hypothetical. Do you know who married Deborah Marder? If not, you might want to do some research. The picture would have been taken in the 19th century, and it seems to depict a family gathering. The woman in the picture is wearing period attire, and the setting appears to be a formal occasion. The man next to her is dressed in a suit and bow tie, suggesting a formal event. The picture would have been valuable to those who knew the couple. It is unclear what the context of the event was, but it could be a wedding, a family reunion, or a significant social gathering. The picture was likely taken by a professional photographer and would have been a cherished possession for the families involved. The photograph would have been preserved for future generations to remember the important event. It is a valuable artifact that provides insight into the lives of those who lived during that time period. If you are interested in the history of photography or the social history of the 19th century, this picture would be a fascinating subject to explore. Artificial Light Provided for Class Rooms In Newark School

The program of the modern school is a program that will provide artificial light for the classroom. The modern school is in need of this provision, and the benefits that this will bring are numerous. The artificial light will not only provide better visibility for the students but will also help in reducing eye strain. The teachers will also benefit from this provision as they will be able to focus better on their teaching.

The artificial light will be provided through the use of electric lights. These lights will be placed at strategic locations in the classroom to ensure that the light is evenly distributed. The light will be designed to provide a bright but comfortable light that will not cause any glare. The artificial light will be controlled through a switch located on the wall of the classroom.
