Friends from Newark High School's Class of 1967 reunite at Jimmy's Diner.

Homecoming

Newark natives reunited at Jimmy's

by Bruce Johnson

The 1960s, the era of revolution, hippies, Woodstock, and Vietnam has been romanticized in the movies. Most recently, the movie "The Big Chill" centered around the dreams and aspirations of seven friends who went to school together and were reunited years later.

But reality is often much unlike the world of theater. So it was for the seven friends from Newark High School's Class of 1967 who gathered together at their haunt, Jimmy's Diner, on the Sunday before Christmas to discuss old times and rekindle old bonds.

The reunion was organized by Susan Stewart, who, having listened to the many stories of her husband's high school friends, conceived of the gathering as a wedding anniversary present that he would long remember.

To recreate the atmosphere of the 1960's, Jimmy's was selected as the meeting place.

"Nothing's changed since we've been here," said Stewart of the Main Street Diner. "It's the same floor, the same Formica tables and the same blinds. Everything's the same."

While high school students, the friends — James Stewart, Pete White, Dale Coover, Steve Kauffman, Dave Foraker, Ed Morris and Ralph "Duck" Stewart — would gather at Jimmy's after a night on the town to exchange stories of their exploits. Eighteen years later, a little older, wiser and grayer, the scene was replayed as the friends once again exchanged stories of their lives during an era that is now being studied on many college campuses across the country.

"We were the early hippies of the community," said Stewart's husband, James. "Steve (Kauffman) was the first to grow his hair long, and then we all followed."

"It was an era thing," said Kauffman of the '60's. "It was rebellion but it was also what was in. It's gone now, priorities have changed."

Unlike "The Big Chill," in which the friends all had elaborate dreams and expectations, the friends at Jimmy's Diner all agreed that life in the '60's was a person to abandon dreams and live on a day to day basis.

"I really didn't have any dreams," said Kauffman. "It was just do what there was to do at the moment. It was the Vietnam era and things were changing very rapidly so I didn't have a lot of set goals at the time. It was more of an immediate thing."

"Everyone was faced with the possibility of going to the Vietnam war where people were being killed left and right. So it was party hardy and live it up because you may not be coming back."

Most of the Newark friends did a tour of duty in Vietnam or in the armed forces. Some didn't make it back, and when that was mentioned at Jimmy's, a moment of gloom swept the table.

"I used to think that the greatest thing in the world was being in the service," said Dale Coover. "But now that I have kids, I wouldn't want them to join. It's too dangerous. You don't even need to be in a war to be killed in the service."

Pete White agreed. "I'd send my kids to Canada before they'd go to war. I don't want them to kill for political reasons," he said.

But the morning that stretched into evening was filled mostly with happy memories of the recklessness and antics of youth. Trips to the beach, the summer of graduation and the nights spent on Main Street watching the world go by.

"All agreed that life as an adult was far superior than life as struggling adolescent striving for identity and independence."

"Who wants to go back?" asked Coover. "We're having too good a time now."

And as the waitress passed by to a chorus of drink orders, Kauffman summed up the meaning of the reunion.

"Friendship's a pretty neat thing," he said. "The years go by and even though you don't maintain contact, there's still a basic thing there for friendship. You have to understand that people have priorities and get pulled away from close friends but they can get back together, and basically people don't change much. That's what I see here today."

AFTER NEARLY 100 YEARS, WE KNOW OUR FIELD.

Today, many people know about Kubota mid-size tractors. But few are aware that Kubota's roots date back to 1890.

Since then, Kubota has grown to be one of the largest manufacturers of agricultural equipment in the world.

Kubota is now in its second decade of selling diesel-powered tractors in America. With dealers coast to coast, Kubota has become a well-established name, synonymous with economy, dependability and durability.

Some other manufacturers have only recently entered the mid-size market, and they have done so by putting their names on tractors built by other companies. You can rest assured, however, that all Kubota tractors are designed and built by Kubota to its own exacting standards of quality.

Kubota offers the most complete line of mid-size tractors in the world. Nearly a century of expertise stands behind them. Come see our tractors and find out what that kind of experience means.

Aetna

Safe New Year

Looking for a New Year's resolution that can benefit you and your family? Something that will be easy to accomplish and have great rewards?

The Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co. of Newark suggests putting the improvement of your home fire safety on the top of your list of New Year's resolutions. But don't wait until Jan. 1. Do yourself a favor and start tonight.

More than five thousand people will die in home fires next year. Most will die because they aren't prepared for a fire. They didn't plan ahead and practice how to escape safely. Many of these house fires and fatalities can be avoided entirely if people know and practice good fire prevention techniques.

Aetna recommends you include the following in your plans for a fire safe home:

- Make and practice a home fire escape plan with the entire family. Have fire drills in the home. Identify alternate escape routes.

- Install and maintain smoke detectors in your home (a battery operated one on each level of your home).

- Check your home for fire hazards. A checklist can be obtained from the fire department by stopping in.

- Learn how to operate portable fire extinguishers in your home.

Aetna has information on the above suggestions. For further information, call 454-3309.

Laura Knight awaits a Christmas visit by Santa Claus.

COVER STORY

REVIEW/From 1

• Police continued to be angry with Newark City Council over deadlocked contract negotiations, at one point picketing a meeting.

• Newarkers coped with the Drought of '85, and city officials began worrying about the effect of the return of thousands of U. of D. students on water levels.

• Alice Lake, director of the Newark Center YWCA, retired after 20 years on the job. "You become very attached to a place where you've been working for so many years," she said. "I'm going to miss all the people, especially the children."

• A crowd of 500 turned out for Scottfield's annual Safety Day event.

• Rookie race driver Tracy Brwon, 12, won the 39th running of the Delaware Association of Police Pushmobile Derby at the Milford Crossroads track near Newark.

• The Canal Little League 11-12 year old girls all-stars reached the world series, and the Newark American Little League 11-12 year old all-stars defeated Dover for the state title then fell one game short of the world series.

• Locker's Sporting Goods and Wegman's Construction won city softball league titles.

• The U. of D's Fightin' Blue Hens prepared to open the 20th season of the Tubby Raymond era, a campaign which was to have very high ups and very low downs.

• The Capitol Trail Junior Football League prepared to celebrate its 25th anniversary season.

• Newark and its police finally ironed out a contract for 1985, officers getting a 5 percent raise retroactive to Jan. 1.

• Newark City Council, unhappy over unruly tenants in local apartments, began cracking down. Ordinances targeting landlords as a means of getting better response in taming wild parties were proposed. "The intent is to make the property owner responsible," said City Manager Peter Marshall. "Unless you hold a person or corporation responsible, they're not going to (see that tenants) comply."

• About 15,000 area residents turned out for Newark Community Day, the city's largest annual event. "It brings an important sense of unity to the town," said the city's David Fitzgerald, who helped organize the event, "and I think everyone enjoys the fact that the atmosphere is so positive."

• In one of its most impressive openings ever, the University of Delaware football team defeated highly touted I-AA power Rhode Island, then keelhaunched Navy and star running back Napoleon McCallum. Unfortunately, the Hens then lost to William & Mary.

• Newark High opened its defense of the state football crown, tying Salesianum 0-0 at Baynard Stadium.

September

• It was back to school for thousands of students at the University of Delaware and local public and private schools.

• The return of university students, which elicits mixed feelings from townsfolk, went smoothly as city and university officials cooperated to make move-in day as problem-free as possible.

Local teachers got the school year off on the right foot... left foot... right foot, walking and running in the first Christina Stampede. The event brought Christina employees together at Newark High School, and was widely praised for its effect on morale. "I think it's great for human relations. It really brings us closer," said Bob Godwin, a custodian at Kirk Middle School. "Being a custodian, we are often made to feel we're the lowest people on the totem pole. This makes us feel like we belong. Togetherness, that's what I like."

• Residents of the area near Continental Avenue protested plans by the Newark Housing Ministry to operate an emergency shelter on that street. The building is called Emmaus House.

• A crowd of 6,000 turned out for the annual Newark Halloween Parade.

• Delaware's football team was defeated by Holy Cross, then beat West Chester and Boston University before once again being victimized by The Jinx and losing to Lehigh.

• Glasgow High School's volleyball team defeated Newark for the first time in seven years.

November

• Newark police officer Jim Weldin, who suffered a broken jaw while trying to make an arrest, urged City Council to consider hiring additional policemen.

• The state closed the South College Avenue railroad bridge for repairs Nov. 18, with plans to reopen it by the start of the University of Delaware's fall semester of 1986. Newark police asked motorists to use alternate routes — Chestnut Hill Road, Park Place and Delaware Avenue as east-west conduits, and Elkton Road and Library Avenue as north-south stretches.

• Dr. Jeff Miller, a University of Delaware economics professor, outlined plans for a six-month public service fellowship during which he will work with Newark's business district.

October

• Newark narrowly missed the full fury of Hurricane Gloria, which brushed by the Atlantic Coast. The storm did leave trees down, roads flooded and electric service out in some areas of the city.

• The state announced plans to close the South College Avenue railroad bridge for repairs.

• City officials toured the downtown business district to win support for Clean and Green Committee efforts to beautify Newark. Boy Scouts from the Lenape District also pitched in to help Clean & Green, planting trees around the city.

• Residents of the area near Continental Avenue protested plans by the Newark Housing Ministry to operate an emergency shelter on that street. The building is called Emmaus House.

• A crowd of 6,000 turned out for the annual Newark Halloween Parade.

• Delaware's football team was defeated by Holy Cross, then beat West Chester and Boston University before once again being victimized by The Jinx and losing to Lehigh.

• Glasgow High School's volleyball team defeated Newark for the first time in seven years.

December

• The University of Delaware trustees voted against total divestment of stock in companies which do business with South Africa.

• The trustees also agreed to provide four acres of land on Wyoming Road for use by the Newark Day Nursery and the Girls Club of Newark at token rent. The organizations hope to construct a new home on the site, but must survive the next two-three years in temporary quarters.

• The city continued to try to seek taxi service for the Newark area. Several companies have tried and failed to establish such businesses here in recent years.

• Newark High School's festive Elizabethan Rout marked its 15th year anniversary.

It was a season of ups and downs for Delaware, shown here in a series-ending victory over Temple.

• St. Mark's High School won the state volleyball title. Other local teams in the tournament field were Glasgow and Newark.

• Glasgow High School lost to Seaford in double-overtime of the state field hockey semi-finals.

• St. Mark's lost to Tower Hill in the state soccer finals. It's star player, Brandon Little, was named player of the year.

• The Newark girls cross country team, paced by Shelly Duch, Gillian Haskell and Dale Reed, placed second in the state championship.

• Newark, Glasgow and St. Mark's were named to the four-team state Division I football tournament field.

• Pete Schultz won his second straight Newark Turkey Trot 10-kilometer race. The women's winner was Christie Hutchinson.

• Delaware beat long-time nemesis Temple in the series finale, but lost to Maine and failed to receive a NCAA Division I-AA tournament bid berth.

SCHOOL FILE

Wilmington Christian

Wilmington Christian School, which has a campus in Newark, is celebrating its 40th anniversary.

Beginning Jan. 1, the school will commemorate its founding with a variety of programs and activities with the theme: "WCS: Christ Centered and Parent Owned Since 1946." Events will continue through Dec. 31, 1986.

The major event will be a celebration banquet March 21 in Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware's north campus in Newark. The keynote speaker will be Dr. Tim LaHaye, a widely-known Christian speaker and the president of the American Coalition for Traditional Values.

Wilmington Christian School began operation in September 1946 in the Independent Church at 14 and duPont streets in Wilmington. It had 32 students in grades one through three.

Today, the school has three campuses. Two — including that are housed in the Evangelical Presbyterian Church on Possum Park Road in Newark — serve grades kindergarten through six. The upper school campus, serving grades 7-12, is located on Loveville Road in Hockessin.

The three campuses have a total enrollment of nearly 700 students.

Biden
Academy nominees

U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden Jr. has announced his nominees to United State military academies. Principal nominees are:

• David J. Byers of Dickinson High School, son of R. Jeffries and Mary M. Byers of Wilmington, to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

• Keith C. Erdman of A.I. duPont High School, son of David and Janet Erdman of Hockessin, to the U.S. Naval Academy.

• Phillip C. Higgins of Dover High School, son of J.F. and Anne Higgins of Dover, to the U.S. Air Force Academy.

• Glen Alan Hutchison of Caesar Rodney High School, son of Glen R. and Linda Hutchison of Dover, to the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Principal nominees are the top candidates and will be offered an appointment if they meet all of the medical and physical requirements.

Among the alternate nominees are six Newark area residents. They are:

• U.S. Military Academy — Thomas J. Bockius of Newark High School.

• U.S. Air Force Academy — Paul S. Bovankovich of St. Mark's High School, Christopher M. Giaccone of Christiana High School, Timothy R. McWilliams of Archmere Academy, and Eric C. Zinszer of Newark High School.

• U.S. Merchant Marine Academy — Rita L. Dirks of near Newark, a student at Middletown High School, and Giaccone.

Exchange students

Qualified high school students in the Newark area are offered a unique opportunity to spend an academic year or six week summer holiday in Scandinavia, Germany, France, Switzerland, Britain, Holland, Spain or Canada as part of the ASSE international student exchange program, according to Nancy Mikkelsen, ASSE's local representative.

"Until a few years ago, only a fortunate few could afford to spend a school year or summer abroad. Now, ASSE has changed all that," Mikkelsen said.

Students, 15 to 18 years old, qualify on the basis of academic performance, character references, and a genuine desire to experience life abroad with a volunteer European or Canadian host family.

"ASSE families in Europe and Canada are carefully screened to provide a caring environment in which students can learn the language and culture of their host country," said Mikkelsen. Summer exchange students live with a family abroad who speaks English. Year students need not have learned a foreign language as they receive language and cultural instruction as part of the ASSE program.

ASSE students attend regular high school classes along with their European or Canadian counterparts. "ASSE exchange students learn by living the language and culture of their host country," Mikkelsen said.

ASSE international student exchange program is affiliated with the Swedish and Finnish departments of education and is participating in the President's International Youth Exchange Initiative.

Local students who are interested in receiving more information can contact Mikkelsen at 5550 Doral Drive, Wilmington, Del. 19808, or by calling 738-0297.

Math

Saturday program

Students in the fifth through eighth grades will have an opportunity to sharpen their mathematics skills through a Saturday program offered by the University of Delaware's Mathematical Sciences Teaching and Learning Center.

"Saturday Morning Math," which begins in January, will enable students to work on a variety of math-related materials and activities.

Emphasis will be placed on sharpening problem-solving skills and helping students learn to enjoy mathematics. Significant use will be made of the university's main instructional computing system.

Six-week sessions will be offered on Saturday mornings at the Mathematical Sciences Teaching and Learning Center in Room 028 Purnell Hall on the University's Newark campus.

The winter session will begin Jan. 11. Two sections will be offered — one from 8:30 a.m. and the other from 10:30 a.m. - noon.

Tuition is $30 for the six-week session, and enrollment will be limited to 15 students in each section.

For more information on "Saturday Morning Math," write to the Mathematical Sciences Teaching and Learning Center, University of Delaware, Newark, Del. 19716, or telephone 451-2140.

UNIVERSITY

U.D. soil testing lab acquires new equipment

With the aid of a special appropriation of $29,000 from the State of Delaware, the University of Delaware Soil Testing Laboratory recently acquired additional computerized equipment which is being used to analyze soil samples from growers, home gardeners and researchers.

According to laboratory director Dr. J. Thomas Sims, this equipment will be especially useful in expediting the routine analyses of the 10,000 or more samples submitted each year for testing.

The new instrumentation will allow laboratory personnel to take advantage of recent technological advances when testing samples for soil pH and extractable phosphorus, potassium, magnesium and calcium. Many of these advances are the result of microprocessors built into the equipment.

The upgrading will be complete with installation of a powerful microcomputer able to interface with these microprocessors through the university's main frame computer. The interfacing computer will be able to acquire and manage data from several instruments and transfer it electronically to the software now being used to computerize fertilizer recommendations.

Because it eliminates most of the time-consuming paperwork in-involved in graphing, reading charts, and transferring numbers to report forms, the new equipment is expected to speed the reporting process and reduce the chance of human error.

Use of the new automated system should result in a faster overall rate of analysis, Sims says. Some test results should also be more precise.

Once the transformation is complete, the laboratory will have increased flexibility, making it easier to adapt to future analytical services.

"With this upgrading," the soil scientist says, "our soil testing service can continue to maintain its status as a model laboratory in the agricultural community." Sims encourages farmers, home gardeners and others who have yet to send in soil samples for the 1986 growing season to do so soon. "Though the average turn-around time on a sample is only two weeks with the new computerized equipment, our staff is still limited in the number of samples they can physically process at one time," Sims says. "So play it smart and soil test soon. Soil samples can be taken any time the ground is not frozen."

For further information on using the University of Delaware soil testing services, contact the county extension office in Newark at 451-2506.

The University of Delaware's north campus is nearly deserted during the holiday break.

The Wilmington Trail Club has scheduled a variety of hikes in the tri-state area during January. Upcoming outings include:

*Saturday, Jan. 4 — Al Matlack (230-5383) will lead a 14-mile hike from Hercules Station to Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware campus in Newark. The trek, rated of moderate difficulty, will cross Red Clay Creek, Mill Creek, Pike Creek and White Clay Creek. Participants will meet at 6:30 a.m. in the Hercules parking lot.

*Sunday, Jan. 5 — A five-mile circle hike through scenic Iron Hill Park in Newark will be led by Jane DiCecco (737-9434). Hikers will meet at 12:30 p.m. in the parking lot by the tower. Bring water.

*Wednesday, Jan. 8 — Marty McLaughlin (738-6486) will lead a six-mile circle hike on trails in Carousel Farm in the Pike Creek Valley. Participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. near the WSFS bank at the Linden Hill end of Pike Creek Shopping Center. If it is a cold day, hikers may eat lunch at a restaurant in the center so bring money.

ARE

Meditation course

The Association for Research and Enlightenment will present the complete meditation course based on the Edgar Cayce concepts from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 11 at the Wilmington Hilton.

The program will be taught by Donna Dugan, Delaware field instructor for the Virginia-based association. Cost is $25.

For information, call 656-2663 or 239-7002.

Nature

Training sessions

Training sessions for volunteers interested in teaching nature programs for school children will be held at the Ashland Nature Center on Jan. 20, 22 and 24.

The Delaware Nature Education Society is seeking adults who enjoy being with children, wish to learn more about the outdoors, and are able to contribute a few hours per week.

Volunteers may choose the grades and topics they want to teach. No special background is required.

Volunteers are especially needed now because requests from schools for environmental programs are increasing steadily. More than 24,000 children and their teachers annually benefit from the efforts of the volunteers.

Monthly enrichment meetings and field trips provide quality time to expand knowledge and to share expertise with a group of men and women from all walks of life.

To learn more about guiding and its special benefits, contact DNES Education Coordinator

Helen Fischel, 239-2334, by Jan. 15. The Ashland Nature Center is located off Brackenville Road near Hockessin.

Chain saws

Safety seminar

Chain saws are very popular today. Many people use them to cut wood for stoves and fireplaces. Others find them indispensable for landscaping purposes and other jobs.

As a result, this year alone chain saw sales are expected to approach two million.

This highly productive and useful tool can also be very dangerous. Safety experts estimate that in 1985 chain saws will be responsible for 115,000 injuries ranging from cut fingers to sudden death.

More than half of these victims will need emergency medical treatment. Such accidents are needless and can be prevented.

The University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service and the Delaware Department of Agriculture Forestry Section have scheduled a chain saw safety seminar for professional and part-time users of chain saws on Wednesday, Jan. 22, at Lums Pond State Park Nature Center off Del. 896 south of Glasgow.

Minna Reinhardt enjoys her 96th Christmas at the Chapel Hill home of her daughter and son-in-law.

The seminar will be offered from 1 to 3 p.m. The session will include a wood cutting demonstration. Speakers will discuss the latest in chain saw technology as well as ways to eliminate accidents.

For more information or to register, call Delaware Extension Safety Specialist Ron Jester at 856-7303, or the Delaware Department of Agriculture at 1-800-282-8685.

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Newark community for its support of Val's Needy Family Fund. Special thanks go to the Newark Rotary Club, the White Clay Kiwanis Club and the Newark Lions Club.

Also, thanks to the schools which participated in the car drive and the entire Newark area community.

If anybody needs help throughout the year, we are there to assist you. Anyone in need of emergency help will be provided for.

Once again, thank you for your assistance.

(Editor's note — This year, Val's Needy Family Fund raised more than $6,000 and provided Christmas baskets to 317 local families.)

A string of beplumed banjo players strutted across the 19-inch plane of our television screen, much to the amusement of my 3-1/2 year old son.

"Look Daddy," he called excitedly, "chickens!"

I nodded in agreement. They sure did look like chickens. Technically, as anyone unfortunate enough to be trapped in the Delaware Valley on Jan. 1 knows, there were not really chickens but a close cousin called mummies.

Mummies not only look like chickens, but their alleged music sounds somewhat like the strains of a thousand ailing roosters crowing in close proximity to unison.

Chickens may actually take offense to being likened to mummies because I believe it to be true that mummies fall somewhere below poultry on the chain of evolution.

Perhaps it is merely overexposure to mummies that has left me jaded. From a very young age, the females in the family — mother, grandmother and now even my wife — have had an affinity for the mummies.

From 7 o'clock in the morning until nine o'clock at night, they paraded through our family room, year after year after year after year. I must have spend a combined 15 hours of my life listening to "Golden Slippers" played on banjos and accordions by legions of well-oiled, tone deaf men. Wearing feathers from neck to toe.

Through the Rose Bowl they strutted. Through the Cotton Bowl they staggered. Into the Orange Bowl they screeched.

From sunrise to past sunset, these Philadelphians mugged cameras and thrilled Gene Crane. And, save for a merciful act of God, they will be doing it again this New Year's Day.

Band after band will play the same songs, none of which were meant to be performed on tiny stringed instruments or mini-pianos which dangle from the chest. Fancy after fancy will wear the same feathers, led by a captain in a glittering, oversized trash can. Comic after comic will perform the same stale jokes, routines so old and worn they predate Henry Youngman.

And I will be stuck here in the Delaware Valley with them. The really nice part about living in Kentucky for two years was turning on the television New Year's Day and not finding mummies anywhere.

In fact, as a proud Easterner, I once tried to educate my Midwestern friends about our Philadelphia tradition, even performing a mummer's strut in the middle of the newsroom. After watching me warily, they shook their heads and turned back to their work, muttering under their breath that the East Coast must be an even stranger place than the West Coast.

SUPER STEVE

New Hen coach brings fresh enthusiasm to Fieldhouse

by Bruce Johnson

His presence on the basketball court is undeniable. He stalks the sidelines with an intent and educated eye that searches to exploit opponents' weaknesses. At 6-feet 8-inches, he towers over most of the athletes on the court, and when he barks out an order there is no doubt that the message is received.

Brimming with enthusiasm during a game, he becomes less animated and more meditative afterwards, as if the staff of life had been taken from him. Between contests, he will spend countless hours studying tapes of games, looking for clues that might make the University of Delaware basketball team one bucket better.

Delaware's head coach Steve Steinwedel is all this and more. Armed with a master's degree in counseling and psychology and 10 years of coaching experience, Steinwedel in only a few short months has added an ingredient to Delaware basketball that has long been absent — a winning attitude.

But while the Hens have had one of their best starts ever (6-2), Delaware fans have become intrigued with the man at the helm who is guiding the 1985-86 team to the strange shore of success.

Steinwedel is unlike any basketball coach Delaware has had in recent years. His enthusiasm and determination has created a new sense of belief in Delaware basketball. His style has been compared to that of Bobby Knight, but Steinwedel emphasizes that it is strictly his own way of coaching.

"I feel that as a coach you have to coach your personality and you really can't be anyone you aren't," said Steinwedel. "So from that standpoint, I'm just doing the things that are best for me."

And what is best for Steinwedel has proven best for Delaware. The athletes play with a renewed sense of determination and desire to win. Experienced fans will tell you, there has been a complete metamorphosis of the Hen basketball program.

"Most teams reflect their coach's philosophy, and if they don't then the coach isn't affecting the team's play very much," Steinwedel said. "The coach is the top of the operation and the impetus behind what they're doing. A big part of the coach's philosophy is his personality. So I believe in some respects you see a bit of a mirror there."

That is most obvious in the athletes' all out hustle and discipline on the court. Those are the two areas in which Steinwedel places the most emphasis.

"The first thing I explain to them is what discipline is all about," he said. "Everyone has their own definition. Discipline is understanding what you want to do and then doing it when it has to be done."

Steinwedel understands that it is a difficult assignment, and he asks each athlete to make that commitment. If they do not, they do not play.

"The worst thing a player can do is not play hard," he said. "I just have a hard time accepting that. If you're going to play, you're going to go all out. I tell the players that their opponents are not going to be Navy, Penn or Lehigh, but their opponents will always be themselves. That's the biggest challenge — how are you going to do against yourself and the battle with human nature?"

As a basketball player, Steinwedel received All-City and All-State honors while playing for Withrow High School in Cincinnati. He was awarded a scholarship to Mississippi State University, where he alternated between the fifth and sixth position on the floor. It was while he attended MSU that Steinwedel came to the realization of his life's ambition.

"In my sophomore year, it dawned on me that coaching would be something that I would really enjoy as a profession," he said. "So as a player I was looking at the coaching strategies and thinking in terms of what I would do in this particular situation. I was able to develop some ideas and a philosophy of what I would eventually do as a coach."

That education was advanced as he obtained coaching positions at Stetson, West Virginia, Duke and South Carolina. At those schools, he was tutored by a varied group of coaches who used different styles and techniques.

But the coaches Steinwedel admires and studies the most are the men who produce teams that reach beyond their potential.

"I have a great deal of respect for the coaches who do not necessarily have winning records or are in the public eye but who consistently get the most out of the athletes and have teams of overachievers. Those are the coaches from whom I want to find out how they are doing it. What makes them get more out of a player and why do their players play harder than someone else's? These are the questions I'm seeking answers for."

While Steinwedel seeks

answers for coaching, Delaware fans believe they have found the answer to the Blue Hen basketball program. Delaware has always had the potential to produce a first rate basketball program and the first signs of progress are evident.

"I think this school has a lot of potential," said Steinwedel. "There's 13,000 students here and a very competitive school academically. We have the size and it's a state university. Why can't it be like any other state university? We have an awful lot to offer and for those who like to dream, the dream could certainly have some reality to it."

Christiana basketball team on rebound

by Bruce Johnson

It was little over a year ago when Christiana High School's girls' basketball head coach Jim Distefano was wandering the halls in search of players.

"The program was down," said Distefano. "I took it over last year and I just went out and recruited in the halls and asked everyone to come out."

Unfortunately for Distefano, few of his recruits had played much basketball and the team suffered through a losing season.

Distefano confessed that the 1985-86 season will not be much better.

The girls lack competitive playing skills and are inexperienced, but Distefano believes that the Vikings could blossom into a competitive unit within a year or two.

"Basically, we're playing mainly ninth and tenth graders on the varsity level," said Distefano. "They make mistakes and it's a learning process, but we're going to keep trying to build up the program so when these kids are juniors and seniors maybe they'll be decent."

For the present, the Vikings are faced with some difficult moments when they face the top teams in Blue Hen Conference Flight A and the Catholic Conference. Still, Distefano is impressed with the girl's determination and enthusiasm.

"They want to learn," he said. "You can build a team around enthusiasm. They all want to play and we try to play everyone who practices."

One of the Vikings' biggest stumbling blocks is their inability to score. "We just can't score," said Distefano. "They'll shoot the ball but they can't put the ball in the basket due to the lack of poor shooting skills. This year's a little better. We're scoring about an average of 25 points a game."

Christiana's one senior is Sue Clark. Clark, like most of her teammates, started playing basketball recently and does not have the same skills as most starting seniors in high school. Still, Distefano is very proud of his senior starter.

"I've got to give her a lot of credit," he said. "She tries hard but she's probably on the level of junior varsity. If she had started out as a ninth grader, she'd be good."

Other Vikings to see action this year will be juniors Shena Coley and Laura Wagner, sophomores Trina Jackson and Jennifer Boland and freshman Karen Reese.

Improving athletes are tenth graders Jenna Frick, Jennifer Herriman, Shani Heckman, Kelly Naumann, Michelle Cleg and Rosie Zbed, and freshmen Dawn Clark, Kim Morton, Angel Payne and Nancy Wilson.

More than 30 girls are on the team and one bright spot for the Viking program is that the junior varsity team is 2-1 this season.

But for Distefano, the struggles of rebuilding have forced him to change his coaching philosophy for the present.

"My attitude is let's make it a good experience and let's make it enjoyable," said Distefano. "Then hopefully they will enjoy it enough so that they learn the skills and become better ball players."

Spartans win

St. Mark's recovers from loss to down stubborn Glasgow

by Bruce Johnson

Some coaches believe that nothing is gained from a loss. But if you speak to St. Mark's High School basketball coach John Fiorelli, he might beg to differ.

The Spartans survived a gut-wrenching loss to Delcastle in double overtime 44-40 several weeks ago, but it was a loss which eventually proved to have a positive effect on the team.

"The Delcastle game, despite being a loss, was really a big boost for us. We went over there (to Delcastle) figuring we weren't going to stay with them because of their size," said Fiorelli. "But we learned that we are a good pressing team and an up-tempo team, and it gave us some confidence."

Since then, the Spartans have not lost. They defeated a respectable Concord team and on the Friday after Christmas downed Glasgow to boost their record to 3-

2. Against Glasgow, St. Mark's took a 10 point lead at halftime and held off the pesky Dragons, who pulled within four points with 50 seconds left to play before fading.

Scott Northey led the Spartan fast break offense with 20 points and burly center Scott Dyer contributed 15 points and 15 rebounds.

While Fiorelli depends on the consistent play of the senior guards, he is pleased with the rapid progress the front court has made.

"Our improvement is mainly because key personnel have begun to develop," he said. "Scott Dyer, who just came off football, Steve Wing and sophomore Craig Bilinski are all gaining more confidence with each game. But it's also our senior guards who have really stepped in and are doing the important things you need to do to win."

For Glasgow, the loss was a disappointing end to the first part of the season. Although the Dragons played well in the second half against St. Mark's, their inconsistent play in the first half cost them the game.

"We've been up and down all season but this is a tough time of the year," said head coach Scott Cressman. "A lot of the kids have special commitments with family and are unable to play."

But Cressman is confident that the team will improve and be ready for the state tournament.

"I see some things that are changing and if the kids hang in there and don't drop their heads, then we'll be able to play with a lot of teams this year. We've just got to keep working," he said.

In other action, Christiana continued its winning ways by defeating Tatnall 83-62.

Newark continued to have troubles and ended up splitting a pair last week. The Yellowjackets destroyed Cape Henlopen 100-64 on Monday, only to lose a heart-breaker to seaford 64-62 on Delino DeShield's jump shot with 13 seconds left to play.

'Jackets rebuild

Coach Gerald Milstead enjoys working with young talent

by Bruce Johnson

Newark High School's wrestling head coach Gerald Milstead realizes that the Yellowjacket grapplers are in the midst of maybe one or two years of rebuilding, but he's not complaining.

Milstead takes great enjoyment in working with young talent. He also takes great pride in watching that talent mature. This year, Milstead has the best of both.

"It's the best of both worlds," said Milstead. "I'm looking forward to the future, and also to the kids who can achieve immediate success."

Milstead pointed out that coaching goes beyond teaching because he had the opportunity to know the wrestlers as individuals.

"It's the pleasure of the team as a whole," he said. "They're pleasant kids and as long as I can have kids around me that cause me nothing but joy, then I'll keep coaching."

This year, three of these joys are potential state champions: Kurt Howell (119 pound weight class), Brett Tomashek (126), and Tom Bockius (heavyweight).

Howell is a three-time state champion and will undoubtedly become a four-time champion. He is sought after by numerous colleges, and is arguably one of the best wrestlers Delaware has ever produced.

Tomashek almost gave up wrestling last year for other interests, but decided against it. Milstead said that Tomashek is very intense and is probably the most improved wrestler on the team. He is also becoming a team leader.

Bockius, the two-time All-State football star, placed second in the state wrestling tournament last year. In the recent Yellowjacket Invitational Tournament, Bockius was overpowering and according to Milstead has improved greatly from last year.

All of this makes Milstead a very content coach.

"I've been blessed with kids like Kurt Howell, Tommy Bockius and Brett Tomashek who are not only successful on the mat but good people and fun to be around," he said.

Besides the three potential state champions, the 'Jackets grapplers are young, inexperienced and untested. Of the 12 weight classes, three are held by freshmen and four are uncertain.

"We've got a couple of very weak places," said Milstead, who is nonetheless impressed with the freshman class. "We can count on three wins, and I don't know if that's going to be enough. We may get three or four more, but when we run into William Penn, St. Mark's and Salesianum, we're going to have a long night."

One of the problems for Milstead this season is the battle of numbers. Newark totals 42 wrestlers this year, when in the past that number reached more than 55. Milstead believes that ten or 15 more athletes could fill some holes and make a difference in the program for 1985-86.

As far as athletes, Milstead has been impressed with Tyler Tomashek (98), and believes the freshman has the potential to be just as good as his brother. Milstead also likes Derek Daniels (105), who he called one of the best natural wrestlers he's ever seen. Unfortunately, Daniels missed last year's season due to transportation problems.

Newark is rebuilding its wrestling program, but still features talented upperclassmen like Kurt Howell (right).

Unsung heroes

St. Mark's boasts number of fine athletes

With the recent success of St. Mark's High School sports programs, a number of athletes have gained statewide recognition. Everyone is well aware of the exploits of soccer's Brandon Little and football's Mike Benefield.

But St. Mark's also has a large number of unsung heroes, students who are champions in sports which do not receive nearly as much attention as soccer, football or basketball.

The following six students are among the school's unsung heroes:

• Paul Flannagan of New Castle, a 15-year-old sophomore, is a second degree black belt in Tae Kwon Do. He has been training for four years at the Astro Shopping Centre in Newark, and recently won the gold medal in sparring and free form competition in Delaware and finished fourth in national competition.

• Flannagan's future in the sport includes teaching karate and earning higher degrees of black belts.

• Suzane Varone of Wilmington, a sophomore at St. Mark's, is state and regional champ in acrobatics. Acro-gymnastics is a form of gymnastics which combines acrobatics, platforms, trampolines and the mini-tramp.

• Varone has been training for two and a half years with the Wings Acro-gymnastic team at the First State School of Gymnastics. She is also a member of St. Mark's gymnastics team.

• Doug Croll of Wilmington is the 1984-85 junior state racquetball champion. He is a senior at St. Mark's and also participates in wrestling.

When not wrestling, Croll spends two to four hours a day practicing racquetball. His future ambition is to go on to national competition.

• Karla Schmidt of Kenett Square, Pa. is a St. Mark's junior. She is the 1984 Half Arabian Hunter national champion and the 1985 regional champion.

The Half Arabian horse is slightly smaller than the type of horse found in the Olympics. As in the Olympics, the same type of format is used where jumping and showing the horse are keys to success.

Schmidt has been participating in this sport for eight years and trains in Kennett Square. She owns five horses and practices and grooms horses three to four hours each day.

• Pat Duffy, a sophomore living in Newark, is the 1985 roller skating freestyle and freedance regional champion and also a fourth place finisher in national competition.

Duffy has been competing for five years at the Christiana Roller Skating Rink. He practices during the week in Delaware and in New Jersey on weekends. His goal is to excel in world competition.

• Chris Shakespeare, a senior at St. Mark's living in Newark, is the 1985 Marine Corps state and regional fitness champion.

He defeated 200 male competitors from three different states to take the crown.

Lum's Pond bass stocking a success

by Eric Burnley

It appears that the striped bass and white hybrid stocking of Lum's Pond has been more successful than the Delaware Division of Fish and Wildlife expected.

tend to roam around the middle of the pond especially around the deeper holes and drop-offs.

The hybrids are among the hardest fighting fish in fresh water. They hit like a bluefish and don't give up until they are in the net.

My best luck with these fish came on white bucktails or white Mr. Twister Tails. I have heard of them taken on silver or white crankbaits that resemble alewives.

If you can find some live shiners or minnow, these should also work well. Fish them under a bobber and set the depth about half way to the bottom. Bait fishing is probably the best method for shore bound anglers.

Slow trolling is a good way to locate hybrids. Run two lines, one with a bucktail and one with a deep diving crankbait. That way you will cover lots of water at two different depths.

You may get lucky and find the fish chasing bait on the surface. If you do toss bucktails or small metal lures into the school but don't get your boat too close to the fish or they will head for the bottom.

Hybrids should be active all winter. If the current warm weather continues you should be able to run your boat on the pond without fear of ice. If we do get a hard freeze look for good fishing as soon as the ice melts.

Should you catch a big hybrid let the folks at Fish and Wildlife know about it by calling 1-736-3441, or by writing Cathy Martin at Box 1401, 89 Kings Highway, Dover, Del. 19901.

Over the past year, two 4-pound hybrids were taken by fishermen and during the first week of November a 6-pound, 13-ounce hybrid was taken by a biologist sampling the pond.

The first stocking of fingerlings was three and a half years ago, and for a hybrid to reach almost seven pounds in that short time indicates a remarkable growth rate. One reason for this is the excellent supply of landlocked alewives available in Lum's Pond.

The alewives were originally stocked to provide food for a dwindling supply of largemouth bass. The bait fish not only increased the number and size of the largemouths but were numerous enough to prompt the Division to stock hybrid bass. Trophy bass and hybrids are now available in the same location.

According to Cathy Martin, the biologist in charge of the project, 5,315 hybrids have been stocked in the pond since 1982. Exactly how many of these fish survived is unknown, but it is apparent that some of the survivors have grown to bragging size.

Newark residents can take advantage of this fishery by driving 15 minutes south on Del. 896 to Lum's Pond. The boat ramp is on Del. 71 - U.S. 301, and can be reached via Howell School Road.

Boat fishing will be the most productive for the hybrids. They

The chiropractic office shown below is cooperating in a statistical study designed to determine the correlation between overweight, back pain, and unequal leg lengths. Volunteers will complete a health history form and have leg lengths measured. A charge of only $8.95 is made for the weight control book. There is no obligation for anyone to take treatment, however, we offer a free consultation and preliminary spinal screening test for anyone who wishes to avail themselves of the opportunity. LIFESTYLE

For some reason, all of us mortals who are filled with human flaws and weaknesses want to do away with them in one fell swoop, and this is the time of year when we valiantly try to do so. Why is it always New Year's resolutions? I've never heard of St. Valentine's Day or Columbus Day resolutions, have you?

I am opposed to New Year's resolutions for several reasons. First, I don't want to rock the boat. Second, I treasure my sanity. Third, I am too kind. Finally, I like being human.

Let's look at these ideas in greater detail. If this past year were compared to a bottle of wine, I suppose an expert might comment that it was a pleasant vintage, not especially sparkly but neither was it sour or vinegary. It was very acceptable, but not so memorable that a connoisseur would rush out and purchase several bottles to store for opening on historic occasions.

I got through the year with my ego, my family, my car, my health, and my checkbook in one piece. That seems to be quite enough, and I am not sure that I want to change anything which might, in turn, affect my current course. So, no New Year's resolutions for me, thank you very much.

I don't know about the rest of the world, but I seem to be one of those people who finds bleak, gray and cold Januaries and Februaries difficult to survive with very much of my sanity and good humor intact. It probably has something to do with a shortage of warmth, palm trees, and vitamin C from sunlight. If I lived in Scandinavia, I would truly be a melancholy Dane. As it is, I am no bundle of guffaws.

Thus, the thought of making New Year's resolutions to give up some of my charming little weaknesses — like nibbling on chocolate, driving when I could be walking, and not chewing on my little fingernail — is more than I can bear. I need those habits to get me through the times of daffodils and lilacs. I might be able to give them up on Memorial Day, but certainly no sooner. Yet another reason to forgo New Year's resolutions.

Even if I could, through superhuman effort, keep just one of my New Year's resolutions, I don't think it would be a charitable thing to do. It would be like showing off or bragging or proving superiority to all those poor duffers who made similar resolutions and failed. Of course, people who do keep New Year's resolutions are very shrewd in their choices — giving up brussels sprouts and marathoning.

by Dorothy Hall

It seems to me that we owe our friends the chance to feel good about themselves, and one way I can help is by neither making nor keeping resolutions.

Finally, I like all of my friends just the way they are, and I hope they like me just the way I am. If my friends tried and succeeded in getting rid of the flaws that merit New Year's resolutions, then they might approach perfection, and, frankly, I don't want to be friends with perfect people because perfection makes me feel too inadequate for words.

Moreover, and much more importantly, perfect people are perfectly boring. It is the quirks and interesting turns of character that make my friends precious to me, and if they ironed them out through New Year's resolutions then they wouldn't be the people that I trust and treasure.

I hope they feel the same way about me because by now it must be perfectly clear, that one of my major quirks is an inability to make, let alone keep New Year's resolutions.

Financial counselors

Volunteers are critically needed for the volunteer Financial Counselor Training program set up by the New Castle County Cooperative Extension Office, according to Debbie Amsden, home economist.

She states that a need for the program is indicated by increasing reports from social service agents and weekly telephone calls to the extension offices from families who are in debt or have recently and an income loss.

Volunteers need no previous experience and may develop personally helpful skills in the training program. They will be required to meet with four families during the year under the supervision of an extension agent.

Volunteers may choose to help the program in other ways.

The Cooperative Extension Service decided to expand its financial counseling program through volunteers after more than 80 families with budget problems were helped in the past year by Amsden and Mary Alice Morris, an extension home economist in Wilmington.

Anyone interested in volunteering for the seven-session program is asked to call the Cooperative Extension Office in Newark at 451-1239 for registration forms or questions.

Fee for the course is $5 for a notebook of materials. Scholarships are available.

The seven-session program will be held on Thursdays, beginning Feb. 6 to March 20 from 7:30 to 9:30 at the Cooperative Extension Office in Townsend Hall on the University of Delaware's south campus in Newark.

Aetna

Prepare pipes

Cold winter months can cause pipes to freeze and burst. Some insurance policies will not pay claims unless prior care was taken to prevent freezing.

The Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co. of Newark says to avoid frozen pipes, flooding and costly repairs:

•Check and insulate pipes in unheated areas, basement, crawl space and exterior walls. These usually freeze first.

•Drain outside faucets which are susceptible. Cut off water inside that controls the faucet, then open the faucet handle and allow the remaining water to drain out.

The work of photographer Douglas Schwartz is on display at the Newark Free Library, 750 Library Avenue. The exhibit will run until Jan. 4.

The library is open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday. A Newark resident, Schwartz photographs the state's parks and other natural areas.

His color nature photography has been recently exhibited at the Newark Municipal Building. He has also displayed some of his work at the Rehoboth Art League. As well, his photographs appear on the front and back covers as well as inside the fall 1985 issue of Delaware Conservationist Magazine.

Schwartz has received photographic training from the School of Modern Photography, New Jersey, and has studied under master photographer Eliot Porter at the Maine Photographic Workshops.

Wheels

New York trip

The Delaware Art Museum will offer a Wheels to New York City trip on Wednesday, Jan. 15.

The bus will leave the museum, located on Kentmere Parkway in Wilmington, at 8 a.m. and arrive at the Plaza Hotel in New York at approximately 11 a.m.

The bus will make a special stop at 11:10 a.m. at the Whitney Museum of American Art to provide participants an opportunity to see "High Styles: 20th Century American Design." The bus will also stop at the Metropolitan Museum of Art at 11:15 a.m.

The bus will leave the Plaza Hotel at 6 p.m. and arrive back at the Delaware Art Museum at approximately 8:45 p.m.

The cost of the trip is $28 ($25 for museum members) which includes round-trip transportation by deluxe motorcoach. To reserve a seat, contact Carolyn Lester at the museum, 571-9590.

Arts galore

Painting program

"Artsgalore", the Delaware Art Museum's Saturday morning children's festival, will sponsor a three-part program entitled, "Painting, Painting, and More Painting" on Jan. 11, 18 and 25.

Sessions for 5-9 year olds will be held from 9-10:30 a.m. and for 10-14 year olds from 10:30 a.m. - noon. The museum is located at 2301 Kentmere Parkway in Wilmington.

During "Painting, Painting, and More Painting" Part 1 on Jan. 11, the film "Red Balloon" will be shown. Children will be taken on a tour of the Museum. The tour will be followed by studio experiments using tempera paints.

Part 2, on Jan. 18, will continue experimenting with paints by using acrylics.

As a grand finale on Jan. 25, Part 3 will give children the opportunity to create an original oil painting.

"Painting, Painting, and More Painting" concludes the Artsgalore program for the winter term. The spring term will begin on Saturday, March 8.

The cost per session, payable at the door, is $5 ($4 for museum members). For more information, contact the museum's education department at 571-9594. Call in advance because space is limited.

Happy New Year! Wednesday is but the first day of 1986 and already the year is taking on the look of a most important one in the world of musical years.

The reason centers in the city of Seattle, where quite a bit of musical history has been made since 1975 when Glynn Ross began the Pacific Northwest Wagner Festival with multiple "Ring" productions. I made the pilgrimage twice and now it appears that people from all around the world will be coming there again in the month of August.

What's all the excitement about? The Seattle Opera Company will present a new production of Richard Wagner's tetralogy "Der Ring des Nibelungen" in the original German with English subtitles. A new production of what is "unquestionably the most monumental work of Western civilization," according to George Bernard Shaw, always draws attention, and well it should. The new one in Seattle will, in my opinion, do just that.

Armin Jordan of L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande will conduct. Francois Rochaix will direct and the settings and costumes will be created by Robert Israel. Joan Sullivan will design the lighting.

Add to that singers like Linda Kelm as Brunnhilde, Johanna Meier or Sieglinde, Diane Curry as Fricka, Edward Sooter as Siegfried, Barry Busse as Siegmund, Roger Roloff as Wotan and Julian Patrick as Alberich, and you have the makings of the major musical event of our very young year.

Some of the best news to come with the announcement from Seattle is that the entire cycle will be mounted twice. It is a difficult enough task to undertake the gigantic opus once, but twice — well, they are hardy stock in the northwest. After all, the idea of bringing the "Ring" to America every single summer was born and raised there, and raised very well I might add.

Here is the schedule for the productions, Cycle one: "Das Rheingold," Saturday, Aug. 2, 8 p.m.; "Die Walkure," Sunday, Aug. 3, 4 p.m.; "Siegfried," Tuesday, Aug. 5, 7 p.m. and "Götterdämmerung," Thursday, Aug. 7, 6:30 p.m. Cycle two: "Das Rheingold," Sunday, Aug. 10, 5 p.m.; "Die Walkure," Monday, Aug. 11, 7 p.m.; "Siegfried," Wednesday, Aug. 13, 7 p.m. and "Götterdämmerung," Friday, Aug. 15 at 6:30 p.m.

Prices for the cycle are most reasonable and begin at $72 and continue through $236. All performances are in Seattle's beautiful Opera House located in the Seattle Center, site of the Seattle World Fair.

An attractive full color brochure is available from the Seattle opera company with full details. It is, of course, free. Just drop a note to: Seattle Opera, P.O. Box 9248, Seattle, Wa. 98108. The title of the brochure is "The Ring Is Forged."

THE ARTS
by Phil Toman

I have six "Ring" cycles and, with the days off necessitated by the difficult, demanding music, there are few cities I would rather spend the time in than Seattle. There is so much to see and do for the opera lover and non opera lover alike. Tours abound or you can just wander at your own leisure through the city of Seattle, or two mountain ranges. Visitors can take the ferry to Vancouver, B.C., for their "Expo '86" which will be in progress then.

In the weeks of 1986 that lie just ahead, I will be bringing you more information about the Seattle Opera production of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" and the people who will make it happen.

Angel Tree

Children of inmates provided happy holiday by area churches

by Bill Clark

Christmas had arrived four days early for Kristen and her baby brother Calvin.

Sitting on the carpeted floor in the nearly-deserted fellowship hall at West Presbyterian Church in Wilmington, the 2-year-old girl quietly and methodically reduced wrapping paper to mere shreds.

Kristen soon had uncovered a frilly, pink dress, jean overalls with a pink and lavender plaid shirt, and a doll. She pried the doll from the box with the help of her mother, Rose Craner, 23, and grandmother, Carla Fenimore, 42.

Then Kristen opened the presents of her 5-month-old brother, who sat in a stroller, unfazed by the excitement. Little Calvin received a blanket, clothes, diapers and crib toys.

The father of Calvin and Kristen, Calvin L. Harris Jr., was an inmate at the Gander Hill Prison and is now assigned to the Plumber Work Release Center in Wilmington, according to Fenimore, a New Castle resident.

Through Project Angel Tree, Delawareans provided Christmas gifts to 450 children of men and women housed in the state's correctional system. The program — sponsored by Prison Fellowship, an international Christian outreach based in Washington, D.C. — started in Alabama in 1982. It has spread to more than 250 cities across the country and came to Delaware in 1984.

Christmas trees, set up in churches in the Newark area and throughout Delaware, were decorated with "angels" that bore the children's names and four gift wishes. Individuals, families and Sunday school classes selected "angels" and bought the requested items, which were not to exceed $50 per child.

Project Angel Tree climaxed with parties in all three counties. The one in New Castle County, held at West Presbyterian in downtown Wilmington on Saturday, Dec. 21, had the aura of a giant birthday party.

Two clowns worked the crowd. Clusters of red, blue, yellow and pink balloons, inscribed with "Happy Birthday Jesus," adorned the walls of the fellowship hall. In the rear, more than 600 cupcakes and 18 cans of fruit punch fed the approximately 300 guests, a majority of whom were children under 10.

"We've discovered that two out of every three children do not attend any kind of church service," said the Rev. Gary Warner, the director of Child Evangelism Fellowship of Delaware, Inc., before speaking to the assembly.

"My job is to get in with the Gospel and make the initial contact and make sure the kids have an opportunity to hear the true Christmas story. Most of them don't know who Jesus Christ is — outside of a swear word. And with their fathers or mothers in jail — oh, man, what an opportunity. They have a real need for someone to show them some Christian love," he said.

Craner, the mother of Kristen and Calvin, appreciated Warner's 45-minute presentation. "It's hot in here," she said. "He did a pretty good job to have those kids sit there. Ordinarily, they don't want to just sit and listen to somebody talk."

"For whatever reasons, and there are a million of them out there," interjected Craner's mother, Carla Fenimore, a member of Hope Lutheran Church in New Castle, "the story of Jesus is something a lot of kids would never even get to hear if it weren't for programs like this. Of course, you know the gifts are going to get them here. And it's the story that is the highlight."

Lucinda Tolliver, 24, accompanied her 5-year-old daughter Janetta to the party. "I think it's nice," said Lucinda, a Wilmington resident, who — like the others — picked up her child's gifts on the way out. "It's something different for the kids. I didn't know so many people would be here. I'm enjoying myself."

Also enjoying themselves were Allen Copus, 29, and his 3-year-old son Jonathan. "Some of the people were really surprised at just the fact they got gifts," said the elder Copus, an Angel Tree coordinator from Bridgeville. "And one of the ladies said, 'On top of it we got a $20 gift certificate from Acme that we can use for Christmas.'"

"I sometimes forget those things. I'm not wealthy, but at the same time we have food on our table," said Copus, management representative at the Millsboro branch of Wilmington Savings Fund Society. "My wife and I have two kids and we're with them. I don't know what it's like having one parent, Jonathan and I talked about that on the way up, that we would be with children today who didn't have a mommy or a daddy at home."

Copus placed 10 "angels" on wreaths around his bank's teller booths. Among the curious was WSFS president J. Walton St. Clair.

"He asked what they were all about and I told him. I felt he got sarcastic with me," recalled Copus. "But then he called me the next day and wanted a certain angel. It was really neat."

"Then he called me the day before he sent the stuff down and said, 'I have everything except for crayons. The child asked for a coloring book. My wife feels it's important that we also give her crayons.' So he bought them on his lunch hour."

"It touched me that someone of his prestige got so involved."

The initial phase of Project Angel Tree was carried out at Delaware's men's and women's prisons, from Georgetown to Claymont. Inmates voluntarily forwarded the names, addresses and phone numbers of their children to the Prison Fellowship of Delaware. In turn, Angel Tree coordinators Fay Whittle and Peggy Laird contacted the children's guardians (who consented to participate) for gift suggestions.

"When we call them to get their wishes," Whittle said,

"sometimes they'll cry and they can't believe it. They can't believe that church people — people who don't even know them — are going to buy their children gifts."

"A lot of them are very cautious because they don't know who we are. They want to know what Prison Fellowship is and how come we're calling them. When they find out we're on the level, you can hear the leerness going out of their voices."

Whittle, a Newark resident, gave the account of a pregnant teenager, the daughter of a prisoner. A young Newark woman — having selected the girl's "angel" — bought her a pair of maternity outfits.

Whittle put the pregnant teen in touch with a public health nurse; "I asked her (the girl) if she minded my calling her. She said, 'No, I just didn't think anybody cared.' When someone calls her from an organization and says, 'Look, we want to help; we're concerned about you,' then that's showing God's love for another human being."

The Newark woman also intends to pass along her maternity wardrobe, baby furniture, clothes and toys to the expectant mother. "This is carrying it beyond the Angel Tree," said Whittle.

The project was led in Sussex and Kent Counties by Frank Casey and the Rev. Steven Golden, respectively, and with the permission and cooperation of John L. Sullivan, the commissioner of the Department of Corrections.

Whittle said that personal satisfaction seldom enters her mind. "Some of these children don't get gifts other than the ones we give them. And if that's what the Lord wants me to do, then I'll do it. I don't think any one of us want any credit for the program's success," she said.

They care more about the kids.

STEER THIS WAY
By: John Mascher

A slight "pinging" noise is quite common on newer cars with electronic and computer-controlled engine functions, but loud ping is a danger signal. Try higher-octane gas and have a timing check.

Check tire pressure more often when the temperature drops. Underinflated tires waste gas.

Buckle up that seat belt! In some states, if you're not wearing a seat belt you may be considered partially responsible for causing or aggravating any injuries in case of accident.

How close are you parked? Angle the side-view mirror toward the curb, the better to judge distances. Keeps whiteouts cleaner, too.

What's new: a windshield that can clear its own ice quickly. Auto maker will offer an optional windshield that can melt buildup within a few minutes in any weather.

Barber

NABADA president

Daniel W. Barber, 59, of Newark, has been named president of the National Barrel and Drum Association effective Feb. 1, 1986.

The industry group, which specializes in recycling steel drums for the packaging of chemicals and other products, represents 200 member companies worldwide.

Barber, who was formerly general sales manager of Container Corporation of America's Plastics Division in Wilmington, has long been active with trade organizations on programs aimed at quality, safety and environmental protection in the use of containers. This year he addressed the International Steel Drum Conference in Israel.

In announcing the appointment, Vincent Buonanno, NABADA chairman, added, "Mr. Barber's efforts have always complimented our own, which fact certainly helped in the selection process."

A native of New York City, Barber has been a Delaware resident for 25 years. He served as president of the Sales and Marketing Executives of Wilmington and of his local civic association.

His wife Dorothy has been an advisor to Junior Achievement and is a volunteer at the Wilmington Medical Center.

NABADA headquarters is located in Washington, D.C., and the Barbours will establish a second residence in that city.
