Program For Newark's Big Memorial Day Exercises Announced By Committee

Exercises Will Be Held on University Campus Next Tuesday Morning—Everyone in Community Invited to Take Part

Cemeteries to be Visited Previous to Program

The committee in charge of the Memorial Day Exercises to be held in Newark, on the University Campus, on Tuesday, May 30th, met last night and made final arrangements for the affair.

The exercises will start at 10.30 o'clock and all civic, patriotic bodies, fraternal organizations and industrial plants have been invited to take part in the exercises and already many of the bodies have accepted the invitation and the exercises will in all probability surpass anything of the nature ever held in Newark.

It is expected that the University Campus will be crowded to its capacity to take part in these exercises and the committee in charge is not leaving a stone unturned to make the celebration a success.

Previous to the exercises on the campus, starting at 9 o'clock, the G. A. R., Veterans of the World War, American Legion and other bodies will follow the custom of visiting the local cemetaries and firing salutes and sounding taps over the graves of fallen war victims.

The presiding officer at the exercises at the University Campus will be Dr. Walter Hullihen, president of the University of Delaware. Invocation will be offered by Rev. Everett Hallman, of the First Presbyterian Church; Lincoln's Gettysburg Address will be delivered by R. G. Buckingham.

Placing of floral tributes by organizations of the community will be made by Seaman J. R. Lewis, of the Rehabilitation Division, representing various war organizations.

The firing of the National Salute will be given by a firing squadron and taps will be sounded.

William P. White, of Wilmington, will be on hand to lead the singing of various patriotic songs. The Continental and Minnehaha Bands have been invited to take part in the exercises and will furnish the music for the day.

All in all the exercises of this year will be the biggest ever held here nd many organizations that have been dormant since the close of the World War will gather their forces together again to take part in the event.

The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Major C. A. Short, chairman; Mayor Frazer, J. P. Wright, Mrs. C. B. Evans, Dr. Sypherd, Major Rowe, Capt. MacKenzie, J. R. Lewis, Dr. Walter Hullihen, Miss Drake, Everett C. Johnson and A. G. Wilkinson.

The floral tributes will be placed on the marking stone where Newark's drafted men were sworn into the service for the action in the World War.

No one in Newark will miss a chance to take part in these Memorial Day exercises to show honor to those who have fallen and taken part in the wars of the country. Since the World War, exercises on Memorial Day have taken on a broader aspect and all the late war organizations now take part in these exercises.

Miss Rich Called To N. Carolina College

High Honors Bestowed on Former Teacher at Delaware—Was Active Here

Miss Mary E. Rich, who resigned from the Women's College last year to do some Graduate Work and Investigation at the Teacher's College, Columbia University, has been called to the North Carolina College for Women, at Greensboro as the Critic Teacher in the School of Education. The Southern College has between 1300 and 1400 students and authorities there are attracting national attention in their work of the Training School for teachers. She was asked to join the Faculty of the Summer School there but declined and will begin her work in the fall.

Miss Rich has a host of friends not only in Newark but throughout the State. In her work as Field Representative of Education and her relations with the Educational Committee of the State Federation, she visited practically every community in the State. She came to the Women's College at its organization and took an exceptional part in all its progress. At the head of the Summer School, she won the interest of the teachers and no small part of the success of this important phase of Education in Delaware is due to her efforts. She made the Summer School a real institution. Growing out of her direct and persistent efforts came the State Teacher's organization. In recognition of this she was the guest of honor at the last annual meeting. Her training, personality and wide experience qualifies Miss Rich for the new honor that has come to her. Delaware however still looks for her return.

3000 School Pupils Will Parade Here

Big Street Demonstration to be Held Previous to Field Meet—Many Educators Here

Boys and girls from all parts of New Castle County are planning to visit Newark, Friday, the occasion of the Second Annual Field Day of New Castle County. The day's program will start with a parade at 10.00 o'clock (daylight saving time), in which 3000 school children, carrying posters, flags and banners, will participate. Educators from all parts of the State will be present to review the line of children. Various civic and welfare organizations of the State will be represented by floats. Mr. W. A. Jones of the Savoy Theatre, Wilmington, will be on hand to take a movie of the day's events. About 750 children will receive bronze badges in recognition of athletic records made on theri own school grounds, and about 75, it is estimated, will receive silver badges for breaking their last year's records. Approximately 25 dodge ball teams will be entered in the tournament conducted by State Board officials on Joe Frazer Field immediately following the parade on Main Street, and 400 children in field and track events.

The day's program is varied to afford entertainment for children in all the grades. From 9.45 to 10.30, there will be an exhibition of ring games given by the children under the direction of their teachers. The winding of May Poles and the popular folk dances, "Looby-Loo", "Pop Goes the Weasel", "Jolly Miller", "The Shoemaker", and "Kinderpolka", will be presented by a group of 400 primary pupils. A novel feature to be introduced on Field Day, is the use of the Columbia Magnovox, an electrical device for magnifying sound. This is to be used on a Grafonola in the parade, and played for the folk games during the festival. The Magnovox will later be detached and used in making announcements during the field and track events. The new Castle Field Day is the last of a series of athletic events planned by the Delaware Interscholastic Athletic Association, and held in the various counties this spring. The meets at Georgetown, in Sussex County, and Wyoming, in Kent County, have been featured by record-breaking crowds. Movie men have been present on each occasion. The combined film will be shown within the next few weeks at local theatres. Arrangements have also been made to have it presented at the National Education Convention which will be held in Boston during July.

Banquet Of Chamber Of Commerce On Thursday Night To Be Big Affair

Rev. Trapnell, of Wilmington, Will Be the Speaker—Telephone Demonstration for Local Men—"Bill" White Here

Several Visitors From Dover Will Be Present

That the banquet of the Newark Chamber of Commerce to be held in the College Commons, on Thursday night will be a success is assured by the large number of acceptances of invitations that have been received. Already seventy-nine persons of Newark have accepted the invitations to be present at the affair. This is the initial dinner of the newly organized body and all the members of the organization are working towards its success.

Rev. R. W. Trapnell, rector of St. Andrew's P. E. Church, of Wilmington, will be the speaker of the evening. Rev. Trapnell is well known throughout Delaware for his addresses and the local organization considers itself lucky in obtaining such an excellent speaker.

Another feature of the event will be the telephone demonstration to be put on by E. P. Bardo, of the Wilmington office of the Diamond State Telephone Co. This exhibition has been put on for the foremost business and fraternal organizations of Wilmington and has proven very interesting. The exhibition shows the actual working of a telephone exchange in service.

Mayor A. B. Magee, of Dover, and members of both the Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club of that place will be among the guests. The Dover Chamber of Commerce, after the Newark organization, is about the youngest in the State. The Dover people will be called on to tell of the workings and successes of their organizations in the Capital. Besides Mayor Magee the following Dover men will be present: Henry McSherry, R. T. Buckson, Linford Outten and Charles W. Hardesty.

William P. White, the well known community sing leader of Wilmington, has accepted the invitation of the local organization to come here and lead the singers. "Bill," as Mr. White is known, is well known here he having led the Community sing at Christmas time. When Mr. White cannot instill "pep" into a gathering there is something wrong and as there will not be anything wrong at the Chamber of Commerce affair on Thursday night you can rest assured that there will be some volume to the singing.

All the Chamber of Commerce members claim that the affair is going to be the greatest get-together affair ever given in Newark. Not only will the members of the Chamber be present but each member can invite one outsider and it is the opinion of those in charge that many new members will apply for membership in the organization after they see the spirit that the present members present at this initial send-off.

A tempting menu for the affair has been arranged and there will be other entertainment features that will be announced at the time of the affair.

Camping Site Here Up-To-Date Idea

Neighboring State of Maryland Has Eight Camps—Jas. C. Hastings Backs Movement

If the Chamber of Commerce of Newark carries out the proposed plan for a motorists camp here the town will be right in the swim. The Baltimore papers on Sunday carried a story telling of how in that State eight camp sites had been completed on the State roads.

The State Road Commission of that State is now having signs painted to guide tourists to the sites and is preparing a descriptive booklet describing each of the camps in detail.

All the Maryland camps with the exception of one just outside of Cumberland are conducted free of charge. In this one camp which is conducted by an independent company the charge is 25 cents per night.

James C. Hastings was the originator of the idea in the local Chamber of Commerce and is a strong backer of the movement. He claims that such a camp would keep Newark before the travelling public in a better way than any other plan that could be devised and that much trade would be brought to local merchants by those who stopped off here.

The proposed site for the camp at the present time is on the High School athletic field. It is the idea of Mr. Hastings to have electric lights and water placed on the grounds and in this way the automobilists would have an ideal camping site.

A great number of automobile tourists now camp out over night rather than stop at hotels and already several parties have stopped off here in Newark asking if there was a camping ground. It was such inquiries as these that made Mr. Hastings take the matter under serious consideration.

The local Chamber of Commerce will probably take action of this matter at its next meeting.

Caleb Burchenal To Be Speaker

It was announced at a late hour this afternoon that Caleb Burchenal, well known attorney of Wilmington, will be the speaker at the Memorial Day Exercises here on next Tuesday.

ALUMNI REUNION

1922 Class to be Guests At Affair On June 3rd

Mrs. Fred Strickland, Wallace Cook, Francis Lindell, Gertrude Hill, Miss Agnes Medill and Mrs. T. C. Young, the committee in charge of the annual reunion of the Newark High School Alumni Association has about completed the program for the affair.

The reunion will be held in Old College on Saturday evening, June 3rd, and one of the biggest crowds that ever turned out for this event is expected to be present. Dinner will be served at 6.30 o'clock. Following the dinner the annual business meeting will be held and officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Following the business meeting there will be a social program including dancing.

As yet the speaker for the evening has not been announced.

The guests of the evening will be the members of the 1922 graduating class of the local High School.

DR. AMY REED TO SPEAK

Noted Woman Educator at the Women's College Commencement

Dr. Amy Reed, head of the English Department of Vassar College, chairman of the faculty and for years head librarian of the same institution, will make the Commencement Day address at the Women's College under the new plan to have separate exercises for both Delaware College and the Women's College.

Miss Reed is one of the national educators of the country and her acceptance to make the address at the local college is a great compliment to Dean Robinson and the institution. Her presence here will register a Red Letter Day in the history of the

Local Girls Win Cooking Honors

Second Year High School Students Show Cooking Ability in County Contest

Marie Gregg, Ledia Towson, Florence Riley, Helen Barnard and Marguerite Meschler, represented the second-year class of the Newark High School and carried off high honors in their section of the County Home Economics Contest at New Castle, last Thursday.

Besides the local girls who competed in the contest, were girls from Middletown and New Castle.

The girls from the Newark High School were under the direction of Miss Case, the local Home Economics teacher.

The cooking competition was held in the Home Economics Laboratory of the New Castle High School. The clothing contest was held in the New Century Club. The awards in this branch of the competition will not be made until the State contest to be held in Dover, tomorrow.

The second-year girls of Newark prepared the following menu in the cooking contest: Cream of pea soup, croutons, potatoes on half shell, escalloped salmon, baking powder biscuits, butter, lettuce salad and strawberry shorteake.

The first year girls of the Middletown High School carried off the prize in that division.

In the contest for home nursing given by Miss Jones, the Red Cross nurse, the New Castle High School girls were first with an average of 91 per cent.

The girls who represented the local High School in the County Contest are looking forward to the State Contest in Dover tomorrow and are confident that they will cop more honors in this contest.

The Newark Home Economic Department came home from the County Contest with the largest number of points awared to any contestant.

The local girls made the expenses of their contestants by selling ice cream and doughnuts at noon hour in the school. Marie Gregg is representing the Sophomore Class in the State Contest at Dover tomorrow.

Miss Edith Case the local instructor had her training at the University of Kansas and Columbia University.

Prizes In Girls' Club Rally Here

About 200 Young Ladies Attend Affair Here on Saturday—Miss Agnes P. Medill in Charge

The second annual Girls' Club Rally was held here on Saturday under the direction of Miss Agnes P. Medill. The affair was a success from the start to finish and the two hundred girls who were here had a gala time.

This district was well represented at the rally with representatives from Sharpley, Brandywine Hundred, Newport, Christiana, Ogletown, Milford Cross Roads, Clover Leaf Club, near Newark; Glasgow, Summit Bridge, Townsend, Yorklyn and Hockessin.

The exhibits in connection with the rally were held in Wolf Hall on Friday and Saturday and many local visitors viewed them.

Prof. R. W. Heim, head of vocational training in the State's schools, gave an interesting talk to those who attended the affair.

Early Saturday morning the girls started to arrive and by noon the campus in front of Wolf Hall looked like a picnic ground. Lunch was eaten here. All those present were taken on an inspection tour of the Women's College while here.

COMMENCEMENT CHANGES

Delaware College and Women's College to Have Separate Programs

It was proposed this year to hold the Commencement Exercises of Delaware College and the Women's College at the same time.

This plan has been changed and the two branches will hold separate exercises. The program and speakers formerly announced for the combined exercises will be on the Delaware College program with Senator Lenroot as the speaker.

The eleventh hour change of arrangement made Dean Robinson of the Women's College hustle to get a speaker but she was successful in obtaining Dr. Amy Reed, of Vassar College.

Why the sudden change was made is not known and Dr. Hullihen could not be reached today as he is in Harrisburg.

Matrimony Holding Back Teachers

State Board of Education Finds Cupid Is Hard to Beat Down

That the thought of matrimony is causing teachers in Delaware to lack ambition, was brought out in an informal discussion at the May meeting of the State Board of Education.

It is claimed that at the present time there are 134 instructors, chiefly women, in the public schools of this State whose thought of marriage is causing lack of interest in their work.

Records of the instructors show that three are 134 teachers who possess the minimum standard certificate to enable them to teach in Delaware.

Inquiry among these teachers as to why they do not try to improve their standing has in most cases elicited the reply, "Oh, I don't expect to teach many years, as I hope to get married."

Confronted with this answer the State educators are helpless to find a way to enthuse many teachers in the matter of improving their condition.

In the hope of improving these 134 teachers, the State Board of Education has instituted a course in reading among the teachers, the books offered being chosen with the idea of improving the talent of the teacher in her work, and tests to develop whether any advancement has been made are made at frequent intervals.

One idea that has been discussed by the State educators, that of cutting $50 from the salaries of this class of teacher and adding this sum to the next higher grade, was dismissed because of the argument that with lack of present incentive to improve their standing, under the hope of soon being married, such a move would tear down the morale of the instructor.

Another plan that is being urged by the State Board is that the teachers attend the sessions of the Summer School conducted here in Newark each year.

Those teachers who have applied themselves to the summer course of instructions have rarely failed to win advancement and corresponding increase in salaries. This method of encouraging teachers to improve themselves through suasion and added salaries the State Board believes is beginning to have its effect, although the process is slow.

Another problem which the State Board is meeting through educational rather than arbitrary processes, is that of school attendance. While there is a State law of compulsory attendance of so many days at school, the State Board is not attempting to enforce it. They realize that to do so would only antagonize the parents with the result that perhaps the attendance records would be even poorer.

ARDEN GROWING

Single-Tax Colony Needs More Ground for Cottages

The village of Arden, famous for its single-tax ideas, is planning to expand beyond the narrow confines of the 160-acre plat upon which it now stands. Trustees of the village are at the present time endeavoring to purchase an adjoining tract of 100-acres and if the deal goes through many additional cottages will be built in the near future.

The single-taxers founded the Arden colony about twenty-two years ago in an effort to demonstrate the feasibility of the economic theories of Henry George, and at that time cherished the hope that some day the rest of the State would be annexed to Arden.

While this hope has not been realized, yet the colony has grown so rapidly that during the last few years hundreds of applicants for plats have been turned away because all of the available sites were gone. The colony now boasts more than 150 lease-holders, most of whom have built comfortable cottages.

WEATHER HINDERS

Delaware Bay Fishermen Hard Hit by Cool Season

Sturgeon fishermen, whose work has been retarded considerably, because of the cool weather, are beginning to make fair catches in the Delaware bay, but with no season such as was first expected. There are now about twenty-four crews fishing and about 500 pounds of roe has been the best their combined efforts have so far accomplished. In previous seasons the catch up until this date has been about three times this amount.

CHORAL CLUB

The Newark Choral Club held a rehearsal in the High School on Monday night.

Insects Equipped With Radio Power

Moths and Mosquitoes Communicate by Means of Vibrating Antennae Protruding from Heads

Most inhabitants of the civilized world are familiar with the development of radiophone and wireless telegraph.

They have followed the work of scientists in giving to mankind the use of these wonderful inventions. They know about Alexander Graham Bell and his work with the telephone. They know about Marconi and his accomplishments in wireless telegraphy.

But few are aware that some of the smallest insects which inhabit the fields and more especially those common to households—the moth and the mosquito—ewer equipped by nature with this method of transmitting messages to each other centuries before the advent of man's communication devices.

Some day when you are cleaning out a closet and find a moth or when a mosquito which has just bitten into your shins flies off with a singing noise, try to capture it. If you are fortunate enough to have with you a microscope, you will learn that the insects are equipped with antennae. These antennae, you will discover, are similar to the aerials used in wireless telegraphy. They protrude from the head of the moth and mosquito and are long, slender poles with fine, hair-like, vibrating wires, which produce sound waves similar to those transmitted by wireless apparatus.

They are known to many persons who have followed entymology as feelers or horns. But if you are to believe the recent tests made by certain entymologists, they are used for communicating with their fellows.

Little bound waves emanate from these minute antennae. They are carried for distances of more than a mile. This distance in bug life is tremendous.

Recently an experiment with a female moth was tried. The moth was in a cocoon. It was taken home and kept in a box. After due course of time the insect was hatched. It was confined to the box for several days and then released to a glass case. In less than twenty-four hours moths by the score flocked outside the glass case in which the moth was housed.

It might be said moths communicate with each other by means of the sense of smell. In this instance, however, there was no possible method for this sense to be brought into use. The antennae, by close attention, could be detected gently vibrating.

Many insects are supposed not to have auditory organs. Yet it is proved that all sound-producing insects must have ears with which to hear. The usual antennae of the moth are composed of microscopic pits filled with a fluid. To these pits go a fine nerve whose fibres end in a staff like sense cells.

The eyes of the average insect are very poor. They enable them to distinguish only daylight from darkness. Or at the very most near objects. The bee and the butterfly have color sense in that they are gifted with the power to discern bright colors.

Professor Herman Hornig, entymologist for Philadelphia, conducted an experiment with moths, and states he is thoroughly convinced they have, by means of wireless, a method of communicating with each other. He also states he had discussed the matter with eminent scientists, who expressed belief in this gift of nature to the moth and mosquito.

He said anyone can take a male mosquito and place it under a tumbler, thus shutting off air. If any other insects in the neighborhood are singing or waving their antennae the male mosquito will immediately respond by frantically waving its antennae. This, he contends, indicates that a message has reached the imprisoned insect.

NEW CLUB HOUSE

New Century Club of Georgetown to Have Building

In large cities where there are many halls for public use, and where buildings for meetings of all kinds are easily rented, the lack of such buildings in country towns can hardly be understood; yet it is a fact that in many towns there is no building of any kind beyond a small town hall, which would be crowded with a hundred people.

To meet this demand the women of many towns have constructed community houses, where town dances can be held, local dramatic performances given and where different organizations can secure room for a small sum.

Georgetown is the latest town in Delaware to plan such a structure, the women of the New Century Club being back of the plan. They have planned an up-to-date club house and many affairs of the town will be held there.

Christiana Had Gala Celebration

Biggest Gathering in Years on Last Saturday—New Fire Engine is Housed

One of the largest gathering of people that ever assembled at Christiana was on hand last Saturday when the housing of the new fire engine of that town took place.

The members of Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co., through Professor C. A. Short, of the University of Delaware, presented the Christiana firemen with a silver horn.

When the matter of purchasing a fire engine for Christiana first came up there was much opposition to the plan and several law suits were threatened. But the people that stood fast for the purchase of the apparatus were certainly rewarded on Saturday. There were persons from all parts of the State on hand for the affair. The gathering was held at the old Lewden House, once the social center of our neighboring village.

The occasion was primarily for the purpose of dedicating the new fire engine which arrived Saturday morning and was brought through from Washington by J. Thompson Eastburn and his son, Horace, of the Christiana Fire Company; partly to honor the work done by the ladies of the Women's Emergency Relief Committee, organized mainly at the instigation of T. Duncan Just, president of the Christiana Clay Products Company and partly to provide an outing for the people of Wilmington who are friends of officers of this company.

Nearly 200 persons were present, at he dinner provided by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Christiana Fire Department; nearly 500 persons sat down to the supper provided by the same organization at about 6 o'clock and a little later in the evening with eight bands playing in different sections of the town after the parade of firemen from Elkton, Newark, New Castle, Five Points and Christiana, it is estimated there were more than 1000 persons gathered to view the proceedings.

There was an enthusiastic bit of sentiment in the entire affair as was pointed out by the speakers following the dinner held at about 1 o'clock. Mayor LeRoy Harvey, former Mayor William G. Taylor, Martin Smith, Mrs. Donald Ashbrook, Mrs. Jane Pennewill, T. Duncan Just and Benjamin F. Groves, who acted as master of ceremonies, all called attention to the historical significance of the occasion.

Christiana, it was explained, was the place where industrial plants in the modern sense had their start. The bridge across the Christiana river at that place marked the head of navigation. Here were established docks, warehouses and manufactories of the sort needed in those days. This was more than 200 years ago. The town known as "Christine," from the young queen of Sweden, the former home of many of the new settlers, was in the nature of a metropolis. Barges and sailing craft of all kinds came up the river to the wharves, were loaded and carried the products of the new country all over the world.

It was known at that time that scattered about the place were products of clay, sand and gravel that would some day provide a rich industry for the people living there. But with the development of the larger community, farther up the Delaware river, founded by William Penn and the growth of industries in other sections along the Christiana and along the Brandywine, more especially with the gradual lessening of the depth of water in the river, attention was drawn away from this locality to other places.

The establishment of the head of navigation at Newport was almost the crowning touch to the disaster that overtook the little thriving town and the industries gradually disappeared, the town dwindled to a mere village and the things that might have made it great became memories.

The feature of the afternoon was the parade of firemen when men numbering several hundred representing Elkton, Newark, Elsmere, New Castle, Five Points and Christiana showed themselves and their splendid apparatus along the roads of the vicinity. They were a handsome looking body of men and the apparatus was of the most modern type.

Bands from each of these localities were present and music from many places provided entertainment for the ater afternoon. Special mention should be made of the Women's Auxiliary of the fire department of Christiana who provided the dinner and the supper. Both meals were excellent and well served. "Some system," a well-known politician remarked to a group of friends, and as he is known to have suffered somewhat at the hands of women's organizations in his political aspirations, he also was given a hearty laugh. But the tribute probably was genuine, for the service suggested that those providing food were familiar with their work and possessed, as well, considerable ability in organization.

Most of the people came in automobiles and the roads through the little village and a long distance were lined on both sides with machines of all types. The homes of the vicinity were thrown open for entertainment and the whole place apparently had opened its arms metaphorically to the guests of the day.

Newark Women Should Act

One of the best and most beneficial social and civic organizations in Newark is the New Century Club.

It is composed of women who love their home town intensely; who do what they can to conserve its interests; who maintain and pay taxes upon one of the chief social centers in the university town; who distinguish themselves at all times for citizenship of fine quality and who are deserving of the high regard of the community and decent treatment at the hands of the Town Council.

But they have not received, and are not receiving, the decent treatment they deserve. If they do not receive it during the current spring and summer they should bestir themselves and put in a Council that is willing to do the decent thing. They have the brains and the voting power to do it and they should exercise that power if their petitions for relief be longer ignored.

The handsome and much-used home of the club is situated on Delaware avenue between Academy street and Chapel street. Delaware avenue is paved with concrete from Elkton road to Academy street, but from Academy street to Chapel street it is, in bad weather, a mere bog in which all machines are bespattered with mud and in which many of them sink so deeply in the mud that they become stalled and have to be helped out. That bog is only two squares long, with the New Century building about half-way between the intersecting streets. It connects with Academy street, which is paved with concrete, and Chapel street, which is macadamized, and both those streets connect with Main street, a short square to the north, which also is paved with concrete.

Many social functions are held in the New Century Club, especially in the fall, winter and spring, when the weather is bad and when the Delaware avenue bog is at its worst. The club has petitioned for relief and never received it, and now that the women of Newark have the vote and that vote is backed by brains and organizing ability, it is time for them to cease asking for this improvement and to substitute a demand for a request.

They know, as the rest of the town knows, that all the members of Town Council except one, who is a new member, live on streets which have been paved, from curb to curb, with concrete, while the east end of Delaware avenue, Chapel street, Cleveland avenue and Prospect avenue are about as bad as official neglect can make them. In fact, the situation in those places is an open invitation to the taxpayers and other residents to indulge in a political revolt at the next town election; and there is not one of those places as bad as they are, that is as bad as is that part of Delaware avenue lying between Academy and Chapel streets.—Evening Journal.

Our Reply To Our Enemies

Someone has said "To win a friend is an accomplishment; but to win an enemy is an achievement." Enemies are great influences in our lives. They challenge us to do better and bigger things. To sum up the work of a man, we must take in consideration those who maliciously oppose him. A man worth while makes enemies and has a peculiar pride in them. Beware of him who has only friends. The old Persians sensed their value when they prayed, "Give me this day an Enemy."

How to handle an enemy is something difficult. At times they are annoying. For our reply, our Ideal of History is both an inspiration and constant source of comfort. His words fit so many occasions and are always so delightfully full of common sense.

So again we use the language of Lincoln—and this is our reply:

"If I were to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for all other business. I do the very best I know how—the very best I can; and I mean to keep on doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything; if the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

How The Knocker and Booster were Created

Some one has said that "when the Creator had made all good things, there still remained some work to do; so he made beasts and reptiles and poisonous insects, and when he had finished, there were some scraps left, so he put all these together, covered it with suspicion, wrapped it with jealousy, marked it with a yellow streak, and called it a Knocker."

"This product was so fearsome to contemplate that he had to make something to counteract it, so he took a sunbeam, put it in the heart of a child and the brain of a man, wrapped these in civic pride, covered it with brotherly love, gave it a mask of velvet and a grip of steel, and called it a Booster; made him a lover of field and flowers and manly sports, a believer in equality and justice. And ever since these two were, mortal man has had the privilege of choosing his own associates."

President Cuts Housekeeping Expense 40 per cent

With two more months to go Federal Government expenditures for the present fiscal year total but $2,819,876,158 as compared with $4,277,863,186 for the same period last year.

President Harding leads all of the Government branches and functions in economy, setting a practical example. Expenditures by the White House were $182,133, a 40 per cent cut from the previous year.

Colleges and Athletics

The Princeton athletic controversy is one that interests the friends of every American institution of the higher learning that participates in inter-collegiate sports.

On whom shall the responsibility for athletic standards devolve—on the faculty, the graduates or the undergraduates. In favor of the faculty it can be said that they are in a better position, perhaps to make detached and impartial decisions on critical questions. The graduates on the other hand, may be expected to give a more enthusiastic and vigorous attention to the details of athletic policy and management. If the undergraduates have full control there may be some advantageous results, but these are likely to be offset by the disadvantage of imposing heavy financial and executive burdens on boys whose chief interest during their student career ought to be in their books.

It is pretty generally agreed that excessive emphasis has been put on some phases of intercollegiate sport. The demand for constant victories has led to a disproportionate expenditure of energy and emotion. The graduate insistance on triumphant teams has had its obvious ill effects. There are unpleasant rumors from many quarters of stealthy assistance proffered to expert college athletes. Is it not time for a careful and honest investigation of all the facts in the case?—Providence Journal.

Bus Rider Is Hurt In Smash

Touring Car Smashes Into Local Machine Standing at Marshallton

When a speeding touring car collided with a Newark bus Monday night, throwing the bus into a ditch and pinning the chauffeur under it, Mrs. T. Gilpin Massey, 401 King street, Wilmington, was badly cut and shaken up. Mrs. Massey was brought to her home in a passing automobile and given medical attention. She was severely cut about the head, body and limbs, and while her condition is not serious, she is suffering considerably from shock.

The accident occurred on the Lincoln Highway, about a mile below Marshallton. The headlights of the bus went out and the driver, according to T. Gilpin Massey, drew up to the side of the road to make repairs. While he was working on the mechanism a touring car made an attempt to pass without slowing down. The rear wheel of the car caught the bus fender, swung it around and pushed it into the ditch. Mr. Massey, who got out of the bus with the driver, says he was forced to jump aside to escape being struck by the large car.

It was later reported that a large machine similar to that which caused the accident, was seen limping through Oak Grove. It is said that the car was damaged in such a manner that it could easily have been the one that struck the bus.

Outlook For Crops Fine In Delaware

Clover Hay Already in Barns; Fruit in Orchards Good—Demand for Farms

In marked contrast with the season of 1921 the prospective of the year for the Delaware farmer was never brighter at this time in the spring, and it is only the intervention of some unknown and improbable disaster that can keep agriculturists of the state from getting on their financial "feet."

The strawberry crop is being marketed, and, not withstanding the cold season, the yield is large and prices are high. Berries in the vicinity of Bridgeville and Millsboro are especially numerous and it is difficult to obtain sufficient numbers of pickers.

The rain of this week has made the pea crop and pods are now being formed on the vines. This is one of the most profitable crops in Delaware when the season will permit a yield.

The wheat sprouts weathered the winter in fine shape and fields are covered with long green shoots that are well on their way to maturity. Much scarlet clover has already been cut and the barns are filled with this hay.

Contrary to former predictions the agricultural department of the state reports the apples, pears and peaches to be plentiful on the trees and in good healthy condition.

Home prospectors from other states who wish to live on farms are realizing the advantages this year in Delaware and are purchasing farms by the wholesale in the southern part of the state. Real estate agents have more customers than they can handle, and the prices of farm land has taken a jump.

Farms along the bay shore seem especially desirable and this section is now being rapidly populated by emigrants from other states, but those who own fine farms are loth to part with them at any price with so favorable an outlook for the year.—North American.

President Urges Camp Attendance

Governor Denney has received the following telegram from President Harding:

"Apparently all agree that every young man who is willing to prepare himself for the defense of his country should be given the opportunity. To this end I suggest that you bring to the attention of the citizens of your state the opportunity now presented to them by the citizens military training camps which will be conducted during the coming summer months, without any cost or military obligations to themselves.

"The young men accepted for these camps will be given training which will be of inestimable value through physical and mental developments received and which will unquestionably increase their value to the nation and to the communities in which they live.

"WARREN G. HARDING."

INVITATION ACCEPTED

The invitation has been accepted on behalf of the club and a full attendance of members is earnestly requested.

Fertilizers For Garden Crops Key to Success

Some of the more common and extensively used fertilizers are described herewith:

"Raw animal bonemeal is a good fertilizer. It contains both nitrogen and phosphoris acid and can be used at the rate of a quarter pound to the square yard. This is a good fertilizer to keep on hand as it does not lose its value by being stored. It is quite dry and if kept in a dry place it will not get into hard lumps like some of the other fertilizer ingredients. It is somewhat slower in its action than a fertilizer made to analyze the same from acid phosphate and nitrate of soda.

Lime

Calcium or lime is quite valuable in gardens where green manures are used considerably. It will also be of much benefit on vacant building lots or fields intended to be used for gardens. Lime can now be obtained from the same dealers as the fertilizer either in the form of ground limestone or hydrated (slaked) lime. Both of these forms are convenient to apply. The hydrated lime is quick lime that has been slacked by the action of steam. It is quick in its effect and should be used at the rate of half a pound to the square yard of freshly plowed or dug soil. The ground limestone should be used in the same way but at the rate of one pound to the square yard. Lime is used to sweeten soil. For instance, some soils become too rich owing to overchanging manuring. In such cases the manuring should stop for a season, but a coating of lime should be given instead. This of itself is not a fertilizer; it unlocks other plant food that is in the soil, making it available for the roots. Lime ought not to be applied along with manure (dung), but be forked in early in the spring. It has the property of making clay more open or friable, and conversely, of firming a sandy soil. It neutralizes the acids that are in the soils. It is good for all vegetable soils.

Miscellaneous

There are some other manures on the market that are handled more especially by seedmen and others who supply greenhouse men. There are the dried cattle, hog and sheep manures that are collected in cattle pens and cars. They are quite valuable in promoting plant growth and may be used at the rate of half a pound to the square yard. The fertilizers should always be carefully weighed and not guessed at, not only for the sake of economy, but for the fact that some of the highly concentrated kinds may do more harm than good if applied injudiciously. When applying as a top dressing avoid spilling the fertilizers on the leaves of the plants.

To promote the success of garden crops, the soil must be finely prepared and the operation of seeding carefully and properly done. Select seeds that are of high vitality and facilitate germination and growth by providing continous moisture, keeping the surface of the soil from baking or crushing. Practice early and persistent cultivation.

Delaware Pea Crop Is Damaged Badly

Lower Peninsula Visited by Flea Swarms and Drought

The English pea crop, which promised a week ago to be one of the largest ever grown in lower Delaware, will be almost an entire failure, according to the belief of many farmers in the lower part of the State.

The largest acreage ever planted in peas in lower Delaware was put out early in the spring. The peas gave promise of good returns until the drought and pea lice struck them.

The growers thought they would be able to protect their peas from the louse, but the ravanous insect has appeared in such numbers that the farmers are unable to combat them.

The drought, which prevailed until the past week, has also damaged the peas to a great extent, and what the pea louse has not devoured the drought has played havoc with.

Many vines or stalks are burned and dried. The pea lice are among the most destructive insects known to farmers of this section. They appear suddenly and in such numbers that they are able to destroy large patches in a single night.

Several farmers have plowed down their pea crops, as fertilizers and will prepare the land for a later crop of some other sort.

The failure of the pea crop will mean a loss of thousands of dollars to the farmers, to say nothing of the loss packers and the labor employed in gathering the crop and putting it in cans will experience.

COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

Collector of Internal Revenue John W. Hering announced that ownership certificates forwarded the Income Tax Division should be executed only on the revised forms which were placed at the disposal of the public recently. "Banks, collecting agents, debtor corporations and withholding agents should immediately inspect their supplies of the ownership certificates bearing form numbers 1000, 1001, 1001A, 1058 and 1059 to ascertain that the bear the words, "Revised Jan., 1922" directly beneath the form number," Collector Hering advised. Forms marked in any other manner should not be distributed hereafter. In case a sufficient supply of the forms is not being carried on hand to meet the anticipated demand, a request upon the Collector should be made. Collector Hering also stated that copies of the Treasury Decision explaining the provisions of this ruling would be distributed to taxpayers requesting them.

"Banks and collecting agents, debtor corporations, and withholding agents shall refuse to accept the old forms in connection with income due after June 1, 1922 when received from continental United States, and with respect to income due after July 1, 1922 when received from abroad," it was stated in regard to acceptance of the certificates in the future. It is necessary to caution every individual and agent concerned with the collection of these slips in order to avoid the many inconveniences which may arise through failure to observe this requirement.

Delaware University Will Fit Swine For International Show

The Agricultural Department of the University of Delaware is fitting for the first time, a pen of barrows for the International Live Stock Exposition, held annually at Chicago, and thus becomes a challenger of the great Agricultural Institutions of the Corn Belt, which have won all the honors of recent years in this class, according to T. A. Baker, head of the College Animal Husbandry Department, at Newark, Delaware.

Experiment Stations of state colleges have demonstrated superiority over individuals in feeding and fitting animals for this, the greatest of fat stock shows, by winning the pen and individual championships for years past. The grand champion pen of three fat hogs has been won by College exhibitors since 1918 as follows: 1918 and 1919, University of Missouri; 1920, Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanics College; 1921, University of Illinois, in each instance with Poland China barrows.

The grand champion individual fat hog at that show has been exhibited by a University since 1918, all breeds competing, as follows: 1918, University of Illinois, on Chester White; 1919, University of Missouri, on Poland China; 1920, Iowa State College, on Chester White, and 1921, University of Minnesota, on Berkshire.

When Mr. Baker determined to enter this field of experiment, he went to the Delaware swine breeders, and asked them for choice of litters, and he has been granted the selection of the five best pigs from the Poland China herds of the state, at a price much less than what the animals would sell for, and the breeders were glad to co-operate, according to Mr. Baker.

"POOR NUT"

The following from the Philadelphia North American refers to Easton, Md., and shows what abbreviations might lead to:

"There was considerable trouble, followed by considerable explaining when an angry mother arrived at the Easton high school to ascertain just why the school report card of her only son should bear the startling notation, 'Poor nut.'

The mother in reading the report card was shocked to find such a common expression thereon, and lost no time in reaching the superintendent's office. It took considerable time and considerable diplomacy before the superintendent could stop the flow of language and convince the good woman that 'Poor nut' was simply an abbreviation for 'Poor nutrition,' followed by a lecture to the parent asking for better if plainer food for the boy.

"The woman departed satisfied and promised to see that the boy received different food. But Superintendent O. M. Fogle will be more careful in the use of abbreviations hereafter, confining the list he uses to those usually appearing in dictionaries."

Strawberries Are Easy to Grow in Some Gardens

In farmers' bulletin 1242, United States department of agriculture, appears the following on growing strawberries, among other things that go to make up a perennial garden, including such vegetables as asparagus, rhubarb, and horseradish, and in small fruits, raspberries, blackberries, Logan berries, dewberries, currants, gooseberries and grapes.

None of the dwarf fruit trees are included, nor are any of the perennial herbs used in cooking.

All of the perennial fruits are particularly desirable where household economics are a desideratum.

Strawberries are so easily handled and require so little room that if only one of the small fruits can be grown they should be the one selected. New plants may be purchased at small cost from a nurseryman, or perhaps may be obtained free from a neighbor.

The strawberry plant may be grown in hills or in narrow or wide matted rows. For a very small area, plants set in hills close together, will no doubt produce the most and largest fruit, but will require more care than matted rows. For hill growing, set the plants one foot apart in the row and have the rows just far enough apart to cultivate easily, say from two to three feet, or set two rows a foot apart in double rows and have a space of two or three feet between the double rows. Keep all runners cut off and give good cultivation, so as to make extra strong plants. Some of the choicest varieties for hill-culture are the Marshall and Chesapeake of the single-drop kind and the Superb and Progressive of the everbearing varieties. The everbearing varieties will no doubt be most satisfactory for hill culture.

To start matted rows, set the plants eighteen inches apart in rows from three to four feet apart. For a narrow matted row, train the first runners along the row, covering about a foot in width, and cut off all later runners. From four to six new plants from each plant set will make a narrow row. For wide matted rows, save enough new plants to make the row two feet wide, or more, as desired. Do not let the plants crowd each other; have them three or four inches apart.

Setting the Plants

Set the strawberry plants early in the spring, if possible, so they will get the benefit of spring rains and make a strong early growth. Trim off the dead leaves and all but one or two of the live ones, and cut the roots to about four or five inches long. Spread the roots somewhat and set the plants just as deep in the soil as they were before they were dug. Be especially careful not to set them deeper and not to get earth over the growing crowns, for this will probably kill the plants.

The newly formed plants are sometimes set with success in summer or early fall if they are given special care and watering. If they can be taken up with balls of earth on their roots transplanting ought to be successful. Young plants grown in pots may be transplanted with perfect success. To grow these potted plants use two-inch plant pots filled with soil well packed down and sink a pot in the ground beneath each new runner plant, so it will send its roots into the soil in the pot. Transplant these to the garden whenever they are well rooted. To get a plant out of the pot hold it upside down and tap one side of the rim gently on wood to loosen the earth from the pot and cause it to come out unbroken. Water the plants as soon as set and whenever necessary later.

Cultivating and Mulching

Give newly set strawberries frequent cultivation and hoeing during the entire season to keep down the weeds and make strong plants for fruiting the next year. Pick off all blossom buds which appear except in the case of fall-bearing varieties, on which some blossoms may be left after August 1 to fruit in the fall. When the ground freezes cover the plants or the entire bed with about two inches of straw free from weed seeds. Coarse, strawy manure, with the fine portions shaken out, is excellent for this purpose. The object of this winter covering is to keep the ground from freezing and thawing with each change in temperature, because this freezing and thawing will slowly lift the plants from the ground. When growth starts rake the covering off the plants and leave it between the rows.

In the spring when the plants begin to blossom, spread nitrate of soda along each side of the row, using one pound to eighty feet of row. If the ground has not been mulched cultivate and then mulch with vegetable matter between the rows so as to conserve the moisture from the spring rains. Work the mulch around the plants to protect the fruit from dirt.

Care After Fruiting

If the bed is to be saved for another year, rake off the mulch as soon as the crop is gathered and hoe or pull out the older plants, leaving only enough of the younger ones to send out runners to make a new narrow or wide matted row, as desired. If the leaves on the plants are spotted with disease, cut or mow them off and burn them. A pound of nitrate of soda per square rod of ground scattered around the plants will start a vigorous growth. Put this on when the plants are dry, for it will injure any damp parts of the plants it touches. Handled in this way a bed may be kept for several years because the new plants of one year are saved for fruiting the next.

Old beds may be cleaned up, as just mentioned, by hoeing or plowing the spaces between rows and leaving the youngest plants in the row.

Varieties of Strawberries

There are several varieties of strawberries which bear a spring crop and more or less of a late summer and fall crop. These are called everbearing or fall bearing varieties and are very desirable for the home garden. To have a big fall crop set the plants in the spring, cultivate well and pick off all blossoms every few days until late July or August. These will bear fruit up to the time of quite heavy frosts and will bear again in the spring, after which they may be discarded. Set new plants of the everbearing varieties each spring for the fall crop of fruit, because these give better results than plants in the old bed. The Superb and Progressive are good fall-bearing varieties.

Of the single crop varieties the Klondike is the one almost universally grown in the southern states, where it covers a long season. In the northern states the season of any one variety is rather short, so the home garden should contain an early, a medium and a late fruiting variety. The following are among the good varieties and are arranged according to season: Premier, Early Jersey, Ozark, Dunlap, Bubach, Parsons, Marshall, Chesapeake and Gandy. All these varieties, except the Bubach, have perfect blossoms.

Perfect and Imperfect Blossoms

Strawberry blossoms are of two kinds. One kind is called "perfect" "staminate" or "male" and the other kind "imperfect," "pistillieate" or "female." Some varieties have perfect blossoms and other varieties have imperfect blossoms. Those with perfect blossoms produce pollen which will fertilize both the perfect and imperfect blossoms and cause them to bear fruit. The varieties with imperfect blossoms can not set fruit without receiving pollen from perfect blossoms.

Do not plant varieties having imperfect blossoms without also planting at least one perfect blossom variety to pollinate them. One row with perfect blossoms will pollinate four rows with imperfect blossoms.

The nurserymen's catalogs and state agricultural experiment station bulletins always specify whether a variety has perfect or imperfect blossoms.—North American.

University Minstrels Go Over With Bang

Wolf Hall Crowded When University Boys Put on Show

It has been a long time since such a large crowd has gathered in Wolf Hall as was there on last Thursday night when the minstrel show under the auspices of the Varsity and Footlights Clubs was staged.

To say the show was a success is to put it mildly. If anyone left Wolf Hall after that performance with the "blues" they can rest assured that said "blues" are going on through life with them. It was a "blues" dispelling performance and it went over with a bang.

The show opened with a skit staged by Givan and Christfield, as golfer flapper, this went big and was a good laugh producer.

Next on the program was Aubrey Travers, who cleverly protrayed a girl of grandmother's type, with hoop skirts "and everything."

Daly, Brandt and Ivory came next and they staged a "wrestling match a la cinema eight times as slow."

"Cliff" Smith and Donalson entertained with well accepted musical numbers. Jim Deputy gave a vocal selection.

Then came the minstrel show with its end men and circle. Then also did the fun begin and keep going until the final curtain.

To say that any special person's performance was the feature of the evening would be an injustice to all the other members of the cast for everyone went big and another performance of the show would not go astray.

CONTROL OF PEACH BORER, IMPORTANT STEP FORWARD

New Jersey is making much headway in the total destruction of the peach tree borer. The experiments made so far by the state agricultural experiment station at New Brunswick have given such excellent results that more extensive experiments will be conducted and these experiments will be confined to peach trees—it now appears thatthe round and flat-head apple tree borers can be overcome with the same treatment employed for the peach borer and it is authoritatively stated by the station that cherries, blackberries and plums, particularly the first and last, respond to 100 per cent control of the same borer that attacks and destroys peach trees.

Here is what the station has to say about experiments so far conducted over a period of two seasons, the fall of 1920 and 21 and some spring experiments May 1:

"Our experiments and observations made in 100 or more orchards throughout New Jersey permit us to recommend the use of p. c. benzine for the control of the peach tree borers in trees six years of age or older.

"Furthermore, our observations to date show that one-half ounce of p. c. benzine may be used (when the soil temperature is not too high, not above seventy degrees Fahrenheit) on trees 3 to 5 years of age for two or three weeks with comparative safety.

"We are not recommending its use on trees of this age, for we wish to have another season's experience with p. c. benzine before we make a definite recommendation.

"Treatment of trees younger than 3 years of age is still in experimental stage, consequently no statement can be made concerning these. Also the control of peach tree borers in plum and cherry trees and flat-headed apple tree borers in apple trees, and blackberry crown borers in blackberry and raspberry bushes is subject to further experiments.

Further information in other questions pertaining to p. c. benzine for the control of the peach tree borer will be found in circular 126 of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.

ENCOURAGING FRUIT REPORT BY GROWER

State Senator Orlando Harrison, of Worcester County, Md., who has large fruit interests in both Delaware and Maryland, recently declared, after a careful investigation of the fruit condition, that it is his opinion that the crop of late apples and peaches will produce 100 per cent yield.

A report of this nature from a man of the authority of Senator Harrison is most encouraging after the many previous reports that these crops were nearly ruined by the frost and freezings of a couple of weeks ago.

According to the fruit grower, while Kent county was badly affected by the frosts in some places, Sussex county only thirty miles south, and Worcester county, Md., experienced little bad effects.

Variety Shower For Former College Girl

Mrs. George Carter Entertains in Honor of Miss Helen C. Fisher Who is to Marry H. W. Marton

A surprise variety shower was given by Mrs. George Carter, of South College avenue, last Saturday afternoon, in honor of Miss Helen C. Fisher, of Dover, who graduated from Women's College last year. Miss Fisher is to be married to Henry W. Marston, formerly of Wilmington and Newark, but now a member of the faculty of the Kansas State Agricultural College. The marriage is to take place either the latter part of August or early in June.

Mrs. Carter was assisted in the entertaining by Mrs. William E. Foard, of Wilmington, and Misses Catherine Townsend, Louise Hullihen, Elizabeth Milliken and Frances Hullihen, of Newark.

Those who participated in the surprise were all members of the faculty of the Women's College, students and former students at that institution or members of the younger set in Newark, with whom Miss Fisher had associated in her student days. The surprise was complete, because Miss Fisher came to Newark thinking the party was a surprise to be given in honor of Miss Helen Groves, a personal friend and a senior at the college. It was not until the first gifts had been pulled by her and Miss Groves from the mammoth Blue and Gold "variety pie," that she realized that the surprise was on her.

Among those who participated in the shower were: Miss Winifred J. Robinson, dean of the Women's College; Miss Quaesita Cromwell Drake, head of the chemistry department; Mrs. Emma Wilson, director of Halls at the college and Miss Edwina Long, assistant to the business administrator, representing the faculty; Miss Edith Pilling Spencer, Miss Elinor Duffy, Mrs. Knowles R. Bowen, Mrs. Armand Durant, Miss Madeleine H. Dixon, Helen D. Shorb, Anna M. Vansant, Josephine Marston, Marian Pecher, Ruth E. Bennett, Olive Heiser, Dora Law, Marjorie Rose, Anna Gallaher, Marion Gallaher, Marian Rodney, Anna Ritz, Elizabeth R. McNeal, Catherine Townsend, Louise Hullihen, Frances Hullihen and Elizabeth Milliken.

The floral decorations were roses, Scotch brown, sweet peas, and snap dragons. The place cards, which represented cupid brides, were painted and donated by Mrs. Charles J. Affeck, of New York, as were also the shower favors, small vari-colored umbrellas. The one for Miss Fisher was of black and yellow, the colors of the Sigma Nu Fraternity, to which Mr. Marston belongs. The big "pie" was of blue and gold, the University of Delaware colors, while leading out of the pie from each gift were red and white ribbons, those being the colors of Miss Fisher's class in college. Each guest pulled out a gift and presented it to the much surprised guest of honor. Most of the gifts carried with them original verses, which were read by Miss Fisher. Among the many pretty and useful gifts in the pie was a handsome bronze candlestick from Dean Robinson.

After the gifts had been presented and congratulations and good wishes had been showered upon Miss Fisher, refreshments were served.

Take the Elevator

SOMEBODY said that when the stock promoter invites you to get in on the Ground Floor the thing to do is take the Elevator and go to the roof. Of course, the person who is getting up in the world through the aid of a growing bank account becomes a shining mark for the promoter. When one gets on your track it is time to get better aquainted with your banker. Ask the promoter to come to the bank with you while you consult your financial adviser about the merits of his offering.

Local Civic Class Acted As "Jury"

High School Students Disappointed When There Is No Case on Court Docket

Last week the members of the Civic Class, of the local High School, went to Wilmington to see the actual working of a court. The local students were greatly disappointed to find upon their arrival that there were no cases on the docket for that day.

Some of the disappointment was overcome when a mock trial was staged with members of the local class acting as jury.

The "case" tried was between "A" and "Z," the latter was the "defendant" and the former the "plaintiff."

Robert Adair acted as counsel for "A" and George L. Townsend, Jr., represented "Z." Townsend is from Newark.

After hearing the case the jury in charge of Bailiff King, retired to the jury room and in less than five minutes a decision was reached. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the "plaintiff" for $5,000. Arthur C. Gamble, deputy prothonotary, drew the jury.

There were nineteen members of the class present under the guidance of Miss Anna Gallaher, the teacher. Following the trial, the students were shown through the public offices, police station and blind shop.

OPERA HOUSE OFFERINGS

Wallace Reid's home in Beverley Hills, near Hollywood, California, resembled a prize fighter's training camp rather than a domicile for a motion picture star during the filming of "The World's Champion." Wally's latest Paramount vehicle showing at the Opera House theatre tonight and tomorrow.

In this picture, Mr. Reid dons the gloves and goes through several rounds with a professional ex-champ, and it was necessary that he be really able to hold his own to make the scenes realistic. The production is a screen adaptation of the popular play by Thomas Louden and A. E. Thomas and was filmed under the direction of Philip E. Rosen. Lois Wilson is leading woman.

Maurice Flynn was one of football's most renowned heroes in the days when he was fullback for Yale. Now he is one of the screen's most popular stars. "Smiles Are Trump," his latest William Fox picture, based on a railroad story by Frank L. Packard, is said to contain all the thrills of a serial and all the dignity of a big special production. It will be seen at the Opera House on Friday.

It is not out of reason to expect that the mere announcement of the title of Gloria Swanson's next Paramount picture will excite not a little curiosity. The title of this picture is "Her Husband's Trademark", and inasmuch as the star wears a succession of really striking dress creations and appears all the time as her most beautiful self, then maybe the puzzle will be partially solved. The story was written by Clara Beranger and adapted by Lorna Moon, while Sam Wood wielded the megaphone. The picture is coming to the Opera House next Monday and Tuesday.

"Another 'artist' gone wrong! Too bad!"

Gareth Hughes, star of "The Hunch," which will be seen at the Opera House Theatre next Wednesday, says that is the way certain acquaintances of his greeted his announcement that he was going into motion pictures, instead of seizing an opportunity to play "Hamlet."

"It wasn't the money so much," Mr. Hughes explained, "although I could use the money. It was simply the desire to get away from all the hoakum connected with art. I felt smothered in a heavy atmosphere of art jargon.

"It isn't that I like Shakespeare less, but that I love life more. And I imagine Shakespeare, if alive today, might well be in Hollywood turning out scenarios as immortal as his plays."

GARDENERS ACTIVE

Students of Rehabilitation Division Growing Tomato Plants

The students of the Rehabilitation Division evidently recognize a commercial opportunity when they see it. Realizing that the tomato growers of this locality would need thousands of plants in order to produce the tonnage required by the United Canneries Corporation, the Rehab gardeners set about growing 500,000 plants. The varieties desired by the canners are greater Baltimore, Bonny Best, and Delaware Beauty.

Thus far the venture has been most encouraging, and promises to terminate quite successfully for all concerned. Many of the local farmers have visited the Pomona Gardens this week inquiring when the plants would be ready for the field. If favorable weather prevails the first seedlings will be pulled on May 26.

Now is the Time to Build

Not since the outbreak of the war have building conditions been so favorable as right now. Prices of material are at the low mark and will probably advance instead of decline. At least this is the opinion of national observers. Labor is easy to get and prices reasonable.

Get your plans outlined and let me go over them with you. I can save you money by a suggestion here and there. But I will not interfere with your ideas. It must be your house — not mine.

That is the secret of what success I have had. The man who lives in the house is the one to satisfy—not the contractor.

Local Team Badly Walloped by New Castle in League Game —Team Needs Practice

Newark never had a chance in its New Castle County Leauge ball game with New Castle on Saturday and the local nine was on the short end of a 12 to 0 score. This is the fourth straight game that Newark has dropped and it proved to be the worse walloping that the locals have received.

The whole local team seemed to be shot to pieces and there was no pep. Although the official scorer gives the Fishtown nine eighteen hits many of these hits should have been turned into outs or assists. Many flies dropped between the local outfielders and as a whole the exhibition on Saturday was a sorry one and showed that the Newark team needs practice.

"Bob" Watkins, Manager McCulley, Charlie Eisner and Harvey Fulton were all absent from the New Castle game and their absence was felt.

By winning the game here on Saturday afternoon the New Castle team kept its slate clean and is leading the league with four won and none lost.

"Billy" Bland, who played third base on Saturday put up about the best exhibition for the Newark team and his catch of a fly ball was the feature fielding stunt of the game.

Fred Willys, the star moundsman of the New Csatle team had the locals eating out of his hands and allowed Newark only five hits.

DELAWARE WINS

In Best Game of Season Swarthmore is Beaten 2-1

In one of the best games of the season the University of Delaware baseball team on Saturday defeated Swarthmore by the score of 2 to 1. It was a great pitchers' duel between "Dory" Collins, a southpaw for Delaware, and "Curley" Ogden, looked on as the best right hander in college ranks for Swarthmore with Collins having an edge.

Swarthmore's only run was scored as a result of an accident to "Ted" Dantz in centre field. This was the fourth inning and Esrey had reached first on McCormick's error. Earnshaw hit a short fly to centre and Dantz in coming in fast sprained his ankle and the single went for two bases scoring Esrey.

STRAWBERRY SHIPMENTS

A decrease of more than 1,300,000 quarts of strawberries is recorded in the amount of berries shipped to Wilmington over the Delaware Division this year in comparison to last year's record.

Although the shipments started almost as early this year, the quantities shipped have been considerably less. There have been 572,360 quarts of berries shipped up until yesterday.

SPORTITORAL

Grit: Firmness of mind; unyielding courage.

That is the way Webster defines the word.

And if everyone athletically inclined could only keep that definition in mind how many more stars might be developed to the stage of real brilliancy instead of just twinkling in their own minds.

Many a lad in school and college has shown this lack of grit when his opportunity has done its knocking. This is not a myth but a proven fact and it has come to the attention of the writer on more than one occasion. When the lad is asked why he is not out for this team or the other team he shrugs his shoulders and often the answer is the same, "I don't stand in." Many times this is a very good excuse but not good enough to make one lose his grit.

If a fellow does find himself in a place where a "drag" means more than ability it means an uphill fight to come out on top but if he has the ability and the grit he is sure to make good and all the "drag" in the world cannot keep him off the first team.

When ability is shown and not appreciated by those who should appreciate it then the "fans," no matter what the sport, will demand that that ability be placed where it will show to the best advantage and again grit will come out on the top.

Don't let courage yield to a clique or a disappointment instead make it show its fighting side and you will be up there in no time. Not only on the sporting field but in every walk of life, it can be accomplished and it is not beyond everyone of us to accomplish it.

This is the time of the year when the bare legged track and field athlete has his fling. In this immediate section that branch of sport does not seem to attract the attention that it should. There are some wonderful fights in this branch of sport but it seems as though they do not interest the average fan as much as the crack of the ball against the bat.

But the man, woman, boy or girl who loves real sincerity, the spirit of real competition, rather than superskill will be on hand at the track and field meet to be held on Frazer Field, here in Newark, on Friday, May 26th, this is the date set for the second annual track and field meet of the public school children of rural New Castle County.

In this meet the real worth while side of competition will show, for every contestant will be out there to do his best and a win will mean as much to him as World's Championship means to a big league ball club. Every youngster in rural New Castle county has a chance to take part in this event and the lucky ones will put on just an ordinary exhibition but what they lack in skill they will make up in determination and fight and after all is said this is what goes to make up real sports.

No matter if you have seen the best there is in track and field sports it will be worth your while to attend this met fo rthen you will see just what every sport lover wants to see and that is real competition and fight with the determination to make good.

ENGLISH HENLEY

The admission of a crew composed of workingmen in the 1922 Henley Regatta, in London, the world's oldest blue-ribbon aquatic event, is a question awaiting the decision of the regatta officials which promises much controversy. The Melbourne champion eight-oared crew cabled recently asking if its amateur status would be recognized. It includes a locomotive engineer, a fireman, a fitter, a steamship captain, a carpenter and a clerk. The rules of the Amateur Rowing Association, framed in 1882, bar mechanics, artisans and laborers, or "any person engaged in any menial duty."

The rowing clubs last year canvassed whether the rules should be retained, and the affirmative answer was unanimous. The Henley Committee is not necessarily bound by these rules, having rules of its own. The members of the committee promise to give the Melbourne inquiry full consideration. They insist that the barring of laborers is not founded on snobbish prejudices, but it was felt that competition between ordinary amateurs and men earning their living by their muscles was an unfair handicap to the former.

British sport is garnished with many amusing local traditions. The newspapers reporting contests always name amateurs with the prefix mister, while professionals are always accorded their plain names, without any courtesy embellishments.

BASEBALL CHANGES

Several New Men Signed to Strengthen Newark Team

Some radical changes will be made in the Newark baseball team in its game with Five Points to be played here on Saturday.

Howard McCulley, who has been managing the team resigned this week due to lack of time and J. H. Fulton has been appointed as manager. The latter has already gotten busy and there will be several new faces in the line-up on Saturday. Vic Armstrong, Charlie Tasker, Joe Effing, Steedle, Earl Ramsey and several other players have been signed up and will get started against Five Points.

There is a strong possibility that "Dutch" Robinson will be in the line-up on Saturday. The local team is out to win the remaining games in the first half of the league's season and although there is no chance to win the pennant the nine from Newark is going to make a strong bid for the second half honor and several changes will be made to put a stronger team on the field.

Several of the leading sport lovers of the town have promised financial aid to the local team if a first-class team is put on the field and it is along this line that the management is now working. A big crowd is expected to be on hand for the game with Five Points on Saturday and a much better exhibition than last Saturday is guaranteed.

TO GET ATHLETES

The University of Delaware will get a wealth of material in the athletic line next fall from Wilmington High School. Those who will probably in future seasons wear the blue and gold uniforms are Kramer, football man and discus thrower; Buckley, track and end on the football team; Carlon, captain of this year's baseball team, football and basketball star; Baxter, star high jumper; Hen McVaugh and Jones, track and football men. These boys baseball men; Thatcher and Leahy, hope that a regular schedule for freshmen teams wil lbe granted them and it appears that the first year men will contribute plenty of sport activities to the university.

AID FOR THE BEGINNER IN CHOOSING A GARDEN SITE

Locating the garden in relation to the house is an important factor too often overlooked. Often the garden is placed in the most remote corner of the yard or grounds. Modern gardeners, who, as a rule, cultivate their gardens in their spare time, now place their gardens as close to the house as possible without marring the appearance of the property. Even this handicap is obviated by planting ornamental hedges or shrubbery about the borders of the vegetable garden when it is too conspicuous and by planting a border of showy annuals with an occasional bed of posies among the vegetables to add ornament as well as utility to the planting.

Convenience to the kitchen door so that the boss of the cooking department may have quick and easy access to fresh vegetables is advisable in locating the garden. A slope to the south or southeast, if the contour of the land permits it, is an ideal location, because the soil warms up earlier in the spring and gives opportunity for earlier planting and quick maturity of the crop, the most of which must be harvested before the real hot weather sets in.

Any type of soil may be used, provided it is properly fertilized and cultivated, but a sandy loam is to be preferred.

It is also particularly advantageous in the south to have a garden, if a location is available, with good natural drainage so that there will be sufficient fall to carry off the surplus water during the heavy rains which fall during the early spring months. If the land is level artificial drainage is necessary and open ditches can be easily dug for the purpose, or tile drains placed to take care of the surplus moisture.

When the land is level and artificial drainage is not practicable, it is best to raise the beds or plant in ridges, which will shed the water to prevent the drowning out of seedlings during wet weather.

These ridges should be as wide and as flat topped as possible and provide the needed drainage, for narrow sharp ridges have the disadvantage of drying out quickly as well as being easily washed away by a heavy downpour.

DR. VAUGHN LEAVES

Dr. E. V. Vaughn, who recently resigned as a member of the faculty of the University of Delaware to go to California left Newark on Saturday. He joined his wife in Washington where she went earlier in the week. They will go to Berkeley, Cal. The change is made for the benefit of Mrs. Vaughn's health, she having been ill for about a year. Dr. Vaughn has filled the chair of Delaware history since it was established ten years ago at the university.

D. A. R. MEETING

Report of National Congress—Mrs. Frazer New Regent

The regular May meeting of Cooch's Bridge Chapter, D. A. R. was held at the home of Miss Miriam P. Alrich, at Glasgow. The chapter regent, Miss Eleanor E. Todd having been elected State Regent at the last State Conference in Wilmington, it became necessary that another chapter regent be elected. Mrs. Ernest Frazer was chosen and Miss Henrietta Todd was made Treasurer in Mrs. Frazer's place.

Much business was transacted and plans made for the entertainment of the State Daughters at their Summer Conference, by the Cooch's Bridge Chapter. This will be on June 14th, Flag Day, at the home of Mrs. Frazer. The secretary was instructed to send invitations to all the chapter regents and to Mrs. W. V. Bond, for the Children of the American Revolution.

The most interesting feature of the meeting was the fine report given by Miss E. E. Todd, of the Annual Congress of the National Society, D. A. R., held in Washington, April 17-22. Last year, 11,216 new members were admitted to the society and this year 12,575, showing an increase in the rate of membership despite the increase in the initiation fee. Three members from Newark, Miss E. E. Todd, Miss H. E. Todd and Mrs. J. Pearce Cann attended the Congress.

Big Market For Tomatoes Outlook

According to Those Studying Conditions the Canneries Will Have Big Season

Those who are closely watching the tomato canned goods trade are advising farmers to plant large acreages of tomatoes fo rthe canning factories. These persons are predicting that the entire stock of canned tomatoes in the United States will be used by August 1st, at the rate that it is going at the present.

The price of canned tomatoes has been mounting, with a steady demand, and most of the canneries have sold their entire pack on hand, a condition that the owners have not experienced in a long time.

This news comes with great interest both to the people of Newark and the farmers in this vicinity due to the fact that th eold Ritter plant is to be opened this summer by the United Canneries Corp. Work is now being done to put this plant in topnotch shape and it wil lnot be long until the place is ready to operate. his plant is claimed to be one of the most up-to-date in this part of the country and the new organization, made up almost entirely of local men, is placing additions to the already first-class plant.

When the World War came, with the government paying almost any price for canned tomatoes, most of the factories canned large quantities and packed greatly in advance of their orders.

With the close of the war, the sudden stopping of the demand for canned goods and then the consequent dumping back on the market of government canned tomatoes, the canneries faced a critical condition. As a result few tomatoes were packed last year, but this year, with a heavy demand from consumers, the pack is about sold, and the tomato-canning business is about back to normal.

Although many of the farmers have not yet taken advantage of the information, they are planting a much advanced acreage over that of last year, and it is the opinion of many of the wiser ones that tomatoes are going to bring good prices on the market. It will be the farmers who expect to plant a larger acreage but who refuse to contract who will be apt to make the money on tomatoes this year.

PARENT-TEACHER WORK CHEERED

Three cheers for Delaware were given in the National Convention of Parent-Teacher Associations, held in Tacoma, Wash., last week, when Mrs. John B. Cleaver, State President of the Delaware Parent-Teacher Association presented her report.

Delaware has made the largest gain in new associations in the past two years of any State in the Union. Sussex county is the banner county of the whole State in formation of such organizations.

Word of the Tacoma convention's action was reached this week from Mrs. Cleaver by Mis Etta J. Wilson, of the Service Citizen's staff, who lives here. Mrs. Cleaver left Tacoma on Saturday on her homeward journey. She intends visiting San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs and St. Louis on her way East.
