"Marshall Farms" Stock In Auction

Constable Ellison To Conduct Sale Tomorrow On Alleged Neglected Animals

The final chapter on the cruelty proceedings against the Marshall Farms of Maryland, Inc., recently started by Newark police, with the aid of S. P. C. A. authorities in Wilmington, and reported in The Post in its issue of February 4th and 11th, will be written tomorrow.

On that date, Constable L. S. Ellison, of Newark, will sell at Constable Sale, two mules and one horse, formerly the property of the Marshall Farms, of Rambo Crossing, near Iron Hill, and confiscated two weeks ago by the police, who charged they had been grossly neglected, and exposed to bitter weather with no food.

Considerable correspondence has been floating back and forth from John Marshall, representing the Farms, to Magistrate Thompson's office here.

Demands to know by what right the officers could seize the animals and hold them on another farm; threats to levy damages against parties responsible for the seizure, offers and counter-offers, all carefully type-written and signed by "John Marshall," were included in the letters.

A few days ago, according to Constable Ellison, Marshall retracted his position somewhat and threw himself upon the mercy of the court. He stated, according to police here, that he would gladly face the courts if the animals were returned to him. Ellison is said to have replied that when he comes to Magistrate Thompson's office to pay his fine of $50.00 and costs for alleged cruelty, he will receive the animals.

There the matter rested. Several offers have been made for the mules to date, and there is no doubt but that all three animals will be sold tomorrow.

Some mystery still clouds up the exact status of "Maryland Farms, Inc." All that is known here is that stock is held in the concern by several people, among them Nathan James, a Negro, who, according to the police, is employed at the Marshall Farm.

AWARD RURAL ROUTES

Nearby R. F. D. Men Appointed By Post Office Department

H. H. Billany, fourth assistant postmaster general, in charge of the rural carrier service of the country, announced yesterday that eleven star route contracts in Delaware have been awarded for a term of four years from July 1, 1925. The routes in this county and those to whom the contracts for the four-year terms were given are: Stanton to Christians, Mrs. Lena Smith; Port Penn to Delaware City, George H. Jackson; Wilmington to Hockessin, Raymond A. O'Neal; Saint Georges to Kirkwood, Clarence Jamison; Odessa to Middletown Railroad Station, Victor Long; Buckbird to Forest, John Gree.

At Bankers' Conference

George W. Rhodes and Warren A. Singles are attending the mid-winter conference of the Trust Company Section of the American Bankers' Association, held in New York this week. They will attend the annual banquet Thursday night.

R. W. Heim Broadcasts

From WIP March 3rd
On Tuesday evening, March 3rd, at 8:35 p. m., R. W. Heim, State Director for Vocational Education, will deliver a short address over the radio from Station W.I.P., Gimble Brothers in Philadelphia, it was announced late last week.

The topic of his talk will be a general outline of the Vocational Plan in Delaware. Notices have been sent to agricultural teachers and students in this vicinity concerning the address, and many Newarkers will listen in that evening.

From the same station at the same time last night, H. O. Simpson, State Supervisor for New Jersey, gave a similar talk.

PRESIDENT THOMAS IS UNABLE TO SPEAK HERE

Illness Causes Cancellation of Dates; Cannot Address Local Chamber

Following a long distance telephone call made this morning, it was announced that President Thomas, of Penn State College, would be unable to speak here before the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday evening, February 26th next.

Hopes were held that Dr. Thomas would consent to come. Today is the first day at his office in three weeks, due to illness. His physician has forbidden that he make speaking engagements for at least a month. Over the phone, he expressed his regrets that he could not be with the Newark people that night.

Officials of the Chamber in charge of the dinner are not dismayed, however, and new plans to get a prominent speaker here on the 26th are already under way.

Wilmington's Chamber will be represented at the dinner by the new president, William F. Metten, Gerrish Gassaway, manager, Will White, and several other active members.

Perhaps the chief local feature will be the election of a new Board of Directors and officers for the ensuing year. Mayor Frazer, I. N. Sheaffer and Warren A. Singles comprise the Dinner Committee. At the business session, J. Earl Dougherty's Nominating Committee will make their report and the elections will be held.

Paul Jaquette Gets $100 Boys' Club Prize

Award by B. and O. Railroad Goes to Local Boy for His Record

As a reward for completing the most outstanding record of any member of the New Castle County Boys and Girls Agricultural and Home Making Clubs in 1924, J. Paul Jaquette of Newark, has been awarded the prize of $100.00 offered by the Agricultural Development Department of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for this achievement.

Announcement of this award has just been made by A. D. Cobb, State Leader of County Agents of the Extension Service of the University of Delaware under whose supervision, Boys and Girls Club work has been conducted in New Castle County.

Paul is the son of J. David Jaquette, a well known farmer living near Newark, and has been a poultry club member for three years. During this time he has developed a flock of Barred Plymouth Rock poultry that has returned a good profit each year.

His record in 1924 which won him the honor of having the most outstanding club record in New Castle County, is probably also the most outstanding club members' record in Delaware for this year, from the standpoint of profit.

In 1924 Paul kept an average of 55 hens during the season. His hens produced an average of 127 eggs per bird over the ten months period from January 1st to November 1st which is about twice the state average for hen in farm flocks. He hatched 297 chicks, selling 87 of them as baby chicks. His sales of baby chicks, live birds and dressed poultry for the year amounted to $175.90. In addition he sold eggs on the market for which he received $210.38, and won $4.00 in

"BOB" WOLF TO SPEAK AT ALUMNI DINNER

"What Ought the Alumni do to Help the Academic Side of College Life," will be the subject of an address by Robert B. Wolf, of New York, Class of 1896, University of Delaware, at the annual mid-winter dinner of the Alumni Association of the University in the Du Barry Room of the Hotel du Pont on Saturday evening, February 21.

The banquet this year will be strictly Delawarean, the speakers being either members of the faculty of the University or alumni. Then members of the faculty, each from a different department, will speak, being allowed five minutes each.

There are to be a number of special features at this banquet and indications are that it will be one of the best attended ever held in the history of the organization. Madden's Orchestra will furnish music.

Falling Walls Of Old College Library Recall Its Heyday As Noted Hostelry

Building at Main Street and South College Avenue, Now Being Razed, Once Housed Poe—Known For Many Years as "Delaware House"

WAS ORIGINAL HOME OF "THE POST"

Walls that housed great men from this and nearby States, walls which have looked down on Edgar Allan Poe, while he stopped in Newark, fell with a crash yesterday forenoon.

The last recognizable trace of the old College Library at Main and South College Avenues, passed into oblivion with that crash. To old residents, to lovers of history and The Post, it was a tragedy; to the up and going world of today, it was merely "another old eyesore gone."

We will not argue the point. It was both.

Men and women of Newark long since dead, their names but memories to even the oldest of our present citizens, once sat around the jovial board of the "Delaware House" in the good old days. Weary travellers stepped from lurching stage coaches into the coolness of its porch and parlor. It was a hotel in those days—a center, a common meeting place, an institution.

Four Taverns Here

There are only a few left today who distinctly remember the time when Newark held three flourishing hostleries. Hundreds perhaps do not know that the present Fraternal Hall on East Main Street at Choate was once "The Choate Hotel"; that its owner, John Choate, owned about all the land there was to own in that section. Then there was the Washington

POTATO, SOY BEAN POOLS ORDERS OPEN

County Agent Bausman Makes Announcement Today

R. O. Bausman, County Agent, in a statement issued this morning, said: "During the last two weeks farmers have begun to think about spring crops. The Farm Bureau has arranged for a large shipment of certified potatoes and of soy beans. Mr. Frank F. Yearsley, of Marshallton, who is chairman of the committee in charge, states that an option at a very attractive price has been secured on three carloads of certified potatoes from New York State and one carload from New Jersey. Mr. Yearsley states that due to the fact that farmers during the last few years have more than doubled their yields of potatoes through the use of certified seed, that over three carloads will be shipped into the county this spring.

"Mr. H. C. Milliken of Porter, who is chairman of the committee in charge of the soy bean pool, announces that he has an option on a carload of soy beans from the Producers' Association of Sussex County. Mr. Milliken states that although the price of beans is high this spring yet there are many farmers who want beans for hay crops. Farmers who have been using soy bean hay as a dairy feed unanimously testify to its high milk producing qualities.

"The orders for both potatoes and beans close Friday, February 27. Farmers who are interested in placing an order must communicate with the chairman of the respective committees prior to that date."

The University bills were given Mr. Hastings by University authorities over the past week-end.

The Women's College bill provides for a new dormitory and dining room and kitchen expansion, to be named Kent Hall and New Castle Hall respectively.

The deadline for new bills went down today at 4 p. m., with the usual quota of skeleton titles. Scores of measures were introduced at the afternoon session today in both the House and Senate.

L. DeHAVEN SMITH DEAD

Was Son of Former Postmaster W. H. Smith Here

Word was received in Newark a few days ago of the recent death of Laurence DeHaven Smith, a former resident of this town. Mr. Smith died at his home near Pittsburgh.

Deceased was a student at Delaware College, entering in the class of 1902. He took a pre-medical course and entered Jefferson College Medical School, Philadelphia.

He was the son of former Postmaster W. H. Smith, of Newark, and is remembered well by the older residents of the community.

BATTERY E TO PLAY

Entertain Wilmington Firemen On Court Tonight

The Battery "E" basketball five, under the leadership of "Bill" Bland, will engage the fast club representing the Wilmington Fire Department on the Armory floor here tomorrow night. A good game is expected, and local rooters will be out in force.

SURE, SPRING'S HERE

Whether the antics of Brother Groundhog are infallible is a question. It smacks of argument—long, aimless argument. It's just not convincing.

But when the well-known American boy gets down on his knees, buries a grimy fist in the dirt and shoots marbles, the die is cast. Spring has arrived.

The playgrounds and lots swarmed with kids yesterday. Faithful "shooters," worn and nicked from last year's campaigns, were trotted out again. As far as Newark goes, the season was officially inaugurated.

Spring, therefore, commences as of February 17th.

University President Suddenly Stricken

Dr. Hullihen in Hospital After Severe Attack Last Week Here

Word reached here this morning that Dr. Hullihen is to be taken today to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, where he will undergo surgical treatment.

Dr. Walter Hullihen, president of the University here, was reported yesterday to be "about the same," after suffering a severe gall stone attack last Thursday night.

About two years ago, Dr. Hullihen suffered a similar attack and underwent an operation in John's Hopkins Hospital. Efforts are being made to avoid an operation this time, if possible.

As the University head's condition failed to improve following his attack, he was taken to a Wilmington hospital by Dr. Raymond Downes Saturday morning. When he reached the hospital his condition was somewhat improved.

X-Ray photographs were taken at the hospital, and he was kept there for treatment and observation.

GOOD PRICES RULE AT SALE NEAR HERE

Cows Bring $130 - $200; Horses $125 At Cloud Auction

Remarkable prices were paid for livestock and farming implements at the William Cloud sale, held near Newark about ten days ago, according to reports.

In spite of the unfavorable weather a large crowd of people were on hand when Auctioneer Armstrong started to work.

Some of the prices paid were: Horses, as high as $125; cows, from $130 to $200; corn, $1.68 bushel; oats, 78c bushel; chickens, 28 1/2c; and ducks, 28 1/2c live weight. Auctioneer Armstrong considered it one of the best sales in the neighboring country this season.

Another large and well attended sale last week was that held on the J. Wirt Willis farm near Glasgow. It is reported that between $4000 and $5000 was taken in at this sale.

The Post this week presents several more sales of horses, cattle and farm-

TWO WELL BRED DOGS FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH AFTER BEING TIED TO BUSH

Another shocking example of cruelty to animals was uncovered by Miss Elizabeth Grime, daughter of Mrs. David Grime, of Deandale, recently.

While walking with her pet Air-dale "Jerry" one Sunday recently, Miss Grime came upon two dogs which had been abandoned to their fate along the "hollow" running along the northern embankment of the B. and O. railroad, near the Lincoln Highway.

The postman, upon being notified of the incident, made a trip over the ground, and also discovered the two dogs. Both had been tied fast to a heavy bush and left to freeze to death. One of the animals was a splendid

P. O. Situation Here Again Troublesome

Doubt That Department Will Spend More Money on Procuring a Lot

As a result of the revival of interest in connection with a pending appropriation of $60,000 by the Government for a Federal Building here, the troublesome topic of a post office site is again worrying town and college authorities.

The latest development in the situation came two weeks ago when Mayor Frazer, E. C. Wilson and Arthur Beales, all members of Town Council, called on official Washington in an effort to straighten out the site tangle. Assistant Secretary Moses, at the Treasury Department, under whose direction Federal sites are handled, was out of the city, and the delegation returned empty handed.

Present Site Trouble

From observation of the various phases of the site question, it appears that the Government stole a march on the University when they bought the corner lot at Delaware Avenue and Depot Road, several years before the College Development Plan called for the purchase of all adjoining land.

From a college viewpoint, the lot is unsatisfactory, as it becomes the site of the only un-college building on that side of Depot Road for a stretch of half a mile.

From the town viewpoint, expressed by officials, the lot is unsatisfactory due to its distance from the business section, and that a larger and better lot might be had either by exchange with the College or by another outright purchase by Uncle Sam.

From the Post Office Department, the present site is highly satisfactory. It affords convenient routes to both railroad stations. It is centrally located as to the scope of the town, and is highly desirable as to situation.

The Department is said to have gone on record as disapproving any more outlay of money for a site in Newark. This is considered final by town officials.

So that battle of wits goes on. A new $60,000 Federal building hangs in the balance. It may or may not come soon.

Town, College and Post Office officials are expected to reach some sort of an agreement. It is the hope of the townspeople and post office patrons that they do so. Present facilities are far inadequate. The Dear Old Public awaits with real interest the result of the three cornered controversy.

CITY FIREMEN VISIT

An informal visit by a group of "second alarmers" and members of the regular fire fighting force of Wilmington, took place last evening in the Aetna Hose House here.

The evening was spent, according to reports, in discussing fire problems and fire fighting in general. The city firemen gave the local company some pointers on handling fires. They were conducted through the new house here and expressed their admiration for the appointments and equipment of the Newark firemen.

BUSINESS PHILOSOPHY

By William Feather
Some people are always looking for "backers."

The idea is one part—getting the boss to O. K. it is three parts.

Don't aim too high—there are a lot of good things close to the ground, within arm's reach.

Nothing gives an honest man such a wholesome feeling as the writing of checks to pay his bills.

OBITUARY

John Long

Christiana lost one of its younger residents when John Long, aged 13 years, died at his home there on Wednesday last.

Funeral services were held last Sunday afternoon from Christiana M. E. Church at 3.30 o'clock. Interment was made at the Presbyterian Cemetery.

James Stafford

An old and respected resident of Christiana, James Stafford, died in a Wilmington hospital on Thursday of last week, after a short illness. He was 88 years of age.

Mr. Stafford, who was an active member in the local G. A. R. Post and a life-long resident of the Christiana community, was buried from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Annie Taylor, in Wilmington, on Sunday afternoon. Further services were held from his late home in Christiana later in the afternoon, and interment made in Presbyterian Cemetery, Christiana.

Deceased was also an active member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle.

Funeral of James Brown

The M. E. Church was filled last Thursday afternoon by townspeople and visitors, come to pay tribute to the memory of James I. "Jimmy" Brown, one of Newark's best citizens, who passed away earlier in the week.

The services were in charge of Rev. Frank Herson, assisted by the pastor of Brandywine M. E. Church, Wilmington. In his sermon, Rev. Herson called attention to the wonderful character of the deceased and recited several instances showing the devoted loyalty of "Jimmy" to his church and community.

A feature of the service was the fact that Mr. Brown had made his own plans for the carrying out of the funeral, selected the hymns, the pastors and other details. He was interred later in M. E. Cemetery.

The pallbearers were old friends of the deceased from Newark and other nearby points.

Mrs. Rachel Cleaves

The funeral of Mrs. Rachel M. Cleaves, aged 38 years, 304 Madison street, who died last Tuesday, February 10, 1925, was held from the home of her brother, J. Peter Walker, at Newport, last Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. W. G. Harris, of Elkton, officiated at the services. The pallbearers were John Porter, Orbert Levy, Ralph Smith, John Cannon, Charles Gouff, and Nelson Williams. Interment was in White Clay Creek cemetery. There survive her husband, William Cleaves; her father, John Walker, and one brother, John, besides the one mentioned. Mrs. Cleaves died of stomach trouble. She had been ill for two months, and had been operated on in the St. Francis Hospital, last January 24. Deceased was born in Christiana, whence she went to Wilmington 16 years ago to make her home. She was employed at the Bond Sealing Company.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our thanks for, and appreciation of, the many kind words and deeds and of the many expressions of sympathy coming to us from the friends of our deceased brother, James I. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. James Crow.
Sue R. Brown.
Joseph Brown.

MUSIC SOCIETY PLANS ACTIVE SPRING SEASON

Beginning Next Tuesday, Concerts Will Run Up Into June; Ticket Committee Named

Beginning with the Thoms-Stausebach-Austin Trio concert, to be held on next Tuesday evening in Wolf Hall at eight o'clock, the Newark Music Society is planning a series of concerts and other activities which is scheduled to run through the Spring months, and into June.

In addition to the concert here next Tuesday, tickets have been placed on sale for a lecture-recital by Agnes Clune Quinlan, also scheduled for Wolf Hall, on March 13th next.

On Friday, May 15, the Westminster Choral Club of Wilmington will render a concert under the auspices of the Music Society. Members of this club have sung here at various times in the past and they have proven very popular artists.

It is also planned to give a large musicale with strictly local artists in the limelight some time in early June. Details of this affair are not available as yet.

President Ryden, of the Music Society has appointed a Ticket Committee to aid in the distribution thereof for the next two concerts. R. W. Heim is chairman of the committee, and is being assisted by the following people:

- T. R. Dantz
- J. E. Dougherty, Farmers' Trust Company
- Mrs. Ernest Frazer
- Miss Alberta Heiser

W. C. D. FRESHMEN HOLD ANNUAL DANCE

Delightful Affair Last Saturday Evening

The Freshman Dance of Women's College was held in the Hilarium last Saturday evening. About seventy-five couples were present, including four guests who were, Miss Kathryn Ladd, president of the Student Council, Miss Madelin Winthrop, president of the Senior Class, Miss Georgia Wiggin, president of the Junior Class, and Miss Taey Hurst, president of the Sophomore Class.

In the receiving line were Miss Ruth Larter, president of the Freshman Class, Miss Beneva Lobach, vice-president, Dean Robinson, Miss McKinney, Miss Congdon, Miss Keely, Prof. Ryden and Prof. Reed. George Madden's orchestra furnished music.

The decorations of red and white streamers and red hearts were very pretty. The programs were unusually pretty, the front covers decorated with red hearts pierced with golden arrows, an evening view of the entrance to Residence Hall on the first page, and a cross-word puzzle in red and white on the last page. The favors for the gentlemen were pencils made of pyralin, manufactured by the du Pont Company in California and delivered by airplane mail.

The programs and favors were distributed by little Miss Elizabeth Tiffany of this town, who stood at the end of the receiving line and performed her duties with much grace and poise. Prizes in the novelty dance were won by Miss Margaret Brady and Mr. Robert Mublig.

Committees in charge of the dance were: Executive committee, music and programs, class officers, Ruth Larter, Geneva Lobach, Marjorie Johnson and Elizabeth Brady; Refreshments, Lydia Wilson, Helen Pearce; Decorations, Lillian Benson, Margaret Brady, Marian Steele, Margaret Carter, Alice Webb; Favors, Viola Williams, Margaret Burke.

TWO GAMES THIS WEEK

The Delaware basketball five will play two games in the local gym this week. On Thursday evening, Urainus will be the opposition, while on Saturday evening, Drexel Institute will line up against McAvoy's men.

Delaware lost its eighth game of the season Saturday night last, when the speedy Lehigh quintet swamped them 56-17.

NEWS BULLETINS OF NEIGHBORING TOWNS

DEATH LAYS HEAVY HAND ON ELKTON;
SADNESS PERVADES ENTIRE COMMUNITY*Deaths of Three Well Known Residents In Two Days Shocks County Seat; Brilliant Young Farmer Passes Away

With the deaths of Frank Burton Evans, one of Cecil County's really brilliant men; Edward W. Taylor, an old and respected resident of the county seat, and Miss Emily Constable, a popular and attractive High school girl, Elkton suffered three severe shocks during Thursday and Friday of last week. Not in recent years has the town been so saddened by death as it was during the past weekend. All three of the deceased, despite the great difference in their ages, were extremely well liked by the young and old.

FRANK BARTON EVANS
Elkton and Cecil County lost one of its best citizens, and the Bar Association one of its brilliant members, in the death on Thursday morning of Frank Barton Evans, at his big home on the northern outskirts of Elkton. He was 40 years of age.

Born and raised in Cecil County, Mr. Evans rapidly assumed a place among her elect. He attended the Elkton public schools, and entered Delaware College, graduating therefrom in the class of 1905. He made many new friends while at college in Newark, and was one of the most popular of the students at that time. He was chosen head of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity chapter at Delaware during the first year of its existence. He was a charter member of the chapter.

Following his college course, Mr. Evans taught school for a time and later began the study of law under his father, William S. Evans, Esq., who was practicing in Elkton. After completing the required course of studies, he was admitted to the Cecil County Bar in 1909.

From that time until his decision to go into farming exclusively, Mr. Evans rapidly rose in the profession of law, and was considered possibly the ablest young lawyer in the upper Eastern Shore, certainly the ablest in Cecil County. His gift of speech, fairness and honesty and determination to make each case his best one, made him a figure in legal circles of the county.

A few years ago, Mr. Evans suddenly turned from his profession and started an active farming career on his place bought in 1910, near Elkton. His farm is considered one of the show spots of the county. A splendid pure bred herd of Guernsey cattle, long sloping fields, well kept and productive, and buildings in the finest condition, are features of his farm.

In 1910, Mr. Evans was married to Miss Eliza Hance, of Baltimore, Maryland. The widow and the following children survive: Jane, aged 7; Frank Barton, Jr., aged 4; and Anne Lindsay, aged 18 months.

Deceased is also survived by five brothers and two sisters: John P.; W. Sterling; James F.; Harry C. and Stanley; and by Mrs. Albert Constable and Mrs. Reginald Constable.

Hundreds attended the funeral services held from Mr. Evans' late home Sunday afternoon. The Cecil County Bar Association attended in a body. Interment was made in Elkton Cemetery.

Among the many people from this section who were present was Dean George E. Dutton, official representative of the University and a warm friend of the deceased.

Mr. Evans' death followed a severe attack of typhoid fever, coming on a weakened constitution from a previous illness. Every medical effort was used to save his life.

MISS EMILY CONSTABLE
Miss Emily Constable, 15-year-old twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Constable of Elkton, died from peritonitis in Union Hospital last Thursday evening, following an attack of appendicitis.

She was well known and universally liked among the younger set of the town. She was a Freshman at the High School and a leader in many affairs of the younger people.

No greater sadness could be imagined than that suffered by Mrs. Constable, when her daughter and brother (Frank B. Evans) died the same day.

Miss Constable was taken to Union Hospital Wednesday night suffering from appendicitis. It was found that peritonitis had set in. Death came quickly despite determined efforts to check the spread of the poison.

The funeral was held from her parents home in Elkton at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Nearly the entire student body of Elkton High School attended the funeral services, showing the popularity and respect she held among her playmates and fellow students. Interment was made in Elkton Cemetery.

EDWARD W. TAYLOR

Stricken by paralysis at his home on West High street, Elkton, Thursday night last, Edward W. Taylor, aged 79 years, one of Elkton's oldest and best known citizens, passed away Friday morning. He failed to rally from the stroke, which affected his right side and speech.

Born in Strickersville, Pa., in 1846, Mr. Taylor led an active and useful life. He was prominently identified with horsemen all over the county; he loved horseflesh, and his business as owner and proprietor of several livery stables made him a well-known figure.

On February 4 last, The Post carried on account of the celebration of the 51st wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, which was observed at their home.

In 1883 Mr. Taylor removed to Elkton where for a number of years he conducted the Old Exchange Livery Stables. Later he rented and subsequently purchased the Howard Stables, where he conducted the Livery and Motor Services. Mr. Taylor was a man of marked business ability. He was a Director of the Elkton Banking and Trust Company, President of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company, had served as President of the Trustees of the Poor and Insane for many years and was a former Mayor of the town. He was companionable alike with young and old, and well liked by his associates.

He married Miss Emma McCleary, of the Fourth District. Mrs. Taylor survives him with a daughter, Ada, wife of William C. Feehly, and two sons, Victor S. and J. Alfred Taylor, all of Elkton. Several grandchildren and one great-grandchild also survive him. His funeral was held at 3 p. m. on Monday, with services at his home and interment in Elkton Cemetery.

ELKTON GUILD CLEARS $225 FROM TWO PLAYS

The sum of $225 was cleared by the Westminster Guild of the Elkton Presbyterian Church, as a result of two plays given in the New Theatre there last Thursday evening, it was announced yesterday.

The cast for the two short pieces were all members of the Guild. Many were turned away at the theatre, as every seat had been sold for the performance. It was one of the most successful amateur affairs given in many months.

A considerable sum was also cleared from the sale of candy between the acts, this being incorporated in the total mentioned above.

RUN OVER WRONG BRIDGE

Pennsylvania Men In Accident Entering Elkton

While B. E. Lambert, of York, Pa., accompanied by a friend, was enroute to Elkton, from Wilmington, over the new Glasgow road Monday night, he and they were riding in ran into the barricade on the new concrete bridge being built across Big Elk Creek, at the foot of Delaware Avenue, Elkton, instead of crossing the creek over the old covered bridge, which is still in use. Their car was damaged and both the men were cut and bruised about the face and hands.

MIDDLETOWN WOMEN WANT SEWER SYSTEM

Organizations In Line To Press Legislature For Bonding Plan

The women's organizations of Middletown have requested the Legislature to be permitted to have the town bonded for $36,000 with which to install a modern sewerage system. In addition to this indebtedness, the residents whose homes front on the proposed sewerage system would be called upon to pay a certain charge in order that the entire cost ($51,000) of the system might be met.

Because Middletown lies in a section of Delaware that is perfectly flat is one cause for the system costing as much as it does, it being necessary to build a disposal plant, where the sewage may be burned and destroyed. Engineers of the State Health and Welfare Commission have made a survey and prepared plans for the use of the community, but the women of the town started the agitation and are now pushing the plan.

American Legion's Auto Show Proves Great Success; Plan Another

Every Exhibitor Signs Up for 1926 According to Reports — Sell Many Cars Off Floor

VISITING LEGIONNAIRES PARADE SATURDAY

Attendance at Cecil County's first Automobile Show soared into the thousands on closing night, Saturday. Elkton was jammed with visitors from all over the county and nearby points in Delaware and Pennsylvania, come to see the exhibit. The crowd was dense within the big armory where 29 cars in three tiers across the floor, were arranged to make up the show.

From all reports, the Auto Show may become a fixture in Elkton. Every one of the dealers who bought space for last week have signified their willingness to sign up for a place in the 1926 show, if one is held.

As one dealer is reported to have said, "I would have to travel every day for three weeks about the county to meet as many prospective car buyers as I met during those four nights."

The show was carried through without a hitch, and both exhibitors and general public were highly pleased with the results. It is said that fourteen cars were sold from the floor alone and a host of prospective sales were traced directly to the Elkton event.

H. Frank Hurn, manager of the show, and his many able assistants were given the majority of the credit for the handling of the affair; procuring the publicity, and satisfying the various dealers and public at large. Considering it to be the first attempt along this line by the Elkton American Legion boys, their efforts were amply sufficient to cause a stir in auto ranks throughout the county.

Parade Features Closing
The bugle corps from Frankford Post, American Legion, arrived at the show late Saturday afternoon, and after dinner, paraded through the streets of the town, along with Cecil Post members. The parade, while short, was a great novelty and drew a great crowd to town and later to the show.

Friends of the Elkton Legion opened their homes to the visitors, served them dinner and breakfast the next morning, and good comfortable beds for their over-night stay. The Bugle Corps played for the entertainment of the wounded soldiers at Perry Point Hospital Sunday.

MERMAID

Leslie Walker was discharged from a Wilmington hospital recently and is staying with relatives in Wilmington. This is the second time this winter that Mr. Walker has been confined in the hospital.

Joseph Mitchell is expected home today from a Wilmington hospital. His condition is said to be much improved.

A number of young people of this community attended a party given by Miss Ruth Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Ball, of near the Mermaid. The occasion was Miss Ball's 19th birthday.

Joseph Hummel, tenant on the Clarence Walker farm near Mermaid, will hold a large sale on the premises Friday of this week.

Harmony Grange members and their families have been invited to attend a grange social at "Happy Valley Farm" as guests of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Peach.

HARMONY GRANGE IN VALENTINE PARTY

Harmony Grange held a delightful Valentine party in the grange hall at Mermaid Monday evening.

Prior to the party, the regular order of business was gone through with the Master in the chair. It was reported by Mr. Pennington that Harmony members had bought over $1000 worth of seed in the recent pool lecture.

The lecturer's hour was given over to the party, and a hilarious time was enjoyed.

The party opened with a "hand-shaking act," terminating in Miss Belle Chambers receiving a box of candy.

Then followed a Valentine Puzzle, the Battle of Balloons and a Heart Puzzle, the latter being so difficult that time was called for refreshments, with lots more solving to do.

The members were served cocoa, cakes and Valentine candies.

75th ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED

Friendship Lodge, No. 22, I. O. O. F., of Hockessin, celebrated its 75th anniversary Saturday night with a banquet and program of music and speakers.

Invocation was made by Rev. John D. Blake after which a selection was played by Browns' Family Orchestra. Following this a short history of the lodge was read by Ernest W. Crossan.

Two addresses were made, the first by Rev. R. K. Stephenson, pastor of Silverbrook M. E. Church, and the other by Walter E. Dengler, principal of the Philadelphia Business College. Other musical numbers on the program consisted of vocal duets by Marian S. Warren and Margaret E. Collins, and several instrumental solos by members of the orchestra.

Benediction was pronounced by Rev. M. D. Nuttor.

The committee of arrangements was headed by Ernest W. Crossan, who was assisted by Samuel S. Demmon, Harvey C. Woodward, John T. Burke, and Frank F. Yearsley.

Friendship Lodge was instituted February 14, 1850 at Peace and Plenty Hall, Brackenville. The list of charter members, all of whom are now deceased is as follows: Thomas J. Chandler, Samuel J. Chandler, John Churnside, Ephraim B. Yarnall, George Ball, and John T. Brown.

NEW CENTURY CLUB

On Monday, the members of the New Century Club laid aside the weightier matters of government and philosophy and gave themselves over to the fascinations of music and mirth.

There were about forty present to enjoy the program that had been so well arranged by Mrs. Hastings and Mrs. Eastman. Miss Nell Wilson played several pleasing selections.

All went away, warmed by that feeling of good fellowship that comes when people really play together. The Hospitality Committee provided refreshments for the afternoon. Altogether it was a very delightful affair.

Oath of the Young Men of Athens

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our city, by any act of dishonesty or cowardice, nor ever desert our suffering comrades in the ranks.

We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the city, both alone and with many; we will revere and obey the city's laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in those above us who are prone to annul or set them at naught; we will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of civic duty.

Thus in all these ways we transmit this city not only not less but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

Education and Statesmanship

The Americans of the United States, without having more great men than other countries, have the great advantage of having a larger proportion of moderately well informed men; although their education may seem less perfect, it is nevertheless better and more equally distributed. But that does not mean that the general education cannot be improved. And if improvement is a possibility, it is a duty.

Pierre S. du Pont de Nemours in "National Education," a Report to Thomas Jefferson in 1800.

Without education our children and our children's children will fail in the struggle for life and be surpassed by their more fortunate brothers and sisters of other states; with education Delaware may continue to occupy the proud place that it has maintained in the Union.

Pierre S. du Pont to the Citizens of Delaware, 1924.

In our country and in our times no man is worthy the honored name of statesman who does not include the highest practicable education of the people in all his plans of administration. He may have eloquence, he may have a knowledge of all history, diplomacy, jurisprudence; and by these he might claim, in other countries, the elevated rank of a statesman; but unless he speaks, plans, labors, at all times and in all places, for the culture and edification of the whole people, he is not, he cannot be, an American statesman.

Horace Mann.

Boys and Girls vs. Taxes

Today the question of education is again before the citizens of Delaware for official action. Study, investigation and discussion of educational problems in our State for the last seven years have caused the standards to be so raised that National attention to our work has been challenged. Not only do educators marvel at the progress made but even the most casual observer admits it.

Pertinent and important as this may be, another very material asset has been acquired by the citizens of Delaware. Never, perhaps, has there been made such an accumulation of facts of existing conditions. No survey, official or private, is so complete as the facts available to the members of our General Assembly. We know of no question asked for, that has not been answered—and the answer has not been the opinion or point of view of any one man but the actual existing facts easily proven to any one.

Just now we have before us the School Building Program as prepared by Pierre S. du Pont. In this Plan he has had every fact needed for its practical outline. No public question, no corporate business was ever given a more detailed study.

Thinking Delaware appreciates this. That a man of his interests should go into this detailed investigation is unusual, to say the least. But this is not, just now, any expression of appreciation of his work but rather calling attention to our own duty in the matter. The study has been made, the facts and data collected. Nothing more is needed except an analysis and discussion—then legislation. Taxes, business economy, can we afford it—are the questions asked. It has narrowed down to Boys and Girls versus Money. The verdict rests with the expressed Public Opinion of the State. Public Opinion expressed definitely and with conviction will result in successful legislation for Educational Progress.

The members of the General Assembly at every Session visit the various Institutions of the State, inquire into the needs and make inspections of Grounds and Buildings. Upon this information is based their legislative action.

But strange as it may seem, they never visit Public Schools, the one big Institution of the State. If every member of the Assembly would inspect the School Buildings in his or her District and make detailed report, the question would be settled. No opposition is made by those who have actually seen conditions. Reports, facts, type, speeches and arguments—all seem to fail. Taxes loom large and we forget for the moment our children's best fortune. But let any one, we care not how sordid his view, how economical his policy, how honest his opinion, himself visit the Buildings of the State—we know and are satisfied with the result.

All we ask of our Assembly is that they take the facts presented, make actual observation of Buildings (a day will do it). Then go back to Dover, assemble the observations and vote—Boys and Girls vs. Taxes.

WASHINGTON'S DRAFT OF THE "DECLARATION"

There is a tendency in some quarters to deery the abilities of George Washington. He is slightly referred to by certain historians as a man of quite ordinary intellect, not quite illiterate, but incapable, for instance, of writing an important state paper without assistance.

We wonder if many Americans know that Washington conceived the idea of a Declaration of Independence nearly five months before that immortal document was given to the world; or that Washington himself, at that early date, suggested in concise but forcible English the general tenor of the Declaration as Thomas Jefferson afterwards wrote it.

Here is an extract from a letter which Washington wrote to Joseph Reed, of Pennsylvania, Feb. 10, 1776:

"If every man was of my mind, the ministers of Great Britain should know, in a few words, upon what issue the cause should be put. I would not be deceived by artful declarations nor specious pretences; nor would I be amused by unmeaning propositions; but in open, undisguised and manly terms, proclaim our wrongs and our resolution to be redressed. I would tell them that we had borne much, that we had long and ardently sought for reconciliation upon honorable terms, that it had been denied us, that all our attempts after peace had proved abortive, and had been grossly misrepresented, that we had done everything which could be expected from the best of subjects, that the spirit of freedom rises too high in us to submit to slavery, and that, if nothing else would satisfy a tyrant and his diabolical ministry, we are determined to shake off all connection with a state so unjust and so unnatural. This I would tell them, not under covert, but in words as clear as the sun in its meridian brightness."

Wilmington's Chamber of Commerce

With William F. Metten as President of the Chamber of Commerce of Wilmington, Gassaway as Manager, Captain Dillon and "Bill" Budd as executive officers and the Board of Directors, we may expect unusual, interesting and practical development.

They have interest, position, knowledge of opportunity and enthusiasm. With these and a definite practical plan, the citizens of Wilmington and the peninsula will realize the opportunity. And just these three things in our judgment are needed—a realization of what and where Wilmington is, based on collected facts instead of Banquet enthusiasm, a really intimate acquaintance with rural Delaware and a little civic energy. These three, void of provincial interest and politics, will do it.

In our judgment, Wilmington has the organization to do this, by incentive and ability. We expect it and believe it. Anything that we, out here in the hills, can do—call on us.

The Post back in 1912 when our new 5-foot door caused Newark to place us under special observation. This was our first remodeling and Success seemed appealingly near. When Kells was built we arranged our doorway to fit our first door if ever available. This week as the old Library falls, the Door comes down to Kells where is published the Newark Post. The editor is still under observation and friends enter smiling at our whims.

Many stories have entered through this portal—sad and happy, serious and flippant, stories told and confidences kept sacredly secret—all human. A Door of Memories, it is to us, full of human life and interest.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE NEWSPAPERS

President Coolidge's tribute to the American newspaper which he delivered at the dinner of the American Society of Newspaper Editors was a sincere recognition of the services which newspapers are giving to the nation as a whole. American newspapers, the President said, are particularly representative of the practical idealism of our people. They are the best newspapers in the world. They print more real news and more relable and characteristic news than any other newspaper. Then with a fine appreciation for the struggles for excellence and fairness which daily and weekly goes on in the editorial offices of all the papers great and small throughout the union, he said: "I believe their editorial opinions are less colored in influence by mere partisanship or selfish interest, than are those of any other country. Moreover, I believe that our American press is more independent, more reliable and less partisan today than at any other time in its history."

SMALL TOWER OBSERVATIONS

IF MARBLES COME, IS SPRING FAR BEHIND

All signs fail—but one. Every weather observer has his pet sign by which he judges and makes his weather predictions.

The thickness of the "corn shuck," is the final proof of a hard winter to one observer, while another depends solely on the chestnut crop. The "pine shot" growth is sufficient warning to some, the Ground Hog theory is the last word to others.

But they all fail at times—even the Thunder Squalls in February do not always bring the snakes out. But for the sure Sign of the Coming of Spring, the sign that never fails and checks on itself—Marbles, Bluebirds, Robins. Last week we heard a blue bird, saw a robin and—then witnessed our first game of marbles of the year. "If marbles come, is Spring far behind"—may Gentle Shelley forgive.

Marbles — Spring is coming near. Jumping Rope and Spring is here.

Explain it? No. But we never knew it to fail. It may not be in Books of Science but in our Diary of Observation, it appears every year.

Just natural Nature. There may be more Winter but Spring is coming. See it, feel it, hear it—"Fen, dubs, where's my last year's Aggie?"

prizes at the Delaware State Fair, making his total cash receipts for the year $390.28. He also had a gain in inventory value of birds and equipment of $44.00 so that his total gain and receipts were $434.28.

It is interesting to note the progress Paul has made in three years as a poultry raiser. In 1922 when he was 13 years old, he started by setting 45 eggs. He raised 25 pullets and 6 cockerels that year and showed a gain of $52.00. In 1923 from his flock of 25 pullets he raised 123 birds, keeping 45 pullets for his flock. His net gain for that year was $141.67.

Paul has made his record without any special privileges, or financial assistance. He is just a healthy average farm boy. In 1922 his birds were kept in a rough shelter made from packing boxes. In 1923 a discarded hog house was turned into a poultry house. In 1924 his father let him have an old shed which he remodeled to meet his requirements. In the summer time his birds had the range of the whole farm.

Three-Day Conference at University Here Ended Sunday Afternoon—Julian P. Price Chosen President of Union

SIX SLIGHTLY INJURED WHEN BUS OVERTURNS

Not a whit dismayed by the fact that 45 of their number figured in nerve-wrecking experience when their busses overturned while enroute from Baltimore here, Friday evening, 150 odd delegates from Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia, held a successful three-day Student Volunteer Union conference at the University the past week-end.

The Union, with the Y. W. C. A. cooperating, had charge of the program. Students, both undergraduate and graduate, doctors, missionaries, divinity students, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. workers all joined in the sessions held Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday.

The accident, in which five of the visitors were slightly injured, occurred Friday evening while two large busses loaded with young people were proceeding down a hill near Charlestown, Md. A tow rope broke and the rear bus crashed into the leading vehicle, overturning both. The injured were treated on the spot and later sent to Newark in cars and by train. The balance of the passengers came into town up until 3 a. m. Saturday, none the worse for their experience.

The injured were: Dorothy Diggs, Hopkins Nurses' Home, Baltimore, cuts and bruises.

Betty Walker, Presbyterian Graduate School, Baltimore, cuts on head and arms.

Mary Weinberg, Goucher College, sprained ankle.

Thomas Ward, Medical School, University of Maryland, cuts and bruises.

Karl Miller, Johns Hopkins, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Roy Feemster, Medical School, University of Maryland, cuts, bruises and shock.

Local arrangements for the conference were perfected through a committee of students of both the Men's and Women's College. John G. Leach and Herbert Lank were leaders in the Men's College part of the program, while Miss Stella Kite and Miss Dorothy Nunn helped out at the Women's College.

Sessions were held in Wolf Hall, the West Wing of Old College and in the Commons.

Visitors registered in Old College on Friday evening and, after a supper, a short program was held in Wolf Hall. It was at this time that word of the accident at Charlestown reached the assembled delegates.

The principal address was by Dr. Walter H. Judd, of the University of Nebraska, who is traveling secretary of the Student Volunteer movement. Talks were also given by Dr. C. S. Kim, of Korea and Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Y. Ying, of China, and now at Johns Hopkins Medical School, and Miss Mabel Easton, of Holyoke College and missionary to Congo.

On Saturday afternoon the following Union officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

President, Julian T. Price, of Hopkins Medical School; Vice-President, LeRoy Dudrow, of Blue Ridge College; Secretary, Miss Dorothy Butler, of Goucher College; Treasurer, I. M. Dinkle, of Western Maryland College; Missionary Educational Secretary, Miss Dorothy Mante, of Hood College; Alumni Secretary, M. R. Malone, of Washington, D. C., and editor of the "Tri-State Volunteer"; Paul G. Culley, of Hopkins Medical School.

Saturday morning there were group conferences and during the afternoon forums were conducted on "types of Christian service" in different rooms. Those who conducted the forums were as follows: "The Christian Home," Mrs. J. Harvey Borton, former missionary to India; "Non-Specialized Missionary Work," Rev. Lee H. Downing, missionary in Kenya Colony; "Medical Missions," Dr. Joseph S. Maxwell, missionary in the Sudan; "The School Teacher," Miss Reid; "Christianity in Business," J. Harvey Borton, of Philadelphia; "Students Preparing for Ministry," Dwight M. Chalmers, of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.

On Sunday morning, the feature of the day's sessions was the conference sermon, preached in Wolf Hall, by Bishop William F. McDowell, of the Methodist Conference.

Many churchgoers of the town were disappointed in not being able to hear Bishop McDowell. His sermon was delivered at 11 o'clock, at the same hour the regular services were being held in local churches. There was a rumor Friday last that an effort would be made to have the Bishop's

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

A delicious breakfast dish is eggs baked with cheese.
Try dropping doughnut dough by spoonfuls into fat.
Season boiled hominy with a little grated horseradish.
Prepared cereals are better when eaten with hot milk.
Vary the old dish of hominy grits by cooking it with raisins.

A little mint makes delightful flavoring for orange fritters.
Hot cheese fritters are nice served with salad of greens.
Meat croquettes are excellent served with hot tomato sauce.
In the sleeping porch one might use window shades of glazed chintz over sliding sash.
Toasted crumbs of whole-wheat bread give a deliciously nutty flavor to vanilla ice cream.

In Washington's Time

men of vision were building the homes that to-day are rich in tradition.

With sound judgment they sought the best materials that money could buy.

Such quality—in goods and workmanship—is the basis on which we seek your business.

May Fight Big Dam

Pennsylvania Companies Oppose Conowingo Project

Considerable opposition to the proposed project at Conowingo, developed at the hearing before the Maryland Public Service Commission last week. The opposition came from The Pennsylvania Water Power Company, it is said, which is the owner of the dam at McCall's Ferry. It is regarded as a battle between electric giants, but it is generally believed that the Philadelphia Electric Company, which recently purchased the Susquehanna Power Company, will secure the right to construct their dam at the point decided upon. This is believed to be at Shore's Landing below the bridge and would involve the construction of a new highway and bridge.

LOWER FARM VALUATIONS

Granges on Pacific Coast Demand Some Action Be Taken

Granges throughout the state of Washington are passing strong resolutions to the assessors and county commissioners urging lower farm valuations for the next few years, as a means of tiding over the desperate straits of the stricken farmers. It is urged that this is the only way many farmers will be able to stay on their land and that it will be wise policy for the state to put higher tax rates on other industries for a period than to lose altogether a large portion of its farm investment.

Linoleum should be washed, dried and varnished as soon as it is put on the floor.

Cross Word Contest Making Hit!

Opera House Crowded to Hear Awards Announced Last Week—Be There Friday Night, It May Be YOUR Name This Time

CONTEST CLOSSES AT 4 P. M. ON FRIDAY

That the first of a series of Cross-Word Puzzle Contests, published in this paper last week, with The Post and the Newark Opera House co-operating, was a bewildering success, can be proven by asking either of the two judges, who chose the lucky winners.

John R. Fulton and David Medill, two Main street grocers, were chosen as Judges of the first contest. It was no easy matter. There can be no doubt of that.

One hundred and twenty-seven solutions were turned in from the puzzle in The Post last week. The promoters of the contest hoped that perhaps fifty would reply. Optimists even said 75 might be reached. But when 127 came in, the impromptu headquarters maintained by "Benny" Blast in the Opera House box office resembled a polling place during national elections.

How Winners Were Picked

For the benefit of those who may not know how the winners of Contest No. 1 were chosen, the following information is given.

Promptly at four o'clock Friday last, the contest closed. Each solution was numbered to correspond with the "label" containing the name of the sender. The "label" was then removed, and the actual solutions were carefully gone over for possible mistakes. Several were thus eliminated. The solutions were gone over once more as a preliminary for neatness. A few more went overboard on this test.

Finally, about 40 correct and neat solutions were selected for prize judging. During the entire preliminary weeding out, there was no record of the names of the individual senders. Mr. Medill and Mr. Fulton were then called in and the eligible solutions submitted for their final judgment.

The success of the first Contest has assured both the Opera House and The Post that the community really likes the idea. The contests, therefore, will be continued indefinitely.

The winners of Contest No. 1 were announced from the stage of the Opera House Friday night, just after the first showing of "Judge's Cross-Word Pictures," a novelty movie which made a great hit here.

Each week brings forth a new Contest. The promoters reserve the right to change the basis for awards at any time providing that it is fully announced in The Post.

People from all over Newark and from adjoining communities took part in last week's sticker. The idea has swept the community. Everybody's talking in terms of "five letter words," vertical and horizontal.

Turn to The Post's Cross Word Puzzle Page NOW and read carefully the layout for this week's contest. You will also find there the winners of last week's contest.

The fact that you didn't win a prize over the other 126 competitors shouldn't discourage you. There's important news for you on the Cross-Word Puzzle Page today—news that may snap you out of your despondency and bring home the five big dollars.

Great Crowd Watches Newark Down Beacoms

Speedy Local Five Overwhelm Wilmingtonians 32-22 Last Night—Girls Lose 27-31

Coach Nunn's passers consistently outplayed the visitors and sifted through for seventeen field goals. Be it said for Johnnie Naylor's team, however, that they missed scores of apparently easy shots, often setting up a regular bombardment from inside the fifteen foot mark, only to have their stabs roll around the rim.

Newark earnestly went to work with the first whistle, and slowly piled up a commanding lead. The visitors failed to register once from the field in the first fifteen minutes of the game.

The second half found the local hopes sailing along under wraps, and at no time was the result in doubt.

Chalmers Stars

By far the smoothest boy on the floor was "Shorty" Chalmers. "Shorty" has taken on considerable weight the past year, but not enough to dim his speed. His handling of the ball, dribbling, keen shooting and expert "feeding" to his diminutive partner, Malone, stamped as the life of the party.

Captain Doyle played a splendid game, hard, aggressive and used good judgment in starting the offensive play. Little Malone and Jaquette completed the fast moving offensive trio along with Chalmers.

Patchell seemed off his game last night. He gathered in four goals, but aside from that, he was far from his usual form.

For Beacom's, Shaffer, Tingley and Weldin were the mainstays of the team. Both Coaches, Naylor and Nunn, made a few substitutions as the game wore on to a finish.

That the town loves a winning team could be seen last night by glancing around the drill hall. Seats were at a premium, the gallery was full and scores stood on chairs to see a part of the floor. The score:

Beacom College		Goals
	Field	Foul	Pts.
Boyer, forward	2	0	4
Shaffer, forward	3	1	7
Lingley, center	1	1	3
Weldin, guard	3	2	8
Totals	9	4	22

Newark High		Goals
	Field	Foul	Pts.
Malone, forward	3	0	6
Chalmers, forward	5	2	12
Patchell, center	4	2	10
Doyle, guard	0	0	0
Jaquette, guard	5	0	10
Totals	17	4	38

GIRLS TEAM LOSES

In a spirited rally in the last five minutes of the game, Beacom girls nosed out Miss Eggan's Newark Lassies, 27-21.

It was a hard game to lose, particularly since Newark led through most of the game, and had piled up a ten point lead when the last quarter began.

The fast pace of the final drive told heavily on the light Newark guards, and failure to call time out for a rest did more than anything else to lose the game. Misses Robinson and Singles played wonderful games. They were plainly in distress during the Beacom spurt, and Newark seemed to momentarily fall to pieces. Before they rallied after a time out, the damage had been done.

Misses Hindman and Lewis were high scorers for Beacom's. Misses Lewis and Gregg are Newark girls now playing with the Wilmington team.

For Newark, the valiant work of Misses Robinson and Singles and the shooting of Captain Frazier featured the struggle.

It was one of the fastest girls' games ever seen on a local court, and kept the crowd in a high state of excitement throughout. The score:

Beacom Girls		N. H. Girls
Hindman, forward	Chalmers	Chalmers	Chalmers
Lewis, forward	Frazier	Lewis	Frazier
Chase, center	Hossinger	Chase	Hossinger
Ten Eyck, side center	Armstrong	Ten Eyck	Armstrong
Albers, guard	Singles	Albers	Singles
Sheer, guard	Robinson	Sheer	Robinson
Substitutions—Gregg for Sheer, Chalmers for Blockson. Field goals—Hindman, 8; Lewis, 5; Frazier, 8; Chalmers. Foul goals—Hindman, Lewis, Frazier, 2; Blockson. Referee—Newlin.

HYMN OF HATE

(With the conventional obeisance to Dorothy Parker.)
I hate radio announcers,
They bother my ears.

There is the comical boy,
The one who can't say his call letters
Without cracking a sour joke
That makes all the listeners shudder.
Not for him the simple things the listeners want to know
Nuh, nuh. Something ripe in the way of humor,
Kidding the listeners and mispronouncing the performers' names
And then making a comical apology.
He will intimate from time to time that he is not appreciated.
Put that on two plates.

And there is the guy who does a sloppy bit of announcing
And then, apparently, runs out into the hall
To smoke a cigarette or kid the lady cellist.
And when the orchestra and the coloratura soprano
Have done their bit,
Truant Tom is nowhere to be found;
And ten thousand listeners sit with cupped ears
Wanting to know what they have been listening to,
And eventually he arrives all out of breath
And tells what you want to know and doesn't apologize
For keeping you on tenterhooks.
And some night they are going to lock the door
And there will be Tom out in the hall and no place to go.
I hope it's a Yale lock.

And the bozo that lets the orchestra play a dozen tunes
Without making any announcement in between.
And you listen and listen. And it's a good orchestra
But you're crazy to find out who they are
And go fishing for other stations.
God knows where Mr. Announcer is during the long-distance playing.
I only want one wish.

And the lad who stands in front of the microphone
Thinking it's a mirror. And he's self conscious. And he clears his throat
And you can just see him reach up and straighten his necktie.
He wants you to get the idea that he is a snappy dresser.
And he knows that he would do well as a model for the clothing boys
He intimates that he ought to be doing something bigger and better
Than radio announcing. Something higher.
That suits me if you make it a gollows.

I hate radio announcers,
They bother my ears.

FALLING WALLS OF OLD COLLEGE LIBRARY RECALLS ITS HISTORY AS NOTED HOSTELRY

have his license renewed and finally was forced to vacate.

It may be stated here for the benefit of the younger generation that the old inns were in a large degree dependent on the annual liquor retail license. At that time, Delaware College frowned upon, individually and collectively, the tavern across the street. From Mr. Motherall's version, it is evident that college influence helped keep that license away.

James Morrison and William Currier both tried to revive the "Delaware House," but to no avail.

In the meantime Frank Griffith started and maintained for several years a prosperous livery stable.

Troubles came aplenty to Currier late in the eighties, and the property passed into the hands of George Evans, father of Charles B. Evans, the former holding a mortgage on the place.

Mr. Evans rented the building in parts to various enterprises from that time on, among the more prominent early lessees being the late Leonard Lovett, who conducted a flourishing furniture business there.

The plot of ground just in rear of the building was famous in those days. While the Community Center was not known as such in those days, certainly no place ever flourished in civic and commercial manner as did this spot under the old willow and near the old town pump. The publisher of this paper recalls his first view of this spot, and it was years back in 1895 he arrived in Newark from Sussex County to enter Delaware College.

On this particular day the Finals of a contest of some three months' playing was being played out. The contest was between Pop Lovett and Father Hart, remembered as the genial funeral director. The game was not quits nor even "quotes," but hogg shoes. Some thirty men were gathered about, watching attentively, and we learned afterward that they represented the elect of a cross-section of the community; it was generally admitted—they admitted it themselves. The spot was the scene, too, of Mr. Lovett who, a few years before, had been the star baseball pitcher of the big eastern leagues of that day, warming himself up and training other stars. Newark's fame in baseball probably dates from this spot and with that wonderfully interesting character as the inspiration.

THREE GAMES IN ELKTON

Last Night Was Full of Action in Cecil Town

Basketball devotees in Elkton had plenty of sport served up to them last night when three games were played in the Army there.

Elkton High School reserves lost to West Nottingham Academy in a good game, 34-29. A. Kay and Foster looked best for Elkton, while R. Dunbar and Biles played best for Nottingham.

The second game brought the Elkton girls' team into contact with Cecilton and another win was rung up for Elkton, 18-14. Misses Creamer, Pratt and Ayer played strong games for Elkton, while Miss Manlove starred on the Cecilton outfit.

As a climax, Company E, of Elkton, defeated the Rising Sun team in a fast struggle, 33-21. Preston and Kay starred for Elkton. Jerry Dunbar, Maxwell and O'Brien looked best for Rising Sun.

"PAT" KEYES FATHER DIED LAST MONTH

Was President of Skidmore Colleg In New York State

Detailed news of the death of Dr. Charles Henry Keyes, president of Skidmore College near Saratoga, New York, reached here last week.

Dr. Keyes is the father of Clarence "Pat" Keyes, of Farmington, Delaware, track coach at Delaware and well known to Newark folk.

The elder Keyes was suddenly stricken in New York City while recovering from an attack of the grippe. Burton Keys, at the time, and had amusingly and seriously, not only in the aforesaid Community Congress, but at all social functions, then known as Thimble Parties, Prayer Meetings and with an occasional dance—The Blue Danube Waltz, if you please. In 1912 another wing was built on South College Avenue and The Post grew.

The College Library

In 1915 it became the property of the Delaware College, being taken over in the Pierre du Pont development and the building became the heart of the University—The Library.

An interesting career, ill-conceived and awkward in architectural features. If its story could be told from the days of the old Inn, then the days of the Tavern, down through its commercial career, then as the beginning of a country newspaper and then as the library of an old college and coming university, it is interesting indeed.

Buildings, like men, serve their day and generation. We regret to see it go—that's sentiment; we are glad it is gone—that is a fact.

Washington's Vision Seen In Farewell Address

A Brief Sketch of the Life of Washington

American history holds few great characters so worthy of the admiration of our people as George Washington.

Not a brilliant man, not a prator, not exactly a fighter, yet he combined many such characteristics in his temperament. His mental wisdom was not all-embracing. It was clear, deliberate, sensible.

Moreover, Washington had will power; a fine moral sense of responsibility. These, and only these, kept him treading the even road of his existence. Unmoved by personal ambition, political opportunity or greed, he held, if it may be said, just one secret wish—that he might in as many ways as possible during those hard years, promote the happiness of his people.

Washington was born February 22nd, 1732, at Bridges Creek, Westmoreland County, Virginia, being of sturdy English stock, and the grandson of John Washington, one of the early settlers from Northamptonshire, England.

The young Washington is said by historians to have been a quiet, thoughtful boy, not keen about studies but thorough, and always ready for action.

In 1747 he moved to Mt. Vernon, Virginia, later his estate, and lived with his half-brother Lawrence. He became a Virginia gentleman, had access to all manner of books, and eventually made the acquaintance of Lord Fairfax, who had recently bought a great tract of land in the Shenandoah Valley. That same year, Washington was employed by Lord Fairfax to do some elementary surveying for him, and he thus started out on his career as an engineer.

A few years later Lawrence Washington died leaving George the sole guardian of his estate and only daughter. In 1752, he was chosen Adjutant General of Virginia, having shown a marked tendency towards military affairs.

From this point on, the story of his life becomes American history. From the moment he joined Lord Fairfax as a surveyor, the whole course of his life changed. Instead of becoming a well-to-do Virginia plantation owner, content and happy in his landed estates, he started on a career that led him to the highest point in early American history, almost broke him down physically, and returned him to Mount Vernon, an old and worn out man.

As the French and Indian War broke out, Washington, still a young man, was with a surveying party in Western Pennsylvania, and when the British forces were driven from the forts near Pittsburgh by the French, Washington actively entered his military activities, by receiving a commission as lieutenant with a party of Virginians, sent to help out the English.

He rose quickly to the rank of the Virginia force, accompanied Braddock on his fatal expedition, and later resigned due to the English rule affecting ranking of Colonial officers.

SIXTY OUT OF EIGHTY-NINE "AGGIE" GRADUATES FROM DELAWARE ARE CONNECTED WITH FARMING

In an interview printed in a Wilmington paper a few days ago, Dean C. A. McCue, of the Agricultural Department of the University is quoted as follows:

"And there are at present 89 living graduates from the full course of agriculture at Delaware. This does not include the two year course or the old winter course.

"Of this number, 25 report they are farmers at the present time, either working for themselves or for others. Eight are in business connected with farming, such as the sale of fertilizers, farming implements and the like. Nine are engaged in agricultural investigation, or in agricultural service, such as experiment work, extension work or with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Fifteen are engaged in agricultural education work, teaching in agricultural high schools or colleges. One is a milk tester, one is a doctor of veterinary,

He was almost immediately made commander in chief of the frontier forces in Pennsylvania and served with distinction.

In 1759, Washington married Martha Custis, a Virginia girl, and settled down at Mt. Vernon. By the addition of his wife's fortune, he became the richest man in the colonies.

The story of the Revolution has been told and retold. Through it runs the life of Washington. Intermingled with every phase of the struggle—military, civil law, financial, political and morale, he was the War's chief figure.

The retreat across Jersey, Valley Forge, Birmingham Meeting; our own Cooch's Bridge, and on down to the final campaigns in Virginia—all these epics in American history are watchwords over the nation.

And through it all, the calm, collected Washington stood out, patiently struggling for the independence of his fellow colonists, discouraged at times, yes, even disgusted—but never losing complete faith in his country.

Then a long rest at Mt. Vernon, he thought. Freedom from cares, peaceful sweeping fields, the songs of birds drowning forever the din of battle in his ears—these were his rewards.

But they never happened. He was called to lead the nation he had helped form. Down from his Virginia hills he came to lead his confused countrymen out of the maze of inefficiency, doubt, petty jealousies and misunderstandings which sprang up like mushrooms with the English driven from our shores.

He was president of the Constitutional Convention in 1787 which framed the Constitution; he was unanimously elected the first President of the United States of America; four years later was re-elected (1792). He carried on, worn and growing old under the strain, until December 1796, when for the last time, he met the houses of Congress, and delivered to them one of America's greatest State addresses—the Farewell Address, parts of which are printed in this issue.

So full of wisdom, so pregnant with farsightedness, so alive to the issue which even confronts us today, the Address has come down as one of the really great speeches of our history. Political students in 1924 point to the fears held by Washington for his country. Arguments in high places today get their inspiration from his keen vision.

At last he was allowed to retire. From 1796 until 1799, a space of three years, he spent in the idyllic beauty of Mt. Vernon. Illness came on, however, and age wore him down, the last years of his life came too late to be enjoyed. His body and mind, worn and frayed by the unceasing strain, gave up quickly, despite the rest, and he died on December 14th, 1799.

—T. R. D.

Speech Delivered To Houses of Congress In Washington's Last Official Appearance in Public Life

CALLED AN EPIC AMONG STATE PAPERS

Interwoven as is the love of liberty with every ligament of your hearts, no recommendation of mine is necessary to fortify or confirm the attachment.

The unity of government which constitutes you one people, is also now dear to you. It is justly so; for it is a main pillar in the choice of your real independence—the support of your tranquility at home, your peace abroad, of your safety, of your prosperity, of that very liberty which you so highly prize. But as it is easy to foresee that, from different causes and from different quarters, much pains will be taken, many artifices employed, to weaken in your minds the conviction of this truth; as this is the point in your political fortress against which the batteries of internal and external enemies will be most constantly and actively (though often covertly and insidiously) directed—it is of infinite moment that you should properly estimate the immense value of your national union to your collective and individual happiness; that you should cherish a cordial, habitual and immovable attachment to it; accustoming yourselves to think and speak of it as of the palladium of your political safety and prosperity; watching for its preservation with jealous anxiety; discountenancing whatever may suggest even a suspicion that it can in any event be abandoned; and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to alienate any portion of our country from the rest, or to enfeeble the sacred ties which now link together the various parts.

It is important, likewise, that the habit of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding, in the exercise of the powers of one department to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism. A just estimate of that love of power, and proneness to abuse it which predominates in the human heart, is sufficient to satisfy us of the truth of this position. The necessity of reciprocal checks in the exercise of political power, by dividing and distributing it into different depositories, and constituting each the guardian of the public weal, against invasions by the others, has been evinced by experiments, ancient and modern; some of them in our country and under our own eyes. To preserve them must be as necessary as to institute them. If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be, in any particular, wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance, in permanent evil, any partial or transient benefit which the use can, at any time, yield.

Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, I conjure you to believe me, fellow-citizens, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake; since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government. But that jealousy to be useful, must be impartial; else it becomes the instrument of the very influence to be avoided, instead of a defence against it. Excessive partiality for one foreign nation, and excessive dislike of another, cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil, and even second, the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots, who may resist the intrigues of the favorite, are liable to become suspected and odious, while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people, to surrender their interests.

Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none, or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties, in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics, or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities.

'Tis our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world; so far, I mean, as we are now at liberty to do it; for let me not be understood as capable of patronizing infidelity to existing engagements. I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy. I repeat it, therefore, let those engagements be observed in their genuine sense. But, in my opinion, it is unnecessary and would be unwise to extend them.

In offering to you, my countrymen, these counsels of an old and affectionate friend, I dare not hope that they will make the strong and lasting impression I could wish; that they will control the usual current of the passions, or prevent our nation from running the course which hitherto has marked the destiny of nations; but if I may even attain myself that they may be productive of some partial benefit, some occasional good; that they may now and then recur to moderate the fury of party spirit, to warn against the mischiefs of foreign intrigues, to guard against the impostures of pretended patriotism, this hope will be full recompense for the solicitude for your welfare by which they have been dictated.

CROSSANS CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING DATE

Many Guests at Hockessin Home Last Week; Serenade Happy Couple

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. K. Ball, recently, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis P. Crossan, of Hockessin, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The Rev. John D. Blake gave an interesting talk. They were then entertained with vocal and instrumental music by members of the family. Mr. and Mrs. Crossan received many gifts.

Those present were: The Rev. John D. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. George K. Ball, Miss Ruth Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Evan H. Crossan, Miss Marian Crossan, Evan H. Crossan, Jr., Miss Sara P. Crossan, Miss Mary Crossan, of Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mitchner, of Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, of West Chester, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. William Flinn, Mrs. Ella R. Mitchell, Misses Leona and Sara Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. George Webb, of Avondale, Pa.; Mrs. Sara E. Bracken, Mrs. Jennie Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus B. Ferguson, of Kirkwood, Lancaster County, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Brackin, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ball, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilmer Crogg, Hickman James and Miss Clara L. Ector, of West Chester, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Golden, Miss Hazel Jacobson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shesler, Miss Dorothy Shesler, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Gass and Earl Ware, West Chester.

REAPPOINTED NOTARY

Mr. J. Franklin Anderson, of Delaware Avenue, has been reappointed Notary for a term of two years by Governor Robinson.

The Junior Prom (Then and Now)

FEBRUARY 9, 1910:

"If music be the food of Love—play on."—Shakespeare.

"Listen—A Waltz. An ordinary Waltz; yet distance gives it Dignity."

—Rostand's "L'Aiglon."

"Couples made use of the several cozy corners in the Gymnasium and the promenade around the balcony."

"The most striking feature of the evening was the Moon Dance (the first one, in Delaware College, too)—when the Youth and Beauty of three states made a scene which will be long remembered."

"Music by the First Infantry Band."

"Patronesses were: Miss Harter, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Conover, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Houghton, Mrs. Hayward, Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Short, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Grantham, and Mrs. Penny."

"Newark guests—Misses Medill, Davis, Porter, Bowen, Wright, Griffin, Cooch and Campbell."

FEBRUARY 6, 1925:

"Don't Try to Two-Time, One-Time Me."—Irving Berlin.

"Take your feet off the brakes boy, Shake 'em up; Let'er Go, professor, and don't spare the Trombone; Off to the Races, Turn loose the "Hot Dawg Blues."—Miss 1925.

The 1925 Junior Prom galloped, cantered, and shuffled to a close in the Grand Ball Room of the Hotel DuPont, Wilmington sometime between 1 and 2 a. m., when the Jazz Boys closed their Syncopatin' tools for another night, and the drummer folded his Tent.

Vivid gowns, decollete, silver slippers, "Tux" and the balloon trousers; Moonlight, starlight, semi-eclipse; red, green and purple light—no light at all!

"Chicago Stamp," Double Shuffle; Gallopin' Joe and other latest steps held sway; "Hard Hearted Hannah" proved a popular air. "Down by the Ole Swimmin' Hole" vs. "Blue Danube."

There were two waltzes, closing each half. Patronesses and escorts were seen on the floor on these occasions. Well, Well!

Gasoline, hot dogs, Twin Sixes, Saxophones blaring, fur coats, snuggled tonneaus, lights, gilded walls, flying feet, impish eyes, Heavy "lines" from the boys; Pep—Verve—Snap—Zip!

The same Old Prom, in a new setting; but to paraphrase Dickens—"God Bless 'em—every one."

And I don't mean Maybe!

(JOE SPIVUS)

But with all this fun and frolic of a new generation, as far as Old Delaware is concerned, "The Plastic Age" is a misnomer. There just ain't no such animal under the Lindens.

WHERE SPEED COUNTS

The spectacle of watching the re-laying of almost half a mile of track between trains on the B. and O. main line here was afforded townspeople last Monday.

Over one hundred workmen, under the direction of the Supervisor of this section, swarmed over the tracks between 11:30 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Scores of 130 pound rails were laid and made fast to the ties during this period, the crossing at Main Street was repaired and the old rails loaded on the work train. The speed and thoroughness shown by the workmen was an interesting sight to the many onlookers.

Experimental Farm Swine Herd Steadily Improving Under Careful Supervision

Pure Bred Poland China Boar Purchased in 1922, Helping to Build Up Valuable Herd, Says A. E. Tomhave

How rapidly one may build up a herd from plain, common individuals to a herd of high class individuals by the use of a pure bred boar has been demonstrated in the Poland China Herd at the University of Delaware Experimental Farm. Mollie's Outpost 463535, a boar of good individuality, backed by good breeding was purchased in October, 1922. This boar according to A. E. Tomhave, Animal Husbandman not only stamped his superior conformation upon his offspring, but produced pigs that grew and developed more rapidly than their dams. This is a very important consideration in pork production, as it has been demonstrated that the most economical pork is produced from rapidly developing pigs.

The value of a pure bred boar of good individuality in improving the herd is demonstrated in the study of the produce of Delaware Standard May. Delaware Standard May was farrowed September 8, 1921. At three years of age she weighed 390 pounds. She farrowed an average of seven pigs per litter for four litters.

Remarkable Growth

On March 15, 1923, Delaware Standard May farrowed a litter of eight pigs sired by Mollie's Outpost, one of two gilts in the litter was selected for the Station Herd and was designated as Delaware Outpost May 2nd No. 1308688. At five months of age, Delaware Outpost May 2nd weighed 205 pounds. At one year of age she weighed 410 pounds, or 20 pounds more than her dam weighed at 3 years. In November, 1923, she was bred to Columbian Liberator, the champion herd sire owned by John Govatos at Wilview Farms, Delaware. On March 17, 1924, at one year and five days of age she farrowed a litter of ten strong healthy pigs. Eight pigs of her litter at six months of age averaged 200 pounds in weight. She was shown at the Delaware State Fair in 1923 and 1924 and won first in her class at both shows from strong competition.

On February 2, 1925, she weighed 475 pounds, in breeding condition. She stands 35 inches high and is 60 inches long. She has a strongly arched back, well developed loin and hams, and is supported by well boned, straight legs. She is due to farrow again in March of this year.

Best Gilt At Show

The best gilt of her 1924 litter was shown at the Delaware State Fair in 1924 and won first in her class and the Junior championship. The judge pronounced her the best Poland China gilt he had seen this year.

This gilt is registered as Delaware Liberator May and has been placed in the Station herd to bring about more improvement. She is due to farrow in the spring of 1925.

At the low price at which good pure bred sires can be purchased at this time, it would seem that the most profitable investment a pork producer could make would be to purchase a good pure bred boar to use upon his sow herd. This should prove a good

Hobson's Choice In West

An Easterner, on a business trip in the West, stopped at a country hotel. He entered the dining room and was shown to a table by a rather eccentric looking waiter.

"Will you have pork and beans, sir?" asked the waiter, as he brought the customary glass of water.

"No, I don't care for them," answered the guest. "I never eat pork and beans."

"Dinner is over, then, sir," replied the waiter as he moved away.

Waking Up

"I swear, I b'lieve my wife's going crazy!" said Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge in the cross-roads store.

"What makes you think so?" asked the proprietor of the emporium.

"Well, first she bobbed her hair, and now she's trying to work them there infernal cross-word puzzles. Burhing if I don't think that it's only a question of time till she'll come hollering around for a new dress or something that-a-way!" — Los Angeles Times.

investment in view of the fact that this country is facing a shortage of hogs and pork prices are bound to be much better during the next two years than they have been since 1922.

Three "R's" and an "S"

We all recognize the importance of teaching children "the three R's," but there is a fourth study which should rank along with them. We refer to Saving. Are your children learning to save?

A savings pass-book is as necessary to their education as any school book. For much of their future happiness depends on a mastery of the art of saving. Leaders of the future find a welcome at our teller's window.

Farmers Trust Company
NEWARK - DELAWARE

ORGANIZED 1839—CHARTERED 1843

The Farmers Mutual Fire Ins. Co. of the State of Delaware

Has again demonstrated to its policy-holders that, although organized in 1839 and therefore old in years of service, it is always abreast with the times in adopting plans of operation which will be of benefit to its members.

The Board of Managers has decided that all policies written or to be written by this Company, on and after January 12, 1925, will be issued without the requirement of the deposit of a premium note and all premium notes now held by this Company become null and void.

A standard form of policy will be issued for the outstanding policies as speedily as possible, and the balances standing to the credit of policy-holders will then be paid to them. After payment of such balances the Company's surplus will still be upward of $200,000 which is held for the protection of the policy-holders.

Hereafter earnings of the Company will be returned to the policy-holders annually.

Since 1870 the Company has received premiums amounting to $2,563,826.00 and has paid Losses by Fire and Lightning amounting to $1,178,114.00; also has paid dividends to its policy-holders amounting to over $791,065.00.

Due to conservative management since its organization the policy-holders have received their insurance at a low cost and the Company has been successful.

ELKTON HIGH'S RUN OF WINS IS BROKEN

Friends School of Wilmington Sets Cecil Cage Team Back 43-23

After winning nine straight games, Elkton High School's basketeers turned around and lost, unmistakably, absolutely, to the Friends School five of Wilmington last Friday evening, 43-23.

Captain Jake Minster and his mates were certainly not on their game. On the other hand, Friends were in there to win, and win they did, in a most decisive manner. Flinn, their star forward, was responsible for twenty of the forty-three points, and almost upset the Elkton parade singlehanded.

For the Maryland boys, the one bright light was the all round work of Minster. He ran up from his guard position to register five times from the field, and scored two fouls.

The followers of the Elktonites were somewhat taken aback by the defeat handed their favorites, but as far as can be learned, the team is in the proper mood right now to annihilate their next opponents. The score:

FORDHAM FIVE TRAMPS OVER DELAWARE 50-19

Frankie Frisch Accompanies Maroon Team on Victorious Trip

The famed Fordham basketball team invaded Newark last Thursday night, and almost the whole town, in addition to the student body, turned out to see the game; at least it appeared that way from a glance at the galleries of the gymnasium.

Fordham came to town with a wonderful reputation. They left with a bigger one, as far as local people were concerned. Many teams, fired with invincibility, have struck snags at Delaware in past years. It was a forlorn hope that Delaware rooters held Thursday; but still—it was a hope.

These Maroon basketeers are all they are cracked up to be. Not as smooth in their play as might be expected; but they handle the ball like shortstops handle a baseball; they have a distressing habit of being in exactly the right spot at the right time to receive a pass; they possess a shifty, weaving defense, strong out across the floor, which baffled Delaware continually, and must have baffled every team they have met so far.

Finally, they have a cool, collected, workmanlike air about them—a steady, albeit brilliant, method in their teamwork, which is a delight to behold.

Delaware did her very level best; it was merely a case when the best is not enough. The score tells the story; there was just that many points difference between the teams—not counting at least five "sleepers" that Fordham missed.

Cavanaugh, Delaney and Sneider—three of the fastest floorworkers and deadliest shots we have seen in many moons, were the stars of the game. For Delaware the work of Bill McKelvie, Ralph France and Jackson, in helping to stem the tide of goals stood out best. On offense, Delaware was almost helpless; most of their goals were made on long shots, one a tap-in by Big Mac.

Frankie Frisch, star second baseman on the New York Giants, sat on the Fordham bench during the evening, and watched his Alma Mater ring up their fourteenth straight win of the season. Frankie is marking time until he leaves for southern training on the 21st of this month. He was a star basketball player while at Fordham, but McGraw says "No" at the mere mention of the game.

Frisch was the center of all eyes during the evening. He replied by looking and acting the part of one of the most unconcerned and modest young men in these parts. His eyes were on the game from beginning to end.

Secretary Gore Makes Appeal To Farmers

The following letter has been broadcast to farmers all over the country this week:

The Department of Agriculture is vitally interested in the Census of Agriculture for which the enumeration is now in progress. Every farmer should also be interested in this work because this Census will result in obtaining facts that will lead to a proper understanding of the actual conditions existing throughout the country.

The census is taken by the Department of Commerce in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture. The schedule of inquiry was approved by the Department of Agriculture and directed to determine matters of fundamental importance to the welfare of the agricultural industry. This census is needed as a basis for the annual crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture, and it is of great importance that the results be accurate. The totals of farm acreage, land utilization, livestock, crops, etc., will show actual conditions during 1924 and will be used for the preparation of estimates for each year until the next census.

This census is being taken primarily for the benefit of the farmers. I can assure them that all of the information contained on the census schedule will be treated as strictly confidential and will be used only for statistical purposes to show the totals for the different counties and states. All this information will directly or indirectly be of benefit to farmers and to farmers' associations and organizations throughout the country. It will help Congress to legislate wisely in matters affecting the farmers' interests.

Three Billions For Autos In 1924

With the United States leading with 82.5 per cent of the world's total of automobiles and motor trucks in 1924, the entire universe spent $3,360,000,000 for new motor vehicles last year, according to the automotive division of the department of commerce.

On January 1 there were in operation in all countries 18,615,000 passenger cars, 2,892,000 trucks and 1,262,000 motorcycles. The total of these three classes of motor vehicles was 22,769,000, which brought an increase for the year over the total reported January 1, 1924, of 18 per cent or 3,479,000 vehicles. Of this total increase this country accounted for 2,427,000, or 70 per cent.

SHEAFFER The PAINTER

If Your Tractor Could Talk—

Compare the operating conditions of your tractor with those of a passenger automobile.

Chug—chug—chugging around a field, stopping and starting, pulling and tugging, it stirs up quantities of dust that the passenger car, skimming over smooth concrete roads, does not.

Your tractor breathes air that is filled with particles of gritty dust. These particles are drawn into the carburetor, and with the fuel are sucked into the cylinders. When the dust particles have mixed with the unburned fuel and oil on the cylinder walls they act exactly as emery would—and with the same result—scored and pitted cylinders and pistons. From the cylinders the grit works its way down into the crank case, and if not drawn off will do more harm.

The practical and economical solution of this problem, vital to the life of the tractor, is the frequent change of oil in the crank case.

The tractor lubricants produced by this company have stood severe tests and laboratory experiments successfully. They have proven their worth.

Authorities on tractor lubrication are justified in their recommendation of Hearn Oil Products—because—THEY ARE AS GOOD AS YOU CAN BUY! Ask for HEARN Tractor Oil.

HORATIUS At the Bridge

The name of Horatius causes us to remember the story of high ideals, heroism, and definiteness of purpose shown by that famous Roman soldier.

You remember how, single-handed, he defended the bridge over the Tiber against the Etrurian hordes who sought to destroy Rome. And how, after his fellow-countrymen had destroyed the bridge behind him, he leaped into the Tiber, and in full armor safely reached the opposite shore.

If we will stop and think for a moment, we will realize that such heroes may be found among our intimate friends. They are to be found in all walks of life where the indomitable "never-say-die" spirit always wins.

The reward of such effort may be the highest peak of success—or it may be a higher plane of ambition deserving of the greatest respect and affection we so much desire from our fellow-men.

This spirit, shown by this Company since its inception, is being rewarded now by the increasing confidence the public is placing in Hearn Oil Products.

BRANDYWINE SANITORIUM CONTROVERSEY

Those who have investigated the offer of the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society to transfer the Brandywine Sanatorium, debt-free, to the State, have found many reasons why the taking over of the institution would be an advantage to the citizens of Delaware. The institution is the only one being conducted by a private agency in the country, all others being under state control.

The first reason would seem to be that of fair play. Within a mile of the sanatorium which is located in Mill Creek hundred, New Castle county, is the sanatorium for colored tuberculosis sufferers, which the State operates. Surely, white men and women of Delaware who are victims of this dread disease are entitled to as much consideration as the colored citizens, the friends of the plan to transfer the property say.

Another reason is that all the money that has been received from the sale of Christmas Seals with the exception of five per cent, which goes to the National Tuberculosis Association for the cost of the Seals and other printed matter, is retained by each state anti-tuberculosis society and is used to conduct educational campaigns among the school children and clinics for the elders. But, in Delaware, there has never been any such general campaign, because all the money made on sales of Christmas Seals has had to go to the support of the sanatorium. Those who favor the State taking over the sanatorium say that there is small wonder that Delaware is one of the eight states showing the highest mortality in tuberculosis, because there has never been any state campaign against the disease. The people don't know how to watch for the symptoms and fight them. If the State took

URGE EXTENSIVE USE OF MANURE ON LANDS

Maryland Experiment Station Holds It As One of Best Fertilizers

One of the most important by-products of the farm is the manure that accumulates each year in the stable and yards. Stable manure offers a ready and a relatively cheap means of increasing crop production, since it not only supplies important elements of plant food, but also improves the physical condition of the soil, and encourages highly important bacterial activities.

Extensive field experiments conducted on the Maryland Experiment Station farm at College Park, and on a number of fields located in different parts of the State, show that under present conditions a ton of ordinary stable manure judiciously used will produce increases in crop worth from $2.00 to $18.00. The value of the increase will vary with the fertility of the land, the rate of application, the crop for which it is used and with the way in which the manure is handled.

A calculation based on the results of these experiments and upon the 1920 livestock census of the State shows that the manure produced in the stables and feed lots of Maryland is worth at least $20,000,000 annually. It has been conservatively estimated that fully one-third of the value of the manure is lost through careless handling, which means an annual loss of at least more than $6,000,000 to the farmers of Maryland. Much of this loss can be prevented by the employment of proper methods of storage and handling.

One of the best ways to prevent losses through fermentation and leaching is to spread the manure upon the land as rapidly as it is produced.

Every barnyard where manure is allowed to accumulate should have a tight bottom to hold the moisture and prevent leaching. When necessary to store in the open the manure should be built into a compact pile at least 4 feet high and dished on top to catch and hold rain water.

Manure exposed to the weather in loose, shallow piles for a few months may lose more than half of its fertilizing value through fermentation and leaching.

PLACE SEVEN FLOCKS ON ACCREDITED LIST

State Board of Agriculture O. K.'s Poultry From Five Farms

Seven flocks of chickens owned by five poultry raisers in Delaware were placed among the accredited flocks by the State Board of Agriculture during the past week. This means that every chicken in these flocks has been examined and found free of any apparent illness and that they and the offspring that may come from them are pure bred. Many other flocks that have been examined and on which reports are pending, will be accredited and then the work will stop unless the General Assembly approves of the request for an appropriation of $5,000 with which to continue this line of activity.

There are a few States in the United States that have accredited flocks and in each of these States the farmers and poultry raisers are reaping the benefit. Chicken raising with its attendant egg production is one of the big industries of the rural sections and there are hundreds of flocks, according to officials of the State Board of Agriculture, that are waiting to be tested in order that they may be placed among the accredited list.

The flocks that have been certified to so far are those of Oliver A. Newton, Bridgeville, Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns; F. B. Austin, Milford, Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns; C. G. Allen, Seaford,

SUN TO LAST LONG TIME

Although our sun is certainly cooling off and will eventually become quite cold, nervous persons may rest assured that its heat will not appreciably diminish for at least another 15,000,000,000 years was the encouraging statement made by Prof. H. N. Russell, of Princeton University, says the New York World.

"There is no doubt" he said, "that the stars, of which the sun is one, gradually cool off as their stores of energy are diffused in the ether. Some even evaporate or devour their own bodies—and therefore, this world must look forward to a time when its source of light and life will become a cold and darkened sphere.

"But that day is so far distant that the mind of man cannot even comprehend the vast stretches of time that will run by before that comes to pass.

"For the last billion years our sun has grown neither hotter or colder, although it has been driving out its energy into the infinite spaces of the universe at the prodigious rate of 4,200,000 tons a second. It can keep on going in this way for at least 15,000,000,000,000 of years more.

"The only reasonable explanation of this fact is that all the stars have tremendous internal stores of power. It is known that the internal heat of some of them reaches 30,000,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The small white companion of Sirius is believed to be even hotter than this.

"Thus, although their surfaces radiate heat and energy in bewildering quantities, the storerooms inside are constantly manufacturing and sending out more. And this process will keep up until they shrink to the point where their atomic bodies are pressed tight together. Then the process will begin and possibly eventually leave the stars as frigid bodies."
