Windy Hills bridge is up for repairs

Residents want more protection
for pedestrians

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Maintenance work has been funded for a much-used bridge on Kirkwood Highway over the White Clay Creek near Newark, according to staff of the Wilmington Area Planning Council.

The bridge connects the Windy Hills development on the east side of Newark with an existing shopping center and several stores in the area. This summer, residents also will be able to walk to the new Red Mill Square shopping center opening further along the highway. In addition, the bridge allows residents of an apartment complex to reach a DART bus stop.

Mike Williams, spokesperson for the Delaware Department of Transportation, confirmed that the project is in the Transportation Improvement Plan (TIP) for the year 2002, which means work could be done anytime after July. "But, that doesn't mean it won't get done later, or bumped into 2003," said Williams. "Bridge 229B (as designated by DelDOT) is scheduled for the medium range of repairs because it is worn and old."

Among the work planned are repairs: to the steel beams bearing weight; for cracking in side and top cement walls; for some cracks in the "approach slabs;" and around piers where water has scoured away the material.

"This is not a full deck repair which would require road closure," said Williams.

A report published in WILMAPCO's quarterly newsletter indicated nearby residents would like to see the project expanded somewhat.

Project planners hope a Transportation Enhancement Program will improve "walkability" with new sidewalks along Old Lancaster pike near Hockessin.

Local residents 'full of opinions' for better bike/pedestrian access planned in next year

By KATY CIAMARICONE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The area around Hockessin and Pike Creek will be greener soon, thanks to a $579,000 grant comprised of federal and local funds for safer streetscapes, "beefier" greenways and enhanced pedestrian pathways in the community.

Committees from Hockessin Greenways are taking soil and water samples and talking with area residents to plan a course of action for the proposed renovations. "They're working through a combination of easements and the buying of properties and development," said State Representative Roger Roy (R-Limestone Hills). "They're just trying to get everything together." Roy is one of two local legislators who lobbied to establish a $116,000 community match for the project.

The Federal Highway Administration provided the rest of the funding through the Transportation Enhancements Program, established in 1998. The program provides up to $500,000 per approved community enhancement project each year nationwide, to address environmental, traffic, open space and quality of life issues related to transportation.

Officials from the Delaware Department of Transportation review funding request applications, decide how the allocations will be spent, and oversee each projects' design and construction.

"It's a pretty competitive application process," said David Petrosky, transportation enhancements project manager. "We have to make sure several eligibility requirements are met."

Each project must fall into one of three categories - historic preservation, landscaping/scenic, or bicycle/pedestrian - to qualify for funding. The Hockessin project is considered bicycle/pedestrian, and locals are full of opinions about what to do with the funds.

Tim Plemmons, the assistant executive director of Delaware Greenways, sponsored the funding request for the Hockessin project and hopes the money will help "improve walkability" along Old Lancaster Pike.

"Right now, the road has a narrow and discontinuous pathway; we want to help fund sidewalks along the road," Plemmons said. "That would include new crosswalks, landscaping, and relocating utility poles."

State Senator Liane Sorenson (R-Hockessin) said sidewalks in downtown Hockessin could make the area more accessible to its residents. "The main part of Hockessin, unlike Newark, does not have sidewalks," she said.

Sorenson and Roy worked together to establish $116,000 from the local Suburban Streets program to provide a 20-percent community match required for

Cancer incidence on Minner's agenda

Rate 10 percent higher here than national average

Newly updated cancer statistics were expected to be among the topics of discussion at the first meeting of Governor Ruth Ann Minner's Advisory Council on Cancer Incidence and Mortality. The new council met yesterday at the Delaware Technical and Community College-Terry Campus in Dover.

Delaware's cancer incidence rate - which is the number of cases of diagnosed cancer per 100,000 people - continues to fall, as it has since 1994.

But recent recalculations by Delaware Health and Social Services' Division of Public Health (DPH) suggest that the state's incidence rate is 10 percent higher than the national average. That is higher than the previously calculated Delaware incidence rate, which was estimated at four percent above the national average.

The old figure of four percent above the national average was based on preliminary, incomplete data. The updated cancer incidence rate is the result of a more complete database, which includes more than 1,000 additional cases from the 1993-1997 period.

From now on, to help avoid confusion created by release of preliminary data, DPH will issue updated cancer statistics only once a year when data can be calculated in its most complete form.

The main area of concern about cancer in Delaware has long been the state's cancer mor-

New bus for riders to Newark Senior Center from Bear-Glasgow

Five-day-a-week bus route serves growing number of seniors meeting at center

By CHRISTINE E. SERIO

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The Newark Senior Center has a new set of wheels for the residents along Route 40, Old Baltimore Pike and Route 7.

Thanks to the state of Delaware, a 14-passenger bus, equipped with a wheelchair lift and air conditioning, picks up members of the senior center who live in the Bear-Glasgow area. The cost to ride the bus is 25 cents one way for senior center members.

"The bus offers door-to-door service," said Jean Williams, executive director of the center. "Some of the seniors can't drive for what ever reason and the bus allows them to come to the center for a number of different activities. It is important for seniors to stay physically and mentally alert."

Once a person gets to the center, there are many different levels of activities they can participate in, Williams said. The facility has a pool, fitness center, and places for people to simply sit and socialize.

"Public transportation doesn't work for some of the seniors because they can't walk to the bus stop or they aren't physically able to wait in the elements," Williams said.

The bus driver, Raymond Fleck, said that on average he picks up six to eight passengers a day. The numbers are growing as the word gets out, Williams said.

The bus service from the Bear-Glasgow area to the Newark Senior Center began last August running only three days a week, but quickly went to five days.

Pearl Prince, who lives in Summer Hill off Walther Road, said she takes the bus to the center everyday. Prince enjoys playing games on the computers and helping in the day care.

"If I didn't take the bus, I don't know how I would get here," Prince said. "The bus is very comfortable, sometimes I even fall asleep on it in the afternoon. Being at the center keeps my mind alert."

Maude Bowder of Valley Wood, off Route 7, is another frequent bus rider. Bowder makes it to all the bingo games and goes shopping with other members of the senior center on Fridays.

The Route 40 area was in need of the bus service to the center because it is a growing area, Williams said. Many seniors tend to move in with or closer to their family as they get older and the Route 40 area has big houses and apartment complexes that make "it ripe for that," Williams said.

The bus picks up individuals who call into the

Newark woman injured on I-95 after unsafe lane change

Around 8:15 p.m. on April 4, a 1999 Toyota Forerunner operated by Lindsey Dalton, 19, of Newark was observed weaving in and out of traffic on Interstate 95 near Frawley Stadium before striking a 1991 Toyota Corolla operated by Jose Ramos, 16, of Wilmington. Dalton's vehicle overturned approximately six times, striking the center median and the concrete barrier at the edge of the road, before coming to rest upright in the center lane. Dalton was admitted to Christiana Hospital with a fractured clavicle, cuts to her face and abrasion on the right side of her body. She was charged with making an unsafe lane change and not wearing a seatbelt.

Easter flower seller robbed at gunpoint

A 22-year-old woman told Delaware State Police she was robbed while selling Easter flowers in the parking lot of the Exxon gas station at the intersection of Routes 4 and 72 in Newark on April 14 around 10 p.m. The woman returned to the tent after getting a drink in the gas station and found a man apparently looking for something. The unknown male suspect, described as a white male, 19-22 years old with a stocky build and a close-shaved haircut, turned and pointed a gun at the woman and demanded money. He fled on foot with an undisclosed amount of cash. The woman was not injured.

Weapons, drug charges after car rear-ended

Delaware State Police arrested Richard Yost, 47, of Newark around 8:30 p.m. on April 13 after he rear-ended a 1999 Honda Civic with his 1986 Ford van on Route 4 near Reamer Avenue. During the investigation, police found a .32-caliber, fully-loaded handgun and 4.3 grams of marijuana in pockets of Yost's jacket.

He was charged with inattentive driving, driving under the influence, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. The drivers of the the Honda were treated and released for contusions and lacerations at Christiana Hospital.

False report of kidnapping at Deer Park Tavern

On Friday, April 13, a 34-year-old Newark man was struck by a table companion around 9:50 p.m. at the Deer Park Tavern. Police charged Michael A. Head, 33, of Newark with assault after he hit the victim with his fist and caused a one-inch cut on his left ear. Witnesses told police the two were sitting together and Head struck the victim for an unknown reason after they both suddenly stood up.

A 23-year-old woman who told police she was kidnapped about an hour later from the same nightspot could be charged with making a false report. The woman originally said a black male suspect put "something hard in her back" and demanded she drive him to the bank to withdraw money. She later admitted the story was false.

Men assaulted behind in lot behind Iron Hill Brewery

Around 1:25 a.m. on April 14, a 22-year-old and a 24-year-old man each told police they were assaulted by two suspects in the parking lot of the Iron Hill Brewery. The suspects, described as a white male, 20-25 years old, 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weighing 180-200 pounds and a black male, 20-25 years old, thin build and with a large Afro-hairstyle, struck each man in the face before fleeing.

Pagers taken

Delaware State Police report approximately $100,000 in pagers were stolen sometime after 10:30 p.m. on April 6 from Metrocall in the Astro Shopping Center on Kirkwood Highway.

The rear door was open when an employee arrived around 7:30 a.m. on April 7. Anyone with information is asked to call Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Two McKean High students charged in bomb threat

Delaware State Police charged two tenth-grade students at McKean High School, a 17-year-old and a 16-year-old, with terroristic threatening and conspiracy in connection with a bomb threat on April 4 around 10 a.m. The school was evacuated for an hour and searched by K-9 units after a student found a note in a boy's lavatory indicating "there is a bomb hidden in McKean." There was no evidence of any explosive device.

More sex with minors charged to Newark man

On April 9, Delaware State Police reported they were charging Brian Connor, 26, of Newark with seven counts of unlawful sexual conduct with two children under age 16 between December 1999 and December 2000. Police said the children told their parents about the incidents which allegedly occurred when Connor was babysitting the minors at their residence and at his residence. Connor was previously arrested and charged on one count of sexual extortion and 15 counts of unlawful sexual contact for incidents involving a 16-year-old male student at Sterck School between September and December 2000 while Connor was employed at the school as a residential advisor.

Second Source store burglarized

On April 10, around 1:45 a.m., unknown persons broke into the Second Source store in the Newark Shopping Center and removed a Jetta laptop, an IBM Thinkpad, a Gateway Notebook and seven other laptops with a total value of $8,883. The burglars also caused $200 in damages during the break-in.

center for the bus service between 8:30 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. and takes them back home between 1:30 p.m. and 2:20 p.m.

"It is important for seniors to be able to socialize because their mental health may suffer if they are home alone for whatever reason and depression problems can occur," Williams said.

"Sitting at home in front of the TV does not provide stimulation. At the center they can play cards, drink coffee, play pool and just have a place to socialize."

The senior center received their buses from the Delaware Department of Transportation under a program funded with federal and state monies. Non-profit agencies are eligible for awards of vehicles purchased through DelDOT each year.

Good Friday crashes on interstates send six persons to the hospital

Delaware State Police spent most of Good Friday morning cleaning up accidents on Interstates 95 and 495.

A single car crash sent one woman to the hospital on April 13 at approximately 9:30 a.m. A woman was driving her 1999 Subaru southbound on Interstate 495 just south of the exit for North DuPont Parkway and witnesses told troopers that a second car may have cut the Subaru off causing the driver to lose control and travel down a 25-foot embankment on the right side of the interstate.

The woman's car overturned on its driver's side trapping the operator for approximately 20 to 25 minutes until the Minquadale Fire Company could extricate her from the car.

The driver was flown to the Christiana Hospital by the State Police Helicopter. Her injuries do not appear to be life threatening.

The southbound lanes of I-495 were closed for approximately 50 minutes.

Delaware State Police also reported three separate crashes caused a traffic nightmare for motorists traveling north on Interstate 95 near the Route 7 interchange about one-half hour later.

The I-95 crashes all occurred in the same area and about the same time in the northbound lanes of the highway at approximately 10 a.m.

Na Tuth, 25, of Charlotte, N.C., was driving a 1999 Honda Passport in the left lane when reportedly a white car clipped her side. Her Passport spun out of control and traveled to the shoulder where it was struck a second time by a blue truck. The white car and blue truck both failed to stop and continued north on the interstate. A few seconds later Daniel Huyett, 51, of Elkton, steered the truck right and then back to the left when he lost control and it overturned in the roadway.

Michael Pulley, 54, of Newark, was driving a 1993 Honda Civic when he became involved in a crash. Pulley told troopers that during the other crashes he was struck by a red and black truck which also continued north on the interstate. Pulley was injured.

Tuth and her three passengers: Polly Roth, 28; Roth's 6 year-old daughter and Sophom Sun, 19, where all taken to the Christiana Hospital in Newark. They were all treated for contusions and lacerations. All the occupants in the Passport were wearing their seatbelt at the time of the crash.

The investigation is still on going and state police are not sure why three vehicles did not stop after they were involved in a crash.

tality rate, which is the number of cancer patients who die as a result of the disease. Delaware's mortality rate is 14 percent above the national cancer mortality rate.

The updated statistics are unlikely to change the mission of state health officials or of the Advisory Council.

Although Delaware's rates are slightly higher than the national average, Delaware won't succeed in reducing cancer if officials only focus on the "above-average" part of the problem, said Paul Silverman, DrPH, Chief of DPH's disease Prevention and Control Section.

"We don't want to just be equal to the national cancer rate - we want to beat it," Silverman said. "We can't do that if we just concentrate on the fraction of the problem that's Delaware-specific. Whether it's four percent above the average or 10 percent above the average, that doesn't change the urgency of our work."

Delaware's fight against cancer is centered on Minner's new Advisory Council, which will have several committees, including a committee focused on improving data collection in the First State.

DelDOT will hold a public workshop before the work begins on bridge

► BRIDGE, from 1

While the bridge currently has a sidewalk, it is not pedestrian-friendly. Because the sidewalk has no separation from the road, cars flying up Kirkwood Highway "literally pull and shake residents brave enough" to walk along it.

The community has contacted DelDOT officials to have them consider putting in a divider, or some sort of buffer between the road and sidewalk. This would help to make pedestrians feel a little safer when walking along this congested roadway.

Williams said the file currently does not indicate whether this addition is under consideration.

"But, there will be at least one more workshop, before the work begins, where the public can comment," he said.

New P.A.L. welcomed in downtown Hockessin

Thousands of adults and kids check it out on the first day

By KATY CIAMARICONE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Police officers, New Castle County officials, prominent locals and lots of kids gathered for the highly-anticipated grand opening of the Hockessin P.A.L. (Police Athletic League) Center.

Approximately 2,000 people stopped by to check out the 50,000-square foot facility, located at on Old Lancaster Pike. Construction costs totaled approximately $5 million, said Captain Stewart Snider of the Delaware Police Athletic League, a non-profit organization formed in 1984.

Snider said the money was raised through capital campaigns, and more than $1 million came through the state's 21st Century Fund.

Managed by the New Castle County Police Department and the county Department of Community Services, the P.A.L. facility will serve as a community hub, something that Hockessin never really had before, said Officer Trinidad Navarro, the New Castle County Police public information officer.

"Hockessin had no facility like that — a place for kids to go and hang out — so they would hang out at places like the pizza shop or in parking lots in the shopping centers. It's not really a problem, but more of a nuisance to business owners," Navarro said. "There isn't a movie theater in the area, or a mall. I think the community had a need and (PAL) wanted to fill

Some adult programs include free training in softball, volleyball, tennis, basketball and yoga, as well as pottery, paper-making, stainglass, photography and ball-room dancing. Kids ages 8 through 18 can join the baseball, volleyball, indoor tennis and floor hockey programs.

Tutoring sessions also are held for students whose grade point averages fall below 2.0.

"In the first few months, we're going to have the kids fill out surveys, and then we'll offer programs to match what the kids want," said Officer Brian Shahan, one of four on-site P.A.L. officers hired to supervise the facility.

Students who wish to join the new center must bring in a copy of their report card, and have a parent or guardian on hand to fill out insurance information. Adults are free to drop by for at their convenience; no registration is required.

Delaware reduces reading gap between white/minority students

The National Education Goals Panel released a new analysis showing that states made more progress in mathematics achievement than in reading between 1990 and 1998. The same report shows that good readers are getting better at the same time weak readers are losing ground. The report finds that most states have not been successful in reducing the achievement gap between white and minority students. It also highlights the significant achievement gap between the highest and lowest scoring students that is, in fourth grade reading, growing larger.

Delaware's NAEP results show overall improvements in 8th grade math but a very different picture in 4th grade math, where the average score and the score for the bottom quartile declined.

This resulted in an increase in the performance gap between the top and bottom quartiles in 4th grade math. Reading performance was largely unchanged. Delaware was the only state to show a reduction in the achievement gap between white and minority students.

The report, titled "Raising Achievement and Reducing Gaps: Reporting Progress Toward Goals for Achievement," available for student achievement in three areas: reading at the 4th grade level, mathematics at the 4th grade level and mathematics at the 8th grade level.

The major findings of the report were: States are making more progress in mathematics achievement than in reading. Between 1990 and 1996, the average student achievement score improved in 28 out of 32 states in 8th grade mathematics, and none declined.

Meanwhile, in 4th grade reading from 1992 to 1998, only seven out of 32 states improved their scores and 4 states actually declined; Good readers are getting better at the same time weak readers are losing ground.

States have not reduced the achievement gap between top and bottom quartiles or between reduced the performance gap between white and minority students.

In mathematics, eight states reduced the gap between the top and bottom quartiles at 4th grade and five did so at 8th grade. Also in mathematics, only two states reduced the gap between white and minority students at 4th grade, and one did so at 8th grade.

"The good news here, of course, is that the states are making real progress in mathematics," said Governor Frank O'Bannon, chair of the National Education Goals Panel. "But, the findings of this report really underscore the need for most states to look again at their efforts to improve reading."

The Hockessin P.A.L. opened March 29. (See related story this page).

In addition to the streetside renovations, Roy hopes the funding will help beef up greenways south of downtown Hockessin. "We have the old downtown

Delcastle greenways. The renovations are in the planning and design stages right now, but they will be under way within one year, said Petrosky of DelDOT. "Typically, these projects run on a three-year schedule," he said. "It will probably take about a year to get the designs together and to get the ideas down on paper, and one to two years for the construction."

Masses catch on to mass transit

Anyone who traveled the roads during the recent Easter holiday will tell you there's nothing quite like being caught in a traffic jam on I-95, in the rain, while the kids are hopped up on jelly beans, marshmallow peeps and chocolate bunnies.

Sometimes it seems like the roads just can't handle any more traffic. According to the Federal Highway Administration, motorists drove 2.7 trillion miles in 2000. No wonder the highways are so crowded.

One bright note here is that public transit ridership grew 21 percent from 1995 to 2000, according to federal officials. Public transit, especially in the form of rail service, may become the most realistic way to battle highway gridlock.

Public transit has its advantages. Just ask the 725 people who caught the "Cherry Blossom Express" train in Perryville, Md., last Saturday for a day trip to Washington, D.C. Many people also rode D.C.'s excellent Metro subway service to reach points around the capitol. The trip back from D.C. to Perryville took about one hour — considerably faster and easier than driving would have been.

Experiences like that help open a lot of eyes to the potential for mass transit in this country. Now that the "freedom of the open road" the nation embraced after World War II has turned to high gasoline prices, road rage and traffic jams, it's time to reconsider how we get from one place to another.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor

From: Jacqueline Vazquez
La Madera Elementary School, Room P-2
25250 Serrano Road
Lake Forest, CA 92630

My fifth-grade class is doing a state research project. I will be doing my research on the great state of Delaware. The project is due at the beginning of May, and it will cover such topics as famous people from Delaware, your special state traditions, and the history of Delaware.

The reason I am writing to your local newspaper is to ask if you could publish my letter in your paper. I am hoping that some of the members of your community would write to me and tell me about their experiences and traditions in Delaware.

I would even enjoy it if they would share their favorite recipes with me. I live in Southern California and am sure many things about Delaware are different from where I live. Also, if any of the citizens could find time to reply, it would be great if they could enclose a copy of my "published" letter any information would be most appreciated.

Sincerely, Jackie

Two automobiles owned by the same man, but unfortunately proceeding in opposite directions, crashed together along Limestone road, about three or four miles north of Newark late Thursday night.

Warren Malin, garage owner in Elkton, was owner of both cars. According to information received here, Mr. Malin was going north along the road. Monte Shafer, also of Elkton, and employee at Malin's garage, was going south. The two cars met on a turn and crashed together.

Both drivers were severely cut and bruised about the head and arms.

GUEST OPINION

Earth Day: Will environments make human life impossible?

By MICHAEL S. BERLINER

GUEST COLUMNIST

The approach of another Earth Day is the occasion for a lesson in cause and effect. It is no coincidence that an energy crisis is beleaguering California, where environmentalists have campaigned against the construction of much needed power plants and even now are continuing to sabotage new sources of energy.

Also witness their current campaign against the drilling of oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, with one of its effects being higher prices at the gas pump.

But the lesson goes further. It is a lesson in the real motives of the environmentalists: not clean air and clean water, but the demolition of technological and industrial civilization. Their goal is not the advancement of human health, human happiness, and human life; rather it is a subhuman world where "nature" is worshiped like the totem of some primitive religion.

In a nation founded on the pioneer spirit, environmentalists have made "development" an evil word. They inhibit or prohibit the development of Alaskan oil, offshore drilling, nuclear power - and every other practical form of energy. Housing, commerce, and jobs are sacrificed to spotted owls and snail darters. Medical research is sacrificed to the "rights" of mice.

Logging is sacrificed to the "rights" of trees. No instance of the progress which brought man out of the cave is safe from the onslaught of those "protecting" the environment from man, whom they consider a rapist and despoiler by his very essence.

Nature, they insist, has "intrinsic value," to be revered for its own sake, irrespective of any benefit to man. As a consequence, man is to be prohibited from using nature for his own ends. Since nature supposedly has value and goodness in itself, any human action which changes the environment is necessarily immoral.

Of course, environmentalists invoke the doctrine of intrinsic value not against wolves that eat sheep or beavers that gnaw trees; but only against man, only when man wants something.

The ideal world of environmentalists is not twenty-first century Western civilization; it is the Garden of Eden, a world with no human intervention in nature, a world without innovation or change, a world without effort, a world where survival is somehow guaranteed, a world where man has mystically merged with the "environment."

Had the environmentalist mentality prevailed in the 18th and 19th centuries, we would have had no Industrial Revolution, a situation environmentalists would cheer - at least those few who might have managed to survive without the life-saving benefits of modern science and technology.

Main Street Pep Rally canceled

A Main Street Pep Rally, planned in the old Farm and Home Building for this month after rescheduling in March, has been postponed indefinitely.

According to Karen Pedano, spokesperson for the 1492 Hospitality Group which owns the building, the event was "indefinitely put off because the organizers were unable to get a day for complete participation of all businesses."

Guns discussed at Town & Gown

Guns on campus was a topic of note at the last Town and Gown Committee meeting following a recent news story claiming they are likely at the University of Delaware.

According to committee member Timothy Brooks, dean of students at the university, students are not allowed to keep guns on campus at any time but "the article in the Review seems to indicate there is at least one more somewhere."

of Environmental Ethics, "would most likely be greeted with a hearty 'Good riddance!'" In a glowing review of Bill McKibben's The End of Nature, biologist David M. Graber writes (Los Angeles Times, Oct. 29, 1989): "Human happiness [is] not as important as a wild and healthy planet...Until such time as Homo sapiens should decide to rejoin nature, some of us can only hope for the right virus to come along."

Such is the naked essence of environmentalism: it mourns the death of one whale or tree but actually welcomes the death of billions of people. A more malevolent, man-hating philosophy is unimaginable.

The guiding principle of environmentalism is self-sacrifice, the sacrifice of longer lives, healthier lives, more prosperous lives, more enjoyable lives, i.e., the sacrifice of human lives. But an individual is not born in servitude. He has a moral right to live his own life

Bailiwick fits no category

By Terri Gillespie

Up on the stage sit three acoustic guitars; an array of hand drums; chimes; pennywhistles; a flute; a pair of spoons; and an unidentified wooded instrument with strings, a wheel, and a crank. Before the musicians play so much as a note, it's clear that Bailiwick resists being categorized.

Jean Rodden positions her fingers on the guitar strings, Jeff Booth settles in behind one of the drums, and Michele McCann cradles that other instrument, which proves to be a hurdy-gurdy. The tune's a reel, straight from the Old Country. Right? No, wait a second...it's Simon & Garfunkel's "Cecilia," served up Bailiwick style.

Throughout the band's sets, the instrumental and vocal duties shift, and so do the songs - from original blues to Celtic to folk-rock to traditional English troubadour to singer-songwriter to carefully chosen covers. "We don't want to be pigeonholed," Jeff explains. "We're a work in progress."

The three Newark musicians' lives have intertwined for some 15 years, threads woven through the University of Delaware radio station, bands including TrikkiwikkiT and Iona, "open mic" nights, sound mixing at gigs, and the musical and graphic elements of creating CDs. As a result, they know each other so well that interviewing them is like talking to one musician with three interlinked brains. They finish each other's sentences, build on each other's comments, and keep up a steam of good-natured in-jokes.

What do they get out of playing music? "It's therapy," Jeff comments, with a grin. "I've saved a lot of money this way." Then he adds, "I put music away for 10 years, but it comes through the cracks, I've got to do this."

That musical imperative is echoed by the two women. "I can't not do it," Michele says. "Playing together in this band, we're living our passion." Jean adds, "Life is great and this is the icing on the top. We're all given gifts; the question is whether you choose to give them back to the world or not. This is where I should be and what I should be doing."

The trio's day jobs are as diverse as their music. Jean runs the business end of her husband's stone masonry enterprise, Jeff works with digital imaging, and Michele is self-employed as a resume writer and a certified career coach. She also does a volunteer on-air stint at the UD station (WVUD-91.3 FM), holding down the Wednesday morning Java Time slot.

Having played together for the past six months or so at Newark venues including the Blue Crab Grill, Rainbow Books and Music, and Brew-Ha Ha, the band members feel they're just beginning to hit their stride. "We're getting to know each other musically and uncovering hidden talents," Michele explains. "We draw on so much of the music we've played over the past decade or so. We all bring different styles to the

Graduate Programs at UD among best

The University of Delaware's graduate programs in city management/urban policy, chemical engineering and physical therapy took top marks in the nation in the 2002 edition of "Best Graduate Schools," published April 2 by "U.S. News and World Report."

City management/urban policy tied for seventh place with Georgia State and Syracuse universities; chemical engineering was ranked eighth; and physical therapy tied for ninth place with Beaver College, MGH Institute of Health Professions and Northwestern University.

Other graduate programs ranked this year include UD's: School of Public Affairs, tying for 41 with North Carolina State, Northern Illinois and Rutgers/Newark universities and the University of Utah; College of Engineering, listed at 48, tying with Arizona State University and the University of New Mexico; and the School of Education, coming in at 50th, tying with the College of William and Mary.

"I'm pleased to see the recognition that these top UD graduate programs have received," Bobby Gempesaw, vice provost for academic programs and planning, said. "It affirms UD's efforts at selective excellence in graduate education and research."

The magazine's April 10 issue contains the rankings for graduate programs in business, medicine, law, engineering and education.

Edges of economy beginning to fray

When the DuPont plant opened here in 1939, this town earned the name "Nylon Capital of the World."

DuPont had invented nylon only the year before, and the Seaford plant was the first factory to mass produce the stretchy fabric. Now, however, the plant accounts for only 5 percent of all the world's nylon.

DuPont, headquartered in Wilmington, said it plans to eliminate 550 jobs at the factory, lowering its total work force from about 1,300 to about 750.

Many who watch the economy for a living say this is where a recession starts: with a few hundred layoffs in a factory making a raw product like nylon.

While 550 factory workers losing their jobs won't have a tremendous impact in a state where hundreds of thousands work at jobs from farming to credit card processing, the layoff announcement was one of a number of ominous signs for Delaware's economy.

State budget officials say tax

January 2000 was $19.29. That is more than $41,000 a year.

Those were the most recent figures available.

Delaware is a good place to examine the health of the economy, observers say, because it is home to manufacturers like DuPont which make materials like nylon that are sold to other manufacturers for inclusion cars, clothes and computers.

Car makers, appliance companies and electronics manufacturers were thriving in the now cooling economy as people, confident of their job security and buoyed by a strong stock market, snapped up big-ticket items.

"Some of those things are slowing down now," said James Butkiewicz, chairman of the University of Delaware's Economics Department. "The hard thing to figure out now is how extensive it is, how widespread, how far sales will be cut back. There's still great uncertainty." "Unfortunately, it's hard to come up with a clear-cut answer before the recession

While announcing plans to lay off workers, DuPont Chief Financial Officer Gary Pfeiffer echoed those sentiments.

"The downturn we're in is going to be deeper and longer than people thought 60 or even 90 days ago," Pfeiffer said in a conference call to Wall Street analysts and investors.

Ronald W. Smith, vice president and general manager of the chemical products division at the AMATEK plant in Prices Corner, has seen the demand slow from his manufacturing clients - particularly those making electronics, appliances and autos.

AMATEK's Delaware plant makes moldable plastic resins, such as the trim around a dishwasher. Smith also oversees plants in Pennsylvania and Ohio that make plastic parts for cars.

"I see a lot of pessimism in the manufacturing industry," Smith said. "I've got to manage a work force and adjust an inventory, and I've got to forecast what the next quarter is going to be, and that's very difficult in this economy."

tured goods has begun to shrink-taking some jobs with it - other parts of the state's economy still appear healthy, or may be insulated altogether from a statewide downturn.

Agricultural and beach resort workers in southern Delaware, for example, likely would be untouched if the state or region were to plunge into recession.

And other sectors have not lost any jobs yet. Construction jobs still are at a 10-year high, with more than 25,000 people building homes and offices compared with 17,000 in 1991.

Delaware's unemployment rate has shrunk slightly, from four percent in September to 3.6 percent in February.

But as well-paid people like factory workers begin losing their jobs, their consumer appetite shrinks. They take fewer trips to the mall, postpone buying that new car or wait to shop for that bigger house.

Smith said the blue-collar factory worker is the backbone of that consumer economy.

for his own sake. He has no duty to sacrifice it to the needs of others and certainly not to the "needs" of the non-human.

To save mankind from environmentalism, what's needed is not the appeasing, compromising approach of those who urge a "balance" between the needs of man and the "needs" of the environment. To save mankind requires the wholesale rejection of environmentalism as hatred of science, technology, progress, and human life.

To save mankind requires the return to a philosophy of reason and individualism, a philosophy which makes life on earth possible.

Ann Minner to seek three percent across-the-board cuts from state departments. And other companies, from automotive plants to rubber-making plants, are cutting back production.

Manufacturers say they are getting increasingly pessimistic about the state's economy as the nation's economy appears to be teetering on the brink of recession.

Figures from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics show Delaware's manufacturing sector has recently lost a significant number of jobs.

In the year leading up to February, Delaware shed 4,100 manufacturing jobs, or 8.6 percent of the state's total, leaving the state with 54,400 factory workers.

These are largely well-paying jobs. The federal government reported that the mean hourly wage in a Delaware factory in

Have you played today?

Last night I got to play. I played games with some 4-H teens who will be camp counselors this summer. We had fun – we got to laugh, giggle, run, hop and skip around as if we didn't have a care in the world.

I use games in our 4-H camp counselor training to help kids relax, get to know each other better, and to prepare them for the summer, when they will get a chance to play games with children during camp.

Play is an important part of a child's life – it's how they make friends, use their muscles, learn new things, and stretch their imaginations. It is important for grownups to play, too.

The benefits of play are similar for adults and children alike. Benefits include a sense of belonging, reduction in stress, pride in self, and the expansion of one's physical and mental capabilities. Play may be different for different people, and different ages. Children can be perfectly content digging in the sand, rounding up a bunch of friends to play tag, or having a tea party. Play for adults may mean a weekend fishing trip, reading a good book, or golfing. However you decide to play is up to you, but it is important that make the time to do it.

Playwrights Kari Fischer of Shue-Medill Middle School (insert), and Michelle Jacob and Lindsay Skorupa (above), seniors at Glasgow High School, will see performances of their works at the Delaware Theatre Company on April 26.

The muses seemed to have inspired once again and three Christina School District students may be on their way to following in the footsteps of many famous playwrights.

Kari Fischer of Shue-Medill Middle School, and Michelle Jacob and Lindsay Skorupa, both seniors at Glasgow High School, are the winners of the Delaware Theatre Company's Young Playwrights Festival. The plays written by the young women will be "professionally" performed on April 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the Delaware Theatre Company. They will be followed by a play by Kari Fischer, who will be followed by a play by Michelle Jacob and Lindsay Skorupa. They will be followed by a play by Kari Fischer, who will be followed by a play by Michelle Jacob and Lindsay Skorupa.

After the young playwrights, who will have a "full, professional production" of their plays, were chosen the revisions began. This year, after receiving funds from AstraZeneca, the Delaware Theatre Company has a professional dramaturg (a consultant on dramatic composition) available to help the students improve their writing.

The three winners agree that the Delaware Theatre Company are helpful with suggesting revisions and still "Kari's play has a universal appeal. Whether you're young or old, white, black, pink or green, you will find something to enjoy," Dickerson said. "She is such a sweet girl and an excellent student. This must be a thrill beyond compare for her."

Jane McFann, an English teacher at Glasgow, feels the same way about her two "fun, enthusiastic" students. She did not give the students class time to work on their plays, but had them work on them at home. McFann's respect for the students is shared with her respect for the Delaware Theatre Company and said. "The most challenging part about this was writing for the ear, knowing that it was going to be spoken and not read on paper. It was also hard not to direct from the script."

Skorupa, who has written "silly plays" as a child, wrote her comedy, A Simple Play: A Parody of Itself, the night before the final drafts were due. She said that she wasn't satisfied with the play she had turned in for the first draft which was a serious drama. The play is about a man who is trying to write a play and he envisions the actors and scenes on the stage which are pera week, which sounded like a lot to me, until I found out that during the Medieval period of history, people spent an average of one out of every four days celebrating a religious feast day or other holiday. These celebrations included social gatherings, food, dancing, and just all around fun. That's at least one week a month devoted entirely to play! Sign me up!

I find it ironic that in an age that is full of gadgets that are supposed to give us more free time - computers, dishwashers and the like - the average American is becoming ever more tired, stressed, and in desperate need of fun. So make the time to dance, hike, read, fish, quilt, or golf. Make the time to play.

is the twelfth year for the playwright festival," Rachel Shane, the festival director, said. "Often when students think of the theater they only think of acting. Writing a play is something most adults can't do and this gives them a voice, a voice people listen to."

The program began with interested teachers attending a three-hour seminar in September. After the participating teachers and students were registered, Andrew Geha, the Young Playwrights Festival coordinator, made visits to more than 20 schools to introduce the students to the program and the process of playwriting.

The theme for this year's festival was ambition. It was chosen based on the theatre company's "season opener," Macbeth. The company reviewed and evaluated 171 plays in the first round with a two-page evaluation for each.

"The evaluations are really worthwhile," Geha said. "It helps them real-and allowing the student writers to choose how the corrections should be made.

Fischer is a 13-year-old seventh grader who wrote a play about and named her play after her dog, Sam. The main character of Sam is a chocolate lab who is afraid of losing its teenage owner's affection.

Fischer seems to approach this new endeavor with excitement and confidence. According to her, the theme was not difficult to grasp as it may have been for some other students.

"It wasn't very hard to write the play because my dog is very expressive," Fischer said. "I am very excited about seeing the play performed by other people on stage."

Fran Dickerson, Fischer's teacher, thinks the program gave her students a chance to perform in front of the class when they read through the plays and gives them self confidence "that no one can steal from them."

I am a huge fan of the program because when the students write for a real audience it is much more meaningful, exciting and genuine," McFann said. "The Delaware Theatre Company truly gives the plays a professional staging and they show great respect for the students. What a wonderful gift it is to have ones work performed."

The two best friends, Jacob and Skorupa, are thrilled about having their plays performed and going through the process together. Jacob wrote a comedy called Never Say Diefenderfer about a man that is trying to kill his boss's wife. As she explained the plot, careful not to give away the ending, her voice was filled with excitement and energy. She has never attempted to write a play before, but has always had a passion for theater.

"I originally had a vision of someone throwing a paper airplane across the stage, but it took awhile for the characters come to life for me," Jacob of mine, this has amplified it even more," Skorupa said. "It is neat to associate ourselves with the people at the Delaware Theatre Company. We are like outcasts in school because there are only like 10 people who are passionate about theater, but now we are with a whole building full of them."

The future of these three young women appears to include more involvement in all aspects of theater and successful playwriting.

"The program is important because it is literacy in a way the students haven't approached before and writing in a medium not often used in schools," Geha said. "It helps them all appreciate the work that goes into the arts and especially for the winners, seeing their words brought to life is fantastic for them."

Down the Aisle

So what does Prince Charming wear to the ball?

By Beverly Clark
Special to the Whig

It's a new millennium, and you may be wondering what a groom wears in 2001. Are there any rules?

Depending on the formality of your wedding, it's wise to give serious thought to what your groom and his groomsmen will wear at your wedding.

There are still rules of protocol to follow if you're fond of tradition. After all, do you really want a picture of you in a vintage gown and your groom in his beat-up jeans?

Hands down, black tuxedos are still the number one choice for any groom at a formal wedding. But with a growing focus on men's fashion, the number of tuxedo styles available have increased.

Since most tuxedos are usually rented and reserved in advance, it's a good idea to choose the suit that fits the style and the season of the wedding and accents the colors you've chosen. Try to rent all the groomsmen's tuxedos from the same shop to ensure the same style, texture, and quality.

Do you see things in color? A variety of hues are increasing in popularity in tuxedos and formal wear.

If you're having a spring or summer wedding, or a daytime one, lighter-colored jackets, ties, and cummerbunds are fashionable, while darker tones and accents are always appropriate.

Cummerbunds that match the bridesmaids' dresses are always a distinguishing and colorful touch.

Are you a throwback to the classic 1950s? Consider having your groom sport the debonair white dinner jacket. But remember, it's important to match the shade of white or ivory to that of the bride's dress.

Will the wedding be outdoors and semiformal? If so, the groom and his attendants may choose suits and ties. Again, depending on the weather and the time of year, you'll want to choose uniformity and consistency in photographs.

Are you proud of your heritage? More and more weddings are incorporating the groom's ethnic background.

Whether the groom is of Scottish descent and wears the traditional plaid kilt or of African-American heritage and wears ties or headpieces made of kente cloth, consider doing some research at your local library or on the Internet to find a wealth of ideas that might be represented at your wedding.

Marrying a military man? What better way for him to honor his commitment to his country and his new bride than to wear his dress uniform. If his groomsmen are also in the military, having them wear their dress uniforms will create an overall effect that is romantic and noble.

The same applies to police officers and firemen. Men in professional uniforms are quite striking.

Overall, it's important to make the choices for the groomsmen's attire based on the style, season, and formality of your wedding.

Most men are more comfortable sticking to the traditional, yet there are those willing to experiment.

Discuss the options with your groom and see how he feels. As long as the groom and groomsmen are wearing clothing that is tasteful and somewhat uniform, you won't have to worry about watching the video years from now and wishing they had stuck to black and white.

A black tuxedo is always a correct choice for a formal wedding, but "traditional" doesn't always have to be black and white.

colors and the weight of the material accordingly.

For example, if you're getting married in the Deep South where it is notoriously humid, you may consider a seersucker suit for its lightness. In winter, wool or cashmere makes elegant attire

When you want to trash your partner's treasure

What happens when your partner clings dearly to a "cherished treasure" that makes you cringe every time you look at it?

Whether it's grandpa's old recliner, a '70s cocktail table or a sofa that never should have left the college dorm, persuading your partner to remove it from plain sight is no easy task.

Use the following tips to help find a solution that works for everyone - and preserves the harmony in your relationship.

• Express your concerns openly and accompany them with alternative suggestions. For example: "I know you love that wall unit, honey, but it just doesn't fit for the object - no matter how hideous it may be. After all, whatever reason your partner has for adoring this object is partly what makes him or her special.

• Offer your partner a low-traffic area to decorate with his or her treasures. Make this a private retreat where your partner can enjoy quality time alone.

• Post a reward. Maybe your significant other longs desperately for a certain item that you've labeled as an expensive or unnecessary purchase. Go ahead and give the green light - provided that he or she disposes of the unwanted item first.

• Negotiate strategically. Believe it or not, you too may have a prized possession your partner doesn't find particularly appealing. Consider offering to relocate or dispose of your item if your partner does the same.

Advice for the Bride & Groom

Fairy-tale weddings come in different forms

By Beverly Clark
Special to the Whig

"... And they lived happily ever after." Notice how the author neglects to mention the details of the wedding day? Obviously, it wasn't anything to write home about!

In the olden days, weddings were very traditional with limitations on style, location, and services available. But today the possibilities to personalize and design your own weddings are almost limitless.

Not only have the wedding rules changed, but so have brides. Today's bride falls into a myriad of categories: though most are marrying for the first time, there remain numerous second- and third-time brides.

Some are getting married a bit older, some are more affluent, some have children, and others who have been widowed are remarrying.

In celebration of this joyous occasion, "motif weddings" are making a statement about the bride's life. To do this, many brides are creating imaginative themes, unusual settings, and lavish celebrations. The uniqueness may be a bit traditional, but the idea is to bring people together for a fun and memorable time.

So out with the old and in with the new! Here's a glimpse of just a few ideas to get your own creative juices flowing.

Surprise Wedding

Spare yourself all the fuss of an intricately planned event and throw a surprise wedding. A trend is growing, especially among second- or third-time marriages, where the bride and groom are getting married on the spot during a party or dinner.

The popularity of the Surprise Wedding is on the rise because couples don't want their family and friends to feel obligated to send a gift or spend a lot of money. Usually both the bride and groom are in on the secret and plan a party or special outing, like a cruise, barbecue or mini-vacation.

All the arrangements are made in advance, and it's up to you if you want to let anyone else in on your little secret. The surprise is on your guests when they unknowingly witness an informal yet intimate wedding.

Wedding Weekend

Come together for a weekend of celebration by inviting family members and friends to an entire weekend of activities with the highlight being your wedding.

The Weekend Wedding usually begins on Friday evening with a friend or relative hosting a welcoming party or rehearsal dinner.

Saturday is a fun-filled day resulting from breakfasts, barbecues, sports and games, followed by an evening wedding ceremony and reception.

On Sunday, informal brunches lead into another afternoon full of activities. Plan to depart for your honeymoon on Sunday night or Monday morning, depending on how soon you'd like to get away!

Remember, it's a full weekend of festivities, so do send a preliminary "heads-up" announcement a few weeks before the traditional invitation.

Destination Wedding

Want to share all the glory of your wedding and honeymoon with your loved ones? Then throw a Destination Wedding, a non-conventional combination wedding and honeymoon.

You can choose to travel anywhere your heart desires, and whether it's to a remote tropical island or a few miles from home, your family and friends will share in the memories. The Destination Wedding is ideal for couples who want to include children from previous marriages or those who desire a more intimate guest list.

Guests typically pay their own way since it is a mini-vacation for all. The budget can be small or large depending on your taste and pocketbook.

For ideas on where to go, contact a travel agent, consult with friends or family, or check out possibilities on the Internet. Trains, dude ranches, ski resorts, and cruise ships are just a few of the adventurous ways you may ring in your new life as a married couple.

Progressive Wedding

Progressive weddings will undoubtedly become more popular in the 21st century.

ents. They then travel to the groom's parents, who also gives them a celebration in their honor.

Not only does everyone get to share in this magical time with you, but you and yours get to travel down memory lane together as you, too, "live happily ever after."

DSC Cup will help show top teams

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Spring Break is usually a pretty slow time for high school sports and this week has been no exception.

There is, however, a top-notch baseball tournament going on. The Delaware Stadium Corporation has some of the best teams in the state playing. It's a good opportunity to see which teams will have a shot at conference and state titles.

Newark, William Penn, Mount Pleasant and St. Elizabeth are a few of the teams that will be competing.

The DSC Cup provides teams with a good chance to play some quality games on some quality fields.

Games will take place at Frawley Stadium, Wilson Field and the University of Delaware's Bob Hannah Stadium.

Playing at Frawley is always a treat for high school teams and Wilson Field and Hannah Stadium are kept in immaculate condition.

Hopefully, we'll be able to get a few good weather days and the games will be

Strikers win three field hockey championships

Local players help lift teams

The Strikers made their presence known at the 2001 USFHA National Indoor Tournament by capturing three NIT titles, two second place finishes, and one fourth place finish.

The U16 tournament was held March 16th-18th at Franklin & Marshall. A total of 32 teams competed in 4 pools of 8 in the U16 division. U16 Strikers 2 finished first in pool C while Strikers 1 finished 4th. This was the second consecutive NIT title for many of the U16 Strikers 2 members who also finished first in last years NIT as U14 players. The U14 and U19 divisions competed April 6th-8th in Virginia Beach.

In the U14 division there were two pools of nine teams competing. Strikers 1 captured a NIT championship for finishing first in pool A. Their record was 6 wins and 2 ties. They outscored their opponents 34-6 and recorded 4 shut outs. In pool B, Strikers 2 finished second in pool B while compiling a record of 6 wins, one tie, and one loss.

There were six pools of eight teams competing in the U19 division. Strikers 2 finished 2nd in pool E with 6 wins and 1 loss while recording 3 shut outs.

Strikers 1 earned a NIT championship title for finishing first in pool C. Their tournament record was 6 wins, 1 tie, no losses. Strikers 1 recorded 2 shut outs and out scored their opponents 31-9.

Because of the NIT first place finishes, the Strikers have earned automatic berths to the 2002 NIT for U14, U16, & U19 divisions.

Members of the Under 14 team Strikers 1 team include Emily Smith, Danielle Keeley, Ashley Vannoy, Lauren Jones, Katelyn Falgowski, Ashley Evans, Erin Marihugh and Rachael Drummonds.

Members of the Under-14 Strikers 2 team include Trish Dean, Natalie Lester, Nicole Allaband, Caitlin Gibb, Michelle Rowe, Michelle Drummonds, Liz Hollon, Gracie Manlove and Jerri Barnett.

Members of the Under-16 Strikers 2 team include Lindsay Welch, Kayla Melvin, Jennifer Ferringo, Julie Moore, Carolyn

UD wins Liberty Bell opener

Team also tied for first in America East

The University of Delaware opened play in the 10th annual Liberty Bell Classic with a strong offensive showing, belting out 18 hits and blasting three home runs on the way to a 14-3 win over Lehigh at Veteran's Stadium Tuesday.

Weather weary

Speaking of weather – has there been a worse spring?

My goodness, except for maybe two days, this spring has featured a bonanza of cold, gloomy, rainy, blustery days. It certainly hasn't been conducive to practicing or playing outside. It's a testament to the players and coaches that there have been some quality games, matches and meets this season. It's too bad they have to do it shivering.

Coaches have had a rough time getting practices and games in this year. It certainly a nightmare for the athletic directors – who are in charge of scheduling.

Hopefully - for players, coaches, athletic directors and fans – the latter stages of April and May will bring us all some better weather.

Florida would be nice

One group that didn't have to worry about cold weather this week was the Caravel Academy softball team.

The Bucs flew to Orlando on Easter Sunday and played three games at the Disney sports complex during the week. Caravel faced off against quality programs from around the country.

It was a good test for the Bucs, who had lost just once in their last 20 games (heading into the week).

A good showing in Florida could catapult Caravel to a third straight state championship.

Could be worse

I'm sure the spring athletes at the University of Delaware can't wait until the Hens join the Colonial Athletic Association.

Instead of traveling to Smithfield, R.I. (or, for that matter, any New England destination) for a baseball game against Maine, the UD baseball team will be heading south to schools in

Streets, Cariello, Mark hit and pitch Hens to wins

Former Newark High player Laura Streets hit a two-run double in the top of the seventh inning to lift the University of Delaware to an 8-6 victory over Towson last week.

Street's blast broke a 6-6 tie and gave the Hens the victory.

Towson spoiled a stellar pitching effort by Amanda Cariello – a former St. Mark's player – in the second game of the double header by pulling out a 1-0 win. Cariello allowed just four hits and did not walk anybody.

The two local players are having fine seasons for Delaware. Cariello is hitting .347 with two home runs and a team-high 18 runs-batted-in.

Streets, a freshman, is hitting .286 with 15 RBI and a team-high three home runs.

Fellow Delaware high school product Lauren Mark is also having a good season. Mark is hitting a team-high .354 with one home run and 15 RBI.

Cariello, a junior, and Mark, a senior, also have pitched for the Blue Hens. Mark has appeared in seven games with a 2.92 earned-run-average and Cariello has pitched in 12 games with a 3.76 ERA.

The Blue Hens entered the week with a 14-17 overall record and a 6-10 mark in the America East.

Delaware will take on America East rivals Hofstra this weekend and Drexel next weekend.

The Hens next home game will be May 2 at 3:30 against Rutgers. The two teams will play a doubleheader.

improved their all-time record to 21-5 in Liberty Bell Classic play and advanced to the semifinals April 24 vs. the winner of Tuesday night's Villanova vs. St. Joseph's game. Delaware has captured four of the nine previous Liberty Bell Classic titles, last winning the title in 1997. Drexel, Villanova, Pennsylvania, and LaSalle are also competing in the tournament, which showcases the top NCAA Division I programs in the Delaware Valley.

Senior second baseman Andrew Salvo, the 2000 America East Player of the Year, hit a home run into the right field bullpen on the first pitch of the game off Lehigh starter Keith Frerichs (2-2) and added another solo shot in the second inning to the same spot to get the Blue Hens started. Delaware scored four runs in the first, three in the second, and five more in the fourth to jump out to a 12-2 lead. Salvo is now tied for the team lead with six home runs this season.

Every Delaware starter had at least one hit as Salvo was 2 for 6 with two runs batted in, outfielder Chris Kolodzey went 3 for 5 and raised his batting average to a league-leading .418, first baseman Doug Eitelman was 2 for 3 with a double, triple, and three RBI, catcher John Schneider went 2 for 2 and knocked in two runs, and Reid Gorecki hit two doubles. First baseman Teddy Puitz added a mammoth home run in the seventh that reached the 500 level in left field.

KSC Raptors win tourney

The Kirkwood Raptors girls under-12 soccer team captured the championship at the Nether Providence tournament last weekend.

Tied for first place with rivals BYC Wizards at the end of regular play, the Raptors earned a berth in the championship match in a penalty shoot-out decision that went two rounds.

Brittany Harrison scored the winning kick and keeper Amanda Walls stopped two shots in the shootout to propel the Raptors to the final game.

The team went on to defeat defending champion and host Nether Centaurs 2-0 in the final.

Bronwen Wade earned the winning goal on a cross from Sam Paolino, with an insurance goal by Blythe Mackie. Mackie was assisted on a cross from Harrison.

Chelsea Corridori and Walls combined for the shutout in goal.

The Raptors outscored their tournament opponents 7-1. Strong defensive play was provided by Megan Gainey, Tori Bobik, Becky Stout and Leah Fett. Amanda Horkey and Brittany Bobik set up a wall in the stopper position and didn't allow many shots.

Goals were scored by Blythe Mackie (four), Paolino (one), Lauren Shoop (one) and Wade (one).

Liza O'Donnell, Erin Boyle, Brittany Bobik, Corridori, Fett, Mackie and Harrison scored penalty shoot-out goals.

Hanna Derby, Hope Moore and Alexa Callahan played well in the mid-field.

Walls, Wade and Corridori all played in goal.

Hens sweep two games from Maine

▶ HENS, FROM 10

Lehigh, which lost its third game in its last four outings, fell to 11-19 on the season. The Mountain Hawks collected just five hits on the day with Matt Yarnold leading the way with a two-run double in the third inning.

Delaware sophomore left-hander Brian Zeigler picked up the win in his second start of the season, allowing five hits and three runs in six innings while walking three and striking out seven batters. He improved to 2-0 on the season. Nick Spiewak and Jason Vincent closed out the win on the mound with three hitless innings of relief.

The game marked the first meeting between former East Coast Conference foes Delaware and Lehigh since 1991. The Hens have now won four in a row and 12 of the last 14 over the Mountain Hawks.

UD moves into first place

Mike Pelcher pitched out of a bases loaded, no out jam in the bottom of the seventh and Chris Kolodzey hit a two-run homer to center in the top of the eighth to spark University of Delaware to a key doubleheader sweep over University of Maine, 7-5 and 10-3, in America East baseball action Sunday afternoon.

With Delaware's sweep one day after Maine had swept a pair from the Blue Hens, Delaware moved into a first place tie with Hofstra at 8-4. Maine and Towson follow close behind at 7-5. The Pride and Tigers split their four-game set over the weekend with each team sweeping a doubleheader.

In the opener, Delaware (21-10) put the game away as Peter Maestrales (5-for8 in the two games) led off with a single to right. Kolodzey followed with his team-leading sixth homer of the season, a two-run blast to center field, to give the Blue Hens the lead and make a winner out of Pelcher (3-2).

In the nightcap, Delaware jumped out quickly with four runs in the top of the first to give Mike Mahalik all the support he would need (2-1).

Dunn was booked long before he even knew he was nominated for the Pulitzer, to read from his work at 7:30 p.m. on May 3 in 127 Memorial Hall on the University of Delaware's Newark campus. "We lucked-out getting Dunn before he won the Pulitzer Prize," said Linda Russell of the University's English Department. "We usually can't afford someone after they've won that prestigious prize."

Russell said this is the fourth time a poet invited to campus subsequently won a Pulitzer. "Past speakers Rita Dove, Philip Levine, and Charles Simic all found they were Pulitzer Prize winners after we booked them," Russell said. "Charles Simic was notified while he was on campus to read. And W. D. Snodgrass, Pulitzer Prize winner in 1954, was on our faculty from 1979 to 1984, when he retired."

The reading is free and open to the public.

"Different Hours" is Dunn's most recent book of poems. His other collections - 10 in all - include "Loosestrife," which was a finalist for the National Book Critics Circle in 1996, "New and Selected Poems, 1974-1994," and "Riffs and Reciprocities: Prose Paris."

His many awards include the Academy Award in Literature from the American Academy of Arts and Letters and fellowships from Guggenheim Foundation, Rockefeller Foundation and National Endowment for the Arts Creative Writing.

Dunn is a Trustee Fellow in the Arts and Professor of Creative Writing at Richard Stockton College of New Jersey.

Author and critic Judith Kitchen said of his work: "Stephen Dunn's subject has never been the large issue, the political or the abstract. What is at stake in his poetry is more immediate and more essential: how to live the one life we're given with integrity, with humor and exuberance, and yes, with grace."

A reception will follow the reading, where Dunn will be signing books. The University of Delaware Bookstore will have his books available for purchase after the reading.

Gardner

Gardner named Advocate of Quarter

Former Newark Mayor Ronald Gardner recently was named Advocate of the Quarter by Exchange, a quarterly newsletter of the American Medical Association's Office of Alcohol and Other Drug Abuse.

Gardner, who co-chairs the Building Responsibility Coalition, a University of Delaware and city of Newark collaboration funded by a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, served Newark for more than 15 years either as its mayor or as a member of city council.

He has been active in the National League of Cities as a member of its University-Community Caucus subcommittee. He cites as a major influence the experience gained from working with people from other small university cities where campuses have a significant impact on the communities. Gardner said new measures taken by the University to curtail abusive drinking on campus and to notify parents if students violate drinking regulations represent positive steps.

While the active involvement of community members and businesses is essential for change to happen, he said, education and information about the short and long-term effects of alcohol abuse also are important.

Korean War Veterans are invited to participate in the Cape May-Lewes Ferry Memorial Day activities on Monday, May 28.

The commemoration ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. at the War of 1812 Park on Pilottown Roadin Lewes. The ceremony will be followed by a parade that will begin at approximately 10:30 a.m. from the ceremony site.

After the Lewes parade, the veterans are invited back to the dock to participate in a wreath ceremony at which they will be honored. The Sussex Cadet Squadron Color Guard of the Civil Air Patrol will place the wreath (pinned with flowers from well wishers throughout the weekend) onto a small vessel that will transport the wreath and bag-piper musician back to the ferry terminal.

Participating Korean War veterans are then invited to a 12:30 p.m. complimentary luncheon at the Lewes ferry terminal. They will also receive tickets for a complimentary round-trip ride aboard the Cape May-Lewes Ferry to be used at their convenience.

Free parking is available at Wilmington Trust, Second and Market streets and Mellon Bank, between Second and Front streets.

Veterans interested in participating should contact Eddie Swiatek at 302-655-1552, ext. 130, to R.S.V.P. or request additional information.

'Kloster' is perfect for retirement or vacation hide-away

The Kloster is ideal for a cabin in the woods or on beachfront property. It has many of the qualities everyone dreams about for their retirement or vacation home. The plan has 1,778 square feet, divided between 1,224 square feet on the main floor and 554 square feet in the attic area.

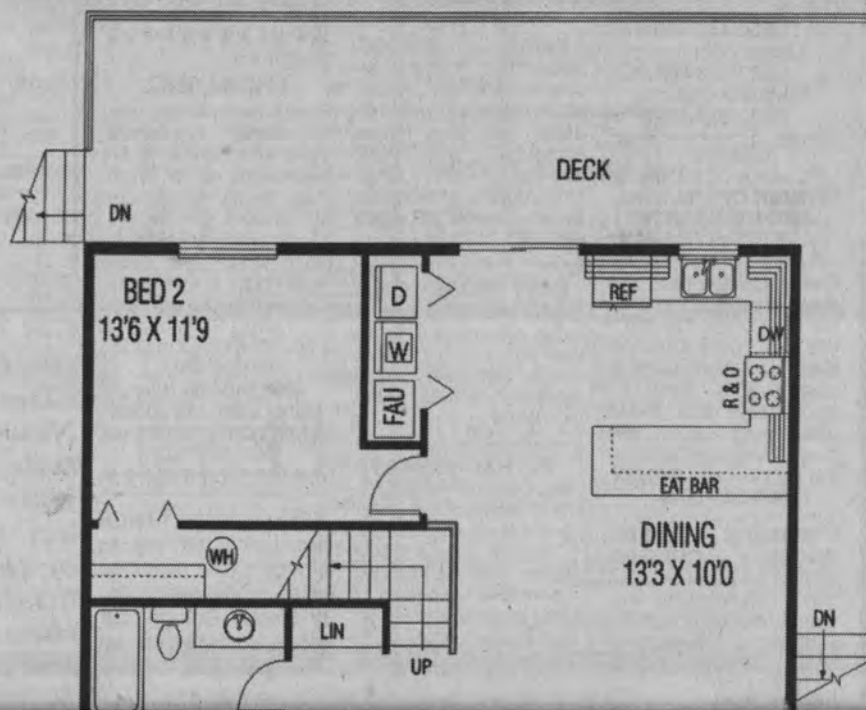

The entry to the Kloster is from a covered porch, directly into the living/dining area. This huge great room has a window facing the front and the side. In the right setting, the light of the morning or afternoon will bathe the rooms with warmth.

The kitchen is located in the right rear corner with an eating bar down the side, next to the living room. A sliding door opens onto the large deck that extends around the home with stairs down to the ground on both ends.

Between bedroom 2 and the kitchen are the washer and dryer, along with the forced air unit, located behind folding doors. The utility room is handy to all of the bedrooms.

Bedroom 2 has a walk-in closet beneath the stairs that also houses es the water heater. Between bedrooms 1 and 2 is a full bath with one sink and a tub, along with a large linen closet. The stairs to the master suite begin adjacent to the linen closet, making it equally handy for the upstairs area.

The master suite is very large even with half of a wall taken up in closet space. A large window in the end of the room provides sunlight to the suite. The full bath has one sink and a large shower. To make this area pleasant for mom and dad, a large sitting room (or den, library, or computer room) is located just outside the suite. At the head of the stairs is a large storage closet.

The Kloster would make a great family cabin with the split bedrooms and the large living
