COUNCIL ADOPTS NEW MAIN ST. PARKING SYSTEM

Uses Chamber of Commerce Plan As Basis For System To Relieve Parking Congestion; Angle Parking On North Side Of Street; Time Limits On Parking

LOVETT ELECTED TO VACANCY IN COUNCIL

At a regular meeting of the Council of Newark, held Monday night, a motion was passed to inaugurate a new parking system on Main street to relieve the parking congestion which has become acute. The new parking plan was proposed by D. A. McClintock and Dr. George W. Rhodes, representing the Newark Chamber of Commerce.

As Mayor Collins was out of town, Councilman Hubert presided at the meeting, and called on Mr. McClintock and Dr. Rhodes for their parking plan. The system which the Chamber of Commerce suggested was to use the side of Main street for angle parking in painted stalls, and the other side for limited curb parking. After some discussion Councilman Hubert framed a motion which was passed. It read as follows: That from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. there will be angle parking on the north side of Main street, from North College avenue to North Chapel street, with a three hour parking limit. Stalls are to be painted on that side of the street to designate parking spaces. During the same hours a 30 minute parking limit on curb parking will be allowed on the south side of Main street, between North College avenue and South Chapel street.

This motion will be submitted to an advisory to be drafted into an ordinance. It is expected that it will be in effect in the near future.

In the discussion of the matter it was decided that it was necessary to give all day parkers on side streets access to Main street. It was thought that a three hour parking limit would allow anyone to transact business in town, and the limit for the angle parking was set for that period of time. The half hour limit on curb parking on the south side of Main street is to allow customers to stop near stores to make purchases.

After the parking problem was discussed, the Council elected former Councilman William J. Lovett to fill the vacancy created in the middle district by the resignation of Herbert Henning. Mr. Henning had his property and removed from the district, thus making him ineligible to serve on Council from that district. Under the section of the Charter providing for vacancies, Mr. Lovett will serve until the next election, next April.

The Council appointed August 15 as the bi-monthly rubbish collection days.

The Council voted to pay the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company $200 for the town appropriation for the years 1927 and 1928.

The treasurer reported a balance of $2,071.79 in the town treasury on August 1. The alderman reported $11 in fines and licenses.

The milk report submitted by George L. Baker, milk inspector, read as follows:

	Per cent	Bacterial
	Butter Fat	Count
One Dairy A	3.50	1,000
Two Dairy B	4.00	8,500
Three Dairy C	3.70	25,000

Collection on the 15th will cover the west end of town from North and South College avenues. The remainder of the town will be serviced the following day. Householders are urged to have their rubbish on the curb the night before the collection in their section of town. Rubbish must be placed on the curb for collection as the collectors will not go inside of yards.

SPEED OF CYCLE ACCIDENT CAUSE

Coroner's Jury Exonerates Driver Of Car Which Killed Vernon Love, Blames Speed Of Motorcycle For Accident

A coroner's jury, sitting under Coroner Green, of Elkton, last Friday night, exonerated Daniel F. Duffy, the driver of a car which struck and killed Vernon Love, of Newark, in a road accident, near Perryville, on July 31. The burden of blame for the death was thrown on Thomas Malin, of Elk Mills, the driver of a motorcycle from which Love was thrown into the path of the car driven by Duffy. The verdict of the coroner's jury read as follows:

"That Vernon Love came to his death when struck by an automobile driven by Daniel F. Duffy as a result of being thrown in front of his (Duffy's) car from a motorcycle operated by Thomas Malin at an excessive speed."

Police investigation disclosed that the motorcycle swerved across the road and then back again, and that Love, on the tandem of the motorcycle, was thrown in the path of Duffy's car, which struck and killed him instantly. The motorcycle, after swerving back and forth across the road, capsize and Thomas Malin who was operating it, was thrown and injured. Duffy and his party took Malin to the hospital at Havre de Grace and reported the accident to the police. They denied having struck Love, but examination of the car and a post mortem examination of Love's body showed that he had been struck by the car as he was in the act of arising from the road.

Duffy and his three companions were held, but were released after the finding of the coroner's jury.

Malin was released from the hospital Friday.

Love was buried Saturday from the home of his father, John Love.

On Monday, a local party of fifteen, headed by Frank Fader, took a flight in the giant Ford tri-motored monoplane, which was making a visit to Belanca Field, and the pilot, Ray Loomis, guided the huge ship over Newark so that the group could see how their town looked from the air.

Those in the party were: Frank Fader, with four young nieces and nephews, Jean and Gossage Conner, Tommy Griffin and Buddy Murray; Thomas Milliken; Donald Hill; Geo. Laskaris; Dr. J. R. Downes; J. H. ## DAIRY TESTS LOW IN JULY

New Castle County Testing Association Reports Production Decrease

Hot, dry weather and large numbers of flies have been for July the chief causes of a lower milk production per cow among the herds in the New Castle County Cow Testing Association, according to the monthly summary recently sent out to the members of the organization of New Castle County Agent, Ed Willim, Jr., of Newark.

This reduction in milk production was most acute in the herds which have not had their pasture roughage supplemented by alfalfa hay, summer silage or with a larger amount of grain. All of the highest herds in milk production for the month have either had exception pasture or have used alfalfa hay, silage or other roughage or grain in maintaining their production.

The highest herd for the month in milk production was the Holstein cows on the Brookwood Farm near Greenville. This herd averaged 812 lbs. during the period. The next five highest herds in milk production were: Fred Stafford, Centerville, 761 lbs.; Thomas Vansant, Newark, 671 lbs.; L. W. Phipps, Centerville, 651 lbs.; B. V. Armstrong, Middletown, 630 lbs.; T. Harold Little, Newark, 609 lbs. All of these herds were Holsteins.

The Brookwood herd of 13 cows also led the group with a 26.7 lbs. of butterfat per cow average. The Jersey herd belonging to Wilson Price, of Porter, barely nosed out for second place the Stafford herd in butterfat. Their averages were 26.46 lbs. and 26.4 lbs., respectively. George Pierson, of Hockessin with his Jersey herd was fourth with 25.2 lbs. butterfat per cow, while Pusey Passmore, of Concord Pike, and George C. Burge, of Middletown, followed close together with 23.5 lbs. and 23.1 lbs., respectively.

Individual cows with highest butterfat records were owned by the following members: Karl Feucht, Elkton, 63.52 lbs.; Fred Stafford, Centerville, had three high fat producers with 62.62, 62.29 and 50.98 lbs., respectively. Two Jerseys, one owned by J. Howard Mitchell and Sons, Hockessin, and the other by Wilson Price, of Porter, produced 58.73 and 56.96 lbs. for their owners.

Thirty-three cows in the association made over 1,000 lbs. of milk each during the month while eight made over 50 lbs. of fat during the same period.

Holsteins were in the majority in both of these groups. "When it is considered," says Mr. Willim, "that about two-thirds of the cows in the association are Holsteins, it is not to be wondered that these naturally high milk producers lead in the number of cows given over 1,000 lbs. of milk. And then," continued the Agent, "with an extremely high milk production and an average test it is not hard for the Holstein to predominate in the butterfat group."

Mr. Alois Leinen, tester for the Association has given in his monthly summary the following association average. The average herd had 18.3 cows with $22.27 value of product per cow. Each $1.00 expended for feed returned 3.85 while the average feed cost for one pound of butterfat was 27 cents and for 100 lbs. of milk $1.08. Averaging the figures for the entire number of cows Mr. Leinen reports that the average cow produced 533.7 lbs. of milk and 21.15 lbs. of butterfat. Her total cost of feed was $5.77 for the month. The milk and grain proportion was 3.5 lbs. milk produced for one pound of grain fed.

TREASURER'S CUP WON BY TURNER

Beats Stradley One Up For Newark C. C. Trophy; Ginther Makes Good Showing In Pro Tourney; Newark Bows To Kennett

In a hard and close match played at the Newark Country Club, Sunday, H. H. A. Turner, Jr., beat S. H. Stradley, Jr., one up to win the Treasurer's Cup. The match, which was between the two best players in the club attracted quite a gallery. Both players had medal scores of 79, which was good golf, considering the high wind which swept the course during the match.

Turner had Stradley two down at the turn, but Stradley made a determined comeback on the second round, and at the 17th hole was dormey one. On the last hole, Stradley could not find his drive, and lost stroke and distance, but at that managed to halve the hole, but lost the match, one down.

On Monday Eddie Ginther, professional at the Newark Country Club, stood fifteenth in a field of over 30 salaried players who competed in the second annual professional sweepstakes tourney at the Lu Lu Country Club, Philadelphia. Eddie's score for the 72 holes was 157. Charley Hoffner, of Ocean City, took the first money with a 146.

On Saturday, 54 intrepid golfers representing the Newark and Kennett Square Country Clubs, trudged through a pouring rain to decide the team supremacy of the two clubs. When the last sudden foursome turned in its card the count was computed to show that Kennett had won by a score of 42 points to 39. Ed Ginther, the Newark pro, turned in a 73 to win three points from Anderson, the Kennett salaried player.

FIRE CONSUMES BARN AND MULES

Barn On Kemether Farm Destroyed With Season's Crops And Team Of Mules, Origin Unknown; Slight Blaze On New London Avenue

Last Thursday afternoon, the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company was called to Sandy Brae to fight a fire consuming the barn on the Kemether Farm. The structure was too far gone to save when the firemen arrived, and their efforts were confined to protecting the other buildings. Christiana Fire Company also responded to the call.

The fire was of unknown origin and when it was discovered by Walter Case, the tenant on the farm, it had gained great headway inside the structure. All the crops, including 15 tons of hay, were lost, and a team of mules, stabled in the barn, were burned to death.

Yesterday the Aetna Company was called to extinguish a fire in the residence of Hattie Hudson, on New London avenue. Heat from a stove ignited wainscoting in the kitchen. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

New Castle County 4-H Club work was well represented at the tenth annual Kent-Sussex Fair at Harrington, held during the week of July 23-27, and several club members spent the week camping on the fair grounds, so that they might be on hand to take care of their pure bred dairy calves which they exhibited. There was a total of twelve pure bred Jersey calves entered in both the open and calf club classes by New Castle County Calf Club members.

WORK ON STREET PROGRAM STARTS NEXT MONDAY

Oliver Construction Company Awarded Contract To Pave And Curb Newark Streets; First Step In Plan To Improve All Streets; Two Bidders 35 Cents Apart On Estimates

45 DAYS TO FINISH

At a special meeting of the Council of Newark, held last Friday to consider bids on plans and specifications for street improvement work, five sets of bids were considered, and the contract was awarded to the Oliver Construction Company, of Wilmington, as low bidder. His bid for the work was $26,438.70; approximately $8,500 less than the Council had considered necessary to appropriate for the work. The work will start on Monday, and the contract is to be completed within 45 working days.

Other bidders were: Walter Newton, Newark, $27,582.25; James H. Hutchison, Newark, $27,582.60; A. Petrillo, Edge Moor, $27,226.00; Martin Construction Company, Philadelphia, $32,011.60. Two other Wilmington concerns, S. H. Simonton and A. S. Hirzel, requested copies of plans but did not submit bids.

The bids were all close, but the difference of only 35 cents between the bids of Walter Newton and James H. Hutchison, both of Newark, was the closest ever recorded in this town on a contract of the size of the one in competition.

The contract provides for paving sections of South Chapel street and Center street, and for gutter and curbing on South Chapel street, Center street, Park place, Academy street, Kells avenue and Manuel street.

It is provided in the plans to pave South Chapel street for about 600 feet and to curb and gutter that street to the town line. The paving is necessary to correct a drainage condition. Center street will be curbed and guttered its complete length, but paved only from Main street to the rear line of the new postoffice building. Curbing and guttering on Park place will be from Academy street to Manuel street. Manuel street will be curbed from Park place to Kells avenue. Kells avenue will be curbed and guttered from South College avenue to Manuel street. Academy street will be curbed from Park place to Kells avenue.

This work, which will be 11,390 linear feet of curbing and gutter and about 800 linear feet of paving, is the first part of a continuous street improvement program which will take in every unimproved street within the town limits of Newark.

MANY flocks run at large during the summer months, with feed cut down. Even on good grass ranges, there is little nutriment to be found. It takes many pounds of green grasses to equal one pound of nutrients. The bird cannot possibly get enough into her system to maintain production and she falls way below a normal summer decline.

I'll say this about the most successful poultryman that I know: His hand never quivers when it reaches for the feed in July and August. He knows that a hen worth keeping is a hen worth feeding and that summer feeding pays—both in more summer eggs and a better conditioned bird for the fall lay.

Owing to the heavy rain-storm of Saturday afternoon, the Christiana Improvement Association picnic, which was scheduled for that time at Deemers Beach, was held in the schoolhouse here. In-door games were played, taking the place of the sports that had been prepared. Following this, ice cream and cake were served and later on the assembled company enjoyed a picnic supper. Everybody reports a wonderfully good time, in spite of the disappointment in not being able to get down to the beach.

The Presbyterian Sunday School and Aid Society held their annual picnic at Deemers Beach on Monday afternoon. The weather was ideal, and there was a larger gathering of people than at any similar affair for a number of years. A program of sports for children, and another for grown-ups were successfully carried out, with attractive prizes for the winners. Refreshments were served late in the afternoon, and many who had brought their supper remained for the evening. The arrangements for the picnic were made by a committee composed of Mrs. W. E. Cranston, chairman, Mrs. Harry Hance, and Mrs. Thomas Appleby.

The Sunday School room is coming in for its share of improvement, too, for it will be thoroughly cleaned and renovated before the church is opened again.

A New Parking System

The Newark Chamber of Commerce and the Council of Newark have put their heads together and evolved a proposed parking system for Main street which promises to do much to relieve the acute congestion existing there now on nearly every night of the week. The proposed system is being drafted into an ordinance by an attorney, and will become a law of the town.

The plan is to provide stalls for three hour limited angle parking on the north side of Main street, and to allow half hour limit parking at the curb on the south side of Main street.

It is thought that with the increased number of cars which can be parked on an angle, and with all-day parkers driven to adjacent streets, the parking space on Main street will be ample to take comfortable care of everyone who has business to transact in the business section of the town. Three hours should allow for the transaction of almost any type of business, and the half hour curb parking will permit customers to stop near stores which they wish to patronize and have ample time to make purchases. The new system should be a big boon, both to the merchants of Newark, and to their customers.

The Drunken Driver

Police officers, undertakers, coroner's juries, bereaved families, insurance adjusters, newspaper reporters, doctors and morbid citizens carry on investigations as to the causes of the ever increasing numbers of deaths on the highways due to automobile accidents.

Coroner's juries, doctors, undertakers, insurance adjusters, newspaper reporters and peace officers all make written reports as to what brought about death in each specific case, and presently they go through the same investigation for someone else. The man who works with mallet and chisel on cold, hard marble, writes the final report in each case.

During the first seven months of this year, 235 drivers in Delaware had their licenses revoked for driving while intoxicated. There were 52 revocations during the month of July for this offense. Right here lies one of the largest contributory causes to accidental fatalities on the highways. Every driver, who goes out on the highway with his faculties dulled and his senses inflamed by drink, is carrying death on the seat beside him, and it is only a question of luck or skill on the part of other drivers he meets if death does not claim one or more victims.

Public sentiment is strongly against the drunken driver, yet the list of arrests for drunkenness on the highway grows. A stiff fine is imposed for this offense, and the convicted driver loses his privilege of license to operate a car. Even these penalties do not abate the numbers of convicted drunken drivers. The law also provides a jail sentence for drunken driving, but it seems to be invoked only in cases where a drunken driver has done some serious damage. That every drunken driver does not do serious and fatal damage is only a matter of luck, and he is just as guilty as if he did destroy property or life. If the judges and magistrates of Delaware will impose a jail sentence for every case of driving while intoxicated, which is brought before them, the list of arrests for this offense will undoubtedly decrease.

What Is Poetry?

If a young reader should ask, after all, what is the best way of knowing bad poets from good, the best poets from the next best, and so on, the answer is, the only and two-fold way: first, the perusal of the best poets with the greatest attention; and second the cultivation of that love of truth and beauty which made them what they are. Every true reader of poetry partakes a more than ordinary portion of the poetic nature; and no one can be completely such who does not love, or take an interest in, everything that interests the poet, from the firmament to the daisy, from the highest heart of man to the most pitiable of the low. It is a good practice to read with pen in hand, marking what is liked or doubted. It rivets the attention, realizes the greatest amount of enjoyment, and facilitates reference. It enables the reader also, from time to time, to see what progress he makes with his own mind, and how it grows up to the stature of its exalter.

If the same person should ask, What class of poetry is the highest? I should say undoubtedly, The Epic; for it includes the drama, with narration besides; or the speaking and action of the characters, with the speaking of the poet himself, whose utmost address is taxed to relate all well for so long a time, particularly in the passages least sustained by enthusiasm. Whether this class had included the greatest poet, is another question still under trial; for Shakespeare perplexes all such verdicts, even when the claimant is Homer; though if a judgment may be drawn from his early narratives ("Venus and Adonis," and "The Rape of Lucrece,") it is to be doubted whether even Shakespeare could have told a story like Homer, owing to that incessant activity and superfoetation of thought, a little less of which may be occasionally desired even in his plays;—if it were possible, once possessing anything of his, to wish it away. Next to Homer and Shakespeare come such narrators as the less universal but intenser Dante; Milton, with his dignified imagination; the universal profoundly simple Chaucer; the luxuriant remote Spenser,—the immortal imaginary; who are always consistent with their object and its requirements; and who run the great round of nature, not to perplex and be perplexed, but to make themselves and us happy. And, luckily, delightfulness is not incompatible with greatness, willing soever as men may be in their present imperfect state to set the power to subjugate above the power to please.

Truth, of any kind whatsoever, makes great writing. This is the reason why such poets as Ariosto, though not writing with a constant detail of thought and feeling like Dante, are justly considered great as well as delightful. Their greatness proves itself by the same truth of nature, and sustained power, though in a different way. Their action is not so crowded and weighty; their sphere has more territories less fertile; but it has enchantments of its own which excess of thought would spoil,—luxuries, laughing graces, animal spirits; and not to recognize the beauty and greatness of these, treated as they treat them is simply to be defective in sympathy. Every planet is not Mars or Saturn. There is also Venus and Mercury. There is one genius of the south, and another of the north, and others uniting both. The reader who is too thoughtless or too sensitive to like intensity of any sort, and he who is too thoughtful or too dull to like anything but the greatest possible stimulus of reflection or passion, are equally wanting in complexional fitness for a thorough enjoyment of books. Ariosto occasionally says as fine things as Dante, and Spenser as Shakespeare; but the business of both is to enjoy; and in order to partake their enjoyment to its full extent, you must feel what poetry is in the general as well as the particular, must be aware that there are different songs of the spheres, some fuller of notes, and others of a sustained delight; and as the former keep you perpetually alive to thought or passion, so from the latter you receive a constant harmonious sense of truth and beauty, more agreeable perhaps on the whole, though less exciting.

Ariosto, for instance, does not tell a story with the brevity and concentrated passion of Dante; every sentence is not so full of matter, nor the style so removed from the indifference of prose; yet you are charmed with a truth of another sort, equally characteristic of the writer, equally drawn from nature, and substituting a healthy sense of enjoyment for intense emotion. Exclusiveness of liking for this or that mode of truth, only shows, either that the reader's perceptions are limited, or that he would sacrifice truth itself to his favorite form of it. Sir Walter Raleigh, who was as trenchant with his pen as his sword, hailed the "Faerie Queene" of his friend Spenser in verses in which he said that "Petrarch" was henceforth to be no more heard of; and that in all English poetry there was nothing he counted "of any price" but the effusions of the new author. Yet Petrarch is still living; Chaucer was not abolished by Sir Walter; and Shakespeare is thought somewhat valuable. A botanist might as well have said that myrtles and oaks were to disappear because acacias had come up. It is with poet's creations as with Nature's, great or small. Wherever truth and beauty, whatever their amount, can be shaped into verse, and answer to some demand for it in our hearts, there poetry is to be found; whether in productions grand and beautiful as some great event, or some mighty, leafy solitude, or no bigger and more pretending than a sweet face or a bunch of violets; whether in Homer's epic or Gray's "Elegy," in the enchanted gardens of Ariosto and Spenser, or the very peripheries of the "Schoolmistress" of Shenstone, the balms of the simplicity of a cottage. Not to know and feel this, is to be deficient in the universality of Nature herself, who is a poetess on the smallest as well as the largest scale, and who call upon us to admire all her productions; not indeed with the same degree of admiration, but with no refusal of it except to defect.

I can not draw this essay towards its conclusion better than with three memorable words of Milton, who has said that poetry, in comparison with science, is "simple, sensuous, and passionate." By simple, he means unperplexed and self-evident; by sensuous, genial and full of imagery; by passionate, excited and enthusiastic. I am aware that different constructions have been put on some of these words; but the context seems to me to necessitate those before us. I quote, however, not from the original, but from an extract in the "Remarks on Paradise Lost," by Richardson.

What the poet has to cultivate above all things is love and truth; what he has to avoid, like poison, is the fleeting and the false. He will get no good by proposing to be "in earnest at the moment." His earnestness must be innate and habitual; born with him, and felt to be his most precious inheritance. "I expect neither profit nor general fame by my writings," says Coleridge, in the Preface to his Poems; "and I consider myself as having been amply repaid without either. Poetry has been to me its own exceeding great reward; it has soothed my afflictions; it has multiplied and refined my enjoyments; it has endeared solitude; and it has given me the habit of wishing to discover the good and the beautiful in all that meets and surrounds me."

"Poetry," says Shelley, "lifts the veil from the hidden beauty of the world, and makes familiar objects be as if they were not familiar. It produces all that it represents; and the impersonation clothed in its Elysian light stand thenceforward in the minds of those who have once contemplated them, as memorials of that gentle and exalted content which extends itself over all thoughts and actions with which it co-exists. The great secret of morals is love, or a going out of ourselves with the beautiful which exists in thought, action, or person not our own. A man, to be greatly good, must imagine intensely and comprehensively; he must put himself in the place of another, and of many others; the pains and pleasures of his species become his own. The great instrument of moral good is imagination; and poetry administers to the effect by acting upon the cause."

I would not willingly say anything after perorations like these; but as treatises on poetry may chance to have auditors who think themselves called upon to vindicate the superiority of what is termed useful knowledge, it may be as well to add, that, if the poet may be allowed to pique himself on any one thing more than other, compared with those who undervalue him, it is on that power of undervaluing nobody, and no attainments different from his own, which is given him by the very faculty of imagination which they despise. The greater includes the less. They do not see that their inability to comprehend him argues the smaller capacity. No man recognizes the worth of utility more than the poet: he only desires that the meaning of the term may not come short of its greatness, and exclude the noblest necessities of his fellow-creatures. He is quite as much pleased, for instance, with the facilities for rapid conveyance afforded him by the railroad, as the dullest confiner of its advantages to that single idea, or as the greatest two-idea'd man who varies that single idea with hugging himself on his "buttons" or his good dinner. But he sees also the beauty of the country through which he passes, of the towns, of the heavens, of the steam-engine itself, thundering and foaming along like a magic horse; of the affections that are carrying, perhaps, half the passengers on their journey, nay, of those of the great two-idea'd man; and, beyond this, he discerns the incalculable amount of good, and knowledge, and refinement, and mutual consideration which this wonderful invention is fitted to circulate over the globe, perhaps to the displacement of war itself, and certainly to the diffusion of millions of enjoyments.

"And a button-maker, after all, invented it!" cries our friend. Pardon me, it was a nobleman. A button-maker may be a very excellent, and a very poetical man too, and yet not have been the first man visited by a sense of the gigantic powers of the combination of water and fire. It was a nobleman who first thought of it, a captain who first tried it, and a button-maker who perfected it. And he who put the nobleman on such thoughts was the great philosopher Bacon, who said that poetry had "something divine in it," and was necessary to the satisfaction of the human mind.—Leigh Hunt, from the Roycroft.

AMERICA

Mr. Speaker, I can not prevail on myself to hurry over this great consideration. It is good for us to be here. We stand where we have an immense view of what is, and what is past. Clouds indeed, and darkness, rest upon the future. Let us, however, before we descend from this noble eminence, reflect that this growth of our national prosperity has happened within the short period of the life of man. It has happened within sixty-eight years. There are those alive whose memory might touch the two extremities. For instance, my Lord Bathurst might remember all the stages of the progress. He was in 1704 of an age at least to be made to comprehend such things. He was then old enough acta parentum jam legere, et quae sit poterit cognoscere virtus. Suppose, Sir, that the angel of this auspicious youth, foreseeing the many virtues which made him one of the most amiable, as he is one of the most fortunate men of his age, had opened to him in vision, that when, in the fourth generation, the third prince of the House of Brunswick had sat twelve years on the throne of that nation which (by the happy issue moderate and healing councils) was to be made Great Britain, he should see his son, Lord Chancellor of England, turn back the current of hereditary dignity to its fountain, and raise him to an higher rank of peerage, whilst he enriched the family with a new one,—if amidst these bright and happy scenes of domestic honour and prosperity, that angel should have drawn up the curtain, and unfolded the rising glories of his country, and whilst he was gazing with admiration on the then commercial grandeur of England, the genius should point out to him a little speck, scarce visible in the mass of the national interest, a small seminal principle rather than a formed body, and should tell him, "Young man, there is America,—which at this day serves for little more than to amuse you with stories of savage men and uncouth manners, yet shall, before you taste of death, show itself equal to the whole of that commerce which now attracts the envy of the world: whether England has been growing to by a progressive increase of improvement, brought in by varieties of people, by succession of civilizing conquests and civilizing sentiments, in a series of seventeen hundred years, you shall see as much added to her by America in the course of a single life!"—if this state of his country had been foretold to him, would it not require all the sanguine credulity of youth, and all the fervid glow of enthusiasm, to make him believe it? Fortunate man, he has lived to see it! Fortunate indeed, if he lives to see nothing that shall vary the prospect, and cloud the setting of his day! . . . I pass, therefore, to the colonies in another point of view,—their agriculture. This they have prosecuted with such a spirit, that, besides feeding plentifully their own growing multitude, their annual export of grain, comprehending rich, has some years ago exceeded a million in value. Of their last harvest, I am persuaded, they will export much more. At the beginning of the century some of these colonies imported corn from the mother country. For some time past the old world has been fed from the new. The scarcity which you have felt would have been a desolating famine, if this child of your old age, with a true filial piety, with a Roman charity, had not put the full breast of its youthful exuberance to the mouth of its exhausted parent. As to the wealth which the colonies have drawn from the sea by their fisheries, you had all that matter fully opened at your bar. You surely thought those acquisitions of value, for they seemed even to excite your envy; and yet the spirit by which that enterprising employment has been exercised ought rather, in my opinion, to have raised your esteem and admiration. And pray, Sir, what in the world is equal to it? Pass by the other parts and look at the manner in which the people of New England have of late carried on the whale-fishery. Whilst we follow them along the tumbling mountains of ice, and behold them penetrating into the deepest frozen recesses of Hudson's Bay and Davis's straits, whilst we are looking for them beneath the arctic circle, we hear that they have pierced into the opposite region of polar cold, that they are at the antipodes, and engaged under the frozen serpent of the South. Falkland Island, which seemed too remote and romantic an object for the grasp of national ambition, is but a stage and resting-place in the progress of their victorious industry. Nor is the equinoctial heat more discouraging to them than the accumulated winter of both the poles. We know, that, whilst some of them draw the line and strike the harpoon on the coast of Africa, others run the longitude, and pursue their gigantic game along the coast of Brazil. No sea but what is vexed by their fisheries. No climate that is not witness to their toils. Neither the perseverance of Holland, nor the activity of France, nor the dexterous and firm sagacity of English enterprise, ever carried this most perilous mode of hardy industry to the extent to which it has been pushed by this recent people,—a people who are still, as it were, but in the gristle, and not yet hardened into the bone of manhood. When I contemplate these things,—when I know that the colonies in general owe little or nothing to any care of ours, and that they are not squeezed into this happy form by the constraints of watchful and suspicious government, but that through a wise and salutary neglect, a generous nature has been suffered to take her own way to perfection,—when I reflect upon these effects, when I see how profitable they have been to us, I feel all the pride of power sink, and all presumption in the wisdom of human contrivances melt and die away within me,—my rigour relents,—I pardon something to the spirit of liberty.

I am sensible, Sir, that all which I have asserted in my detail is admitted in the gross, but that quite a different conclusion is drawn from it. America, gentlemen say, is a noble object,—it is an object well worth fighting for. Certainly it is, if fighting a people be the best way of gaining them. Gentlemen in this respect will be led to their choice of means by their complexions and their habits. Those who understand the military art will of course have some predilection for it. Those who wield the thunder of the state may have more confidence in the efficacy of arms. But I confess, possibly for want of knowledge, my opinion is much more in favour of prudent management than that of force,—considering force not as an odious, but a feeble instrument for preserving a people so numerous, so active, so growing, so spirited as this, in a profitable and subordinate connection with us.—Edmund Burke.

Gives Data On Bovine Tuberculosis Tests and Indemnities Paid In Delaware

For the many dairymen in New Castle County who are expecting to have their dairy herds tested for bovine tuberculosis in the near future, or to those who might be interested in learning more of the testing project, County Agent Ed Willim, Jr., of Newark, has prepared a recent statement for their information. The Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, Ralph C. Wilson, of Dover, who is in direct charge of this testing work in the state, has given Mr. Willim the status and procedure of the testing project for this article.

On July 8, the County Agent wrote to Mr. Wilson for the latest information about T. B. testing of cattle as far as it applied to the upper county. The main questions in this letter to the secretary were: (1) Amount of appropriation for the work this year? (2) Where and how to apply for test? (3) How are reactors appraised and average indemnity paid?

Mr. Wilson's reply to the Agent's letter follows: Mr. Ed Willim, Jr., County Agricultural Agent, Newark, Delaware.

Dear Ed:—I am very glad to supply you with any information you may wish on the eradication of bovine tuberculosis.

Our appropriation for this work for the fiscal year from July 1, 1929, to June 30, 1930, is $75,000.00; however, this entire amount cannot, of course, be used for indemnities, as the salaries, expenses, and supplies of the inspectors must be paid out of this fund. It is necessary for us to handle the work in such manner that the appropriation will last until the end of the year.

When a cattle owner applies to have his herd tested, he signs an agreement to place his herd under State-Federal supervision, and to conform to the State and Federal regulations in regard to the testing and to eliminating tuberculosis from his herd. Under separate cover we are sending you a supply of applications for the test. These forms should be filled out and forwarded to this office by any one wishing their herd tested. Please have the farmers applying for a test sign the applications in duplicate and forward both copies to this office. We will then refer one application to our Veterinary Inspector located closest to the farmer wishing the test, and the Inspector will make the test at his first opportunity. The length of time before he could make the test would depend, of course, upon how much work he had lined up before the application was received, and also upon the location of the herd, as our Inspectors try to take care of as many herds as possible in one section at the same time.

In regard to the indemnity paid on reacting cattle, when animals react to the test applied by our Inspectors, the reactors are appraised jointly by our Inspector and the owner. The reactors are then sold to a butcher, to be slaughtered under Federal supervision, and the owner of the cattle receives the amount paid by the butcher, or the salvage. The State then pays the owner one-half the difference between the appraised value and the salvage, and the Federal Government pays him one-third this difference. For example: An animal is appraised at $100.00. The butcher pays $40.00, which amount is paid direct to the farmer. The State then pays the owner one-half the difference between the appraised value and the salvage, or one-half the difference between $100.00 and $40.00, or $60.00, which is $30.00 the amount of indemnity paid by the State. The Federal Government pays one-third $60.00, which is $20.00. The total amount, then, received in this case would be $90.00.

The amount at which an animal is appraised depends, of course, upon the value of the animal. As a rule, grade animals are appraised on an average of from $50.00 to $110.00, according to the value of the animal. Pure bred cattle are appraised at a higher amount, sometimes as high as $150.00. The highest amount, however, which the Federal Government can pay as one-third the difference between the appraised value and the salvage is $35.00 for a grade animal and $70.00 for a pure bred animal.

I believe that this covers the questions contained in your letter of July 8, however, if there are any points not quite clear, or if there is any additional information you might wish, I should be very glad to have you advise me.

Very truly yours,
Ralph C. Wilson, Secretary.

Application blanks for the dairymen to fill out are available in the office of the Agent at Newark. If any person wants to sign up for the work, Mr. Willim will be glad to discuss the matter more fully with the interested parties. "It will be only a matter of time, I believe," said Mr. Willim when asked his opinion about the sale of milk from non-tested herds, "when the dairyman who has non-tested cows will be unable to dispose of his raw milk on the fluid milk market. Just when this will be I am unable to say, but I do know that the milk companies receiving milk in this county are making big efforts to have their patrons get in line for the test at an early date. This seems to indicate that soon they will refuse to receive anything but milk from bovine tuberculosis accredited herds. In the near future, I believe, the milk consuming public will not want any raw milk but from tested cows and this economic necessity makes the milk companies ask their producers to get their herds tested as soon as advisable."

Mr. Wilson of the State Board of Agriculture is also interested in developing as soon as feasible, a tuberculosis-free area. In some states this has been done in entire counties, but in our state the Secretary thinks that it would be wise to start such a T. B. free area on the Hundred basis. This means that when 90 per cent of the herds in a Hundred area are tested and accredited that Hundred can be declared a T. B. free area. All the remaining herds are quarantined and the accredited herds need only be retested every three years instead of the period in effect

now. This would be a tremendous saving to the accredited herd owners in that Hundred as well as serve as a greater protection to their herds against non-tested stock. A man with an accredited herd should be very much in favor of this idea because it might often save him the trouble and expense of building an extra fence around his pasture or other fields to keep his cows away from neighboring untested ones.

The increase of a great number of citizens in prosperity is a necessary element to the security, and even to the existence, of a civilized people.—Buret.

ELK NECK

Rain visited Elk Neck last Saturday for the first time in six weeks. Gardens were drying up. Crops of all kinds were in bad shape, the rain was greatly needed.

The Sunday School of Harts M. E. Church held its picnic last Saturday. Although it rained a large crowd attended, a large shed built on the North East River front for making brick, with a floor space of fifty by three hundred feet, and owned by Mr. Wm. H. Ford, of Philadelphia, was used to shelter the picnic, everybody enjoyed themselves.

A very pleasant fishing party was given by Mr. and Mrs. John Futty, on the yacht "Josephine," last Tuesday. The party had a most enjoyable trip, running about the head of the Chesapeake Bay, and the fish caught was satisfying to those of the party, who were more interested in fishing than looking at the beautiful scenery. FASTEST TRAIN COVERS 77 MILES IN 70 MINUTES

By setting a new timing for a regular train from Cheltenham, England, to London, accelerating it to cover the last stage of the journey—the 77½ miles from Swindon to Paddington—in 70 minutes, the Great Western Railway has the fastest train in the world. Formerly this train was allowed 85 minutes between Swindon and Paddington, but a few years ago it was accelerated by 10 minutes, the average speed then becoming 61.8 miles an hour.

On its first trip on the new timing on July 8 the train was composed of nine coaches, making a weight of 269 tons behind the engine. According to the official log, it left Swindon on time at 3:45 and covered the 24¼ miles to Didcot in 22 minutes at a mean speed of 66.14 miles an hour. The time taken for the 17 miles between Didcot and Reading was 14 minutes, the speed being 72.86 miles an hour, and for the 17¼ miles between Reading and Slough 14½ minutes, or 72.41 miles an hour. The final 18½ miles from Slough to Paddington were covered in spite of the signal check at Acton in 18½ minutes, or exactly 60 miles an hour.

The train stopped at Paddington one minute before time, having run the 77½ miles from Swindon in 69 minutes at an average speed of 67.17 miles an hour, which is considered a remarkable achievement.

TO SOFTEN HARD WATER

Methods of making water soft all depend on whether the hardness is temporary or permanent. Temporary hardness is due chiefly to limestone or magnesium limestone held in solution by carbon dioxide, and can be removed by merely boiling the water; or it can be reduced by adding small quantities of lime water, followed by settling and filtering. Permanent hardness, which remains after boiling, is due largely to dissolved calcium sulphate or gypsum, and can be reduced by adding small quantities of washing-soda solution followed by settling and filtering. Inexperienced persons should not add chemicals to water intended for drinking purposes. If water is to be used for cleansing purposes, ammonia or borax is commonly used to soften it.

Christian Science Churches

"Love" was the subject of the lesson-sermon on Sunday, August 4, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist. Golden text: "The Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ." (II Thessalonians 3:5.)

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat or What shall we drink or Wherewithal shall we be clothed!—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. (Matt. 6:31, 33.)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need. It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour, divine Love supplies all good."

If I have enough for myself and family, I am steward for myself; if I have more, I am but a steward for that abundance for others.—George Herbert.

Obituary

HANNAH LAMBERT

Mrs. Hannah Lambert, aged 84 years, died yesterday in the New Castle County Hospital. Services will be held tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, advanced time, at the funeral home of Robert T. Jones. Interment will be in Elkton Cemetery.

HERBERT T. JAMES

Herbert T. James, respected colored citizen of this town, died suddenly at his home on Sunday, of a hemorrhage of the lungs. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the Mt. Zion Church, and interment was in the Mt. Zion Cemetery.

The deceased, who was 42 years of age, was janitor of both the Newark Methodist Church and the Newark Colored School building.

WATER-PIPES OF WOOD

Workmen at Showhagan, Me., excavating for a new theatre building, came upon a wooden water-pipe, sound and firm, estimated to be nearly 100 years old. Elderly New Englanders recall when most water-pipes were logs with a hole bored through. One end of the log was pointed, while the other end was hollowed out. Water could be carried long distances through such pipes with little leakage, for the moisture kept the wood swollen and the joints tight.

It requires a strong constitution to withstand repeated attacks of prosperity.—J. L. Basford.

CONVENIENCE KEYNOTE OF NEW INVENTION

At the opening of the new Franklin High School in Seattle, Washington, in 1912, Mr. Frank E. Best, who was given charge of the Industrial Arts department, was handed the keys for the various doors, cupboards, lockers, chests, etc., to which he would have access—a great bunch of them. As they were placed in his hands, the almost unconscious remark escaped his lips, "Why so many keys—why doesn't someone make a lock where one key will open them all." The custodian flashed back at him, "Well, that's your cue, go to it." This thought and the answer, coupled with a vision of the convenience of such a lock, prompted Mr. Best to give thought to such a subject. Thought was put into action during his spare time out of teaching hours, and after eight years of study of all the locking devices and methods, both ancient and modern, there was born a new idea in locking mechanism—the first major improvement in pin-tumbler structure since the Yale invention some fifty years before.

When submitted to the Patent Department at Washington, D. C., it was necessary to create a new sub-class in the lock division, there being nothing comparable to it in lock mechanism. Thus it is that there is in this lock that which is termed a basic patent. It was styled by the Patent Department "lock controlled assembly," deriving this name from the fact that the unit, or core which contains the combination, is a separate unit of the lock proper and is locked into the housing of the lock with a key.

This core, or lock-controlled assembly feature, makes it possible for one to enjoy the convenience of carrying but one key which will admit him to all of his locks—home, automobile, office, filing cabinet, locker, etc., and yet give to others of his family, or employ, access to just the lock or locks to which they have right of access, and no other, yet each has a different key from the others. Thus, there is greater security added to the convenience of a one-key system—doing away with the cumbersome bunch of keys.

The invention led Mr. Best further; and, as a result of his inventive mind, there are key combinators for "bitting" keys, and lock combinators for setting the combinations in the locks—a machine the like of which is not in use by any other lock manufacturing company. The use of these combinators makes for greater precision in locks and speeds combining and re-combining, and permits the convenience of a locking system rather than just a lock or group of locks.

Best Lock Corporation is the owner of Best Universal Locking System, and has its home office in Wilmington. Its officers are laying plans to build their eastern factory in or adjacent to that city, which will take care of the demand created for their automobile, locker, filing cabinet, luggage and other of their smaller size locks—a field so extensive in needs that one can scarcely realize its extent. One example will suffice: It is said that four automobile manufacturing companies use approximately one million locks a month.

The western factory is located in Seattle, Washington, where are made their padlocks and door locks. These are being supplied to users on the Pacific Coast and in Midwestern States, Canada, Hawaii, Australia and South America. Among these users are many nationally and international.

RECORD BUSINESS FOR MUNDORFF, BOTTLER

Aided by the excessive hot weather and the numerous carnivals and lawn fetes being held in and around Wilmington, the business of the Orange Crush Bottling Company, at Thirtieth and Market streets, Wilmington, has grown to such proportions that it has been necessary to work until late hours of the night, with additional help, to meet the demands. H. A. Mundorff, head of the concern, says that all records for turnover are being shattered.

Last night, two truck loads of bottled beverages were shipped down to Bethany Beach, where the National Guard will hold its encampment for the next two weeks. Additional supplies will be sent as needed. Large quantities of the Mundorff drinks were consumed at the American Legion carnival, the carnival of the Brandywine Hundred Fire Company, at Holly Oak, and a carnival at New London, Pa.

In addition to augmenting his force of employees, Mr. Mundorff has found his fleet of trucks unable to cope with the delivery demands, and has had to hire extra machines.

APPOINTMENT PRODUCTION MANAGER AT CANN BROS.

Announcement is made by Cann Brothers and Kindig, printers, of Twelfth and Orange streets, Wilmington, of the appointment of H. E. Klepper as production manager. Mr. Klepper comes to the Wilmington firm from the Franklin Printing Company, a nationally known concern of Philadelphia. He will be in the shop at all times and have complete charge of the entire force.

Cann Brothers received an order last week for 25,000 eight-page folders from the Wilson Line. These pamphlets, which will be profusely illustrated with interesting scenes on the Delaware and ferry routes, will be delivered at an early date. The firm last week mailed out 33,000 copies of the shopping guide issued by the Chamber of Commerce, all over the Delmarva Peninsula. It is also bidding on a number of other important awards from this body. The night and day shifts of the company enable it to take on large orders for early delivery without extra charge.

RESIDENTIAL WORK FOR ART STONE CO.

Several new tile contracts were received by the Art Stone and Tile Company, 2500 West Fourth street, Wilmington, of which Arthur Pavoni is the proprietor, during the past week. The concern will do two bathrooms in the residence being built at Holly Oak, by the Brandywine Construction Company, for N. L. Brent. Similar work will be done in each of the baths in the two-family homes being built by Clarence Yost, at Twenty-seventh and Jefferson streets. Tile work in two bathrooms is also being done in the home of E. H. Worth, at Claymont, as well as in the baths of the Kemper A. Pierson residence, on Penny Hill.

THIRTEEN BILLIONS FOR CRIME

Crime, according to Wade Ellis of the American Bar Association's Crime Commission, costs the United States $13,000,000,000 a year.

We have 12,000 murders annually, 50 times the number recorded in Great Britain. Since 1900 our murder rate has increased 350 per cent.

The causes of crime are many and foremost among them Mr. Ellis places our multiplicity of laws which, by simple mathematics, has increased the total of crimes. Every new law breeds new criminals, decreases respect for society and places new burdens on our courts of justice.

It is a disheartening fact that the great majority of our citizens take crime more or less as a matter of course. What is needed is an active public consciousness that will force a simplification and reform of our laws and legal system, and oppose the tendency to pile more enactments on the already bulging statute books. Too many laws touch the good citizen and fail to discomfort the criminal.

The sole test for any law is whether it protects society and punishes or reforms the underworld. We must return to first principles in our war against crime.

VOLTAIRE'S SWISS HOME BOUGHT AS A SHRINE

Les Delices, the house in which Voltaire lived in St. Jean, Switzerland, has been purchased by the Municipal Council for nearly $250,000, to be kept as a shrine. It had been feared that Les Delices would be razed, as was Calvin's home near by, but petitions aroused a feeling in favor of saving it.

In 1754, when Voltaire was at the peak of his fame and influence, he purchased this home, intending to make it a great meeting place, since it was located conveniently near to France, Geneva, Vaud and Sardinia. When not working on his writings—"Candide" was written at Les Delices—Voltaire interested himself in theatrical enterprises until the authorities interfered. It was after this that he went to his famous home, Ferney, across the border in France.

TROUSERS PLEASE WOMEN

The wearing of trousers by women is becoming so widespread that the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers suggests in its recent bulletin that within a year women will don pajamas for house wear and even for porch and lawn use.

During the period when women started to wear knickerbockers there was a loud outcry against disappearing femininity, but the demand for sun and air brought about new fashions, until in Venice and on the Riviera society found that it could be both smart and comfortable lying about on the beaches in pajamas. The latest costumes are the overalls, printed and plain, with hats of rough straw or fabric.

HORNSLESS BEEF BEST

Horns and choice-beef carcasses do not go together. Badly bruised carcasses are often found in shipments of horned cattle, and bring from 25 to 75 cents a hundred-weight less than dehorned cattle of similar quality. The development of horns can be prevented by the use of caustic soda or caustic potash when the calves are from 4 to 10 days old. Care should be taken to rub the caustic only over the horn buttons, and rubbing should be discontinued before the spots bleed. Pine tar applied after the removal of horns helps to keep away flies and to check bleeding.

WOODEN INDIAN STILL WITH US

The wooden Indian who formerly guarded every reputable cigar store has long been relegated to that dusty remembered era of iron rods, immovable Little Red Riding Hoods and conceits of the brave decade. While one might expect to find a forgotten and weather-beaten wooden figure, gracing some small, sleepy town, or hidden away in a remote corner, it comes with something of a shock to stumble upon a life-sized Indian, standing on guard duty on the sidewalks of New York. There he remains, on Third avenue, his hand raised in salute, his form sufficiently squat and formidable to impress passing youngsters, who gaze upon him in mingled respect and fear.
