F. Stanwood Baumgartner, our director of athletics, came to Delaware last fall to take charge of the football team. His value was soon discovered and he was asked to become the director of all athletics at the college. Coach Baumgartner is a graduate of the University of Chicago, where he was very active in athletics, having played on the varsity football, basketball, and baseball teams. After leaving college, he played professional baseball with the Philadelphia Club of the National League for two seasons, participating in one world’s series. In spite of his brief directorship, his cheerful grin, his good-natured disposition, and his unabating insistence upon results have gained for him the personal admiration and friendship of every student in college.

Class Athletics

Football

In the fall of 1915 the class of 1919 “broke into” class athletics by trimming the Sophs to the tune of 13-0. It was a hard fought battle with neither team scoring until the final quarter, but our consistency proved fatal to the Sophs, and we deserved to win. “Bim” Aker and “Heine” Marston were the mainstays, and scored the two touchdowns which gave us the right to take off our freshman caps.

When we became Sophs it was quite evident that we must win again. Spurred on by memories of the 1915 conquest, we went upon the gridiron with a “do or die” spirit. We fought hard and the result was a scoreless tie. It was a game filled with exciting moments, brilliant dashes, hard smashes, punts galore,—but no scores. It would not be unfair, we think, to say that in football the class of 1919 “showed the stuff.”

Basketball

In basketball our class has not been so successful as in other branches of sport. Our “fresh” team first met the “old Soph enemy,” and they captured the game 20-9. Undoubtedly the better team won, and the Sophs captured the inter-class title. Next year the game against the Freshmen was a bitter fight and the result was in doubt until the last whistle blew,—the first year men winning 17-14. “Spex” Craig was our shining light, but the whole team played well.

In our Junior year under the new system of a six game series, we were successful in tying the Sophs and Seniors for second place.

Track

The class of 1919 showed its heels to the other classes in our freshman year, and hung up 52 points, with the Sophs running second. This interclass meet brought out our stars who are now in the college team, and gave promise of greater things to come. This is evidenced by the records which have been smashed by the athletes of 1919.

Our Sophomore track team was handicapped by the loss of a number of good men, and in 1917 we finished third in the annual interclass meet. We maintained our reputation for a good relay team, however, and won that event in fast time.

Baseball

In baseball our efforts were not particularly well rewarded. The “Freshies” let out in the initial contest and trimmed us; score 10-6. The
The game was marked by the heavy slugging of both teams, in which the first year men excelled.

In our Sophomore year much of our most promising material was lost through the war call, and again we met defeat. Our rivals, the Freshmen had a crack organization, and not only defeated us to the tune of 13-1, but won the interclass series with ease.
