Who is Shirley Temple?

Editor's note: The columnist is away in Colorado this week. A previously published column is reprinted here.

By JIM STREIT

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A friend who runs his own business told an interesting story to fellow Baby Boomers at the Christina Educational Enrichment Fund benefit.

He explained how he had asked a young clerk to type some file folder labels. My friend handed a roll of labels to the 20-year-old woman and told her there was an IBM Selectric typewriter in the store room. He turned back to his work but half-an-hour later wondered if the labels were prepared.

The woman was not at her desk so he searched in the store room. He discovered her destroying blank labels by the dozens in a futile attempt to complete her assigned task.

My friend said the frustrated woman apologized profusely, noting she had seldom seen, let alone ever operated a typewriter. She reported it took her 15 minutes just to figure out how to power up the Cadillac of typewriters.

Times have changed. They always have. The only constant in life is change, my dear departed

Delawareans respond to Katrina

By KAYTIE DOWLING

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Along the Gulf Coast, things have gone from bad to worse. Katrina annihilated everything in her path from Louisiana into Mississippi, leaving battered survivors to clean up her destruction. But the following days only brought more terror, as levees failed and New Orleans flooded. Water levels isolated survivors in their homes with no electricity, no running water and dwindling supplies.

"I have heard a lot of reports of people who were not able to evacuate," said Tricia Wachtendorf of the University of Delaware's Disaster Research Center. "There are people stranded in their homes, without power or water."

As reports of the devastation filtered through television sets around the nation, volunteers packed their bags. Delawareans have mobilized to join the effort. More than 190 Delaware National

Homes could come to Wilson farm

By KAYTIE DOWLING

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

If you build it, they will come; That is the fear that many neighbors have on a proposed 84 townhouse development that would be built on the Wilson Farm, just off of Casho Mill Road.

The development, which would be called Casho Crossing, was tabled at the Planning Commission meeting on Sept. 6. The commission voted to delay their decision to recommend to City Council to build the plan or not until after more public hearings could be held.

District's 'largest' grant ever

$1.5 million to fund Christina's reforms

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

CHRISTINA School District announced last week that it will receive $1.5 million over the next three years to support "New Directions," its plan to improve student achievement. "We applaud the District's reform plan and are pleased to play an integral role in helping drive student success," stated Eli Broad, founder of the Broad Foundation. "Under the direction of Dr. Joseph Wise, the Christina School District has made

Minor decoy operation nets 2 arrests, 1 violation

Agents from the state Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Enforcement arrested Sunkkuma Desai, 53, a clerk at White Clay Liquors in Newark, for selling liquor to a minor.

On Aug. 30, agents conducted a minor decoy, where a minor, under the direct supervision of an agent, attempted to purchase alcohol from local establishments.

Darshikaber Patel, 32, a clerk at Silview Liquors in Newport was also arrested for selling liquor to a minor.

In addition, Silview Liquors was issued a violation for failing to have the clerk complete the Division's mandatory alcoholic beverage server training program.

Those that sold alcoholic beverages to the minor decoy face a minimum fine of $250.00 for a first offense. In addition, the liquor license of an establishment that sells alcoholic beverages to a minor faces an administrative penalty, which can range from a fine to a suspension or revocation of the liquor license.

Public intoxication

Newark Police reported on Sept. 4 at 12:51 a.m., that two people were arrested in Newark while walking, under the influence of alcohol, in the middle of Lovett Avenue. According to police, Kristen A. Mogavero, 20 of Prospect Avenue was charged with underage consumption and a non-vehicle traffic violation, and Matthew Steuart Savage, 22, of Millstation Drive was also charged with a non-vehicle traffic violation. Collette F. McGovern, 21, of Haines Street was charged with disorderly conduct after she tried to interfere with the first two arrests.

Officer followed

A Newark Police patrol officer reported that on Sept. 3 at approximately 2 a.m., a 21-year-old Wilmington man in a white Crown Victoria followed the officer's patrol vehicle for approximately 10 miles.

The male driver is known to Newark Police because he was previously arrested for impersonating a police officer and had a 9-mm handgun and bullets inside the same Crown Victoria on that occasion.

The man yelled at the patrol officer's vehicle on Elkton Road on the latest occasion and then followed the officer onto Veterans Drive and the police station park-

Police seek sex offender

The Newark police are seeking a Newark man who is a registered sex offender.

According to police, on Sept. 6, officers obtained warrants for the arrest of Robert J. Anderson, 18, of the 500 block of Oakdale Road in Newark, for failing to change his address with the sex offender registry.

Anyone with information on Anderson's whereabouts are asked to call 366-7110.

ing lot. Later, the officer saw the same man following him in the Crown Victoria as the officer drove from Elkton Road to Casho Mill Road and onto I-95 on his way to Gander Hill Prison. Police are investigating this incident.

Alcohol overdose

Newark Police reported on Sept. 4 at 3:59 a.m. that a female student who lives in the University of Delaware Dickinson Building was found lying on the ground and very intoxicated at Elkton Road, west of Delaware Avenue. She made little sense but told the officers she was drunk. She was taken to Christiana Emergency Room to be treated for an alcohol overdose.

High students on train tracks

Newark Police reported on Sept. 1 at 7:19 p.m. two 14-year-old girls and a 16-year-old boy, all Newark High School students, and a 16-year-old Delcastle High School student were found trespassing on the CSX tracks near Ethan Allen Court.

TV taken

Police report that on Sept. 1 at 2:54 p.m. a residence on the 700 block of Wollaston Ave. was burglarized. A 42-inch plasma TV valued at approximately $3,000 was stolen.

Home burglarized

On Sept. 1 at 2:34 p.m. a residence in the 5400 block of Scholar Drive was robbed of DVD movies, electronic TV game, Xbox and controllers, video games, three pair of Nikes, stereo with CD changer and turf shoes and cleats with a total value at approximately $2,000.

Jewelry taken

On Sept. 1 at 5:48 a.m. an unknown suspect entered a residence in the 3200 block of Scholar Drive and took jewelry valued at $1,000.

Student charged

On Sept. 1 at 11:10 p.m. Matt Milman, 19, of UD's Harrington Dorm was stopped on Academy Street with an open container of alcohol, a full can of beer, marijuana, and drug paraphernalia. He was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of marijuana, possession of an open container of alcohol, underage consumption of alcohol, resisting arrest and assault while resisting arrest.

Book theft arrest

Newark police arrested a University of Delaware student for attempting to exchange stolen books.

According to police, on Thursday, Sept. 1, at approximately 5 p.m., officers arrested Drew Kamil, 22, of Scholar Drive in Newark, while he was attempting to exchange books at the Delaware Book Exchange on E. Main St. in Newark.

Police said Kamil was identified in and around several apartments that were burglarized. Evidence was also recovered from his home and car related to the three burglaries.

According to police, Kamil was charged with three counts of burglary second degree, possession of drug paraphernalia, three counts of theft under $1,000, possession of marijuana and maintaining a vehicle for keeping a controlled substance. He was committed to Howard R. Young Correctional Institution in lieu of $12,000 bail.

Police said on Aug. 31, Kamil was arrested for a similar burglary that took place at the Main Street Court Apartments. He was charged with second-degree burglary, possession with the intent to deliver marijuana, two counts of theft under $1,000 and possession of marijuana within $1,000 feet of a school. He was released on an unsecured bond pending a court appearance.

Missing person

The New Castle County Police are searching for Theresa Iocco, of Forsythia Lane in Newark.

According to police, on Sept. 4, at 7:30 p.m., officers responded to Forsythia Lane for a report of a missing person. The victim, Theresa Iocco, 24, who is mentally challenged, was last seen in the area of Route 896 and Porter Road around 5:30 p.m. Officers have been searching the surrounding areas with no results.

Police said she is described as 5'6" tall 130 pounds, and has blonde hair and brown eyes. She was last seen wearing a light pur-

Planks laid for new UD pedestrian walkway

By JERRY RHODES

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

WORK on a new pedestrian walkway and footbridge linking the Ray Street and Laird complexes continues to progress with the installation of six concrete planks.

Surrounded by stacks of concrete forms and rebar (concrete reinforcing bars), four mammoth cranes hoisted the 12-foot-wide by 60-foot-long concrete sections from flatbed vehicles. The slabs were then placed atop a series of seven supporting concrete archways that stretch 23 feet tall at the highest point of the span.

Besides the concrete planks,

The new pedestrian walkway and footbridge will replace a set of steep stairs on one side of a ravine and small stream and a long, inclined walkway on the other side.

Christina District database system already corrected

Wise 'extremely proud' of staff's response

THE Christina School District is hopeful that an error identified and fixed by Sungard Pentamotion, the company that developed the Delaware Department of Education's student database program, will resolve the problems district schools have experienced during the first week of school.

According to District spokesperson, Wendy Lapham, the error was pinpointed on Wednesday, Aug. 31, but problems with the database surfaced almost immediately after the school year started on Aug. 29. District administrators instructed all K-6 schools to stay off the system through Sept. 1, and to revert to keeping paper records of attendance, registrations, and classroom assignments.

Hundreds of high school students did not have schedules because they could not be printed from the system or staff could not access the system to create the schedules.

According to school superintendent Joseph Wise, because individual districts don't have the capability to make changes to the state's system, Christina had to request assistance from the DOE. In a letter sent to Secretary of Education Valerie Woodruff on Aug. 30, Wise explained his frustration with the latest system breakdown. "There is little hope that the Sungard Pentamotion system can become fully functioning in the current mode of DOE operation [and it would be] irresponsible for me to allow these problems to continue for a second year," Wise said. "I have asked staff to begin exploring alternatives for Christina to replace this system with one that is more reliable and that is used more widely by school districts nationwide."

Delaware Industries for the Blind

By STEF GORDON

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

EVERY weekday Alice Kendall takes the DART transit to work. She's a customer sales representative who deals with quotes, prices and processing orders.

She enjoys listening to music, shopping and frequenting the area's parks.

She is also legally blind.

Kendall is an employee for the Delaware Industries for the Blind, a Human Service Agency that produces a variety of custom products. These include embroidery, screen-printing, awards, trophies and artwork.

In addition, the DIB also operates a 24 hour, seven-day per week Switchboard at the Dover Air Force Base.

Kendall has been working with the DIB for eight years. She began working in the production unit and was recently promoted to customer service.

She previously worked as a Delaware hospice nurse years ago when her vision was better.

A typical day for her usually begins around 8:30 a.m. and ends around 4:30 p.m.

"I normally come in and check my email and phone messages. Then I usually have quotes to do. I use a visual tech which looks like a TV to show quotes that come through the computer program. In order to see vendor's names and numbers I put the paper with that information under Zoom Tech [a computer program which blows up images to larger sizes.] I enter a lot of letters into our computer to find the product the customer is looking for.

"I punch in numbers in the computer, get the information I need, call vendors, get prices and then normally put it in the form of an email to my customer, letting them know how much the product will be. If the customer is happy with the price, then I'll process the order. Some days it can be very busy, which I'm happy about."

Employees are trained for many of the positions available, including those involving marketing and computers. With 70 percent of blind or visually impaired people in Delaware unemployed, job opportunities available to them are scarce.

"I didn't even know the DIB existed. I had an appointment one afternoon with my counselor at the DVI. At the time my self esteem was all but gone. I really thought I couldn't get a job. Then she told me about the DIB and I said 'is this really a place around here?' and she said 'Alice, its right around the corner.' I was introduced to Alan Wingroves. I went home smiling for the first time in many years. That was Thursday, March 8 and I'll never forget it. He called me Monday and I came to work that same week. I've been happy ever since."

The agency has obtained contracts from NASA, The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Air Force among others.

The Division for the Visually Impaired is the State's oldest agency, dating back to 1909. That year the Delaware Commission for the Blind was established and two divisions were instituted: one for the northern part of

Former UD student recognized after recovery from injuries

By MARTIN MBUGUA

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

ON the evening of July 11, 2002, Shiho Nabeshima, then a student in the University of Delaware's English Language Institute (ELI), was struck and critically injured by a car as she crossed Elkton Road in a marked crosswalk.

Thanks to prompt life-saving efforts by UD and Newark police and emergency medical personnel, Nabeshima recovered after months of hospitalization and rehabilitation in Delaware and Japan. She was at UD as a sponsored student of Japan's Miyagi prefecture, the sister state of Delaware, to study in the Center for International Studies and at ELI.

Nabeshima recently returned to UD, where she was recognized for her courage and fortitude in recovering from near-fatal injuries and embarking on a career to help others deal with similar situations. On Tuesday, Aug. 23, Nabeshima was given a warm welcome by staff members at ELI, where a six-foot-long banner in her honor was displayed.

During her visit to the ELI, Nabeshima recalled the immediate aftermath of her accident and the support she received from family and friends in Japan and the United States. Because she only had been in Newark a few days when the accident occurred, Nabeshima said she was surprised by the number of people who visited her during the 50 days she was a patient in the Christiania Hospital's Trauma Unit.

Nabeshima rallied, regained consciousness, and on Aug. 30, 2002, she returned to her hometown of Toyama City, on Japan's west coast. Ahead lay four months of painful and difficult physical rehabilitation, during which time Nabeshima said she had to relearn

EDUCATION NEWS FOR NEWARK FROM LOCAL SCHOOLS

NOTE PAD

Open Houses at Sterck and DAP

STERCK School for the Deaf and DAP's Brennen School off Chestnut Hill Road will hold an Open House on Thursday, Sept. 22, in the evening. Also holding Open Houses that night are Douglass Alternative School and Sarah Pyle Academy in Wilmington.

Vaccinations needed for every age

Students from pre-school to college-age need vaccinations when starting or returning to classes. According to Delaware's Division of Public Health (DPH), K-4 students must be protected against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, measles, mumps, rubella, hepatitis B, Hib disease and polio.

Chickenpox vaccination is required for K-2 students in public schools and K-12 in Delaware private schools. Children entering fifth grade must have a tetanus and diphtheria booster.

Colleges requires students to have up-to-date immunizations and freshmen residing in dormitories are urged to get vaccinated against bacterial meningitis.

"The greater the number of [students] that receive immunizations, the lower the rate of those diseases in the community," said Dr. Jaime H. Rivera, director of DPH in Delaware. "Reducing the spread of disease also protects people who cannot be vaccinated, such as individuals with weakened immune systems and very young children."

What's for lunch?

Parents of Christina District students eligible for free and reduced price school meals are reminded that a new meal benefit form must be completed each school year within the first 30 days of school or your child's continued benefits will be lost. Eligible parents need to fill out only one form per household. Guardians must, however, complete one form per student for each foster child living in a household.

New charter school means business

School name honors Pencader Hundred history

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

DAVID Jones arrived at the 44,600-square-foot brick building in a New Castle business park with a big smile on his face. "Isn't it incredible?" he asked. "Did you see the view?"

Jones is the director of the future Pencader Business and Finance Charter High School opening in August 2006.

The building with a breathtaking view of the Delaware Memorial Bridge and the river will feature a cafeteria and 28 classrooms for 200 freshman and 150 sophomores less than a year from now. "In each of the next two years after that, we will admit 225 more students," Jones said. "Out there [a grassy lot adjoining the building location], we're going to put a second building with a gymnasium/auditorium and 12 more classrooms by 2007 — that's where the additional 450 students will go."

Daystar Stills Construction, the company that erected the existing two-story building, is preparing a design for its neighbor. "Pencader will follow a traditional curriculum needing 24 credits for graduation," Jones said. "The school will focus on banking, business and finance courses provided by the National Academy of Finance based in New York."

Pencader's business focus came out of a belief that too many of today's high schoolers need to take remedial writing in college. "Both DelTech and UD offer it," said Jones. "It's a crime."

The school founders also believe kids should have a better grounding in economics in today's world. "We want kids to know the 'why' of banking laws, what Chancery Court does and the fact that 50 percent of all businesses incorporate in Delaware," Jones explained. "That's one of the reasons Delaware weathers economic downturns better."

On the other hand, while not every student will go to college, the school wants every student prepared to go to a job. "We'll have an office accounting course, office etiquette, etc., to also prepare them for the working world," Jones said.

Pencader planners also believe that more one-on-one attention from administrators and teachers as well as a close partnership with parents will give students a learning edge. "A key component to running a charter school is that parents need to be in lockstep with the principal and the child's teachers," Jones said. "In a smaller school, parents get to know the staff on a personal basis, my teachers can come to me at anytime with ideas or concerns and kids learn it's hard to hide as one of only 200 students in a class year."

Jones plans to begin interviewing for faculty in late spring 2006. "I've already been approached by interested teachers over the past two years," he said. "We'll have 19 staff and faculty members in the beginning, going up to 50 when we reach the entire 800-student enrollment, and all the teachers will be fully certified."

A fundraising campaign is underwriting the costs to lease the site, construct an additional building and renovate the former office building. "We don't plan too much change in the existing spaces — fortunately, it's already handicapped accessible with two elevators in addition to a staircase," Jones said. "The common areas on each floor are easily chopped up into classrooms and we'll use the existing offices for staff."

The school will generate some income by renting their auditorium to community and education groups. But, while "any and all" monetary contributions are always welcome, the school has already received offers of operating assistance and business collaborations. "Jim O'Neill at the University of Delaware has been very supportive and gave me advice and suggestions," Jones said. "He also offered to let our students sit in on UD's Federal Reserve Board lectures."

Jones has also "met with a number of area banks" to discuss the school. "They were very

High schools use vacation to give blood

May top record-breaking 2004 donations

STUDENTS and faculty at high schools throughout Delaware and Cecil County, Md., competed throughout the past year for the highest number of blood donors. Every year, high schools in Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore square off against each other — and the competition does not stop when the school year ends.

"The race to see which school will turn out the highest number of blood donors stays strong through the summer months," said Karen James, spokesperson for the Blood Bank of Delmarva. "This competition gives a whole new meaning to the age-old adage: How I Spent My Summer

Winners of the competition, which ended on Aug. 31, will not be announced until the Blood Bank awards luncheon in October. However, according to numbers released by James on Aug. 16, William Penn High School was winning in New Castle County with St. Mark's a close second and Delcastle Technical High School trailing in third.

Lake Forest was leading high schools in Kent and Sussex County, while Sussex Tech and Smyrna were in second and third place. In Maryland, Bohemia Manor and Rising Sun high schools were locked in a close struggle for top place while Perryville High School was a interested," he said. "Some want to offer co-op [employment] to the students."

The school's organizing Board of 13 community members includes "small business owners, retired school superintendents, a couple of local and state officials, a Delaware State Police officer and an attorney."

Pencader already has a four-year operating budget, a mandatory requirement for obtaining a state charter to open. "I'm not going to exaggerate — it's a very serious undertaking to open a charter school in Delaware," Jones said. "And believe it or not, one of the most daunting things was setting up the lunch program."

Jones and the Board solved this problem when one of the boardmembers mentioned that ShopRite provides prepared food for Meals on Wheels in the area. "I called them and they said, 'Sure, we can do your lunch program,'" said Jones. "They will come here everyday, serve lunch in our cafeteria, clean up and come back the next day."

Jones gathered his ideas for a business charter school from a diverse career that combined the two elements. A graduate of Christiana High School and the University of Delaware, Jones spent five years in advertising before a fateful meeting with former Newark High School principal Frank Hagen. "He was my economics teacher in high school," Jones said. "While I chatted with him at College Square one day, he suddenly said, 'You'd make a good at-risk teacher.'"

Hagen made Jones come with him to his school and handed him a coursebook for graduate school. "I got my graduate degree and taught special education and social studies in Christina and Red Clay schools for the next 14 years," Jones said. "I resigned in July to take on this challenge."

The school name honors Pencader Hundred where Jones lives. "Delaware history always had a lot of appeal for me," Jones explained. "We couldn't find a building in Pencader Hundred but by that time, our charter was approved under that name."

Jones is careful to note that his plans for a charter school have a long history as well. "I took a day off in October 2003 and walked into the Charter School of Wilmington," Jones said. "I didn't have an appointment, but Ron Russo (principal) agreed to talk with me."

Jones received a lot of good advice that day, but Russo's affirmation and support of his dream meant the most. "The instant you open your school," Russo said to Jones in 2003, "the following morning, I need to offer my parents a better product."

Jones will never forget that comment. "We'll be competitors, but that told me competition is good if it forces you to constantly get better."

Pencader is accepting applications for admissions between Nov. 1 and January 2006. "Contrary to myth, charter schools do not, and cannot, have an admissions test," Jones said. "If we have room for 200 students and 220 apply, the names go in a hat and we choose them at random. The extra kids go on a waiting list."

distant third.

"Students and faculty recognize that the need for blood donations doesn't take a break," James said. "We are grateful to our high schools for the role they play in helping maintain the blood supply across Delmarva."

During the 2004-05 school year, 8,270 students and faculty members from 67 Delmarva high schools signed up to be "someone's hero" by giving blood. James said 20,000 patients benefited from the 2004-05 blood donations of these high schools.

"It was a record-breaking, highest-ever year," said James. "Many students gave blood for the first time — a milestone in their young lives but possibly an inspiration to continue to give blood as they graduate and move on to the next chapter in their lives."

The Blood Bank of Delmarva, which provides blood for 18 hospitals and 13 renal centers throughout the Delmarva Peninsula, needs 75,000 blood donors each year. For more info or an appointment to donate, call 1-888-8-BLOOD-8, or visit

POST COLUMNIST

Columnist heads back to school

By RUTH KELLY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

I dropped my daughter off at Wesley College on Aug. 27 and am now back to being an empty nester. As she heads to school, I too return to campus.

Today, I embarked on a journey that has been a long time coming. I went to Delaware Technical College to inquire about going back to college.

I graduated from high school in 1969, briefly went to the Philadelphia School of Office training to be certified in speed writing and then continued with a job I already had with DuPont. I thought about taking advantage of the company's tuition program, but I had to take courses that were directly related to your job. The courses that I wanted to take did not qualify for reimbursement, so pursuit of a degree stalled.

Over the past 35 years, I continued to take classes in personal and professional development at DuPont and recently received a certificate from the University of Delaware's PACT Parent Leader's Network Certification Program which took two years to complete.

There is so much emphasis on that 'piece of paper' called a college degree, and rightfully so. I believe that in today's society it is essential to have an associates, bachelors, masters or doctoral degree. However, I, much like the late ABC anchor Peter

... like the late ABC anchor Peter Jennings, I am a graduate of the College of Life Experiences.”

Jennings, am a graduate of the College of Life Experiences.

Working in the public school system has made me acutely aware of the significance of having a degree. I never felt less of a person because I did not have the degree, because my knowledge base was broad and I am a quick thinker. When I learned that Peter Jennings dropped out of high school, it was a confirmation to me that one can still be brilliant and not flaunt a degree.

I am self-taught in many areas. Writing was a gift given at a very young age. I spent hours writing stories for my friends. In fact, I got in a lot of trouble when one of my juicy writings in high school got into the hands of my friend's mother, who in turn gave it to my mother and I was grounded for weeks. My fan club of friends couldn't wait until I finished my next sordid tale. I have since retired from the genre of the hot and steamy.

I am a life-long learner. Every day that I read, I look for words that are new to me. I look the word up in the dictionary and then add it to my vocabulary. I like to listen and observe and I have learned much that way. I've met brilliant thinkers at DuPont, the school district and in day-to-day life.

Despite my ability and my "worldly" education, I am a little nervous at the thought of returning to school and starting out on this journey at age 54. I know that others have done it with success.

Wish me luck. I'll keep you posted.

Kelly

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week, "Out of the Attic" features a view of the Aetna Hose, Hook, and Ladder Company firehouse in circa 1906, looking northwest. The fire "engine" in the foreground of this photograph was pulled either by horses or the firemen themselves, according to Ian Janssen of the University of Delaware Archives, which provided the picture. Also, note the bugle that the fireman on the left is holding. The Newark Opera House is visible on the right side of this photograph, as is part of Academy Street, which was unpaved at that time. "Out of the Attic" features historic photographs from Newark's history, recent and long ago. Readers who have a historic photo and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. ## PAGES FROM THE PAST

News as it appeared in the Newark Post through the years

■ Sept. 11, 1930

Schools here opened Monday

Newark public schools opened Monday and the enrollment is expected to be much larger than ever before. Classes start at 7:45 a.m. standard time for the rest of the month. The teachers reported last week for conferences and to get the work for the fall planned. Superintendent Ira S. Brinser was busy most of the summer on preliminary plans for the school year.

Busy month for insurance

The month of August was a busy period for the State Insurance Department, according to a report just compiled by James G. Shaw, State Insurance Commissioner.

During the month two new companies were added to the roster of insurance concerns during business in Delaware.

The new companies are both stock corporations. The Paul Revere Life Company, of Worcester, Mass. was the first one entered, and the other was the Milwaukee Mechanics Insurance Company.

■ Sept. 10, 1980

Council asked for beltway

Beltway fever has struck the Newark City Council once again.

A Cleveland Avenue resident, frustrated with the traffic problem near his home, has proposed to council the building of a two-mile-long bypass road running parallel to the north side of White Clay Creek, from Kirkwood Highway to 896.

Resident Bill Gray said the bypass would at some point have to cross White Clay Creek, requiring a bridge. Gray said he knew this would not be favored by ecologists but said he Dad used to profess.

When my friend finished his story, he confessed that realizing that a young employee did not know how to operate a typewriter made him feel "down in the dumps."

Not only has progress rendered IBM Selectrics, blocks of ice and dial telephones into history, it, too, has made expressions like "down in the dumps" meaningless.

Let's get real, here. No Newark kid has ever had to deposit trash at the town dump, a real treat on a sultry August Saturday. We need to explain that a dump is where we took trash before God created trash trucks, curb-side pick-up and recycling bins.

Once, I had my kids watch the movie "Alice's Restaurant." (They obliged me; their birthdays were but a few weeks away.)

I remember they didn't understand the big deal about the dump being closed on Thanksgiving Day because they'd never enjoyed the dump experience. And I suspect they really don't truly understand the expression. Nor would they understand being "down in the recycling boxes" or "down in the trash transfer station."

Last week, an old-timer told me about someone being railroaded into office.

In the old days, say pre-1957, people generally understood the expression to mean pushed through quickly with little if any consideration. The "railroaded into office" expression most often was used in connection with slate of unsuspecting or timid PTA officers.

With railroads no longer the primary people-moving industry, the expression makes no sense. Far from meaning expeditious action, being railroaded today might also mean being side-tracked.

Then I heard someone say "mind your own beeswax." Now, that's an outdated expression if I ever heard one. Do you have any beeswax in your home? (I might, possibly, stuffed behind the Bon Ami under the kitchen sink. I'll look and advise.)

The expression goes back to the days of small pox epidemics. Disfigured victims would fill in pock marks on their faces with beeswax. When hot and sweaty, the wax would run and someone would tell them to "mind their beeswax."

In conversation about the Olympics, a friend noted that Michael Phelps is as "strong as an ox."

Come on, who's ever even seen an ox, let alone know how strong one is. (Please note: This statement does not apply to anyone who has visited Colonial Williamsburg.)

Then someone told me they thought the Newark City Council's recent criticism of Mayor Vance Funk was "Mickey Mouse." If not for Disney World and Britney Spears (she was in the "new" Mickey Mouse Club), no person under 50 has ever seen Mickey in a cartoon nor know that the expression stems from the blandness and lack of graphic sophistication of the early Mickey movies (a la "Steamboat Willie.")

Save a few bar hounds who also are history majors, few people know that "mind your Ps and Qs" comes not from the failed A&P ad campaign of the 1970s. Rather it refers to colonial pubs that served up distilled spirits in pints and quarts. To have any hope of making it into the 19th century, revolutionary lusher had to "mind their pints and quarts," shortened for short-attention-spanned Baby Boomers like me to "Ps and Qs."

Last Friday night, I had dinner at the expanded Home Grown on Main Street. A family at the adjacent table ordered Mom and Dad martinis and a Shirley Temple for their restless son (who was quietly crayoning the table top).

When his drink arrived, the kid showed no interest. He surely didn't know who Shirley was and why a drink he thought to be cranberry juice was so named.

Next time, Mom and Dad should order a Barney. Maybe he'd understand.

did not know why, that he himself is an ecologist.

High-rise concerns voiced

The isolated location of a proposed federal housing complex for the elderly was just one of many criticisms voiced by Paper Mill Road residents who don't want a high-rise building in their area.

Architects of the $5.5 million, 136-unit complex appeared before Newark's Planning Commission last week to request a zoning change that would permit the seven-story structure.

Residents said the area doesn't have bus service and is not within walking distance to town. They also objected to the site's proximity to the White Clay Creek's flood fringe and the Curtis Paper Company's millrace.

■ Sept. 8, 2000

Plant on its way

Pending the results of a study commissioned last week by the city council, Newark could see the beginning of an iron removal plant by this time next year.

Whitman, Requart & Associates LLP were hired to decide whether an iron removal plant would be advantageous to the quality of Newark's water supply.

The proposed plant is part of Newark's Water Supply Plan approved in 1998, said manager Carl Luft. City officials said the plant would help remove sediments that, in some cases, have caused muddied waters around town.

Diner reopening

Newark's oldest diner is undergoing a makeover and will be serving up steaks and sodas again soon, after a brief break in business.

The landmark diner has sat on the corner of Main and Haines Streets since it was opened in the mid-50s.

Vacant for about a year and a half, it will open again for business in the next couple of weeks, according to Rudy Kocakus, who recently bought the diner.

Kocakus, who has operated the Eagle Diner on Elkton Road for five years, said Cozy Corner Family Diner will seat approximately 70 people.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

WITH the rising fuel costs, you may find yourself circling the neighborhood looking for the lowest price gas station and complaining about the rising cost of gasoline. Now is the time to consider implementing a strategy to examine energy consumption as a means to save on fuel cost. Here are a few ideas to help you get the most out of a tank of gas.

Always keep your vehicle in good repair, since a well-tuned engine burns less gas. Maintain your engine. Check your owner's manual for the recommended maintenance schedule. This will help you maximize the gas mileage for your specific make and model. A single misfiring spark plug can greatly reduce gas mileage. Follow the service schedules listed in your owner's manual. Replace filters and fluids as recommended. Have engine performance problems, such as rough idling and poor acceleration, corrected at a repair facility. Monitor your tires and keep them inflated to the maximum limit. Under-inflated tires or poorly aligned tires waste fuel and wear out the tire tread.

When you fill up, never fill your gas tank to the very top. Excess gas will just slosh or seep out. And make sure that the gas cap is securely tightened as gas can evaporate easily. Check your owner's manual for recommended grade of gas. Higher-priced gasoline isn't always necessary.

Do you follow your vehicle's correct starting procedure? In most cases, long warm-ups usually are not THERE'S something about the look of a firefighter. Maybe it's a glimpse of countless quashed blazes in the reflection of their eyes. Maybe it's a hint of bravery. Whatever it is, it's the stuff that artists dream of painting.

"To get a good painting, you have to have some kind of feeling for your subject," Newark resident Georgie Runkle said. "When you find something that inspires you, you go with it."

For her, that inspiration came in the form of Terry Schall, a female firefighter at Newark's Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder.

"Here is this woman who is 5'2", blonde, blue eyes a mother of a 2-year-old. She has a career," Runkle said. "Yet, she finds time to ride an ambulance and fire truck because she loves to help people. I thought it would be really cool to paint someone like this."

So, Runkle brought the idea of doing portraits of Schall to a group of friends who have been painting together for years. Her partners in paint agreed: It would be an interesting way to take two traditionally contrasting ideas - femininity and physical strength - and paint them in one face.

By the middle of the winter, the group had assembled. Schall sat in the middle of the ring of artists, decked out in red suspenders, an Aetna fire company tee shirt and her bunker pants. Around her, the group began sketching. As the process went on in the following weeks, things started to change. She wasn't just a local woman wearing fire gear - she represented much more.

In Michele Madeksza's eyes, Schall started to represent the fire fighters who died on Sept. 11. "It didn't start out to be about 9/11," she said. "But as we went on, it just kind of came out. I don't think things are always so overt, but they are there, just beneath the surface sometimes."

The first draft was where Madeksza initially realized the dark undertones her painting would have. As she moved deeper into the painting, it became less and less about the face in front of her, and more and more about fire fighters - their bravery, their losses and their spirit.

"I think there is some of that bottled up emotion left over from 9/11 in my painting," Madeksza said. "Terry was the pathway for that. My painting became really abstract, and I found that I just couldn't take that out of there. There is just this ghostly feel, especially in the eyes."

Of the nine different paintings, each came out differently. Some focus on Schall's face. Some don't show it at all. Some spiraled in on the bulk and weight of her fire uniform, while others played on Schall's femininity.

"This really shows you how we are all different artists," Madeksza said. "No matter how often we paint together, it's always what's inside the artist that comes out."

Each artist brought something different to the table. Madeksza brought her own feeling of loss after Sept. 11. Runkle brought an appreciation for bravery and preserving history.

"I think she's an amazing person," Runkle said. "People like that need to be appreciated. I preserved a little bit of history. Newark has a female firefighter. People should know that."

Despite all of the praise, Schall remains understated about the bravery she needs to do her job.

"You have to have the desire to do this," she said. "It's not a job. Everyone chooses to be on that fire truck. You have to have desire to do it."

'Fine Art at the Riverfront' features renowned artists

THE Riverfront in nearby Wilmington has become the annual home of a most interesting art exhibit. We are happy to welcome it back for the fourth year. Drawing top African-American artists from around the country, "Fine Art at the Riverfront" has become one of Delaware's premier art shows. The fourth annual juried exhibition will return to Wilmington October 8-9 at the Bank One Center on the Riverfront, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The work of more than 40 artists of color and galleries from across the country will be featured, including African American, Latino, Caribbean and South American artists showing a diverse selection of artwork including paintings, sculpture, photography, folk art, mixed media, and limited edition prints.

The show was juried by art collector Paul R. Jones of Atlanta and Amalia Amaki, curator of the Jones collection at the University of Delaware. Jones will also serve as moderator of a collector's panel, which will discuss "Developing a Collection With a Purpose and a Plan," at 2 p.m. on October 8.

"We will be featuring some of the most renowned artists of color who are favorites among seasoned art collectors, as well as wonderful emerging artists who allow us to offer something for everyone, including the novice collector," said the show's producer, Randi Gilliam of RAL Productions LLC.

Gilliam has always drawn artists from across the country to participate in the show. This year, after her recent move to Chicago, she has attracted a number of well-known African American artists from that city. This year, the artists include Duhirwe Rushemeza, a Rwandan-born artist who has captured images of children affected by genocide in her linocuts, woodcuts, relief wood carvings and mixed media works of art, Paul Benjamin, who creates expressionistic and abstract collages and paintings inspired by the improvisational sound and movement of jazz and Makeba Kedem-Dubose, an expressionist artist who uses mixed media including acrylic paint, ink, oil pastel, graphite, ceramic tiles, wood, sand, beans and found objects.

Also at the show this year will be: Dayo Laoye, a Nigerian-born artist whose work reflects the cultural traditions of his native land, the Timi of Ede, where his great-great-grandmother was a potter over 200 years ago; Felicia Grant Preston, a painter, printmaker and educator whose spiritually inspired work is included in the Paul R. Jones Collection at the University of Delaware; Gerald Griffin, a gallery owner and artist whose paintings, carvings and sculpture have attracted attention of high-profile collectors including Bill Clinton and Oprah Winfrey and Jonathon Romain, who opened his first gallery while on a work release program from prison. His work includes abstracts, charcoal and pencil drawings, nudes and portraits.

The two-day art show will also feature a collector's panel moderated by Paul Jones at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, October 8, which will address issues of interest to both novice and experienced collectors. Panelists include Dr. Patricia Purcell, a Wilmington necessary and just waste fuel. Avoid excessive engine idling. Turn off the engine while waiting for friends and family.

Tips to combat the rising cost of fuel

► OUTLOOK, from 8

Solution to The Post Stumper on Page 11.

Clean out the trunk! Remove unused items from your vehicle and carry only what is necessary in your vehicle. Less weight means better gasoline mileage.

Observe speed limits. Speeding decreases your miles per gallon, as do sudden accelerations. Anticipate traffic patterns ahead and adjust your speed gradually. Use cruise control. Avoid congested roads that contribute to inconsistent speeds and continuous starts and stops.

Be conservative when it comes to air conditioning. Keep in mind that for highway driving, it is usually more fuel efficient to drive with the air conditioner on, rather than with the windows open. Closed windows at high speeds creates less air resistance.

Car pool whenever possible. Consider posting a note on your employee bulletin, community center or school giving your address and proposing a landmark to meet for a carpool. Include your children in carpools to school and sports.

When driving, pre-plan your trips. Consolidate your daily trips and errands. By taking care of all of your errands that are in the same area you will not only save gas, but your precious time as well! Try to travel when traffic is lighter and stop-and-go conditions are less likely. With a few minutes of prevention and planning you are on your way to cutting the cost of gas in your budget.

DELAWARE VS. LEHIGH

Saturday, 7 p.m. at Delaware Stadium

Young Hens open season Saturday

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

It would be difficult to come up with a more appealing opening game than the one the University of Delaware has Saturday night.

The Blue Hens, ranked No. 10 in the country, host No. 14 Lehigh under the lights at Delaware Stadium. It's a match up between two of the top I-AA programs in the East and one that brings a good bit of tradition with it.

The two schools have met 45 times over the years with Delaware holding a 28-17 advantage. Longtime fans of both schools remember the classic games between the two teams in the 1960s and 1970s.

"In the old days when I played it was a huge game," said Delaware coach K.C. Keeler of the rivalry. "It was a big game in the East. It was a backyard game. We recruited the same people. We knew a lot of the kids. Lehigh's in my hometown so it was even bigger for me. It was a great rivalry. I remember it being a very intense week of practice."

Nowadays, the teams don't play nearly as often. The last meeting between the two teams came in the 2000 I-AA quarterfinals. The Blue Hens won 47-22 that day. Lehigh, however, won 42-35 the year before in Delaware Stadium.

This will be the first time Keeler, who expects a fired-up Mountain Hawks team, will coach against Lehigh.

"They don't play the same schedule we do," Keeler said. "This one game they can circle on their schedule and be ready for. We have a whole league of those types of games. This is going to be like their Super Bowl. We play well here - but so does everybody that comes in here. They will love playing in this atmosphere. This is like playing a Division I football game."

Lehigh opened its season last week with a 54-26 victory over Monmouth.

"Every team in the country makes mistakes in the first game," said Lehigh coach Pete Lembo. "It's an advantage of having a game under our belts. On the flip side, they got an idea of what we do and we have a lot of unknowns in preparing for Delaware."

Keeler, himself, isn't exactly sure what to expect from his team.

"I don't know what we'll see this week," the coach said. "Forty percent of this team is freshmen or redshirt freshman. We'll probably start five true freshmen. I like our talent. What happens Saturday night is anybody's guess."

While not exactly sure about how the game will play out, Keeler did indicate that he would be disappointed if his running back tandem of Omar Cuff and Danny Jones did not have good games.

Lembo, for his part, knows his team will see a competitive Delaware squad.

"There's challenges across the board for us," Lembo said. "They are a well-coached team with great players at every position. Sure, they lost some people. But we have to assume they're bringing in an athletic player that will do a good job. That's the way Delaware is."

"Plus, we'll have to be ready to play in a hostile atmosphere. Our kids are just not used to what they are going to see as far as the fans."

NOTES - This is the 13th time Delaware has opened a season against Lehigh. The Hens hold an 8-4 advantage in those games... Delaware is 2-1 in openers under Keeler and 13-3 in their last 16 openers... Five of Delaware's opponents this year are ranked in the Top 25 this week... Saturday night's game is a sell out. This is the seventh straight regular season sell out for Delaware.

Football gets underway for real this weekend

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

This is always one of the best weekends of the year — the opening of the high school and college football seasons.

Yes, I know college football started last weekend. But for Delaware fans, Saturday night is the opening of the season. The Blue Hens will take on Lehigh in front of a sold out Delaware Stadium.

Delaware enters the game ranked No. 10 in the country while the Mountain Hawks (1-0) are ranked No. 14.

Lehigh is a perennial Patriot League power and a traditional Delaware rival from a generation ago.

Delaware has a 14-7 record against Lehigh at Delaware Stadium. Although, the last regular season contest played between the two teams in Newark was won by Lehigh (42-35 in 1999).

The game has always stirred passions among fans of both teams. Saturday night will be no exception.

You can bet the parking lots will be full early for this one.

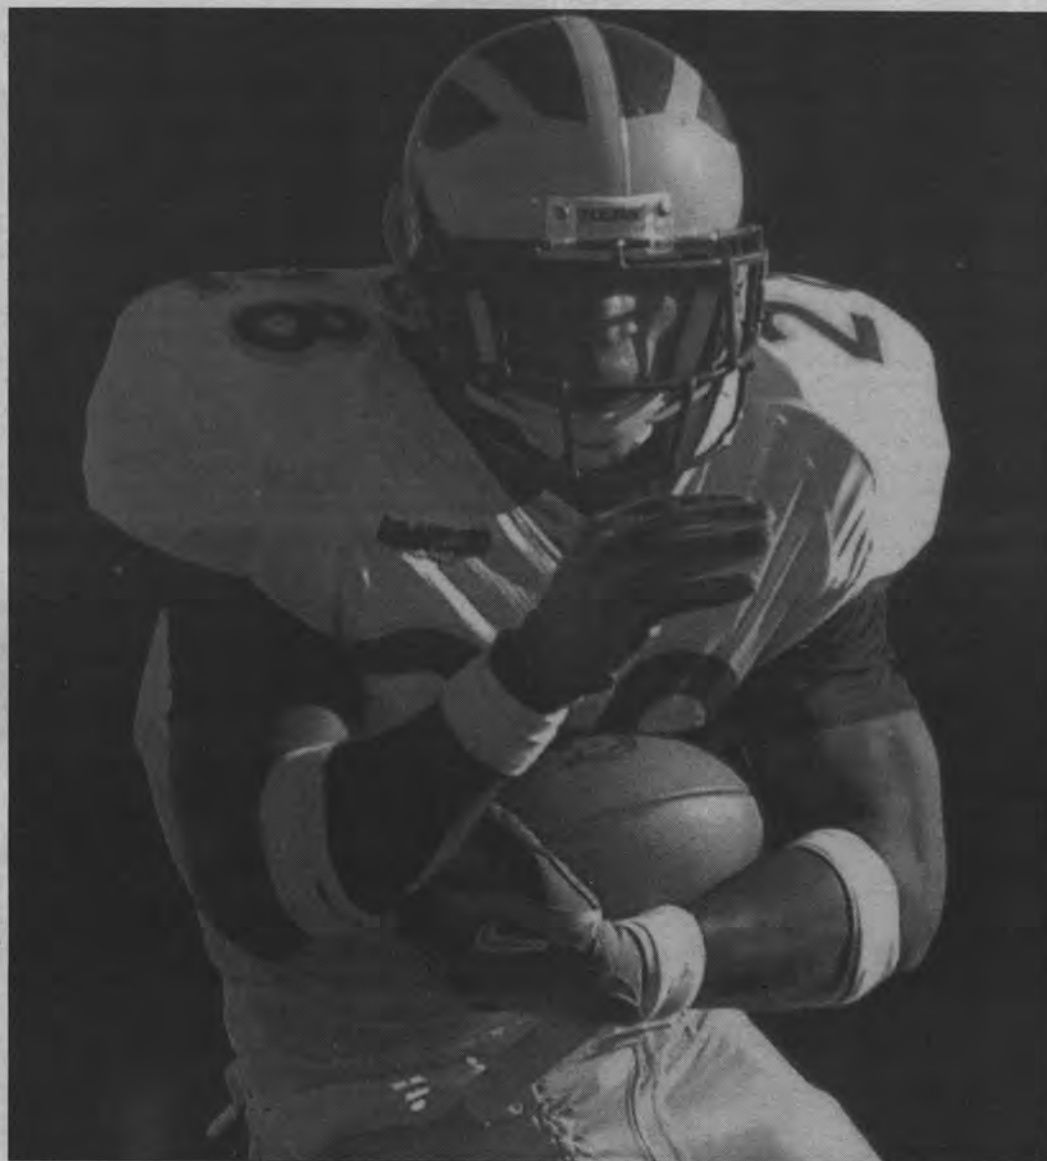

In addition to the Blue Hens kicking off their season, the high school football season kicks off this weekend as well. The big games locally include Newark against Salesianum and St. Mark's against Christiana.

The Yellowjackets have dominated everything in the state over the last decade and will be vying for another Division I state championship this year.

Christiana football preps for season

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Christiana football team has worked hard each practice the past few weeks, and is now gearing up to improve on last year's 4-6 mark, a season that began with the Vikings winning four of their first five games, but finally suffering through a tough second half of the schedule. This year, the 2005 Vikings open the season Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m., when they host downstate rival, Milford. "We had a problem with the big teams last year, like Newark, Middletown and William Penn," said Christiana coach Marvin Spence, who's now entering his eighth season with the Vikings. "Playing in the Flight A conference is always tough, and this year will be no different," he said.

"You could see those kids were just stronger than our players and eventually wore us out. But we've been working hard, and hope that we can get over the hump this year," said Spence. "We take pride in playing a whole game, no matter what the score is, and we're out there playing hard until that final whistle blows." The Vikings offense will be led this year by Ryan Scully, who's father Rick, played for the University of Delaware football team. Scully will be backed up

Viking soccer has international flavor

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Christiana boys soccer team will field a young and fairly inexperienced squad, but with a definite international flavor. The Vikings will feature players from around the world including Mexico, Columbia, Germany, Yemen, and Morocco. Christiana head coach Matt

Hammond, now in his fourth year, said this year's team will be a work in progress. "We lost a couple of really good seniors through graduation, including our leading scorer and top defender from 2004, who were both all-state players last year," he said. Hammond said there are some other holes to fill in 2005. "We're pretty young, with only one standout senior, while most of our starters are sophomores and juniors, so this may well be a transition year for us," he said. Speed is an essential part of a winning soccer team, but Hammond said that's an area that could use some improvement this time. "The last couple of years we had excellent speed, but unfortunately we graduated our burners, Sandy Ruigge and Jonathan Maguiri, who were also state champions in track, as well," he said. Hammond said he hopes the team will show great improvement as the season progresses since there's plenty of youth and there are some new guys he's trying to work into the lineup. The Vikings will have to work to score goals this season, since the

Blue Hens finish preseason drills with final scrimmage

The University of Delaware football team, ranked No. 10 in the pre-season The Sports Network Top 20 poll, took part in its second and final scrimmage of the pre-season Thursday afternoon at Delaware Stadium. The Blue Hens, who were originally scheduled to scrimmage Wednesday night but postponed the event due to inclement weather, scrimmaged for just over one hour Thursday and took part in approximately 50 plays in front of a sun-drenched crowd of about 200 fans.

Delaware fourth-year head coach K.C. Keeler was pleased with his team's effort in Thursday's scrimmage. "We were happy with the way our guys performed today," said Keeler. "We got some stuff done that we needed to work on. Today was mostly situational work. We tried to put some of our younger players in situations that they may not normally see and they did well." Delaware senior quarterback Sonny Riccio looked good in his limited action, firing a seven-yard touchdown pass to redshirt freshman wide receiver Aaron Love - who held on to the ball despite a big defensive hit - and connecting on several big gains with freshman wide receiver Mark Duncan. Blue Hen backup quarterbacks Ryan Carty and Jarryd Moyer also saw action behind center. Other highlights were a 39-yard field goal by freshman kicker Zach Hobby and a 75-yard interception return for a touchdown by junior cornerback Rashaad Woodard.

Vikings hope to match up with Newark

► CHRISTIANA, from 14

Josh Tatnall and Danny Freel. Tatnall and Freel both have brothers who played for the Vikings recently. Spence said all three guys are bright individuals who collectively will help improve the program.

"And I think we have a promising future with the three of them," he said. During the off season, the Vikings received transfer running back Kenyatta Graham from Glasgow. The backfield will also feature returnees Tommy Rodriguez, Dallas Brown and Ross Neal.

Spence said the offense line is coming together, but still needs plenty of work to become a cohesive unit. Look for players such as center Bryant Hanson, guards Ty McNair, Kevin Semolelle and Todd Durungo to throw some great blocks.

Durungo may also see some time as a fullback. Spence said Doug Thompson, Mark Osman, Nick Cusatis and freshman Paul Reynolds will also see some playing time on the O-line.

Viking-watchers may notice a different time of defense this year. "We want to take advantage of our speed on the other side of the ball this season," said Spence.

The defense will be linebacker oriented, and will feature Jorell Avant, LeAndre Davis and Hanson and McNair.

Spence said the secondary should be solid, and will include Darien Tate, a transfer from Philadelphia. "If we can keep these kids healthy and in shape, that will help us have a good season," said Spence. "We will have to move players around to establish some depth at different positions, and unfortunately that's what's caused us problems against Newark and the other big schools."

team doesn't appear to have any natural goal scorers this year.

"Some kids just have a knack for scoring goals, but we don't have anyone like that right now," said Hammond. "But in order to score this year, we're going to have to put together a lot of passing and take advantage of our execution and opportunities," he said.

Hammond said the team's offense will be counting on Johnny Louaza, who was an all-conference player last year. "He's really improved a lot, and he's got a real good touch on the ball, and he's got a strong leg," said Hammond. "So he can put the ball in play, and it's just a matter if we can find someone to put the ball in the back of the net," he said.

Defensively, the team returns keeper Mike Pfeifer and the starting sweeper.

"We don't have as much speed in the back, so we could be susceptible to opponents with good team speed, so we will have to be careful about that," said Hammond.

Christiana opens the 2005 soccer season Tuesday night, September 13, with a road game against Flight A rival A.I. DuPont. Game time is at 7 pm.

NEWS FOR NEWARK FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

BRIEFLY

UD honored

THE University of Delaware has won the Distinguished Service Award from the Society for College and University Planning for its generous and longstanding support of the society. The award was presented to UD President David P. Roselle this summer during the opening session of the organization's annual conference in Washington, D.C.

"This Distinguished Service Award is a high compliment to UD," Roselle said, "coming as it does from an organization dedicated to sound planning to ensure the future of higher education."

Jolene Knapp, executive director of SCUP, said UD earned the award through its "consistent and remarkable" support for the organization.

Play at UD to focus on aftermath of 9/11 attacks

Distant Voices Theatre Company will present September Echoes: Reflections of 9-11 and the Asian American Experience, at 5 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 14, in the Bacchus Theatre in the Perkins Student Center, on the University of Delaware's Newark campus. The event is free and open to the public.

In Oct. 2001, six weeks after the attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, Distant Voices was commissioned by Saint Andrew and Matthew's Episcopal Church in Wilmington, to write a play dealing with the terrorist attacks.

"September Echoes: Reflections of 9-11 and the Asian American Experience," focuses on the voices and events of Sept. 11, with special emphasis given to the backlash against the Arab-American community and its parallels to the Japanese-American internment during World War II.

The 45-minute play, which features diary entries, eyewitness accounts, newspaper articles, political speeches and private letters, debates issues such as national security versus civil liberties, racial profiling, bigotry and prejudice.

Scientists make significant advance

SCIENTISTS from the University of Delaware have made a significant advance in the study of small ribonucleic acids, discovering 10 times more small RNAs in the plant Arabidopsis (a weed of the mustard family) than previously had been identified. The advance is reported in the Sept. 2 issue of Science magazine.

The research was conducted over the course of the last year and a half by teams from the laboratories headed by Pamela J. Green, Crawford H. Greenewalt Endowed Chair in Plant Molecular Biology, a joint appointment in the Department of Plant and Soil Sciences and the College of Marine Studies, and Blake C. Meyers, assistant professor of plant and soil sciences in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Science is a prestigious journal published by the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The paper's first and second authors are Cheng Lu, a molecular biology postdoctoral researcher, and Shivakundan Singh Tej, a computer science student. Also among the authors, in addition to Green and Meyers, are Shujun Luo and Christian D. Haudenschild of Solexa.

Green said that small RNAs are "one of most important discoveries in biotechnology in the last 10 years" because they play an important role in regulating genes in both plants and animals.

Deficiencies in small RNA production can have a profound effect on development, and small RNAs have been associated with other important biological processes, such as responses to stress. Determining the sequence of the small RNAs of an organism is critical for understanding their overall impact and individ-al biological roles, Meyers said.

Green said the implications of their findings would have a vital impact on future research by both their laboratories and those at other institutions. To assist other small RNA researchers, the UD team has created a user-friendly web site <http://mpss.udel.edu> at available to scientists to examine any gene or region of an Arabidopsis chromosome for matches to small RNAs.

In addition to funding by NSF, the laboratories have received grants from DBI and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to continue their work on small RNA analysis.

Diversity training held for new UD students

THE day after they moved into their residence halls, the University of Delaware's class of 2009 took a long look at themselves and how they are seen by others. The University brought 38 National Coalition Building Institute facilitators to campus Aug. 28, dividing 3,536 freshmen into 19 groups in the morning and 19 in the afternoon to participate in "Welcoming Diversity Workshops," interactive exercises aimed at making students more aware of how people feel when they are stereotyped.

This was the first time NCBI has done this kind of training with an entire freshman class in a single day before they've started living together. Pat Hunt, director of NCBI's local chapter and a customer service director with the American Law Institute in Philadelphia, called the session

"groundbreaking."

NCBI is a nonprofit leadership training organization, based in Washington, D. C., working to eliminate prejudice and intergroup conflict. At the heart of many NCBI programs is the opportunity to tell and to listen to personal stories of discrimination. These stories have the power to impart a new perspective on the devastating impact of bigotry. Moved by the stories, many individuals make a renewed commitment to become more effective allies for each other.

The program was organized and sponsored by Residence Life, Campus Life, UD's Office of Affirmative Action and Multicultural Affairs and the Wilmington and Philadelphia NCBI chapters.

The facilitators were from Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland,

Facilitator Diane Wright: "We are all born caring, loving people."

Pennsylvania, Virginia and all walks of life. Conducting sessions were faculty from UD, George Mason and Rutgers universities, a rabbi, a reporter, employees of the Delaware Department of Health and Social Services and members of other NCBI chapters.

several basic skills that she had previously taken for granted.

After her rehabilitation, Nabeshima went on to pursue graduate studies at Tohoku University, where she completed her master's degree requirements in psychology in March. She recently began her studies at the Gunma Medical School in Japan. Entry to the school is extremely competitive, with only 15 individuals accepted from a field of 500 applicants.

Nabeshima and her family were guests of honor at a dinner hosted by UD President and Mrs. David P. Roselle at the Blue and Gold Club on Aug. 24, where the president read a letter of appreciation he received from Shiho's parents.

During the dinner, Newark Mayor Vance A. Funk III proclaimed Aug. 25 "Shiho Nabeshima Day" in the city. In his proclamation, Funk cited Diana Palladino, now a corporal in UD's Department of Public Safety, and members of the emergency medical team of Aetna Hose, Hook & Ladder, as well as doctors and medical staff at the Christiana Hospital Trauma Unit for their prompt, life-saving efforts. Palladino attended the dinner.

As a doctor, Nabeshima plans to use her intimate understanding of physical and emotional suffering to bring healing to seriously ill children and their families.

"I can sympathize with what they and their parents are going through, because I have been there myself," Nabeshima said. "I tell them that I learned that one can find the strength to start anew. It is a good message for parents and children who are suffering from diseases or handicaps."

When not studying or counseling young patients and their families, Nabeshima said she likes to play the piano, cook and have dinner with her friends.

Neighbors "deeply discouraged"

► HOMES, from 1

If the plan is ultimately approved by the City Council, it would build 84 townhomes on the 44-acre Wilson Farm. The homes would be built on a 16.7-acre section of the farm, leaving the remaining land as open space, with right-of-ways for CSX Railroad and Casho Mill Road. Early estimates price the homes around $250,000.

Neighbors from the surrounding area attended the meeting to hear more about the plan, and in some cases, voice their concerns.

"I am deeply discouraged by all of this," said Newark resident Cathy Matson, whose home backs up to the Wilson Farm. "I like my sight line. I like my neighbors. But if you build this, it will change our lives completely."

Her concerns centered around the increase in traffic that 84 new homes would bring and how wide the natural buffer would be between her home and the neighborhood.

"I want to know how wide of a ribbon of trees we're talking about," she asked representatives from the builders, Caldera Properties. "Burning (landscaping that creates protective hills on the edge of the property) isn't going to do it."

Lisa Goodman, legal counsel for Caldera Properties, said at the beginning of the hearing that her clients welcomed tabling the project.

"In light of the nature of the site, we are fine with the commission tabling tonight, until we can hear from the community," she said. "Then we can go and move forward."

Funds to be paid over three years

student achievement its number one priority."

According to District spokesperson Wendy Lapham, the grant from the Broad Foundation is the largest the Christina District has ever received from a national foundation. The funds will be used to: improve the efficiency of human resource systems and professional development programs; add software systems to better assess student progress and ongoing adjustments to individual instruction; and share student achievement data and District best practices with parents and the community.

"We are enormously grateful for this investment in our aggressive reforms for children in the District," Wise said. "The Broad Foundation is providing exemplary leadership to our nation's urban school districts."

U.S. Senator Thomas Carper (D-Del.) commented on the grant. "I am thrilled that the Christina District's reform received this important funding," Carper said. "This award is proof of the dedication, hard work and commitment the District has shown toward its students."

Christina District, the largest school district in Delaware, adopted a transformation plan in April 2004 to dramatically increase achievement for all students.

Based in Los Angeles, the Broad Foundation is a venture philanthropic organization dedicated to dramatically improving K-12 urban public education. For more information, visit www.broadfoundation.org.

Walkway improves safety

► WALKWAY, from 3

other materials that will be used in the walkway construction include brick pavers, metal guardrails, electric lighting fixtures and plumbing for collecting storm water from the bridge. Construction also includes site clearing and the relocation of existing underground utilities.

The structure will replace a set of steep stairs on one side of a ravine and small stream and a long, inclined walkway on the other side. Sidewalks on the east side of North College Avenue adjacent to the Ray Street Complex also are being widened.

A temporary walkway for pedestrian use will be in place until construction on the footbridge is completed.

The University recently received a second federal appropriation of $1 million toward the total walkway cost of $2.7 million. The funding was recommended by U.S. Sen. Thomas Carper, D-Del., a member of the congressional committee that crafted the 2005 transportation bill. An initial appropriation of $1 million was made in 2004 for the 2004-05 fiscal year.

The 600-foot-long pedestrian thoroughfare is part of the $72 million Laird Campus project. This project includes the recently completed 500-bed George Read Hall, as well as two 250-bed residence halls, scheduled for completion in 2006, at which time the walkway will be opened.

As part of the Laird Campus project, a sand volleyball court, a tennis court and two basketball courts have been installed on the east side of the ring road that encircles the area leading to Christiana Towers, replacing similar facilities displaced by the construction of George Read Hall.

Demolition of Pencader Residence Halls A-H and Commons I and II began June 14. Assuming completion of the Laird Campus project is on schedule, Pencader J-M and Commons III will be demolished beginning in June 2006.

The architect is Ayers/Saint/Gross, and Whiting-Turner Contracting Co., is managing the construction. Penny Person, senior project manager in Facilities Planning and Construction, is coordinator of the project.

City council joins relief effort

► KATRINA, from 1

Guard members are already in Mississippi and Louisiana. The American Red Cross of Delmarva Peninsula has sent volunteers and supplies. More are on their way.

Connie McKelvey is one of those Red Cross volunteers from Delaware. As a psychiatric nurse, McKelvey has made it her mission to help survivors rebuild emotionally after a disaster.

"In situations like this, you see a lot of post traumatic stress disorders," she said. "You see a lot of people struggling with denial, grief and loss. Many are in danger of depression or anxiety disorders. Statistics show that 30 percent of survivors are going to feel real health disasters because of this for many months and years."

Adults and children struggle to safety through flood waters Monday in Mississippi.

Katrina is McKelvey's third major national disaster. She helped survivors of a major flood in West Virginia in 2003 and counseled the relatives of victims after the Sept. 11 attacks in 2001. But before she left, she said that none of these could prepare her for the destruction that Katrina left.

"I have a feeling that this is something I've never seen before," she said before leaving Delaware. "It is very difficult to envision what's going to happen. Usually, there are some things around you that you can depend on - a K-mart or an eye doctor or a pharmacy. But we're not going to be dealing with those luxuries."

She left with her own supplies. A bag equipped with bug spray, sunblock, a few water bottles and a flashlight never leaves her side. But these supplies aren't for victims; they're for McKelvey.

"We're going to a place that has a lot of water contamination," she said. "You worry about what could happen. But you take precautions. You think things through first."

Newark representatives have found ways to support victims, too. On Sept. 12, the Newark City Council will vote on a resolution that would adopt Pascagoula, Miss., as Newark's sister city. The project is the brainchild of several council members, including Kevin Vonck, Dave Athey and Mayor Vance Funk. The town, which is about the same size as Newark, was home to Athey during his college days.

"It is the epitome of the Old South," Athey said of his former summer home. "The people there are very friendly, and they lead a very paced way of life."

The town did not take a direct hit from Katrina, but the damage is devastating nonetheless. Sewage pumps failed, leaving the town in a river of waste.

City representatives have not yet been able to contact Pascagoula representatives to determine the greatest need. But once they do, council members hope to send whatever the town needs most, be it money, food or water.

The City of Newark is also collecting funds for victims. The city staff is collecting money, which will be paired with a $5,000 donation from city funds. This money will help the American Red Cross efforts.

Yet, long after the donations and volunteers have poured in, the hurricane's effects will still be felt. Families will try to regroup. Cities will try to rebuild. But that process could be completely different post-Katrina.

"Certainly this is going to impact some of urban planning issues," Wachtendorf said. "We've seen the vulnerability of cities along the coast. There has been major development taking place over a number of years that didn't have as many hurricanes occurring. But now we know that there are some areas that are extremely vulnerable."

In particular, Wachtendorf worries over how homes built in areas that were once marshes will fare in future years. Natural land barriers like marshes absorb excess rainwater. Because the water still naturally drains to these low-lying areas, flooding can be a serious concern.

"I think we will see that the city questions zoning regulations and levees," Wachtendorf said. "Planning will certainly change after Katrina."

WHAT IF...

there was a church that took the time to find out what was relevant in your life?

SUPPOSE...

there was a church that made the effort to bring the timeless truths of God alive in new and exciting ways?

IMAGINE...

if there was a church that used fresh new music for a new millennium and you could come in casual clothes?

JUST PICTURE...

a church that modeled care and compassion, where you were important just because you were you.

NEWARK POST AND ROUTE 40 FLIER

Malibu Maxx: room and versatility to spare.

Call it the "Next Big Thing" or a throwback to the past, just don't call them stationwagons

By MALCOLM GUNN
WHEELBASE COMMUNICATIONS

They began as 1920s-era jitneys that carted people and their belongings from the train station to the hotel. Today, they're trendy and sophisticated haulers that combine practicality with performance.

We're talking about station wagons, or simply wagons as they're now called. In the 1950s, '60s and '70s, these suburban status symbols were popular with multi-kid families. But the minivan's 1984 debut followed by an exponential growth in sport-utility vehicles a decade later, thinned their ranks. For a time it looked like the end of the line for these carry-alls.

But somehow, the wagon movement refused to die. Today, they thrive as practical counterpoints to the Mister Big and Talls of the automotive world.

Although a few wagons have been around for years (Volvo makes plenty and Ford's Taurus/Sable models, for example), many are recent category revivals or segment first-timers that provide a viable alternative to sport-utility vehicles.

Today, wagons come in small, medium, large and super-size with engines to match. The most notorious of the bunch is the brainchild of a brand that's used to making a big splash with models such as the Viper, Ram SRT-10, and Neon SRT-4.

But in many ways the 2005 Dodge Magnum ($23,600) is the most traditional wagon of the bunch. It's long, low and available in rear- or all-wheel

V8. The V6-equipped models will form the backbone of Magnum sales, but the AWD Hemi car makes quite a statement about the brand's macho intentions. It's also a clear alternative to the more upright looking — and still large — Chrysler Pacifica wagon that's also available in front- or all-wheel drive.

Also at the large end of the scale, the once best-selling Ford Taurus will eventually be replaced, in part, by two distinct vehicles, the Five Hundred sedan and Freestyle wagon ($25,600). Actually, the latter adds some sport-ute-/minivan-based features such as three rows of forward-facing seats and the option of all-wheel drive. The company tags the Freestyle as a "cross-over", a term that seems to mean "ideas borrowed from our other vehicle classes", but it's all wagon in terms of form and function. Unlike the Magnum, the Freestyle arrives with just one powerplant, a relatively tame 203-horse 3.0-liter V6 coupled to a continuously variable (as in no gears and no shifting) transmission. The currently unanswerable questions remain: will Ford respond to the V8 Dodge Magnum with its own hot rod? Could more firepower for the Freestyle be under development at this moment?

General Motors hasn't yet jumped into the wagon fray with both feet, but its Chevrolet division has unleashed a couple of interesting competitors. The mid-size Malibu Maxx ($21,300) is an extended-length and extended-roof version of the Malibu sedan and is equipped with a 200-horsepower 3.5-liter V6 and of the 60/40 rear seat completely splits (top and bottom) to slide up to seven inches forward or back, providing maximum foot room or cargo space. The seats also recline for added passenger comfort.

The front-wheel-drive Maxx also features a fixed sunroof above the rear seats with a split-retractable shade to control the sunlight entering either side of the cabin.

The new Chevrolet Equinox ($21,000) also comes in front-wheel drive, but all-wheel drive is just an option tick-box away for drivers looking for more foul-weather sure-footedness. Although technically a truck and marketed as a compact sport-utility vehicle, the 3.4-liter-V6-powered Equinox's wagon roots are definitely exposed. It also shares the Maxx's adjustable rear seat and adds a removable cargo shelf that doubles as a picnic table.

Among the newest of the growing Japanese wagon fleet is the Mazda6 Sport Wagon ($22,500). With a base 220-horsepower 3.0-liter V6 and a five-speed gearbox (a five-speed automatic is optional), the Mazda6 promises to live up to its 'sport' tag while carrying up to five passengers and/or plenty of cargo behind the front or rear seats.

No matter who makes it, there's plenty of choice with more to come. All support the obvious fact that wagons offer a pleasant mix of power, style, function and, where applicable, economy of operation. With all wheel drive, they're even a good alternative to sport-utility vehicles, which just might be the point.

Call it a revival or the next

Dodge Magnum: all wagon with musclecar soul.

Mazda6: Sport Wagon name with character to match.

Freestyle: sport-utility features, such as three rows of seats, in a car-like package.

strength in the form of an available 340-horsepower "Hemi" sion. One of the Maxx's more unique features is that each side station wagons.

Equinox: a big-bang-for-the-buck wagon that thinks it's a sport-utility vehicle.

Fall is the time to think about pre-winter car care

The vacations are over, the kids are back in school and cooler evenings have begun. The pros and the nonprofit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) recommend that you take advantage of the lull to prepare your vehicle for the winter ahead. Breakdowns, never convenient, can be dangerous in cold weather. The following tips from ASE should give motorists a road map to fall car care.

First things first — read your owner's manual and follow the manufacturer's recommended service schedules. There are usually two schedules listed: normal and severe.

Engine performance. Have engine drivability problems (hard starts, rough idling, stalling, diminished power, etc.) corrected at a good repair shop. Cold weather will make existing problems worse. Replace dirty filters -- air, fuel, PCV, etc.

Fuel. Put a bottle of fuel de-icer in your tank once a month to help keep moisture from freezing in the fuel line. Note, too, that a gas tank that's kept filled helps prevent moisture from forming in the first place.

Oil. Change your oil and oil filter as specified in your manual -- more often (every 3,000 miles or so) if your driving is mostly stop-and-go or consists of frequent short trips.

Cooling system. The cooling system should be flushed and refilled as recommended. The level, condition, and concentration of the coolant should be checked periodically. (A 50/50 mix of anti-freeze and water is usually recommended.) If you're doing your own work, allow the radiator to cool down completely before removing the cap. (Newer vehicles have coolant reservoirs.) The tightness and condition of drive belts, clamps and hoses should be checked by a certified auto technician.

Heater/defroster. The heater and defroster must be in good working condition for passenger comfort and driver visibility.

Windshield wipers. Replace old blades. If your climate is harsh, purchase rubber-clad (winter) blades to fight ice build-up. Stock up on windshield washer solvent -- you'll be surprised how much you use. Carry an ice-scraper.

Battery. The only accurate way to detect a weak battery is with professional equipment. But do-it-yourselfers can do routine maintenance. Scrape away corrosion from posts and cable connections; clean all surfaces; re-tighten all connections. If battery caps are removable, check fluid level monthly.

A word of caution: Be sure to avoid contact with corrosive deposits and battery acid. Wear eye protection and rubber gloves. Note too that removal of cables can cause damage or loss of data/codes on some newer vehicles so refer to your manual for instructions.

Lights. Inspect all lights and bulbs; replace burned out bulbs; periodically clean road grime from all lenses with a moistened cloth or towel. To prevent scratching, never use a dry rag.

Exhaust system. Your vehicle should be placed on a lift and the exhaust system examined for leaks. The trunk and floorboards should be inspected for small holes. Exhaust fumes can be deadly.

Tires. Worn tires will be of little use in winter weather. Examine tires for remaining tread life, uneven wearing, and cupping; check the sidewalls for cuts and nicks. Check tire pressure once a month. Let the tires "cool down" before checking the pressure. Rotate as recommended. Don't forget your spare, and be sure the jack is in good condition.

Emergencies. Carry gloves, boots, blankets, flares, a small shovel, sand or kitty litter, tire chains, a flashlight, and a cell phone. Put a few "high-energy" snacks in your glove box.

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) was founded in 1972 as a nonprofit, independent organization dedicated to improving the quality of automotive service and repair through the voluntary testing and certification of automotive professionals. ASE-certified technicians wear blue and white ASE shoulder insignia and carry credentials listing their exact area(s) of certification, while their employers often display the blue and white ASE sign. They can be found at all types of repair facilities from dealerships to independent garages and franchises.

10 tips for choosing the right repair shop

If do-it-yourself auto repairs aren't your thing, you'll need to find a good repair facility. Here are some tips on choosing a repair facility from the nonprofit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) — the group that tests and certifies automotive technicians.

- Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one.

- Ask your friends and associates for their recommendations; consult local consumer groups.

- Arrange for transportation in advance so you will not feel forced to choose a shop based on its location.

- Look for a neat, well-organized facility, with vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to your own and modern equipment in the service bays.

- Look for a courteous staff, with a service consultant willing to answer all of your questions.

- Look for policies regarding estimated repair costs, diagnostic fees, guarantees, and acceptable methods of payment.

- Ask if the repair facility specializes or if it usually handles your type of repair work.

- Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area such as civic, community, or customer service awards.

- Look for evidence of qualified technicians: trade school diplomas, certificates of advanced course work, and certification by ASE.

- Look for the ASE sign.

Visit www.ase.com for car care tips as well as information about how consumers benefit from voluntary technician certification.

L-shaped island is cook's helper in the kitchen

For AP Weekly Features

The kitchen has become a magnet for friends and family to gather around when getting together. But the interaction may frustrate the cook if too many bodies are in the way of food preparation.

This design takes full advantage of snack bar stool seating around an "L"-shaped island, keeping the conversing guests outside of the work triangle of the kitchen itself. As a result, the kitchen becomes a room within a room, and opens to the light and views of the rear yard beyond the window wall. Within the kitchen itself, there is a second island with a smaller version of the copper drop-in farm sink. The smaller island is painted to stand out from the stained-wood perimeter cabinets.

Isabelle

If you think the Isabelle looks like a home from another era, you're right. Its basic shape is that of the Gabled Ell, an L-shaped house style commonly built in small towns from 1880-1910.

Intriguing window treatments accent the nostalgic appearance, as does gingerbread trim on the steeply pitched gables. Decorative trim, of course, is always an optional feature, and can be omitted for those who prefer a simpler look.

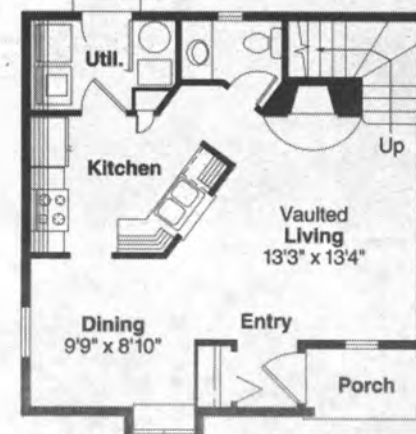

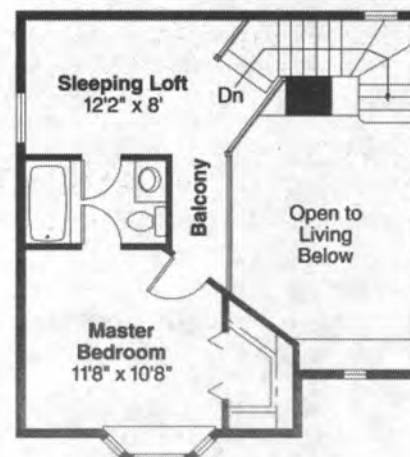

Designed as a vacation retreat, this small plan is also fully equipped for use as a full-time residence for one or two people. Its open floor plan results in a surprising sense of spaciousness for a home that measures just over 900 square feet.

Entering, you step into a living room with a lofty two-story ceiling. A semi-circular hearth spotlights the fireplace nestled into an alcove created by the stairway behind it.

Light washes in through three windows: a tall multipaned window capped by a half-round, a set of panes in the door, and a rectangle of diamond-shaped panes set in a tiny gable over the door. Plants will thrive on the high shelf directly below this window.

Isabelle plans –

Standing at the kitchen sink, you face into the living room. Walls flanking the sink buffer kitchen sounds and keep the food clutter out of sight. A small powder room is nearby, next to a pass-through utility room with an exterior door.

Cozy window seats expand both the Isabelle's dining room and the upper level master bedroom. Other features in this fully enclosed bedroom include a walk-in closet and direct access to a full bathroom that can be entered from the sleeping loft as well.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Dept. W, Eugene, OR 97402. Please specify the Isabelle 42-009 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring more than 400 home plans is available for $15.
