Fun, Food, Fireworks for the Fourth

Families come from miles around to enjoy food and fun at Newark's annual Liberty Day picnic on July 4 at White Clay Creek State Park.

Liberty Day celebrations in Newark blast off this Sunday, July 4, at 11 a.m. in the Carpenter Recreation Area of White Clay Creek State Park. There is no raindate for this event which ends at 4 p.m.

City of Newark sponsors promise the community picnic will have lots of family fun and entertainment with a Civil War encampment, flea market, handcrafters, pony and barrel train rides, carnival games, and great food.

Uncle Sam the Stilt Walker will be there with his balloon creations, and Sea Weed the Sea Serpent, an interactive maze, will offer extra fun for children this year.

Musical performances also start at 11 a.m. with the Community Band, followed by a Swing dance exhibition and instruction at noon. At 1 p.m., the Tommie Ryan Orchestra will perform so everyone can show off their new steps.

A second exhibition and instruction starts at 2 p.m. and the Orchestra plays again from 3 to 4 p.m.

Lois Young and her cast of large, animated puppets will entertain all ages with original songs and story telling at noon and 2 p.m.

A limited amount of parking is available at the park for $2 per vehicle. Visitors can park free at Clayton Hall off Route 896 on the University of Delaware campus and ride the free shuttle to the park. The shuttle, which runs every fifteen minutes all day, makes its last run at 4:30 p.m.

Starting at dusk, the city will present fireworks at the Bob Carpenter Center in the University of Delaware Sports Complex on Route 896/South Chapel Street.

Zambelli Internationale, which stages pyrotechnic displays around the world, is planning their usual impressive Newark show for the fourth year in a row.

"The city continues to receive positive comments from all segments of our community regarding this event," said assistant city administrator Carol Houck. "This has consistently been an organized, safe and spectacular program."

Free parking is available in all the University's athletic complex lots as well as in Chrysler Lot # 2. The fireworks will be visible from all lots.

City officials warn that no alcoholic beverages will be permitted in any viewing areas. Raindate, for the fireworks only, is Monday, July 5. There is no parking at Chrysler on the raindate.

For information about weather cancellations, call the Newark Parks and Recreation Hotline at 366-7147 on Sunday morning.

AN ERA CAME to an end in Newark on Monday night when city council approved a plan which promises to change the landscape forever at the intersection of Delaware Avenue and Chapel Street.

Newarkers long-accustomed to the sight of Consolidated Fibre, and later the Budd Company, slowly wasting away at that location will soon view a cleared site for the first time in over a hundred years.

The recent Christina School District decision to move the district's maintenance department to the old Leasure Elementary School at Routes 40 and 7 is being met with discord by some maintenance employees who feel betrayed.

"We were not invited into this plan," stated 15-year maintenance employee James Parker, during public recognition at the June school board meeting.

According to Parker, this decision was made without any consultation with the maintenance crews who have been working out of a fully-equipped facility located on Salem Church Road for the past nine years.

Parker reported that a referendum was passed nine years ago that allowed for the construction of a maintenance facility over a period of three years. However, after only a short time, the district moved some clerical offices into the building forcing the maintenance men to work out of portable offices outside the unfinished facility.

IT DOESN'T FIT!

The driver of this tractor trailer found out conclusively around 9:40 a.m. on Monday, June 28, that he could not drive a 13 foot, 6 inch truck under under the 12-foot Norfolk Southern railroad bridge on North Chapel Street. The entire roof of the truck, going to Lear Corporation in the MacIntyre Business Park on Elkton Road, was ripped off, causing the truck to buckle in the middle. Traffic was tied up until mid-afternoon.

Delaware man killed by Maryland trooper

A Maryland state trooper fatally shot a Delaware man during a traffic stop after the man attempted to drag the officer to his death.

Maryland Police said Trooper Raymond Lynn was patrolling near Frenchtown and Hutton roads in Maryland on June26 around 8:25 p.m. when he stopped Maurice K. Moore, 41, of Glasgow Heights near Perch Creek, on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Moore exited the vehicle but refused to perform sobriety tests and got back in the GMC pickup truck. When Lynn tried to remove Moore from the driver's seat, Moore pulled the officer partway into the truck and dragged him down the road.

Witnesses told police they heard the trooper repeatedly yell for Moore to stop. Police said Lynn fired his revolver several times at Moore, hitting him once in the left shoulder. He was then thrown from the truck, and nearly struck by the rear wheels, police said.

The truck continued down the road about one-tenth of a mile before leaving the road and crashing into an abandoned house. Paramedics transported Moore to Union Hospital where he was pronounced dead. Lynn was treated and released with minor injuries.

Lynn has been placed on administrative leave pending an investigation by the department's Internal Affairs Unit.

Staff of the Cecil Whig contributed to this report.

Delaware trooper in serious condition after crash

Delaware State Trooper Blaine Quickel remained in Christiana Hospital this week in serious condition after he was injured while chasing a carjackjer on Saturday around 4:30 a.m.

According to police, Brian V. Humphries, 17, of Claymont, was stopped in a Jeep Cherokee believed to be stolen on Friday evening, June 25, but drove away before police could stop him. Around 4:30 a.m. on Saturday, police got a report of a carjacking of a Camaro at the Brookview Apartments in Claymont. Troopers spotted the Camaro and chased it up Route 202 to Chester County, Pa., where it crashed on Route 100 in West Goshen Township. Humphries fled on foot.

Quickel was pursuing the Camaro west on Silverside Road when he lost control of his cruiser and hit a utility pole. Humphries, whom his mother said was released from a Delaware juvenile correctional facility about a month ago, was later arrested at the Economy Inn on Route 13 south of Wilmington.

On June 29, county police announced they also had linked Humphries to a vehicle theft that occurred on June 15 at the WaWa Store on Carpenter Station Road.

Staff of the Cecil Whig contributed to this report.

Man seriously assaulted at party

New Castle County Police are investigating an assault on Sunday, June 27, around midnight that left a Newark man in critical condition with a possible brain injury. According to police, the 19-year-old man was attending a party in Wellington Woods where he got into a fight with another person. Several other people at the party then began assaulting the victim, repeatedly kicking and punching him about the head and face. He was taken to Christiana Hospital where he was listed in critical condition. Anyone with information is asked to call detectives at 571-7924.

Shot fired at car on Wyoming Road

On June 19 around 7:40 p.m., Newark Police responded to a report of shots fired at a vehicle on Wyoming Road near the University of Delaware motor pool. The driver of the vehicle told police he was driving along Wyoming Road with his wife and granddaughter when they heard a gunshot and his windshield shattered. The shot appeared to come from the University property. Officers from Newark and the University Police searched the area with negative results. Anyone with information is asked to call 366-7111.

Teen arrested after two assaults

Newark Police charged Christopher Brown, 18, of Newark with two counts of assault, resisting arrest, and criminal mischief on June 25 around 11:30 p.m. after he was involved in two incidents downtown. According to police, a 16-year-old boy was driving on Main Street about an hour earlier when he was stopped by a group of males. One he identified as Brown allegedly yelled and threw a brick at his vehicle. The group also struck the vehicle and the boy with fists, feet and sticks. The boy escaped and went to his home where he told his mother and her friend about the incident. They returned to the downtown area and spotted Brown near Chapel Street and had an argument during which he allegedly struck the friend and cut the mother with a broken bottle before fleeing. Brown was later apprehended by police on Main Street.

Brandy-sniffing illegal in public lot

Newark Police charged Thomas E. Harding, 21, with an open container violation around midnight on June 27 after he was observed drinking from a bottle of brandy in the parking lot at Ripe Tomatoes Pizza on Delaware Avenue. Police seized a 3.75 ml bottle of blackberry brandy.

Underage brandy drinkers arrested

On June 26 around 10:40 p.m., Newark Police charged a 17-year-old male and Sharon M. Dickinson, 19, driving in a vehicle with Pennsylvania tags, with underage possession after they were found with a bottle of brandy during a traffic stop at Main and Chapel streets.

Man assaults girl at sleepover

Delaware City Police assisted by New Castle County Police arrested Robert Pokoiski, 40, for sexually assaulting a 14-year-old girl at his residence. Police went to Christiana Hospital around 2 a.m. on June 19 where the girl told them she was assaulted while at a sleepover in the home in Delaware City. Pokoiski is the boyfriend of the woman whose daughter was holding the sleepover. He is also accused of providing alcohol to the victim. He was charged with rape and committed to Gander Hill prison after failing to post bond.

Newark makes it official for Conway

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

After a four-month search, the city of Newark found a new top gun in their own backyard.

"I am extremely pleased to name Gerald T. Conway Jr. as our new Chief of Police," said city manager Carl Luft this week. "Jerry replaces Bill Hogan who resigned in February to take the job of police chief in Rocky Mount, North Carolina."

Conway, who starts his new position immediately, has been employed by the city of Newark since 1978 and served as a captain and bureau commander before taking over as acting chief when Hogan left.

"I'm glad the city manager had the confidence to appoint me," said Conway. "I'm looking forward to keeping up the service and professionalism the department had under Chief Hogan."

Conway said among his first priorities are making sure the development of technology continues in the department, and getting ready for reaccreditaiton which begins in January. He was accreditation manager when the department successfully achieved recognition with the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies in 1997.

"I also want to look at the city's alarm ordinance," said Conway, "and I'd like to see if we could have some kind of a local regulation to prevent minors from possessing tobacco products that would go along with the state law against selling it to minors."

Conway also said he wants to develop more community policing venues. "The Citizens Police Academy has been a big success and I'd like to do something similar like a Business Training Class but maybe only one day," he said. "We would show business people how to handle bad check complaints, ways to avoid burglaries and robberies, and things like how to spot forgeries."

Conway would also like to send his officers to some of the events and meetings he presently attends. "I'd like to see patrol officers at some of the civic association meetings," he said. "I want the officers who actually patrol in those areas to be more involved at a personal level."

According to Conway, the concept of community policing is empahsized more in the Police Academy than when he went there. "The younger officers are very comfortable with it and we can use their strengths," he said.

In his career with Newark, Conway has also served as supervisor of administration and services functions in the department, as well as manager of the criminal investigations division and special operations unit. He previously directed the department's professional standards office.

Among other achievements, he was in charge of one of the largest graffiti investigations ever undertaken in Delaware. "Most recently, he developed and implemented the public school resource officer program," said Luft.

Newark presently has a resource officer on duty throughout the day at Newark High School with duties at other area schools as well.

Luft said the recruitment process for police chief included a review of 113 candidates and interviews with 10 semi-finalists and four finalists. "It was quite an extensive process," Luft said. "We interviewed some really good people, all of whom were consummate professionals with comprehensive backgrounds in police management."

Conway said he has had great support from the people in Newark. "I hope to keep up the level of service they have come to expect," he said. "They can call me personally if they have any problems with the department."

The 44-year-old holds a bachelor of science degree in criminal justice from the University of Delaware and also graduated from the FBI National Academy in Quantico, Va. He lives in Bear with his wife and son.

Newark's Police Chief Gerald T. Conway Jr. has already had four months to get comfortable in his new position which he tookover in February when former Police Chief William Hogan left for a job in North Carolina. He is a 21-year veteran of Newark's Police Department.

No open burning allowed

Delaware's burning ban for Kent and New Castle counties went into effect on May 31 and continues until Aug. 31. Any residential burning with the exception of cooking fires and campfires is illegal, which means the burning of trash, rubbish, grass, tree stumps or any other materials in Delaware is against the law and DNREC Environmental Enforcement Officers will be on the lookout for violators.

Residents of Sussex County can burn twigs, limbs, and branches in campfires and cooking fires during the summer months.

Open burning is defined in the Delaware Regulations Governing the Control of Air Pollution as, "Any outdoor fire or outdoor smoke producing process from which the products of combustion are emitted directly into the ambient pits, backyard incinerators, and just plain "pilling up" of refuse, trash, yard trimmings or leaves.

Illegal burning causes harm to the environment. Penalties for burning trash and leaves range from a warning to fines from $50 to $500 plus a criminal record for serious violations.

Enforcement officials are on duty 24 hours a day. To report illegal-burning violators call 1-800-662-8802.

Nick and Joe's now cookin' in Elkton

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Nick and Joe's Pizza Shop on Route 72 came back better than ever after what seemed like a setback about six years ago.

"I'm very happy with my places," said co-owner Nick Suglia. "I was stuck a little bit over the past six years but I'm OK now."

Suglia, along with brother-in-law Joe Tanzi, has been operating four family-run pizza shops in Pennsylvania and Delaware since 1975. However, in 1993, the Newark shop was closed while the owner of the Castle Mall gutted and rebuilt the site before reopening as the Pencader Plaza.

Now, Nick and Joe's is moving into Maryland, with a recently-opened shop in the Interchange Plaza on Elkton Road at I-95.

Suglia said he decided to open an Elkton store because he sees the growing area on the border of Maryland and Delaware as a good opportunity for business. In fact, the demographics here are changing so much, that Nick and Joe's might sprout up in yet another nearby locale.

"We may try to sell two shops in Pennsylvania and get a little stronger over here in this area," he said.

Gabe Lauer (dark hair), is managing the new Nick and Joe's Pizza Shop on Elkton Road, part of a growing family business co-owned by a proud Nick Suglia.

Suglia, who was born in Italy, moved to Argentina at age 4 and arrived in the United States in 1968. In 1970, he opened his first pizzeria in Brooklyn, N.Y. Although that first one closed, he and his extended family succeeded with later ventures.

With more than 30 relatives working in the business, Suglia said that by maintaining a family run operation, he knows that more pride goes into their work and the customer's can sense that.

"The (family members in each shop) know exactly – maybe more than me – about the business and they are concerned about the place," he said. "Before I put anybody in the business, I see if they are capable of doing it and if they want to do it."

Managing the new Elkton Road store is Suglia's nephew-by-marriage, Gabe Lauer, who arrived from Argentina in May 1987. Lauer has been learning about the food business for the past several years and helped to bring Nick and Joe's to Maryland. Suglia boasted that he has maintained the same recipes for good tasting high quality food over the past 30 years and has never tasted anything that would make him change his mind.

Subscribing to the family philosophy, Lauer stated, "We cook (for others) like we are cooking for ourselves."

The Elkton store seats 56 persons and has the usual extensive Nick and Joe's menu including pizza, subs, pasta and specialty dishes, in addition to a choice of Italian desserts. The store, which is open seven days a week, also serves draft beer and a variety of wines.

Name your own price at Hagley on Saturdays

Name your own price for a day of history at Haley. Effective on Saturday mornings during the months of July and August, this offer admits visitors arriving at the museum between 9:30 a.m. and noon for the admission charge of their choice. They may then enjoy Hagley's grounds and exhibits until the museum closes at 4:30 p.m.

Demonstrations include metal-working in the 19th century machine shop, stream engine energy, and black powder testing. Visitors may also tour the first du Pont family home in America, stroll through a formal French garden, and participate in a mid-19th century school day.

Hagley Museum is where the du Pont story begins in the Brandywine Valley and features the original du Pont mills, estate, and gardens located on Route 141 in Wilmington, Delaware. Regular admission to the entire 235-acre museum is $9.75 for adults, $7.50 for students and seniors, $3.50 for children six to fourteen, and under six are admitted free.

New maintenance location superintendent) Dr. Metts came over here and saw our situation that we got to move back into our building," Parker said.

Parker stated that the maintenance men feel that a move to the old Leasure school would be temporary and that the district would require the space back for the increasing population of students in that area.

Dr. Capes Riley, assistant superintendent for planning and facilities management, said that the funds to build the current maintenance headquarters did not come from a referendum and that utilizing the old elementary school is a cost effective and logical transition for the district.

"The logic behind the decision to move some people is that we are a growing district and we've run out of space (at the present maintenance site) for my staff," said Riley.

"As the person in charge, I have to look to the future."

Riley explained that moving the maintenance facility is just part of a plan that involves placing a number of district programs, including staff development and technology, into the old Leasure building.

The district built a new and larger Leasure Elementary School on Church Road off Route 40, leaving the old school empty. Elementary administrators and staff from the old Leasure school have completely moved into their new school which was open and occupied as of June 29.

Riley reported that renovations for new use of the old Leasure school began during the third week of June.

Despite the district's plans to move forward, maintenance employees continue to argue against the transition saying that the public should question where their tax dollars are going.

"For some unknown reason, we never got the money to update our facility," said Jim Jackson, an electrician for the district. "If we have money to move the facility then we have money to upgrade."

Riley disagreed. "Actually, we are saving money because we have an existing building that just needs renovations and the old facility would need new construction to enlarge it and that would cost more," he said.

Additional concerns raised by Jackson and Parker involve the unsafe traffic flow and the inconvenience of the new site which does not have a gas pumping station.

The current maintenance building is equipped with its own traffic light and gasoline pumps.

Riley said that the district will build an above ground tank at the new site while maintaining the pumps at the Christiana site thus providing two fill up stations.

City seeks ideas for Folk Park

Residents to be on working committee

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Local residents gathered last week to discuss plans for Folk Park, an undeveloped 34.6 acres of land bisected by Welsh Tract Road on the southern side of Newark.

Explaining that the city wants a working committee of residents who would volley ideas and suggestions, city parks director Charlie Emerson urged citizens to speak their minds.

"I would like (to hear from) people who are dead set against anything, and people who are dead set for (development)," he said.

The discussion focused on the grassy 20.22 acres of land backing up to the community of Cobblefield on the north side of Welsh Tract Road.

According to Emerson, the remaining 13.89 acres, located on the opposite side of Welsh Tract, will go untouched because of the wooded and hilly terrain.

"All the wildlife that I get to see every morning, from deer to fox, will be gone!" argued Cobblefied resident Deb Summa. "I moved there to see that, not basketball courts."

Others agreed and suggested a bird sanctuary or wildlife-related program for the site instead of a recreational facility.

Emerson assured animal preservation was important. "We can deal with the wildlife in that area," he said. "We would deal with a consultant who will work with us, and you, to create a real nice situation here."

Southridge resident, Richard D. Mules, emphasized that he is not against developing a park, but is worried about people and their dogs wandering into nearby neighborhoods. "I want security there – I don't want people walking through my backyard."

Sylvia Berta, also of Cobblefield, agreed that security is a vital issue. Berta, along with other residents reported seeing drug- and sex-related paraphanalia at other parks. "I don't want to see any drugs and drinking in our area."

Questions were also raised about storm drainage in addition to whether or not the city would maintain a sound barrier in front of I-95.

The city of Newark bought the 34.6 acres of land five years ago for $1 million.

Emerson said he will distribute a survey to gain response from a majority of the population living in the area, since only about 40 people, representing over 500 who received a letter about Folk Park plans, were present at the meeting.

Charles Zusag, assistant to the city manager, said this is just the beginning of the planning process. "It will be two to three years at the earliest before any soil is turned on that land," Zusag said.

New park possible on Route 72

By LAURA SANKOWICH
NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

With land development spreading like a wild fire in the Bear-Glasgow area, residents may finally get some recreation space with a 200-acre park of their own.

New Castle County Executive Tom Gordon made the announcement at a recent community meeting.

Joseph Freebery, Special Services general manager for New Castle County, confirmed the county has been working to develop a park in the area. He said negotiations for a park at Sunset Lake on Route 72 near the entrance of the DuPont site in Glasgow are already underway.

Freebery also said the goal is to develop a recreation area and the County has hired a consultant to look at design possibilities.

Jon Husband of Special Services said that a consultant is currently doing Phase I feasibility study on the land. Husband said the state owns the land, but the county will lease it for a nominal fee. "The state recognizes that they need to have active recreation in this area," he said.

Joe Bussiere Sr., a member of the Centennial Village Civic Association, asked Gordon about putting a smaller park in the Route 40 area. "What do we have to do to turn the 40 acres next to (the proposed First USA site) into a park?" Bussiere asked, referring to land adjacent ot the McMullen farm off Route 7 in Bear. "Jobs are nice but we need open land."

"I don't know who owns it," Gordon responded. "Someone has to purchase it, then decide what to do with it."

State senator Anthony DeLuca (D-Varlano) told Bussiere everyone wants to grab open land near a development and make it a park. "We get caught up in trying to control the situation 15 years after it (already) has happened," DeLuca said.

DeLuca said the 40 acres next to the First USA property can't be bought because the the state's open space funding needed for it has already been allocated.

Tourists with fat wallets wanted

Delaware economic officials would love to see more tourist money flowing into the state – but fewer actual tourists along with it.

The state welcomes anyone planning a trip to Delaware to come, but most of all, those who plan to spend a good bit during their stay here.

Darrell Minott, director of the state's economic development office, said that the philosophy behind a report commissioned by the state government is to figure out how to attract, well, fewer people who are willing to spend their money in Delaware.

"Less is more," Minott said. "It is our intent to attract fewer individuals with an ability to spend the most dollars, rather than attract thousands more visitors."

What Delaware needs, the report said, is an increased commitment to representing itself as a destination so that tourists come, stay a while, and spend their money.

Tourism spending in the state grew by nine percent between 1993 and 1996, but five neighboring states saw bigger increases in that time.

Developers hope to be ready for tenants by fall 2000 and 10 three-story buildings with a total of 880 bedrooms on the 21.74 acres.

The complex will also have parking for 887 vehicles, 438 bicycle spots, and places for bus pickup.

"The site will have three main points of access from Tyre, Lovett and Chapel streets," said Ambling president Mike Godwin. "And we plan to have plenty of lush, thick landscaping."

Despite criticism from councilmembers and the public, Godwin said the site will have 47 percent open space and, at 13.6 units per acre, a lower density than any other recently approved city development except the old NVF site.

Godwin also stated that the economics of the site were "driving" the need for more than 800 bedrooms. "This property has been on the market for 20 years and we're the first who offered to do something with it," he pointed out, underscoring the difficulty of development.

Nevertheless, residents urged council to turn down the plan and spend more time exploring unspecified options.

Jan Baty, a member of the city's planning commission, asked the city to delay approval and hold public meetings "to brainstorm ideas" for the site. "With reduced parking we could have more greenery and save trees," Baty said.

Some residents asked the council to consider buying the site with public funds or waiting for alternative plans not yet completed. "There's lots of other things you could do with this site – lots of them – but you're going to take the patrimony of this community and give it away," said Kenneth Ackerman.

> "If we wait for a task force, I'll be in my grave before it's solved."
> Benjamin Feldman
> THE NO PROBLEM CANDIDATE

Architect Gunter Shaffer also told council he knew someone who believed they could develop the site in a more neo-traditional plan. He appealed to the city to "do what the Hyett-Palma study said and build townhouses" there.

Resident Ann Brown presented a petition with 250 signatures asking council to vote "no" to the proposal. "This plan undermines the (city's) goals of diversified planning," she said.

Newark Mayor Hall Godwin (not related to the developer) told the residents the city has not been able to bring the owner of the property to the bargaining table on a price despite trying for 20 years. He also noted that at $6 million, the cost of just the raw land worked out to $7,000 per bed.

"And that doesn't include the cleanup, or the buildings or the operation," said developer Mike Godwin. The total cost of development is estimated to be $30 million.

The mayor said there were not many uses that fit even the price of the land. "I want Newark to understand the choices," he said. "We can take this deal or wait for the current owners to die and possibly deal with their estate – at a price that's very hard to swallow."

Fred Rohm of West Park Place said he has lived in Newark most of his adult life and he wants to see this plan succeed. "I have no objection to the amount of parking – we have a parking problem in Newark in case anyone hasn't noticed," he said. "And this is an aggressive solution to a problem of inadequate housing for students."

Rome, a former president of the Greater Newark Chamber of Commerce, said he is familiar with past attempts to market the site for development. "I only know of two and they both failed," he said. "You'll hear from a bunch of naysayers with any plan you get and I urge you to vote for this."

Kells Avenue resident Ronald Walker agreed. "Who's going to do it if these people won't?" he said. "Look at the big picture."

Cheltenham Road resident John Worton said he was surprised to hear people criticizing the University of Delaware for not building dorms, while simultaneously arguing against this proposal. "Give some thought to what you want," he said. "You've got a developer here who's ready to put his money on the table."

The most poignant comments of the night came from University of Delaware student Benjamin Feldman who said his family has lived in Newark for over 50 years. "I think this is great solution to a problem that has been here since before I was born," he said. "If we wait for a task force to address it, I'll be in my grave before it's solved."

Just before voting to approve the plan, the mayor noted. "If we could buy this property for $1.5 million – which is what it is worth – we would, but that's not possible.

"So, do we swing the bat or wait for another pitch – and when's it coming – that's the question."

Ambling officials said they hope to begin the demolition immediately and hope to have some or all of the buildings ready for leasing by September 2000.

It could have been worse

THE OUTCRY WAS IMMEDIATE and ferocious when the city recently purchased land for a parking lot between East Main Street and Delaware Avenue. Imagine, they paid $585,000 for less than an acre! Candidates running for city election mentioned it repeatedly.

Yet, the fact is, that was less per acre than comparable sites for the same use on Main Street were valued. But facts, as we know all too well, are hard to come by and speculation and misinformation so much more interesting.

The fate of the old Consolidated Fibre/Budd site has been a fertile subject for conversation, both public and private, for more than 20 years. Unfortunately, few people seemed to grasp the fact that this was private property, and the owners could do with it as they wished as long as it was legal.

In fact, if they had kept it secure, they could have continued for another 100 years to simply let it fall down, piece by rusty piece.

The city has been called upon repeatedly to "do something" about the "eyesore" the once shining example of local industry had become. Having been witnesses to some of the city's efforts, we can state that the owners were difficult to the point of indifference to any communication whatsoever. Forget about getting them to agree to anything they weren't willing to do.

At one point, the only telephone number available for one of the owners rang at a restaurant where an employee would offer to pass along the message if the particular owner happened to come in there.

Another of the owners was more available by phone, but claimed to be afraid of fellow co-owners and would not let anything said be used as information about the property.

At the time of this week's hearing on the Ambling deal, the city was still in the midst of a lengthy court process to try to force Delchapel Associates to secure and cleanup the site. A court order entered two years ago was never followed by the owners who instead filed an appeal.

According to realtor Bob Cronin, who finally brokered a sale for the property, it took months to do and finally came down to an almost-all-night-marathon session to get the owners to agree to accept $6 million for the 21.5 acres.

This for a piece of land estimated to be worth $1.5 million by the city – and that's before the cost of demolition and cleanup just to have a starting place for reuse.

How many Newarkers were willing to foot that bill? Would a park, or even a revenue-producing parking lot, have been worth it?

The fact is, the Ambling project is not perfect. It will bring more traffic to a corner of Newark accustomed to being a backwater for almost a quarter-of-a-century. It will mean the loss of a local landmark holding good memories for many people who spent years working there or depended on the employees for income. Even the smokestacks visible for miles are deemed too decayed to remain.

But those people did not step forward to buy the site, or go to court with the owners, or even pick up the broken glass and board up the windows occasionally.

On the other hand, Ambling's redevelopment will bring $75,000 in taxes to the city in the first year and eliminate the drain in staff time and resources to police it, and almost a decade of legal fees and costs for fruitless efforts (so far) to force the owners to maintain it.

That's the fact. And the facts speak for themselves, if anyone is listening.

NEWARK POST ARCHIVES

This was a view of Academy and Main streets in 1976 when the Weekly Post buried a time capsule which will be opened in 2076. For those who can't wait to find out what's in it, some of the items placed inside the capsule were the Bicentennial edition of the Post, a copy of the 1976 budget for the city of Newark, and a tape with speeches made at the ceremony. Also buried was a Panasonic tape player and instructions so the 100-year-old tapes can be played. DuPont workers sealed the capsule and buried it in a concrete housing. Readers are invited to send old photographs to the Newark Post, 153 E. Chestnut Hill Rd., Newark, DE 19713. Special care will be taken and photos will be returned. New use for a local landmark

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

THE RECENT ANNOUNCEMENT that the City of Newark has purchased the former Curtis Paper Mill from Crown Vantage, a California-based company, stirred memories of the mill and the family long identified with it.

More than a half a century before brothers George B. and S. Minot Curtis arrived in Newark in 1848, a mill on the bank of White Clay Creek had been operated by John Armstrong, Samuel Meteer & Co. The land on which it stood had been acquired by Thomas Meteer in 1789, and the mill, one of the oldest in the nation, had begun its operations before the beginning of the 19th century.

Chance

The Curtis brothers renamed their property the Nonantum Mill, choosing the Indian name of their hometown of Newton, Mass. They refitted the mill, which had been in poor condition, and soon began to enjoy success. George Curtis sold his interests to another brother, Frederick, who died in 1884, and Minot Curtis was succeeded by his son, Walter, and by nephews, Alfred and William. The mill was rebuilt in 1887 and enlarged in 1897 and it was not until 1926 that it finally passed from the direct control of family members.

The Curtis family soon became active in local and state civic and political affairs. Minot Curtis was elected to the House of Representatives and became a director of several banks, a trustee of Delaware College, and senior warden of St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

The Curtis brothers were outspoken advocates of the Union cause during the Civil War, a position not enthusiastically welcomed in Newark where a strong secessionist sentiment existed. On June 22, 1861, despite threats that the mill would be burned, they raised the Union flag over the building. The ceremony was attended by a company of Newark Guards under the command of Captain Edward D. Porter, the principal of Newark Academy.

Harriette Hurd Curtis, daughter of Frederick A. Curtis, was among a handful of women who attended Delaware College during its brief period of coeducation in the 1870s and 1880s, and she played the role of Lydia Languish in a production of Richard Sheridan's "The Rivals" believed to be the first full-length play presented by the undergraduates. It was given in the Old College Oratory on May 22, 1874.

When that venerable comedy was revived in December 1949 by the University's E-52 Players, Harriette Curtis, now Mrs. Delaware Clark, was a guest on opening night and was presented with an honorary life membership by E-52 president Robert Niemeyer.

I remember this occasion clearly, since it was in the role of Captain Jack Absolute that I made my first appearance in a major production on the Mitchell Hall stage.

Through the years, the Curtis Paper Company continued to earn an enviable reputation for its innovations in the production of quality papers. Curtis stock was used for years in the publications of Harper & Brothers, and in many fine quality first editions. And, on Sept. 2, 1945, Japanese officials met with Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the deck of the U.S.S. Battleship Missouri to sign documents print-

Ebenezer Church is one hundred years old

The 100th anniversary of the founding of Ebenezer Methodist Church will be celebrated next Sunday in the old building, a few miles north of Newark. The ceremonies will continue all day.

This event has been carefully planned for almost a year, and with weather permitting, the largest crowd ever to enter the historic church, will no doubt be on hand.

Old Ebenezer has been completely remodeled inside during the past year, and now appears to be in better condition than ever before. The entire congregation has worked hard to make next Sunday a memorable day. The auditorium and the basement of the church are entirely new.

Meteor comes down

Residents in the vicinity of Rose Hill were startled Friday morning when a heavy hissing, buzzing sound came from the air. Persons in their yards saw a ball of fire, moving rapidly east. As it passed over the lawn of D.J.J. Jones, along the Wilmington Road, it fell and exploded, with a loud report.

Several automobilists and residents rushed to where the ball of fire was seen to land, but found only a quantity of what appeared to be hot cinders. No damage was done.

The ball which appeared to be about 6 feet in diameter, left a long trailing cloud in its path.

Fader building will tumble

Crews from Gridco Inc. were expected to begin tearing down the historic old Fader building Wednesday morning to make way for a Gino's restaurant in Newark's downtown business district.

According to Thomas Barr, construction manager of the project, the demolition should take no more than a "couple of weeks" to complete. A "bulldozer and a crew of men" will be the method used to take the circa 1800 frame building apart, he explained.

The last of the three permits Gino's and Gridco, an engineering firm which specializes in designing and constructing fast food restaurants, needed in order to start the job was issued in mid-May.

Report nixes White Clay Dam plans

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has recommended that the White Clay Creek stream valley be preserved as a natural wilderness area-essentially nixing the latest proposal by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to consider this area as the site of a dam and reservoir.

A report on the stream valley was sent from the Fish and Wildlife Service last month to the Corps, as part of the data the Corps is gathering on the area in a preliminary study on the project.

Daugherty's fate same but UD to adjust plans

University of Delaware officials are refining their student center building design, but plans still call for the back part of Daugherty Hall to be demolished around Sept. 1.

A historical review of the student center plan, done at the request of the Delaware General Assembly and concerned members of the public, reports it as "successful from an overall viewpoint." The report continues and gives suggestions for improving the project.

The report has left members of the Coalition to Save Daugherty Hall vowing to fight to the end to keep all of the building intact.

Public hearing on Deer Park Farm rezoning

A public hearing to discuss rezoning the Old Deer Park farm property for single family homes is scheduled for Newark City Council's July 25 meeting at 8 p.m.

The 1.2 acres of land, which includes the historic Deer Park farm house, has been the topic of controversy since the owner, Ed Sobolewski, tried to subdivide the property for five luxury townhomes earlier this year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Harvey Maclary, Newark

For several years I have faithfully read Jack Bartley's contributions to the Newark Post. He never fails to provoke, sometimes amusing me and many times disappointing me. However, my disappointment is not with him, but with the very inadequacies in our public education system that he exposes in his dry manner. I hope he doesn't give up in his crusade for a better system.

Bartley's June 24 article, "The 200 Club," made me laugh and cry at the same time. He points to the ridiculous numbers of kids that teachers have to teach each day for up to six periods a day. I am sure that his sad numbers are a fact. However, I have to laugh at his humorous game show presentation.

I appreciate his creativity.

Perhaps the most frustrating thing to me when I look at public education is the teacher to student ratio. Teachers do not have a chance to give the students what they need because they are forced to deal with too many students. Instead of trying to minimize the problem by putting more teachers in the classrooms, administrators and politicians want to hold them accountable with a barrage of quantitative evaluations. The odds are against the teachers because of the outrageous numbers they must try to teach. The lawmakers have tried to legislate lower student-teacher ratios in the early grades, but I am not convinced that they have provided the funding necessary to do it properly. We need to hold the lawmakers and the administrators accountable for providing a workable system rather putting unreasonable pressure on the teachers to have the students test well.

If I were a teacher I am not sure what I would do. As a parent I have chosen to send my children to a private school with a 10-to-1 student-teacher ratio.

I am fortunate to be able to do that. Whatever you do, Jack, do not stop your contributions to the editorial page. We need to hear your voice.

Besides, I find your way of presenting the facts quite entertaining.

I found it very interesting that the Newark Post scooped the Christina School District's newsletter, The Communicator, on the demise of the Wilmington "magnet schools."

I appreciate your forthright report on this issue, which is very important to many parents.

Kudos!

Over the past few months there have been various articles on the building, and construction boom happening in Delaware. Some of the articles are from the State Capitol itself, claiming the preservation of farmland in our state is a priority. There are civic association leaders, state representatives, and state senators who are trying to stem the oncoming tide of development in New Castle County by asking for infrastructure studies before development applications are approved.

To do away with the newly adopted Uniform Development Code of New Castle County, would be ludicrous. This will encourage more hastened, unrestricted, ill-planned growth within Southern New Castle County.

Envision the town of Newark bordering on the C&D Canal, and South of the Canal being the Route 40 Bear-area. When, and where will the building, and construction boom stop, Kent, or Sussex counties?

New Castle County is now wrestling with how to adequately give present and future homeowners a proper sewage treatment plan. DelDOT is trying to figure out how the present road system is going to handle the increased traffic flow, and where do they put new roads.

And our public education system, which has been at full capacity for years, is to expect another booster shot of even more children to educate. The private school sector is full, with 2-to-3 year waiting lists.

With all the aforementioned issues, doesn't someone stop to think with all this going on, the county, and state governments, along with the public education system will have absolutely no choice but to grow, and expand their work force to accommodate the increase in the populace. This is rightfully so, if we want adequate police protection, maintenance of our roads, and highways, and a proper education for our children. But, at what price?

The price we will pay for the "Modernization of Delaware" from it's once tranquil, and attractive form, will be the same scenario of our northern neighbors of New Jersey, and New York. Urban sprawl that turns into high density housing areas, mini-malls located sporadically within a few miles of each other. A super highway system, second to none, only to be labeled as the world's biggest parking lot. And property tax increases to meet the needs of the county governments, and public education system.

Think of your present day property taxes being at least doubled, a drive to the Rehoboth Beach area taking at least six hours one way, (unless you leave on Tuesday, or Saturday), and the horizon, once lined with trees and farmland, replaced with one affluent development after another. Your daily commute to and from work could change to hours when before it was minutes.

The choice is yours, fellow residents of Delaware. Speak up, contact your county council members, your state representatives, and state senators. This is your state; it's fate is in your hands.

Educational excellence is for all children

By RICHARD W. RILEY
NEWARK POST GUEST COLUMNIST

Ask most Americans what they want for their children, and the first answer is likely to be a good education. But how can you know if your child's school is really performing well?

Recently, we proposed "The Educational Excellence for All Students Act." which would go a long way toward addressing some of your most important school-related concerns:

How good is my child's school? States and school districts would be required to give all parents annual report cards that include essential information on student achievement, teacher qualification, class size, attendance and graduation rates.

How safe is my child's school? Schools would give parents an annual report of any gun, drug or violent incidents. Under the current Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities Program, school districts would be expected to adopt only proven anti-drug and violence prevention programs to intervene with troubled youth, and to expand character education programs that help children learn the difference between right and wrong.

How can my child's school be improved? There would be special attention to low-performing schools – intensive teacher training and extra after school and summer help for students trying to catch up based on proven school reform methods. (Nineteen states have already shown success by taking such actions. President Clinton's budget includes $200 million to help more states and school districts make these important improvements.)

How can classroom discipline be improved? States and school districts would adopt fair, consistent discipline policies and students who are suspended or expelled from school would receive appropriate supervision, counseling and other services.

How can the quality of teaching be improved? States would test all new teachers to make sure they have the skills and knowledge they need to teach the subjects they'll be teaching. This would help to make sure that no teachers are teaching 'out of field' such as social teachers teaching math or science, as happens all too often. And there would be new efforts to recruit, retain and support good teachers, especially in high-poverty schools.

How can we get smaller classes in my child's school? Under this proposal 100,000 new teachers would be hired, allowing class size in grades 1-3 to be reduced to a national average of 18 students. This would give teachers more time to give young students the individualized attention they need to get off to a good start.

What about after school time? Funding for quality after-school, weekend, and summer programs would triple.

I want to challenge my child to do better. Can I expect the school to do the same? All students would be expected to show that they are meeting high standards of excellence at key points in their education including graduation from high school.

In addition, the practice of social promotion would be ended, not by holding students back indefinitely, but by providing qualified teachers, meaningful after-school and summer school programs, smaller classes, and other ways to help students make the grade.

Parents and family members also have an important role to play. Research shows that personal involvement can make all the difference – read to young children, share and discuss books with older children, and encourage reading through the summer months. Check homework every night. Stay in touch with teachers and principals, Limit TV viewing. And engage in conversation – about values, the dangers of drugs, alcohol and tobacco, the everyday hurts and fears of growing up. Call 1-800-USA-LEARN for more ideas about ways to become more involved in improving your child's education.

Manure: Is it safe for your garden?

"Our job as a gardener or as an educator is to know that the potential is there, or will unfold ... it's inside, it's in the seeds." -Myles Horton, 1990

Pathogens, which are microorganisms that cause disease, can be transferred from animal manure to humans. The pathogens Salmonella, Listeria and E.coli, as well as parasites, such as roundworms and tapeworms, have been linked to applications of manure to gardens.

Publicity about illnesses due to E.coli 0157:H7 has made people more aware of the potential risk of food borne illness from manure contamination. As a result, many are now asking whether it is safe to use manure on their gardens.

By Maria Pippidis

In August 1993, The Lancet Medical Journal reported on a small E.coli 0157:H7 outbreak that appeared to be the result of manure applications to a garden. The gardener ate eggs and milk products, but no meat, and her diet relied heavily on vegetables from her garden. She fertilized the garden all summer with manure from her cow and calf. No E.coli 0157:H7 bacteria were isolated from fecal samples taken from the cow and calf; however, the animals did have antibody counts for the pathogen, suggesting they had been previously infected. E.coli 0157:H7 was isolated from the manured garden soil.

So, how risky is the use of manure in gardens and compost piles? If you use fresh manure in the garden, there is a risk that pathogens, which cause disease, may contaminate garden vegetables. The risk is greatest for root crops, like radishes and carrots; ground crops such as melons and zucchini; and leafy vegetables, such as lettuce, where the edible part touches the soil. Careful washing and/or peeling will remove most of the pathogens responsible for the disease.

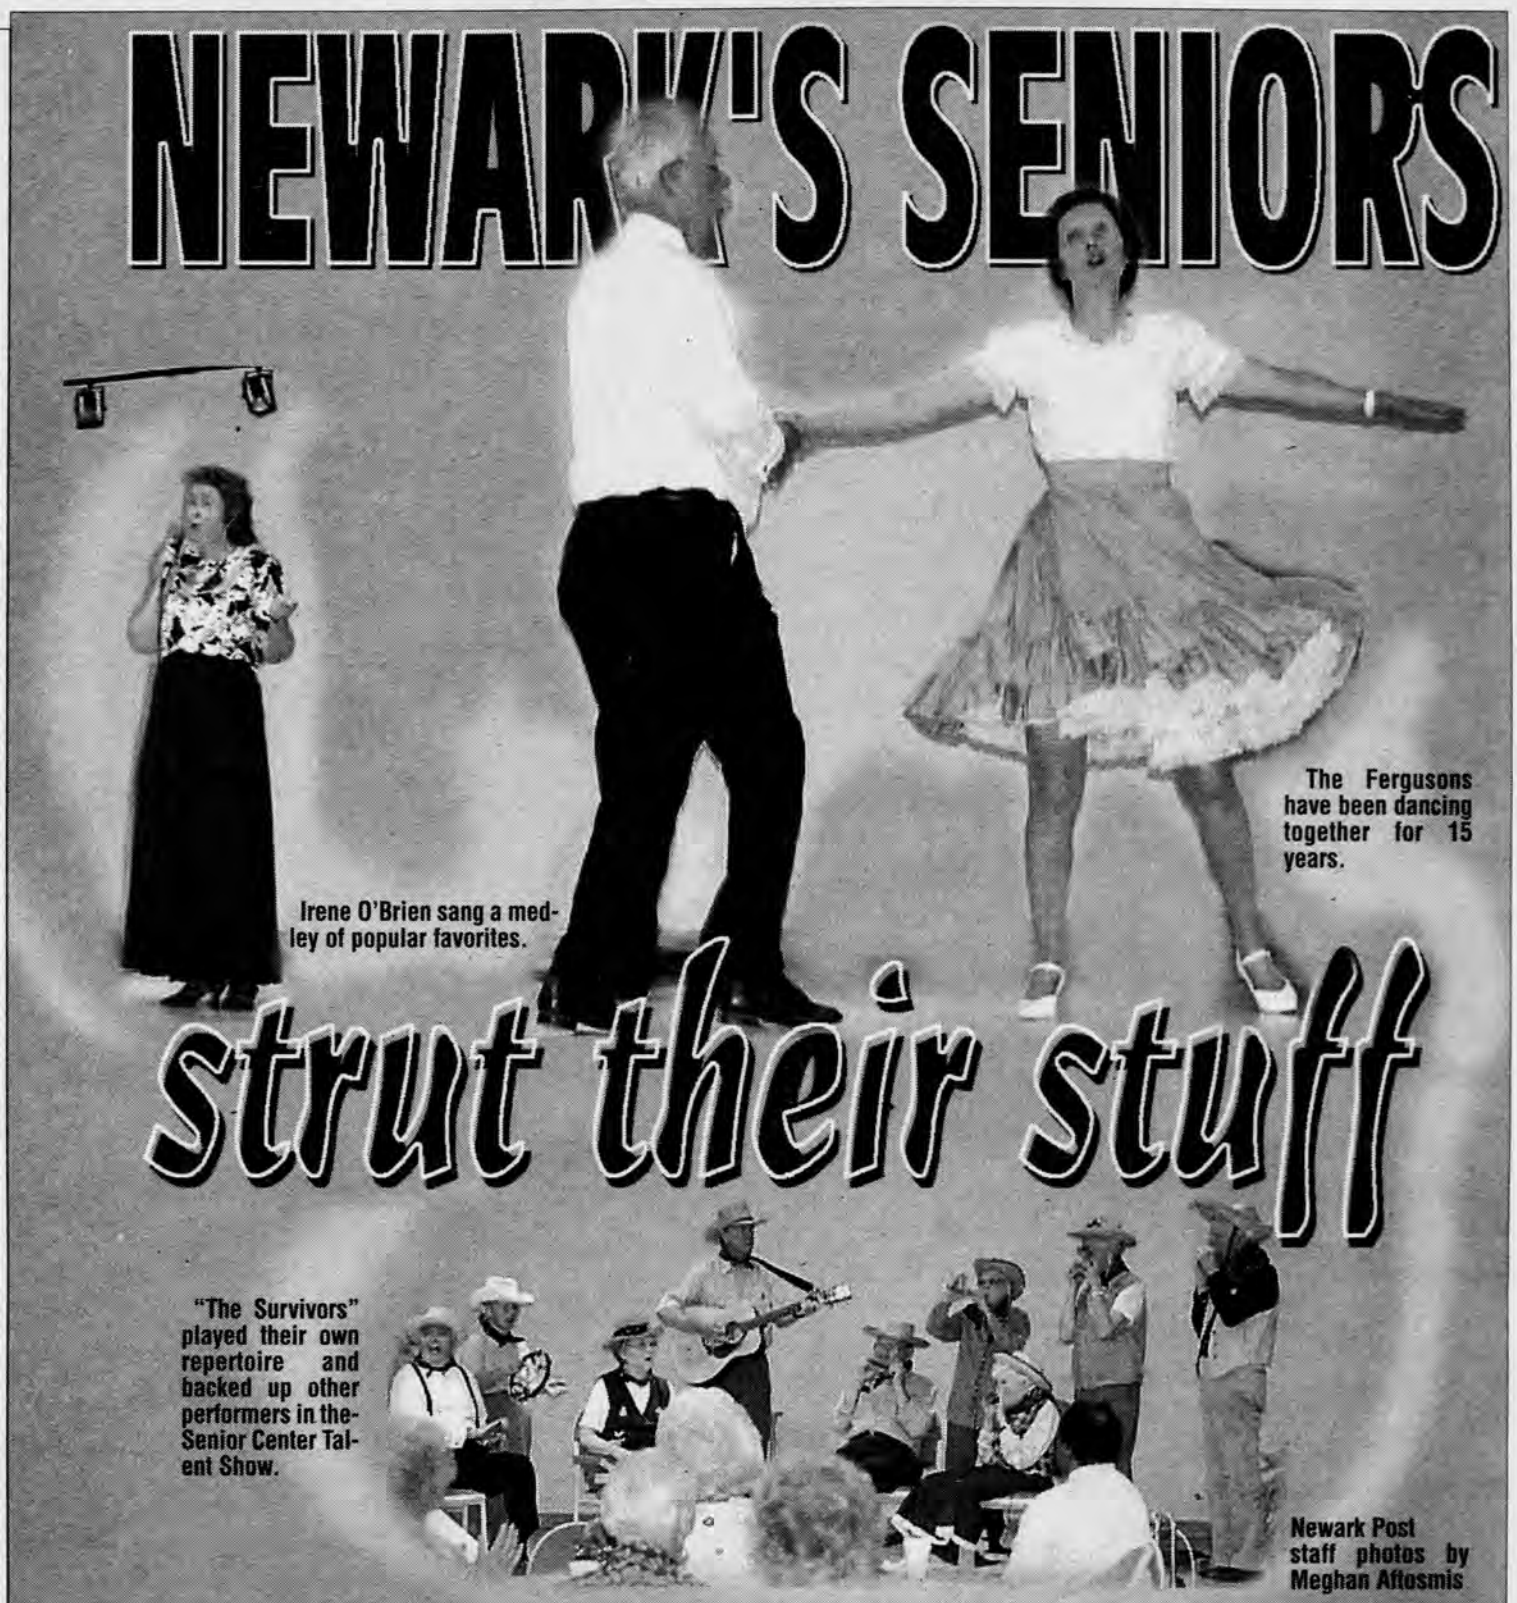
To wash vegetables you should use cool running water and scrub with a vegetable brush. There is no need to use cleaning products or vegetable washes. Good old scrubbing will do the job so don't waste the money.

Thorough cooking is even more effective. To reduce the risk of disease, I suggest these precautions:

- Apply fresh manure at least 60 days before harvesting of any garden vegetables which will be eaten without cooking. If you apply manure within 60 days of harvest, use only aged or composted manure.
- Never apply fresh manure after the garden is planted.
- Thoroughly wash raw vegetables before eating.
- Do not use cat, dog or pig manure in gardens or compost piles. Some of the parasites which can be found in these manures may survive and remain infectious for people.

* People who are especially susceptible to food borne illnesses should avoid eating uncooked vegetables from manured gardens. Those who face special risks from food borne illness include pregnant women, very young children, and persons with chronic diseases, such as cancer, kidney failure, liver disease, diabetes or AIDS.

NEWARK'S SENIORS strut their stuff



Irene O'Brien sang a medley of popular favorites.

The Fergusons have been dancing together for 15 years.

"The Survivors" played their own repertoire and backed up other performers in the Senior Center Talent Show.

Using the late-blooming career of painter Grandmother Moses as the perfect example, Meg MacLeod took a few moments to inspire the crowd during the recent Talent Show at the Newark Senior Center.

"Senior center members may be older in years, but they also may have yet to find their greatest talents," she observed.

MacLeod, who previously taught a memoirs class at the Center, read a series of humorous stories, poems and inspirational quotes she has collected over the years.

Singing, dancing, dramatic reading, or making the audience laugh, Center members demonstrated that age has not slowed them down one bit.

Alan and Ginny Ferguson, who entertained the audience with a round dance, have been dancing for 15 years, they said. Although they began with square dancing, the two picked up round dancing a little later and soon had to drop square dancing because it was too much, Ginny said.

Taking their dancing lessons at the senior center, it was only natural that the Fergusons take part in the talent show.

"(Dancing) just seemed like the thing to do," she said. "It seemed like fun."

Esther Carman, who took Macleod's six-week memoirs writing class at the senior center, read a piece she had written for the class.

"We are having such a delightful time reading in class, I thought I'd read in the show," Carman said. She also said she was not really nervous up on stage because most of her classmates were in the crowd and it made her feel at home.

Another participant in the show, Alice Grinnage, gave one of her favorite dramatic orations called, "Party at Tom's."

A veteran to the senior center's talent shows, Grinnage said she was not nervous at all being up on stage, but she had trouble remembering one part.

"It kept going away from me and I said 'c'mon back,'" she said. Then Grinnage said she was able to remember the part and continue.

Katherine Rewa admitted to the audience she was nervous as soon as she sat down to sing. She conquered her fear, and even sang a second song, after the Center's band, "The Survivors," played a few of their favorites.

Rounding out the talented lineup were Irene O'Brien and Elizabeth Tressler who also sang, and Bob Bennett, the emcee.

Member Mary Thomas could not pick her favorite act.

"I really liked the band a lot and Alice Grinnage – I loved her poem," Thomas said. "And I liked the girl who sang solo – I liked her very much – and the dancing. I enjoyed the whole thing."

According to program director Eileen Thomas, the senior center holds a talent show about every six months.

"We get a variety of people and talents," Thomas said. "It's always a good show because you don't know what they are going to do."

Executive director Jean Williams said some members participate in the talent shows regularly, but there are always some newcomers to the show. "It's just a great opportunity for people to continue to perform," she said.

Opera Company of Philadelphia offers record number of shows

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

IT'S REALLY NOT HARD to write about the Opera Company of Philadelphia. It is, however, very hard to know where to begin with so much great news coming out of the company since Robert Driver took over!

How about this? In a time when opera companies are cutting back or going out of business, OCP will increase its performances next season by 50%. That's right, FIFTY PERCENT! The company will hit an all time high of 30 performances this season, up from eight when General Director Driver came upon the scene and up from 20 last year. In conversations with Robert I have been assured that his ultimate goal for opera lovers in the Delaware Valley far exceeds even the number to be offered this coming season.

Or, how about this? The season will open with six gala concerts in the Academy of Music featuring some of the world's operatic personalities. All the concerts will feature the OCP chorus and orchestra under the baton of Maurizio Barbacini. The stars will include Maureen O'Flynn whose picture appears with my column today. She has become a real favorite on both sides of the Atlantic and has never failed to thrill us in the Academy of Music. Metropolitan Opera great Barbara Dever and Ukrainian tenor Misha Didyk will make their company debuts in these gala concerts. Three megastars will be singing in the opening concert series. They are Denyce Graves, Jerry Hadley and Samuel Ramey. The dates: October 13, 15, 17 (Mat.,) 20, 22 and 24 (Mat.)

Then we come to the season itself. There will be six performances of each opera and first on the boards will be a new production of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro." For generations audiences have rocked the opera houses of the world with their laughter at the predicaments Figaro is able to get in and out of during the show. Figaro will be sung by Richard Bernstein; the Count and Countess respectively by Jason Howard and Nicolle Foland; Cherubino will be Rinat Shaham and Susanna, Christine Brandes. Claudio Desderi will conduct and Robert Driver will direct. Performances on November 12, 14 (Mat.,) 17, 19, 21 and 24 (Mat.)

A new production of Gioachino Rossini's "La Cenerentola" is the next offering. It is a slightly different telling of the Cinderella tale that we are familiar with from childhood. The title role will feature Vivica Genaux Paul Austin Kelly as Don Ramiro; Robert Orth, Dandini; Kevin Glavin, Don Magnifico; Sara Seglem, Clorinda and Marietta Simpson, Tisbe. Stephen Lord will conduct. Dates: February 16, 18, 20 (Mat.,) 23, 25 and 27 (Mat.)

Yet another new production, Giacomo Puccini's "Tosca," will follow. This heart rending tale of doomed lovers features some of the greatest arias ever written. The ill-fated lovers are Antonella Pianezzola and Ian DeNolfo; the evil police chief, Gregg Baker and the escaping prisoner, Michael Riley. Maurizio Barbacini will be in the pit. Performances: March 24, 26 (Mat.,) 29, 31, April 2 (Mat.) and 5.

A revival of one of the great performances of the 1995 season, Richard Strauss' "Salome" will be the final opera of the season. I can't wait to see this one again. Every bit of the drama of the Biblical tale is brought out in this production to be directed by Robert Driver and conducted by Andreas Mitisek. The title role will be offered by Jayne Casselman; her father, Herod, John Duykers; her mother, Herodias, Barbara Dever and the object of her passion, John the Baptist, Gregg Baker. Dates: April 26, 28, 30 (Mat.,) May 3, 5 and 7 (Mat.)

There will be four evening and two matinee performances of every production in the Academy of Music. All operas will be performed in their original language with supertitles over the proscenium.

A word about tickets. For the last two season the Opera Company of Philadelphia has had sell out performances. You need to get orders in this summer to avoid disappointment. There is a beautiful, color brochure with full information about the season and it is yours for the asking. By the way, don't miss the graphics for "Salome!"

You may write the OCP at 510 Walnut Street - Suite 1500, Philadelphia, PA 19106, or call them at 215-928-2100 or visit them at http://www.operaphilly.com. However you get the information is up to you, but do get it and do attend this season.

Soprano Maureen O'Flynn will star in the opening gala concerts of the 1999-2000 season of the Opera Company of Philadelphia.

Opera Company of Philadelphia offers record number of shows

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

IT'S REALLY NOT HARD to write about the Opera Company of Philadelphia. It is, however, very hard to know where to begin with so much great news coming out of the company since Robert Driver took over!

How about this? In a time when opera companies are cutting back or going out of business, OCP will increase its performances next season by 50%. That's right, FIFTY PERCENT! The company will hit an all time high of 30 performances this season, up from eight when General Director Driver came upon the scene and up from 20 last year. In conversations with Robert I have been assured that his ultimate goal for opera lovers in the Delaware Valley far exceeds even the number to be offered this coming season.

Or, how about this? The season will open with six gala concerts in the Academy of Music featuring some of the world's operatic personalities. All the concerts will feature the OCP chorus and orchestra under the baton of Maurizio Barbacini. The stars will include Maureen O'Flynn whose picture appears with my column today. She has become a real favorite on both sides of the Atlantic and has never failed to thrill us in the Academy of Music. Metropolitan Opera great Barbara Dever and Ukrainian tenor Misha Didyk will make their company debuts in these gala concerts. Three megastars will be singing in the opening concert series. They are Denyce Graves, Jerry Hadley and Samuel Ramey. The dates: October 13, 15, 17 (Mat.,) 20, 22 and 24 (Mat.)

Then we come to the season itself. There will be six performances of each opera and first on the boards will be a new production of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro." For generations audiences have rocked the opera houses of the world with their laughter at the predicaments Figaro is able to get in and out of during the show. Figaro will be sung by Richard Bernstein; the Count and Countess respectively by Jason Howard and Nicolle Foland; Cherubino will be Rinat Shaham and Susanna, Christine Brandes. Claudio Desderi will conduct and Robert Driver will direct. Performances on November 12, 14 (Mat.,) 17, 19, 21 and 24 (Mat.)

A new production of Gioachino Rossini's "La Cenerentola" is the next offering. It is a slightly different telling of the Cinderella tale that we are familiar with from childhood. The title role will feature Vivica Genaux Paul Austin Kelly as Don Ramiro; Robert Orth, Dandini; Kevin Glavin, Don Magnifico; Sara Seglem, Clorinda and Marietta Simpson, Tisbe. Stephen Lord will conduct. Dates: February 16, 18, 20 (Mat.,) 23, 25 and 27 (Mat.)

Yet another new production, Giacomo Puccini's "Tosca," will follow. This heart rending tale of doomed lovers features some of the greatest arias ever written. The ill-fated lovers are Antonella Pianezzola and Ian DeNolfo; the evil police chief, Gregg Baker and the escaping prisoner, Michael Riley. Maurizio Barbacini will be in the pit. Performances: March 24, 26 (Mat.,) 29, 31, April 2 (Mat.) and 5.

A revival of one of the great performances of the 1995 season, Richard Strauss' "Salome" will be the final opera of the season. I can't wait to see this one again. Every bit of the drama of the Biblical tale is brought out in this production to be directed by Robert Driver and conducted by Andreas Mitisek. The title role will be offered by Jayne Casselman; her father, Herod, John Duykers; her mother, Herodias, Barbara Dever and the object of her passion, John the Baptist, Gregg Baker. Dates: April 26, 28, 30 (Mat.,) May 3, 5 and 7 (Mat.)

There will be four evening and two matinee performances of every production in the Academy of Music. All operas will be performed in their original language with supertitles over the proscenium.

A word about tickets. For the last two season the Opera Company of Philadelphia has had sell out performances. You need to get orders in this summer to avoid disappointment. There is a beautiful, color brochure with full information about the season and it is yours for the asking. By the way, don't miss the graphics for "Salome!"

You may write the OCP at 510 Walnut Street - Suite 1500, Philadelphia, PA 19106, or call them at 215-928-2100 or visit them at http://www.operaphilly.com. However you get the information is up to you, but do get it and do attend this season.

Soprano Maureen O'Flynn will star in the opening gala concerts of the 1999-2000 season of the Opera Company of Philadelphia.

The fifth annual July 4th Boat Parade takes place Sunday on the Sassafras River in Galena, Md., at 6 p.m. More than a dozen prizes will be awarded including the "most creatively decorated," for the Classic Boat division, and other categories. There is no fee to enter and boats of all sizes, power or sail can participate. Following the parade, all participants are invited to a party at the Sassafras Harbor Marina where winners are announced. Fireworks after dark For information, call 410-648-5510.

Flag waving is for everyone

An American flag is a simple way to display patriotism and pride at any time of year, but especially on the Fourth of July. Staff at Home Depot offer these tips for installation and protocol.

Always put the U.S. flag at the top if other pennants are flown on the same pole. Do not fly flags of different nations from the same pole. A flag can stay up from sunset to sunrise only if it is lighted but do not fly the American flag during inclement weather.

American flags for display on a pole range from $5 to $20 at Home Depot. Designated display days for the remainder of 1999 are: July 4, Independence Day; Sept. 6, Labor Day; Sept. 17, Constitution Day; Oct. 11, Columbus Day; Oct. 27, Navy Day; Nov. 11, Veterans Day; Nov. 25, Thanksgiving Day; and Christmas Day.

Take it easy and use seatbelts

Delaware Office of Highway Safety stresses summer safety

Thousands of people will be traveling roadways throughout Delaware over the 4th of July weekend. With an increase in the number of vehicles on the roads, also comes an increased risk for traffic crashes. That's why the Delaware Office of Highway Safety wants motorists to know that there are two simple things they can do to protect themselves against the risk of death and serious injury: buckle up and "Take It Easy."

Seatbelts are the most effective safety device available in cars and trucks today. It's estimated that correct use has saved approximately 10,000 lives annually.

The lap portion of the seatbelt should be worn snugly and low over the hips, and the shoulder portion should fall across the middle of your chest and not your neck.

If you're traveling with children this holiday weekend, don't forget to buckle them up as well. All children under the age of 16 are required by law to be properly restrained in either a seatbelt or child safety seat, which ever provides a better fit, and children under the age of four are required to be secured in a car seat.

Children under the age of one should ride in a rear-facing car seat, and children from ages one to four should ride in a forward facing car seat. Children ages four to eight should be placed in booster seats, as seatbelts alone do not provide a safe fit for young children.

Highway officials also urge motorists to "Take It Easy" this Independence Day weekend. Starting July 2, police will be on the lookout for aggressive drivers.

These are people who tailgate, weave in and out of traffic, speed, pass on the shoulder, fail to yield the right of way, and ignore stop signs and stop lights.

To protect yourself, remain calm and maintain your speed. Do not challenge or confront the aggressive driver. Memorize the vehicle description, tag number, and direction of travel, then when it is safe to do so, please pull over and call 911 to report the incident.

By following these simple safety rules, we can all have a safe holiday weekend.

Blue stars polish off Gold

Defense sparks surprise 30-12 victory in 44th renewal

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Although seemingly outmanned by players from two state championship teams and bigger schools, the Blue outshined the Gold 30-12 last Saturday in the 44th annual Delaware High School All-Star Football Game at Delaware Stadium.

On a warm night under a full moon before a crowd of 11,189, the Blue forged a 10-0 halftime lead. They pushed the score to 23-0 before Newark High's Richie Parson Jr. was able to put the Gold on the scoreboard with a 2-yard run in the fourth quarter.

"We had heard all the hype about how they had the better team and we wanted to show them how good we were," said Blue running back Dontrez Dean, a graduate of Hodgson.

"It was also great because it gave us another crack at Middletown (the Division II champs) and for others it gave them another crack at Newark (the Divi-

Colonials help stop Gold rush

It was very early in the first quarter of last Saturday night's Blue-Gold game. On its opening possession, the Gold was facing fourth down and a little more than a yard at its own 43 yard line. They set up in punt formation. But, the snap didn't go to the punter. It was a fake.

Oh yeah, just the kind of stuff you like to see coaches try in an All-Star game.

The only problem was, it didn't work.

Scott Linus, the Blue's All-State linebacker from William Penn, was all over the ball carrier dropping him for a loss. Blue ball.

No, the Blue didn't go in and score off of Linus' brilliant instinctive play. But, it did set the tone for what turned out to be a convincing - and to many - somewhat surprising 30-12 victory for the Blue.

"Defense controlled the flow of the game," said a hoarse Jim Linus, Scott's father who was a member of the Gold squad that downed the Blue, 15-6, in 1970. "Right from the get-go when (Scott) made that hit (on the fake punt) it sion I champs)."

From the opening kickoff, it appeared the Blue, who now lead the series 24-17-3, was not only more organized on both sides of the ball, but played with more emotion.

Blue defensive end Scott Terrizzi of Caravel said the seeds for the win began on the first day of training camp.

"We've been together since day one," said Terrizzi, who will play for La Salle University. "We became real close as a team and I think it showed tonight. Once we made it through the first defensive series we had so much confidence. "(Winning his final high school game) is just so great. It's the best."

Blue Coach George Kosanovich, now 1-2 as a head coach in the game and 5-4 overall, said in training camp that he had lots of offensive weapons and would find open spaces for them. Dean was one of nine Blue rushers who gained a total 188 yards to 172 for the Gold.

The Blue also outgained the Gold in passing yards 67-35.

"(Kosanovich) did a great job of putting the right people in the right places," said Dean, who will play for Wesley College in the fall.

Parson finished with a game-high 93 yards rushing on 14 carries.

Alexis I. du Pont's Jonathan Thornton led the Blue in rushing with 49 yards on six carries. Dean finished with 42 yards on seven carries and Hodgson teammate Jemel Johnston 31 yards on three carries.

The Blue took a 7-0 lead on its second possession of the game by driving 66 yards in eight plays. Concord's Archie Leatherbury III capped the drive by scooting 5 yards around left end for the score. Tatnall's Jesse Ohliger added the extra point.

An interception by Blue safety Tim Murphy of St. Elizabeth near the Gold 20 in the second quarter set up the next score. Ohliger ended up kicking a 29-yard field after the Blue failed to make a first down.

Howard's Rich Hamlin started the Blue off on the right foot to start the second half by returning the kickoff to his own 47.

Helped by 25 yards gained on four carries by Dean, the Blue reached the Gold 11. Thornton finished the drive from there by bulling his way into the end zone. Ohliger again added the extra point to make it 17-0.

Late in the third quarter, the Blue took a 23-0 lead on a 41-yard drive helped by an 18-yard run by Johnston. Archmere's Tony Tiberi scored on a 3-yard run to cap the drive.

Parson, who's headed for the University of Maryland, made it 23-6 by diving in from the 2 with 5:23 left in the game.

With 1:45 left, Hamlin scored on a 3-yard run. But while the Blue was still celebrating on the sideline, Newark's Brandon McClennon took the kickoff at the 1 and found room down the left sideline to go untouched into the end zone.

"I had to score," said McClennon of his return, which was the longest of his career at any level. "The coaches told me to look for the seam and I saw it."

BLUE-GOLD NOTES: McClennon's return broke the All-Stare Game record of 55 yards set by Howard's Art Martin in the 1962 game....Newark football coach Butch Simpson, who had surgery to remove his gall bladder five days before the game, attended the contest....Ohliger, who will try to make Miami's team as a walk-on, missed a 52-yard field goal attempt. He finished with a lofty 45-yard average for three punts. The best punting average is 48 yards (four kicks), set by Concord's Doug Smith in the 1973 game.

set the tempo of the game (for the Blue)."

Linus, who is bound for West Chester University in September, and fellow-linebacker Ryan Henn of Salesianum spearheaded a Blue defense that allowed the heralded Gold offense to penetrate Blue territory only once in the first half. The Gold did not score until the winner's had built up a 24-0 fourth-quarter lead.

As a reward for their scintillating play behind the determined Blue five-man front that got an impressive effort from Chris White, the hulking 6-foot-3-inch, 260-pound defensive tackle from William Penn, Linus and Henn shared the Michael K. Webb Outstanding Player Award.

"(Henn) and I knew we were going to kick some butt out there," said a beaming Linus, clutching the award as fireworks exploded overhead.

"It's great (finishing high school football) on such a real high note."

Linus said that when he first looked at the two teams rosters heading into game camp, he knew the Gold had a number of players from Newark and Middletown, state champions in Division I and II, respectively, the last two years.

"I knew we had players coming from a lot of the smaller school," offered Linus, "but we really came together all throughout practice. We had great camaraderie. The Gold overlooked us. They were talking stuff all week but (the Blue) stepped it up in the game."

Added Joe Taylor, Linus' teammate with the Blue and at William Penn, "When I came to camp I had never even heard of a lot of them. In (Blue Hen Conference) Flight A you kind of look down on the smaller schools. They don't have that many big name players. But every player on this (Blue) team is a great athlete and they deserve to be here."

Taylor, at tight end, and tackle Bret Vendrick, also from William Penn, each played their part in helping the Blue offensive line spring four different running backs for touchdowns.

NOTES: Linus becomes only the third William Penn product to receive the All-Star game's Outstanding Player Award. The others were Chris Risley in 1963 and Taze Proffitt in 1961...Only one other time has there been co-recipients of the award. And that was thirty years ago - 1969 - when Bob Tucker and Pedro Swann, both from Newark High, shared the honor. Tucker and Swann, along with another Newark great, Gary Hayman, lead an offensive onslaught in that game that produced the most lopsided win in the 44-year history of the game. Gold 44 - Blue 0.

Former Glasgow softball players help Crush to state crown

All-state pitcher Dana Travis, who attends St. Mark's High, tossed a pair of two-hit shutouts last weekend to help Midway Orange Crush win the girls 18-Under division of the Delaware ASA State Championships at Delcastle Recreation Area.

Midway also won the state 16-under, 14-under and 12-under titles.

Travis beat the Delaware Cobras 6-0 in the opener and the Cobras 4-0 in the title game. Glasgow High graduate Julie VanDeusen had three hits and scored a run, and Kristen Nau, also of Glasgow, also scored a run in the clincher. Cara Deldeo of Indian River had a two-run single.

The Crush, who play in the East Regionals this weekend in Richmond, also beat the Talleyville Travelers 16-6.

Braves advance to championship

Doug Knight's bases-loaded triple sparked the Braves to a 6-3 victory over the Orioles last week to send them into Newark American Little League's Majors championship series.

Knight, Danny Ryan and Evan Walker each had at least two hits.

In the first game, Walker had two home runs to power the Braves to a 5-2 win over the Orioles.

Danny Ryan, Ben Hoover and Randy Von Steuben combined on a three-hitter.

The Orioles' Kenny Finnegan had two hits.

Royals win two

David Boyd had a two-run single and Matt Beste had a double and a home run to spark the Royals to a 13-7 win over the Expos in a Newark American Minors playoff game.

Sean Reeves had two hits, an RBI and a run scored for the Expos.

In the opener, Brian Callahan, Jason Thomson, Steve Chopko, Bryan Whittington and Jake Harding each reached base three times and combined to score eight runs to power the Royals to an 18-12 win over the Mets.

Carl Shelton and Max Mueller each had a single and a double for the Mets.

UD men's hoop season includes Fiesta Tournament

The Fiesta Bowl Tournament featuring 1997 champion Arizona, Alabama, Delaware's first-round opponent, and UNC-Wilmington in Tucson, AZ., on Dec. 28-30, highlights the 1999-2000 University of Delaware men's basketball schedule.

The Hens' open Nov. 2 in a home exhibition game against the Nantucket Nectars Naturals. Nonconference games at the Bob Carpenter Center include American, Colgate and Howard.

The Hens play at Delaware State Dec. 4

Delaware begins defense of its America East championship Dec. 11 when it hosts Vermont.

UD basketball teams raise money in fight against cancer

The University of Delaware men's and women's basketball teams, led by coaches Mike Brey and Tina Martin, finished the season raising $41,747 for Coaches vs. Cancer.

The total ranked 10th in the nation among all Division I schools.

UD coordinators Tish Brey and Rosemarie LeNoir recruited individuals to pledge money on each three point shot the Hens' men's and women's teams made. The teams made 270 three-pointers.

Delaware also raised about $10,000 in donations during a 24-hour Kids vs. Cancer basketball game held in January.

The top fund-raising school was Syracuse with $269,713, followed by Kansas ($68,211), Iowa State ($55,724), Missouri ($65,237), Minnesota ($60,700), South Carolina ($60,260), Louisville ($53,360), and Penn State ($42,681).

Coaches vs. Cancer is the result of a partnership of the American Cancer Society and the National Association of Basketball Coaches in order to raise money for cancer research, education and patient services.

Delaware Diamonds earn trip to Nationals

The Delaware Diamonds, a 16-under girls volleyball team which includes players from St. Mark's, William Penn, Newark and Glasgow high schools, is representing the Chesapeake Region June 29-July 4 at the 64-team Junior National Tournament in New Orleans.

The Diamonds, who are coached by Traci Denhoed, began practice in December. The team competed in 11 tournaments and won seven, finished second three times and third once. They also won the Regional Tournament in Columbia, Md., and placed ninth in the nation in the Northeast Qualifier in Baltimore.

Will take you to 250 boat launches and fishing piers, 12,000 miles of streams, and 603 lakes.

Stream MAP of Maryland/Delaware

Why every fisherman and boater needs this map

Professor Higbee's® Stream Map of Maryland/Delaware is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind. This new 2 x 3 1/2' foot color map shows virtually all of the 12,000 miles of Maryland/Delaware streams, plus lakes. Now, overlooked streams and lakes are easy-to-locate on one map.

Professor Higbee's® STREAMS

Rave Reviews

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps." --John Pitarres, OBSERVER-DISPATCH-Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake ....then 'Professor Higbee's Stream Maps' are without question the finest." --Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"Professor Higbee's Stream Map belongs on the den wall of every freshwater angler and paddler in the region." --Tom Meade,Providence Journal - Bulletin

LOST STREAM MAP FOUND AND RESTORED

The recently published Stream Map of Maryland and Delaware resembles another map--known to Pennsylvania anglers as the "Lost Stream Map."

The "Stream Map of Pennsylvania" was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several yearsafter it first appeared in print. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates, declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology--the Maryland/ Delaware Stream Map was created.

Watershed Boundaries

Boundary lines for the 16 Maryland and Delaware watersheds, which drain into Chesapeake Bay, are shown on the Stream Map.

The entire Chesapeake Bay watershed covers 64,000 square miles in 6 states. Almost every drop of anything that falls on or spills in the watershed eventually ends up in the Bay.

Success in restoring the Bay begins with each individual protecting his or her own watershed.

You can also help by becoming a member of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, and supporting its efforts to reduce pollution, protect and restore habitat, restore fisheries, and educate and involve more citizens. The Bay belongs to each of us. Its survival depends on our actions today.

CHESAPEAKE BAY FOUNDATION SAVE THE BAY ®

A portion of the purchase price helps the important efforts of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.
