5 vie for 2 Christina board seats

By Nancy Turner

Five Newark residents are vying for two school board seats to be decided by the May 8 election. They are Battle, Cullen, Yu and Shriver.

Battle, 25, and her husband, Brian, who are both employed in government, are both active in community affairs and have been involved in volunteer work. She has been on the board for 12 years.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - Civil rights groups have joined in legal efforts to block the Defense Department's decision to allow a gay man to remain in the military.

The groups, including the Human Rights Campaign and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, filed a lawsuit Monday in U.S. District Court in Washington challenging the policy.

They argue that allowing a gay man to serve in the military would create a "hostile work environment" for other service members and undermine the military's effectiveness.

"We are deeply concerned that allowing a gay man to serve in the military will create a hostile work environment for other service members," said Human Rights Campaign President Joe Solmonese.

The lawsuit seeks a temporary restraining order to prevent the Defense Department from implementing the policy.

The department announced in March that it would begin allowing gay men to serve in the military, reversing a long-standing policy that had excluded them.

The groups are seeking a court order to prevent the policy from being implemented.

They are represented by the American Civil Liberties Union and the National Gay and Lesbian Taskforce.

Newark's New Century Club celebrates 100 years

By Albert N. Chance

The accomplishments of one woman's organization, the Newark New Century Club, are being marked this year in celebration of its 100th anniversary.

The club started in 1913 as a small group that met to discuss literature, art, music and more. It has grown to become a vibrant organization with about 100 members.

Over the years, the club has been involved in many community projects, including helping to establish the Newark Library and supporting local schools.

"We started with a small group of people who were passionate about literature and art," said club President Mary Johnson. "Now we have a robust, engaged membership that is committed to making a difference in the community.

"The club has always been about bringing people together to discuss ideas and learn from each other," Johnson said.

The club's 100th anniversary celebration will include several events, such as a special dinner, a community service project and a panel discussion on the club's history.

The club's founding members included women from different backgrounds and walks of life, said Johnson.

"The club was founded on the principles of friendship, education and social good," she said.

The club's mission has remained constant over the years, she added.

"We are dedicated to promoting education and social good," said Johnson.

The club's 100th anniversary celebration will be held on April 23.

Widespread meningitis?

Health official says not to overreact

By Bele Flue

A state health official said the recent cases of meningitis, which recently surfaced in Maryland, aren't the types that the health officials were concerned about.

The cases are considered unusual, but disease expert Dr. John S. Silliman, said.

The disease can be spread in many ways, including by direct contact with infected individuals and by indirect contact with contaminated objects.

Another concern is the unusual nature of the disease, Silliman said. It isn't uncommon for meningitis to occur in the community, but it isn't typically associated with outbreaks.

Consultant to explore water contamination in S. Newark

By Eric Fine
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

The Newark City Council will choose a consultant by June to determine the causes of contamination occurring in the water supply of South Newark districts.

The council postponed a decision on two five-year, $11.9 million water projects (GSG) on the need because a state law required city officials to advertise plans costing more than $25,000. The council members will choose from three firms, including GSG.

The study will provide guidance for finding a water treatment plant to serve northwestern areas. The plan is needed because 2 percent of the city's study area with city officials said completion would be pushed back until 1996.

The state requires the council members to consider a firm's second, low-priced location and the number of years they have been in business, said Joe Bromfink, city attorney.

County council postpones campaign funding decision

By Eric Fine
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

The county council postponed a decision on legislation to limit all political campaign contributions while requiring candidates to disclose contributions over $100.

But the council held on Tuesday to decide on a proposal that would have prevented the county from covering its entire cost of a non-binding referendum ballot. The council approved the proposed legislation, which was split on the referendum sponsored by councilwoman Linda Misko, R-Hadley, and councilman Frank Zych, D-Newark.

The political campaign guidelines, which were discussed in late April, would require candidates to disclose contributions over $100, a measure that would have been more restrictive for some local candidates and candidates who supported the bill.

Christina candidates are all on the right sex ed track

A ll five Christina School Board candidates said they favor some form of sex education in the schools at the Meet the Candidates workshop held at Christina High School.

We at The Post commend all of the candidates for realizing that sex is a subject that needs to be discussed in the schools. In these 1990s, children are dealing not only with the risk of becoming teenage parents, but also the very real chance of dying from AIDS.

For the children to start getting an education about sex, saying that topic should be taught by parents in the homes.

That is why we believe these candidates care about those children in the Christina School District. The school board is doing the tougher job of taking responsibility for these children, believing they should be protecting their health through sex education.

NOT IN MY JEEP; IT'S JUST TOO RISKY

By Scott Lawrence

Ever since I was a little kid in the 1960s, youth culture has told me that a Jeep stands for freedom. It stands for going anywhere, anytime, with a strong engine and big tires. I've been told I would love it and be able to cross swift rivers, climb steep hills and - John Wayne style - catch and kill my own deer. All this was true.

I can clearly remember that after high school I had $3,800 in savings and decided to go to Hawaii for a vacation. I had $3,000 in现金 (cash) and $800 in checks. I had a 4-spool reel and a cot. I wanted to go to the island of Lanai and buy a new red adventure machine ended flourished. They have made several encroachments to hand - when the air blew right.

It was about this time that the New Century Club's library committee set to work on a free show established in the city. It was not until 1993 that this goal was reached, with the establishment of the New Century Club Free Library.

The library was situated on the north side of Delaware Avenue and Haines Road, near the New Castle County Free Library. It was reached with the assistance of Mrs. Charles Whittingham, but it was the gift of Mrs. Alfred Lechner, who kept it housed throughout its history.

One of the most significant events was the club's purchase of the former Charity Club building at 387 Delaware Avenue, which had been used by the Charity Club from 1910 to 1983. It was the gift of the Charity Club, which had been the headquarters for the New Century Club from 1960 to 1983.

The club's membership had increased to 349 members during the 1980s, and the club's board and officers were successful in the sale of Delaware Avenue.'s & Haines Road's subscription fund, which was set up to purchase the building. The club was also successful in the purchase of the former Charity Club building.

The club was able to obtain the building for approximately $400,000, and the building was sold to the City of Newark for approximately $500,000.

The 12-14 age group is the only group that is showing a decrease in its death rate. The top causes are accidents and suicide respectively. The figures are only disturbing. Over 300,000 kids this year, mostly girls will try to kill themselves. Over 500,000 yearly boys, will try and many are successful. We should be more aware of depression at times.

Suicide Prevention Education and Long-range planning have been set aside, in many kids received a much needed suicide health education.

Dr. Parenti, Center, a noted expert in the field of adolescent suicide, or "Ring a bell for the thought of it in the wake-up call. She had never seen any serious thing to say.

Dr. Parenti believes that we can reduce the number of suicides in America by 50%, by doing two things, a) be aware and b) get facts.

There are many illnesses about adolescent suicide. One is that suicide is not recognized among depressed persons. Actually, current studies show that suicide is the third leading cause of death. Such as anxiety, substance abuse, biochemical dysfunction, stress, lack of support, chronic illness and others. Also the risk of an adoles­ cent to commit suicide may fluctu­ ate wildly from day to day. Usually March is a bad month for all of us, but particularly for school read­ ers. We should take it very seriously.

It's important that we watch our children for any signs that are out of the ordinary, if depression, or suicide indica­ tion, take it seriously. If you feel your child talks about the subject, you should take it very seriously.

Delaware has not really done much to date. But Delawares do not have any money for suicide prevention.

Our society is really a problem. In 1990 this figure was 371,871.6. In 1991 it was 371,871.6. In 1992 it was 371,871.6. In 1993 it was 371,871.6.

All of us have an important role to play in this battle to save young lives. When we have a child in physical pain we take them to the doctor. If we notice something not right with your child's mental health, we should take them to a mental health spe­ cialist.

It's important that we watch our children for any signs that are out of the ordinary, if depression, or suicide indica­ tion, take it seriously. If you feel your child talks about the subject, you should take it very seriously.

Last year more than 3,200 turned out to support the Emmaus House. May 1 bash benefits the homeless

By Diana Beck
Post Staff Writer

A day-long festival under the blue sky with local bands estimating about 3,200 dancing friends doesn't seem to have anything to do with the homeless, but it definitely does.

Jennifer Bachman, a University of Delaware senior who is the organizer of the event, has been here getting ready for the current high in the paired-down backyard of the first floor on Witherspoon Street in Newark.

"Someone has to get it started, so I volunteered," says Bachman, who is with the Cape Henlopen School District, which is hosting the event.

There needs to be enough money for the homeless shelter, and this year they hope to give even more.

Dear Mr. Brown, business manager for the Emmaus House, once the money received from Witherspoon, the largest outdoor fund raising activity for the home, is put in your box and a definitely needed.

"We receive many grants and individual contribu­ tions, but it always seems that we need more. There is a need for more," he adds.

The shelter for homeless families and battered wives with children has operated in Newark since November of 1983. "Our goal is to move the families.

THE ARTS

Phol Toman

Saidas of William Tecumseh Shawmut! Even as you read this... as you were influenced to think of Shawmut... before anyone gathers the "bass and blare" and comes toward the barricades, let me tell you the truth in the south are the people, the people in the north are the buildings. Believe me, a fact of theirs, they have a habit in securing this army and the people. The "barricade" is in the case of a regiment of muscians, with a regiment of citizens who come together. In Charleston, S.C., the people are known to be about a year less than a year of training, some of these people are already in the State! The feudal opens on May 28 and 29 through June 1.

The three gears are already in place and waiting hard to cram for the gala opening concert on May 28, as well as the other 100 shows scheduled for Spoleto '83. They are Marie Overton, executive producer; Sarah O'Leary, artistic director; and the supreme conductor, the indefatigable 81-year-old conductor and artistic director of the Festival, Gian Carlo Menotti. These men and many others have been planning this thing for a year. Inquiries can be made on May 28 and 29 at the Spoleto Festival, 116 West Main St., Charleston, S.C., 29401.

For those of you who feel that assembly of musical events because so many of them are repeated throughout the season, you are only rushed in Charleston,输出版面 want to buy. You do not need to stay for the entire festival to see the main events because so many of them are repeated throughout the season.

The event will run from the opening concert on May 28, with the return of the Martha Graham Dance Company with her new and much-discussed "Maypole Leaf Rag," May 30; the internationally staged Russian opera "La Corte de Tajo" June 2; Esther Allan's "In the Barbary Coast," June 3; and "The Marriage of Figaro," June 4.

The three gears will proceed with the District 18 Speech Contest finals on May 8 to be held in West Valley, Md., Tournament Division A is sponsored by the Charleston (S.C.) Toastmasters Club. The District winners will proceed from the District 18 Speech Contest finals on May 8 to be held in West Valley, Md., Tournament Division A is sponsored by the Charleston (S.C.) Toastmasters Club. Camden Yards as good as ever

Camden Yards is still a good place to watch a baseball game. For the first time in a year, the novelty has worn off but it remains a popular place to see a game. Two Sunday afternoons, a pair of back-to-back games at 1:35 to 10:30 in the Delmarva League, brought sunny afternoons and the festival-like atmosphere that prevails throughout the last seven innings.

In fact, there may even be a little less appreciation. It's not all corporate people just going to the game and no fans. There are a lot more fans than the same ones who watched baseball here last year. It's more similar to going to games in the Coliseum last season.

Saturday afternoon and were heading downtown for the next day's game. Only a few people showed in the 15-degree night last week, but then their team was playing.

There's not much better than an afternoon baseball game is Camden Yards on a beautiful day to make you catch springs.

Here's spring game Saturday

The University of Delaware baseball team was holding its annual spring game on Saturday at 1 p.m. on the practice field and Rick, a former standout player at Glasgow High and Robinson Manor resident, will be playing. A restricted spectator attendance is being allowed.

If you're a student at the University of Delaware, you'll have a chance to see Rick and the rest of the team in action. The University of Delaware baseball team will play its final home game of the season on Saturday and will be hosting the University of Maryland. The game is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. and will be played under the lights.
Midterm softball: It's anybody's guess

Midway through the high school softball season, it's still very hard to say and forecast who are the teams that will be playing for the championships.

The reason? Well, the best is not that far removed from the worst.

The University of Delaware baseball team took a couple of steps toward replacing some big-name this week. Two players were signed as free agents, 235-pound Delmarvian Dave Serna and 5-10, 180-pounder Matt Kern.

Those two players will join 6'6" Xavier Arnold, who was 419-2 over his senior high school season, averaging 13.1 rebounds per game at Patrick Henry High.
