State gives priority to duPont parkland

by Cathy Thomas

The Hallock duPont property northeast of Newark is among several sites now being sought by the state following legislative approval of the Governor's parkland acquisition program.

In the $20 million program, Gov. Michael N. Castle targeted eight sites across the state for purchase in the largest single land acquisition program in Delaware history.

A state task force has recommended the purchase of 321 acres of the duPont family property to create a land bridge between the Middle Run Natural Area, Carpenter State Park and the White Clay Creek Preserve.

State legislators appropriated $7 million in state bond money for the first year of the three-year acquisition program.

Charles Salkin, manager of technical services for the Department of Natural Resources, said preliminary work is now under way in the acquisition efforts.

"In each case, we'll be contacting the landowners, notifying them that the legislature has authorized us to negotiate with them to pursue their property."

Some of the property will be purchased within the next year. Of those sites not purchased right away, the state will pursue options to buy them at a later date.

"Even if we don't buy the property right away, we will do whatever we can to secure our right to buy the property," said Salkin. "There are a lot of different alternatives, acquisition techniques available to us."

If the state were to purchase all the property today, it would likely cost taxpayers around $20 million. However, the legislature only appropriated $7 million in the state bond program this year.

Legislators are expected to appropriate another $7 million next year. The amount of money set aside in the third year will depend on actual land costs, but it will probably be around $6 million.

"With any luck, the land could cost us less (than $20 million)," said Salkin. "We know it's going to take at least another $7 million next year. We always hope for good prices."

The majority of the $7 million appropriated this year will go to the purchase of the duPont property, according to Salkin.

"We've clearly given priority to spend a good part of the $7 million on the first parcel of the duPont property."

Salkin said priorities were given to those pieces of property that the owners wanted to sell. That is the case with the duPont property, which is being sold by the family.

Because of financial pressures, the duPont family decided to sell half of the 2,000 acre estate. Family members originally wanted to sell the state about 150 of the 1,000 acres for sale. However, the state

U of D police 'official'

Legislation establishing a police department on the University of Delaware campus was signed into law last week by Gov. Michael N. Castle.

During ceremonies Thursday, Castle signed:

- House Bill 560, which creates a University police department.

- H.B. 556, which gives University police statewide authority similar to other police departments.

- H.B. 532, which gives the University police department the right to enter into mutual assist pacts with other police departments.

- H.B. 561, which allows University police to enter other jurisdictions during pursuit.

The creation of the University police department is considered an administrative move for the most part.

"I know for the University it is significant because it is a recognition of our officers with other officers in the state," said Douglas F. Tuttle, University of Delaware public safety director.

The University's public safety department is split into two divisions — the department's 42 police officers and 25 security officers.

For the past several years, University police have been considered special officers to the City of Newark. That designation allowed them to arrest students off campus and cooperate with Newark Police. The new legislation eliminates the need for the special officer designation.

The University police officers have also been considered special constables to the state. The constable status may be retained.

Sen. Neal critical of Newark area traffic study

by Cathy Thomas

The Greater Newark Area Transportation Study is not shaping up the way State Sen. James Neal had hoped.

Neal, a Newark Republican, is disappointed in the narrow focus of the study.

"My concern is this study is going to stop before it really gets into the serious solutions that should be addressed now," said Neal. "We probably need to consider extending this study or changing the scope."

Neal was instrumental in getting the study started last year by the Delaware Department of Transportation.

The Boston consulting firm of Vanasse Hangen Brustlin, Inc. recently issued short term recommendations to improve traffic flow through the city. Long-term recommendations are due out this fall.

However, Neal has relayed his concerns to DELDOT officials and is hopeful that the study will become more extensive.

"This (study) is really not being aggressive enough to really give us solutions that will last more than a few years," said Neal. "I'm afraid what the traffic consultants are going to tell us. They're going to say, 'Well, if you just widen Cleveland Avenue, that'll take care of the problem' and from a purely traffic standpoint, that's the kind of solution that makes sense. But, when you crank in concerns for the kind of city we have, the kind of neighborhoods, that just goes against any kind of preservation of the quality of life."

If the study does not become more extensive, Neal believes there will be a need for another traffic study in the area in another five years. This study projects traffic problems and possible improvements through the year 2010. Neal suggests that the study look 40 to 50 years down the road.

There have been some good ideas to come out of the study, according to Neal. He said the proposed Transportation Management Association (TMA) should play an important

Car stolen; no joyride for child

A five-year-old Stanton girl was given an unexpected — and unwanted — ride Monday night when the car in which she was seated was stolen from a parking lot on Kirkwood Highway.

According to Delaware State Police, the child was left unattended in a vehicle about 9:15 p.m. while her mother's boyfriend went inside the 7-11 at Kirkwood Highway and Duncan Road to pick up an item.

The keys were left in the vehicle.

When the man exited the store about five minutes later, the vehicle and the child were gone.

The child was let out of the vehicle at a residence near Delcastle High School in Newport, where she telephoned her mother.

FYI

Newark Police have issued a bike alert for Saturday, July 16.

Motorists using city streets are advised that because of the Newark Bicycle Classic, traffic patterns will be altered from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. The race itself, part of the First State Games, will begin at 8 a.m. and continue to 6 p.m.

Academy Street will be closed from Delaware Avenue to East Park Place.

East Park Place will be closed from Academy Street to South College Avenue.

South College Avenue will be open to southbound traffic only;

the northbound lane will be closed between East Park Place and Delaware Avenue.

East Delaware Avenue will have limited access; the right eastbound lane will be closed between South College Avenue and Academy Street.

According to police, detours will be marked and imposed.

They suggest east and west-bound traffic use Cleveland Avenue, Main Street or Chestnut Hill Road. North and southbound traffic should use Library Avenue, Chapel Street or Elkton Road.

A 'peak' at East Coast life

Rocky Mountain 4-H'ers visit Newark through special program

by Cathy Thomas

Some Colorado teenagers had the opportunity this past week to learn about the lifestyle of an East Coast family.

The teenagers were part of an exchange program sponsored by the Cooperative Extension programs at the University of Delaware and Colorado State University.

Last year, several Newark teenagers visited teenagers in Colorado. This year, the Colorado teens came to Newark.

During the week-long visit, the Colorado teens saw many of the sights along the East Coast. Some of them visited New York City, Washington, D.C. and Cape Henlopen.

For some of the teenagers, it was their first opportunity to be outside of Colorado.

"The first night we got here, we walked out of the airport and it was so hot. It was so humid," said Jeannie Zimmerman of Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Jeannie and Rachel Smith of Oak Creek, Colo. stayed with Signe Clayton, a Newark High School sophomore. Signe visited Jeannie in Colorado last year.

"I really liked it a lot. I learned a lot about how (life) is out there," said Signe. "I never had been that far west. I made a lot of new friends."

Jeremy Jarbo lives on ranch outside of Yampa, Colo. Last year, he was visited by Ralph Farabaugh, a senior at St. Mark's High School.

"It (Yampa) was different," said Ralph. "I didn't know places like that existed. It was really small. You stand at one end of the town and you can see all the way across the town."

U.S. advantage

To remain competitive in the global marketplace, the United States must press its advantage in technology, according to Lt. Gov. S.B. Woo. Many American businessmen have been too quick to pass on cutting-edge products and manufacturing techniques, he believes. See page 10b.

Summer hockey

Check this out. A group of Newark area men are donning skates and grabbing sticks to play ice hockey...in the good ol' summertime. Because most of the players have to climb out of bed to go to work every morning, the play is no-check. Still, however, there is plenty of action. See page 1c.

He can soar through the air with the greatest of ease. And never mind the safety net. He's Matti Nykanen, Finnish ski jumping gold medalist. Burger King

Man run over

A Wilmington man is in fair condition at Christiana Hospital after being run over by a car Saturday night in Newark.

Arnold Keplen, 23, suffered a fractured jaw, second and third degree burns and a lacerated hip when he was run over by a car in the parking lot of the Burger King restaurant on South Chapel Street.

According to police reports, Keplen was on the asphalt when the vehicle struck.

The vehicle was driven by Thomas Obyrne, 17, of Wilmington. Obyrne, a friend of Keplen, apparently did not see the man on the asphalt.

Police are continuing the investigation of the accident.

Fatal crash

Trailer hits car

A Newark man was killed Monday morning when the car he was driving was struck by a trailer that had broken loose from another vehicle.

George A. Thompson, 39, was pronounced dead on arrival at Christiana Hospital.

According to Delaware State Police, Thompson was driving on Kirkwood Highway near Wilmington when a trailer came loose from the vehicle driven by John P. Beverin, 31, of Wilmington. The trailer struck the driver's side of Thompson's car.

Thompson's death brings to 88 the number of fatalities this year on Delaware highways compared to 71 for the same period last year.

Arrests

Liberty Day

Two Newark area residents were arrested Monday, July 4 at the city's Liberty Day celebration for distributing fliers from the Delaware Nicaragua Network.

Alan Muller and Dr. Lea Tammi, both members of the Delaware Nicaragua Network, were arrested by a state park ranger during the day-long celebration at Carpenter State Park.

The state park ranger advised Tammi and Muller that they would be in violation of a state park rule if they continued to distribute the leaflets. When they continued to hand out the papers, they were arrested.

The papers quoted the Declaration of Independence and compared the United States' struggle for freedom with the current strife in Nicaragua.

Newark Mayor William Redd opposed a move Monday to abolish the city's Conservation Advisory Commission. Some Council members believe its functions overlap those of the Planning Commission.

Conservation panel out?

Some Councilmen unhappy with commission overlap

by Cathy Thomas

The future of Newark's Conservation Advisory Commission is in doubt following Monday night's City Council meeting.

Discussion about the commission was prompted by a city staff memo to councilmembers advising them that some of the duties of the Conservation Advisory Commission overlap responsibilities of the city Planning Commission.

The memo prompted Councilman Olan Thomas to make a motion that the Conservation Advisory Commission be disbanded.

"It appears that this committee isn't really needed. If it isn't really needed, it should be disbanded," said Thomas. "The commission has overlap and has very little duty."

However Mayor William Redd cautioned against quick action to dismiss the commission.

"I'm certainly not prepared to disband it tonight (Monday). I believe it deserves serious consideration," said Redd. "I think this commission had done good work. To disband the commission tonight would not be in the best interest of the city."

Discussion on the Conservation Advisory Commission prompted Councilman Louise Brothers to suggest a review of all city boards and commissions.

"I think that maybe we ought to look over several city boards and commissions we have and see if they're effective."

Councilman Hal Godwin commented that there may be other duties for the Conservation Advisory Commission that would not overlap with the job of the Planning Commission.

"To try to look for other functions for them (Conservation Advisory Commission) is ridiculous," said Thomas.

Council voted to table the issue for two weeks so further study could be made. Thomas was the only member to reject tabling the issue.

In other action Monday night:

- Council approved a $235,000 bid to restore the Newark Passenger Railroad Station. The historic structure was purchased by the city last year for $33,500. Renovation will take about six months. Once completed, the building will house city offices and provide storage and display space for historical items.
- Approval was given to the city's five-year capital improvements program.

The program outlines major capital expenditures for the years of 1989 to 1993. Much of the expenditures are proposed for the city's electrical department.

- Discussion on a city staff study of a possible land addition to Rittenhouse Park was delayed. Councilmembers wanted more time to review the study.

City may raise electric rates

Newark electric customers may see slightly higher bills later this year.

Al Martin, city finance director, has proposed a 2.25 percent increase in electric rates for the city's 8,000 residential and business customers.

"We (the city) received a rate increase March 1, 1988. It represents a 3.2 percent increase in our electric rates from Delmarva Power and Light," said Martin.

Delmarva Power and Light sells electricity to the City of Newark at a wholesale rate. The city then sells the electricity to residential and business customers here.

Martin has proposed the rate increase become effective on Sept. 1.

Although the city received its electric rate increase in March, it was able to delay the rate increase to its customers.

"We had sufficient (budget) surplus to cover the increase. We had more surplus than we actually wanted," said Martin. "We decided that we would defer the rate increase."

Council will likely consider the rate increase proposal next month. If the increase is approved, it will mean the first rise in electric rates in several years for Newark customers. In fact, city electric customers have enjoyed some rate decreases in recent years.

City hears funding requests

Several organizations are competing for next year's revenue sharing dollars to be handed out by the city of Newark.

Public hearings were held this week to hear requests from 12 non-profit groups seeking a total of $50,000 in funding.

The requests are much higher than the amount targeted for next year's program.

David Fitzgerald, city human services director, said the city expects to appropriate $36,500 to the revenue sharing program in next year's budget.

"The requests always come in well over what we have to give," said Fitzgerald.

"The amount of money proposed for the 1989 revenue sharing program is a 4.3 percent increase in money appropriated in this year's program."

A wide variety of non-profit groups have applied for next year's funds. All applicants must follow certain criteria.

"Anybody can apply for any kind of program that will provide service to the people of Newark," said Fitzgerald.

The maximum amount for any single request is $10,000. The largest grant given to one organization last year was $6,800.

Fitzgerald said the city discourages requests for capital projects. They also do not want the city to be a group's primary source of funding.

"We don't want to fund things that will always be dependent on city revenue sharing funds," said Fitzgerald.

The applications for next year's revenue sharing dollars include:

- Chesapeake Bay Girl Scout Council, Inc. is asking for $2,134 for the Girl Scouts' sports clinic.

- YWCA of New Castle County's Newark Center is requesting $6,000 for its summer day care camp.

- Girls Club of Delaware's Greater Newark Branch is requesting $6,000 for before and after school care and summer day care.

- Newark Day Nursery Association, Inc. has applied for $5,000 to help supplement tuition for low income families.

- Delaware Curative Workshop has asked for $5,000 to help fund some of its projects.

- Parents Anonymous of Delaware, Inc. is requesting $1,700 for a child abuse and neglect primary prevention project.

- Delaware Crime Stoppers is asking for $2,500 to help fund its program.

- St. Thomas' Episcopal Church is seeking $2,000 to fund a youth ministry to Greater Newark.

- University of Delaware has applied for $3,000 for the Adult Day Care Center.

- Independent Living, Inc. is seeking $3,455 for its Homeshare program.

- Institute for the Development of Human Resources has requested $7,230 for its advanced technology job training and placement program.

- Newark Housing Ministry, Inc. has applied for $6,000 to help fund the operation of the Emmaus House.

Fitzgerald said the city's revenue sharing program allows the city to collaborate with private non-profit groups to improve services in Newark.

"The flavor of it is really small town. I'm a firm believer that it has made a significant difference in this community in terms of services available," said Fitzgerald. "I think it's a special indication of the concern of the city for its community."

The city continued its own revenue sharing program after the elimination of federal revenue sharing dollars about three years ago. Fitzgerald expects the city to continue the program barring "any real significant financial difficulties."

Surratt sells downtown tract

by Cathy Thomas

The sale of property along Main Street has been announced by the former owner.

Longtime Newark resident, Grover Surratt, has sold his property at 43, 45, 47, and 49 East Main Street to Robert Teeven, founder of the USA Training Academy in Newark.

The sale was finalized on June 30.

Teeven is also the owner of the old State Theatre building, located next to the properties he purchased from Surratt.

Plans for the site are not clear. Teeven has been unavailable to comment on his plans for the property.

No plans for the site have been filed with the Newark Planning Department, but there has been speculation that Teeven will construct a new building on the property.

The property had been in Surratt's family for many years. The first family business was established at 45 East Main Street in 1900, when George Powell moved his ice cream business from Stanton to Newark.

Walter Powell, Surratt's stepfather, took over the family business when George Powell died in 1908.

Surratt operated Powell's Restaurant with his parents until 1952, when the business was sold. Surratt then operated his own real estate firm, from which he retired in 1985 to manage his property along Main Street.

Surratt said he thought it was time now to sell his Main Street properties.

"I just decided to retire. The buyer (Teeven) had been after me two or three years to sell," said Surratt.

Surratt said he had mixed feelings about the sale. In one sense, he was glad not to have the worry of managing the properties. In another sense, he regretted not having the worry.

Surratt dismisses any concerns about the decline of Main Street.

"I'm violently opposed to certain media people thinking Main Street is going to die. Certain people think it's going down the tube. I don't believe it at all."

The site of the former Powell's Restaurant, shown in this early century photograph from the Newark Historical Society, is included in recent land sale.

City is not conducting water survey

An official-looking tract labeled "Water Analysis Data Form" has been left at the front door of some Newark residents, but city officials are advising residents that the water analysis is not a function of the city.

The form includes instructions to fill a sample bottle with tap water and leave it on the front door for pick-up the next morning.

Joe Dombrowski, city water and wastewater director, said the water analysis is not being conducted by the city of Newark or by a company hired by the city of Newark.

Dombrowski suspects that the water analysis is being done by a business.

"We don't encourage people to (participate), because naturally it's going to come back that you need their product," said Dombrowski.

In future traffic issues. The TMA, consisting of business, citizens and government leaders, would address traffic issues. "They (consultants) did recommend a TMA and to that extent that's a real opportunity. "But its going to take a lot of work and dedication to make that more than just icing on the cake. It's got to be a major component of the solution for the future. I'm not sure that our consultants realize the role that should play," said Neal. Neal said there has not been any clear definition of who should participate in the TMA — what kind of business people, government leaders or citizen groups. The basis of the transportation study is good, according to Neal, who said the consultants have the ability to give answers that are needed and not "just dabble at the solutions."

"We can see that we're going to have a serious problem in less than a generation from now. If we're doing a transportation study now and we see these kinds of (traffic) problems in 20 years, I think we owe it to ourselves and our children that follow us to really take this seriously and to not just sort of look ten feet ahead, but really look ahead and see what needs to be done."

This year it was Jeremy's turn to visit Ralph. For Jeremy, it was his first trip.

"I've seen my first McDonalds," said Jeremy. "I'd never been outside of Colorado. This was the first time I've been on an airplane."

Jeremy has seen a lot of differences in lifestyle here compared to Colorado. Dress styles and work habits are different here.

"Out there, when we go out to work, we work all day long from sunrise to sunset," said Jeremy.

The fact that the towns are close together surprised Amber Hillewaert of Steamboat Springs, Colo.

"I expected less towns. I expected the towns to be further apart," said Amber.

Amber and her sister, Brandi, were visiting Rosemary and Christina Mason of Newark.

Jim Stanko oversees the program at Colorado State University.

"The benefits I see are the facts that kids get to interact, exchange ideas and see other parts of the country," said Stanko.

Stanko said for many of the Colorado teenagers, the program may be their only opportunity to see other parts of the country.

Mark Manno with the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Program said the visits allow the teenagers the opportunity to put things in perspective. The teenagers participating in the program are required to raise the necessary funds for the trips and help organize the visits.

"It really helps them (teenagers) with their goal-setting and decision-making skills," said Manno. "We work with them. We give logistical support."

The primary aim of the program is to create a greater understanding between people on the East Coast and those who live in other parts of the country.

wants to purchase 321 acres to develop the land bridge.

Although the first parcel of the 321 acres could be purchased this year, it may be several months or years before the entire site is owned by the state.

The land bridge will generally remain open space.

"The basic idea is for it to remain as open space," said Salkin. "We will do some serious planning for wildlife and public use. The area will require a considerable amount of management."

Although Salkin expects some active recreational use of the land, it will not be intensely developed parkland.

POLICE

University police have gone through the same preparation as officers in other police departments, Tuttle said.

"All of our officers have had to attend the police academy and essentially had the same training as other police officers."

The establishment of the University police force is a move that has been made by other college campuses across the country.

"It is a transition that major campuses have made in the last 10 to 15 years," said Tuttle.

Newark Police Chief William Hogan was supportive of the University police changes.

"I think it is the logical way to go for the University," said Hogan. It recognizes the authority and responsibility they (police officers) have had all along. It's a recognition by the state."

Hogan said his department has had good communication with University police and expects to continue to work with them.

Soles doubles library funding

Funding to local libraries is set to increase under a state budget change approved by Delaware law makers in the just-ended legislative session. Under the change, put forth by State Rep. Ada Leigh Soles, D-Newark, state money appropriated to libraries has doubled to nearly $600,000. "We were giving about 66 cents per capita to libraries. The national average is $1.65," said Soles. "This increase will bring us to $1.32 per capita." Exactly how much funding increase each library will receive will vary according to a formula established by the Joint Finance Committee. "Some amount will go to all of the 31 libraries in the state," said Soles. "The more local support (the libraries) have, the more state money they get."

State Rep. Ada Leigh Soles was instrumental in doubling funding to libraries in the state.

The extra funding will enable libraries to come in line with state guidelines. "They are to use the money to meet state standards in the number of books, hours open and professional staff." As a member of the Joint Finance Committee, Soles had the primary role in pushing for increased state aid to libraries. "It is always a formidable task to double the funding for any program, but the other committee members realized that I would not give up," Soles said.

Police cite Chrysler contractor

A contractor working at the Chrysler Assembly Plant in Newark has received a criminal summons for noise violations following several complaints by area residents. For the past several weeks, residents of the Harbour Park subdivision have complained to police and city officials about noise at the Chrysler plant during the late evening and early morning hours. A renovation of the plant is now under way as the company prepares for production of the new A-car. The plant was shut down earlier this year and many workers were laid off when the company decided to cease production of the K-car in the United States. When the noise violations began, city officials discussed the problem with Chrysler representatives. Chrysler officials were cooperative in efforts to reduce the noise, ac-ording to Police Chief William Hogan. However, Hogan said when the noise problem occurred again last week, police decided to take enforcement action and issue a criminal summons to the contractor at the site. The criminal summons was issued to Daniels Engineering Company during the early morning hours of July 6. According to police reports, the noise stemmed from a dump truck unloading debris about 2:30 a.m. The city's noise ordinance prohibits the operation of construction equipment between the hours of 9 p.m. and 7 a.m. Since the issuance of the summons, Hogan said they have not received any more complaints about the noise coming from the plant. Conviction on the city's noise ordinance can carry a fine of $100 to $500 and up to six months in jail.

Community Day application deadline is near

The deadline is nearing to apply for booth space for this year's Newark Community Day. Persons or groups interested in participating in Community Day must have their applications in to the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Rd., by 5 p.m. Friday, July 29. Community Day will be held Sept. 25 this year. The date is a week later than usual to avoid any conflict with the 100th anniversary celebration of Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company. Aetna is hosting the state fire fighters' convention, and is planning a huge parade the weekend of Sept. 17-18. More than 200 of the expected 400 applications have already been received by the city. Applications are considered on a first-come, first-serve basis.

However, Newark residents will receive first priority. David Fitzgerald, city human services director, is expecting arts and crafts displays, a bazaar, children's activities, refreshments and entertainment. A new commercial entry division was added to this year's event. The commercial division will allow businesses to become involved.

The commercial involvement will be limited with only five spaces available to businesses. There is a $25 entry fee to that division. All non-commercial entries have a $25 fee to participate. However, the fee will be waived, upon approval, for those non-commercial groups offering interaction with the public.

Obara

Seeks re-election

Rosalie S. Obara, New Castle County Clerk of the Peace, has announced her bid for another term in office. A Wilmington Republican, Obara is seeking her sixth consecutive term in the county row office. The Clerk of the Peace office issues marriage, precious metal and pawn broker licenses; administers the annual school board elections, tax referendums and road liens; and performs various other administrative and record-keeping functions for the county. As Clerk of the Peace, Obara performs nearly all of the civil marriage ceremonies that take place in New Castle County each year.

SCHOOLS

New schools, rooms needed by Christina

by Cathy Thomas

A $30 million capital improvements program for the Christina School District received school board approval during a lengthy meeting Tuesday night.

The three-year program calls for the construction of two new elementary schools and additional classrooms at four others.

In order to finance the needed construction, the school district will seek a tax increase, according to Dr. Capes Riley, Christina's director of special projects and planning.

Before a referendum can go to the voters, however, the district must receive state approval of its projects. The state finances 60 percent of school construction costs. The referendum is necessary to pay the rest of the building expenses.

Riley expects the tax increase proposal to go to voters in the spring.

"We were hoping (for the referendum) this fall, but we contacted the election department. With the national election coming up, I don't think there will be any polling machines available," said Riley. "So, it looks like we will probably be going to a referendum in the spring."

The capital improvement program calls for construction of an $8.6 million elementary school in a new housing development in the area of Walther Road and Old Baltimore Pike. Construction of the school, which would include kindergarten through third grade, could begin in 1991.

Riley said school officials are also hoping to secure land north of Newark for construction another primary school.

"We've already sent a letter asking that they (county officials) set aside land for a future (school) site."

Construction of the school north of Newark could begin as early as 1992. It is expected to cost around $9 million.

The program proposes additions to several schools, which house grades four through six. In the year 1990, additions are planned for the Casimir Pulaski Elementary School in Wilmington, the Charles R. Drew School in Wilmington and the R. Elisabeth Maclary Elementary School in Newark's Chapel Hill development.

A $2.9 million addition is planned for the Frederick Douglass Stubbs School near Wilmington in 1991.

During the Tuesday meeting, Riley distributed a map which indicated the growth in the Christina district.

Approximately 13,000 homes are now or soon will be under construction.

With more than 13,000 new homes in the works, Christina Superintendent Michael W. Walls sees little alternative to new school construction and resulting tax increase.

Superintendent Dr. Michael Walls said the rapid development made the capital improvements program imperative.

"With over 13,000 potential homes, we obviously have a real serious need here," said Walls.

In other action Monday night:

• Board members finalized the district's student code of conduct. The document has been reviewed by the board at several meetings, however, it took several hours of discussion Tuesday night before the document was finished. The code of conduct outlines the district policy in disciplinary actions.

• Board members gave the go-ahead to citizens wanting to raise money for the purchase of lights for the Glasgow High School football field. Some concern was expressed by school board president Dr. James Kent that mistakes had been made with the lights for the Newark High School football field. Those persons heading up the fundraising for Glasgow told the board that the mistakes at Newark were being taken into consideration.

Kent said the lights at the Newark football field were not high enough to provide proper lighting.

'At-risk' students focus of seminar

Nationally known authorities and educational leaders from Delaware, Maryland, New York, North Carolina and Pennsylvania will discuss the "at risk" students at the University of Delaware's seventh annual Educational Leadership Institute next month.

Topics to be covered will include school leadership issues and the concept of invitational schooling, which suggests that schools should be the most inviting places in town.

The conference, entitled "The Disconnected Student: Vision, Knowledge, Action," is scheduled Tuesday through Thursday, Aug. 9-11, in Pencader Hall on the University's north campus in Newark.

Keynote presentations by well-known educators in the field of invitational learning, as well as discussion periods and workshops, will focus on the 80 percent of today's students that are disenfranchised with traditional school policies and classroom practices.

Three key questions will be addressed: What is the vision we have to create to change our schools? What do we know about changing schools? What is being done to create more inviting schools?

Among those scheduled to participate in the institute are Dr. William Purkey, co-founder of the International Alliance for Invitational Education; Dr. Richard Gibboney, associate professor of education at the University of Pennsylvania; Dr. Robert Slavin, director of the Elementary School Program Center for Research on Elementary and Middle Schools at Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Dorothy Lipski, senior researcher at the City University of New York; and Larry Rowe, assistant superintendent for instruction, Johnson City, New York Central School District.

Other participants will include Sid Collison from the Delaware Department of Public Instruction; Dr. Joseph Johnson and Dr. Floyd McDowell of the Red Clay School District; Arthur Boswell, director of the Coalition to Save Our Children; Dr. William Mitchell of the POPS Foundation; and Robert Williams, director of external affairs at the DuPont Co.

Those attending the institute will be awarded a certificate of participation from the University, and in-service credit is available through the Delaware Department of Public Instruction and through Maryland and New Jersey local school districts.

Fee for the institute is $200 for all three days or $75 for a single day. The fee includes refreshments and lunch. Registration deadline is July 29.

For additional information or a brochure on the institute, write to: College of Education, 103E Willard Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19716, or telephone 451-1165.

SCHOOL CALENDAR

• Hodgson Vocational-Technical High School, Glasgow, will offer a four-day summer camp for students grades 7-9 interested in working with plants and learning about careers in horticulture. The camp will be held 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 2-5. It will include field trips to wholesale and retail florists, a plant research stations and a production nursery. On the final day, there will be a trip to Great Adventure where campers will study horticulture maintenance at a theme park. Transportation will be provided on an activity bus schedule. For details, call Hodgson at 834-0990.

• The Christina School District summer library program is in operation through Aug. 4. School libraries will be open 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesdays at Brookside Elementary, Wednesdays at Drew School in Wilmington and Thursdays at McVey Elementary. The libraries are open free of charge to all students who live in the Christina School District, regardless of where they attend school during the year. Purpose of the program is to enable young people to continue their reading interests throughout the summer; thousands of books which would be otherwise locked away are made available. For details about the program, call Corina M. Montgomery at 454-2245.

• Holy Spirit School in New Castle is accepting applications for students in preschool through grade eight. Registration fee is $20. For details, call the school at 658-5345.

Williams' papers go to University

The personal and professional papers of Delaware's late U.S. Sen. John J. Williams of Millsboro have been donated to the University of Delaware, University President Russel C. Jones has announced.

"The papers will serve as an important resource for faculty and students at the University, as well as the wider research community for investigations into American history, politics and government," Jones said.

Known as "the conscience of the Senate," Williams was considered an uncompromising foe of what he regarded as widespread waste and corruption in the federal government. In 1975, the University awarded Williams an honorary doctor of laws degree. He died Jan. 11, 1988.

The papers were donated to the University by Williams' wife, Elsie, and daughter, Blanche W. Baker, in keeping with his wishes.

"We wanted to carry out my father's long-held belief that the papers belonged to the people, since the people elected him to office," Mrs. Baker said. "It is the citizens of Delaware who gave him the opportunity to accomplish his work in the Senate."

Currently housed in 45 filing cabinets, numerous cartons and framed documents and memorabilia, the collection contains extensive materials gathered by Williams during his 24-year career in the U.S. Senate, from his first term in 1947.

After the collection is transferred to the Morris Library this summer, it will be organized and arranged, before being made available in Special Collections for use by scholars, according to Susan Brynteson, director of libraries at the University.

"Cataloging such a large collection is a complex task, which we anticipate will take at least two years," Brynteson said. "When this exciting project is completed, scholarly access will be provided by records available locally on our computerized catalog, DELCAT, and nationally through OCLC, a national online computer network to which thousands of libraries throughout the nation are connected. It will be a remarkable source for scholars who are studying this important period in history of the nation."

Williams was born May 17, 1904 on a farm near Franford. After graduating from Frankford High School, he founded the Millsboro Feed Co., which he and his brothers built into one of the state's most successful feed and grain businesses. He remained active in this business until the early 1960's, when he went into real estate.

In 1946, Sen. Williams ran as the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, defeating the Democratic incumbent, Sen. James M. Tunnell. His tenure as a United States Senator is the longest in Delaware's history.

Williams is buried in Millsboro.

Vandals should pay

Since last week, the newspaper has received an interesting suggestion as to what punishment should be meted out if local police catch the vandals who smashed windows at Newark Free Library.

First, the reader proposed, the vandals should be made to stand in front of the library with placards hung around their necks reading, "I am one of the people responsible for damaging this library."

They should then be made to do community work to raise money for reparations, the reader said.

A $200 reward is being offered by library supporters for information on the vandals.

In addition, the Friends of the Newark Free Library and library staff members are urging Newark City Council to consider additional street lighting at the site.

Post cited in contest

Results of Best of Chesapeake, a thrice-yearly news contest sponsored by Chesapeake Publishing Corp., have been posted, and the NewArk Post staff fared quite well.

Cathy Thomas was awarded first place in the enterprise/analysis reporting category for her in-depth series entitled "Our Children in Poverty."

"Excellent job of enterprise reporting," noted the contest judges. "No stone was left unturned."

The Post staff as a whole won first place in the special section category for its "Just Kids" section.

"Just Kids" featured artwork, stories and a cover design by Newark area children.

The judges remarked, "What a great way to get children reading the newspaper — having them design the art for the section, write the ads, and be interviewed in stories."

Also, Neil Thomas was awarded second place in the feature category for a story on a Newark diver who volunteers his time at the National Aquarium in Baltimore.

Chesapeake Publishing owns the NewArk Post and two dozen other weekly, twice-weekly and daily newspapers along the Chesapeake Bay and into Virginia.

Delaware, Maryland plan cooperation

by Neil Thomas

Delaware and Maryland have much in common.

Geographically, the states rest side-by-side, separated only by a north-south line surveyed by the famous team of Mason and Dixon.

Both are border states, with touches of northern efficiency and southern hospitality.

And both states are bound closely to the sea, with beautiful waters and beautiful beaches.

Locally, we share major transportation links, both rail and highway, which enable workers and shoppers to travel back and forth with ease.

Historically, the one-time colonies were part of the original 13 which formed the United States. And during the Civil War, both were torn by conflicting loyalties to North and South.

Because of these ties, both geographic and historic, it was with much interest that I read a press statement from Maryland Gov. Donald Schaefer regarding a meeting between his staff and that of Delaware Gov. Michael N. Castle.

The statement concerned an innovative January session in which the two governors brought their entire cabinets to Annapolis for a unique meeting of the minds.

It was a session Schaefer said was "historic...by many standards," one being that it may have been the largest meeting ever of governors and officials of two neighboring states.

"By the end of the day," said Schaefer, "we had developed a blueprint for cooperation, a number of strategies to allow good neighbors to work together for mutual benefit."

Because Newark borders Maryland directly, I thought readers might be interested in some of those strategies. They are as follows:

• Drugs — Illegal drug use is described as the region's top problem, and Schaefer and Castle are "committed to a regional, even a national, approach." The governors agreed to "strengthen our common attack on trafficking along the I-95 corridor and at beach resorts," sharing information and, where feasible, personnel.

• Transportation — The governors agreed to coordinate traffic surveys and plans, environmental analyses and options for roadway improvements, particularly for highways leading to the beaches.

• Economic development — A need for increased cooperation, rather than cutthroat competition, was identified. Said Schaefer, "there is certainly room for competition, but there is also a place for cooperation. We will work together on regional approaches to national and international marketing and promotion, on tourism efforts, on retaining and attracting new businesses (and) on job training and retraining." Maryland's governor said he is excited about the possibilities of partnership. So should we all.

Child care is key issue

by Rep. Tom Carper

The issue of child care is quickly moving to the top of Congress' legislative agenda, and for good reasons. Nearly 50 percent of all mothers with infants under one year of age are now in the workforce — a 52 percent increase since 1976. Sixty percent of mothers with children age 3-5 are currently employed outside the home — up 45 percent over the last ten years.

Unfortunately, child care centers, family day care homes and other child care options have not kept pace with demand. Because the supply of quality child care is low, prices are high and out of reach for many families, especially for single mothers.

Nationally, only three thousand of six million employers offer any child care assistance to their employees. According to a 1987 Bureau of Labor Statistics study, child care remains the least frequently offered employee benefit, received by only one percent of the labor force.

To address the growing child care shortage, we need to encourage development of the child care industry and entice businesses to provide more child care benefits. At the same time, we must ensure the safest quality care for our nation's children.

Towards that goal, I have cosponsored two comprehensive child care measures which have been introduced into Congress. The Act for Better Child Care Services, sponsored by Sen. Christopher Dodd and Rep. Dale Kildee, focuses primarily on affordable child care for low and moderate income families. Federal block grants would be used to provide an incentive for states to strengthen their child care systems. The bill would also set federal standards for child care centers to protect the health and safety of our children.

The Child Care Services Improvement Act, sponsored by Sen. Orrin Hatch and Rep. Nancy Johnson, uses a more modest block grant approach, supplemented by tax credits for employers that establish on-site centers. It also provides tax incentives for child care providers and removes some liability impediments. Unlike the ABC bill, which targets lower income workers, this proposal has no income test.

I think both bills have merit, though they take different approaches in addressing the many problems associated with the lack of affordable child care in our country. It is my hope that a compromise can be worked out that will include the best parts of both bills — hopefully before the end of the 100th Congress.

Vandalism

Actions appalling

To the Editor:

The appalling vandalism inflicted on the Newark Free Library, as reported recently, has resulted in a strong supportive movement by community residents.

Members of the Friends of the Newark Free Library and library staff members are urging everyone to request the Newark City Council to provide additional street lighting at the site.

Many people, including children, have visited the library and contributed cash to help pay for the necessary repairs and, incidentally, to offer a $200 reward for reporting the guilty ones.

The important thing here is that the community considers itself the library's family, and looks forward to the day when youngsters of limited intelligence, such as the probable vandals, will discover the real values in life when they have learned to use the library.

Delaware 'Cap festival opens this week

by David Woolman

The Delaware Handicap Festival, celebrating Delaware's top thoroughbred horse race and benefitting the Delaware Multiple Sclerosis Society, will run July 15-23.

A series of sporting and social events are planned to lead up to the big race, a one mile and a quarter handicap for fillies and mares to be run July 23 at Delaware Park.

The series begins with a racquetball tournament to be held July 15-17 at the Pike Creek Court Club northeast of Newark. The tournament has attracted some of the top amateur players from the East Coast. Cash prizes will be awarded in the men's and women's pro-am divisions. To sign up, call 239-6688.

The Newark Bicycle Classic, organized and run by First State Velo Sport, will be held Saturday, July 16. Races will be held for different divisions of riders, including a professional race. Cyclists can register up to 15 minutes prior to each race in front of the University of Delaware Student Center, Academy Street, Newark. The first race starts at 10:30 a.m. For more information, call 239-4948.

The Wilmington Mile will be held Wednesday, July 20. The running races start at 7 p.m. at Josephine Gardens. Trophies will be awarded to the winners in different age and sex categories. For more information, call 656-5816.

All persons with disabilities will have free admittance for a day of racing and complementary refreshments at Delaware Park on Wednesday, July 20.

The MS Champagne Carriage Ball and Casino Night will take place Friday, July 22 at Delaware Park. It should prove to be a romantic evening, with horse drawn carriage rides, champagne, hors' d'oeuvre, dancing to the Paul Krueger Orchestra, casino tables and games of chance. Call 571-9800 or 734-5471 for information.

The Delaware Handicap itself will be run Saturday, July 23, at the Stanton track, the 51st running of the Grade I stake. The race will be televised on ESPN.

In addition to the big race, the Second International Amateur Jockey race will be run that Saturday. Amateur jockeys representing 20 European countries, Canada and the U.S. will be on hand, and some will participate in the race.

Participants in the sporting events will receive a commemorative t-shirt and have the opportunity to win prizes. For more information on any of these events, call the MS office at 571-9800 or 734-5471.

Newark Bicycle Classic to roll on Saturday

With the Tour de France under way in Europe, Newark will hold its own special bicycle race Saturday, July 16.

No less than 10 races will be held downtown during the annual Newark Bicycle Classic, which this year is part of the seminal First State Games.

"The reason we're running both on the same day is that it's a lot of trouble to set up the course," says Tom Compton, president of First State Velo Sport and director of the bicycling events for the First State Games. "To do it two consecutive weeks would be too much."

As a result, there will be races all day long, beginning at 8 a.m., with the final race starting at 6:30. The races will be held on a 1.4 mile four turn criterion course, using Academy Street, Delaware Avenue, Park Place and South College Avenue. The start and finish lines will be in front of the Perkins Student Center, University of Delaware.

There will be three races as part of the First State Games competition, a junior race, for ages 12-17, an open race for women and an open race for men. There will be seven Newark Bicycle Classic races.

THE FLYING FINN

by David Woolman

"The fear has to disappear when you are heading down the slope," said gold medal ski jumper Matti Nykanen at the opening ceremonies of FinnFest '88 in Newark. "A big part of what people call fear is really part of the special excitement of competition and not fear."

They sound like the words of a competitor, but it would be hard to say that Nykanen, 24, really competes in his field. The "Flying Finn," winner of three gold medals at the Calgary Olympics, owner of six world titles and holder of any number of world records, presently has few people who can get close enough to him to actually be called competitors.

His dominance is so great that the rules of the sport have been changed to make it more competitive. That is, Nykanen has been handicapped. But this does not seem to bother him.

"Sure, there are some things in the changes which might give some advantage to my competitors," said Nykanen through Seppo Harkonen, press counselor for the Embassy of Finland, who translated for Matti. "But if I am in good condition, and I can make a good take off and fly well, no one can fly as long as I can."

That he flies so far has led some to theorize that he has a special technique for taking off faster than anyone else.

"I don't necessarily buy that conception," he said. "When the speed of the jumpers are measured, my speed is about 1/2 a kilometer per hour slower than the other competitors. But it is absolutely true that the right aerodynamic position is part of the final success of the jump...."

"The take off is the most crucial point, but you can't make a good long jump without knowing how to fly well and how to land well. All the various components of the jump must be mastered in order to make long jumps."

Winning three golds at the Olympics was a surprise to Nykanen, but not a big one.

"As far as my physical condition was concerned, I was very confident that I had a very good chance to gain three gold medals, but ski jumping is such a touchy sport, I was a bit surprised that I could concentrate well enough to win three gold medals there. It was a minor surprise."

The next world championships, to be held in Finland in February, will have Nykanen back into training once he returns from Delaware. Retirement is still far out of the picture.

"I intend to continue until the next Olympics, and hope that I will still be number one."

Curt Bedford throws three-hitter as Newark Lumber wins title

by David Woolman

Curtis Paper defeated Newark Lumber three times during the Newark Babe Ruth League Central Division's regular season, which should have given the team a great deal of confidence heading into last week's championship game.

It didn't. Newark Lumber made its fourth try a charm and won the title 5-2.

"It's tough to win four times," said Curtis Paper manager Gary Kraybill before the game, which pitted winners of the first (Newark Lumber) and second (Curtis Paper) halves of the season in the division for 14-15 year olds.

"It gave me less confidence," said Curtis Paper's Jason Brown, who took the loss as the starting pitcher. "When you beat a team three times, it's tough to get that fourth win. From the beginning, I knew they were one of the best teams in the league."

Newark Lumber won behind the fine pitching of Curt Bedford, who threw a three hitter and struck out 10 without giving up an earned run.

Bedford helped himself to a one-run lead in the first inning, grounding out to knock in his brother Chuck, who reached on an error.

Curtis Paper came back in the bottom of the frame, which began with Brown hitting a leadoff ground-rule double. Danny Delcollo reached base on a fielder's choice, and both scored when Jeff Chaplow reached base on an error.

Tim Fosdick and Chuck Bedford reached base on walks to start off the third inning for Newark Lumber. Curt Bedford singled Fosdick home, and Chuck Bedford scored on Kevin McCullough's fielder's choice to give the Lumbermen a 3-2 lead.

Newark Lumber cushioned its lead in the fifth with a two-out rally. Rich Warrington hit a solo homerun, which was followed by two more hits, a single by McCullough and an RBI double by Rob Rash.

Keith Landis pitched the last two innings for Curtis Paper without giving up a hit.

Bedford gave Curtis Paper little chance, serving up his self-taught knuckleball for strikes periodically throughout the evening to keep the opposition off balance.

"I was overthrowing the fastball, and I knew I was overthrowing so I went with my knuckleball and it broke over good," said Curt, who made the adjustment soon after giving up the double to Brown. "That's when I knew I couldn't throw the fastball."

"I was confident of my ability to pitch, but I was a little shaky about taking him off shortstop," said Ray Bedford, manager of Newark Lumber and father of Chuck and Curt. "Defensively, it puts us down one notch."

The manager was bothered facing a team his had failed to beat in the regular season, but not by his team's second place finish in the second half of the season following its first half championship.

"The second half, we tried to play more ballplayers and tried to get them ready for this game right here. In doing so we weren't 100 percent all of the time."

Bedford's two sons, as well as Rich Warrington, will represent Newark Lumber on the Newark Babe Ruth League's 14-15 year-old state tournament all-star team. Curtis Paper's Jason Brown and Keith Landis will also have that honor.

The tournament will be hosted by Newark Babe Ruth League July 23-31 at Winner Field.

SPORTS EXTRA

BMX freestyle rider Sean Rogers, 4.

The Wooden Wheels bike and skateboard shop will host a freestyle bicycle trick riding exhibition in the parking lot of its store at 274 E. Main St. The show is free to the public, and will take place Saturday, July 16 at 5 p.m.

The Screamin' Summer '88 tour team, from Southern California will be the featured performers in the show, which will also include a number of local performers. Among this will be four-year-old Sean Rogers of Elkton, Md.

Other local riders will be Jason and Bryan Grygo of New Castle, Joe Ziomek of Bear, Bob Myers of Coatesville, Pa., Nick Duli of Coatesville, Jason Roberts of Parkersburg, Pa., Pete Jackson of Cochranville, Pa., and Bob Walker of Downingtown, Pa.

Newark Lumber's Curt Bedford hurls pitch homeward.

Newark stars fall

New Castle scored 11 runs in the first inning off Newark's Blue all-star team, winning the first round meeting in the Newark Babe Ruth Invitational 17-4 at Marshall Field.

"We didn't play up to our potential," said Newark Blue manager Jim Wilson, "but things like this happen."

One of the strange characteristics of tournament play is that eventually a team reaches a level at which they will get blown out by an opponent. It's sort of the Peter Principle applicable to baseball.

In that sense, along with many others, the tournament, designed for players not chosen for the state tournament team, was a learning experience for the players.

"By playing against better opposition like today, they will learn from experience as far as losing is concerned," said Wilson. "They learn by their mistakes."

"We just didn't play," said first baseman Stewart Thomas. "We came out here and saw how big they were... I think we'll learn from this to never give up."

The Blue scored three of their four runs in the fourth inning. Perry Sorrels and Joe Bradley reached on errors, Thomas reached on a fielder's choice, and Eric Leininger singled in Sorrels and Bradley. Thomas scored on a ground out by Damian Siebold.

John Brown of the Newark Blue 13-year-old all-stars asks whether or not he is safe after sliding into second base.

In the fifth inning, John Brown manufactured a run on his own, reaching on an error, and stealing second, third, and home.

"I like to do that a lot; I had the most stolen bases on my team," said Brown, who divulged one of his secrets to better baserunning: "When the front heel (of the pitcher) moves towards home plate, you just jump."

"We depend on invitational tournaments to recognize kids who have talent and who didn't make the (state tournament) all-star team," said Vic Maggioni, manager of the 13-year-old all stars. "It's very difficult to pick an all-star team. Half the kids might be easy, but the other half is subjective."

"In fact, most good all-star coaches will pick the player with the kind of qualities they like in a player. If they like power, they pick power; if they like speed, they pick speed, whatever. He has a definite impact, and that's the way it should be, because that's the way he coaches."

"The thing that hurts these teams (invitational teams) is that they don't have stoppers. They have good young pitchers, but they're a year away from being good at 60'6". They've been competitive in the league, but they haven't had to face a lineup like this. That's what kills them."

"The advantage (to the invitational tournaments) is that it gives them an idea of all-star competition. It's an educational experience. It helps them develop as ballplayers."

New Castle won the tournament, defeating Newark Gold twice, 15-5 and 23-4. The first time, Mike Cross and Kevin Mason combined to pitch a four hitter, and the second time Kevin Mason went the distance.

13-year-old all-stars selected

The 1988 Babe Ruth state championships for 13-year-olds will be held July 15-21 at Winner Field on Ogletown Road, home of the Newark Babe Ruth League.

Teams from Claymont, Elsmere, Millcreek, New Castle and Newark will participate in the double elimination tournament.

The Newark team will play there in the first game, against Claymont, Friday, July 15 at 6 p.m. If they win that game, they will play Millcreek on Saturday, July 16, at 3 p.m. If they lose, they will play a losers bracket game Sunday, July 17 at 1 p.m.

The championship game will be played Wednesday July 20 at 6 p.m., but if no team is undefeated through that game, the championship game will be played Thursday, July 21 at 6 p.m.

The Newark Babe Ruth 13-year-old state all-stars are: Chuck Beatie, Jamie Brentlinger, Ryan Brown, Chris Carlini, Keith Duzan, Matt Handling, Theron Hutton, Jason Lloyd, Drew Rash, Kip Scannell, Ethan Scott, Butch Singleton, Danny Stout, Shawn Swartout, Mark Zych. The manager is Vic Maggioni.

NBRL names 14-15 year old stars

The 1988 Babe Ruth state championship for 14-15 year old players will be held July 23-29 at Winner Field on Ogletown Road, home of the Newark Babe Ruth League.

Teams from Claymont, Elsmere, Millcreek, New Castle and Newark will participate in the double elimination tournament.

Newark will play its first game on Sunday, July 24 at 1 p.m. against the winner of the Elsmere-New Castle game. If they win that game, they will play on Monday, July 25 at 6 p.m. If they lose that game, they will play Tuesday, July 26 at 6 p.m.

The championship game will be played Thursday, July 28 at 6 p.m., unless no team is undefeated through that game, in which case the championship game will be played Friday, July 29 at 6 p.m.

The Newark Babe Ruth 14-15 year old state all-stars are: Tony Amato, Chuck Bedford, Curt Bedford, Jason Brown, Robert Callahan, Anthony Carlini, Rick Cherwaty, Mike Gerhart, Ronald Jacobs, Keith Landis, Kevin Lazarski, Danny Reynolds, Rich Swavely, Max Walton, Richie Warrington. The manager is Belmont Perry.

Caravel Academy plans to light ball field

Caravel Academy will be the latest Newark-area school to put lights in its football stadium.

Newark High School installed lights for the 1987 season, and Glasgow High School is in the process of raising funds to light its field.

By installing lights, Caravel will be able to schedule all but one of its home football games on Friday or Saturday evenings.

The idea has been kicked around for a few years at the school, says Caravel's Bob Bussiere, and the final decision to go ahead with the construction was made this spring.

"I feel very positive about it," says Bussiere. "We're going to be able to attract nice crowds now."

Bussiere stressed the importance of holding night games in order to facilitate the participation of the small enrollment and community Caravel serves. It will also enable alumni to participate more fully in the school's activities.

In addition, a full size set of stands has been added to the visitors side of the field. A fence has been constructed around the stadium as well.

Bussiere hopes to hold other school sports events, including soccer and field hockey contests, on the field at night.

He also hopes Caravel will be invited to host some state tournament soccer games under the lights.

Newark Blue hopes to reach tourney finals

Newark Blue batter Keith Renshaw keeps his eye on a very low pitch.

Playing out of the loser's bracket is never very easy, Newark's Blue all-stars are making the best of it in the Newark Babe Ruth Invitational Tournament for 14-15 year old players.

After losing to Holy Angels 3-1 in the first round, Newark Blue defeated Midway 9-6 at Winner Field to advance to the next round of the double elimination tournament.

"If you have enough pitchers, it's easy," said Newark Blue manager Bill Ellifritz about playing in the outside bracket. "You have to play more games to win it. You have to go with your best (in order to stave off elimination), and then you have to go with what you got."

Ellifritz started out with one of his best, Rob Rash, a member of the Newark Babe Ruth Central Division-winning Newark Lumber team. Rash went five innings, giving up one hit and one unearned run before running out of eligibility (he had pitched two innings against Holy Angels in the morning game).

Kevin Delcollo staked Rash to a one run lead in the first, reaching on an error, stealing two bases and scoring on a passed ball. Midway tied the game in the second, when Layola walked, moved to second on a fielders choice, and scored on two passed balls.

Newark scored another in the second, as Andy Lippstone singled, moved two bases on a fielders choice and a ground out and scored on a Mike Lennon single. The Blues scored two more in the third, as Steve Murphy and Pat Young both singled and rounded the bases on passed balls to make the score 4-1.

In the fourth, Jeff Chaplow doubled, Keith Renshaw singled and Lennon walked to load the bases. Murphy hit a sacrifice fly to bring Chaplow home, Young hit a ground rule double to cash in Renshaw, and Delcollo singled Lennon in.

In the fifth, Lippstone and Chaplow singled, and moved a base on a ground out. Lippstone scored on a fielder's choice ground ball by Lennon, and Murphy singled in Chaplow to make the score 9-1.

Midway moved back into the game in the sixth, scoring five runs on the benefit of three consecutive errors. Kevin McCullough was brought into the game with one out in the inning, and shut down Midway the rest of the way for the save.

"I wasn't really worried," said McCullough about coming in to stop the Midway rally. "They weren't hitting the ball very well."

With Rash and McCullough out of innings for two days, the Blues were looking for a little luck to get them to the final round of the tournament.

YOUR BEST FRIEND CAN MAKE YOU SICK.

The loneliness of life when your best friend is alcohol—is pretty bleak. Union Hospital's Chemical Dependence Program—Break-Free—is a seven-day detoxification program designed to meet the needs of the individual patient who is withdrawing from alcohol and other chemical substances. Union Hospital's Break-Free program provides short-term acute care followed by a choice of various rehabilitation programs in the area. Open 24 hours a day.

seven days a week, the Chemical Dependence unit is separate from other hospital treatment areas to ensure privacy and promote an atmosphere of cohesiveness and mutual support among patients and staff. BREAK FREE today at Union Hospital. There are friends here. Break-Free offers the caring, professional help so crucial in assisting the chemically dependent person in returning to a productive, substance-free way of life.

- 1. Help your reader visualize the item you have for sale. To sell an item quickly, the ad must give complete information about the item for sale. You should include the following essential details: age, condition, brand name & price.
- 2. Let your reader know when & where to contact you. Don't make it difficult for potential buyers to contact you. Always include a phone number & hours you can be reached. For example, call 000-0000 after 5 p.m.
- 3. Avoid abbreviations. Make your ad easy to read & understand. Most readers will not take the time to try to decipher an ad. Make it simple - spell it out!
- 4. Choose a consistent ad schedule. To ensure results, run your ad several times. If you run the ad only once, you risk losing a potential buyer. If you run the ad several times, you will draw the maximum response. Remember you can always cancel your ad if you find a buyer.

U.S. must press its advantages, S.B. Woo says

by Cathy Thomas

Some commonly-held beliefs about this nation's trade deficit were dispelled last week by Delaware Lt. Governor S.B. Woo during a speech in Newark.

As a keynote speaker at the Taft Seminar for Teachers at the University of Delaware campus, Woo addressed the nation's trade concerns.

Woo said officials in Washington, D.C. blame unfair trade barriers, the value of the dollar, high American wages and the budget deficit for the trade imbalance. Instead, he said the key to solving our trade problems is technology.

"I believe the reason we now have trade deficits is that the rest of the world has caught up with the U.S. in terms of manufacturing technology," said Woo.

Woo has travelled on many trade missions to the Far East. It was during one of those trips that a billionaire in Hong Kong asked him if the Americans knew what they were doing.

"We are your competitors," said the billionaire. "Yet your manufacturers sell us advanced technology lock, stock and barrel. Of course, we want it. But when the rest of the world catches up with America in technology, how will you compete?"

It was that conversation that prompted Woo to study this country's trade deficit, which stood at $160 billion last year, 160 times larger than Delaware's annual state revenue.

Woo said it is imperative that this country regain its technological supremacy.

"Consider the alternative. If we do not maintain a significant lead in technology, what else can we rely on to compete? Can we rely on winning the battle of lower wages or longer hours or more diligence or more clever design?" said Woo. "We can make America 'King of Technology' again, if we put our minds to it."

Woo offered three recommendations to regain technological supremacy and lower this nation's trade deficit:

- Share science freely, but do not share manufacturing technology prematurely.

- "Japanese businessmen never sell their current generation technology until the next generation technology is ready," said Woo. "Some of our short-sighted business executives have sold their technology prematurely and the proverbial chickens have come to roost at their expense. We must protect our technology."

- Stimulate more scientists and engineers to use science to create new products and new manufacturing processes.

"We ought to offer university professors more incentive to apply their cutting-edge knowledge to money-making production lines," said Woo.

"We must encourage more scientists and engineers to enter policy-making positions," said Woo. "In the United States, our managers usually report to CEO's or directors whose backgrounds are in finance and whose orientations are mainly on the next quarter's earnings."

BUSINESS CALENDAR

• Delaware Small Business Development Center will hold a workshop on the steps necessary to start a small business Thursday, July 28 in Room 104 of Purnell Hall on the University of Delaware campus. The workshop will cover the different forms of business, marketing techniques, business plans, ideas on funding sources, paperwork and assistance for veterans. It will meet 6:30-9:30 p.m., and cost is $5. Call 451-2747.

HOME FRONT

Feather dippers come in droves

Oh no, not another bird bath column! Sorry about that, but two weeks ago I ran out of column before I ran out of thoughts on the bird bath I was given as a combination birthday and Mother's Day present. If memory holds true, I had already discussed the drinking, bathing and social habits of robins, jays, cardinals, large brown birds, brownish gray birds and shiny black birds.

In the very beginning, I felt like a hostess who gave a party that nobody came to; however, my ornithological friends reassured me that it always takes three or four days for word to get out about a new bird bath in the area. They were right. Once the news got around that there was a brand new terra cotta colored bird bath tastefully highlighted with delicate touches of forest green and cream, elegantly situated in shady garden featuring orange impatiens, daylilies, ferns, and funkia, and protected from noisy and nosy crowds by an almost-new, five-foot-tall cedar fence, the place has been an absolute madhouse.

I had thought about applying to the FAA for permission to build a control tower and hire an air traffic controller because of the increasing airborne activities around my bird bath. After all, the bird bath is in my yard, so I do feel a certain responsibility for the health and welfare of those using it.

My husband, however, believes that the problem is not overcrowded skies but inadequate and haphazard scheduling. He thinks we should hire a concierge to take reservations, hand out clean towels, plan day trips to nearby sights of avian interest, organize volleyball tournaments, keep the bird bath full, limit hours of usage, act as a noise control officer, and penalize to the full extent of the law any bird who drinks out of the bird bath. My husband—a fine man, lover of trees and a literal interpreter of words—says what we have is a bird bath, not a bird fountain.

Lest you think my husband is anti-bird, I hasten to add that he is a compassionate man and a strong proponent of installing a drinking fountain dedicated specifically to the birds. He maintains that in terms of color and architecture it should harmonize with the bird bath, but it's function as a fountain must be unmistakable—perhaps featuring a larger-than-life representation of Tweety or Woodstock gargling in the center. I personally favor discreet signs, probably in italic print.

If we do get the fountain, we might move the bird bath to the other side of the holly bush. A limited but scientifically sound poll of potential users indicates that bathing birds prefer a degree of privacy.

Lydia tells me that I might want to reconsider whether or not I really want to have that bird fountain. She says that once we install a fountain the birds will expect us to expand our high tea service to include weekends and probably add a string quartet as well. Moreover, we aren't made of money still have family members to send to college. As ever-practical Lydia pointed out, a fountain implies running water which means plumbers and we know how much they cost. Additionally, I'm not sure that it's fair for the birds to have running water to their fountain before my refrigerator gets an automatic ice maker.

Besides, the birds have already cost a pretty penny. I had to invest several hard earned dollars in a field guide to birds, so that I would know what kinds of birds were using my bird bath. Unfortunately, it wasn't much help because the foolish birds would not let me get close enough to see such identifying characteristics as the "gold line in the second fold of the upper eyelid" or the "mottled brown spots under the leading edge of the wing."

Therefore, I was compelled to spend more money and buy a pair of binoculars. At that point, the ungrateful birds had a sudden attack of modesty and kept their backs to me while bathing.

Enough already. The birds can float a bond and finance their own silly drinking fountain.

Delaware Senior Hockey Association players (left) prepare to take a shift on the ice. The no-check league offers competitive hockey throughout the summer, but without the bumps and bruises of the full-check game. "Most of us have wives, kids and mortgages, and we have to go to work the next day," explained Jack Nixon, DSHA president. Below, referee drops puck to start play.

Summer hockey? Check it out!

by David Woolman

Summertime, the days get warmer and longer, and a bunch of men gather at the University of Delaware sports complex for an evening's recreation. Some of these guys are businessmen, some are lawyers, some accountants, policemen, corporate heads, police officers.

All are hockey players. With the growth of ice hockey as a recreational sport has come the creation of leagues whose bylaws forgo the roughness and violence associated with the sport. The Delaware Senior Hockey Association, a no-check league in its first summer of operation at the University of Delaware Ice Arena, is the latest.

"Most of us have wives, kids and mortgages, and we have to go to work the next day," says Jack Nixon, a player in the league, as well as its president. "We're hoping that we can get a competitive league — we want to play good hockey — but we don't want to get killed. We all have to get up the next morning."

"No deliberate contact is the basic rule but in hockey there is always contact. As long as it's not deliberate, or a deliberate attempt to injure, that's fine."

"If a guy is just standing there and another guy slams into him, that can be a two or five minute penalty," says Ed Lynch, an accountant. "We're out here to have fun. Most of us have nine to five jobs. We can't afford to get hurt."

Still, the game does not look all that much different than any other kind of hockey, except without the fights, or the bone crunching checks into the boards. The incidental contact is there.

"Hockey is a contact sport no matter what league you're in," says Jack McCartan of Newark who is unable to play due to a rather ugly sprained ankle sustained while playing. "You can get injured whether you're in the NHL or in the local rec league."

Contact sport? For professional men?

"On the surface, you wouldn't think so, but once you scratch under the surface, you find a lot of us played in college," says Nixon, who says that over half of the players have played check hockey in the past.

The league has 57 players ranging in age from 23 to 44, the eldest playing on the same line with one of his sons. They come from everywhere, northern Delaware, southern New Jersey, and even some from Philadelphia. All found out about the league, which was first organized in March, through word of mouth.

Many of the local players grew up with the top leagues, the Newark Stars, and the Delaware Amateur League. To them, the sport takes on a social connotation equivalent to that of, say, softball.

This Lancaster park is a real Dutch treat

The castle-like entrance to Lancaster's Dutch Wonderland, a full-service entertainment complex for families. The amusement park is just a 40 minute ride from Newark.

The lush green fields and rolling hills of Lancaster County, Pa. have long been a favorite destination of Delawareans in search of a near-way getaway.

And for families, particularly those with young children, one of the best-loved stops has been Dutch Wonderland, a well-kept and low-key amusement park which can thrill the kids without boring mom and dad.

Part of the fun of visiting Dutch Wonderland is the ride to Lancaster. It is easily reached via Route 896, which meanders through Delaware into Pennsylvania.

Along Pa. 896, once you reach northwestern Chester and southeastern Lancaster counties, away from bulging suburbia, you will find many small, neat farmsteads in which live members of the Amish and Mennonite religious sects.

There are the farmhouses without electrical wires running from the street poles. Often long ropes of gray, brown and black clothes will be hanging out to dry, with perhaps a front-yard sign inviting the traveler to purchase some homemade root beer.

Also along Pa. 896 is the brick-lined village of Strasburg, with its famous railroad and railroading exhibition. This is a must-see and, if you have time, a must-ride for friends of steam locomotion.

Where Pa. 896 intersects with U.S. 30, bear left. Dutch Wonderland is about two-to-three miles down the road on the right, about 40 minutes' drive from the Delaware border.

The amusement park features acres of free parking, and visitors enter the castle-like facade over a moat and through "one of the largest gift shops in the nation." There, you may need to hold the kids at bay.

Dutch Wonderland offers two admission plans, one for about $8 per person which offers a limited number of free rides after which you pay-as-you-go, and a second for about $12 per person which offers an unlimited number of free rides. If you don't like to carry that much cash, they do accept major credit cards.

Once inside, a good way to begin the day is with a tour of the park on a miniature train. There is also a park-skirting

The gift of book illustration by John Micklos Jr.

CHILDREN'S BOOK BAG

Many books for young children rely as much on the pictures as the words to tell their stories. A gifted illustrator can make even a simple tale come alive with excitement. Here are some award-winning picture books that young children should enjoy.

• "Owl Moon," Jane Yolen, illustrated by John Schoenherr, published by Philomel Books, 1987.

In simple, poetic text, the author describes how a little girl and her father go searching for an elusive owl one winter night. Not only does the story capture the anticipation of trying to find the mysterious bird, but it also shows the warm relationship between a father and daughter. Schoenherr received the prestigious Caldecott Medal for his soft watercolor illustrations, which add to the warmth and mystery of the story. Both the author and the illustrator are familiar with owling, and their knowledge of the subject shows through in this very special book.

• "Mufaro's Beautiful Daughters: An African Tale," written and illustrated by John Steptoe, published by Lothrop, Lee and Shepard, 1987.

Inspired by an African folktale, this Caldecott Honor Book tells the story of two beautiful young sisters — one good and one evil — who both yearn to wed the handsome young king. The kind one wins his love, despite the scheming of her sister. The stunning illustrations depict actual flora and fauna of the Zimbabwe Region.

• "The Third-Story Cat," written and illustrated by Leslie Baker, published by Little, Brown and Company, 1987.

This endearing tale, which won this year's International Reading Association Children's Book Award in the younger reader category, describes a cat's adventure in the park. A cat named Alice lives a quiet life in a third-story apartment until one day she crawls out the window and makes her way to a park across the street. There, she and a streetwise tiger cat play with children and get chased by a dog. The story captures Alice's love of adventure, but ends by noting that she is happy to come home, "at least for now." The story features striking watercolor illustrations.

Youngsters may also enjoy these two recent Caldecott Medal-winning books: "Jumanji," written and illustrated by Chris Van Allsburg (Houghton Mifflin, 1981); and "Saint George and the Dragon," retold by Margaret Hodges and illustrated by Trina Schart Hyman (Little, Brown and Company, 1984).

Tip of the Month: By exposing children to quality picture books such as these, parents can help children develop an appreciation for illustrations as well as text.

HOCKEY

"Most of us have played with or against each other in other leagues," says Lynch. "We're all pretty much friends."

Summer hockey is more a pragmatic reaction to circumstances than an idea thought up by someone who hates softball, or has not been outside in a while. The league exists because the ice time, often scarce in the winter, exists.

"They (summer leagues) are relatively new," says Nixon. "Most of the rinks in the area used to close for the summer. The rinks have discovered that if they stay open, people are going to rent the ice."

"Hockey is hockey, no matter when or where you play it," says Charlie Pens. "Everyone forgets their job. They forget about everything when they come out here."

"This is the Stanley Cup to these guys. To me, too."

monorail, but that costs extra. Along well-marked paths are a variety of rides, some suitable for very small children and others for older children and adults.

The children's rides are to the left of the train station, and include the Old 99 train ride and log boats. Further along, visitors will find a ball bath and a merry-go-round.

Youngsters may also enjoy the gondola cruise and riverboat rides, not to mention amphitheater puppet shows, a miniature circus and a gingerbread house. There is also a live animal farm.

For older children and adults, there is a ski-lift type ride, a giant slide, a double splash flume, bumper cars, turnpike cars and the Astro Liner.

Dutch Wonderland also features a high-diving show, a game room and a shooting gallery. Food is available inside the park at reasonable prices, and rest rooms are plentiful and clean.

In addition to the amusement park, the Dutch Wonderland entertainment complex includes a wax museum, Amish farm and house, Weavertown one-room schoolhouse, camping facility and buffet restaurant.

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 1/2 tsp. CALUMET® Baking Powder
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
- 2 cups POST® FRUIT & FIBRE® Whole Wheat and Bran Cereal with Peaches, Raisins and Almonds
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 egg, slightly beaten

Combine flour, sugar, baking powder, cinnamon and salt in bowl. Cut in butter until mixture is crumbly. Add 1 1/2 cups of the cereal. Measure 1/2 cup of the mixture; set aside. Add milk and egg to remaining flour mixture; blend thoroughly. Pour into greased and floured 8-in. square pan. Mix measured crumb mixture with remaining cereal and sprinkle on batter. Bake at 350° for 35 to 40 min., or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm.

Maria Spacagna (foreground) performs the title role in the final act of Dvorak's "Rusalka" during Gian-Carlo Menotti's Spoleto USA Festival. Mignon Dunn portrays Jezibaba.

Spoletto was a feast for eyes and ears

by Phil Toman

THE ARTS

The 1988 Spoleto Festival is now history. It is played on such a grand scale that it takes a while to really assimilate and to make one's own all that one saw and heard. I was there five days and there was no possible way I could even see a quarter of what was going on. There are events to cater to every taste in just about every art form known to our world. It was an experience never to be forgotten and festival I would like to visit many times.

Tom Kerrigan, public relations director for the festival, sent me the program in advance so I was able to plan my time there to get the utmost out of it. While my concentration was on music, I did have time to take in the circus which was part of the festival. Charleston, S.C., is the city that Festival Director Gian-Carlo Menotti hand-picked. Just being in Charleston in the spring is a bit of festival in itself. Its charm is irresistible.

The absolute pinnacle of the festival was presentation by the Ensemble for Early Music under Frederick Renz. It was a presentation of the 12th century music drama from the Fleury Play Book, "Herod and the Innocents." Every part of the drama was a step back eight centuries. "Herod and the Innocents" was presented in a church with simple cloths to cover the sanctuary. The musicians played many parts and many period instruments. Every item of theater, every movement, even the correct Roman pronunciation of the Latin in which the drama was performed, it was all historically accurate in every detail, there to be savored, and savor it the audiences did at every performance.

Before I went down I thought it would be interesting to see "Herod and the Innocents," but it certainly was not the major reason I wanted to make the trip. I now tell you that it alone would have been worth the trip! A Triple Tip of The Toman Topper to Mr. Renz, the performers, the staff and all who helped make this music drama come alive.

The next most exciting performance was of Antonin Dvorak's rarely performed

"Rusalka." There were no weak links in the cast, but special mention must be made of the performances of Wassili Janulako as the Gnome, Mignon Dunn as Jezibaba and Maria Spacagna in the title role. Conductor Spiros Argris was in absolute control throughout the long evening. The staging of the opera was a most imaginative one. The set designer Christian Ratz, the lighting designer Joel Hourbeight and the directors Moshe Leiser and Patrice Caugier were a team of the first magnitude. Everything came together musically and dramatically.

Another rarely heard opera drew my attention. It was one first performed in 1755, Carl Heinrich Graun's "Montezuma." There were many political overtones in this performance and I am sure you will most quickly understand when I tell you that the libretto was by Frederick II of Prussia! We had no trouble telling the good guys from the bad guys in "Montezuma."

Alexandra Papadijikou performed the title role so tenderly that there weren't many dry eyes in the Dock Street Theater at the end of Act Three. Again, there were no weak links in the cast.

Risque reunion at Stone Balloon

by David Woolman

Risque, one of the most popular local bands in the early 1980s, will be doing a reunion show Friday, July 15 at the Stone Balloon, Main Street.

The rock band, which had quite a local following at one time, opened for Huey Lewis and the News at the Talley Ho, for Robin Trower at the Stone Balloon, and for the Hooters at the Outdoor Cabaret.

"I'm in it for the money," jokes Bobby Dean, an original Risque member who will perform in the reunion show. "Seriously, it's all in good fun. It's a one shot deal."

"I feel fine about it," says Stevie Larocca. "It's an opportunity to see Kitty again."

The group started out as AKA in 1981, and changed its name to Risque when the lineup of Kitty Mac on lead vocals, Robby Meyers on drums, Larocca on guitar and Dean on bass settled in. The band played the Balloon and the Talley Ho as well as a number of other local venues, and broke up in 1985 when Kitty left to go to California.

The Stone Balloon, which has held reunions for other local bands such as Jack of Diamonds and Sin City in the past, organized the reunion and got Kitty to come back from California for the show. Meyers, also in California, will be unable to make the show due to contractual obligations.

Peter Kruickshank, who plays with Larocca and Dean in the band The Dream, will fill in at drums for the performance.

"Basically, what you're going to see is The Dream, with Kitty singing, doing some of her old songs," says Kruickshank, an experienced session musician who has played in Las Vegas and Atlantic City. "My feeling is that it sounds like it's something that might be fun to do. Basically, we're already a tight group, the three of us."

The Dream has been around for two years, with the present lineup having been together for a year now. The band has a very traditional three piece rock and roll band sound, which they use well in playing a wide variety of covers from the 1960's and 1970's. They have a clean sound, and a clean look, but their straightforwardness could be a handicap.

The band plays at the Park Restaurant, the Rebel Cork, The Buggy Tavern, Cloud 9 in Phoenixville and others.

"Risque had a lot of fans," says Kruickshank. "They might dig what we're doing now."

Fall-Out to perform at New Music Seminar

Fall-Out, the locally-based rock band, has been selected to play at this year's New Music Seminar, the ninth annual gathering of music industry people representing a cross section of the music business.

Self-described as "rock and roll with an alternative edge," Fall-Out has played venues from the Deer Park in Newark to the Bitter End in New York City, which is where they will be performing next week for the seminar.

"We're very excited," says band manager Monica Tannian of Newark. "Everybody is very psyched to do it."

"It's one place you can get a lot of different labels there at the same time. It's a one in a million chance to perform in front of that kind of clientele."

The band includes two students at the University of Delaware, and has been playing together for two years. John Mikity is the lead singer, and also plays the saxophone. Myles Stivater plays the guitar, Ron Curtin is the drummer and Stewart McKenzie plays the bass.

Word of Life marks one year of ministry

Word of Life Christian Center, located in the Barksdale Professional Center, will celebrate one year of ministry to the Newark area on Sunday, July 17.

"Our theme from the start has been 'Jesus is Lord of Newark,' and we believe this can become a reality through the proclamation and demonstration of the gospel," said David L. Carey, pastor.

The church has seen development in its children's ministry and home meetings, but Carey said the most exciting development has come in outreach to international students at the University of Delaware.

"When you reach an international student with the good news message of Jesus Christ, you have affected their country," Carey said. "These countries are sending their top 10 percent to the United States to be educated and they return to become future leaders. We have a unique opportunity here in Newark to change the world."

In October 1987, Word of Life Christian Center became an affiliate of the World Outreach Bible Schools, and it will be awarding first-year certificates of completion to students in August.

The anniversary celebration will begin at 10:15 a.m. with special praise and worship led by the Word of Life Band. Carey will present a sermon entitled "Vision: Your Key to Success."

A covered-dish dinner and special activities are scheduled for the afternoon.

Calvary Baptist will host 'music on the green'

Calvary Baptist Church will host its second annual evening of Christian music "on the green" Saturday, July 16.

A volunteer choir under the direction of Jim Shepherd will perform at 7 p.m. on the lawn of the church, located at 215 E. Delaware Ave.

The concert will be an informal affair, and listeners are invited to bring lawn chairs or blankets.

The purpose of the event is to celebrate Christ through music and provide singers of all ages an opportunity for fellowship and praise.

This year's music will be "Evening Praise," arranged by Mark Hayes and Don Marsh. Selections include "Mighty Fortress," "There's a Wideness in God's Mercy," "Tis So Sweet To Trust in Jesus," "Beneath the Cross of Jesus," and "Upon This Rock."

For details, call Jackie Katz at 658-7161.

WEDNESDAY

• Delaware 4-H is sponsoring a statewide teen conference

Aug. 3-5 on the University of Delaware campus in Newark, and the registration deadline is today. The theme of the conference, "It's Up To Me," underscores the purpose of the event — to help teenagers learn more about themselves and their peers while reflecting on decisions they make and the consequences of those decisions. The three-day event will include workshops, discussion groups, guest speakers and visits with University faculty members. Keynote speaker will be Jim McGowan, a paraplegic and former Temple University student who on Sept. 27, 1986 attempted to swim the English Channel. There is space for 100 teens. Fee is $55, which includes dormitory and meals. For details, call the Extension office at 451-8965.

• University of Delaware Ice Arena's five-week ice skating instruction session begins today. Classes will be held at 6:30 and 7 p.m. Wednesdays through Aug. 17, and are open to children age four and older and to adults. For details, call 451-2868.

• Newark Free Library, 750 Library Ave., will host a creative crafts program for children nine and older from 10:30 a.m. to noon. The program, on salt-dough mini-sculptures and ornaments, will be led by Karen Yarnall. Registration is limited. For details, call 731-7550.

• Newark Senior Center, 8:30 a.m., cholesterol screening; 9 a.m., chess; 10 a.m., art class, needlepoint; 12:30 p.m., pinocle; 12:45 p.m., bingo.

THURSDAY

• Clem Bowen, a musical storyteller, will present a program for children 6-12 at 11 a.m. in Newark Free Library, 750 Library Ave. The program is part of the library's summer program for youths. Call 731-7550 for details.

• Newark Network for Single Parents and their families will meet at 6 p.m. in Calvary Baptist Church, 215 E. Delaware Ave., for dinner and program. The evening's discussion will center on issues of concern to single parents. Dinner will be served at 6 p.m., and persons planning to attend should bring their favorite sandwich stuffing. Bread, dessert and beverage will be provided. The program will begin at 6:45. Activities will be provided for children.

• Greater Newark
