FOREWORD

The purpose of any college yearbook is to present a pictorial history of the time spent in college; with the intention of recalling in future days, a fleeting glimpse of one’s college career.
In preparing the BLUE HEN, we have endeavored to incorporate all items which we believed would be of interest to the graduate in the years to come. If this yearbook serves to bring back any fond memories, we shall consider it as having been well worth the effort.

Judge Hugh M. Morris
The burning principles of the Declaration of Independence and the protective tenets of the Bill of Rights are becoming increasingly important in our thoughts and plans for the future. Freedom of speech and of the press, the free exercise of religious thought and of worship, the right to peaceably assemble, equal protection under our laws,—these are the things for which you have been working and studying, and which you now go forth prepared to guard and uphold.

In this graduating class of 1941 are, perhaps Governors, Senators, Judges and Congressmen of the future. There are others among you who, though not destined or desiring to fill public place, yet in the performance of the duties of citizenship, will, with less of glamour but no less of honor, by precept and example so mold public opinion that liberty under the law will be the boon to you and your children that it was to your fathers.

It may be that the ease, tranquility and lack of governmental responsibility that go with the halcyon days of one’s minority have made you unmindful of the heritage that is yours. The noble activity and zeal for freedom which made your ancestors invincible may have remained unobserved by you. That governments of the people do not survive the watchfulness of the people, is a truism which may have escaped your attention. But true it is that soon you will be the guardians not only of your own liberty, but of that of posterity as well.

America’s Constitution is your heritage. It will remain yours only if you love wealth less than liberty, and the tranquility of servitude less than the animated contest of freedom. It will remain yours only on condition that you bring to its defense a spirit unafraid, a courage of the mold that gave it birth.

May you protect it well,—for America’s Constitution is Liberty’s greatest safeguard!

UNIVERSITY HALL
GYMNASIUM
Through the tall, white-columned portals
Of these buildings hewn for learning,
We've passed — a pack of hungry mortals;
Our appetites forever burning.

But not for pleasures mundane and droll,
Have we searched among these tranquil halls.
Food and wine for the palate of the soul
Is the stuff for which our fancy calls.

In the high-vaulted chambers of the Library's interior
Are enough weighty tomes to make the wise feel inferior.
And if we didn't read even half the books there,
'Twas because a cord usually drew our gaze.

And the broad veranda of that Temple of Culture
Was a reviewing stand for the College Vulture;
Where the fellows could assemble in the Blue Hen Academy,
And study the merits of comparative anatomy.

Close to the left stands the college cynosure,
Back of which lies the mystic us enclosure
Where, in all probability, they buried the ough-dey
That came cut of our packets on that pay-as-you-go-day.

Under the Mitchell Hall dome, Historionics
Held sway over those who were acting chronics.
And the plays that flowed o'er the footlights were tonics
Impelling the critics to reviews of symphonics.

Ensconced among T squares, slide rules, and cob webs,
Were the patient and plodding engineers.
Tucked away neatly in the building called Evans,
The Blueprinters could shoot craps with scientific sevens.

"Back to the Good Earth," was the clarion call
Of the hayseeds inhabiting ivy-clad Wolf Hall.
A toast of corn brew to the tillers anonymous
Who elected pursuit of vocations agronomic.

In the Chemistry Building stalked the lads with a flare
For mixing the elements and getting hot air.
To concoct better formulae is their foremost ambition,
Which is O. K. with us—if they omit ammunition.

By the smooth-worn wall stands the old dormitory
Where the residing collegians were quite reformatory.
Honor off the Administrator's ire rose,
When the guys played around with the fire hose.

Far from the maddening crowd is Old College
Where once our forebears convened to get knowledge.
Today, nowhere else could you find a finer
And more austere housing for a dance hall and diner.

PERSONALITIES

The most complete picture of the administration, faculty, and student body of our University may be had by presenting the individuals who make up these various groups. These individuals, varied as they may be in character, all have the same friendly make-up that constitutes the atmosphere that is typical of our University. The informality of the faculty, the worldliness of the seniors, the love affairs of the juniors, the sophomores, the bewilderment of the freshmen, the cheery "hello" on the campus walks, the dates on the Library steps, the bull sessions on the "wall", the politics that bloom in the Spring, the smoke talks in the Lounge — all this is typical of the personalities on our campus. Let this section be a tribute to the finest bunch of fellows ever to be brought together.

PRESIDENT, WALTER HULLIHEN, Ph.D.

Born in 1875 in Woodrow Wilson's home town, Staunton, Virginia, President Walter Hullihen had a good precedent for entering the teaching profession. His studies at the University of Virginia and, late, at Johns Hopkins University, were rewarded with a Ph.D. in 1900. He taught languages and mathematics in the University School, Baltimore, and at the University of the South from 1909 to 1912, at which time he became Dean of the Arts and Science School there.

Since 1920 he has guided the University of Delaware as President. His activities in that period have also included the sponsorship of the Foreign Study Group in France and in Germany.

Honors awarded him include: Doctor of Civil Laws from the University of the South in 1922 and Doctor of Laws from Temple University in 1925. He is also a Chevalier in the Legion of Honor.
Although appointed to his present office of Business Administrator in April, 1936, Mr. Charles E. Grubb has been connected with the University of Delaware for many years. In 1914, he was an honor graduate from the School of Engineering following an active campus career. While in college, he was elected to Phi Kappa Phi and was Editor-in-Chief of both the Review and Blue Hen. He was later elected to Tau Beta Pi.

During the Commencement exercises of 1930, Mr. Grubb was awarded an honorary Master's degree in Civil Engineering.

From 1918 to 1930, he served as Chief County Engineer of New Castle County and as the New Castle County State Highway Commissioner in which capacities he supervised construction and maintenance of roads and structures. In 1930 he became Engineer-Executive of the American Road Builders Association of Washington, D.C., and in 1934, Assistant Director, Projects Division, F.E.A., with offices in Washington.

During all this time, he kept in close contact with the affairs of his University, so that in the short time since his appointment to his present position, he has already greatly increased the efficiency of the Business Office. His sympathetic, yet business-like and efficient treatment of student problems has established him firmly in the hearts of all those who know him.
George Elliot Dutton, a graduate of the University of Delaware (Class of 1904), Dean Dutton did graduate work at Johns Hopkins University and at Harvard University where he received his Master of Arts Degree in 1911. At that time, he became connected with the English Department of Delaware which he has served in various capacities ever since. He was elected Dean of Delaware College in 1923.

Robert Lyle Spencer was graduated from Iowa State College in 1912. Following that, he taught for six years and then engaged for a time in commercial engineering work. In 1928, he became Dean of the Engineering School of the University of Delaware.

George Lee Schuster was born in the midwestern town of Middletown, Indiana. He was graduated from Ohio State University in 1916, with a degree of Bachelor of Science, and received his Master's degree in Science from the same institution in 1918. He continued his graduate work when he received a fellowship award at Cornell University in 1927-28. During this period he was granted a leave of absence from the University of Delaware, where he was a member of the faculty. After graduating from Ohio State University, he served as assistant agronomist at the same institution for two years. Then he proceeded to West Virginia University, where he was instructor for the scholastic year 1918-1919, and came to the University of Delaware in 1920, where he took up the position of professor of agronomy. Thus, he has been in the service of Delaware College for nineteen years. He succeeded Dean C. A. McCue on July 1, 1939. Besides serving as Dean of the School of Agriculture, he is Director of the Experiment Station and Director of Extension Service at the university.

Business Guidance

The Business Guidance Bureau of the University of Delaware was established on January 2, 1936, by action of the Board of Trustees to obtain suitable positions for graduates of the University. Unlike many other bureaus of similar nature, there is no charge for placement service.

When the Bureau was founded, Lieutenant-Colonel Donald M. Ashbridge, who had previously been a Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University, was made Director. The Colonel served in this capacity, assisted by Miss Louise Hutchison, a graduate of the Women's College of Delaware, class of '35, until he was called back to active duty on the first of January, 1941. The fact that the same firms return for men year after year

The National Youth Administration makes funds available for payment to needy college and graduate students in regular attendance in institutions of collegiate and university standing for part-time work during the academic year. The types of work to be performed and the selection of students to receive aid, within certain limitations prescribed by the National Youth Administration, are responsibilities of the authorities of the institution participating in the Program. Students between the ages of 16 and 24 years are eligible to apply for this work.

The work performed by students employed under the student work program must be practical and useful. It is the purpose of the N. Y. A. to furnish work that is in line with the ability and major interest of the students. The work is Graduates and former students of Delaware College have been organized as an alumni association for many decades. However, it was only three years ago that an alumni office on the campus with a full-time executive secretary and staff was established. This office is now located on the first floor of Purnell Hall.

The primary purpose of the association is to advance the interest, influence, and usefulness of the University of Delaware, and at the same time to maintain and advance the cause of education and to promote beneficial relations among its members, between the University and the association, and between the undergraduate body and the association. The progressive long-range program which is being carried on has already accomplished a great deal in these directions and is certain to produce even greater results in the years to come.

Every graduate and former student of Delaware College, University of Delaware who has completed one year's work, automatically becomes a member of the alumni association when his class graduates. There are already more than 2600 members of the association scattered throughout the United States and foreign countries.

Membership in the association does not even entail the paying of annual dues, but each year a fund campaign is conducted at which time alumni are requested to voluntarily contribute any amount whatsoever. The funds raised by this method are used to defray the operating expenses of the organization. During the past two years the response to the fund campaign appeals has been most encouraging and shows clearly an ever-increasing alumni interest in the welfare of Delaware.

To arouse and maintain the interest of alumni in the organization and in the University the members are organized into local clubs in various sections of the country. These groups meet several times each year and thus remain in touch with University developments and activities. Such clubs already exist in Baltimore, Md.; Boston, Mass.; Buffalo, N.Y.; Chester County, Pa.; Chicago, Ill.; Cleveland, Ohio; Kent County, Del.; Louisville, Ky.; New Castle County, Del.; New York City; Richmond, Va.; Sussex County, Del.; Washington, D.C.; and Wilmington, Del.
