WJBR-FM visited the restaurant to give away prizes to lucky winners. Employees encouraged customers to visit the drive-through window between 12 and 1 p.m. to break the restaurant's record for serving the most customers.

Mayor Vance Funk, who was on hand for the event, said, "The restaurant has changed a lot since I worked there."

"It was a simple business," Les Durkart said of the burger and fries menu of the early days. The challenge back then was drawing customers to a

For most people, a trip to the doctor's office can be an uncomfortable procedure. For others, it can be downright frightening. An area firm, Practice Without Pressure, Inc. (PWP), has come up with a new way to make the experience easier and, in some cases, even enjoyable.

Needing a way to help her autistic son Marc cope with the anxiety of medical tests and exams, founder Deborah Jastrbeski devised a method of breaking down each medical procedure into a series of steps to help Marc better understand what was happening to him when he visited the doctor. After two weeks of training in this sequencing method, Marc was able to undergo treatment without the need for restraints. According to a company brochure, "Through what is now the PWP Practice Model, Marc became strong where he had once been afraid and now faces procedures, both new and old, calmly and with confidence."

Jastrebski built upon her son's success and began her own company, Practice Without Pressure, in her home in 2002. In November 2009, PWP opened its own office, located at 2470

The Grannie Annie is a non-profit corporation based in St. Louis. Grannie Annie, Vol. 5 includes the work of 38 authors from eleven states and four countries. Submissions were received from across the United States and around the world.

"It's so exciting to know that these wonderful stories are being preserved for families -- and shared with people around the world," said Grannie Annie co-director Fran Hamilton. "Although the stories may depict unique events, they remind us of the fundamental experiences we all share as human beings."

UD Symphony to perform 'Chasing Light'

The University of Delaware Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Brian Stone, has been selected to represent The First State in the Ford Made in America music commissioning project performing the state premiere of Pulitzer Prize-winning composer Joseph Schwantner's "Chasing Light."

The performance is scheduled for Friday, March 19th at 8 p.m. at Mitchell Hall on the Newark campus.

Also on the program is a representation of different generations of American music that include:

- Leonard Bernstein's film score to "On the Waterfront" from the 1950s.

- Gershwin's "An American in Paris" from the 1920s.

- John Adams' "Gnarly Buttons for Clarinet and Orchestra" from the 1990s featuring clarinet professor Marianne Gythfeldt as soloist.

Ford Made in America is the largest orchestral commissioning consortium in the nation's history. Fifty-eight orchestras, including at least one in each of the 50 United States, have jointly commissioned Chasing Light by Joseph Schwantner.

The Ford Made in America program, which is spearheaded by the League of American Orchestras and Meet The Composer, offers an opportunity for ensembles in smaller communities to premiere a new work by an established American composer of national repute, and brings music by a living composer to audiences nationwide.

Ford Made in America is made possible by a grant from Ford Motor Company Fund, the philanthropic arm of Ford Motor Company.

Major support for the program is also provided by the National Endowment for the Arts, with additional funding from The Aaron Copland Fund for Music, Francis Goeliet Charitable Lead Trusts, and The Amphion Foundation.

The initial idea for Ford Made in America was conceived in 2001 by a steering committee of smaller-budget orchestra leaders: Robert Rosoff, executive director, Glens Falls Symphony Orchestra (New York); Anthony LaGruth, music director, Garden State Philharmonic (New Jersey); and Ryan Fleur, former executive director, Pro Arte Chamber Orchestra (Massachusetts) (now executive director of the Memphis Symphony Orchestra).

Dr. Brian Stone conducts the University of Delaware Symphony Orchestra.

Launched in 2005, Ford Made in America's inaugural composition, Made in America by Joan Tower, received rave reviews from critics and was performed over 80 times throughout the 50 states during the 2005-2006 and 2006-7 seasons. Widely acclaimed, Made in America went on to win three Grammy Awards: the piece was recognized as Best Classical Composition, and the Nashville Symphony won Grammy Awards for its recording of Made in America in the categories of Best Classical Album and Best Orchestral Performance.

Explaining his sources for Chasing Light, Schwantner comments: "Chasing Light... draws its spirit, energy and inspiration from the celebration of vibrant colors and light that penetrate the morning mist as it wafts through the trees in the high New England hills. Like a delicate dance, those images intersected with a brief original poem that helped fire my musical imagination."

Maintenance man, tenant charged with burglaries

(Police blotter items are compiled from local law enforcement agencies. For the latest police news, log on to newarkpostonline.com.)

A former maintenance man and tenant have been charged with burglaries at a the Pine Brooke Apartments on Wharton Drive.

The Newark Police Criminal Investigation Division arrested Christopher Carroll, 27, a tenant of the complex, and Charles Buckner, 42, a maintenance man at the complex.

Carroll, was charged with 3 counts of Burglary 2nd Degree, 3 counts of Theftover $1,500, 1 count of Conspiracy 2nd, 1 count of Conspiracy 3rd, and 2 counts of Filing a False Police Report.

Buckner was charged with 3 counts of Burglary 2nd Degree, 3 counts of Theftover $1,500, 1 count of Conspiracy 2nd, 1 count of Conspiracy 3rd, 1 count of Criminal Solicitation 2nd, and 1 count of Filing a False Police Report.

The investigation revealed that the pair used a master key to enter into apartments, without force, to remove property, usually consisting of jewelry. The pair then reported fake burglaries at the complex in an attempt to cover their tracks. The apartment complex management assisted the Newark Police in this investigation. The tenant has since been removed from the property and the maintenance man was terminated from employment.

Unknown suspect steals pedicab

Police are investigating the theft of a pedicab-style bicycle that was taken from a residence on W. Cleveland Ave. The bike, valued at $1,800, is a large blue tricycle with a curved roof over the back seat and has stickers and a fake license plate that say "URIDE."

The bike is used for transporting fares and possesses an electric motor and a portable credit card machine. The vehicle had been stored, unsecured, in the rear lot of the residence. Investigators found a short track leading down the hill in the rear yard to New London Rd. The track could not be followed, though police found a small mirror and other parts of the bike, leading away from the scene. A canvass of the neighborhood produced no witnesses.

Thieves take cigarettes

Last Thursday morning, owners of Suburban Tobacco, located at 306 Suburban Drive, in the Suburban Plaza Shopping Center, reported that three unknown suspects had thrown a rock through a window and stole several cartons of cigarettes.

Video surveillance cameras show a white male, wearing a long-sleeved white shirt, dark pants, white shoes, and having a white shirt around his head, throwing the rock through the front window. A car then pulled up, flashing its lights, and two males, one wearing a gray hooded sweatshirt and another wearing a dark hooded sweatshirt, entered the business. Both men had shirts covering their faces.

Several cartons of Newport Box 100's, Newport Lights, and Marlboro cigarettes were taken from a display on the north wall. Some of the cartons were later found behind the shopping center, along a path that ends at Millstone Drive. Shoe prints in the mud and two beer cans were taken into evidence. The Criminal Investigation Division is reviewing the case and additional footage from adjacent businesses in the shopping center.

Car dealer victim of tire thefts

During consecutive evenings, employees with Newark Chrysler Jeep, of 244 E. Cleveland Ave., reported the theft of tires from cars on their lot.

The first report happened last Tuesday and involved two vehicles, a 2010 Dodge Challenger and a 2010 Chrysler 300 Touring Edition. Both vehicles had been propped up with cinder blocks, causing over $1,000 in damage to both undercarriages, and had all four of their tires and rims taken. The value of the wheels is $1,656.12 for the Dodge and $2,125.52 for the Chrysler.

Video footage shows two individuals, one wearing dark pants and a dark hoodie, the other wearing light pants and a light shirt, walking on the back lot of the dealership. Later footage shows the pair rolling tires to their vehicle parked near the back fence. An search revealed that a section of the fence had been propped open with a cinder block, allowing access to the lot.

The next night, employees reported that another vehicle, a 2004 Chrysler Concorde, had also been the victim of a tire theft. The car had been parked near the service bay to be repaired. Four Michelin tires and wheels were removed, valued at $2,976.80. The car had also been propped up with blocks. Police found that the repaired section of the fence had been re-opened as a point of entry. Additional footage is being reviewed in an attempt to identify the suspects.

Underage customer caught with cocaine

While conducting a property check near Peddler's Liquors Mart, 110 College Square, police took into custody Dominique Earl, 20, of Capitol Trail, Newark for buying two bottles of Bacardi Limon and for lying about his age when questioned. While being questioned at headquarters, Earl acted very nervous and repeatedly put his hands into his pockets. Police conducted a thorough search and found a small clear sandwich bag containing 6.3 grams of crack cocaine on his person.

A background check showed that Earl had numerous prior arrests for murder, robberies, weapon offenses, assault of law enforcement officers, resisting arrest, and drug offenses. Earl was arraigned on a $2,102 secured bond and an additional $204 bond for an outstanding capias. He has been transported to the Howard R. Young Correctional Facility.

SWAT team called

New Castle County Police are currently investigating a reported domestic dispute between armed man and a female victim that allegedly occurred this morning in the Lexington Green Apartments in the Bear-Christiana area.

At 8:31 am on March 15th, County Police received an anonymous call from a person who reported witnessing a domestic dispute between a female tenant and a male subject who was allegedly armed with a handgun. Officers responded to the reported address and knocked on the door where the incident occurred.

After receiving no answer, the officers pulled back and reevaluated the situation while making the decision to activate SWAT and the Crisis Negotiation Team. Meanwhile, assisting officers began calling the victim on her cell phone as additional officers attempted to contact family members. All of the calls either went unanswered or provided no information regarding the welfare of the female victim or her two children.

Just after noon, the SWAT officers entered the dwelling and found the home unoccupied. Although the home was empty, the officers continued to search for the reported female victim. At approximately 12:40 pm, the female victim was located unharmed. Police learned she had, in fact, been involved in an altercation with a male and the threat of a gun was mentioned.

Investigators are currently interviewing the victim and attempting to identify the male.

Plans call for expansion of firm

▶ DOCTORS, from 1

Sunset Lake Road, just north of Route 40. The company now employs 11 and has served more than 500 clients. Their facility can train in a one-on-one setting or cater to groups as large as 6 patients plus their support staff.

The PWP Practice Model breaks down normal procedures, such as getting an injection, into a series of incremental steps that are illustrated on laminated cards. A patient views what is happening on the card, while a licensed medical professional explains and demonstrates each part of the sequence as they perform it on the patient. If a patient needs to stop for any reason, they raise up a card with a stop sign to let the instructor know to take a break.

If anxiety is experienced during the patient's training, the professionals can direct their efforts to an individual step to help alleviate the fear. The model was originally designed to educate families of children with special needs, but has since grown to include special-need adults and people of all ages who have experienced intense anxiety while undergoing medical treatment.

"We help individuals be prepared and not scared to receive care, and bring under one roof routine services that can benefit the whole family," said Jastrebski. She continued, "To meet that need, we created our center to serve as a healthcare home where anyone can benefit from our unique practice approach and receive routine exams and treatment by professionals, all in the same place."

PWP accepts Medicaid, Medicare, and a host of medical insurances. They also provide dental services for those supported by the Delaware Division of Developmental Disability Services.

The non-profit company raises funds privately and is augmented by donations of equipment from medical groups and charities. Financed by PNC Bank through the assistance of Lt. Gov. Matt Denn and PNC CEO Connie Bond Stuart, PWP also receives assistance through the Longwood and Welfare Foundations. A Blues Festival fundraiser will be held on March 28 at Tailgates Sports Bar and Restaurant (see Community Events). Additional events will be held in April.

PWP has expanded training services, both on and off-premises, to include general dentistry, dental hygiene, women's health, phlebotomy, and nail and hair care. Plans for the future also include training in family medical services.

In keeping with Delaware's expanding health care system, PWP is going beyond their small group setting by also training large groups in a seminar format. "In addition to seminars and presentations, we expect to offer internships to students and certificate programs to professionals in dental and health care so our methods can benefit more patients and improve access and quality of treatment options for people with disabilities, their families and the public at large," said Jastrebski, about the company's long-term plans. In February, PWP helped to train over 100 second-year medical students at the University of Maryland. A dental group in Delaware will be trained in April. PWP has trained medical staff at Christiana Hospital and is working to have arrangements with additional medical groups in Delaware. The company also hopes to open offices in all three counties.

Though PWP works directly with the University of Delaware's Center for Disability Studies and wants to include a training center at the proposed medical education facility at the former Chrysler site, no formal arrangements have been made.

As for the continuing and growing success of PWP, Jane Miller, director of marketing, stated, "Our people are the best ambassadors."

What to know about overdraft policy changes

By MARIA PIPPIDIS

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

More mail will be coming from your financial institutions. The good news is you will get to choose how you want overdrafts to be handled on your ATM and debit card accounts. These changes are coming about because there are new rules set forth by the Federal Reserve. So expect your bank or credit union to send you an explanation of its overdraft services. Here are some key things you need to consider when reading the notice:

An overdraft occurs when you make a purchase or ATM transaction but do not have enough money in your account to pay for it. For a fee, your bank's overdraft services will cover you when you become overdrawn. This fee can apply to each time you overdraw your account. Currently institutions offer one of two options. Some provide an overdraft protection plan, which offers you a line of credit or a link to your savings account to cover your overdraft and a fee, is charged when overdrafts occur. The more standard option is that each time you overdraft, a flat fee of $20-$30 is charged. As you can imagine this can escalate into a large amount of fees quickly if the user is unaware of their account balance.

With the new rules, you get to choose. In the past, some banks automatically enrolled you in their standard overdraft services for all types of transactions when you opened an account. Under the new rules, your institution must first get your permission to apply these services to everyday debit card and ATM transactions before you can be charged overdraft fees. To grant this permission, you will need to respond to the notice and opt in (agree).

For existing accounts, if you do not opt in (agree) to the standard overdraft services, beginning August 15, 2010, your bank's standard overdraft services will not apply to your everyday debit card and ATM transactions. This do-nothing approach will mean that transactions that take you over your account balance (put you in the negative) will be declined at the point of sale. In this case, you will not be charged overdraft fees. Though it may be embarrassing in the checkout line, for some consumers this is the best option because they will not be charged the fees.

For new accounts that are opened on or after July 1, 2010 your bank cannot charge you overdraft fees for everyday debit card and ATM transactions unless you opt in. If you open a new account before July 1, 2010, your bank will treat you as an existing account holder: you will receive a notice about your bank's overdraft services and will have to decide if you want them for everyday debit card and ATM transactions.

How do you decide to opt in or out? If you are an account holder who carries a low balance, is not always aware of your balance and in the past was charged overdraft fees, you may be better off not agreeing to the standard overdraft services. If your institution allows you to link your account to savings account that has funds in it, this would be your best option. If you are a consumer that typically knows their balance and is not in any fear of overdrawing their accounts, you could opt in to the services as long as you're prepared to pay the fee. Whatever your decision, the new overdraft rules give you flexibility. If you opt in, you can cancel at any time. If you do not opt in, you can do so later.

Be forewarned that checks and automatic bill payments (like mortgage, rent, electric or credit cards) are not covered under these new rules. Your bank may still automatically enroll you in their standard overdraft services for these types of transactions. If you do not want your bank's standard overdraft services in these instances, talk to your bank; you may or may not have the option to cancel.

Newark McD's turns 50

► MCDONALDS, from 1

burger place that was not yet a household word.

Les heads Dukart Management, a north Wilmington-based franchisee for McDonald's.

His father, Leonard Dukart, opened McDonald's restaurant No. 225 on March 15, 1960 at 374 E. Main Street, Newark. It was the first McDonald's in Delaware.

Len Dukart had moved his family to the area from Chicago. Only five years earlier, founder Ray Kroc had opened his first McDonald's in a Chicago suburb and the company was in the early stages of building a nationwide franchise system that now spans the globe.

An example of that growth is the Dukarts' McDonald's at the Middletown Wal Mart - Store No. 31,673. A second Newark store opened on College Avenue and near I-95 in the late 1970s.

Alan Dukart, Len's brother, came on board in June 1979. Sons Michael and Joel are partners and moved the business into the third generation. Founder Leonard Dukart passed away in 2004.

Les Dukart visited the restaurant, after school, on its first day of operation and remembers being impressed with its sparkling appearance.

The Dukarts own and operate two dozen McDonald's locations in Delaware and southeastern Pennsylvania.

The family has a long history of community service. Len Dukart was instrumental in the opening of the Delaware Ronald McDonald House and Les has been active in community activities in northern Delaware.

Over the years, the business grew in complexity as more menu items were introduced and stores added up drive-up windows and square footage.

"If it weren't for technology, we'd be in trouble," Les Dukart said.

The changes may be nearly as dramatic in the coming decade, according to Dukart.

Even more menu items will be added and virtually all stores will see major redesigns, either from new construction or major renovation projects.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic item is an undated picture of the Vat Room of the Continental-Fibre Company on South Chapel Street. Vulcanized fiber was produced here along with products made of it. Vulcanized fiber is made from layers of paper passed through an acid bath of zinc chloride that makes the paper gummy. The sticky layers are repeatedly pressed together to bind into vulcanized fiber. The acid is leached out of the fiber in a series of water baths. The resulting material is strong, flexible, easily machined, low in electrical conductivity, and cannot rust or splinter. It was early used as a substitute for leather in luggage products. It was widely used for electrical insulators, washers, and gaskets in cars and electrical appliances. Other products included barrels, boxes, cans, brake shoes, buttons, card indexes, chair seats, combs, cue tips, pul-leys, shin-guards, spoons, wastebaskets, and more. The picture is on loan to the Newark Post from the Newark Historical Society collection. Visit the new Newark History exhibit at the Newark Free Library. The Society invites donations or loans of stories, pictures and other artifacts of places, activities, and life styles in the Greater Newark Area. Contact the Newark Historical Society by voice mail at 302-224-2408, by postal mail to P.O. Box 711, Newark, DE 19715, or by email to newarkdehistorical.society@yahoo.com.

Hudson State Service Center to aid unemployed

Easier access to tools and training for unemployed Delawareans should result from a new partnership announced by the Delaware Department of Labor and Department of Health and Social Services. This joint initiative will be the "first of several such innovative collaborations between our departments," said John J. McMahon, state Secretary of Labor.

Delawareans will find core and intensive re-employment help at the Hudson State Service Center in Newark. Hudson will be the first State Service Center offering employment and training services side-by-side other services from the Department of Health and Social Services. It means people will find job search, training opportunities and skills assessment at the same location as medical assistance and food benefits, child support payment information and general assistance programs.

"By locating multiple services under one roof, we can provide a strong array of support to individuals who need it the most," said Governor Jack Markell. "This provides expanded workforce training and operational efficiencies for both staff and citizens."

The One-Stop will have a resource room for clients to develop resumes and receive core and intensive job search assistance, explore opportunities for training as well as wrap around services from the Department of Health and Social Services, such as access to food benefits, medical assistance benefits, child support payment information, and other general assistance programs that individuals may be eligible for.

"We want to support people through employment challenges and economic hardships as best we can," said Rita Landgraf, Secretary of Health

& Social Services. "This partnership gives our clients social services as well as access to other state services that they may need to assist them through their transition back to employment."

In addition, the facility will also be the pilot location for the introduction of "WorkKeys," a series of assessments that measure skills critical to on-the-job success. The Certificate provides an objective measurement of workplace skills that can be accepted nationwide. While the co-location and the implementation of the WorkKeys program is made possible through funds geared towards the auto industry, any individual who visits the Hudson State Service Center and is in need of employment assistance will be able to access the services. The One-Stop will initially have a staff of ten Employment & Training professionals, including four former autoworkers.

The recent receipt of a National Emergency Grant (NEG) to serve workers from the auto industry made these further enhanced services possible. In addition, the Department of Labor and the Chrysler Corporation have reached an agreement to provide up to $10,000 in additional training funds to Chrysler workers, above and beyond any federal workforce funding. The staff will be available to discuss the process to access these funds with the affected workers.

Steve Bastianelli spent the better part of his career as a fixture on the Delaware wrestling scene. And now he'll become a permanent fixture on the Delaware sports scene when he's inducted into the Delaware Sports Hall of Fame on May 19.

"It is quite an honor to be accepted into this special group," Bastianelli, currently in his second year as athletic director at Newark High, said shortly after learning of the honor. "For me it means even more as I will be joining my dad as a member of the Delaware Sports Hall of Fame."

Bastianelli spent 23 seasons at the helm of arguably the most successful wrestling program in the state before turning over the program to his nephew, Jason Bastianelli, and then assisting him for four years.

"Putting my uncle's impact on my life, wrestling career, and coaching career, is hard to put into words," Jason said after learning of his uncle's award. "He taught me how to wrestle and taught me how to coach. He was the best teacher I ever had through 18 years of schooling and I will be eternally thankful for all the help and guidance he has provided me."

Bastianelli's teams won 10 team state championships and finished runner-up eight times, and the number of individuals winning titles is too many for even him to remember. "I don't know," he responded when asked how many.

Jason, who had his uncle as a history teacher as a sophomore at St. Mark's, says perhaps it is a quote by Henry E. Adams which best sums up Bastianelli's impact on others he taught, coached and mentored: "A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."

McCants comments on first year as Newark hoops coach

Newark High's first-year boys basketball coach Shannon McCants survived his first season having to play the majority of his home games away due to construction on the school's gymnasium. And it was away, at the Bob Carpenter Center, where the Yellowjackets' season ended in the quarterfinals of the Boys State Tournament.

But despite losing to top-seeded Sanford 59-51, McCants was pleased with his rookie campaign. I caught up with the coach shortly after Newark's season came to a close ...

On how he felt about this year's team, which finished 14-5: "What made me the proudest this season is that the kids believed in me like I believed in them. But the one thing that stood out the most was their good grades and behavior this year. Most of my starters had over a 3.0 GPA and kids that usually don't do well academically, did."

On what he learned his first year as a head coach: "I wanted to be hands on with every aspect of the program my first year. I will delegate more wisely next year. I also learned how tough it is to win games in the [Blue Hen Flight A] conference."

On next year's team: "I'm looking forward to next year. The foundation is laid, I have some good players returning that understand my system now, we have a new gym floor so we can play more home games, and I'm curious to see the new incoming class."

Local semi-pro football team's season begins

The New Castle Saints, Delaware's only semi-professional football team, rolled past the Atlantic City Devils, 24-0, in its opening game.

Wide receiver Tony Harris, running back Anthony Congo and quarterback Robert Sheppard each scored touchdowns in the win.

Rookie kicker Robert DeGroat was 3-for-3 on extra points and capped his first game with a 32-yard field goal late in the fourth quarter.

The Saints' next home game is March 27 against the South Jersey Storm. All home games are played at Appoquinimink High School in Middletown, beginning at 7 p.m. Gates open at 6 and the $5 tickets can be purchased at the stadium.
