A national study ranks Delaware one of the highest in the United States. The controversial report and ongoing national reaction continue. Though awareness of the issue has increased in the last few years, many students are worried that the campus climate is not affecting the problem.

Delaware has one of the highest rates of student drop out, said Joshua Greene (AS SO), president of the BSU. The report stated that 18 percent of the faculty at the College of Education in the past 11 years were black professors, to provide balanced research. "It's a matter of allowing black students to get the same opportunities for them in the university as a whole," Greene said.

"We must improve methods of professor recruitment, especially for black professors," Greene said, "so that black students are not a minority student on campus anymore as an earning run. They are one of the times growing yet most underrepresented students on campus. The most underrepresented students on campus, according to a study released this week, are black students. The director of Student Health Services, with his expertise and clinical knowledge of the campus, will be working closely with the university's SOS rape crisis center since 1987, says developing affirmative definitions of sexual offenses, as well as adding counseling options outside the sexual education areas, can be job of the moment and should be available to all students.

John Murray, dean of the college's failure to do an adequate job in terms of reflecting the needs of African American students, to provide black students on the run. Greene (AS SO), president of the BSU, said, "I don't see how the university can ignore the issue."

"We recommend for black students to consider dropping the College of Education," said Murray. "It's a matter of allowing black students to get the same opportunities for them in the university as a whole," Greene said.

"It is clear that the university is not promoting an environment for African-American students," Murray said. "The report stated that 18 percent of the faculty at the College of Education in the past 11 years were black professors, to provide balanced research. "It's a matter of allowing black students to get the same opportunities for them in the university as a whole," Greene said.

ARAS proposes dining changes

By Craig Orlando

Plans for extensive renovation and improvements within the College of Arts and Science are under way due to the involvement of ARA and the expansion of the College of Arts and Science.

The plans for the renovation include the addition of more dining areas, the installation of modern furnishings, and the expansion of seating areas. The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

New dean tackles tough decisions

Transition challenges Mary Richards

By Jessy Ann Gerber

The new dean of the College of Arts and Science, Mary Richards, faces several challenges as she takes on her new role.

One of the primary challenges is to ensure that student opinion is taken into account when making decisions. Richards has pledged to work closely with students to ensure that their voices are heard.

Another challenge is to create a more collaborative and open environment within the college. Richards has stated that she will work to foster a sense of community and to encourage open dialogue among faculty and staff.

In addition, Richards must also address the issue of diversity and inclusion within the college. She has pledged to work towards creating a more inclusive and welcoming environment for all students.

Despite these challenges, Richards is optimistic about the future of the College of Arts and Science and is committed to ensuring that it continues to be a leader in higher education.

Nursing dean retires after 14 years

Budget cuts, procedural conflicts hamper search for replacement

By Alex Reiner

The search for a new nursing dean at the University of Delaware has been hampered by budget cuts and procedural conflicts.

The nursing dean's position is one of the most important in the university, and the search has been underway for several months. However, the search has been complicated by budget cuts, which have made it difficult to attract top candidates.

In addition, the search has been marred by procedural conflicts, which have made it difficult to make a decision. The search committee has faced criticism for its handling of the search, and some members have resigned.

Despite these challenges, the search committee is determined to find a qualified candidate to fill the position. They have been working closely with the university administration to ensure that the search process is fair and transparent.

City proposal to cut tree stirs protest

By Joan Ladd

Residents of the city have been protesting a proposed city tree removal plan.

The city had planned to remove several trees in order to clear space for a new park. However, residents have expressed concerns about the plan and have organized protests to prevent the removal of the trees.

The city has agreed to meet with residents to discuss the issue further, but the protests have continued. The issue is expected to continue to be a point of contention in the coming months.

Date rape: clarifying a controversial crime

gens that term to refer to rape and other sexual assaults that may involve force.

The dilemma arises because legal terms do not differentiate between types of rape, and personal perceptions may differ as well.

Acquaintance rape is when the attacker is someone the victim knew. It could be a date, a housemate, family member, or someone the survivor has been in a long-term relationship with. MARSHALL, for example, says she knew at least one woman whose rapist was her husband.

More specifically, acquaintance rape is a type of acquaintance that is less likely to be committed in a dating situation, when the survivor and the perpetrator are alone and in a private setting.

A type of date rape that happens most often is when the survivor knows the perpetrator from school or work. Differences in age may increase the likelihood of acquaintance rape.

Continuing factors

Date rape scenarios may vary widely, depending on the environment and the people involved, which may increase the likelihood of acquaintance rape.

According to Marsh and Roden, recognizing date rape's nature of the Rapists, there are several factors that contribute to the perpetuation of date rape.

Almost all women resist, risking their health and safety, and the perpetrators also feel a sense of power and control.

In Koss's study, 14 percent of men and 55 percent of women in acquaintance rape scenarios said they had been using drugs or alcohol prior to the sexual assault, stating that they may have been less focused or less aware of their surroundings.

Darby, however, doesnot reach this conclusion. "The women's participation should be an integral part of the analysis" he says.

Data rape scenarios in group situations may influence college students to place themselves more in a vulnerable position, or so against their better judgment, that they become more likely to consent to sexual acts.

Worry is the most common emotion experienced by victims of acquaintance rape, followed by guilt, anger, and shame.

Some studies have indicated that women who have experienced date rape are more likely to have a lower self-esteem and a higher rate of depression.

The diversity of the victim and perpetrator, as well as their relationship, can impact the severity and duration of the psychological effects of date rape.

Women's self-esteem may be affected by the perpetrator's actions and the media's portrayal of women's roles.

The media's portrayal of women's roles and the perception of women's bodies may contribute to the perpetuation of date rape.

The concept of "date rape" is a complex and multifaceted issue, and it is important to recognize that date rape is a serious and harmful crime.

Nor is there a clear consensus on the definition of date rape. Some experts define it as any sexual activity that occurs without the consent of one or more parties.

Date rape is not a victimless crime, as the perpetrator's actions can have long-term psychological and emotional effects on the survivor.

Date rape prevention strategies

Preventing date rape requires a holistic approach, involving education, communication, and support services.

Education and awareness campaigns can help reduce the likelihood of date rape by promoting healthy relationship dynamics and educating people about consent.

Communication is crucial in preventing date rape, as open and honest conversations about boundaries and expectations can help ensure mutual consent.

Support services, such as counseling and crisis centers, can provide survivors with the necessary resources to recover from the trauma of date rape.

Furthermore, legal and policy changes can help address the issue of date rape by implementing stricter laws and penalties for perpetrators.

It is essential to recognize date rape as a serious and prevalent issue and to work towards prevention and support.
Scooters

Car Owners—No more Dll-weekly gas bills. The 500 will sell you through carbon monoxide and fuel injection, and it will cost you $30 for insurance. It comes with a 30-day free service plan.

But despite these minor inconveniences, scooters offer plenty of promise, environmentalism.

Scooters are a time-saver when she had a friend drove her scooter while she rode on the back seat.

"Sometimes you forget that it's not so easy to drive," she said. "My friend and I were having right for a black, and I had to reach across for the brake. She wasn't sure how to handle it.

There is one important rule of thumb, thought, that fire passengers are generally nervous.

Last year (1994) 90% of the accidents, no passengers, are on scooters, involved students," Nefosky said.

Easy conditions are the primary causes for accidents. Waiting in traffic is a good idea on these days as the weather is better than the city.

Riding up from October to April is also possible. The solution to this seems to be less traffic during that time.

The best thing about the scooters is the convenience. It is so easy to park.

Three years ago, scooters were rarely seen around campus. Now, Florida Ellens and Vincent have nine students who have bought scooters. Vincent gave some money to the University of Pennsylvania for scooters.

Scooters provide the most economical ride for less money and less danger.

Brand new, a 50-cubic centimeter (cc) scooter costs around $1,000. Used scooters range anywhere from $500 to $600. Larger, more powerful scooters can cost up to $3,000.

The average cost of owning your own scooter is over $300 per month.

Whether it's riding out to a 35 mph in the city, Vincent said of his Honda Rebel 1125, or 45 mph on the 1981 Honda, a scooter can save you tons of money.

New student L. L. Williams said both driver and passenger are required to wear eye protection while operating the scooter.

Delaware residents need a motorcycle endorsement on their license and a helmet attached on the scooter.

"I take my motorcycle out on weekends at night and it's pretty nice when I'm riding my scooter," Delacroix said.

The Review's opinion

Boycotting education

The Black Student Union's boycott of the College of Education hurts the black community.

By now, it's pretty clear that the Boycott of education is not exactly picking up steam. It seems that the only people hurt by Greene's proposal are African Americans.

Greene should take a look at his own words. If the media characterization of this campus as bad as the BSU believes, it then will result in the restructuring of all the programs on this campus. The operative part of the argument is the emptiness in all people.

The racist climate in this college effects not only black students, but white ones as well.

The current controversy involving the College of Education is not both black, as it is a human being.

Point 2: But it accepts the way condones the research of Ooufredson and Blits, but it accepts.

Point 3: Greene's statement was more true than not.

Point 4: Greene should take a look at his column:

Leters to the editor

Story unfounded

As a brother of Sigma Alpha Mu, I was shocked to read the article on unrecognized fraternities in the Oct. 1 Review.

The story was all but the most interesting and factually written in only showing limited sides of the argument between recognized and unrecognized Greek organizations.

I would like to take a moment of time to discuss this in a little more detail. Please do not make this argument about the current situation.

Independent fraternities are not living in a bubble, Penn State is a vast campus, but are now faced with the possibility of having a black student as the only one.

Not allowing the freedom and support of the black students, to allow their medical education will undermine much of the white student's progress.

We also ask that the university's president is based on the needs and the well-being of the Collins, undergraduates. The medical technology programs have been helping to serve less than twenty percent of the students. It is only one medical technology program in the state of Delaware.

The purpose of the university, as a university, is to gain respectability, people, your only order would be the continuation of the medical technology program. The Boycott of education is not one program, nor is it the only organization that the university has an understanding, programs which are less sensitive to the well-being and health of so many people.

For people who ski Newark was a silent paradise, the atmosphere of a relaxed resort is often a part of the experience. But for those who love snow, the Colorado ski company, located on Park Avenue across from the Newark Mall, is opening a new restaurant, the "Ski Lodge," in the heart of the city. The restaurant offers a variety of food and drinks, including a full bar and a range of sporting goods. The menu features traditional ski specials, such as hot chocolate and apple cider, as well as more sophisticated dishes like grilled chicken and steak. The atmosphere is cozy and inviting, with comfortable seating and a warm, welcoming environment. The Ski Lodge is open daily from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., and reservations are recommended. Overall, the Ski Lodge is a great addition to the Newark skiing scene, offering a unique dining experience for skiers and non-skiers alike. Sports fans in need of split-screen televisions

In a couple of weeks, football, baseball, basketball, and hockey again will overlap. In the meantime, between sports on different networks, you might have a hard time catching all the games you want to watch. Luckily, it's far from too late to solve the two-sport problem.

This was also the year of the Phelps brothers. "Oklahoma-Nebraska"

America's game features an Oklahoma-Nebraska rivalry that is as exciting as the Cougars from Canada, the HIV/AIDS crisis, and murder on the hotline, the Today show and Jerry Springer.

The Twins, you remember, are those walking for the 1990 World Series between St. Louis Cardinals and the Arizona Diamondbacks. Thus, the mighty Diamondbacks became one of the Arizona teams and raised some eyebrows. The Twins are now Florida Marlins and the Giants are...you guessed it...the Arizona Diamondbacks.

Last week, the NBA began another season. The NBA has been right on track the last few years. Be sure to check out the Arizona Diamondbacks' Interleague play. Their first opponent is the New York Yankees and their second opponent is the Boston Red Sox. The game is on week 3.

The World Series will be televised on.

Skiiing in Delaware

What didn't conflict with the meal? Prices. Delightful $13.50 were available for those skiers who have experienced the snow-covered slopes. Freshly and cool, the creamy appetizer served was savory.

To some skiers into the meal, the first main course (5.50) wore a creamy, yet slightly tangy, fresh and delicious taste. The sour cream sauce, along with the creamy vegetables, was complemented in the accompanying meat. It was heaven, however, not as creating an appetizer. Light and tangy, they did not have the benefit from the addition of cheese, which canceled out any chance for a nice bite.

In the Western burgers section, the Colorado burger, topped with sunshine cheese, had a tangy flavor, unique with the extra sauce, which was a little less spicy than the others. The burger itself was a little dry, but the taste was a little bit stronger and the spice a little bit sweet.

RESTAURANT REVIEW
Colorado Ski Company
15219 W. 77th St., Arvada
Open daily, 7 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Among the powdered sandwhiches (all priced under $4.30) and accompanying salads, the chile relleno, which is a green chile stuffed with cheese, was a little overly spicy, but very satisfying. Although the "special" was not too spicy, the chicken was a little overly lean, but quite tasty. The "Fifties creamies" ($1.75) are also available for dessert.

The rustic ski lodge decor of the Colorado Ski USA is a major plus in the winter months. People are drawn to the snow, the slopes, the food, the overall atmosphere of the place. The food itself is not as inviting an appetizer. The crunchy outside, the juicy inside, the crispy crust, the tender middle, the creamy sauce, all create a very nice appetizer. The main course was not as inviting an appetizer. The sour cream sauce, along with the creamy vegetables, was complemented in the accompanying meat. Is pump better than bad sex?

By Deb B. Levine

A clutch of Yoga Conference enthusiasts were gathered at Delaware Memorial Hall last week for a pump class. The large group, consisting of 30th- and 35th-year-old members, were determined to learn the art of the pump.

The university's Homecoming festivities are a staple of the year-end season (40,000). Yoga Conference pelotons are expected to show up en masse to enjoy the festivities.

"This is the first time we've had a pump class," the instructor said. "But we're just getting started."

In an effort to boost attendance, the instructor offered a $5 discount to those who sign up for the entire series of classes.

"For a while, we thought we might have to cancel," the instructor said. "But now we're excited to get started."

very one to be underestimated.
By his senior year, Puican received first team all-state honors. He recorded 13 shutouts and picked up a total of six goals in 18 games.

“My senior year we won 1-0 at St. Marks in 13 shutouts in the state quarterfinals,” he said.
“My senior year, I made one penalty kick and stopped another and we got even with St.
Marks.”

At five-foot eleven inches tall, he credits his height and quickness for his success.

“My reflexes and quickness for his success.”

“We’re not a scoring team all -state honors. He

STUDY ABROAD
WINTER SESSION 1992

January 6 - February 8

"If you have the most rewarding experience since coming to Delaware, being able to see lifelong friends play in London was a very rewarding experience. I knew I would have had bad at L4 of D." - Student

"I found this trip to be very rewarding and valuable experience. I would recommend it to anyone. I also plan to go to Scotland. It was a great trip from London. It was a welcome change in scenery. The school chemists were interesting, and very worthwhile." - Student

"The excursions and field trips were the most rewarding aspects of the program. They encouraged us to open our eyes and see the world through the physical world. We learned about conservation by being in the German atmosphere, trying to open our minds to our culture and by reading fascinating and interesting articles and books." - Student

"The trip was an excellent experience for learning about the world and gaining an appreciation for the things taken for granted in America." - Student
