Introduction: Several references to the Franklins’ son Francis Folger (1732-1736) occur. Pairs of shoes were charged on 10 Jan and 12 April, and "Franky’s Barber" appears in June. The first mention of a maid in the Franklin household occurred on 24 April when “E.E. [per] [J?] Warner” charged BF five shillings for making a pair of shoes "for the maid." Alexander Annand, the schoolteacher with whom William and James Franklin, Jr., studied, turns up near the end of the year. Deborah’s brother, John Read, evidently boarded with the Franklins for five weeks in 1736 (see year-end), paying a total of £2.

DF recorded entries in the Shop Book like “Cristefer the Fishman, Dr. for 2 Doz. allmanacks, 7.0. and I owed him 2 Shilins, 2.0.” and “Robert the weaver dr for paper, 1.0.” Both occur on 27 Nov. “Cristefer the Fishman” is Christopher Lucas and “Robert the weaver” is probably Robert Shepherd (the only other weaver with the first name “Robert” in the accounts is Robert Dawson, whose name first appears in 1740, whereas Robert Shepherd occurs this year).

Lewis Evans, the future map-maker who worked for Franklin and whom Franklin taught natural philosophy, appears in the accounts on 27 Nov. John Bennet the parchment maker (30 Oct) becomes hereafter a regular in the accounts. An anonymous account in V66:53, for a series of “Glasd” paper entries, beginning 29 March and continuing through 16 April 1738, is for Thomas Wilcox, as a series of Wilcox entries beginning with that for 22 June 1737 proves. The shipwright Samuel Hastings, whom the Maryland poet Richard Lewis celebrated in 1729 (Franklin reprinted the poem in PG #61, 13 Jan 1729/30), charged an advertisement, 11 Feb. And the New Jersey poet Archibald Home appeared on 5 Nov. So too does Franklin’s neighbor Joseph Paschal, 15 Dec, a Union Fire Company member.

Imprints. The Proprietor’s 250 advertisements (18 Feb) may be for the quitrents (Miller
Early in 1736, according to the titles specified on credit, Jacob Taylor’s almanac (Miller 117) sold better than Franklin’s Poor Richard (Miller 104). All the recorded almanac sales were to shopkeepers, except one copy of Taylor’s to Mr. Benezet on 8 Jan. The largest single almanac sale was on 11 Feb when Mr. "Coulman" bought 36 Poor Richards. Records exist for sales of Taylor’s: 2, 3 (3), 7, 8 (2), 10 and 17 Jan, and 11 (2) and 18 Feb, for a total of 82 almanacs. Records for Poor Richard turn up only on 8 and 17 Jan, 11 (2) Feb and 1 March, for a total of 62 almanacs. The titles, however, may well be misleading, for a number of sales do not specify which almanack (see, for example, under 1 Jan). I suspect that the almanacs not named were all Poor Richards; if so, then Poor Richard was Franklin’s best-selling local almanac, and Taylor was second. The only almanacs BF printed in 1735 were Taylor and Poor Richard (in two editions), but BF would have carried copies of all other local almanacs in his shop.

BF printed and published four pieces at his own risk: an Indian captivity narrative, Jonathan Dickinson’s God’s Protecting Providence Man’s Surest Help (early April); another edition (BF had printed one in 1734) of John Tennent’s Every Man His Own Doctor (ante 30 Oct); and his two major sources of revenue, Poor Richard’s Almanac (11 Nov) and the weekly Pennsylvania Gazette. Franklin evidently also gambled on James Logan’s Charge to the Grand Inquest of 13 April. Surprisingly, Thomas Penn bought 25 and 36 copies of Logan’s Charge on 4 May, and 25 more on 12 July, paying 12 shillings for the latter.

The Shop. The shop sold a variety of fabrics in 1736. Influenced by Deborah Franklin, the shop began carrying materials for dressmakers and taylors: mohair and silk (12 March); lining (17 March), "checker lining" (18 April), and "Corse Lining" (31 Aug); "Black Grogram" (30 March); "calecow" [calico] (3 May); "a Suit Head Clothes" (12 June); and "tafety" [taffeta] (29 June). The shop also sold "butens" [buttons] (12 March), purchased "nedels" [needles] (ante 11 Sept), and received in trade from Silas Purvin and Robert Smith "Feathers" (15 and 27 Oct, respectively). The shop added large quantities of rice (perhaps from Lewis Timothy in Charleston, 17, 30 March), cheese (9, 10 April, 16 Oct), pen knives (21 Aug), "glew" (30 March), and "1 Doz. bottles Claret" (Dec) to its stock. On 9 Dec, BF received in payment from James Johnson "300 lb. neat Hogs fat," which he then sold in various weights (9, 22 Dec). Cheap "blew paper" (29 June) and "superfine" paper (15 Dec) appear.

Interesting barters include a payment BF received from Mrs. Shreeve of potatoes to the value of 1.3 (24 March). To "Hougherd the Carpinter," BF paid 13.2 "for makeing the water spoute." BF charged his landlord Simon Edgell for various repairs to the house: "for making Spout, 13.2; For making a Dresser in the Kitchen, 1.7.0; mending the Yard Gate, 1.0; mending the Floor, 0.8; mending Kitchen Window Frame, 1.0; mending Chamber Floor &c, 4.0; filling up the Shop, 1.0.0; Step in the little House [i.e., the necessary house], .6; repairing the Shop, 3.9; repairing the back Door, 1.0" (17 Nov).

DF made a vague entry on 7 March to Benjamin Lay, charging him "for sum of Binding Books but I dont now hough many."
