Introduction. The journeyman printer Samuel Holland, who was to become another of Franklin's partners, first turns up in the accounts on 24 June. If Franklin was settling accounts with him after six months (the usual period for Franklin to reconcile accounts with his employees), he had begun working for Franklin on 24 Jan. The charge to Robert Grace of £20 dated simply Oct for "Room & Diet" suggests that Lincoln Grace, who seems to have been the son of Robert Grace, was living and boarding with the Franklins. The Franklins bought several new chairs from Solomon Fussell on 13 March and had him repair an old one, and on 24 Dec, they bought three more white chairs from him and had him mend three old chairs.

Franklin signed a bond on 12 April for the administration of the estate of his deceased friend Joseph Breintnall. The firm of Charles & Alexander Stedman evidently replaced that of Stedman and Robertson, which had occurred frequently in the last several years.

Imprints. Sales for Franklin's Reflections on Courtship and Marriage (Miller 408) turn up in the accounts on 28 May (Miller has 23 May; 100 copies to his New York partner James Parker), 6 June (50 copies to Jonas Green), 10 June (12 to his sister-in-law Ann Franklin), 2 July (a copy to Thomas Williams), and 7 July (a copy to Abel James). BF also printed at his own risk a selection of sermons by Whitefield (Miller 409). In addition to the 50 sent gratis to Ann Franklin (10 June) and the 200 sent to Kneeland and Green in Boston (31 July) at 2s each, we have records of a dozen sold to John Hind at 2s each, and single copies sold to William Coates (7 July), William Bradford (14 Aug), and Isaac Jones (18 Nov), for 2.6 apiece. BF was selling copies of the collected Laws of 1742, together with subsequent issues (5 Feb, 11 March). The Pennsylvania Assembly paid BF 57.1.0 (possibly for dispatches?); and as Clerk of the House and for printing the votes [Miller 404], etc., 111.13.6; and for postage, 25.3.3 (23 Aug).

BF printed four paper currencies in 1746. First came the Delaware issue of £20,000 (28 Feb), which used animals for the different denominations, followed by the private currency in the amount of £27.10.0 for Joseph Gray (29 May). Then 2 July, the last New Jersey currency, £16,000, printed solely by BF (though BF & Hall continued to print the NJ currency). And finally the 1 Aug Pennsylvania emission of £5,000, for which Franklin received £181.17.10 on 26 Aug 1747.

Postmaster. Two receipts of payment to John Murphy show the wages of one of Franklin's post riders. Murphy received "in full for Riding Post to this Day, being Eleven Pounds, Five Shillings" on 26 March and "Thirty-two Shillings and Eleven Pence, 1.12.11" on 22 July "for Riding to this Day and all Accounts." Franklin also recorded, on 6 June, the sending of 500 Postmaster Bills to Mr. Nichols, a bill (amount not given) that he put in Postmaster General Elliot Benger’s account.

The Shop. By 1746 the Accounts show that Franklin's inventory, which had grown from the few items in the Shop Book of 1737 to the variety of 1745, was now more or less static. Few unusual items appear in the Accounts for this year, but of them the most interesting is a "Velv't Pellereen" sold to Matthias Harris, Esq., on 14 Aug. This luxurious item, officially spelled "Pillareen," is a mantle or cape. The few other unusual items include "shingles & ha[u]ling" for Robert Grace on 6 Nov, and "Sweet Meats," bought by Jn. Potts on 16 Dec, and the copper plate copy book purchased by Samuel Coates on 29 Oct. Franklin received in credit from Jn. Read "Butter at Sundry Times 283lb neat beside One Tub Gross 61 Gr. the Tare" on 2 April and on 6 May took for credit "Linnen L4.7. & 4 Shirts ready made" from Richard Pitts. BF continued to sell printing supplies: on 10 June, James Parker bought six Reams of carteridge paper, two pair of cases, a pair of cases (no doubt of a different size); one large 8vo page of great primer; and three small parcels of pica.

A curious receipt to "Mr. Joseph Sims & Company, owners of the privateer George, John Smith" charging Franklin 5.0.0. for an anchor opens the question of what use Franklin would have made of his unusual purchase. Perhaps it was for someone else. Not all the debit items in Franklin's accounts were from his shop. He made various purchases for others, in this year for the Postmaster-General Elliot Benger. For example, on Friday, 6 June, he debited Benger for "6 Pair Stays 22.6, Warburtons Div.Legat’n, 37.6; Dressing & Dying an Elk Skin, 8.6.; 500 Post’mr [Postmaster] Bills sent to Mr. Nichols [no amount]." He must have paid someone to dress and dye the elk skin, and he probably purchased the stays from a merchant. He probably supplied the book himself, and he certainly supplied the postmaster's way bills.

Bookman. Franklin's love of books and his generosity meet in several entries: on 3 May "Broth'r Jn. Read" was debtor "For the Library Payments of 1740 & 1746 at 10.0. [per year]" and on 6 May William Maugridge was debtor "For Paym'ts made for him at the Library several Years 60/.". Additionally, two ambiguous entries for the same day seem to indicate Franklin was also making payments for Hugh Roberts and Nicholas Cassel (cf. 6 May). Two large orders testify to Franklin’s continuing business as a used and rare-book dealer: On 3 Oct, he purchased books worth £107.4.11; and on 15 Nov, he sold books worth £82.14.9.
