EDUCATIONAL SURVEY IN DELAWARE

STATE AND FEDERAL DEPARTMENTS CO-OPERATE

As a result of an educational conference between representatives of the educational forces of the state and Dr. Philander P. Claxton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, held at Delaware College on Saturday, the Co-operative Educational Association of Delaware was organized with the following officers: president, Professor Harry Hayward, director of Delaware College Experiment Station; vice-presidents, Mrs. Alfred D. Warner, of Wilmington; Horace L. Dilworth, of rural New Castle county; Colonel Theodore Townsend, of Kent county; and Mrs. O. V. Wootten, of Sussex county; secretary, Dr. Charles A. Wagner, State Commissioner of Education and treasurer, George Carter.

It was decided that the chairman of standing committees to be named by the officers with the officers and Dr. Charles H. Scott, superintendent of the public schools of Wilmington and County Superintendents Cross, Carroll, and Hardesty, shall compose the executive committee of the association.

Dr. Samuel C. Mitchell, president of Delaware College, presided. In addition to Commissioner Claxton, others from the government bureau of education, were Miss C. A. Lyford, specialist in Home Economics; Miss E. C. Lombard, secretary of the Home Educational division; A. W. Dunn, specialist in education for citizenship, education of immigrants; and Dr. Randall, specialist in home and school gardening.

All present approved of the plans and pledged their support of the organization they represented in carrying out the work. It is likely that a corps of experts will be sent to Delaware and a general educational survey will probably be the outcome, a work that may take up several years. Educational experiments of all kinds will be carried on here under the co-operation plan between the state forces and the government.

Dr. Mitchell, in opening the conference, explained that the plans are two-fold, co-ordination of the forces within the state, and co-operation with the national government for educational ends with the state that is to make Delaware an ex-plant in education.

Dr. Claxton in his talk stated that the Government is not coming here to do over Delaware but that the Bureau is interested in doing the work for which it was created, the helping of all the people of the United States in educational matters.

COVERDALE BARN ENTIRELY DESTROYED

Third Fire Within A Week

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the barn and contents, adjoining the home of William M. Coverdale, Depot Road, about ten o'clock last Thursday. Two horses were suffocated, and several wagons, the harness, feed and tools were burned. The loss is estimated at $1200, with insurance on the building only amounting to $300. Mr. Coverdale is a rural mail carrier. One of the horses he has been driving for 14 years. The other animal was young, a good driver, and valuable roadster. Mr. Coverdale made his customary visit to the barn shortly before dark to see that everything was right for the night. He left a bulldog chained near the building. About nine-thirty the family was disturbed by the barking of the dog. Mr. Coverdale made a careful investigation of the premises, but could find nothing unusual about the place. Shortly after ten o'clock when about to retire for the night, looking from the window, he discovered the entrance to the stable in flames. He hastened to the stable and attempted to effect an entrance with an axe, through the rear of the building, but the draft with a high wind blowing, only added fuel to the flames. The place was immediately enveloped and within a half hour entirely destroyed.

The Coverdale property is opposite the Red Men's Fraternal Home and the blaze caused some excitement there, although there was no danger of the fire reaching that place.

Seriously Injured By Explosion

Harvey Moore, thirty years of age, while at work on his father's farm near Milford Cross Roads, Monday, was seriously injured by an explosion of dynamite with which he was blasting. Mr. Moore had lighted one fuse, which failed to go off. After waiting the required time he put a match to a second, which exploded. Thinking there was no possibility of the first stick exploding after so great a time, Mr. Moore walked toward it, in time to get the full blast in his face. One eye was blown out and the other seriously injured, also the nose broken. The injured man was removed to the Delaware Hospital where he is under the care of Dr. Ellegood.

Returns from the hospital this morning state that Mr. Moore rested during the night, and the physicians believed he was able to see out of one eye this morning.

Farce Cleverly Given

The one-act farce, "The Minister's Wife," given by the Young Ladies' Mission Circle, in the lecture room of the church on Tuesday evening, was thoroughly enjoyed by the many present. The farce was bright and moving, filled with humorous situations; all the parts were most cleverly portrayed.

The front of the room, used as a stage, was attractively arranged to represent a room in the Kata Corners Seminary. The pranks of the boarding school girls, and the many unexpected arrivals of the principal, Miss Bennett, kept the audience in a chuckle for a solid half hour. The play was given under the direction of Miss Elizabeth E. Wilson, who received beautiful flowers as a slight recognition of her services. Those who took part in the farce were Misses Agnes Medill, Alice Kerr, Katherine Steel, Edna Chalmers, as students in the Seminary, and Miss Nellie Wilson, as principal. Musical selections by Mrs. William Holton on the piano, and Coach W. J. McAvoy, on the violin, were thoroughly appreciated.

TOMATO GROWERS MEET IN CENTER HALL

Helpful Talks Given

Responding to the call of the Ritter Conserve Company, farmers interested in tomato cultivation met at the Center Hall on Thursday evening. Mayor Hossinger who presided spoke in complimentary terms of the Ritter people, expressing appreciation of their interest in the farmer's side of the question.

After cigars were passed, Mr. Landreth of the Landreth Seed Company, gave an interesting talk on the crop as grown on their farms. He gave a sketch of the tomato and its history. He stated that the tomato was one of our youngest fruits. It was first catalogued by the Landreths in 1820. This was the yellow variety. The old Tilden tomato was produced about 1870. Mr. Landreth told about his father paying $60 for one tomato.

The main discussion was how the Landreths grow their 200 acres of commercial tomatoes.

Professors McCue and Manns spoke on varieties, seed selection, fertilizers and cultivation. Special stress was laid on seed selection and growing of plants.

Mr. Ritter is interested in the farmer's side of the question and is willing to co-operate with them in any way possible. The men from the College Farm showed clearly that they are acquainted with the purely practical side of the crop as well as scientific investigation.

Twelve shares of stock of the Farmers' Bank of Delaware were sold at $120 per share for 1 1/2 shares, and $120.50 for two shares.

UNION REVIVAL SERVICES PLANNED

Ministers Assisted By The Closson Sisters

Union revival services will be held in the Presbyterian Church, Newark, by the M. E. and Presbyterian churches, beginning April 11th. The Misses Closson will assist with the services. The following testimonial from Delaware City, tells of the success of the evangelists in that town.

It having been our good fortune, and divinely directed privilege to become associated in religious work, during a church community revival campaign in this city, with the Misses Mary and Ethel Closson of Independence, Iowa; singing and traveling evangelists, associated with the Rev. Joel S. Gillfillan of Newark, Del., who had full direction and control of this very successful campaign; we the undersigned evangelistic committee of the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, an interdenominational religious association of Delaware City, Del., voice it, as the unanimous opinion of the Brotherhood, that these two young ladies, in this their special line of work, cannot be too highly commended for their musical talent; their organized prayer service; their spiritual power, influential and effective personal work; wherever their devotion leads them, they more "Brighten the corner where they are." They spiritually touch the hem of His garment, and follow in the footsteps of their divine Master, as they, like Him, go about doing good to all.

This and much more in their favor, had we the ability to express it, we would gladly say.

To this we gladly affix our signatures.

Farm Surveys Around Middletown

Four weeks ago County Agents, Cooch, Pence, and Polton, from New Castle, Kent and Sussex counties, respectively, together with Mr. Brown and Mr. Keyes, Farm Management Demonstrators from the United States Department of Agriculture, took business records of sixty-five farms in the neighborhood of Middletown, Odessa, Townsend, Mt. Pleasant and McDonough. It is generally understood that these records consist of taking an inventory of the stock, crops and equipment, together with the expenses and receipts of each individual farm. Since these records were taken they have been figured out so as to show the income of the farm, the tenants' labor income, and the interest the landlord is making on his investment. Some very interesting facts have been disclosed with regard to this money the tenant farmers in this section of New Castle county are getting in return for their labor, and ability to manage the farms they rent.

In order that the results of this work may be more clearly understood, it has been decided to hold a public meeting in the Grange Hall, on Friday evening, April 9. This meeting is open not only to landlords and tenants of the farms surveyed, but to all farmers who are interested in this subject. While the results of the farm survey work will be discussed from every standpoint, it is not intended to go into individual farm records at this meeting, but to take up the matter in a general way. A little later the individual records will be returned to the farmers and more thoroughly discussed with them.

It is to be hoped that every farmer in the vicinity of Middletown will consider himself a committee of one to discuss and advertise this meeting between now and next Friday evening, April 9, so that every farmer who is interested will know of it, and can arrange his work so as to be able to attend.

Cantata In M. E. Church

A cantata, entitled "A Festival of Jappy Days," will be given by the Junior League of the M. E. Church on Friday evening, April 2nd at 8 o'clock. Admission, 10 cents.

Harrington's shirt factory, which had been shut down for some time past, resumed operations last week.

EDUCATIONAL SURVEY IN DELAWARE

(continued from page 1) The Commissioner explained why Delaware is an ideal place for the work being planned. He stated that while Delaware was small it had more white people for its one college than other colleges have. He said, "There are more than 600 colleges in the United States, which is one college for every 150,000 inhabitants, and without the negro, one for every 125,000 to 140,000. The average attendance at these colleges in the United States is 500. You have here 200,000 inhabitants to draw from and if, considering you have no normal school, you had your average you would have between 750 and 800 students and if you had as high an average as some states you would have from 1000 to 1500 students and there is no reason why you should not have that amount. "You have an advantage here over most other states. There is only one college. All the interests of the State centers around the three counties. The women's clubs the Grange and other organizations can easily get together. Two-thirds of the population of the State can get to Delaware College in half an hour. If you have any rich men, and you have, who want to endow, there is but one college to endow. You are close together for all agencies to get out and work. You have an opportunity that does not offer itself in any other place in the United States. You are rich, there being but little poverty in the state and there is a chance to get more for your college and in time make it a university. If the agencies represented here at this meeting will get together they can make Delaware a cultural state. Time has come when we can make culture for all the people."

Dr. Claxton, when told there were more than 300 rural schools in the state, stated that that was twice too many, as many of them could be consolidated and better results accomplished.

Dr. Charles A. Wagner, State Commissioner of Education; Mrs. Alfred D. Warner; Dean Winifred J. Robinson, of the Women's College of Delaware; Professor Wesley Webb, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, and representing the State Grange; Professor Charles Scott, superintendent of Wilmington Public Schools; Frederick Brady, of the State Board of Education; Dr. E. L. Cross, superintendent of New Castle county schools; Dr. E. A. Frantz, secretary of the State Board of Health; Dr. George W. Marshall, a trustee of Delaware College, and others heartily approved the plan.

Several ministers present, including the Rev. Joel S. Gillilan and the Rev. R. L. Jackson, declared that they thought the churches would support the plan both with influence and from the pulpit.

Commissioner Claxton discussed a new branch his bureau is experimenting with known as home-making. He stated that it would be a good thing if the bureau can get some knowledge of home making to those who make homes and said this idea could be carried out with money received under the Lever bill.

After being out from some time the committee presented the following report which was adopted:

It is the understanding of the committee that some method is desired of concentrating the educational forces of the State of Delaware for the purpose of bettering the educational condition of the State. With this object in mind, it is our belief that such a concentration of educational forces is feasible and desirable. In the event that any educational movement from without the state should desire to co-operate with the various educational forces of the commonwealth, we believe that there should be some sort of a permanent organization to facilitate such co-operation. In the matter of securing legislation for a better educational system for the state, such an organization could be in a position to wield a powerful influence upon public opinion concerning contemplated legislation.

We further believe that there is a need of a general publicity campaign in this state to awaken the public mind to the serious consideration of the betterment of our public schools and community life. Such an organization as we suggest would be in a position to do effective and constructive work along such lines.

Believing these things, your committee would suggest that there be formed such an organization and suggest that it be termed

The Co-operative Education Association of Delaware.

We further suggest that its officers be composed of a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and executive committee, the executive committee to be composed of the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and chairmen of the various standing committees, and the three county superintendents and superintendent of the Wilmington schools.

We suggest that the following standing committees be formed:

Boys' and Girls' Clubs, Country Church, Community Life, Consolidation of Schools, Extension of Schools, Extension Lectures, Good Roads, Home Economics, Parent Teachers' Associations, Vocational Training, Playgrounds and Games, Press, Public Health and Sanitation, School Gardens, Library, Reading Courses.

It might be feasible to hold annual conventions of this association and thus serve to weld the educational forces of our State into one common instrument that could wield a tremendous influence in the educational progress of Delaware.

This committee also suggested the officers, who were elected with out opposition. A meeting of the officers will be held in the near future, when the standing committees will be appointed. The next meeting of the association will be at the call of the president.

Those attending the conference were:

Dr. Samuel C. Mitchell, president of Delaware College; Professor Harry Hayward, director of the Delaware College Experiment Station; Dr. George A. Statement From Child Labor Commission

The recently appointed Child Labor Commission which met last week for organization at the Hotel DuPont, has presented the following statement to the public:

To Our Fellow Citizens of Delaware:

We are charged with the responsibility of administering the labor laws of our state affecting the employment and health of our women and children. It is also our duty so far as possible to study the conditions under which these women and children work in the varied industries.

To determine its effect on their health and the adequacy or inadequacy of our present laws is one of our many problems. In carrying out our evident duty, we need the unbiased help and suggestions of all citizens. Where we may err we want the friendly criticism of anyone so that our efforts may be made more efficient and accurate.

It must be understood that these laws were enacted in Delaware only after a world-wide study and investigation had shown the effect of overwork under the conditions being imposed by modern industrial and commercial development of the civilized nations.

We are entering on this work and assuming the responsibility of commissioners with a serious appreciation of our problems in administering and studying these principles as they affect the women and children, as well as the business interests of our state.

Inasmuch as the child labor division has been without harmonious and concerted administrative effort for some months, we feel it incumbent upon our new commission to organize and establish its working forces without loss of time. In our belief, the uncertainties in administering the child labor law should be cleared up as promptly as possible, and so far as it may be within the next few weeks. The offices of the commission should be re-opened by April 1. Our commission has therefore deliberated at length today and has acted on the following lines:

Charles Warner has been elected as chairman of the commission. Miss Helen S. Garrett has been elected as secretary of the commission.

Charles H. Grantland has been elected as chief inspector in charge of the child labor division, to be effective April 1, and Miss Mary S. Malone has been re-elected as deputy inspector to take charge of the ten-hour law division.

sion for the new term, beginning May 1.

In the selection of Charles H. Grantlands as chief inspector in charge of the child labor division, we have unanimously agreed that we have determined upon one eminently fitted by past public service and the conscientious performance of duty to undertake further public service, and a man who is known as a student of the problems he has to handle and of high moral character. We are satisfied that he will fully conduct and carry out his part of the work in making good under the responsibilities and duties with which we are charged. He is a man of independent thought and a firm believer in the importance to the citizens and the state of the laws we have to administer and is a man without special acquaintance or allegiance either with the business or labor interests of our state. We, therefore, unanimously believe that he can fearlessly and conscientiously assist in carrying forward the purposes for which this commission has been appointed and will prove his value in this position to the satisfaction of our community.

In the selection of Miss Mary S. Malone to continue as deputy inspector in charge of the ten-hour law division, we are but recognizing the very valuable public service rendered by Miss Malone in the conduct of this office.

Our commission fully recognizes that there are many other citizens who would doubtless fill these same positions as acceptably as we believe they will be filled by the present appointees, but as we have full confidence in the qualications of those now selected, we believe that our state's interest would not be bettered by further delay and the needs of the hour justify prompt organization and the reopening of offices in charge of the administration of these laws.

Our commission has also decided on account of the public nature of its work that all special and regular meetings as called and announced shall be open to the public, that those interested may attend these meetings and present any views in behalf of the best administration of these laws.

Respectfully submitted, Charles Warner, Chairman, John A. Hickey, George A. Hill, C. D. Sypherd, Miss Helen S. Garrett, Secretary.

DR. ROBINSON TALKS ON CONSERVATION

Vocal Music A Feature Of The Evening

A delightful musical program was given last Thursday night at the Parent-Teachers' Association meeting held in the College Oratory. The program included a solo by Richard Lind, Delaware College 1914, of the choir, Westminster Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, and a trio, sung by Mrs. J. P. Cann, Mrs. E. B. Frazer, and Miss Strahorn.

The speaker for the evening, Rev. Courtland Robinson, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, talked on the subject of "Conservation," declaring in his introduction, "Conservation is not wrapping a thing in a napkin, but preserving a thing for greater usefulness. China has huge fields with deep veins of coal lying near the surface, but she has wrapped this advantage in a napkin. True conservation would have developed these fields to their greatest possible usefulness. In the United States, in years past we have been wasteful of our resources. Of late the great heaps of coal dust at the opening of the mines are being re-screened, and tons and tons of coal are being found in these mountains of dust, formerly called 'waste.'"

"The conservation of childhood is more important than the conservation of our natural resources." The speaker dwelt on the five greatest aids in the conservation of childhood: Home, School, Religion, Social Life, and Government. He likened the development of a child to the growth of a tree, declaring the home must decide the character of the tree, the school must develop the branches and account for the abundance of its fruit.

"Parents must stand by the school," Dr. Robinson said, "and make it their business to know the teacher, and her influence on the children. Teachers with beautiful and lovely traits of mind and character, leave a great and enabling influence on all who pass through their class. I bemoan the specialization that reduces the personal touch and influence of these women, because they come in contact with the pupils only during the hour of their particular class."

The speaker emphasized the value of schoolhouses, built along simple lines and adapted to the work of education. Such matters as lighting, heating, ventilation are of special importance in the conservation of our youth. Here conservation means spending, but spending that the youth, our nation's greatest asset, shall be preserved and improved.

The place of religion in the conservation of childhood, because of its accepted value, was not dwelt upon at length by the speaker, who passed to the influence of parental companionship in the life of the child. Dr. Robinson urged the attention of both parents to the development of their children. He referred to a number of towns in New York State, as examples of the influence of wholesome social life and surroundings in the development of the children. The speaker dwelt upon the ideal social conditions that may be developed in a small town, and referred to the percentage of men and women prominent in the life of the nation who had been reared in such an environment.

"The State," Dr. Robinson said, "enters largely into the problem of conservation. The men and women of a despotic government are influenced by that government. Their outlook upon life is different. We can note the change in the man after he becomes a citizen of a great republic like our own. The difference is even greater in the children born under a democratic government."

The next meeting of the Association will be held in Room 6, Newark Grammar School, on April 29. Mrs. S. C. Mitchell will give a talk on "A Mountain Boy in School," and Miss Pennock will give a paper on "Home Study."

Dies From Effects Of Fall

Richard P. Clark, aged 65 years, of 1907 Market street, Wilmington, died at Delaware Hospital last Tuesday from the effects of a fall on the previous Saturday, when a railing gate at Seventh and King streets, against which he was leaning, opened and he plunged down an arcaway. He was picked up senseless and failed to revive when he was taken to the hospital. He was unmarried and lived with his sister, Mrs. Charles Cashell.

DR. TAUBENHAUS DELIVERS LECTURE

Before Jewish Organization

Dr. J. J. Taubenhaus lectured before a large and appreciative audience, at the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Wilmington, on Sunday evening, on "The Problem of Farming and the Jew." The lecture in part follows:

"It affords me great pleasure to address a gathering of Jewish young men. A few years ago, when I first became connected with Delaware College, there were of course then, as there are today, many Jewish young people with whom one could associate in intellectual matters, but as far as I know, the Young Men's Hebrew Association did not exist at that time. It is true you had now and then some interesting social gatherings, public lectures, and debates.

"I am glad that today you are organized into a body which keenly feels the problems of our race, for indeed, the topic which we are to discuss this evening is one of vital importance. Of course, there are many reformers to whom the words 'race' and 'nation' as far as the Jews are concerned is meaningless. They would have us believe that the Jew has already performed his task and delivered his mission, and is now awaiting his natural death. I take it for granted that all of you here, like myself put little stock in such expressions and keep away from such reformers. The very fact that the Jew still exists and so many other nations have died is proof that he still has a message to give. The very fact that today, on the other side of this continent, men are cutting their throats for no reason, at least as far as we know, and in just the same way as they have done in the ages when we were still struggling to outgrow the animal stage, is proof enough that the Jewish race has still a mission to perform. Our problem at the present time is how can the Jew as an individual and a nation add to human happiness. I do not come to claim, as you perhaps anticipate, that the sole panacea to all Jewish national ills would be a movement back to the soil. However, I do wish to emphasize the fact that the neglect of the soil is our greatest hindrance to our national and spiritual regeneration as a nation.

"As you all know, the original occupation of the Jew was farming. He made so good then that the Bible proudly stated that the land in which he lived flowed in milk and honey. Some cities would make us believe that the land was naturally fertile and all the Jew had to do was to sit under the palm tree, with an open mouth to receive the falling dates and then eat them. This, however, was far from the case. We know from experience that today the richest of farm land the best country in fact may be spoiled and ruined in a very short time through poor farming. The Jew, in spite of the crude methods then in existence, was a good farmer, for he knew how to make two blades grow where one grew before."

Dr. Taubenhaus then went on to describe how through some unfortunate occurrences the Hebrew was deprived of his lands. He said that after so many years of being away from the soil, the Jew had lost all he knew of the farming game. At the present time, he stated, there are great things in farming, and he would advise all that had a leaning toward it to take it up.

He greatly praised Delaware College facilities and closed his address with "In the past, our Jewish young men have not taken advantage of their State College. Unless I am all dreams, I am confident that in the near future we will have 100 Jewish young men taking up agriculture at Delaware College. The time is ripe for it. Jewish young men, in every state are beginning to carry the banner of agriculture and I am sure that Delaware will do likewise. To those of us who are now connected with Delaware College or those of you who contemplate coming to Delaware, it is a very happy significance."

Chairman W. E. Stover of the Finance Committee of Wilmington Council on Thursday night stated that owing to defects in the bonds of the assessors and collector of taxes in the Northern district for 1901-07, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to collect $40,000 of back taxes. The first bonds were not dated and the second styled George H. McCall, collector for the Southern district, whereas he was collector for the Northern district. One bond was given under a Republican and the other under a Democratic administration so that honors are easy so far as politics are concerned.

Mrs. Margaret Valentine, residing in the house, stated to the police that she took from him after a struggle, a razor with which he had threatened to cut his throat. Fanny Crosby Memorial

The Fanny Crosby Memorial, held in the Newark M. E. Church on last Sunday evening under the direction of Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Thort and Mrs. Manns, proved a very pleasant and profitable evening of song and story.

The exercises opened with a Communion reading by Mrs. H. W. Alfred, followed with prayer by J. R. Ford, after which some of the best hymns, from the pen of that sainted blind poet were sung as solos, by Mrs. Hillegass and Miss Warren; duets by Mrs. Hillegass and Mr. Robinson, assisted by the Choir and Orchestra, the large audience also joining in singing some of her many beautiful hymns. The music was interspersed with incidents portraying the romantic, poetic, and educational parts of her life either read or recited by the following persons: Mrs. Manns, Mrs. Grantham, and Mrs. Strickland, Misses Hoffecker, McKee, and Butler, Messrs. Cleaver, Brown, and Hoffecker. The exercises closed with Miss Smithson, in her bright pleasant manner, showing what Fanny Crosby's life should mean to us. After prayer by Mr. Howard Leak, the audience left feeling they had been both pleasantly and profitably entertained in the absence of the pastor, who was at Conference.

College Play Rich In Humor

As its title indicates, "The Jonah," the three-act play to be staged in Newark Opera House Friday, April 16, under the supervision of Mrs. Herman R. Tyson, will be a play abundant in humor—not humor of the five-cent side show type but of the type that is based on a deep study of the eccentricities of human nature. This play was selected from among the very best amateur productions of the present day by a committee experienced in home talent theatricals. Among the main points considered in selection were plot, setting, character of dialogue and repartee, type of action, and time of playing. Every effort was made to secure a play not too "heavy" in character, one with some dramatic worth, and one rich in enjoyable humor. The rehearsals indicate that the committee has been successful. So, those who attend "The Jonah" will not witness an entertainment of the "laugh and grow fat" type but, nevertheless, one highly enjoyable.

It was stopped near Walter Powell's restaurant. With the exception of a few bruises, and the wagon broken up somewhat, no great amount of damage was done. The names of the men driving the team were unknown.

Plans For Federation Meeting

Club women throughout Delaware are busy with plans for the State Federation to be held at Newark, May 13 and 14. Delegates are expected to arrive on Thursday, May 13, and remain until the morning of the 15th. As

THE AGED CONVERT

By O. R. Washburn

He was an aged white man and he lived by Baffin's Bay. Where sixty years or more before his ship was cast away. He knew no woman civilized, wherever he did go. All members of the fair sex were seal-fed Esquimaux.

One day some bold explorers, they found him on the shore; They took him safe aboard their ship and then to Baltimore. And while the voyage lasted he was mystified to note That his ship-mates loved their women but they never let them vote.

So when he safely landed he successfully did seek An anti-suffrage meeting, to hear the women speak. He heard them through their arguments, their protests and their pleas, And they made of him a convert giving reasons such as these:

"I acknowledge women arguing as these have argued here Are unfit to have the ballot; they have made the matter clear, Their standard of intelligence, in this meeting plainly shown, Is too low to guide them rightly, they should let the vote alone.

"Their views of life are shocking and their aspirations punk, They have manifested strongly that they think themselves but junk. I can not doubt the evidence, they were there before my eyes And its plain this kind of women do not wish their sex to rise."

Thereupon from out the meeting this aged man did go, With his whiskers wildly flying and his hair as white as snow. Mourning civilization's failure he vanished from their sight And shipped aboard a whaler for his Land of Heart's Delight.

There among the blubber-eaters he is watching with much pride Each husband giving equal votes to the woman at his side And to the flat-nosed people he is telling o'er and o'er Of the low grade mental standard of the squaws of Baltimore.

this is the year for the biennial election, it will be held on the second day and the installation and reception will be held at the Women's College that evening. Mrs. Edward Cooch, of the Newark New Century Club is chairman of the hospitality committee and clubs are to report their delegates to her, so that homes may be secured. Mrs. S. J. Reynolds, president of the D. S. F. W. C., Miss Anna D. Hough, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Charles B. Evans, Mrs. Harry Hayward, and Mrs. A. T. Neale, of Newark, comprise the general committee of the federation. It is expected that meetings will be held in the college oratory.

At the meeting of the executive board of the D. S. F. W. C., held at Dover on Friday, it was decided to eliminate reports of State chairmen, except those of education (Mrs. Harry Hayward), health (Mrs. Frank M. Jones) and the special committee on prison reform of which Mrs. Eleanor Baldwin Rosa is chairman.

The educational committee has been especially active this year in regard to rural schools, and Mrs. Hayward reported yesterday that United States Commissioner of Education Philander P. Claxton has promised a thorough educational survey of this State that will undoubtedly be a means of advancement.

It came out in the report of Mrs. George W. Marshall, chairman of libraries and literature, that Delaware leads with its two book wagon routes, having centers at Dover and Seaford. The Milford club has a library and the Wyoming club has started one. Several clubs reported putting up placards on the care of horses in their towns, the cards having been sent by the S. P. C. A.

Mrs. R. J. Lindale, chairman of conservation, announced a proposition of the General Federation, that each State plant trees and shrubber, for one mile on the Lincoln Highway. The matter was left with the committee.

HANS HEIDEMANN AT THE FRONT

The above photograph shows Hans Heidemann, at the German front. Mr. Heidemann spent a year in Newark, where he made many friends. For several months after the beginning of the war, Mr. Heidemann was with the aviation corps. He has since been transferred to the artillery. The picture here shows him on his mount, at the Belgian frontier. The windmill in the background shows the marks of the enemy's guns. Friends here are glad to note his promotion, won by service.

Social And Labor Needs Of Farm Women

The United States Department of Agriculture asked fifty-five hundred women, heads of the households of its crop correspondents, how the Department could best help farm women; what the women of the farms want and what their problems are. Two thousand and twenty-five of these answered the questions with definite statements. These statements were arranged in a hundred lists, by the Department, and each of the sentences in each letter was put under one of the hundred headings. In this way the Department found what the women of the farm think they want and was able to see how each problem appealed to the women of each of the four main divisions of the United States. The report of this makes a very interesting document.

The dominant note of the letters seems to be the complaint of the women, first of overwork and long hours and second of isolation. Such complaints come from every state. Many women assert that even the social life of market days is denied them; the men doing the marketing. There is a general dejection that the work is too hard. Yet the fact that from the same counties where such letters come other letters have been written saying the women are not overworked or isolated, would indicate that the income of the family is the determining factor in the work done by women and in their social life, or lack of it. The newly settled states, like the Dakotas, of course have isolation for even the more well to do, but the family with an automobile gets social life, usually, anywhere. One woman says that they would rather have free telephones and see moving pictures than free food.

An Arkansas man suggests that what would help farm women more most is a law making it a criminal offense to work women in the fields or at heavy farm work. A Colorado farmer's daughter, ranchman's wife, teacher and superintendent of schools, says that the farm women are not only discontented with farm work but that they think the board of hired men in the farmer's family in cases where the men hired are not congenial people.

Among the suggestions for improvement in the condition of farm life for women is the establishment of co-operative laundries. It is not generally known how very cheaply family washings could be done and the "flat work" ironed if it was done in a central plant, as cream is disposed of at creameries. The time women spend on washing, if applied to almost any other form of farm labor, would more than pay the cost of such laundries. With the patronage assured, the amount of work to come known long in advance, the work could be done very cheaply. Some have thought the power used in creameries might also be used for a laundry in an adjoining building. The co-operative laundry plan has been studied and Farmers' Bulletin 353 gives the results of the investigations. It can be had of the Department for five cents in currency, or a money order. (Stamps not taken.)

A general belief is shown by the women that better roads and cheaper autos would do much to make farm life better. One woman thinks the great sums spent on rivers and harbors would be better employed in improving the rural highways. A Missouri woman says that though she is hard working and poor she will have an auto when the roads are improved, getting it on the installment plan by the work of the whole family and then "nothing will be too far away."

Summing up the reports one concludes that they show that women are quite generally overworked on the farms, that they are generally isolated; either by poverty, bad roads or the large farms they are on, and that they are increasingly discontented with their lot. As for remedies they favor cheaper telephones, better rural mail service at lower rates, better roads, cheaper autos, co-operative laundries and some plan to put the hired men to board in a camp or house designed to give them good service and opportunities for amusement; at least to get rid of the work they occasion the housewife.

This seems to cover the main ideas of the women who wrote. Of course the Department can not deal with question of politics and perhaps the women did not mention the possibility of government help to secure what they need. But there is no reason why the Department should not help the people to get the things named. The telephones are doing well but they do not reach to millions of isolated people who ought to have them and the furnishing to such people at cost of telephone service is not wrong or impossible if the government authorities decide to do it. The parcel post service is improving. Good roads will come but they are coming far too slowly and the government ought to expend as much for them each year as it did yearly for the Panama Canal. The government can not well do much at present as to co-operative boarding houses for farm help but it can give information and encouragement. Autos at cost would occasion much ridicule but some day the government may supply them. The co-operative laundry is probably practical and the Department should establish a few as experiments, in each state. Sometime the government may undertake to handle the leading farm crops and supply them to the consumers at about the cost of transportation, manufacture, and sale. Until then the farmer will suffer, often, from poverty. It is a co-operative age and the farmer being still nearest the competitive system, now rapidly being outgrown, suffers most from delay in making his work co-operative.

"Did I get that Order? —I Telephoned."

And some fellow who has no telephone, or didn't think to use it if he has, is lamenting his luck right now. Luck?

You never hear the man who sticks everlastingly to the job and uses his Bell Telephone complain about his luck, do you?

Children Burned To Death

The two young children of Charles Peck, a farmer near Harrington, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Peck home last Friday afternoon. The fire started from an overheated air-tight stove, in the room in which the two children, the elder being two years of age, and the younger a babe of two months, were sleeping. Fanned by high winds, the fire spread rapidly and soon enveloped the whole dwelling. But a short time before the fire started the mother had bathed and placed the two children in a bed in which the fire started. A third child, four years old, who was with the mother in the kitchen escaped. The mother was almost crazed and several times during the fire attempted to break from the grasp of neighbors and to rush into the blazing building to save her children. The father was in Harrington at the time, returning to find the home a heap of smoking ashes and a funeral pyre.

Seaford Asks For Corn Convention

The executive committee of the Delaware Corn Growers' Association met in Dover last Thursday to consider plans for the next Corn Show to be held at Seaford, Delaware, December 7-11. Seaford is the first town outside of Wilmington to ask for the Corn Show, which heretofore has been held at places selected by the association. The Board of Trade of Seaford, and more than one hundred citizens petitioned the association for the annual meeting to be held in that town. The executive committee will meet later and determine on the program and list of premiums to be awarded.

Extension Conference With High Schools

For the month of April the Extension Committee of Delaware College has planned to visit all high schools of Delaware. The object of the visit is to bring high schools and the college close together, and to discuss with high schools various matters of mutual interest for the next year. Several plans are being considered for the expansion of the work of the committee. The members of the committee that will be in charge of the work in the various counties are as follows: Dr. R. C. Reed, New Castle county, Professor C. A. Shroyer, Sussex county, and Dr. E. J. Vaughn, Kent county. Perhaps no phase of college extension was as popular and effective as these visits to the schools of the State.

The scene is on the grand stand after the ceremonies had ended, Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, Gov. Hiram Johnson of California, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, President C. C. Moore of the exposition and a notable group of visiting dignitaries being seen in animated discussion of the epochal event. In the press box the correspondents are seen flashing to the world the news that the exposition had opened.

THE PRODUCTION BY HIGH SCHOOL

Fire Community Aids in Making Play A Success

Representation of life in old England, in the days when "spinning wheels hummed busily" was the subject of the Newark High School in the Opera House on Friday evening, when they presented "Silas Marner," before a large and appreciative audience. The play was given under the direction of Professor Rich of the Department of Education, Women's College, assisted by the members of the High School, Mrs. Mitchell, and Miss Brady of the Women's College. A happy feature of the occasion was the spirit of good fellowship and co-operation that prevailed at the rehearsals. College and school united in making the play a splendid success. The puppets and their coaches were met with a cordial response in their efforts concerning stage properties. Special thanks is due S. L. Cornog, for the loan of an old-fashioned loom, which added so much to the stage setting. The representation of Silas Marner's cottage; also to Mrs. H. R. and Miss E. E. Wilson, who aided by Miss Brady, superintended the "make-up" of the characters; to Miss Ethel Campbell and the Misses Pilling, who developed the Virginia Reel scene, one of the prettiest in the play. Every detail, which might add to the general tone of the performance had been carefully planned. The entire play was given with a smoothness and finish worthy of older and more experienced artists. Congratulations to the High School for the excellent educational production. The cast follows:

A feature of the evening was the excellent music furnished by Messrs. Martin, Souder, Torbert, Marks, and Price, of the Delaware College Orchestra.

High School boys acted as stage manager, and collected the stage properties. The spirit of thoughtfulness which characterized all the rehearsals was illustrated on the evening of the performance by the presentation of a beautiful bunch of roses, to Professor Rich.

To the Youngsters--Forty to Sixty Years Young

A man is as old as he feels--and dresses. The only man who ought to be Olerized is the man who dresses the part. A dowdy looking suit of clothes makes a dowdy looking man, regardless of his age.

Youth is not a matter of years, but of efficiency; and to dress efficiently, is to look efficient and feel it.

This store is known as a Young Man's Store, yet I serve as many young men of forty and fifty as I serve youngsters just over their teens. It's wonderful what a youth-giving tonic a snug, trim English Cut SOL WILSON Tailored Suit is to a man.

The beautiful part of a SOL WILSON Tailored Suit is that it fits perfectly the figure it is made for--be it slim or stout, short or tall, angular or round. That's in the guarantee that goes with the suit. Your money back if it doesn't come true.

2000 woolen fabrics--blithesome or dignified--as you prefer--at this store waiting for you to name a choice.

Various Owners Of Delaware

The fertile strip of sea-coast which made up the colony of Delaware was perhaps the most warmly contested piece of land in the early American colonies. It lay along the great bay and river of the same name, and its importance consisted in its command of these and of the great fertile valley drained by them. In 1648 the struggle for ownership shifted from the Swedes and the Dutch to the Dutch and English. For more than three centuries England and Holland had been the closest of friends; but now at the close of the long and bloody Thirty Years' War, which ended with the treaty of Westphalia in 1648, the power of Spain was crushed, and the Dutch, no longer having anything to fear from his Catholic Majesty, rose to dispute with the English the dominion of the seas. This brought about an unfriendly rivalry between the two nations, and the unfriendliness was increased by the fact that the Dutch of New England traded freely with the English colonies. They carried great quantities of Virginia tobacco to Holland, and thus at least 10,000 pounds a year was lost in custom duties to the British government. The first Navigation Law, 1651, was aimed largely at the Dutch trader, but the wily Dutchman ignored the law and continued as before. This was one cause that determined the English on the conquest of New Amsterdam. Another, and probably the chief one was, that the Dutch colony on the Hudson separated New England from the other English colonies and threatened British dominion in North America.

The English claimed New Netherland on the ground of the Cabot discoveries, and declared it to be a part of Virginia as given by James I in 1606, to two companies. In 1664, therefore, Charles II gave the entire country from Connecticut to the Delaware, to his brother James, Duke of York, and sent Richard Nicolls, of the royal navy, with a small fleet, and five hundred of the King's veterans, to take it from the Dutch.

Stuyvesant, the Dutch governor, upon hearing of the fleet's departure from Boston, hastened to New Amsterdam, arriving but one day before the English fleet appeared in the harbor. Nicolls demanded the surrender of the fort; Stuyvesant refused; he fumed and fretted and swore and stamped his wooden leg. He tore to bits a conciliatory letter sent him by Nicolls; he mustered his forces for defense. But the people were not with him; they were weary of his tyrannical government, and jealous of the democratic privileges of their New England neighbors. The fort was surrendered without bloodshed; New Amsterdam became New York, after the Duke of York, and all New Netherland, including the Delaware valley, passed under English control.

In 1682, the year of the founding of Pennsylvania, the Duke sold Delaware to William Penn, and the colony, which came to be called the "Three Lower Counties," or the "Territories," was the same year annexed to Pennsylvania. The history of the colony, to the time of the Revolution, was identified with that of its great neighbor on the north.

Its the Steady, Consistent, Day-in-and-day-out Performance of the

that makes it the unquestioned "big value but low priced" car of the world.
We do not ask you to buy a Studebaker because of the record a specially constructed car may have made in this, that or the other race, when driven by an expert racing driver. No—but we do ask you to investigate the performance of the Studebaker in every-day use, under every day conditions, and in the hands of thousands of average drivers. It is the use to which you will put a car that should determine its value to you. Let us show you what the Studebaker has done and will do in the service to which you expect to put it. If you ask why Studebakers are better—why they give and always have given thorough satisfaction—consider the aims, ideals and honesty of purpose behind them; the quality of Studebaker materials; the vast extent and intensiveness of Studebaker manufacturing methods; the excellence of their engineering design; and the fact that in each and every important or vital particular these cars welcome comparison with the highest priced.
You will find them competing with cars that sell at prices $500 higher; and you will also find them showing higher quality throughout.
Studebaker prices are lower because these cars are completely manufactured in Studebaker plants, carry but one profit, and impose no middleman's tax on the buyer.
Phone us now for a Studebaker demonstration.

The second meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association, of the Welsh Tract School, was held on Friday afternoon, March 26.

At the first meeting which was on February 22, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Wm. Armstrong, president; Mrs. H. Saunders, vice-president; Miss Sara W. Boyce, secretary; and Miss Elizabeth Pierson, treasurer; also a committee composed of Miss Annie E. Wilson, Miss Margaret L. Whiteman and Mr. Leon Powell.

Owing to the fact that Mrs. Armstrong had to resign the presidency, Mrs. Saunders filled the vacancy; and Miss Boyce is to act as vice-president and secretary the remainder of the term.

Keeping Easter

There are three things to remember at Easter:

1 Your duty as a Christian is to meditate upon the fact of Christ's Resurrection and the principle of your own. As He rose from the fetters of the grave, so you are to throw off the fetters of sin and thus rise with Him.

2 Your duty as a Churchman is to be present at the Holy Eucharist on Easter Day, and to be one of the faithful to attend The Feast. It is the great family gathering of Christ's children. You cannot afford to be absent.

3 Your duty as a Recipient of Divine Blessings is to make a glad Thank offering on Easter Day, which shall be used for the Glory of God, to extend His Mercy and His Truth to all men. This is to keep Easter Day.

All Parishioners are affectionately reminded of their Easter obligation and duty, and are bidden to make their Holy Sacrament as The Church has always enjoined.
