Motorists Block Firemen's Dash To Blaze Sunday

Thousands Rush to Perkin's Farm Near Christiana; Seven Companies Respond to Alarm; Barn Burns With $4000 Loss.

BLAZE IS SEEN FOR MILES

Probably the best attended fire in this vicinity occurred Sunday evening about nine o'clock, when the large barn on the J. P. Perkins farm, between Cooch's and Christiana, was destroyed.

From accounts of observers, it appeared that every motorist within twenty miles of the blaze turned his firey steed into the Cooch's road and rushed pell mell to the scene. When the first of seven fire companies to respond, reached the farm the horde of pleasure cars practically blocked any entrance to the farm yard.

Cars keep pouring down the road from both directions. An estimated attendance of sixty firemen and 1000 spectators was generally accepted. The flames in the meantime had gained rapid headway and the big barn was soon a seething mass. Sparks flying over the house and other buildings gave the firemen plenty of work. No other damage was done, however.

Firemen Incensed

Seven companies attended the fire. They were Newark, Middletown, Newport, Christiana, New Castle, Delaware City and Holloway Terrace. Without an exception, according to reports, each had to fight its way through the mass of autos along the road to the Perkins farm. The traffic got into a hopeless jam at several points, and a few of the volunteer companies did not reach the scene of action until it was all over.

It is reported that Ira Shellender, dismounting from the pilot's seat of the big Newark engine, became a committee of one to clear a path for his mates. "Shelly's" picturesque language and determined bearing opened up the jam in a very few minutes.

Many Newark people were in the crowd, as well as spectators from all parts of the county. Scores of holiday tourists on their way up-State turned off the boulevard at Hare's Corner and droved down to the Perkins place.

Firemen who worked manfully against heavy odds, were consistently of the opinion Monday that something must be done in the matter of regulating traffic at a country fire. There is a law on the statute books, regulating traffic at fires. Local firemen are endeavoring to have it broadcast to residents of this community. It will be published soon.

Mr. Perkins is at a loss to discover the cause of the fire. No livestock was in the barn at the time. The $4000 loss is partially covered by insurance. Due to the pressing throngs, the firemen only unlimbered their chemical apparatus and contented themselves with saving the old Colonial mansion house.

NEWARK CONTRIBUTES $249 TO LEGION DRIVE

A report received this morning from Warren A. Singles, treasurer of the local American Legion Drive Committee, showed that the sum of $249 had been received to date from the community. Several pledges have been received and it is expected that this sum will be materially increased within the present week.

The State wide drive for $10,000 to be added to a national Endowment Fund for widows and orphans of veterans came to a close Saturday, largely oversubscribed. Newark's quota of $600 will hardly be realized, however.

The solicitation here was carried on by personal letters to over 300 residents of the community. There was no personal canvassing.

Small Attendance At Memorial Exercises; Boulder Is Covered With Floral Tributes

Organizations Of Community Figure In Customary Placing Of Wreaths; Baltimore Rector Makes Principal Address

Although business on Main street was practicaly at a standstill on Memorial Day morning, many empty chairs faced the speakers during the annual exercises at the Boulder on the upper campus of the University.

It was perhaps the smallest crowd which has attended Memorial Day services here since the War.

Nevertheless, the memory of the boys of '61 and '18 was kept bright by the thoughtfulness of the several fraternal, religious and educational organizations of the community. Beautiful wreaths were placed one by one, on the stone at the close of the exercises until it was completey hidden under the mass of flowers. If anything, the floral display was even greater than in other years. With the assemblage standing at attention, a salute to the dead was fired by a squad of Battery E and Taps was blown by Director David Chalmers, of the Continental Band, thus ending the program.

Parade of School Children

Just prior to the opening of the ceremonies at the college, over 100 small school children in charge of Superintendent Owens and a group of teachers marched to cemeteries within the town limits and there decorated the graves of fallen veterans with small flags. The parade was led by the Continental Band.

Major Clarence A. Short was chairman of the Memorial exercises. Following invocation of Divine blessing delivered by Rev. R. B. Mathews, and singing of "America" led by Capt. James C. Hastings, Major R. G. Buckingham, prominent member of the G. A. R. in this community, read Lincoln's famous "Gettysburg Address."

Rev. Christopher P. Sparling, rector of a church in Walbrook, a suburb of Baltimore, then delivered a short Memorial Day address, during the course of which he lauded the Newark idea of commemorating the dead with the whole community joining together once each year for that purpose.

George E. Michael, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, had charge of the program at the conclusion of Rev. Sparling's address. As he called the names, representatives from each organization carried their wreath and placed it on the boulder.

Among those seated on the patform in addition to the speakers were Mayor Frazer, Dr. Walter Hullihen,

LOCAL BOY TAKING A FLING AT RANCH LIFE

Clifford Buckingham on Way to Wyoming for Summer Work Upon Completing School

Clifford Buckingham, son of F. H. Buckingham, near Newark, and a graduate of Newark High School, class of 1923, left Monday for Kenton County, Wyoming, where he has accepted a position as chief clerk and bookkeeper at the J-Y ranch.

The ranch, covering hundreds of acres of splendid mountain country, caters particularly to Eastern tourists during the summer season. It maintains an additional summer camp and hunting lodge across the state line near Victor, Idaho.

Young Buckingham just completed his course on business at Goldey College last Thursday, where he matriculated after his graduation here. He is active in sports and a baseball player of known ability. He expects to be on the job in Wyoming about four months.

TEMPERATURE SOARS

Town Experiences Hottest June 2nd In Years

Newark sweltered in heat yesterday. Beginning early in the morning, the mercury rose steadily until at two o'clock in the afternoon it ranged from 95 to 100 degrees at various places in town.

In the temporary engineering buildings of the University along Delaware Avenue, the temperature reached 103 degrees indoors. Naturally, all examinations and other labors ceased for the day.

Today broke clear and hot, with little promise of relief. So far as is known no serious prostrations have been reported.

To Hold Bake

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Minnehaha Tribe of Red Men will hold a bake at Blocksom's corner on Saturday morning next, beginning at 10 o'clock daylight saving time.

The affair is in charge of Mrs. Charles Eissner, Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Ewing. Home made pies, cake and rolls will be on sale.

Plans Are Completed For Commencements

University Group To Be Addressed By General Allen; Baccalaureates Sunday Next

Commencement time, always a gala event in Newark, where both University and schools join in sending out their groups of young men and women, appears again on the horizon, and for the next week all interest will center thereon.

The official program of the University exercises during the period from June 6th to 8th, appears today in The Post. The Commencement orator, Major General Allen, was the last ranking officer to leave German soil at the close of the World War. He is an intensely interesting speaker and a prominent figure in official Washington.

The University

From recent advices, seventy-three young men and women will receive their diplomas at the exercises at Old College next Monday morning. This constitutes the largest joint class to leave the University.

Another feature of the week-end will be the reception given by Dr. and Mrs. Hullihen, at their home here, at 4 p. m. Saturday afternoon. Students, alumni, faculty and friends are cordially invited to attend. No individual invitations are sent out.

The Alumni Day festivities on Saturday; baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning, and the Commencement Dance Monday night are other features of the Commencement season.

High School

Thirty-two Seniors comprise the graduating class at Newark High School this year.

Commencement exercises will be held in Wolf Hall on Friday evening, June 12th. Class day will be in the same building on Wednesday evening, the 10th.

On next Sunday evening, a union service will be held in the Presbyterian Church here, at 7.30 p. m. standard time. Rev. Hallman will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the graduates. The M. E. Church will dispense with their regular evening service and the congregation is urged to attend the services at the Presbyterian Church that evening.

The Commencement speaker will be Dean George E. Dutton, of the University. Dean Dutton has always been interested in the progress of the High Schools of the State and is in close touch with them and their problems. The diplomas will be awarded by John S. Shaw, president of the Board of Education.

Miss Agnes Frazer and Mr. Martin Doordan, members of the graduating class, will deliver orations at Commencement.

TWO KICKERS TIE

The Kickers' Handicap, a feature of the golf season here, was staged at the Country Club Saturday afternoon. Each player chose a handicap which, taken from his actual score would bring him nearest to a mystic number, drawn from a hat. The number was somewhere between 70 and 80.

As a result, Dr. F. M. K. Foster and Courtney Houghton tied for their efforts. The number drawn was 79. They both played a 79 net, and thus split up the spoils. A good-sized group of members stood off for the tournament.

"Marrying Parson" Gets Cool Reception Here

Rev. W. R. Moon's "Branch Office" in Deer Park Hotel Comes to Sudden and Complete End

Supported by two blushing brides-to-be, and their nervous fiances, and armed, with their marriage licenses Elkton's famous "marrying parson," the Rev. William R. Moon, sailed into the Deer Park Hotel here last Friday evening, bent on putting on one of his inimitable marriage ceremonies.

Rev. Moon, about whom a storm is raging in Elkton these days, approached James A. McKelvey, proprieter of the hostlery shortly after his arrival, and intimated that the surroundings would make a perfect setting for a quiet little double wedding.

Mr. McKelvey, however, was not so enthusiastic, it is reported, and asked to see the licenses. Being a former magistrate here and familiar with legal phraseology, it did not take him long to see that the date of issue in Wilmington was May 29th, that very evening. By a simple memory process, he knew that a marriage performed less that 48 hours after the issuance of a license was illegal in Delaware.

The Rev. Moon was nonplussed. In fact, he was said to have been very flustered. Within a few minutes after Mr. McKelvey politely refused the use of the hotel, he shepherded his little flock back in the machine and drove away.

When last seen, the brides-to-be were still blushing, and the grooms still nervous.

New Development Here Sees Spirited Bidding

Delaplane Tract East of Town Brings $19,000 at Public Auction on Saturday

The prospects for another attractive real estate development on the outskirts of Newark boomed skyward last Saturday, when about 200 choice building lots, a small farm, and a mansion house, comprising the entire Vought farm along the Lincoln Highway, went under the auctioneer's hammer.

The attractive location of the tract and its proximity to town brought a large crowd out. The bidding was spirited and lots were disposed of as fast as they could be put on the block.

The sale, it is understood, amounted to about $19,000. The mansion house, together with about four acres of land was sold to Prof. Thomas D. Smith, of the University faculty here. $7500 was reported to be the price paid.

Lots fronting the Lincoln Highway were snapped up quickly. Among the new owners of these sites are William P. Wollaston, Lewis Greenwalt, William D. Dean and Mr. McClary. Mr. Dean was a heavy buyer. The sale was handled by John W. Hamilton, well-known Wilmington auctioneer. It was promoted by the Delaplane Development Company, owners of the Vought farm. George L. Medill, of Newark, is a member of the company.

There were four souvenirs awarded at the sale: A home site to D. S. Stuart, 2117 Washington Street, Wilmington; radio, Robert F. Reed, Newark; chest of silver, Lewis Alcorn, Newark; Hoosier kitchen cabinet, Mrs. Lewis M. Greenwalt, Newark.

BUSSES DE LUXE HERE

A. C. Stiltz Adds Two Beauties To His String

"Lady Newark" and "Lady Wilmington" are the titles which grace two brand new de luxe motor busses, added last week to the A. C. Stiltz equipment here.

"Lady Newark" is the last word in comfort and attractiveness. It is the first of such busses built by the Mack Truck Company. The body was built by Lang at Cleveland. Wicker chairs, with deep air cushions, ample ventilation, and cool, comfortable surroundings make it the finest bus in Delaware. It is painted a deep crimson and is capable of crusing easily at 40 miles per hour. "Lady Wilmington," which arrived late last week, is similar in design. They hold thirty passengers each.

Dedicated "Blue Hen" To Arthur G. Wilkinson

Delaware College Annual Pleases Student Body Upon Its Recent Appearance

The 1924-25 "Blue Hen," the biennial publication of the Men's College of the University appeared last week and is being distributed among students, Alumni and friends of the University.

The book this year is dedicated to Arthur G. Wilkinson, business administrator at the University. His photograph and a brief eulogy of his interest and loyalty to the men and the College appear in the front of the volume. In the minds of the students, the tribute to Mr. Wilkinson is a deserved one, as he has continually bent his best efforts towards the welfare, comfort and convenience of the boys.

Paul R. Rinard was editor-in-chief of the "Blue Hen" and deserves great credit for the work he put on the publication and the results. Much credit is especially due Roger W. Taylor, the art editor, whose work is a special feature. The other members of the staff of the "Blue Hen" were; Associate editors, J. Robert Muhlig and Paul Leahy; photograph editor, Ralph W. Gregg; staff stenographer, Ira T. Ellis; general staff, John W. Walker, Murray Hanson, Raymond R. Pippin, Cornelius A. Tilghman, Wilson Graham, J. Courtland Eyer, Robert McLucas, Marvin L. Ewing, John Morris, Mitchell H. Smith and J. Early Pryor. The business staff consisted of Francis R. Warner, business manager; W. Jeffries Lank, treasurer; John T. Ash, circulation manager; E. Filson Carmichael, assistant advertising manager.

NEWARK SHELTER FOR YOUNG STEEPLEJACK

Three-Year-Old Tot Discovered On House Top, In Role of Painter, Monday

That young Billy Edmanson, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Edmanson of Delaware avenue, is destined to be either a steeplejack or an aviator, was confidently expressed by sundry relatives and neighbors who witnessed his antics Monday morning.

Without the knowledge of his mother, master Billy essayed to help the painters on the roof of his home. His sturdy little legs had trouble with a ladder, but he finally managed to crawl up to the roof over the kitchen, where he rested for a minute prior to the final dash to the roof.

At this interesting moment, neighbors took a hand and called his mother. Billy thus became the center for as frightened an audience as ever congregated here. He was on the roof by this time looking calmly down at his worried parent.

Mrs. Edmanson, while fearful of his life, kept her head, and quietly went inside and reached the roof from a window, as Billy was starting his downward trip. He was carefully removed from his labors and, so the story goes, was given the position of a receiver to a sound spanking.

FESTIVAL TONIGHT

A large Strawberry Festival is scheduled to be held at West Amwell Chapel, along the Elkton-Newark road this evening. All the delicacies of the season will be on sale.

3 Million Raise In Assessments Through County

Newark and White Clay Hundred Figures Set at Two and One-Half Million by Board in Report

TO SET TAX RATE TOMORROW

Newark was swept up in the general current of increased assessments yesterday afternoon when President Smith, of the County Board, submitted his detailed report to the Levy Court for their consideration.

This town and White Clay Creek Hundred, taken together, saw its total assessment reach the record sum of $2,486,424.40. Upon this figure, it is understood, will be based the tax rate for the next fiscal year.

A total increase of over six million dollars over the assessment for 1924 was established by the report. This figure, of course, covers the city of Wilmington as well as the rural towns and hundreds.

The total amount of property assessment for rural New Castle County, outside of incorporated towns, is $63,361,359.56, as compared with $59,831,322.11 for 1924; in incorporated towns, $10,659,469.29 as compared with $10,018,331.97 in 1924 and in Wilmington $117,685,249.63 as compared with $115,698,644.37 in 1924.

The Levy Court will meet again tomorrow morning to complete its budget of appropriations to the various county departments, and to establish the tax rate for the next fiscal year.

No Tax Change Expected

It is understood every effort is being made to keep the budget within the limits of the amount that will be realized from the increased assessment at the present tax rate, which is 75 cents county, 5 cents poor and 30 cents road, making the total rate $1.05 on each $100 of assessment, exclusive of the 25 cent school tax.

The capitation assessment in the entire county is $14,165.25 and the dog assessment in the rural districts outside of incorporated towns is $1,710.

The assessment as submitted to Levy Court by the County Board of Assessment is as follows:

County Assessment

Appoquinimink	$ 2,070,428.40

COUNCIL MEETING IS CUT SHORT MONDAY

Little Business Comes Before Town Government at Regular Session

Council meeting Monday night suffered from lack of business. Mayor Frazer and Councilmen Widdoes, Grier, Wilson and Buckingham were in their places when the meeting started. In about a half hour, routine business was cleared away and on motion of Mr. Wilson, Council adjourned.

Daniel Thompson, Alderman, reported fines and licenses for May to the amount of $15. H. R. Baker, newly appointed milk inspector, reported that milk served to Newark consumers during the month was uniformly clean.

The treasurer's report was read and approved, and several minor items of business settled.

Committee Finds No Foundation For Charges Brought By Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity

Investigation Results In Exoneration Of Other Organizations Accused Of "Combining" Against S. P. E. In Recent Election; Amendment ToStudent Rules Recommended

The curtain was officially rung down on the inter-fraternity turmoil at the University last Thursday.

On that date, the report of the special committee appointed by Student Council president John G. Leach to investigate certain charges openly made by the Sigma Phi Epsilon group were made public. The committee, consisting of Charles E. Grubb, Alexander J. Taylor and George L. Townsend, Jr., all alumni of the University, reported to Mr. Leach as follows:

The Report

John G. Leach, Esq.,
President of Student Council of Delaware College.

Dear Sir:

"On May 10th last the following charges were publicly made by the Sigmi Phi Epsilon Fraternity: 'Being aware that certain organizations on the campus have secretly combined for the specific purpose of dividing among their particular candidates the political spoils of this morning's election and to defeat other candidates irrespective of merit or service who happen to be non-members of the organizations engaged in this disgraceful machination we, the members of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, herewith refuse to participate in an election conducted in such a manner or to support a Student Council not elected under honorable circum stances.'

"Immediately thereafter you appointed a committee to investigate these charges and the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity welcomed the investigation and agreed to assist in every way. Your committee met at Old College Hall on Tuesday evening last and members of all the fraternities, together with a large number of representative students, attended the meeting and after a most thorough investigation we find that the above charges are absolutely without foundation. No evidence was introduced to prove that a combination opposed to this fraternity existed.

"The basis of the charge was hearsay evidence and we feel that the action of members of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity in leaving the meeting of the Student Council was entirely unwarranted. We were impressed with the prevalent opinion that a fraternity member merged his individuality in this fraternity, that the act of such members was assumed to represent the opinion of the fraternity, that the fraternity was paramount to the individual and that loyalty to one's fraternity was above loyalty to the University. We cannot agree with these ideas. The individual action of any members is not the action of the fraternity unless it be authorized by vote of the members of the fraternity and the welfare of the university is entitld to first consideration.

"We feel that we should take advantage of this opportunity to call the attention of the Student Council to the fact that your constitution and by-laws contain no provision under which matters of this kind might be dealt with if they should arise and we urge an amendment to meet this contingency. The code of ethics, which the Student Council wishes to adopt, has been the hope and despair of many men for many generations and in order to promote the greatest possible good and the most effective work of the Student Council, we would recommend the amendment above suggested and the promulgation through the fraternities of the idea that group interests in favor of any particular candidate will not be tolerated."

Charles E. Grubb,
Alexander J. Taylor,
Committee.

JAPANESE BEETLE QUARANTINE ON

Christiana and New Castle Affected By Ban Last Week

On account of the further spread of the Japanese beetle it has again become necessary to revise the regulations under the Japanses beetle quarantine, bu no revision is made of the quarantine.

The changes in the regulations are limited to Regulation 2, designating the enlargement of the regulated area in the States of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware, and to Regulation 4, indicating the restrictions on the movement of farm products. No changes are made in the regulations governing the movement of nursery and ornamental stock or of sand, soil, earth, peat, compost, and manure.

In New Jersey, owing tothe general spread of the insect throughout Cumberland and Cape May Counties, the whole of the southern part of that State is now brought under quarantine. In the northern part of that State the quarantine line has been extended to the Raritan River, including the city of New Brunswick and adjacent territory. A few townships, however, lying north of Brick on the coast are as yt uninfested and have not been included in the regulated area.

In Pennsylvania, the regulated area has been extended to include a border zone of approximately one additional township in width beyond the quarantine line of 1924.

In Delaware, the City of Wilmington and the hundreds of Christiana and New Castle have been brought into the regulated area.

Colored Folks Parade

Headed by a band of fifteen pices, several score colored school chidren, led by their teachers, parade to cemeteries on Memorial Day, where flags were placed at the graves of veterans. The parade started and finished on New London avenue.

Strawberry Festival

A Strawberry Festival will be given on the lawn of St. Thomas Church, Thursday evening, June 11th. If stormy, next evening. Benefit of Picnic.

FRENCH BOY RECEIVES HONOR GRADE HERE

Dr. W. Owen Sypherd, head of the English Department at the University here, has announced the honor students among the two Freshman classes.

Two young women, Marion Steel, of Elsmere, and Alice Webb, of Philadelphia, received honor grades at the Women's College.

In the Men's College, Jacques Kimmel, of Paris, a special student here, won the only honor grade to be given to his class. Young Kimmel is an exceptional student and his mastery of the Freshman course was complete, despite his unfamiliarity of American curriculums.

The three students above mentioned were given honor grades in English out of a class of 198.

ECONOMIES IN TELEPHONE OPERATION

THE system of this company has grown from two telephones to twenty-five thousand in Delaware in less than fifty years.

Such growth of a necessary service, constantly increasing in scope and efficiency, is not surprising. But there's an element in it that is.

The single telephone is not a self-sufficient unit. It must be tied to every other one in the community, and beyond.

A growth of a hundred telephones, or a thousand, means a disproportionate growth in many elements of the telephone plant, and similarly in the volume and complexity of the interconnecting equipment and operation.

It has more than once been said that the successful conduct of a telephone business can be continued "only so long as two plus two can be made to equal something less than four."

And it is a fact that the otherwise natural consequences of this great growth would long ago have swamped the service, placing it far beyond the average reach, had it not been for constant economy coming from invention, development, increased efficiencies and capacities, effective short-cuts—altogether, the scientific improvement of the telephone equipment and its operation in the direction of economy.

Complexity is a constant lash in the furnishing of telephone service—but to good purpose.

Elkton Trap Shooters Lose League Trophy

Shooting Of H. And C. Taylor Provide Winning Punch In Rising Sun Lineup Saturday

As a climax to one of the most successful trapshooting seasons ever enjoyed in Cecil County, the Rising Sun Gun Club defeated the Elkton shooters Saturday at Woodlawn by the narrow margin of 13 points.

The shoot-off was made necessary by a tie between the two clubs at the close of the season on May 2nd last. At that time, Rising Sun was trailing by less than a half dozen points. A large crowd of fans saw the final shoot Saturday.

The Taylors, father and son, proved to be the aces for the winning club. Both stepped up to the line and broke 50 straight "birds." With such rare shooting staring them in the face, Elkton gunners cut loose with all they had. If somebody had kidnapped one or the other of the Taylors, they might have had a chance.

Standley Evans, a moving spirit in the Elkton club and a splendid shot, led his teammates with a 49. The rest of the Elkton team were slightly off form, while Rising Sun presented a consistent bunch of shooters.

It is believed that the great success of the season just finished will assure the county of another League race next year.

The team scores:

Rising Sun Gun Club—H. Taylor, 50; C. Taylor, 50; A. Armour, 49; H. M. Duyckinch, 49; E. Herr, 48; F. P. Williams, 48; P. Griest, 48; J. Wertz, 46; Cecil Taylor, 46; B. Elliot, 45. Eotal, 479.

Elkton Gun Club—S. Evans, 49; C. Ulary, 48; P. Jackson, 48; H. Mitchell, 47; H. Jackson, 47; W. Bouchelle, 45; N. Heath, 46; R. Ott, 46; C. Holden, 46; Green, 44. Total, 466.

Elkton Pays Tribute To County Soldier Dead

American Legion Sponsors Ceremony In County Seat Saturday; Parade Through Streets

Cecil County towns observed Memorial Day with local ceremonies Saturday. In most places, stores and business houses were closed all day. Many pilgrimages to nearby cemeteries were made and the graves of veterans adorned with small flags and flowers.

The largest program was held in Elkton under the auspices of the American Legion Post.

In the morning, a parde through the principal streets was held, headed by the Elkton band. The procession included school children, veterans, members of the American Legion Post and town officials.

Later, exercises were held at the Soldiers' Monument at the Court House. The memorial was tastefully decorated by a committee of women of the town who each year attend to this important detail.

Commander Wallace Williams presided at the exercises and introduced the speaker of the day, Dr. A. Lindsay Skerry, of Indianapolis, Indiana, himself a wounded veteran.

Singing and music by the band completed the morning's program.

FREE DRIVER WHOSE AUTO KILLED BOY

In the case of Ellis Davis, the seven-year-old son of Mrs. Essie Davis, who was run over and killed by an automobile on West Main street, Elkton, early last week, a coroner's jury, Friday, after examining a number of witnesses, gave a verdict of accidental death and exonerated the driver of the car that struck the unfortunate boy. The car was driven by J. W. Davis, of Rocks, Harford county, and with him in the car at the time was Dr. J. W. Famous, also of that town. The boy it was testified, jumped off the rear of a truck and ran across the street directly in front of the car that hit him.

Mizpah Class Bake

The Mizpah Class of Elkton M. E. Sunday School will hold a bake and strawberry festival Saturday afternoon and evening, June 6, on the Church House Lawn. Elkton Band will furnish the music.

Lay Elkton Sewers

The old Board of Elkton Town Commissioners has issued a contract to lay sewer pipes on East High street extending around Locust Lane to Main street. Work will begin in a few weeks.

Sewing Circle Meets

The Iron Hill Sewing Circle will meet Thursday evening, June 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthias. Members and friends are invited to attend.

President's Memorial Day Speech

Excerpts Of What Is Considered By Many To Be His Greatest Public Address; Delivered Over The Tomb Of The Unknown Soldier At Arlington

President Coolidge spoke as follows: "For those who are the inheritors of a noble estate and a high place in the world, it is a good thing to pause at intervals and consider by what favor of fortune and of ancestry their lines have fallen in such pleasant places. Thus to meditate upon that course of events, which has given them what they have and made them what they are, will tend to remind them how great is their debt and how little is their share of merit.

"This is the day on which the American people each year acknowledge that they have such a debt. It has been set aside that a grateful Nation may do fitting honor to the memory of those who have made the greatest and most voluntary contribution to it. Here about us, in this place of beauty and reverence, lies the mortal dust of a noble host, to whom we have come to pay our tribute, as thousands of other like gatherings will do throughout our land. In their youth and strength, their love and loyalty, those who rest here gave to their For what they sacrificed we must give back the pledge of faith to all that country all that mortality can give, they held dear, constantly renewed, constantly justified. Doing less would betray them and dishonor us.

"Our generation has recently lived through times still so vivid as to seem but as yesterday, which have taught us deeply to appreciate the value of union in purpose and effort. We have come to see as through a crystal that in the national variety of talents and resources, of cultures and capacities, of climates and of soils, of occupations and of interests, lies the guaranty of both our power and our authority. More than that, they have taught us how heavy and important is our responsibility in the world.

America's Great Contribution.

"Conscious of a strength which removes us from either fear or truculence, satisfied with dominions and resources which free us from lust of territory or empire, we see that our highest interest will be promoted by the prosperity and progress of our neighbors. We recognize that what has been accomplished here has largely been due to the capacity of our people for efficient cooperation. We shall continue prosperous at home and helpful abroad, about as we shall maintain and continually adapt to changing conditions the system under which we have come thus far. I mean our Federal system, distributing powers and responsibilities between the States and the National Government. For that is the greatest American contribution to the organization of government over great populations placed as ours is. It has become so practical administration for a nation placed as ours is. It has become so commonplace to us, and a pattern by so many other peoples, that we do not always realize how great an innovation it was when first formulated, or how great the practical problems which its operation involves. Because of my conviction that some of these problems are at this time in need of deeper consideration, I shall take this occasion to try to turn the public mind in that direction.

"When dealing with the distribution of powers between the General Government and the States, Chief Justice Marshall declared:

> "'When the American people created a national legislature with certain powers, it was neither necessary nor proper to define the powers reserved by the States. Those powers proceed, not from the people of America, but from the people of the several States and remain after the adoption of the Cnostitution what they were before, except so far as they may be abridged by that instrument.'

"Our constitutional history started with the States retaining all powers of sovereignty unimpaired, save those conferred upon the National Government. The evolution of the constitutional system has consisted largely in determining the line of demarcation between State and national authority. The cases involved are many and complicated, but there is a fairly good popular understanding of this continuing struggle between these contending sovereignties. Because of better communication and transportation, the constant tendency has been to more and more social and economic unification. The present continent-wide union of 48 States is much closer than was the original group of 13 States.

"This increasing unification has wellnigh obliterated State lines so far as concerns many relations of life. Yet, in a country of such enormous expanse, there must always be certain regional differences in social outlook and economic thought. The most familiar illustration of this is found in the history of slavery. The Constitution did not interfere with slavery, except to fix a time when the foreign slave trade should be abolished. Yet within a generation the country was confronting a sharp sectional division on this issue. Changing economic conditions made slavery profitable in the South, but left it unprofitable in the North. The resulting war might have been avoided if the South had adopted a policy of ultimate abolition. But as this method was not pursued the differences grew sharper until they brought on the great conflict.

Disunion Ended Forever

"Though the war ended forever the possibility of disunion, there still remain problems between State and Federal authority. There are divisions of interest, perhaps more apparent than real, among geographical sections or social groups. The seaboard thinks it has interests in maritime transportation and overseas commerce which differ greatly from these of the interior, which is peculiarly dependent upon railroads. Difference in climate and physical conditions throughout so great a territory tend to varied social habits and modes of living which react upon the economic and political attitudes. The industrial development of some sections contrasts with the agricultural character of others. Obviously, these differences give rise to many problems in government, which must always be recognized. But it is hardly conceivable that a really menacing contest between the sovereignty of the States and of the Union could ever again arise.

"Our country, having devised this dual system of government, and lived under it longer than any other, is deeply concerned to perfect and adapt it to the changing conditions of organized society. A community comprising half a continent and more than a hundred million people, could not possibly be administered under a single government organization. We must maintain a proper measure of local self-government while constantly making adjustments to an increasing interdependence among the political parts.

"Our national history has presented various phases of this problem. Slavery showed one; the complexities of interstate commerce have kept others constantly in mind. On the day the Constitution was finished, probably more people would have seen seeds of conflict and dangers to the Union in future commercial relations than in slavery. But commerce became a source of strength, while slavery became a cause of division. It brought the Union into danger; and in the end was destroyed itself. Where there was sincere acceptance of the dual sovereignty theory; where the States sought to do their full part, and accepted the determinations of the National Government as to the rest, the plan worked. Where the States sought more from the Federal authority than it could give, and resisted national demands—then came dissension and, at length, war.

Avoid More Centralization

"From every position of consistency with our system, more centralization ought to be avoided. The States would protest, promptly enough, anything savoring of Federal usurpation. Their protection will lie in discharging the full obligations that have been imposed on them. Once the evasion of local responsibilities becomes a habit, there is no knowing how far the consequences may reach. Every step in such a progression will be unfortunate alike for States and Nation. The country needs, in grappling with the manifold problems of these times, all the courage, intelligence, training, and skill that can be enlisted in both state and national administrations.

"We have demonstrated in the time of war that under the Constitution we possess an indestructible Union. We must not fail to demonstrate in the time of peace that we are likewise determined to possess and maintain indestructible States. This policy can be greatly advanced by individual observance of the law. It can be strongly supplemented by a vigorous enforcement of the law. The war which established Memorial Day had for its main purpose the enforcement of the Constitution. The peace which followed that war rests upon the universal observance of the Constitution. This Union can only be preserved, the States can only be maintained, under a reign of national, local, and moral law, under the Constitution established by Washington, under the peace provided by Lincoln."

NEWARK, PAST AND PRESENT

A Series Of Sketches, Written In 1882 By James L. Vallandigham, Jr., Owner Of The Old Delaware Ledger, In Collaboration With Egbert Handy, And Released For Publication In Serial Form By The Newark Post.

FOREWORD

"Newark Past and Present," the first considerable published sketch of this village, was written by my brother, James Laird Vallandigham, Jr., a lawyer then resident here, in collaboration with Egbert Handy, a much younger man, son of the Reverend Isaac William Handy, a Presbyterian minister. When the pamphlet was published, Newark had a population of less than 1200. Most of the whites lived in Main Street and Chapel Street. Most of the colored people on "The Row." The village was ill-paved, dimly lighted with oil lamps, without a sewer, and I believe, without a public water supply. The College was small and almost unendorsed, the Women's College and the University organization hardly dreamed of. There were two public schools, District No. 39 and District No. 41—known as the Lower School and the Upper School, rather more than a quarter of a mile apart, small buildings facing on Main Street, though No. 39 stood back about 150 yards from the highway. They were crowded, ill-ventilated, grossly unsanitary. There were two sessions, morning and afternoon, each long and wearisome to both teachers and pupils. The Academy was then in operation, as it had been for more a century.

Since this volume was published Newark has considerably more than doubled in population,, much more than quadrupled in wealth; the College has grown into a University with ten times its academic population of that period, more than 20 times its income and its physical valuation. To tell adequately the story of Newark today would require a pamphlet at least twice the bulk of "Newark Past and Present."

EDWARD N. VALLANDIGHAM.

PREFACE

IN preparing this little work we are indebted to so many sources for the facts stated, that it is impossible for us to give all the credit due for their assistance. A considerable part of what has been written has been obtained by conversations with men and women or advanced age, who were familiar with the events spoken of; but it is proper that we should acknowledge an indebtedness, also, to "Vincent's History of Delaware," to Col. Wm. G. Whiteley's address on the Revolutionary Soldiers of Delaware, to Johnson's admirable "History of Cecil County, Maryland," and to the centennial sermons of Reverends George J. Porter, William D. Mackey and Dr. J. L. Vallandigham.

The account of the murder of J. Edward Roach is condensed from a nearly verbatim report of the evidence taken in the case, and it may be relied upon as correct.

On account of the fact that it would have enlarged this little book beyond a reasonable size, we could not, as we would like to have done, give a review of the diary of the English officer who passed through here with the British army just previous to the battle of Brandywine, explanatory of some of its statements and comparing them with the published histories of the campaign in which that engagement occurred.

We have also had to omit many items of interest, some for want of space, some because they might cause pain to those now living, and others because of doubtful authenticity. Hoping the result of our labor may serve to while away an otherwise tedious hour to the reader, and may prove of some interest and value in after years to those who may find it in garret or lumber room—such as it is, we submit it to what we hope will be the lenient judgment of a generous public.

NEWARK IN THE PAST

TO an Englishman, or indeed to all foreigners, the claim of antiquity in behalf of almost any city or town in the United States, would seem perfectly ridiculous. Yet as our ideas of age or duration of time are mainly controlled by comparison with those places and things most familiar with us, a village over 200 years old is considered by Americans generally as entitled to be called ancient. As Newark, Delaware, is above 200 years old, in new world chronology it can well be termed an old town, though "hoary centuries" have not watched over its gradual growth and improvement. In the West the first question asked about a town is, when was it laid out? To this interrogatory as to Newark, we can truthfully answer that it was never laid out—like "Topsy," it "just growed." For the most part it is one long street running nearly east and west. No doubt some of the early settlers in the neighborhood were English and came from Newark in the old country spoken of by Scott,

"Where Newark's stately tower
Looks out from Yarrow's birchen bower."

In all the old papers relating to the town it is noticeable that the last syllable, ark, is always spelled with a small a, but for nearly a hundred years it has been known as New Ark, a bold capital A being used.

The early settlers were from Great Britain—English, Welsh, and Scotch-Irish, with a small sprinkling of the "raal sons of the sod."

In 1757 James McMechan and others made an application for corporate privileges to William Denny, acting Governor of that part of William Penn's grant, known as the three lower counties of the Delaware—Newcastle, Kent and Sussex. He referred the matter, it appears, to higher authority, and the result was the document which we shall presently set forth.

This may fairly be taken as the first charter, although the place had been known as Newark for many years previously. Through the kindness of Professor William D. Mackey we are enabled to give a correct copy of this first charter, as it came from George II, then King of England, dated the 13th of April, 1758. The old document is before us just as it was received so many years ago, the parchment indeed discolored by time, the seal somewhat broken, and the ribbon attached faded, but the writing for the most part plain and legible, and beautifully executed.

The year in which this first charter was granted is one memorable in history. Both the old and new continents were embroiled in gigantic wars. General Wolfe had just set his foot for the first time upon American soil. Young Washington was engaged with his Virginia volunteers in rescuing western Pennsylvania from the French and Indians. The heroic Montcalm, so soon after, like his noble compeer, Wolfe, dying on the same field, to surrender up his young life, was gaining his laurels at Ticonderoga. In the old world the terrible seven years' war was raging, and Frederick the Great of Prussia, surrounded on all sides by enemies, was putting forth all the energies of his genius. In India, young Clive was winning for England the vast Empire which has added a brilliant diadem and a new title to the crown of England. Pitt, the "great Commoner," was ruling the destinies of Great Britain. Voltaire, in France, with tongue and pen was sapping the foundations of great civil institutions, and vainly thinking he was also destroying all spiritual authority. Dr. Samuel Johnson was engaged in the stupendous labor of preparing his great Dictionary. The world's work was going on bravely, and amidst the noise and hurly burly about his throne, and the engrossing domestic joys of his mistresses's wines and cards, old George II. took time to authorize the issuing of a charter to the quiet little town of Newark.

TAMMANY GIRLS' SCHOOL, DAWES "GLOOMY DEAN," STUDENTS THINK

From The New York "World"

Members of the senior class of the Atlantic City High School have peculiar ideas of who's who.

Vice President Charles G. Dawes was identified as "the gloomy dean," in answers to a recent current events examination. Several students decided that Tammany Hall is the name of a girls' school.

Others referred to de Pachmann, pianist, as a ward leader, a diplomat and an automobile racer. Owen D. Young, co-author of the Dawes plan, was identified as owner of Young's Pier there, a participant in the Herrin riots and an author.

Leopold Auer, musician, was connected with the Leopold-Loeb case. One girl replied that Harold ("Red") Grange, University of Illinois football player, was a "farm out West." Another defined a moratorium as a eulogy and said log-rolling is "a Western sport popular among lumbermen."

The 1924 Pultizer prize play, two seniors decided, was either "Artists and Models" or "The Covered Wagon."

START SOON ON MUCH NEEDED SUSSEX ROAD

Pending action through the Chief Executive's office and the State judiciary, concerning the standing of the Sussex county road bonds, work on a fourteen mile stretch of highway in Sussex county, which is one of the most important stretches of road that will be built by the State Highway Commission this year, will be started, it is anticipated, this week. It is the state road from Milford to the Lewes-Rehoboth road and will complete an important thoroughfare for travel in lower Delaware. It will cost about $600,000.

MASEMORE–BETTERIDGE

Miss Anna Masemore and Mr. John J. Betteridge, both of Elkton, were married at the M. E. parsonage there this morning by the Rev. W. G. Harris, pastor of the church. Both are well known among Elkton residents. The bride was attended by her brother and sister, Richard and Edna Masemore. After a short wedding trip to northern points, they will reside in Wilmington.

Russell, Richardson Park, last Tuesday. Rev. L. B. Morgan, pastor of Richardson Park M. E. Church, officiated. Burial was in Silverbrook cemetery. Deceased died May 23, 1925. She had been the victim of a stroke two years ago. Mrs. Russell was a native of Point of Rocks, Md., and went to Richardson Park about five years ago, from Newark. She is survived by her son, with whom she lived, and one daughter, Mrs. India DeValinger, Elkton.

COOLIDGE BESIEGED BY HANDSHAKERS

President Has Received Over 100,000 Citizens Since August, 1923

Since President Coolidge became President of the United States in August, 1923, he has received over 100,000 persons. He has shaken hands with over 90,000. The United States Chamber of Commerce, appreciating the fact that every hour taken up in hand-shaking means just so much more of a burden to the President, when received by him last week sent word to the Executive Secretary that they would pay their respects to the President but not shake hands, not desiring to add to the physical strain under which he works every day, for it must be recalled that the President is one of if not the busiest man in the United States. It is no uncommon thing for him to put in 12 to 14 hours a day at his desk, and even while visiting different sections of the country he carries with him stenographers and other aides and transacts business on the train or at the hotel in between time.

While the President has not voiced any desire to curtail the hand-shaking which has become our great national habit, there are many of the President's friends and well-wishers who would be glad to see him relieved, in part at least, of the strain to which he is subjected every day.

Why He Needs A Wife

Miss Antique was one of those dear old creatures who never lose hope. Her motto was try, try and try again, and she entered time after time for the matrimonial stakes, but never succeeded in landing a husband.

One day she was attending an "at home" and was introduced to an elderly gentleman, Mr. Dandegrass by name.

"You ought to get married, Mr. Dandegrass," gurgled Miss Antique during the course of their conversation.

"Yes," replied Mr. Dandegrass earnestly, "I have wished many times lately that I had a wife."

"Have you, really?" she asked soulfully.

"Yes," was the answer. "If I had a wife she would probably have a sewing machine, and the sewing machine would have an oil can, and I could take it up and oil my office door. It squeaks horribly." — Pittsburgh Sun.

BUSINESS FIRMS CAN KEEP MAIL OUT OF JUNKPILE

Postmaster General New Shows How Dead Letter Office Keeps So Busy

Offenses against good mailing practices are not confined entirely to the average man who mails only his yearly quota of 112 letters, Postmaster General New declared today in connection with his better mailing campaign.

The business man, who is naturally expected to take every precaution in the interest of intelligent communication with his clients or customers, often falls woefully short in providing adequate safeguards for the efficient delivery of his mail.

It is true that comparatively few business letters reach the Dead Letter Office because the business man learned long ago to have his return address printed on his envelopes if only for its accruing advertising value.

There are firms, however, that purposely leave off return cards when sending out circulars and advertising matter. They seek this method of arousing curious recipients to examine letters which otherwise might be consigned unopened to the waste basket.

But "Nixies"—meaning letters requiring directory service before delivery can be effected—are comprised largely of business letters, and this service costs the Post Office nearly two million dollars yearly.

The practice of buying sales lists—usually antiquated ones—for advertising soliciting through the mails is especially prolific of nixies. The owners of such lists seldom attempt to keep them current although the Post Office will furnish clerks to revise such lists at the nominal charge of 65 cents an hour.

Advertisers in newspapers, magazines and elsewhere often fail to specify their own street addresses. Answers, therefore, particularly where the advertiser is located in the of the larger cities, just as frequently are returned tothe senders.

"That's a penny-wise and pound-foolish policy," Mr. New said. The return of one letter marked "Not Found" will do the advertiser more harm in the town from which it came than he can repair with many thousand dollars worth of advertising.

The person to whom it is deturned will give him plenty of advertising, but it will be of the wrong kind.

Almost as foolish is the firm—and there are many ofthem—which fails to carry its complete address, including street number, city and state, on its letter heads and other stationery, particularly, order blanks.

Delaware Closes With Win From Haverford

Defeat Main Liners Easily Saturday Last 11-1; Pryor Stingy With Hits; Closes Delaware Season

In the last inter-collegiate game of the current season, Delaware rode rough shod over the Haverford aggregation on Frazer Field Saturday afternoon, score 11-1. After the third inning the result of the battle was never in doubt.

Earl Pryor, who, singled handed, has been bearing the brunt of the twirling all season, was again in fine fettle and set the Main Line batsmen down with seven scattered hits. He struck out six, and issued but one base on balls.

The Blue and Gold hitters turned on Hollingshead and Longstreth and battered them for a total of fourteen hits. They gave nine free passes to the Newark collegians, a fact which aided materially in piling up the big lead.

Roth took up the burden late in the game with Delaware safely in front and baffled the visitors neatly.

Captain Jimmy Mannix, who has been absent from the lineup for two weeks, celebrated his return to center field by slapping the ball safely four times during the matinee, thereby leading the Delaware attack. Lichtenstein, Prettyman and Cherpak followed with two hits apiece. No extra base drives came off Delaware bats.

The last game of the season will be played Saturday when the Varsity lines up against the Alumni.

Lefty Smith Lets Diamond Staters Down With 1 Hit

Continental Goes Merrily On, Winning Fourth League Game Memorial Day Morning; Was Fast And Cleverly Played

TACKLE DELAWARE SATURDAY

Lefty Smith's most astounding sidearm slants proved bad medicine for Diamond State Saturday, and their Memorial Day celebration got all wet. In fact, they only managed to nick Lefty for one scratch single. That, as everyone will attest, puts the skids under any attack.

The Continental pets rallied behind Smith's splendid pitching and amassed three runs. A shutout was rung up with the victory and everything was auspicious for the balance of the week-end.

Diamond State, rated highly in the Fibre League, waved frantically at Lefty's teasing drop. A trace of wildness which he has never been able to shake off, however, got him in several jecks of trouble during the morning. His pinch-pitching and good support behind him kept the platter clean, as Mother Goose would say.

The lone hit off Smith opened the game. Corrozio smashed a whistling liner towards left. Jim Keeley stabbed at the ball, knocked it down but lost his man at first. One of the breaks—and this one kept Lefty away from feature writers and photographers, most certainly.

Sewed Up In Eighth

Continental's first run came in the fourth frame. Colmery worked Parsons for a pass. Two infield outs advanced him to third. Lee's single scored him. Lee died on first.

The old ball game was tucked away in the eighth when another Continental flurry netted two more runs. Moore, batting for Sidwell, singled sharply. Lefty Smith did his duty and laid a perfect bunt, and more than that, beat it out. Moore reached third on the play at first.

Harrigan also bunted and was safe, Moore scoring and Smith going to second. Ramsay and Evans tried mightily but both went out. Colmery came through with a timely double, scoring Smith with the final run.

Harrigan and Lee led the local batters during the fracas. Colmery and Keeley looked good afield. The game was fast and interesting all the way and the good sized holiday crowd applauded every good play.

Continental plays Delaware Fibre at Marshallton next Saturday afternoon.

Newark High Downs Caesar Rodney In First Title Game In The 12th Inning

Best High School Battle Of The Year Staged Here Friday; Locals Miss Two Chances To Win In Regulation Limit; Outhit Down State Team

ROSE'S PITCHING AND JACQUETTE'S BATTING FEATURE

With two men out in the twelfth inning, and darkness gathering over the diamond, Newark High pushed over the deciding run in the first of a series of upper half championship games with Ceasar Rodney High Friday afternoon. Big "Jock" Jaquette, a thorn in the side of the visitors all afternoon, lugged the winning tally over the plate at the last moment on his single, steal of second and third and Davis' infield single. By mutual agreement, the game was to have ended at the twelfth inning. The run, therefore, came as a sudden climax to an intense ball game.

Newark outhit the visitors 12 to 8 and played a much smoother fielding game. At least two runs were lost by careless base running, and one by Shorty Chalmers' failure to lay the ball down on a squeeze play in the eighth. From beginning to end, the game was a merry battle between two fairly matched clubs. The bank around the diamond on Frazer Field was filled with people, particularly Newark rooters. In the bitter twelfth, their howling could be heard all over town.

Lose One Run Lead

Going into the ninth inning, Newark had a lead of one run. With the score tied in the eighth and two out, Amos Davis fled towards first on a dropped third strike. Jenkins was accommodating and tossed the ball away. Davis stole second immediately. When Jenkins let another pitch slip through him, Davis reached third, from where he scored on Patchell's timely single.

With the game seemingly tucked away and everybody happy, the last inning began. A sudden lapse in the Newark defense threw chills and fever into their supporters, and the score was tied. With one out Jenkins hit safely. Oeschler went out, and Lafferty hit safely to right center. Harkness pegged the ball in the general direction of third. The throw was hurried and barely carried to the infield; to make matters worse, it took a bad hop and slipped past Patchell at the hot corner, and Jenkins walked in with a most unnecessary marker.

Then came the extra innings, every one of which was full of potential run making, but never quite making the grade.

Jump Into Lead

Shorty Chalmers' black bat spun a screaming triple to center to start the game, scoring Rose in the very first frame. Shorty then cantered home on Pratt's error. "Fine business," said the Newark fans.

The party immediately developed heart breaking tactics in the fifth, when Rose lost his compass and walked two men in succession. Two hits followed in rapid succession and the plot was considerably thickened. The Newark hurler dug himself into several holes during the game on account of his wildness, but was never in serious danger. As the battle progressed, he grew stronger. His long triple in the fifth tied the score. An instant later he was thrown out at the plate when the squeeze play machinery jammed.

Jock Jaquette was the big gun on the Newark ramparts. Four clean hits spun off his bat, his fielding was faultless and he stole three bases. Aiding and abetting him at the bat were Malone, Rose and Davis. Malone and Chalmers had big days on the defense and put up a splendid fielding game.

The game Friday leaves each team with a victory but the Newark protest yet to be disposed of. If this protest is not allowed a fourth game will be played on a neutral field to be selected and the winner will then play the winner of the souther district for the State secondary high school championship.

A martial air was added to the occasion on Frazer Field by three State

Only Two Answers Submitted to Post's Puzzle

CORRECT SOLUTION NOT ELIGIBLE FOR $50 PRIZE

In another column of THE POST appears the solution to the $50 Cross Word Puzzle Contest, published in this newspaper a few weeks ago.

Unfortunately the only correct answer turned in by the scores who attempted the brain teaser, is ineligible for the $50 award. She is Miss Edith G. McCall, a member of the staff at Kells. According to the original rules of the contest, no person connected with Kells or the Newark Post was considered eligible. Miss McCall, however, went ahead with the puzzle purely for the fun of it. Her solution represented hours of hard work.

The maker of the puzzle and donor of the prize has been revealed as Mr. J. Pilling Wright, of this town. Prior to the appearance of the puzzle in The Post, he sent several copies to friends in this and other towns. That only one correct solution came back from the hundreds of contestants indicates the severity of the test.

Mrs. Harry W. Davis, of near Cooch's Bridge, was the only other fan to hand in a complete solution. Her answer contained a few mistakes, however. Mrs. Davis was the first to hand in her answer.

Mr. Wright, in a statement given to The Post yesterday commented on the result of the contest as follows:

"I wish to congratulate Kells and The Newark Post in having on their Staff the Champion Cross Word Puzzle Artist.

"Miss E. G. McCall of your staff has submitted the only true and correct answer to the Cross Word Puzzle published in The Post a few weeks ago. There were only two answers submitted and Miss McCall has the honor of submitting the only correct one. I regret that by the rules originally published your staff was debarred from the prize. No one had the solution except myself, and her answers as submitted yesterday check exactly with the original."

Miss McCall was tendered a surprise yesterday afternoon by the Craftsmen at Kells and presented with a gift from them in recognition of her success. The "kids" then took a fall out of the hot weather by revelling in ice cream and cake.

OVER 100 IN CAST OF LONGWOOD OPERA

"Patience," Under Auspices of S. P. E. Fraternity, Will Attract Many

Besides the eleven acting characters in the cast of the opera "Patience," to be given at Longwood, June 6, there is a mixed chorus of seventy-five voices, thirty-five "rapturous maidens" and forty "officers of the Dragoon Guards." The entire personnel of the company is well over one hundred persons.

Miss Marie Zara acts and sings the role of Patience, the dairymaid, in a superb fashion. Mr. John Craig Janney is inimitable as Reginald Buntherne, the materialistic poet who attempts to assume the idyllic attitude and aesthetic pose and who fails happily. Mr. J. Logan Fitts, as Archibald Grosvener, is also deserving of special mention, particularly for his splendid singing.

When the record of the Savoy Company and the position it held in Philadelphia's artistic season came to the notice of Sir William S. Gilbert, a short time before his untimely and sudden death, he wrote to the members of the Company saying that he found it gratifying to know that the joint works of Sir Arthur Sullivan and himself were of sufficient interest to justify the formation of a company for the express purpose of interpreting them.

William M. Francis, president of the incorporated society of the alumni and active members of the University of Delaware Chapter of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, is chairman of the committee that is arranging for the appearance of the Savoy Company at Longwood.

For the privilege of presenting this performance at Longwood the committee is indebted to Pierre S. du Pont who has been very generous both in assisting the Fraternity in making the productions it has sponsored in the past successful and in aiding it in its present plans.

390 GIRLS AND BOYS GRADUATE THIS YEAR

Product of Rural High Schools Sets Record for the State; 33 More Than Last Year

High Schools of Delaware will this June graduate the largest number of graduates in the history of the State, outside of Wilmington. Diplomas for 390 young men and women will be presented which is 33 more than last year, which was considered an unusually large number. This fact bears out the exceptional interest that has taken root in Delaware in the past few years and the commendable ambition ofthe boys and girls to become better educated than their fathers and mothers were.

The sessioss which have practically closed, beause high schools are now either holding commencement exercises or else giving final exams to students, has been the best, many believe, the State has exer experienced. During the past year a foundation for the fundamentals has been placed in the curriculum to correct any defects that may have xisted prior thereto and which meets the criticism of those who have said too little attention was being paid to "readin, ritin and rithmetic."

PEOPLES COLUMN

To the Editor of THE POST:

Mr. Bryan seems to have a curious misconception as to the relation of physical science to spiritual matters. Steinmetz, an eminent man of science, put the matter admirably when he declared that physical science obtains its data through the senses, and is thus precluded from the investigation of the spiritual, from the sphere of religion. So-called psychical phenomena have been investigated by the physico-scientific method, and the psychologists are free to make such investigations, but not all the researches or deductions of physical science have been able to prove the universe godless.

Physical science finds in evolution a more or less satisfactory explanation of the physical universe, in which is included the physical man. But evolution is a theory thousands of years old, and it has greatly changed since it was restated by Darwin. It may yet change beyond recognition for those who cling to its older forms, and it is much more likely to strengthen the spiritual conceptions of religion than to prove them all vain imaginings. Meanwhile, it is worse than absurd to drive physical science from the schools in the name of democracy. We do not decide engineering problems by majority vote, and we lend ear to the student of political economy rather than to the popular orator upon questions of economics, though both are greatly subject to error.

As to the idea of a God, which lies at the base of all religion, physical science vainly approaches that idea. The Presbyterian shorter catechism's answer to the question, "What is God," is purely spiritual, yet most of us, accepting the dictum that man was made "in the image of God," conceive that this great phrase refers to physical man, and in return create in imagination a God with the physical form of man. Yet that bewildering and majestic phrase of Scripture, "Before Abraham was I am" carries no conception of a physical God, but of an immanent spirit dwelling everywhere in a perpetual present, to whom a thousand years are as one day, and vivifying the universe with creative power. Can physical science, and the theory of evolution banish this pervading presence from the universe or from the spirit of man?

Pure Bred University Holstein Completes Seven Day Test Reaching 15.4 Lbs. Fat

U. of D. Ona Ormsby Armistice, a junior four-year-old Holstein cow in the University of Delaware Station herd, has recently completed a seven-day record of 15.4 pounds of fat equivalent to 19.2 pounds of butter. During the seven days she produced 431.3 pounds of milk. She is maintaining this production as shown by her March and April milk record. During the month of March she produced 1485.6 pounds of milk containing 52,293 pounds of fat. In April her production was 1623.5 pounds of milk containing 57.147 pounds of fat.

U. of D. Ona Ormsby Armistice is sired by Meadow Holm Ona Ormsby No. 230,774. Her dam is Dorothy Segis No. 419,388. The best seven-day record of Dorothy Segis is 11.7 pounds of fat. She has never had the ability to produce enough fat to make her seven-day requirement for Advance Registry. Dorothy Segis' best milk record for any month during her life is 1400 pounds.

Attention is called to the fact that the daughter is much superior to the dam from the standpoint of production. Credit for this superior production should be given the sire, Meadow Holm Ona Ormsby. Some of the best cows in the Holstein breed are closely related to this sire, and the above figures would indicate that he has inherited producing qualities, and has the ability to stamp these characteristics upon his off-spring.

The average yearly milk production per cow in Delaware is about 3000 pounds. U. of D. Ona Ormsby Armistice in producing 3,109.1 pounds of milk during March and April has produced more milk in two months than the average cow produces in a year. There is vast room for the improvement of the dairy cows in this State, and this improvement can be best brought about by the use of better herd sires.

ALUMNI PLAY THE VARSITY

Red Hot Ball Game Expected On Frazer Field Saturday

As a climax to the college sport season, next Saturday, the Varsity baseball team will line up against an all-star Alumni aggregation, being corralled from the far reaches of the East by Manager "Jack" Williams, especially for this matinee.

In the lineup of the Alumni will be names of former luminaries, well known to Newark sport lovers. Among those scheduled to provide the fireworks are Joe Rothrock and "Dory" Collins, left-handed aces under Coach Burton Shipley; Harry Jackson, "Skeet" Wilson, George Madden, "Mike" Underwood, "Dick" Hoch, Johnny Pierson, Winston Murray and "Jack" Williams. The oldsters are all set for battle and appear to be a most formidable outfit, on paper at least.

The game will be a feature of Alumni Day at the University. It will start at 2.30 o'clock, standard time.
