, paintings, photographs, collages, and woodcut prints. The exhibit runs through February 27. A "Sweet Tasting," the latest in the NAA's series of wine-and-food evenings, follows the reception from 7-9 p.m. The event features desserts rom Newark's eateries and bakeries, plus wine and love potions. The suggested donation is $15. The array of desserts from Café Gelato, Deer Park Tavern, Café di Napoli, Home Grown, Iron Hill Brewery, Kildare's Irish Pub, Klondike Kate's, Panera Bread, and Stone Balloon Wine House includes strawberry shortcake cheesecake, tiramisu, chocolate truffles, tarts, chocolate gananche, and banana Chonga, and more. Everyone who stops by the NAA throughout the month of February is invited to create "Messages From the Heart." In this interactive art project, people share their own thoughts about love on paper hearts, which will be hung from the ceiling in the gallery. The Newark Arts Alliance is a nonprofit organization dedicated to "developing community through the arts." For more information on NAA events, exhibits, and classes, visit the Web site (www.newarkartsalliance.org) or call 302-266-7266. The NAA is located at 276 East Main Street in the Market East Plaza. Hours are Tuesday through Sunday, 11 a.m.-3 p.m., Thursday until 7 p.m., closed Monday.

Local students earn honors

The following local students have earned honors at their respective university or college:

Rider University's colleges of Business Administration; Continuing Studies; and Liberal Arts, Education, and Sciences have announced that Jason Sofia of Newark, a senior Political Science major, has been placed on the Dean's List for the fall 2009 semester. Jae Shim, of Newark, was named to the Dean's List of Emory College, the undergraduate, liberal arts college of Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., for the 2009 fall semester.

Dina E. Corradetti and James H. Groce, both of Newark, have been named to the Dean's List of Coastal Carolina University for the Fall 2009 semester.

Ryan John of Newark, a Music Education and Voice Performance major, has been named to the Dean's List for the Fall 2009 semester at the Westminster College of Arts of Rider University.

Willem Daniel, a graduate of Newark High School and a junior economics and political science double major, has been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at The College of Wooster.

Zoe Cloonan, of Newark and an architecture major, was recently named to Northeastern University's Dean's List.

Historical Society elects leaders

The Newark Historical Society elected officers and directors at its annual membership meeting Thursday, January 28. Officers elected are: William McLain as President, Dr. Robert Taggart as Vice-President, Anne Groo as Secretary, and Dr. Robert Brown as Treasurer. Elected as Directors are: Steven Amick, Robert Borcherdt, Marie Godfrey, Sally Krapf, and Frank Osborne.

The program of the evening featured a talk by Butch Simpson, Newark High's football coach for over forty years. Newark football pictures and artifacts dating as far back as the 1920's were on display.

The mission of the Newark Historical Society is to collect, organize, preserve, and share Newark's past. The Society is an all-volunteer public charity with membership open to everyone who shares an interest in its mission. The Society and Museum are housed in the historic 1877 railroad station located by the South College Avenue bridge. The Newark History Museum is being renovated with an anticipated spring re-opening. For membership information, to donate or loan items, or to help, call the Society message phone at 302-224-2408 or email new arkdehistoricalsociety@yahoo.com.

NAA exhibits area artists

February 2-27, "All You Need Is Love". A show from the heart for Valentine's Day. Each year the Newark Arts Alliance showcases the creativity and talent of area artists, sponsoring a dozen shows in its Exhibition Gallery. The themes for the 2010 open shows include trees, love, recycling, Mardi Gras, heat and fire, and fabric art. Artists in all media are invited to submit their work.

The schedule also includes two solo shows, a "Young at Art" exhibit for ages 8-18, the annual NAA Members Show, and the Holiday Art Market. An opening reception is held for each event, usually on the first Friday of its run, from 6-8 p.m.

Main Street 'road rage' suspect arrested by police

Editor's note: Police blotter items are compiled from area police departments. For the latest police news, log on to newarkpostonline.com.

Police have arrested a man in connection with a reported incident of road rage involving a car and the driver of a recovery (tow) truck.

Hood

Last week, Nicholas J. Hood, 25, was arrested by Newark Police. Numerous tips from the public led to the identification and arrest of Hood, whose last known address was Bear.

Hood was charged with the following: 1 count of Possession of a Firearm during the Commission of a Felony, 2 counts of Aggravated Menacing (Felony), 2 counts of Harassment (Misdemeanor) and 1 count of Carrying a Concealed Deadly Weapon (Felony).

Hood was issued a $26,000 secured bond on the charges and was released after posting bail.

The incident occurred on Main Street, Newark on February 3, at around 9:15 p.m. The female driver of a car pulled onto Main Street from a parking lot. The driver inadvertently failed to turn the car's headlights on. A truck approached the car from behind and began tailgating. The operator of the truck began flashing his headlights, sounding some type of horn, and turned on overhead lights on the truck. The car's driver then realized her headlights were off and turned them on.

When the car had to stop at a red light at Main Street and College Avenue, the truck pulled alongside in the next lane. The driver of the truck yelled and cursed at the car's driver and pumped his fist as if punching at the driver. The truck operator then displayed a handgun and raised it toward the roof of the truck while continuing to yell at the car driver. After the light turned green, the truck followed the car for a short distance, then was last seen driving down Elkton Road

The car's driver was a 21 year-old female. Also in the car was a 47 year-old female passenger.

Credit card tips off police

A juvenile has been arrested for allegedly breaking into student rental homes and stealing a variety of items.

During November and December 2009 the Newark Police investigated four residential burglaries that occurred to college student rental homes.

Two occurred on North Street, one on North College Avenue and one on White Clay Drive. During the burglaries, electronic items such as gaming systems, games, DVD's, guitars and amplifiers were taken. During one of the burglaries a Sony PlayStation 3 was taken.

According to police, the suspect used the stolen PlayStation to access the Internet. The suspect then made purchases with the stored credit card information that was on the PlayStation.

Detectives were able to track down the location where the PlayStation was being used by the IP address. Detectives then obtained a search warrant for the suspects' mothers' residence. During the search, a majority of the stolen property from the burglaries was recovered.

Earlier this month, the 15 year- old Newark resident was charged with 16 crimes as follows: 4 counts of Burglary 2nd Degree (Felony), 2 counts of Theft above $1, 500 (Felony), 7 counts of Theft < $1500 (Misdemeanor), and 1 count of Unlawful Use of a Credit Card (Misdemeanor).

Arrests in street robbery

Two Dover men have been charged in connection with a street robbery that occurred in the early morning hours on Feb. 13th.

Johnson

Holt

Newark Police reported the two victims were walking along Hillside Road near Apple Road, Newark, when a car stopped along side of them. The passenger struck up a conversation, but then told the victims not to move and implied he had a gun. The driver approached the victims and patted down the pockets of both. He removed a cell phone from one victim, got back into the car, and drove off. The victims were able to provide a vehicle description and registration number. The victims, two 19 year-old University of Delaware students, were not injured.

About 20 minutes later, a Newark Police Officer on patrol saw the reported car, a 2008 Toyota Corolla, on Elkton Road near Amstel Avenue. The officer stopped the car, and the occupants were identified as the suspects in the robbery. Both were taken into custody.

The victims, two 19 year-old University of Delaware students, were not injured.

The suspects are identified as Howard B. Johnson, Jr. 22 and Earl Holt, 25, both of Dover. Neither are UD students, however, both were in town attending a dance at the university.

Both were charged with one count of Robbery 1st Degree, one count of Attempted Robbery 1st Degree, and Conspiracy 2nd Degree. Both were released on unsecured bond after making an initial court appearance.

Man faces robbery charges

Cresto

New Castle County Police have arrest warrants on file for John Cresto, a 22, who resides in the 100 block of Brookside Boulevard, south of Newark. He is currently wanted for an assault and attempted robbery of a 28 year old man and 11 other various capiases/warrants.

On Feb. 8th at 6 p.m., County Police went to a residence in Brookside for a late reported attempted robbery. A 28 year-old male reported he had been outside talking to a friend last evening around 11 p.m. when Cresto and his girlfriend approached him on foot. The victim indicated Cresto had accused him of calling police on him and then without provocation, began punching him about the head and face.

The victim fell to the ground as Cresto continued to kick and punch him while asking "What you got?" Cresto then rifled through the victim's pockets before fleeing on foot with his girlfriend.

Cresto is currently wanted for assault, attempted robbery and 11 other criminal offenses from the following agencies: the Court of Common Pleas (4), Superior Court (2), Family Court, Elsmere PD (2) and the New Castle County Police Department (2).

To offer information regarding his whereabouts, please contact the New Castle County Police Department at 395-8110 or visit our website at www.nccpd.com to leave a crime tip. Citizens may also call Crime Stoppers at (800) TIP-3333.

Christina students, teachers aid Haiti relief effort

Many students and schools in the Christina School District have responded to the tragedy of the Haiti earthquake by holding fundraisers, collecting shoes, money and other needed items.

Students at Smith Elementary School donated a total of $1,200 to the Shoes2Share organization, a local organization that holds shoe drives and fundraisers for the country of Haiti.

Tim Wampler, president of Shoes2Share stated, "We at Shoes2Share are so thankful to the staff and student body of Jenny Smith Elementary. Their energy and compassionate support in helping the hurting people of Haiti through Shoes2Share "Operation THERE" project is tremendous." Several Smith Elementary staff members noted that some students raided their piggy banks to donate money to help the people of Haiti.

McVey Elementary School also partnered with Shoes2Share, collecting shoes and small toys for Haiti. Staff member Vivian Sartori brought in tubs to collect the shoes and toys McVey children brought to donate each day. The shoes and other items were donated the week of Feb. 8.

Porter Road Elementary School Student Council launched a school wide charity fundraiser called Helping Hands for Haiti from January 20-27. During this weeklong event, the students were asked to bring in coin donations to give to the Red Cross in its relief efforts of the earthquake in Haiti. The Student Council distributed coin containers to each classroom and collected the change each day - they also sponsored a "Jeans Day" where staff members wishing to wear jeans would pay $1 and students wishing to wear jeans could pay 25 cents to do so. The weeklong community service project brought in over $800 in donations to the Red Cross. The students were very involved and into really reaching out to the victims of Haiti... one kindergartener brought in his money from the tooth fairy - he wanted the earthquake victims to have the money he got from losing his tooth. "It's amazing how giving, caring and considerate children are in the face of tragedy," said Megan O'Donnell, Porter Road Elementary counselor.

McVey School displays donations to the relief effort for Haiti.

The Marshall Elementary School Student Council held a "Wear Your Favorite Team Jersey Day" raising $500 to send to Haiti. Every teacher and student who wore a team jersey donated $1 to the cause.

The students and staff of Christiana High School held a "Hats 4 Haiti" fundraiser beginning Monday, January 25. A number of student organizations collected $1 donations from students and staff during lunch periods January 25-29. For their $1 donation, participates wore the hat of their choice in school all day on Friday, January 29. A total of $1,521 was collected which will be matched by the United Way of Delaware. In a very close race, the 11th grade was the winning team raising $400 and were treated to a pizza and soda party. Dean of Students, Darwin Manges helped organize the event.

The members of the Newark High School Brothers and Sisters Student Union Club (BASSU), in an effort to support the Haiti Disaster Relief Effort, collected monetary donations the week of January 25. All contributions were donated to the American Red Cross.

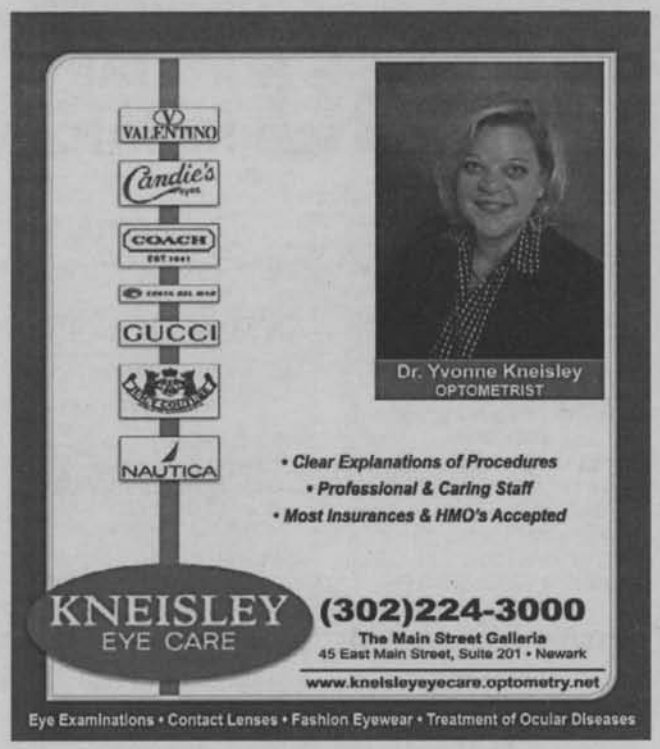
Students and faculty at Bayard Middle School raised $1,116 for a Haiti relief fund by dressing down for a day. Almost everyone participated, Principal Donald Patton said. Students donated $1 each to not wear their uniforms, and each faculty and staff member gave $5 to dress down.

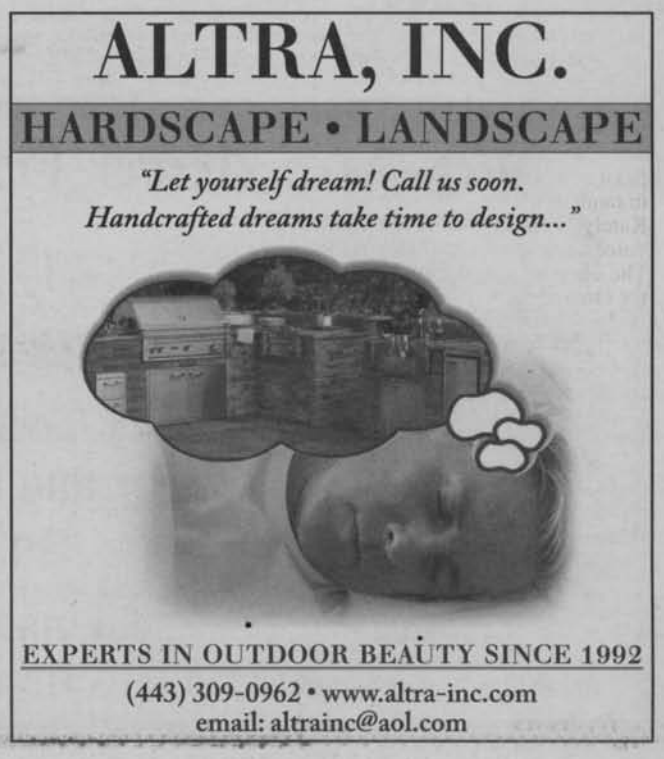
Teachers at Gauger-Cobbs Middle School organized a school-wide effort, Operation Haiti...Gauger Cares! Under the leadership of Ms. Turner and several of her students, money was collected for five days during each of the three lunches. It was evident that the students and staff at Gauger-Cobbs truly do care. Through their generous donations, $707.24 was raised. This money will be donated to the Red Cross to help the victims of the earth quake.

Brookside Elementary School staff is sponsoring a UNICEF "School in a Box" kit for Haiti. The kit will furnish a Field School with a box of materials for a classroom.

Downes Elementary School students donated $90.25 to the American Red Cross to help the people in Haiti, organized by the 3rd grade classes. The school received a special note of thanks from the American Red Cross for its donation.

At Pulaski Elementary School, Pulaski staff held a recent fundraiser to help the District's homeless families, which had a positive impact on the entire school, and led to a similar fundraiser for the victims of the Haiti earthquake. After seeing their teachers and staff collect more than $250 worth of goods, Pulaski students wanted to bring in donations of coins and other currency for the Helping Haiti Campaign. In two weeks, the children donated $500 to the United Way and Red Cross.





OPINION

I won't write about the blizzard

By DOUG RAINEY

DRAINEY@CHESPUB.COM

Too many years ago, one of my journalism professors looked over a copy of a story of the first college newspaper I put to press as Editor in Chief.

On the previous week, heavy snow had blanketed the Flagstaff, Arizona, elevation 7,000 feet above sea level.

Too many snow photos, he said as he leafed through the pages. He was right. Every other page had something related to snow in a town that was only a short drive from a ski resort.

I remembered his words as I wrap up this edition of a paper that recently celebrated its 100th anniversary. Yeah, we have snow coverage. Information poured in from a variety of sources, including Facebook and Twitter and was quickly updated to the website during a couple of long days. Traffic soared to record levels and, along the way, we might have helped a few people.

If my old prof is looking down - pen in hand taking one grade point off for misspellings - I want to let him know that I will not write about snow topics, including:

- The heroic efforts of public safety, state and local workers, utility crews and others in battling the last two storms. It has become fashionable to portray government and private sector workers, particularly those represented by unions, in a bad light. Say that to the front line crews who braved the whiteouts to run those plows, staff those hospitals, dig out a number of stupid motorists and restore power.

- Neighborhood heroes, like Richard Gayes, who mobilized their snow blowers and even did some extra shoveling to dig out those who needed his help. Our thanks to the grateful neighbor who took the time to send along photos and a brief story. We are honored to share his good works with the community.

- How those of us, who formerly resided more frigid climates, are fond of telling our friends that people out here don't know how to drive. See, column on page 12. It is true, although I remember lots of accidents during the first snow. After that, motorists refocused on how to drive in bad weather. That learning pattern simply does not exist here. Too many people think an SUV with all wheel drive. can safely navigate 70 miles an hour when the snow is sticking. The other extreme is the terrified driver gripping the wheel and using the emergency flashers.

- Revisiting the issue of whether to buy a snow blower. True, we don't get these storms very often, but when we do, it may be worth it to spend that $500 or so, particularly if you have a corner lot. You also get the chance to become a neighborhood hero.

- Relearning the importance of electrical service, Internet access and the ability to get to the grocery store to stock up on toilet paper.

- Getting out the first night after the road ban was lifted and sharing that time with friends, including the one with the snow blower.

No, I won't write about any of the above and if the forecasters are right and we don't see this again in our lifetimes, I won't be tempted to not write this column.

Newark Symphony Chamber Orchestra concert

By MARGARET DARBY

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Editor's note: Margaret Darby writes about the arts in Delaware for deartsinfo.blogspot.com

Mounds of snow did not keep more than 150 people from venturing out to the United Methodist Church of Newark on Saturday, February 13 to hear the chamber ensemble of the Newark Symphony Orchestra play baroque masterpieces.

For me, the sounds of amateur strings paled when they played alone in the Henry Purcell selections from The Fairy Queen. In the next selection, the strings perked up with the support of organist John Quinn, flutes Crystal Norman and Dorothy Boyd and double bass Felix Cohen. Somehow the dancing lilt of the 'notes inégales' required for the Marc-Antoine Charpentier Noëls sur les instruments produced better results than the Purcell – in spite of some notes being more willfully unequal than others.

The Concerto grosso Opus 6, No. 8 'Fatto per la notte di Natale' was gentle and enticing yet would have been enhanced by more dynamic contrast between the soli and concertino.

But should you have any doubts about the quality of music coming from this dedicated group of amateurs, they would have been erased by the gripping performance of the Bach Magnificat. The orchestral sound was enhanced by three trumpets, two oboes, bassoon and timpani and five young singers who trained at the University of Maryland. The excellent enunciation by the Newark Symphony Chorus, which I know from experience to be a trademark of Nicole Aldrich's choral directing, made the crisp sounds of the Latin text ring out in triumphant celebration. Sue Ritter's fine oboe playing in Quia respexit was a bit strong at times in tandem with second soprano Katelyn Aungst, but Aungst's voice was pure and telling. The chorus leapt in startlingly for Omnes generationes.

Jennifer Hugh's buoyant bassoon bass line in Esurientes synergized the double bass and Leon Daniels' fine cello playing below the flute duo. But I must admit, my favorite moment in the Bach was the trio of Katelyn Aungst, Katherine Sanford, and Farah Padamsee in the Suscepit Israel.

The next performance of the Newark Symphony Orchestra will be on Sunday, March 7 at 3 p.m. at the Independence School. For more information, see www.newarksymphony.org.

Main Street Coffeehouse

Friday, February 19th from 7-9pm, Friends of Newark presents its coffeehouse, Mocha, Music & More, another evening of live music and the spoken word. The coffeehouse tradition will continue at the Adria Café in the Newark Shopping Center, thanks to Patrick Metic. The first performances of the evening will be spoken word performers, Amy Eyre and James Welsh. The next second half of the evening will be a variety of music and the spoken word presented by a group of performers. This part of the coffeehouse will feature artists like Rich Campbell and Joel Rudnick and will provide those attending the opportunity to sample a potpourri of creativity.

Mocha, Music & More is a coffeehouse venue that offers opportunities for artists to perform original or non-copy-right material live in an intimate and friendly setting. Out of the Attic

This week's Out of the Attic item is an August 15, 1922 view of the newly built New London Avenue School. This building replaced a frame 1867 school on Cleveland Avenue that the federal government built for African-American children during the post-Civil War "reconstruction" period. The pictured building served grades 1 to 8 with four classrooms on the first floor and a lunchroom in the basement until Newark schools were integrated in 1958. The building and surroundings, known as "School Hill", were an important meeting place for neighborhood residents for social and recreational gatherings. The City of Newark purchased the property in 1961 and, after making significant renovations, opened it as the New London Community Center in 1970. The Center was renamed in 1977 in honor of George M. Wilson, a leader in improving housing for members of Newark's African-American community and the only African-American person who has served on the Newark City Council.

The picture is on loan to the Newark Post from the Newark Historical Society collection (courtesy of the Delaware Public Archives and the City if Newark Department of Parks and Recreation). The Society invites donations or loans of pictures and other artifacts of places, activities, and life styles in the Greater Newark Area.

dent of the unit block of Winterhaven Drive in the Autumn Park Apartments, was last seen after she left school early on February 3rd.

Police later used an automated alert system (A Child is Missing) notifying the surrounding communities of the search for the teen.

Johnson was last seen wearing a black ski jacket with fur around the hood. She is 5'2", 120 pounds, and has long braided black hair.

Police investigate possible stabbing

Kildare's Irish Pub announced it will beef up security in the evening hours, following an incident took place outside the establishment in the Galleria on Main St.

"We at Kildare's are proud of our dedication to the safety of our guests and employees at all times. While the incident outside of our establishment last night is an anomaly, we have staffed only the most experienced security team to keep the pub safe," the release stated.

The release went on to state that the business "continues to maintain a safe, family friendly environment and is a pub to be used by all of Newark's residents, college students, professionals and visitors."

Newark Police, meanwhile, are looking for information on the incident.

Newark Police were called to the building at 45 East Main Street for a report of a large fight. Staff at Kildare's reported that several people were ejected from the bar. The male subjects then became involved in a large fight. During the fight, it was reported that one male was stabbed with a knife.

When police arrived to the scene, all parties, including the victim were gone. The second floor of The Galleria had blood on the floor and walls. Officers located a bloody t-shirt with a large slice mark in the chest area.

Investigators checked area hospitals in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey and no one has sought treatment of a possible stab wound. Due to evidence located at the scene, the Newark Police are concerned for the welfare of the victim.

IRS car grounded

Employees at the Internal Revenue Service, located at 1352 Marrows Rd., reported that an unknown suspect stole all four tires and rims from one of their fleet vehicles. The car, a 2006 Ford Mustang, had its four Pirelli tires and four factory rims removed. A search of the vehicle showed no fingerprints or marks on the exterior. Also, no visible footprints were found.

Child porn images found

Venette

New Castle County Police have arrested Michael D. Venette, 20, who resides in the 400 block of Darwin Drive in the community of Sycamore Gardens east of Newark. He has been charged with 30 felony offenses after police discovered at least that many images on his computer during a search warrant of his home.

Detectives initiated this case based on an investigation into the viewing and trading of child pornography over the internet. Based on evidence uncovered by computer forensic specialists, detectives obtained a search warrant for Venette's home and his computer.

He was arrested at his residence and later charged with the 30 counts mentioned above after a preliminary exam showed at least that many victims. The exact number of images and videos will not be known until a full forensic exam can be completed.

Venette has been arraigned and committed to the Howard Young Prison after failing to post a $300,000 secured bail.

Man charged with false robbery report

Madonna

A Newark man has been charged with making a false robbery report. On Dec. 28th, Steven Madonna, 31, of Kimberton Drive, reported to the Newark Police that he was robbed at gunpoint while walking through the College Square Shopping Center on his way to his home.

At the time of the incident Madonna claimed that during the robbery his backpack was stolen. Madonna stated that the backpack contained his prescription Roxicodone and Methadone pills.

During the course of the investigation, detectives obtained numerous surveillance videos of Madonna on that day both before and after the robbery. At no time was he ever carrying the described backpack.

On Feb. 11th, Madonna was charged with one count of Falsely Reporting an Incident, a misdemeanor. Madonna was released on $250 unsecured bail.

Tracks, keys lead to suspect

Stonebraker

New Castle County Police have arrested Michael Stonebraker, 31, year old male who resides in the unit block of E. Mattei Lane in the Brookside area, south of Newark. He has been charged with burglary related offenses after he attempted to break into a Scottfield home and accidentally left his car keys at the scene.

On Feb. 13th at 5:15 p.m., County Police were called to a residence in the unit block of Mavista Circle, in the community of Scottfield, for a report of an alarm and attempted burglary that just occurred. When the officers arrived, they located evidence of an attempted break-in in the back of the home and also found additional evidence rarely found at burglaries, a set of car keys.

Officer Steven Donahue and his canine partner "Monty" conducted a track from the area of the car keys and began following fresh footprints in the snow. Meanwhile, additional officers used the key fob found at the crime scene and began driving around the community while trying to remotely unlock cars that had been parked nearby. In short time, the officers located the suspect's vehicle parked on Malvern Drive near Brookside Blvd.

While tracking along a tree line in the community, Monty located a male subject walking through the woods carrying a flashlight. The subject said he was out searching for his keys. Stonebraker, was arrested without incident and found to be wanted for additional burglary related offenses.

Stonebraker has been arraigned and committed to the Howard Young Prison after failing to post $100,000 cash bail. His car keys, sneakers, and vehicle were seized as evidence.

Winter swim season just the beginning for Newark swimmer

By JON BUZBY
JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

Being a member of a high school swim team requires a commitment perhaps greater than in any other sport. Practices consist of swimming back and forth … lap after lap … day after day. By yourself, in a pool, and often in the dead of winter.

But for Rachel Ward, a sophomore on the Newark High swim team, the pool is a welcome respite from the hustle and bustle of her everyday life, no matter what time of year it is, and no matter the team.

"I love winning meets and improving my times," Ward said when asked her favorite part of the swim season.

Dropping times and setting personal bests in the 100 butterfly, 50 free and 100 backstroke have become routine during Ward's second season on the Newark team. And like any competitive swimmer, the success in the pool during competition, which is measured in minutes and seconds, is a direct result of time spent in the water between meets, measured in hours.

"Rachel continues to be a hard worker at practices," Newark coach Bryan Stambaugh says. "She puts a lot of effort in to make herself better, and clearly it has paid off."

Newark's volunteer stroke coach, MJ Polaski, who was the girls' head coach when Ward joined the team as a freshman, reiterates that without her dedication and hard work in the pool during each practice session — the Yellowjackets swim between two and 2½ miles each practice — Ward could have never dropped time in the meets. Nor would she have been able to win her first event ever at the high school level back in December against Appoquinimink.

"The highlight of my season this year was when Rachel won her first event," Polaski said of Ward's win in the 200 free, which was then followed by a first-place finish in the 500 free against Pencader Charter. "She always wants to do her part for the team, and although she has earned points for the team before by placing, it was so nice to see her come in first."

While the high school meet season begins to wind down and most of her teammates look forward to a break from the pool, Ward will dive right back in to her next swim season, as a member of the Grizzly Bears Special Olympics team. She will be training for the 2010 Special Olympics Delaware Summer Games in June and the 2010 Special Olympics National Games, held in mid-July in Lincoln, Neb.

"Rachel is a leader on our team," says Grizzly Bears coach Kit Iffland, who encouraged Ward to join the Yellowjackets and says her achievements have inspired her teammates to set goals to swim on their high school teams. "She gladly demonstrates various swimming techniques during stroke practice to provide a more visual example, allowing some of the other swimmers an enhanced way to learn more difficult swimming skills. She continually added an increasing number of practice nights to her schedule, as swimming became more of a passion and her goals widened."

Ward's success in the pool has helped her blossom away from it, where her mother has seen a dramatic change in her daughter, both socially and academically, especially since joining the Newark High team.

"Since Rachel has been on the high school team, I have noticed her confidence blossom," a proud Claudine Vazquez says. "She has won student of the marking period several times, and before joining the team she was an extreme introvert, but now is friends with many of her teammates and is very proud to wear her Newark gear."

"I love meeting new people and making new friends," Ward says of the social benefits of competing on both teams.

Stambaugh added Ward's teammates enjoy having her on the team and are very supportive of her; and they enjoy her contagious smile and "just do it" attitude, no matter the circumstances.

And it's that attitude that makes Ward's commitment to the sport of swimming special. Lap after lap … day after day … season after season.

Let it snow and be careful out there

By CINDY GENAU

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

All this snow reminds me of the days when I lived in Oshkosh, Wisconsin. Winters were harsh. Snow usually was on the ground before Thanksgiving. There would be about 18 inches of snow that would not leave until May. Well, heavy snowfalls have arrived in Delaware - at least the heaviest since 1996. What is different about the snow in Wisconsin - people know how to drive in it. Drivers are more prepared to drive in the snow and from what I have witnessed, there were fewer crashes while driving in the snow.

The total accumulation reported by the News Journal for New Castle County was 25.8 inches, which included traffic delays, spinouts and crashes. I witnessed many of these myself driving on I-95. To protect everyone, the state ordered everyone off the roads by 10pm the Friday night of the storm. "For your safety, the safety of our emergency personnel, and the safety of all Delawareans, drivers should stay off the roads," Markell said. "Our state agencies have been working together to prepare for and to combat the effects of this storm. Remaining off the roads helps them in this effort and is important to public safety." The storm that dropped snow on Delaware the weekend of January 30 and January 31st was not as intense as the one on the weekend of February 3 and February 4, but that storm accounted for 100 property damage and personal-injury related collisions. The Delaware Emergency Management Agency Deputy Director, Glenn Gillespie, advised that, "Even two to three inches on the roads can make driving difficult and can lead to car crashes. The safety of everyone is our concern. We need to all work together to stay safe and help each other out." So when the roads are slick with sleet, freezing rain, snow, or fog minimize your travel as much as possible. I add be alert, slow down, and be extra careful.

Logically we all know about safety, but with every storm and the large increase in collisions, it seems we all need to be reminded. So take a few moments and get you and your vehicle prepared to deal with bad winter weather driving. In any winter storm that involves accumulation of snow, the police remind drivers they are responsible to clear the snow off the hood and roof of their vehicles and their windows must be cleared so that the driver's view is not obstructed. Failing to do either of these items, can result in a fine. (If you can't see – you can't drive well.) I recall almost being hit by a large amount of snow from another car and not only was I scared, but it could have smashed through my windshield and caused me to have been in a collision. Have a full tank of gas in your vehicle. Check tire pressure to make sure all tires are properly inflated and the thread on the tires is sufficient. Allow extra time to get to your destination so you don't feel rushed. Drive slower than normal as it is harder to stop and control your vehicle in bad weather. Leave extra distance between you and the car in front of you to allow for the increased stopping distance—the best way to allow for the extra room needed to correct steering in case of an impending crash. Keep a disaster kit in your car with food and blankets.

But most important, protect you and your family by having everyone in a properly worn seatbelt or car seat. Delaware Office of Highway Safety advises that over half of the fatal crashes in Delaware involve drivers and passengers who were wnot using seatbelts. You know they are important to your safety, you know that they work, and you know they can save your life. Buckle Up and Arrive Alive. I have had citizens tell me their stories of how their seatbelt saved them and their car seats saved their child or that they would have had more serious injuries without their seatbelt. Just ask someone who has been in a crash. Driving safe all the time and buckling up is the best way to avoid being hurt or killed, but especially in winter storms. See you outside shoveling.

Winter heroism

Nottingham Green has a winter hero

Joan & Fran Mc Manus heaped praise on Richard Gayes.

They reported that during recent snowstorms he has been relentless in helping friends old and new with his snow-blower, targeting 12 families most in need. He has helped many seniors, including the McManus' and other neighbors who just couldn't handle the volume of snow. During the thick of the storm he went to work and returned the next day to putt the finishing touches onto walks and driveways. Also getting praise was Mark Vietri, who had the plow service hired for his property, run by the driveway entrance to move the snow deposited by the plows.

OBITUARIES

■ Obituaries are printed free of charge as space permits. Information is usually supplied to the newspaper by the funeral director.

James Inciardi

James A. Inciardi, Professor of Sociology and Criminal Justice at the University of Delaware, died on November 23 after a courageous battle with cancer. His career began as a Parole Officer in New York, and he later transitioned to the New York State Narcotic Addiction Control Commission. After completing his PhD at NYU, Jim spent several years at the University of Miami before finding his academic home at the University of Delaware in 1976. For many years Jim directed UD's Criminal Justice Program, and he became renowned as a teacher of criminal justice. In 1991, Jim founded the Center for Drug and Alcohol Studies at UD.

Jim was an incredibly productive researcher and scholar, and received continuous funding from NIDA for some 30 years. In recognition of his work, Jim received the Outstanding Scholar Award from the University of Delaware in 1994 and was awarded a Merit Grant from NIDA. In 1995 he was named a Fellow of the American Society of Criminology.

He is survived by his wife, Hilary Surratt, and by his three children, Craig, Brooks, and Kristin. He is also survived by his sister Anne Cifu, his daughters-in-law Joan and Lynne, and his grandchildren Allegra, Brooks, Anastasia, and Alessandra.

A memorial service is being held at 1 pm on February 26, at Bayard Sharp Hall, Corner of Elkton Road and Delaware Avenue, on the UD Campus. A scholarship fund in Jim's name has been established at the University of Delaware to support outstanding graduate students in the field of Criminology and Criminal Justice. Tax deductible contributions in Jim's memory can be made to the James A. Inciardi Memorial Award Fund, Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19716-2580.

Francis Carr

Francis A. "Frank" Carr, Jr., 49, of Newark, formerly Plymouth Meeting, PA, died suddenly on February 6, at his home.

He was the beloved son of Francis A. Carr, Sr. of Punta Gorda, FL and the late Jean L. (Cardamone) Carr. He was born in Norristown, PA on January 21, 1961. He was a graduate of Epiphany of Our Lord Elementary School class of 1975 and Plymouth Whitemarsh High School class of 1979. Frank was employed as a Draftsman. He was a veteran of the Gulf War during Operation Desert Shield and Desert Storm serving with the US Marine Corps with rank of Staff Sergeant, he also served with the National Guard and the Army Reserves.

In addition to his father, Francis, he is survived by four brothers, Kevin F. Carr (Barbara) of Laurel Springs, NJ, Patrick J. Carr of Golden, CO, James M. Carr (Eileen) of Allentown, PA, Joseph W. Carr (Bridget) of West Chester, PA; eight nieces and nephews, two aunts Bessie Toole and Camille Cardamone, and many cousins. He was pre-deceased by a baby brother Daniel Carr.

Relatives and friends were invited to his Funeral Service on Friday, February 12, at 10 am, at Emil J. Ciavarelli Family Funeral Homes, 516 Fayette St., Conshohocken, PA. Interment was in St. Matthew Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, donations in his name to the USO at www.uso.org are appreciated.

Housing market led to request

depressed economy will probably rebound within two years, but that the five-year period was agreed upon to allow for a "three-year buffer". He further admitted that this is a "very, very unusual request", but asked that the Council consider it carefully.

Almost immediately, members of the council expressed skepticism. Councilman David Athey was worried about the conversion back after the five-year period and whether buyers would be interested in becoming owners of former student housing. Councilman Paul Pomeroy, representative of the district where Sutton Place is located, spoke at great length about the possible rewards and pitfalls of approving the amendment.

Pomeroy complimented Kandra on the esthetics of the project and in having the foresight to creating housing that would attract potential buyers with jobs in the area of the Aberdeen Proving Ground. The councilman also said that he was leery of the idea of bringing student housing to the largely residential area along Barksdale Road.

Most of the Council, including Mayor Vance Funk, was concerned over the precedent that would be set for present and future projects. If allowed, the Council feared the amount of "grandfather" clauses and special cases that would have to be considered and voted upon in future meetings.

Pomeroy summed up the matter by stating that, though the present Council may have approved the agreement "with the best of intentions," future Council members may not see things the same way, thus creating the possibility of "loopholes" and unfairness in future decisions.

The developer has the right to continue to seek amendments to the plan for the community.

Snow piles make life tougher for motorists

Police are advising motorists to take care in dealing with snow piles at road entrances.

Two major snowfalls and temperatures that have stayed in the 30s have left the state with large snow piles that can obstruct the view of motorists.

Sgt. Walter Newton of the Delaware State Police said he was aware of at least three accidents where snow obstructions were a factor.

Delaware Department of Transportation spokesman James Westoff said crews and contractors hired by DelDOT have been working to clear the snow piles with tractor shovels and related equipment. The department is taking into accounts complaints about piles in deciding on the areas to be cleared, Westoff says. Crews also continue to plow roads, nearly a week, after the last major storm hit the state.

Newton says that in addition to scanning for oncoming traffic, motorists should consider options that can minimize the risk, including using a stoplight, if available. It is also advisable to make a right turn at an intersection with an obstructed view and make a left turn at an area where the view is clearer.

Westoff says he is aware of the problem and noted that in Sussex County, he had to inch his way out so oncoming traffic could see his vehicle.

Newton says the snow obstructions are unusual for the area and motorists are not as aware of the hazards as their counterparts in colder climes.
