R. O. T. C. Unit Inspected Here By Col. Loomis

Corps Area Commander Will Furnish Rating; Graduation on May 22.

The annual inspection of the University of Delaware R.O.T.C. unit was held yesterday morning. The inspection was made by Lieut. Colonel Harold F. Loomis and Lieut. Colonel Catesley Jones both of the Coast Artillery Corps.

Colonel Loomis, who was detailed by the Commanding General of the Second Corps Area to make the unit and training inspection, started at 8 a. m. and reviewed all the classes in Military Science and Tactics held during the morning. Colonel Jones, who was designated to make the administrative inspection of the unit, inspected the office administration, records, property and personnel of the R.O.T.C. detachment.

The battalion was inspected at infantry formation at 11.40 a. m. on the campus in front of Wolf Hall. Although no official statement has yet been obtained, it is believed that Colonel Loomis was favorably impressed by the cadet battalion, under the direction of Cadet Major John A. Hodgson, and was pleased with the R.O.T.C. unit in general. The official rating will be furnished by the Corps Area Commander at a later date. The Delaware R.O.T.C. unit has received a rating of excellent every year since 1927.

The annual graduating exercises of the military department will be held Saturday afternoon, May 22, when commissions as second lieutenants in the reserve army will be presented to those seniors who have concluded their R.O.T.C. course. Awards will also be made to the Freshman and Sophomore members of the battalion who have done the best work in the basic R.O.T.C. course during the past year. This affair will be held on the campus and the public is invited to attend.

Lipstein Elected Rat Book Editor

Sigmund Lipstein, president of the Sigma Tau Phi fraternity and recently chosen parliamentarian of the Student Council, was elected Editor-in-Chief of the 1937 Freshman Handbook this week. The electoral committee making the selection of the new editor included: George Spiller, retiring editor, Clark Lattin, president of the Student Council, and Dr. Cyrus L. Day, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Publications.

Mr. Lipstein has taken an active interest in publication work since entering Delaware College. He has been a member of THE REVIEW staff for the past three years and served with Mr. Spiller as Associate Editor in the compilation of the 1936 Freshman Handbook. At the present, he is Chairman of the Committee on Publications of the Student Council.

When interviewed by a REVIEW reporter concerning the new Freshman Handbook, Mr. Lipstein stated:

"The Freshman Handbook for 1937 will attempt to incorporate in it any suggestions or criticism which the entire student body should feel free to tender. All such suggestions will be carefully considered."

BLUE HEN EDITOR

Robert C. Barab

1937-38 Blue Hen Sent To Bindery; Will Be On Time

Editor Robt. Barab Promises Publication Will Be Distributed May 21st.

For the first time in many years, the Blue Hen will be distributed this year on time, according to Editor-in-Chief Robert C. Barab, who has been working hard with his staff for some months in order to make the 1937-38 publication an outstanding success.

The printed sheets of the book were sent to the bindery in Philadelphia last Wednesday and are promised back within seven days. Therefore, unless unforeseen circumstances arise, the book should be ready for distribution on Friday, May 21st, as promised in THE REVIEW last fall. They will not be distributed, however, until the bindings are thoroughly dried.

The book will be nine by twelve, which is a larger size than has ever been used previously. All regular students are entitled to receive a copy of the book without charge. There will also be a few additional copies available at the price of $3.50.

The Blue Hen will contain pictures of all Juniors and Seniors, members of the five Greek letter fraternities on the campus, the Faculty departments, group pictures of activities, various informal camera shots, and numerous other features. Articles will be included on every phase of extracurricular activities with a special section devoted to sports. Various members of the Faculty have contributed as well as student activity leaders.

Grier Elected New Head of Sigma Nu Alumni Club

Ralph I. Grier was elected president of the Wilmington Sigma Nu Alumni Club last night at a meeting held in the University Club of Wilmington. Gilbert F. Moore was elected vice president and John I. Mendenhall was elected secretary and treasurer for the coming year.

The main speech of the evening was made by William S. Corkran, head of the C. C. C. unit at Lewes, Delaware. He spoke to the club on the control of mosquitoes in the lower part of the state.

Council Selects Bennett's Band For Farewell Dance

Healy Recommends That Increased Spartan Group Have Charge of Rat Rules

Committee reports formed the largest portion of a brief Student Council meeting last Monday evening. After President Clark Lattin had called the meeting to order and appointed George Baker as Council Representative to the Faculty Committee on schedules, the committee reports were given. The Social Committee reported its intention of engaging Jack Bennett's band for the Farewell Hop on the 7th of June at a fee between $1.00 and $1.50.

Treasurer Kirby Preston reported a balance of $286.62 in the Council Treasury which should cause the Council accounts to just about break even.

John Healy, reporting for the Rat Rules Committee recommended that rat rules be installed as in past years i.e. smoking and walking on the grass be prohibited. (Continued on Page 6)

Thespians Present Three Plays Mon.

Curtains of Mitchell Hall will rise Monday night at 8.15 on three one-act plays by the E 52 Players and the Washington College Players. Admission for the program is 25 cents at the door.

One of the three plays will be the prize-winning "Small at Large" by John Swenhardt. This G-Man story, which contains a glorified public enemy, will be directed by Carroll Cox.

Herb Warburton will have the role of the public enemy butler, who is employed in the home of Mr. Parkus, the country's head G-Man, portrayed by Thomas Cooch. The maid in the Parkus household is Margy, portrayed by Phoebe Myers. Her main trouble is taking care of Little Albert, Harry Stutman, who wants a finger print set from Mr. Blatterly, a cereal company's publicity manager, portrayed by Jacob Kreshtool.

The other E 52 play will be Arthur Wing Pinero's "Playgoers" which was presented at Washington College three weeks ago. (Continued on Page 3)

R. Cooke Elected A.S.C.E. President

Robert M. Cooke was elected president of the University of Delaware student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers last Monday night at a meeting of the club in Evans Hall. Cooke, a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, was secretary of the club during the past year. Kenneth Cramer was elected vice-president for the coming year. The race for secretary and treasurer was very close and after the ballots had been counted, it was found that John Healy had won the election.

The young civil engineers had as their guest speaker, Mr. MacWilliams of the State Highway Dept. present a very interesting paper on "Fill Settlement." Mr. MacWilliams discussed in particular, a fill placed by the Highway Dept. across a marsh near St. Jones' Creek outside Dover. This fill was over three thousand feet (Continued on Page 5)

HEADS ASSOCIATION

Dr. George H. Ryden

Ryden Is Elected Pres. Of History Teachers' Group

Will Head The Middle Atlantic States History Association Next Year.

Dr. George H. Ryden, head of the Department of History and Political Science at the University of Delaware, was elected president of the Middle Atlantic States Association of History and Social Science Teachers Saturday at the annual spring meeting in Philadelphia.

Dr. Ryden, who served as Vice-President of the Association last year, attended as a delegate from the Delaware History and Social Science Club. Leading historians, journalists, and students of political problems from various sections of the East presented papers at the meeting. The association is made up of teachers in colleges and secondary schools of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

At the present time, Dr. Ryden is on a temporary leave of absence from the University, and is devoting his time in the preparation of a book dealing with problems concerning the History of the State of Delaware.

Tau Beta Pi Holds Dinner

Next Thursday night, at 6 o'clock, Delaware's chapter of Tau Beta Pi, the honorary engineering society, will hold a dinner meeting in the small dining-room of Old College.

This meeting will be the society's last one of the current school year, and will be conducted by the new president, Marvin Rambo. Papers will be presented by two juniors and several faculty members are expected to be present.

Neither Absolute Mercantilism or Free Trade Possible Today, Speaker Tells His Audience.

"International trade is an absolute necessity if society is to enjoy a decent standard of living," declared Dr. Joseph S. Gould, head of the department of Economics, in a lecture sponsored by the University Hour Committee at Mitchell Hall last evening.

Despite the fact that only ten per cent of our exchange of products is with foreign countries, Dr. Gould declared that distribution and not the percentage of our foreign trade is the factor to consider. He stated that without international trade, production would be decreased, commodity prices would rise, and as a result, the American standard of living would be lowered.

"Many of our basic American industries are dependent upon foreign trade for their very existence," declared the speaker. While he admitted that some substitutes for basic products have recently been developed, Dr. Gould believed that such production would not be advantageous in the long run. "If trade is carried on an export for import basis, it will pay for itself, and both countries involved will materially benefit."

Dr. Gould declared that neither of the two conflicting economic theories, mercantilism or free trade, can be put into absolute practice. The world is not ready for free trade, the speaker continued, while a form of mercantilism exists today, the carrying of this doctrine to an absolute point would be hazardous. If free trade existed, the major economic countries would crush the smaller economic powers.

In conclusion, Dr. Gould stated that the present trend towards urbanization will result in further increases in manufacturing, which (Continued on Page 3)

Hitchens To Play At Non-Frat Dance

Tomorrow evening, members of the non-fraternity group will swing and sway to the scintillating rhythm of Roy Hitchens and his band. This will be the third and last in a series of house parties this year that have proved to be extremely popular, and the non-frats intend to end their very successful social season with a bang. Plans are now under way to provide the lounge of Old College with decorations of blue and gold. The patrons and patronesses are: Dr. and Mrs. Kermit W. Oberlin, Dr. and Mrs. Cyrus L. Day, and Miss Emma C. Ehlers.

Julius Reiver has announced that a new idea is being tried with regard to those who make up the receiving line. In the future, instead of merely officers being in the receiving line, other students will have a chance to receive along with members of the faculty.

Bush To Be Rotary Delegate

Mr. Charles W. Bush, editor of the University News, has been selected a delegate to the Rotary International Convention to be held at Nice, France, starting June 15.

Benefits From Co-ed Publications

In the last two meetings of the Student Council a coeducational Blue Hen and REVIEW have been discussed. Further discussion or action awaits the approval or disapproval of the Women's College.

The benefits of a coeducational Blue Hen and REVIEW are in many instances parallel. The fact that both colleges were subscribing to the REVIEW, instead of Delaware College alone, would make possible a better paper financially and a more interesting paper socially. The same applies to the Blue Hen. Instead of each college publishing its own year book every other year, there would be a combined year book for both colleges every year. The cost of the book would be distributed among more people, and the advertisements of the coeducational year book would be more numerous than they are in either one of the two books now.

In addition to the financial benefits, there are many others. The publications would be more comprehensive and, therefore, more interesting. The students of each college are interested in what the students in the other college are doing. The sport events of Delaware College are well attended by the students of the Women's College. The University Hours are attended by both colleges. Both colleges attend and present the plays in Mitchell Hall. There are many such activities in which the entire university has an interest. Coeducational publications would be devoted to the entire university and not merely to one half of it. The interest in the Blue Hen and REVIEW would be increased by this broadened outlook.

In fact, we are so well taken by the idea that we can think of no disadvantages of any consequence; we can see only the advantages of such a step. We are looking forward to the discussion of this proposal by the Women's College as well as by Delaware College. What do you think of the idea? Letters to the Editor on this subject will be appreciated.

Thespians Point The Way

Next Monday evening in Mitchell Hall a student cast will present a student-directed one-act play written by a student playwright. That, in our estimation, represents college dramatics as it should be.

There are some who may try to judge Delaware dramatic presentations by the size of audiences or by what the critics say in praise or criticism. We believe that neither gauge can prove as reliable as the genuine and continuing interest shown by those who take an active part in the presentations. When we speak of interest in dramatics, we are not only referring to the many who show persistent interest by trying out time after time to gain a role, but also those who devote a great portion of their time assisting with the makeup and scenery. The learning of lines, repeated rehearsals, and the building of sets require an enormous amount of time. Yet, student interest in dramatics continues at a high pitch. Some of the more experienced thespians have been afforded the opportunity of directing various plays, and they have done so successfully. The offer of a $50 prize a few months ago for the best one-act play brought forth the unexpected and pleasing response of eight plays written by undergraduates at the University of Delaware.

Dramatics continues to lead the way at Delaware insofar as extra-curricular activities are concerned. With new acting material continually being discovered, experts on makeup and scenery being developed and even student playwrights coming to the fore, the valiant Mitchell Hall group sets a good example to various other extra-curricular activities here at Delaware that still lie dormant and unaroused from their lethargy.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

A ten-foot hind limb of the giant dinosaur Diplodocus, an animal that lived about 150 million years ago, can be seen in the display at the University of Michigan's museum.

When lessons, meetings, plays and outside activities pile up on the calendars of the girls at Stephens College, the president calls a "Stop day," 24 hours during which students can do what they please.

Thousands of poems are written each year by Dr. Arthur B. Crosier, professor of accountancy and secretarial work at the University of Mississippi. Since last September, he has composed 1,500 pieces of rhyme—but not without reason, we hope!

The chain letter disease has broken out again in the form of a necktie exchange at Oberlin College. Campus rumor has it that the girls are thinking of starting a silk stocking chain. With a run of luck, some hose-hoper-for will get 27 pairs.

Corsage-buyers at the University of California lack originality, says Berkeley florists. The Don Juans get the "usual thing"—three gardenias or an orchid.

Letters To The Editor

Field Trips and Practical Knowledge

To Editor of REVIEW
I should like to enter this letter in the contest of constructive letters on the needs, policies, and developments of the University of Delaware.

It is my contention and belief that in every course there should be required field trips to points of interest that are close enough so as not to entail any great expense on the part of the members of the class. Having recently returned from a trip of this kind—namely, the Washington trip of the Government class—I am more firmly convinced that such trips are vitally essential to the comprehension of the subject, and that they would add greatly to the value of the course.

I believe that the practical experience that the members of Government class obtained on their trip solved many difficult problems which they would have not been able to solve by use of the text. I understand that there are departments which schedule such trips regularly, and these trips have proven that the value received is inestimable. Therefore, if provisions were made in all courses for such trips, the subjects taught would not only be more interesting, but even more educational.

The rules of the contest do not permit me to present my proof of the value of visual and practical education. Every course has its possibilities and opportunities.

Yours truly, Arnel Long

Regarding Mr. Lewis' Library

Dear Editor:
A necessary evil of all libraries is the charging of fines to enforce the various regulations. Even so at Mr. Lewis's. They're unpleasant and expensive things to have, but without them Mr. Lewis would have a hard time keeping his books, and therefore, the rational student doesn't object.

But there's a limit! Mr. Lewis's fines are positively exorbitant—five cents a day for overdue books; twenty five cents an hour for overnight books not returned on time, and one dollar for taking out a book without having it properly charged. That's bad enough, but—and here's my gripe—if a fellow doesn't happen to have the money at the time the fine is assessed, he must pay an additional five cents a day until he pays up. Mr. Editor, that's rank unfairness and injustice. It's not as if Mr. Lewis couldn't get his money otherwise. There're always our contingency fees.

Mr. Editor, do something.
Sincerely, R. C. B.

BRICK-BATS AND BOUQUETS

It seems the custom at the end of any theatrical season to cast a glance back over its productions as a sort of belated review (and probably because the columnist has to meet the deadline with something or other), to criticize, applaud, and what not.

So this will be mostly whatnot. But if you remember, way back in 1936, the Puppets produced a play, "Fly Away Home," according to Sam French, was a domestic comedy. It was a success, within limits; no regrets were expressed because it was produced. In other words, neat but not gaudy. This organization usually picks something of this type. Sure-fire.

Come Christmas, and the E 52er's tried Galsworthy's "The Roof." Now there's a stumper; was it or was it not a success? Personally I think it was. It gave the audience its money's worth; it showed a lot of new talent; and it paved the way for several stage-managing innovations. It was of a decidedly heavier type than "Fly Away Home," and helped to round out the semester. After all, comedy in large doses does get monotonous. Special mention to Jeanne Davis and Tom Warren.

To usher in the second semester, the Footlighters attempted "Petrified Forest;" it got to the floor-plan stage, and then died on its feet. But it still had (and has) possibilities. (Word of warning: Last year's "Squaring the Circle" also rated a flop position; too many and people'll get ideas about the Club's abilities). Score: 0-0.

The Women's College Competitives and Interfraternities played a two-nite stand, with Seniors and Nonfrat. taking prize money. Nice going to both. The fraternities should have had a better turn-out. Try again next year.

Next, our pride and joy: "School for Husbands," a brain-child with something on the ball. Decidedly a success, with (again?) censure for encores; it slowed the action too much. Plays like this one, however, do much to help dramatics. 4-star.

Coming up: invitation competition with Washington College it's a return match for April 16. Should be pretty good. Highspot: Swenhardt's prize-winner "Small at Large." Give a twirl. Nominal admission.

GALLERY GUFFAWS

"Small at Large" cast competing with both its director and author; complications are numerous. . . . To Wilson: your idea looks good on paper, but it won't work; too many taxes on the students now. . . . Ask lite-man Stewart how it feels to sit in a doorway and have the surrounding wall draped about your neck. . . . Also ask Tiffany how far out over the orchestra pit he ran, the day the "School for Husbands" back-wall started to fall into his lap.

President Hullihen Attends Holyoke College Centenary

Dr. Walter A. Hullihen, president of the University of Delaware, attended the two-day program held last Friday and Saturday to celebrate the centenary of Mount Holyoke College, situated at South Hadley, Mass.

President Mary E. Wooley, who is retiring at the end of this academic year as president of Mt. Holyoke College, was honored at the celebration. Among the guests were Dr. Francis B. Sayre, assistant secretary of state; Dr. Jerome D. Greene, secretary of the Corporation of Harvard University; Mrs. Margery Corbett Ashby of London, president of the International Alliance of Women, and Dean Virginia Gildersleeve of Barnard College, president of the International Federation of University Women.

The Inquiring Reporter

By Bill Bailey

What do you consider your most important acquisition during the four years you have spent at the University of Delaware?

B. F. Clymer, Jr. Economics
I have made two acquisitions of equal importance: (1) The realization that I have learned less and less about more and more, and (2) the certainty that human beings are the most difficult but interesting assignments to master.

R. Perry Vandegrift Economics
I have been exceptionally lucky in getting my college education. Instead of being here only four years, I have had five in which to annoy my "profs." I guess maybe I will be a success any way because some of these "profs" have enjoyed five years at college too.

During these long years I have learned (?) much from my textbooks. My experiences outside of class have also been enlightening. But seriously, I feel that I am fitted to take my place in the business world and be a good citizen of our country. I feel that the friendships I have cultivated here in these years will continue as such throughout my life. They are more precious to me than gold. Someday I hope to be able to do something constructive for my Alma Mater (not buildings alone).

J. Robert Greenwood Chem. Eng.
College gave me an opportunity to get away from home and learn to meet situations by myself. The enjoyment of four years of college life, socially and athletically, has been fine. However, I'm glad it's just about over.

J. Robert Jamison
During my four years in college the most interesting things acquired were the learning of how to take the good with the bad, the importance of making friends, and that in order to obtain a social position in later life one must call upon the cultural background found throughout the many courses in his curriculum.

Alfred E. Young Agriculture
I think two phases of college life important. (1) Technical knowledge acquired from courses to which one has been exposed. (2) The friends one makes, and the activities taken part in supply a very important part of ones college education. I must say that my four years at Delaware have been happy ones. I am looking forward to further associations with my college friends.

J. William Black Mech. Eng.
My acquisitions are two: (1) The knowledge that one is not really educated until one finds how little he knows about anything. (2) Four years of good clean fun and work with the best bunch of fellows in the best college in the world.

Teedy Wilson
The most I have gotten out of my five years at college is a complete mastery of French and English.

James (Monk) Dillon Phys Ed
My greatest acquisitions during my four years of college are the enduring friendships which I have made, and the experiences I have had outside of classes.

R. Wetherall Civil Engineer
This is a question which is difficult to answer. I have acquired many things which are of equal importance. However, I believe that the associations which I have made are my most important acquisitions.

World Trade Necessary For National Prosperity

will necessitate greater world trade. "The United States should look to South America for its supply of raw materials and a market for its surplus produce," the speaker continued. He advocated the creation of agencies for the determination of the basic needs of nations and how these needs can be best supplied from exports, and a greater development of reciprocal trade agreements.

The University Hour Committee was favorably impressed by the interest shown in the lecture last evening, and plans to schedule several such lectures at Mitchell Hall by members of the faculty next year.

George Washington Surrenders; Delaware Tennismen Win Two

Hen Nine Defeats Colonials 7-5 As "Break" Decides Close Game

Phil Reed Hurls Second Straight Win As Boney Jackson Leads Batting Attack In Win Over Geo. Washington

"Doc" Doherty's nine continued to play heads-up baseball to down George Washington University last Wednesday by a score of 7 to 5. The Colonials had previously defeated the Blue Hens 7 to 4.

George Washington scored four runs in the second inning to assume an early lead which they held until the sixth when the locals knotted the count.

An unusual break of the game gave the locals the deciding runs in the eighth inning. With "Boney" Jackson on third as the result of a long triple, and two men out, "Mac" McCord missed the third strike, but was safe at first when the Colonial's backstop dropped the pitch and threw the ball over the first baseman's head. Jackson scored on the play, and McCord reached third before the visitors could recover their equilibrium.

Low Carey then lashed out a single to bring in McCord with what proved to be the winning counter. Ferris Wharton followed with another one base blow to score Carey, and Phil Reed ended the inning by flying out.

The visitors staged a short rally in the ninth, but were unable to score more than one run.

Jackson lead the Hen batting attack with a brace of lousy triples, while Carey and Daly also had a pair of safeties each.

Kirby Preston and Phil Reed divided the hurling chores for the winners, limiting the visitors to seven hits. Reed was credited with the win.

The diamondmen will invade Chestertown tomorrow and attempt to administer the same dose to the strong Washington College team,

Washington Meet

Led by the indomitable Gibby Young, the track and field forces of Washington College defeated the Delaware trackmen in a dual meet last Wednesday by a score of 76½ to 49½.

Young personally accounted for 18 points, sprinting to victory in both dashes and the low hurdles, and annexing second place in the pole vault. Aided by a strong following wind, the Washington flash raced the century in :09.8, although he eased up at the finish. Tully and McMahon also starred for the winners. Tully was credited with three firsts, the high jump, broad jump, and high hurdles, while McMahon had easy wins in the mile and two-mile runs.

Summaries:

WITH THE BLUE AND GOLD

By Fenton Carey

We deplore the lack of interest shown in varsity athletics by the student body as a whole, but we resent the criticisms of Delaware athletes by those who are not even participants. These "drug store" athletes are only too ready to inform anyone who might waste their time to listen, just why a certain Blue Hen team went down to defeat, and who caused the game to be lost. We recently asked such an orator why he didn't go out and show how it should be done. Our question was evaded with the popular alibi that athletics would interfere with his studies.

However, upon investigation, we failed to observe any brilliancy on the part of this self-styled student, who is carrying the extremely heavy burden of 15 credit hours. His extra-curricular activities are practically nil, i. e., excluding his social life. It might interest many to know that Delaware athletes are above average scholastically, and that they are prominent in every activity on the campus.

One of the basic reasons why Delaware is not more successful in the field of athletics lies in the fact that we have too many "parlor athletes." We all know that there are a number of students who could help our various teams considerably, but we still need a logical explanation of why they don't.

In our opinion, the only criticisms of athletes that are justified are of those who, by virtue of their inherent natural ability, experience no difficulty in making varsity athletic teams, and then proceed to rest on their laurels. We admire the fellow who must work hard for whatever degree of athletic proficiency he may attain. There is no place for a loafer in athletics.

We recently came across an opportune item which appeared in the Vermont Cynic, a student publication, which ran as follows: "By the way, where are the 120 trackmen who were out before vacation? . . . You can't build up a winning track squad from 40 candidates." Coach Ed Bardo's original Hen squad of about 35 track aspirants has dwindled to approximately twelve. Perhaps they too have "gone with the wind."

"Doc" Doherty's hustling ball club received an unusual "break" last Wednesday in the tilt with the George Washington nine. With two gone in the last half of the eighth inning, McCord struck out, presumably ending the inning. Noticing that the visitor's catcher had dropped the third strike, "Mac" with a flash of inspiration, lit out for first and was safe when the ball was thrown wildly to the initial sack. Jackson scored on the play, and the Hens went on to tally two more runs before the side was retired.

We neglected to mention last week that the Athletic Council wishes to thank all of those students, faculty members, and friends of the college who helped to conduct the recent Delaware Inter-scholastic Track Meet.

Coach Ralph Jones's racquet wielders turned in a pair of victories during the past week, defeating West Chester Teachers College 6-3 on Tuesday, and downing Washington College by the same score yesterday.

Against the Teachers, Captain Lew Carey, Frank Nichols, and Steve Bartoshesky smashed their way to victory on the local courts to gain an even break in the singles matches.

In the doubles competition, Carey and Wells combined to administer a 6-2, 6-0 lacing to Bentz and Reynolds of the visitors, while Donoho and Nichols followed suit with a smashing win over Anderson and Levitsky. Bartoshesky and Knopf, freshman combination, made it a clean sweep in the doubles by defeating McFarland and Leachy of the Pedagogues.

In the match with the Sho'men at Chestertown, Lew Carey, Frank Nichols, and Bill Wells overwhelmed their opponents in the singles engagements.

Miss Jean Harshaw, attractive Washington College star, defeated Roy Donoho in an interesting three-set match.

Carey and Wells again teamed to win the first doubles, and Donoho and Nichols did likewise in the second match. Steve Bartoshesky and Morris Knopf won their fourth straight in doubles competition with a 6-3, 6-4 win over Tony and Johnson of the Washington team.

Good Cops Three Individual Matches to Pace Teammates

Coach Fred Houghton's golf team won two matches during the past week, and dropped a third by a close margin.

On Saturday, the linksmen blanked Rutgers University in a four-man engagement by a score of 6-0. "Teddie" Wilson turned in a low medal card of 76 to lead the linksmen over the Newark Country Club course, while Bob Good followed closely with a 78. Capt. Bob Jamison and George Stradley also sent their Scarlet opponents down to defeat in the individual matches.

The golfers travelled to Baltimore on Monday where they lost a close match to Johns Hopkins, 3½ to 2½.

SO—my buckaroos, tempus is fugiting rapidly, the Library is playing to capacity crowds, books are being beat, cramming has reached a new high and the gentle art of procrastination has given place to the usual and colorful last minute rally before exams. Here's hoping that you put the pressure on in time so that the said quizzes don't sneak up and kick you in the teeth.

MAY DAY PAGEANT—Nice shootin' gals. You did well. Too bad they turned the water on, though. JANE TRENT takes our vote for her clever impersonation of old lady something or other.

THE LITTLE WORM—bored and bored and bored in dead earnest. Poor Earnest!

DRAMATIC CRITICS — especially amateur critics at Delaware College, should wise up!!! In their attempts to reveal their copious knowledge of play producing and with the natural harshness of their formative youth, they tear the Mitchell Hall boys to pieces. Play actin' in college is tough. It entails studying lines in spare time, late rehearsals practically every night and falling behind in studies. This is no excuse for poor results, we will admit. However we should suggest that you think of this the next time you wield your vitriolic pens. Be nice for a change. We all know that you are clever—but try to be just the slightest bit encouraging!!!!

REMEDY FOR FALLING HAIR—get out of the way!!!!

GUN SALUTE—for tiny JOE ARANOFF, the little boy with the big heart. We pulled him out of bed Sunday to take Perkins to the doctor's. The doc says appendicitis and Perk must be rushed home. Tubby immediately volunteers to play ambulance, albeit he was still groggy and it would mean breaking a very promising date. You are a bit of the old O.K., JOE!!!!

OVERHEARD ON THE COURTS—"Are you ready?" "Naw, I'm ready's brother."

EDDIE WILSON — our young bomb twirling gag swiper, is on his way back. He used to write a column (remember?) until one day he said nasty things and netted first place on the editor's YOU-KNOWWHAT LIST. Now he has promised to behave and we are expecting great things again. Go to it, lad and show them that you can say clever things once in a while, even if it is accidental!!!!

SURE SIGN OF SPRING—WILL NOONAN is wearing his other shirt.

CHARLIE BROWN—is Chairman of the Constitution Committee in the Student Council. This group is going to bring about one of the most sweeping reforms that has ever been attempted upon the campus, namely, the drawing up of an entirely new, airtight, and impartial set of rules concerning our student government. And contrary to most committees, his cohorts are actually accomplishing something. Well done, Brown, but after all, isn't anything that is brown, well done?

DE PROFUNDIS—FROM radio stations that sign off at 1 p. m. —mattresses that sag in the middle—silly newspaper editorials—keys that stick in locks—PEOPLE who read too many books—who have complexes—who try to be entertaining—who are good listeners—GIRLS who wear trailing gowns—who use too much warpaint—who can't dance—who don't know what to order—zippers that won't zip—hard-boiled eggs without salt—50¢ haircuts—and from eight o'clock classes—GOOD LORD DELIVER US!!!!

CLASSES—have been temporarily suspended in the currently popular course, D.P. 254. It seems that the instructors had a conflict in their schedule with P.D. 264.

IT'S TOO BAD—that when this bull strip comes out, Federal Inspection will be over. Because we were going to tell Mr. Inspector, sir, to keep his eye on SAMMIE

Review's Reviews

By Harry T. Stutman

John (Dribbly) Swenehart has done himself proud with Small at Large, his Smith-prize play. Every afternoon, a happy lot of actors and one actress make merry in Mitchell Hall with the rehearsals. These little affairs are indeed enjoyable. We would tell you about the fun we have, except that we feel rather guilty about revealing the plot. The players guarantee a pleasant surprise to everyone who attends their performance Monday night, especially to the author. Even he will be astounded at the action which will transpire on the stage of Mitchell Hall.

A new era has come in the musical life of Delaware College. Signor Tomasco Leachface performs with extreme artistry on the harmonica, every morning and evening in the salon of the Amalfitano Bros. (Impresarios) bus. Occasionally your reviewer (when we can find a book) chips in, and it becomes a joint recital. You'd be surprised at some of the joints we've recited in. There is also a popular young English Instructor and Debate team sponsor, who shall remain anonymous at this time because of his extreme dislike for notoriety, who claims that he has a Borah Minnevitche Super-Chromatic Special, $4.40, on which he is won't to serenade anyone who will listen. His taste runs to Methodist hymns, as far as we can discover, but we suspect a certain twinkle which lurked in his eye as we left. It looked very much like the Organ Grinder's Swing. We hasten to add that we approve.

long, and required some three hundred thousand cubic feet of material. The marsh varied from twenty to sixty feet in depth, and the task of "settling" the fill to a hard bottom was no easy one. In many places, natural settlement sufficed, but the bulk of it had to be settled by explosives. This process was carried out over a period of about two years, and the remarkable absence of settling in the road since its completion is ample testimony of the thoroughness and accuracy of the work.

Mr. Jefferies, of the Atlas Powder Co., who added in the explosives work attached to the project, attended the meeting and complimented the Department very highly on the success of the job. Mr. Mack, Chief Engineer of the Highway Dept., along with other members of the Dept., was also present.

Sons Of Delaware Hold Banquet Here

Christopher L. Ward, of Wilmington, discussed the coming Swedish tercentenary celebration, at a banquet given in Old College last Saturday evening by the Sons of Delaware, a Philadelphia organization. He detailed the incidents connected with the original Swedish settlement along the Delaware river valley, starting at what is now Wilmington, and reviewed the history which followed. He stated that Swedish organizations all over the United States are intensely interested in the coming event. These organizations, he said, comprises some 2,000,000 people.

Among the other distinguished guests present at the banquet were: Governor Richard C. McMullen, who extended a cordial greeting to the Sons of Delaware on behalf of the state; and former Congressman William H. Heald, president of the Board of Trustees of the University, who extended greetings from the college.

John V. Postles, president of the Sons of Delaware, was toastmaster. Speaking of the scholarship fund, which the Sons of Delaware maintains, he invited contributions, and suggested that in drawing wills, it be remembered.

Included in the entertainment program of the evening, were vocal solos by Miss Margaret Kelso and Miss Amelia Kozinski, accompanied by Miss Pauline Pionti, all of the Women's College.

Barkley Is Next L. of E. S. Speaker

Next week on Tuesday afternoon Dr. Barkley of the History Department will address the Group on "The Relationship Between History and God's Will."

Robert Brown, a student at the Westminster Theological Seminary in Philadelphia, addressed the League of Evangelical Students in Room 26 Recitation Hall last Wednesday afternoon on the subject of "The Four Kinds of Hearers of the Gospel."

After having brought the League news of other chapters in the surrounding section Mr. Brown approached the subject upon which he had come to speak. In speaking of the work in other colleges Mr. Brown told of the groups which have formed in practically every important college in the United States. The purpose of the organization is to combat Modernism on the American Campus by training those who believe certain fundamental doctrines to answer the type of question which other students raise in regard to religion. The League is Interdenominational.

In speaking of "The Four Kinds of Listeners" Mr. Brown described the person who hears the Gospel and "bears fruit," the one who hears it and keeps it within himself, the one who "bears a little fruit," and the one who "bears much fruit."

that the period be so shortened as to end just before Thanksgiving vacation and that the rules should be enforced by the Spartans, which organization should be increased by five men. Mr. Healy also recommended that the Committee on Scholarship and Discipline of the Council should be revived. He gave a report from Dickinson College as to contests which are held between the two lower classes. By winning one of these contests, the Freshmen are permitted to remove a portion of their "regalia." President Lattin asked the Council to bear in mind the enforcement of the rules, the length of the season, and the addition of five men to the Spartans.

Charles Brown, chairman of the Constitution Committee, reported that he did not think that the committee could have the Constitution completed by the end of this term but stated that a complete outline would be finished by that date.

Sigmund Lipstein, of the Publications Committee, stated that he had informed Harry Stutman of the cancelling of the Spring edition of the Humanist. Mr. Lipstein also appointed George Baker to serve on the Publications Committee.

Hial Pepper reported that Class Honor Society Points had been assigned and requested that another man be placed on his committee.

Tannen announced the receipt of a constitution from Johns Hopkins University.

Lattin reported that Council stationery had been ordered and that no offices will be printed on the stationery until the new constitution is drawn up.

Lattin commented that student sentiment seems to be in favor of the coed REVIEW and Blue Hen plan.

Under the heading of new business the matter of engraver's "cuts" for the Blue Hen was raised. Previous to this time these metal reproductions have been discarded as soon as the Yearbook has been printed. The Council decided to sell the cuts to the Seniors at 50 cents each, and to donate the Junior cuts to THE REVIEW, for use in publication.

After a short discussion of the conference which took place between members of the Council and the Physical Education department regarding the Interfraternity relay the meeting was adjourned.
