Newark's finances see continued growth

By MARK CORRIGAN

MCORRIGAN@CHESPUB.COM

For the first eight months of the year, Newark is seeing a strong return on its cost-cutting practices.

At last week's Mayor and Council meeting, City Finance Director Dennis McFarland presented the August financial report, which states that, as of August 31, the city is showing a surplus of just under $700 thousand.

Governmental funds showed huge gains with a large dip in expenses and a $783 thousand bump in revenues, which translated into a surplus of $1.211 million. McFarland stated that the upswing was due primarily to a $362 thousand increase in permit revenues, with $140 thousand coming from the building permit for the expansion of the Bob Carpenter Center; $124 thousand more in fine revenues; and another $164 thousand increase in miscellaneous collections.

In the enterprise funds, revenues dropped almost $300 thousand, overall, and expenses climbed $150 thousand, due to payments for annual contracts, showing a deficit of $448 thousand. Sewer revenues saw a drop of $463 thousand, due mainly to a $2.8 million liability that was adjusted for overcollections made throughout the year and timing differences. Water revenues dropped $260 thousand. The electric utility met budget estimates by the recent adoption of deferred accounting practices. Some good news was reported as parking lot revenues saw an increase of $224 thousand.

But perhaps the best news of all was reported for the city's cash position, which is listed at $22.4 million, a $3.4 million increase from the year's start.

McFarland stated, in the report, "We had forecasted an increase in the cash balance for the entire year of only $200 thousand."

Over the past month, County detectives have been investigating a case where it had been reported by family members on September 4 that Bridget Wismer was attempting to sell her newborn son to a Philadelphia man for $15,000. During the original investigation, detectives conducted numerous interviews and were unable to substantiate the allegations

Detectives also learned that the Division of Family Services had received similar information after the birth of the child in late August and were currently investigating the same allegations.

On September 29, detectives received valuable information from the Delaware State Police Division of Gaming Enforcement that would help confirm the subjects' involvement with one another in regard to the sale and purchase of the newborn. On September 30, with the assistance of the Philadelphia Police Department, detectives executed a search warrant at Gavaghan's residence and they were able to recover evidence that assisted with linking him to the crime.

After detectives conducted separate interviews involving both subjects, they were able to confirm that Gavaghan and Wismer were involved with one another in the sale and purchase of the newborn. The child is currently in foster care.

Bridget Wismer and John Gavaghan were charged with the following crimes: Dealing in Children and Conspiracy in the Second Degree. Wismer was arraigned and released after posting $750 secured bail for the charges and $1,500 secured bond and $75 cash bail for outstanding capiases. Gavaghan was arraigned and released on $7,000 unsecured bond and was ordered to have no contact with the victim.

Lathem, 20, is employed part-time as a custodian and groundskeeper at Red Lion Christian Academy, a private school in Bear with students in preschool through 12th grade.

Lathem was charged with 25 counts of dealing in child pornography. He is being held at James T. Vaughan Correctional Center in lieu of $625,000 bail. The investigation is continuing.

Newark man, accused in stabbings, seeks insanity plea

A Delaware man who allegedly stabbed three men outside an Elkton bar in May claims he should not be held criminally responsible because an unspecified mental problem impaired his judgment. The accused, M a t t h e w T h o m a s Slavish, 23, of Newark, is charged with attempted firstdegree murder, attempted second-degree murder and 11 other offenses, including eight counts of assault.

Slavish is accused of attacking the men outside the Drunk Monkey at 989 E. Pulaski Highway about 2:30 a.m. on May 21. His lawyer, Deputy District Public Defender John K. Northrop, filed a "not criminally responsible" plea on Slavish's behalf Sept. 23, according to court records.

Outside the legal community, it is commonly referred to as an insanity plea.

In response, Cecil County Circuit Court Judge Keith A. Baynes ordered Slavish to submit to a mental health evaluation by state psychiatrists.

Baynes also postponed all future court hearings for Slavish until the issue can be resolved. Slavish's jury trial had been set to start Nov. 28. He also was scheduled for an Oct. 28 pre-trial hearing.

Regardless of conclusions drawn by state psychiatrists, Slavish still would stand trial in this attempted murder case.

Should psychiatrists conclude that Slavish was unable to appreciate the criminality of his alleged actions, the jury still would decide his guilt or innocence.

And if jurors were to find Slavish guilty, then they would deliberate further to decide if he should be held criminally responsible.

A defendant who is considered "not criminally responsible" after he is found guilty is committed indefinitely to a state psychiatric facility.

That person can be released at any time if psychiatrists conclude that his mental problem has been healed and that he doesn't pose a danger to himself or others.

If, however, the jury concludes that Slavish should be held criminally responsible after finding him guilty, then the judge could impose a prison sentence.

According to court records, witnesses said Slavish was "confrontational" with patrons in the bar and told a friend he was "going to pop off on everyone."

Later, while arguing with a woman outside the bar, Slavish pulled a knife and a large brawl followed, police said.

Slavish swung the knife stabbing one man in the left thigh, another man in the abdomen and a third man in the abdomen and forearm, police added.

The three victims, all Elkton-area residents, were treated for non-life-threatening wounds at Christiana Hospital. Police arrested Slavish at the scene.

Last Tuesday morning, officers responded to a car fire that occurred in the parking lot of Pomeroy Station, located at 218 East Main Street.

The fire department quickly extinguished the flames, but not before the car, a 2003 Honda Civic being driven by a University of Delaware student living in the apartment building, was completely engulfed, causing major damage to it and the passenger side of an adjacent vehicle, a 2007 Toyota Corolla, also driven by a UD student living in the building.

McLaren selected as New Castle County's next chief of police

Castle County New Executive Paul Clark has selected W. Scott McLaren to be the county's next chief of police. McLaren, a veteran law enforcement officer, has been the county's director of public safety since March; he will retain that position, which oversees the police, paramedic, 911 communications and emergency manage-ment functions of the govern-

Pending confirmation by County Council, McLaren will succeed Col. Michael McGowan, who retired as police chief Oct. 1 after leading the force since September 2009. McGowan took a position as New Castle County director for U.S. Sen. Chris McLaren, 49, spent 21 years with the New Castle County Police Department, joining in 1988 as a patrol officer and rising through the ranks to become the first lieutenant colonel in the history of the department in 2003. He served as acting chief from 2005 to 2006. He also oversaw security that the police provided for Joe Biden during and after Biden's run for vice president.

McLaren left the police department in 2009 to become assistant director of campus safety and assistant professor of social and behavioral sciences at Wilmington University, where he remains an adjunct professor. He later served as chief of police for the town of Elsmere for eight months before being named the county's director of public safety.

The Department of Public Safety includes more than authorized positions, making up the largest sector of county government. With a budget of $80 million, the department also accounts for the largest share of the county's overall operating budget of about $241 million. The police force has an authorized capacity of 364 positions.

We are very fortunate to have someone with Scott's experience and knowledge to lead our police force at this time," Clark said. "He's a strong leader with an extensive background in law enforcement and public safety, and I believe he is ideally suited to move our police agency forward in its mission to keep our citizens safe." Clark added that he wishes former chief McGowan the best and looks forward to working with him in his role on Sen. Coons's staff.

McLaren holds a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Wilmington College and a master's degree in criminal justice administration from Wilmington University. He completed training at the FBI National Academy in 2000 and the Police Executive Research Forum in Boston in 2003, is a member of the FEMA National Advisory Board and serves on the Criminal Justice Advisory Boards at Delaware Technical and Community College and Wilmington University. He is a life member of the Elsmere

Fire Company.

In 1993 McLaren was named Detective of the Year by the state of Delaware for his work in solving the 1992 murder of Elizabeth Girardi. In 1997 the International Association Chiefs of Police presented him its first Civil Rights award for his role as chief investigator in the first successful federal prosecution of a hate crime in Delaware.

"I look forward to working with the dedicated men and women of the NCCPD in our shared commitment to grassroots community policing," McLaren said. nual Main Street Mile breaks record

Main Street Mile had a record setting year with nearly 340 runners and walkers, more than doubling last year's number, and $10,441 raised by sponsors and the race on Saturday, October The Main Street Mile Guest

Bartender fundraiser in August raised $7,157 to which additional $5,000 was added after Newark Vance Mayor

Funk donated his

Mayor's salary. In honor of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the Main Street Mile

Committee donated $5 to the Cancer Support Community for every runner and walker wearing a pink t-shirt. With 49 people wearing pink t-shirts, the Cancer Support Community will receive $250.

After the race, runners and walkers were treated to a continental breakfast and a demonstration by the newest addition to the Police Department, K-9 Officer Cody. Cody was purchased with the help of the Main Street Mile fundraisers. With just two weeks of training so far, Cody and handler Cpl. Chris Jones demonstrated patrol work and drug search techniques.

Grant funds construction of third rail track between Wilmington and Newark

Sen. Tom Carper, Sen. Chris Coons and Rep. John Carney (all D-Del.) and Delaware Secretary of Transportation Shailen Bhatt applauded the Federal Railroad Administration's (FRA) decision to obligate the $13.3 million High Speed Intercity Passenger Rail grant that was awarded to Delaware in October 2010. The move allows DelDOT to begin work on a project to add a third track to Amtrak's Northeast Corridor between Wilmington and Newark, reducing train congestion and easing delays in a location that is currently a chokepoint for Amtrak, SEPTA, and freight trains. The project is expected to begin this fall and be completed by the end of 2014.

"This investment in Delaware's passenger rail system will make a positive impact up and down the Northeast Corridor, creating jobs, improving service and increasing reliability," said Senator Carper. "As a near-daily rider of Amtrak, I know that adding a third rail will bring much-needed improvements to regular problem areas along Delaware's track, while also expanding and enhancing station facilities and customer convenience. This investment will also help to lay the groundwork for future improvements, both in Delaware and other states, which will accelerate the Northeast Corridor's continuing evolution as a true high-speed rail option. Robust investments in our nation's passenger rail system will help reduce our dependence on foreign oil, cut harmful air emissions, ease traffic congestion and create jobs — and this project is no exception."

"Rail lines are a critical piece of our state's transportation infrastructure, so projects like this that increase capacity are very important to Delaware," Senator Coons said. "This funding will allow DelDOT to add a third track between Wilmington and Newark, effectively removing a major choke point in the Northeast Corridor and allowing increased volume of service through Delaware. I'm glad this federal money has finally been obligated and look forward to work getting underway."

"The nation's busiest rail corridor runs directly through our state, allowing Delawareans to move easily up and down the northeast. But with freight trains, Amtrak and SEPTA all currently trying to use two tracks between Wilmington and Newark, congestion and delays can be a problem for commuters," said Congressman Carney.

"This project will create jobs while improving reliability and reducing travel time for the thousands of rail passengers who rely on Amtrak and SEPTA each day."

"[The] announcement affirms the state's ability to make significant right-of-way

"[The] announcement affirms the state's ability to make significant right-of-way improvements to its portion of the northeast rail corridor," said Delaware Secretary of Transportation Shailen Bhatt. "Our agency is in the process of seeking bids for this work to start as soon as this fall. When complete in 2014, these improvements will enhance the speed and reliability of rail service in the area and contribute to the state's ability to attract new jobs and businesses."

Glasgow brings inspiration with new weight room

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

Just a few years ago the Glasgow High football team was in such dire straits it was forced to borrow equipment from its cross-town rival.

Since that time it's been a long road traveled to get to Friday afternoon's rib-bon-cutting ceremony unveiling the school's new weight

"I am very proud of this moment," sixth-year football coach Shannon Riley said. "The football staff knew we needed to upgrade the weight room if we were to compete at a high level. We came up with a plan, had many meetings and made many contacts, and it finally became a real-

Riley said the entire project cost approximately $40,000 and that the money has been raised over several years through a variety of fundraisers, concessions sales, and donations, all spearheaded by the football team.

"I'm excited about the new equipment," junior quarter-back Khari Ngozi said shortly before the ribbon-cutting ceremony. "It will make me bigger, faster and stronger, and help me prepare for playing at the next level."

At first glance it is obvious that there was a lot of thought put into the layout and design of the weight room and the adjoining fitness room that overlooks the weight machines. The room is lit up by several murals on the walls, trophies lining the rails, and inspiring slogans meant to motivate the users.

"I was really 'wowed' when I walked into what was once a storage room and saw a work of fitness art," Glasgow principal Dr. Sherry Gross commented. "I could feel the hard work and passion put into the new weight room and I am so thankful for the relentless efforts of our staff, students and community to make this happen for our kids."

The new weight room replaces one built outside near the football stadium several years ago by another group of coaches and parents.

"The equipment was old, torn, and tattered, and the building was basically in the same shape," said Sonji Hubbard, chairperson of the football boosters and a Glasgow graduate whose own three kids all played sports at Glasgow. "At the end of last season we knew something had to be done because the building was basically deemed unfit for use. Coach Riley and our coaching staff immediately turned the focus on finding a place for a weight room/training facility for all student athletes at Glasgow. Our coaching staff put a lot of sweat and hard work into creating this facility."

"Our coaching staff has done most of the work by hand," Riley pointed out. hand," Riley pointed out. "Coaches painted and cleaned and hauled equipment during their days off and after school hours. They networked, called, begged and sought out help from gyms or any other location that might have used equipment. Our art teacher painted the entrance doors. It's truly been a team effort to get this up and running."

While the bulk of the work, both manually and in the planning for the facility, was done by the football program, Riley said it was always with the entire athletic department in mind.

"Even though the football team has been the main contributor to the project, we want all sports to benefit from this," Riley said with pride. "The coaches have communicated and coordinated workout times and it has been beneficial so far. We have had several teams use the weight room and it is now catching on to the other sports and the coaches are scheduling time for their teams as well.

Even the seniors, who will only directly benefit from the facility for one year, were enthusiastic throughout the

were the main players helping move equipment and painting. Our former players are always welcome back so they took pride in the project knowing they will be back in the future."

As for the future of Glasgow athletics, painted in bright red on the wall of the weight room is the slogan: "The Road to State Championships Begins

Thanks to the hard work of many, "here" is now a brand weight room, and the end of that long road appears to be getting closer.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic item is an aerial view of Newark used as the title page for the 1948 KRAWEN, the Newark High School student yearbook. This view shows Newark as it was before the big growth period of the 1950's and beyond that changed Newark from a Town to a City and pushed the municipal boundaries outward in all directions. The view is looking east. The street across the bottom that bends downward out of the scene is Orchard Road. The next street bordering the open area is South College Avenue. The area between the double rows of trees is the University of Delaware Mall. Beyond that is Academy Street followed by Haines Street and finally South Chapel Street in front of the Continental-Diamond Fibre plant with the double smoke stacks behind which passes the Pomeroy and Newark Railroad. Next is the George Reed Village housing development and at the top is the oval horse track on the Dameron Farm.

To the left of the Dameron track is Ogletown Road that extends west (downward in the picture) becoming East Main Street, intersecting with Academy Street, and passing out of the picture in front of the Newark Methodist Church. The next east and west street is Delaware Avenue that connects Elkton Road (not shown) and South Chapel Street. The next east-west passage is split. In the upper part of the scene, Lovett Avenue connects Academy Street and South Chapel Street in the lower part of the scene Kent Way connects Orchard Road and South College Avenue. Many, but not all, of the properties pictured have survived into the 21st century, albeit with some changes in use.

Boogie down! It's time for the Food Bank of Delaware's Saturday Night Fever Blue Jean Ball. The food bank will host its annual signature event on Saturday, October 8 from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. in its Newark warehouse at 14 Garfield Way in the Delaware Industrial Park

Guests can leave their black tie gala attire at home for this annual event. Blue Jean Ball attendees are asked to don their favorite blue jeans or hippest outfits for a night at the disco. This year's theme will take guests back to the disco days; the food bank's 33,000square-foot warehouse will be transformed into a space reminiscent of the Saturday Night Fever dance floor.

The Blue Jean Ball is held each year to raise awareness of the acute problem of hunger in Delaware and the important role the food bank plays in combating hunger, as well as its root cause – poverty.

The evening will feature beer and wine and fine cuisine prepared by the Food Bank of Delaware's Executive Chef, Tim Hunter, Chef Instructor, Mark Saunders, and students from The Culinary School. The evening's menu includes popular foods from the era such as mini monte cristo sandwiches, ambrosia salad, lamb chops with minted demi-glace, a gourmet "shake-n-bake" chicken, salmon, rice-a-roni, macaroni and cheese and more.

Live entertainment will provided by Strangers, the area's newest party band. Guests will also have an opportunity to bid on a wide selection of items during the silent auction, including a trip to Hawaii.

Tickets are available for $100/person and $1,000/table of ten. Tickets may be pur-chased by calling (302) 444-8074 or by visiting www. fbdbluejeanball.org.
