Mum's the word

by Nancy Turner

Mum's the word, but their colors are fairly shouting with glee.

In autumn, chrysanthemums in town gardens and on rural farms are in their glory, heralding a final farewell to summer with brilliant yellows, reds and purples.

Longwood Gardens in near-by Kennett Square, Pa. is celebrating with its annual Chrysanthemum Festival, which runs through Nov. 20.

Theme of this year's festival is "In the Dragon's Garden," and throughout Longwood will offer a variety of music, dance and cultural events showcasing the Chinese Year of the Dragon.

A highlight is the traditional dragon dance and fireworks display, being held at 8:45 p.m. Saturdays. A 40-foot dragon, navigated by 11 dancers from the Chinese School of Delaware, will lead visitors in a winding procession to the fireworks site.

For details on this and other Chrysanthemum Festival programs, call (215) 388-6741.

Although it is not reflected in their retail prices of $3.50 to $4 each, hardy chrysanthemums, otherwise known as garden mums, are the result of centuries of plant breeding.

Native to subtropical and temperate regions of the Old World, modern chrysanthemums are a mainstay in Delaware gardens and come in

State races enter the final stretch

by Cathy Thomas

The battle for Delaware's U.S. Senate seat may be the race that draws the most state voters to the polls Tuesday.

In New Castle County, fierce battles for county executive and county council president are expected to attract voters.

Races will be decided in statewide balloting 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

In hand-to-hand combat for the U.S. Senate seat are incumbent Republican Sen. William V. Roth and Democratic challenger S.B. Woo.

Roth, an attorney, has held the Senate seat for more than 20 years. Woo, currently the state's lieutenant governor, believes his experience as a scientist and educator is needed in the Senate.

In complete contrast to the Senate race is the campaign for Delaware's seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Incumbent Democratic Congressman Thomas R. Carper and his Republican challenger James P. Krapf Sr. have campaigned very quietly.

Carper, who has been in Congress since 1983, hopes he and his opponent can remain friends after the election. Krapf, chief executive officer of a Newark building firm, said he has been campaigning like a gentleman.

Republican Gov. Michael N. Castle is seeking another four years in office. Democrat Jacob Kreshtool, a retired labor relations lawyer, is seeking his first political post in the race for the governor's seat.

Castle has been campaigning on his accomplishments the past four years. Kreshtool believes

- Voter apathy, 6a
- Roth vs. Woo, 7a
- Poll results, 9a
- In the booth, 10a
- Sample ballot, 11a

there are problems in the state that Castle has not dealt with as governor.

In choosing a lieutenant governor, voters will have to decide if the position is a part of the governor's team or an independent watchdog.

Republican Dale E. Wolf has been campaigning as a part of Castle's team, while Democrat Gary E. Hinde believes the lieutenant governor need not be so closely aligned with the governor.

Wolf is the former director of the Delaware Development Office and was previously employed by the DuPont Company. Hinde is the chief executive officer of an investment firm.

Seeking re-election as the state's insurance commissioner is Democrat David N. Levinson. Levinson is opposed by Republican Ruth Matruder.

On the county level, Republican incumbent Rita Justice is fighting to keep her post as county executive. Democrat Dennis E. Greenhouse, currently the state's auditor, is hoping to gain hold of the executive position.

Glasgow's Saxton questions Dukakis during 'meeting'

Andy Saxton, a student at Glasgow High School, got a chance to address Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis Tuesday during a nationally televised "town meeting."

Saxton, president of the Glasgow High student council, received air time on the CNN broadcast when he was allowed to ask a question by telephone as Dukakis responded from town meeting headquarters in Boston.

The question posed by Saxton was, "How do you plan to take care of the homeless and the people without jobs without raising taxes or cutting defense spending?"

Dukakis answered, "We can't do it all without doing some of these things. We have to cut some spending because we can't go on the way we are."

He added that the nation must do something to provide affordable housing, and suggested the construction of low-cost units and a recommitment to the issue.

According to Alex Cameron, press secretary with the Dukakis campaign in Delaware, the purpose of the town meeting was to "generally present Dukakis in a give-and-take with the people."

Saxton said Glasgow High was selected as a representative school because of its achievements in student government. "We have a very strong student government," he said,

Trustees promise 'open process'

by Cathy Thomas

The University of Delaware trustees have promised a more "open process" as they search for a president to succeed Dr. Russel C. Jones, who resigned abruptly Oct. 24.

In the meantime, the trustees have named former University president Dr. E. Arthur Trabant as president pending the completion of the search.

Trabant, 68, served as the University president for 19 years before stepping down in June 1987 to join the faculty.

"Dr. Trabant enjoys teaching," said Trustees Chairman J. Bruce Bredin. "He will give up that role while he is president of the University. He is very enthusiastic about coming back as president for a short time."

Trabant may serve as president for up to two years, though. "We'd like to have a new president in position in a year from September — earlier, if we find a qualified candidate," said Bredin.

Trustee John E. (Jack) Burns of Milford has been named as chairman of the search committee. He will be assisted by E. Norman Veasey, who will serve as vice-chairman.

Trustee chairman-elect Andrew B. Kirkpatrick Jr. said the rest of the search committee will be named later during an organizational meeting. Kirkpatrick said the search for a new president would be an "open process." University faculty members were critical of the selection process which resulted in the hiring of Jones because they were not involved.

"It would be up to the search committee to make up the procedures," said Kirkpatrick, who said the committee would seek advice from all sources. "That would certainly involve the faculty," he said.

• New Castle County Council has rejected the county-wide seat belt proposal.

Council voted 5-2, along party lines, to reject the proposal from Republican County Executive Rita Justice.

"They defeated the seat belt ordinance solely for political reasons," said Justice. "The seat belt ordinance was supported by all major safety groups."

Some Democrats charged that the proposal itself was made merely for political purposes.

Justice presented what would have been the first county-wide seat belt law in the country several weeks prior to what is expected to be a close election battle with Democrat Dennis Greenhouse.

The state legislature has considered a state-wide seat belt law a number of times, but it has always been rejected.

• Delaware Crime Stoppers is seeking the identity of a driver who struck and killed a pedestrian Aug. 20 on U.S. 40.

The pedestrian was in the west-bound lane of U.S. 40, two-tenths of a mile east of Scotland Avenue when he was struck.

The driver fled the scene. He is described as a white male with dark or black hair and wearing glasses. He was driving a white Trans-Am or Mustang and had a headlight out prior to the accident.

There should have been front end and hood damage to the car and possible damage to the windshield.

• Delaware State Police confiscated about $200,000 worth of cocaine Wednesday, Oct. 26, after stopping a car on Interstate 95 near Churchman's Road.

Police said the driver of the car, Carlos Alberto Sanchez, 31, of New York City, was arrested for possession of cocaine with intent to deliver and turned over to the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

According to police, State Police Cpl. Robert J. Durnan stopped Sanchez for speeding. Durnan asked for, and received, written permission to search the vehicle.

Durnan allegedly found two kilos of cocaine under the rear seat.

• Supplies for the Nicaraguan victims of Hurricane Joan are being collected by Pacem in Terris and the Newark-San Francisco Libre Sister City Project.

The hurricane relief drive will run through Nov. 18 with collection points in both Wilmington and Newark.

The items most urgently needed are tents, blankets and clothing. Boxes may be dropped off at the Newark United Methodist Church, 69 E. Main St. The boxes must be labeled "Sister City."

Hurricane Joan, the first hurricane to cause serious damage in Nicaragua since 1911, left 60 dead and 300,000 homeless.

• Volunteer Link is seeking volunteers to fill a variety of positions, including several here. Newark positions include recreation help for the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation, kitchen and classroom aides at Newark Day Nursery, and child care and grounds maintenance at the Western Branch YMCA. Other assignments include drivers, tutors, Kalmar Nyckel shipyard help, guides and office help. To volunteer or for more information, call 571-2620.

• The 1988 United Negro College Fund campaign is under way, and organizers hope to raise $215,000 in Delaware. Chairing the state campaign is William F. Lalor, president of the ICI Pharmaceuticals Group.

Lalor said the UNCF drive is important because "as a nation, our strength remains in the quality and caliber of our people. We are going to need more skilled and highly trained workers and, based on all population forecasts, a greater percentage of these future employees are going to come from the minority segment of our country."

Schools consider holiday guidelines

by Cathy Thomas

Dr. Michael Walls

The celebration of religious holidays in the Christina School District will continue for the time being.

However, a committee of parents and religious leaders plan to closely monitor upcoming holiday programs to ensure they are sensitive to the beliefs of all children.

"If we make kids uncomfortable in our schools, then we need to look at the issue," said Christina Superintendent Dr. Michael Walls during a meeting of the committee Thursday.

The committee met to discuss guidelines for celebrating religious holidays in the schools. The guidelines had been developed earlier by another committee.

Walls said the issue of religious holidays usually surfaces around the Jewish holidays in the fall. Some parents who choose to keep their children out of school for the Jewish holidays request that no major tests be scheduled on those days.

Walls said memos are sent to all the teachers instructing them to not schedule tests, but it often happens that one or more do.

"I don't think any teacher said 'to heck with it, I'm going to schedule a test on that day,'" said Walls.

Unfortunately, some teachers forget about the memo, he said.

While many committee members recognize the importance of teaching children about cultural diversity, they are concerned that children might be forced into celebrating something in which they don't believe.

"It's really traumatic (for a child) to have to stand up to adults and tell them 'I don't celebrate Christmas,'" said John Courtright, a parent with two children in the district.

The committee was not able to reach a consensus on what constitutes teaching about a religion and what constitutes a celebration of that religion.

One suggestion discussed was holding winter programs in January rather than holiday programs in December. Walls acknowledged that it is an intriguing concept, but one that probably would not be well accepted by some teachers and parents.

The committee will meet again in December to review the upcoming holiday programs.

"We're going to try to be reasonable," said Walls. "There's no doubt in my mind that we will not make everyone happy in the community."

Churchman's Reservoir gains approval

Federal approval has been granted to local water officials to begin development of the proposed Churchman's Reservoir near Newark.

The reservoir may be the key to meeting the area's long-range water needs, according to Bernard Dworsky, director of the New Castle County Water Resources Agency.

"It is on or around the year of 2010 that we would evidence a shortfall of total water supply," said Dworsky.

The $40 million dollar reservoir will likely take 15 years to complete, according to Dworsky.

"We're not starting too soon," he said.

Although local officials have been granted the go-ahead on the project, Dworsky said they are not ready to begin construction.

Along with their approval to proceed, the Army Corps of Engineers has ordered an environmental impact study. Before the study can begin, additional detailed background information must be gathered.

The Churchman's Reservoir is to be located in the marshy area along Interstate 95 near Churchman's Road.

A lengthy series of analyses of impacts on wetlands, wildlife, water quality and other environmental resources will be needed. The analyses are expected to take more than a year to complete.

The Delaware General Assembly has allocated $100,000 to fund the study. Two private water companies involved in the project, Artesian Water Co. and Wilmington Suburban Water Corp., will also donate funds to support the study.

If the study indicates the reservoir is feasible, federal officials will issue construction permits to build the 250-acre reservoir. It will hold two billion gallons of water.

It is possible that construction permits may not be issued. In that case, Dworsky said officials will have to look at alternative sites, such as the Thompson Station site north of Newark.

• S.B. Woo, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, said he has "filed suit in the Court of Public Opinion" against his opponent, Republican incumbent William V. Roth.

In the mock suit, Woo asks Delaware's 319,000 voters to serve as judges on his charges that Roth has distorted his position on taxes.

"We're all fed up with the mudslinging and distortions in the TV ads of this campaign season," said Woo. "I think we should be talking about issues rather than distorting each other's words and ideas."

Medical research facility established

A multifaceted medical research facility, the Medical Research Institute of Delaware, has been established and will be headquartered at Christiana Hospital.

The new facility is a joint venture of the Medical Center of Delaware, the state and the local pharmaceutical industry.

It will "place Delaware in the forefront of medical technology, new drugs and other health-related research projects," according to a statement by the Medical Center.

The Medical Research Institute will provide a location for companies to complete drug studies and an environment for the exchange of ideas among the participating institutions.

It will also serve as a center for the study of cost effective delivery of alternative health care systems in the state.

At the same time, it is expected the institute will enhance recruitment and retention of talented physicians by the Medical Center and by local pharmaceutical companies.

"This unique, mutually beneficial enterprise strengthens the research and development capabilities of the state, the University of Delaware, the pharmaceutical companies and the Medical Christiana Hospital will be the site of a newly-established medical research institute.

Center," said Dr. Peter Chodoff, vice president of medical education and research at the Medical Center.

"The Medical Center is now a major asset for the attraction of broad-based health-related industries to the Wilmington-Newark area," he said.

The institute is being established through a one-time $500,000 grant from the state.

The DuPont Co. and ICA will provide operational grants for the next four years.

In addition, the Medical Center is donating 6,000 square feet of space at Christiana Hospital.

Overseeing the institute will be a five-member board made up of representatives of the Medical Center, the University of Delaware, Jefferson Medical College, DuPont and ICI.

"The entire community benefits from the institute," said Chodoff. "In addition to new drug studies, the (institute) serves as an objective research-based facility to provide information and to respond to concerns that the public might have about drugs, environmental hazards or other health-economic issues."

Like ducks to water, workers enjoy contest

If you stopped by the Newark Municipal Building Monday, you would have gotten a treat for your eyes.

You would have seen Huey, Louie and Dewey Duck, the Three Amigos and a woman in a shower.

In what has become a light-hearted tradition, city employees donned wild get-ups and participated in a costume contest late in the day.

The costumes ranged from cute to ridiculous. Some served as inside jokes among city employees.

Winning first place in the costume contest were the ducks. Linda Mullens in the water department was Huey, Sue Jester in the finance department was Dewey, and Theresa Kwiatkowski in the public works department was Louie.

A rather ingenious costume was worn by Jeanne Hagerty of the building department. She won second place as a woman in a shower, complete with shower curtain, nozzle and shower cap.

Some of the costumes took a little analyzing to determine what they were. Joseph Dombrowski, city water and wastewater director, had on a graduation robe covered with bicycle and birthday horns. He took third place in the costume contest.

Fourth place went to the Three Amigos in the city planning department — Roy Lopata, city planning director, Maureen Roser, associate planner and Mary Conway, assistant.

There were other costumes that did not win in the contest but were entertaining.

City Public Works Director Art Fridl spent the day as a Fiji native. His costume was a grass skirt and a Hawaiian shirt.

Marta Vazquez, secretary to David Fitzgerald, city human services director, came as a wino. Fitzgerald also serves as the director of the Alcohol Abuse Commission.

If you had walked into the city manager's office, you might have been a little spooked. City Manager Carl Luft wore the mask of a white-haired ghoul.

Reports from city hall indicate that despite all the costume fun work was accomplished and city operations ran as usual.

For Trabant, a case of deja vu

by Cathy Thomas

It was a case of deja vu for Dr. E. Arthur Trabant as he returned to the role of University of Delaware president last week after less than two years in retirement.

Trabant was selected by the University trustees to serve as interim president until a replacement is selected for Dr. Russel C. Jones. Jones resigned Oct. 24 to join the University engineering faculty.

Trabant served as University president for 19 years before resigning in 1987 to become a mathematics professor.

"To be asked to be a president at such a fine university at this stage in life, that was a unique experience and we (he and his wife, Jeri) wanted to live it," said Trabant.

Some very important concerns are facing Trabant, among them affirmative action concerns of minority faculty, staff and students.

"One would think as a state university and a land grant college, that it would be very reflective, a very responsive leader in our new society in our nation," said Trabant. "That means, of course, changes in our educational program."

Trabant said the University must show its commitment to minority concerns. "I think it's important that we do something," he said.

Trabant is trying to make a smooth transition to his management style. Part of that style means no major changes in administration.

"I expect to make no changes, but that doesn't mean that there won't be changes," said Trabant.

Although he hit the ground running when he took over the office, Trabant has put some time aside to update himself on the current operations of the University.

He has also had to acquaint himself with some new trustees. "There are some trustees that don't really know me and all the rest haven't worked with me on the basis of president," said Trabant. "I wanted to make sure that they realize that I'm a different person."

Trabant considers himself a direct person, but does not like to be rude. It is possible, he said, to be friendly and to disagree.

"I like to be direct, very much like to have things in the open," said Trabant. "I wanted to, in some way, remind them that congeniality does not necessarily reflect weakness or a lack of commitment."

Because he was a professor for more than a year, Trabant said he now has a new perspective on the University. As a professor, Trabant was able to meet his colleagues and the students.

"You do share, when you're a professor, the pains of trying to be a good student," said Trabant.

The number of undergraduate and graduate students at the University is of concern to Trabant. Undergraduate enrollment is too high, he said, while there are not enough graduate students.

"I sense that the campus environment is being strained by too many undergraduate students," said Trabant. "Although it's a difficult thing to deny opportunity to individuals to come to the University, if we reduce numbers, that's what we'll be doing."

Trabant said he will be working with administration and students to reduce undergraduate numbers. "You just can't slash it or anything like that, but I think it's too high right now," said Trabant.

Graduate enrollment should be increased to about 3,000 students from the current 2,100, according to Trabant.

A native of southern California, Trabant has spent his life in the academic world, serving as a teacher or administrator at several colleges and universities.

"I don't think that anything is as important in our world, certainly in our whole nation, than education," said Trabant. "I have a passionate belief in the power of education."

TRUSTEES

Kirkpatrick said Trabant would immediately address the concerns of black students and faculty on campus, who were highly critical of Jones.

Bredin said Jones would likely remain as a tenured faculty member for at least a year or two.

"I've talked to him (Jones) about this," said Bredin. "His latest thing is he would like to be a research professor rather than a teaching professor."

Jones would serve in the College of Engineering, the college in which Trabant was teaching before accepting the trustees' call.

The holidays are especially difficult after a death in the family. Usually a joyous time full of memories, the recently bereaved often feel the season makes their loss more painful.

That's why we are sponsoring this special program with practical ways to "get through the holidays" while coping with mixed emotions. An expert speaker from Accord, Inc., a national grief counseling service, will present valuable insight into how others have coped with the stress of the holidays. Different ways to commemorate a loved one will be shown as well.

Few voters 'enchanted' with presidential candidates

by Cathy Thomas

Voter apathy will dampen turnout at the polls Tuesday, according to Dr. James R. Soles, University of Delaware political science professor.

"I think there's been a growing tendency for voters to be apathetic," said Soles. "The turnout has dropped since 1960."

Nearly 65 percent of the eligible voters cast ballots in 1960, compared to barely half in 1984.

Soles said many voters are not enchanted with the two major presidential candidates, Republican George Bush and Democrat Michael Dukakis.

Even among voters who have made a choice, Soles said there is not an intensity of support for the candidates.

"They wish they had another choice," said Soles. "I have a feeling that the wish they had another choice may result in even a lower turnout this year."

The lack of voter interest can be attributed to the way the politicians campaign, according to Soles. More and more politicians are using negative advertising as a way to win.

"I think negative ads work in most places," said Soles. "Because it works there's an increasing amount of it."

No matter how much voter interest wanes because of negative advertising, Soles said politicians will continue to use it as long as it is effective.

"I think it would be very interesting to have the candidates sign a pledge that they would talk about themselves instead of their opponent," said Soles. "I think that would provide more light and less heat in the campaign."

This year's presidential candidates have been very carefully managed and handled, according to Soles. Media professionals have had very few opportunities to question candidates directly. "When you have less access, you limit the flow of information about the candidates," said Soles.

According to Soles, America has "reached the point where we sell our candidates like breakfast cereal or tires." The major difference, he said, is that advertisers of products must follow truth-in-advertising regulations.

Soles said a pretty good job is done on educating people about the importance of voting, but this country falls short in voter registration.

"We should make it much easier to register and vote," he said.

A co-author of "Government of Delaware," Soles said Delaware voters tend to be more active than those in other states, with a higher percentage going to the polls.

In 1984, 60 percent of Delaware residents eligible to vote did so. Among the registered voters, 82 percent cast ballots.

In contrast to those figures, 55 percent of the eligible voters in the country cast ballots in the 1984 election.

Because of Delaware's small size, Soles said there is an openness in local politics. "We all know each other in Delaware," he said. "That has a large impact on politics in Delaware."

The fact that many people know the candidates they are voting for makes for better politics here, he said.

Soles predicts that there won't be much of a change in the face of the General Assembly. (His wife, Democratic State Rep. Ada Leigh Soles, is unopposed and so will retain her seat.)

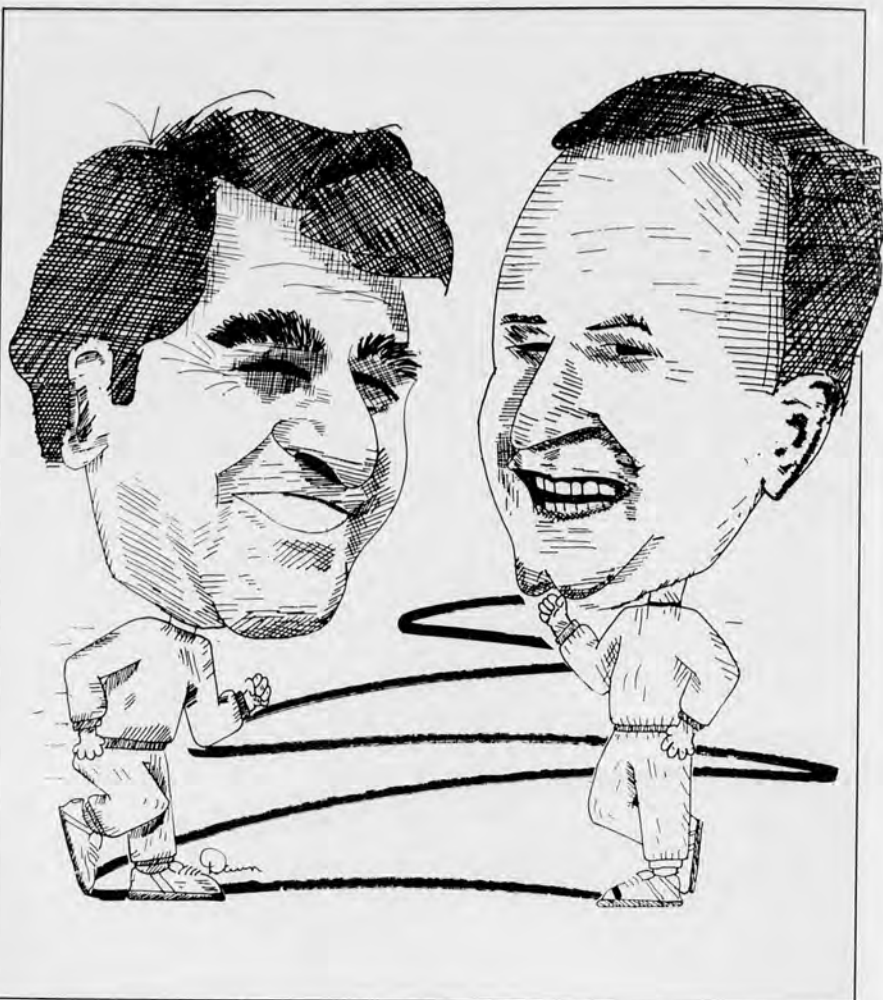

One of the closest races on election night will be the battle for the New Castle County Executive seat between incumbent Republican Rita Justice and Democrat Dennis Greenhouse, Soles predicts.

Who voters choose to be lieutenant governor will depend on what kind of state government they want, he said. Republican Dale Wolfe is campaigning as part of a "team" with incumbent Gov. Michael Castle, while Democrat Gary Hindes has pledged to be an independent lieutenant governor. Jacob Kreshtool is the Democrat running for governor.

The race that has generated a lot of interest, according to Soles, is the hard-fought campaign between incumbent Republican U.S. Sen. William V. Roth and Democrat S.B. Woo.

Soles said most people want to know that their vote is relevant, that it is going to make a difference.

"Many people do not see the connection of their vote and the issues that concern them," said Soles. "By opting out of the system, they are preventing the very things they want to happen from happening."

Roth, Woo locked in fight for US Senate seat

by Cathy Thomas

To call the race between incumbent Republican U.S. Sen. William V. Roth and Democratic challenger S.B. Woo a campaign battle is an understatement.

The donkeybrook for the Senate seat has been the hardest fought battle in Delaware politics this election year.

Both candidates have spent a lot on advertising attacking their opponent. They have also been bringing in big-name politicians to boost their campaigns.

Democratic Senators Edward Kennedy and Bill Bradley have visited Delaware to tout Woo, while in his most recent campaign advertisement Roth draws on the support of President Ronald Reagan.

Although some political observers have been disappointed by the tone of the Senate campaign, Woo disagrees with the contention that his advertising has been negative.

"I have not done negative ads," said Woo. "A negative ad is to hit an opponent on a personal point, or to distort a fact or quoting out of context."

Woo has attacked Roth's record in the Senate, saying his opponent has voted against education, childcare and senior citizen's issues. "A lot of people don't know about his voting record," said Woo.

Roth counters that Woo has only selected a few votes out of thousands he has made during more than 20 years in the Senate. "You have to look at the record as a whole," said Roth. "I object strongly to someone taking a specific vote now or then."

Roth said if he had voted for every proposal, it would have cost the government $75 billion. "You can't vote for every proposal every time," Roth said.

Woo acknowledges that he selected a few dozen of Roth's votes, but said the votes he selected were crucial ones.

Roth said he is "disappointed" about the tone of the campaign. He said Woo was upset when his Democratic opponent in the primary, Samuel Beard, distorted his record.

"He did exactly the same thing," said Roth. "I was disappointed that he took that road."

Roth said he is proud of his record in the Senate, particularly the Roth-Kemp tax legislation. The 1981 legislation was instrumental in improving the economy, he said.

Woo feels he has laid the groundwork to serve in the U.S. Senate. During the past four years as lieutenant governor of the state, Woo has worked with foreign investors. He also believes his experience as a scientist and educator are needed in the Senate.

RE-ELECT SENATOR ROGER MARTIN...

A MESSAGE FROM SENATOR ROGER MARTIN

Dear Friend:

Since you first elected me to the Delaware State Senate in 1972, I have dedicated myself to being your voice in the General Assembly.

I have led the fight for our shared concerns: quality education for our children, preservation of our environment, fiscal and economic strength for our State, a fair and just workplace for working men and women, a comprehensive transportation system, and responsive services for senior citizens and families at risk.

In addition, I am proud of having taken the lead in the State Senate to enact the Quality of Life Package that seeks to manage growth properly while preserving our precious natural resources.

If re-elected, I will once again meet our most pressing challenges head on: providing affordable quality day care, creating drug-free schools, and protecting jobs by fighting for parental leave legislation.

As your Senator for the past sixteen years and as a historian, I fully recognize that elected public service is not a right, but a privilege bestowed upon us by the electorate. I feel extremely fortunate to have represented your concerns in Dover.

Once again, I am asking for your support on Election Day, Tuesday, November 8. If you share my conviction that I have represented you wisely in Dover, I would respectfully request that you return me to the Senate so that I may continue to work on your behalf.

Sincerely,

Roger A. Martin

Survey shows few close races in state

by Cathy Thomas

Delawareans have made up their minds when it comes to national and statewide political campaigns, according to the findings of a survey conducted by students.

The Delaware Voter Preference Survey, co-sponsored by the Delaware Chapter of the American Statistical Association and Delaware schools, found no close races here among either the national or statewide contests.

According to survey findings, 51.4 percent of the state's voters support Republican George Bush in the presidential race, while 37.8 percent say they will vote for Democrat Michael Dukakis.

The hotly-contested race for Delaware's U.S. Senate seat is going in favor of incumbent Republican Sen. William V.

Roth, according to the survey results. Fifty percent of the voters polled said they would cast a ballot for Roth, while 40 percent said they would vote for Democrat S.B. Woo.

Roth leads Woo in all age groups except 18 to 29 year olds, where Woo has a 3 percent lead.

Incumbent Democratic Congressman Thomas R. Carper has a decided lead over his Republican challenger James P. Krapf. Carper was favored by 57.6 of the voters polled, while 21 percent said they would vote for Krapf.

Incumbent Republican Gov. Michael N. Castle would win by a wide margin, according to the survey. Castle has garnered support from 71 percent of the voters polled while Democrat Jacob Kreshtool is supported by 17 percent.

According to the survey results, the lieutenant governor's campaign may be the closest statewide race. Republican Dale Wolf is favored by 48.5 percent while 32.4 percent back Democrat Gary Hindes.

The survey indicates incumbent Democratic Insurance Commissioner David N. Levinson will win over Republican Ruth L. Matruder, 56.5 percent to 14.9 percent.

The students called some 5,000 randomly selected registered voters throughout the state of Delaware. There were 1,300 responses. The survey analysis is based on 1,215 responses from people who said they are likely to vote in the 1988 election.

The survey, conducted Oct. 20-23, has a three percent margin of error.

James M. Lucas of the association believes the poll is sound. "I think it was a very good poll," he said. "I think it reflects the way the voters feel."

The survey taken four years ago "was pretty successful," he said.

One reason for the poll is increased political awareness among students, and Lucas said "there was a lot of enthusiasm and excitement" among the young volunteers.

Philadelphia Inquirer Endorses Woo

Saturday, October 29, 1988

EDITORIALS

A pitch for Woo

One of Delaware's two strong Senate candidates offers something different — he's a scientist

Delaware is indeed "a small wonder," not much larger than the average congressional district in population. But its U.S. senators of late have strutted surprisingly large on the national stage: Sen. Joe Biden as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee during the infamous Meese and Bork hearings (and briefly as contender for the Democratic presidential nomination); and Sen. William V. Roth Jr., Delaware's senior statewide official, as co-author of the infamous Kemp-Roth tax-cut bill that provided the blueprint for the borrow-and-spend house of cards that Reaganomics built.

Sen. Roth, now 67, is not running away from that record as he campaigns against the feisty Democratic challenge of Lt. Gov. S.B. Woo, one of America's few Asian-born elected officials. Perhaps Sen. Roth recalls that David Levinson, his challenger in 1982, pulled out all the stops in an attack on the tax cuts, even speculating that a "Grapes of Roth" Depression was a short distance down the pike — only to lose by a wide margin.

Mr. Woo, who squeaked past his primary opponent by 71 votes — "Landslide Woo," he calls himself — is continuing the attack on the Rothian "trickle-down" theory of economics. But he adds a new gimmick. He bills himself as the only scientist (he's a physics professor from the University of Delaware) running for a Senate packed with 66 lawyers, including Mr. Roth. He says he understands technology and how it can make America competitive again. He claims that, unlike most of the Senate's incumbents, he has both an abiding interest in, and comprehension of, America's new competitors around the Pacific rim.

His political resume is, however, short. He claims credit for helping land foreign investment to revive a Delaware steel mill and for trade missions of indeterminate success. What he does have is the ability to project an engaging spirit and energy. He is particularly convincing on environmental issues and on the trade imbalance. And he's learned how to exploit the role of underdog, having successfully gone against the party leaders' choices in his races for both the lieutenant governorship and the Senate nomination.

Mr. Roth knows about being an underdog. A former chemical company lawyer, he began political life in Delaware by running unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor in 1960 and then won — as a decided underdog — Delaware's House seat in 1966. He has a following today forged from his early anti-busing stands, from his popular fight against Pentagon fraud, and from his claim to be "the taxpayer's best friend."

For his part, S.B. Woo is perhaps too Pollyannaish about technology's ability to solve the world's problems. But he might bring to the Senate the same kind of intellectual vigor and fresh perspective that he has brought to the campaign. It is a close call, but The Inquirer commends S.B. Woo to Delaware voters.

THE '88 VOTE

A trip to voting booth can mean case of nerves

by Nancy Turner

Voting is a right, as well as a duty, shared by American citizens.

Unfortunately, because the opportunity to vote arises only once every year or two, some voters become nervous upon entering their local polling place to cast a ballot.

They are concerned that maybe they have forgotten how to use the electronic voting machine and suffer many of the same anxieties experienced by the new registrant participating in his first election.

This is all quite normal. To allay any latent fears, here is a quick refresher course on using the electronic voting machine.

And remember, if you have any questions when you walk into the polling place Tuesday, Nov. 8, don't hesitate to ask for assistance from a poll attendant. While the attendants cannot enter the machine with you, unless you are visually or physically impaired, they are available to answer questions from outside the booth.

• Voting hours will be from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. You can call the New Castle Department of Elections at 571-3464 or the League of Women Voters of Delaware at 571-8948 for the location of your district's polling place. Those locations are also printed on election identification cards mailed to new registrants. The Department of Elections will also provide information on transportation to and from polling places.

• At the polling place, you may be asked to show proof of residency within the polling district so it is a good idea to carry a driver's license, rent receipt or some other form of identification that bears your name and current address.

• A polling clerk will ask for your name and check it against the poll list. He or she will repeat your name out loud. Then you will be handed a signature card by a second clerk and asked to sign it. Two judges will compare your signature with the one of file for you in the election district book. Be sure to sign your name the same way you signed it in that book.

• An inspector will direct you to an empty voting booth where, after entering, you turn a small red lever to the right. It will close the curtains behind you, thus ensuring your privacy.

• You vote by depressing the black levers next to the names of the candidates of your choice for each office. An "X" must be showing beside the name in order for your vote to count.

Note that it is no longer possible to vote a straight party ticket by using a large single party lever. Each small black lever must be depressed individually.

You may change the black voting levers if you change your mind or make a mistake, however you may only do so before leaving the machine. Also, the machine will not operate unless at least one vote is cast.

• When you are satisfied with your choices, turn the red curtain lever back to the left, to its original position. This will record your vote and erase your ballot before automatically opening the curtain. No one will be able to see how you voted and you are never obligated to share such information with anyone.

The League of Women Voters urges everyone to remember that a voter's responsibility does not end with that vote. Democracy is not a "spectator sport." Cast an informed vote and, after Election Day, continue to be aware of issues and how elected officials respond to them.

Maclary artists

Students paint mural as bicentennial project

What began as a class project to celebrate the 1987 Constitutional bicentennial has become a permanent teaching aid in the room of Maclary Elementary School teacher Janet King.

Last year, King's students prepared a room-size mural based on the Howard Chandler Christy painting of the signing of the Constitution.

Through the project, the students gained new understanding of the document.

At the end of the school year, the mural was in such good shape and provoked so much interest among parents and other students in the building that King decided to leave it up for use as a teaching aid this year.

"The results were most gratifying," said King. "The new students came in and really took an interest in what the other students had done. It gave me an opportunity to talk about the Constitution and to show a huge visual aid which the students knew other students had created."

King said the mural "suffered a little bit from wear and tear so some of the students who made the mural came back to my room and retouched it. It's now in excellent condition and I hope it will be a valuable teaching aid for several years to come."

The mural is in Room 9 of Maclary Elementary School and is available for view during regular school hours.

'Language' topic at DAEYC meeting

The Delaware Association for the Education of Young Children will hold its annual conference Saturday, Nov. 5 at the Alfred I. duPont Institute, Wilmington.

Keynote speaker will be Dr. Alice Sterling Honig, professor of child, family and community studies at Syracuse University.

She will speak at 9 a.m. on "Language — The Pleasure, The Power."

Honig has been involved in research in child rearing in different cultures, infant language, black fathering, day care training and teacher-toddler interaction.

She has written seven books, been a consultant for numerous projects for infants, young children and parents and is on the editorial board of the journals "Young Children," "Early Childhood Research Quarterly" and "Early Child Development and Care."

Following Honig's presentation, there will be morning and afternoon workshops designed to explore innovative programs in early childhood education in Delaware.

Conference registration fees vary from $30 to $35, depending on association membership. Walk-in registration will be accepted.

Delaware Association for the Education of Young Children is an organization of people interested in the needs of young children. Members include professionals and non-professionals, teachers, administrators, day care center workers and family day care providers.

'Working Together' theme of seminar

"Working Together as Educators" will be the theme of a free public lecture at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 16, in Room 007, Willard Hall Education Building, on the University of Delaware campus.

Presented by Sidney B. Collison, deputy state superintendent of public instruction, the talk will focus on "The Beginning Teacher: From Novice to Expert."

Collison's presentation will include teacher candidate identification, pre-service training, employment processes, inservice activities and teacher retention procedures. He will elaborate on how these processes should work and how they have impact on overall school system quality.

A lifelong educator, Collison has been with the Delaware Department of Public Instruction for the past 10 years. In addition to being a classroom teacher, he also has served as building principal at the elementary, middle school, junior high and senior high school levels.

Collison's teaching activities have included courses in educational leadership and instructional strategies for the College of William and Mary and the University of Delaware.

Co-sponsored by the University's College of Education and Education Alumni Association, the lecture series is part of a celebration commemorating the 75th year of teacher education at the University.

The next lecture in the series will be held Dec. 3 at the Kent North Vocational Technical High School in Dover and will feature Dr. Howard Gardner, professor of education at Harvard University.

In-service credit is available to eligible participants through the state Department of Public Instruction.

For additional information, telephone 451-2311.

High school journalists gather at UD

More than 100 high school journalists and their advisors recently attended a special Journalism Day program at the University of Delaware's Clayton Hall.

The conference was hosted by Glasgow High School and guest speakers included a variety of noted journalists, among them Chuck Stone, senior editor of the Philadelphia Daily News and journalism instructor at the University of Delaware.

Also on hand were Norm Lockman, managing editor of the News-Journal, Tia O'Brien of KYW-TV Channel 3 and Maria Gallagher of the Philadelphia Daily News.

Ed Nickerson, University journalism chairman, presided at the conference and members of the faculty made presentations on various aspects of the business. Dennis Jackson discussed feature writing, Harris Ross the elements of reporting, Bill Fleishman sports writing and Stone the profession itself.

The conference was an outgrowth of a visit by Stone to Glasgow High, according to Charles Remsburg, Glasgow High journalism advisor.

The conference, Remsburg said, had as its goals the exposure of students to both working journalists and the University's journalism program.

It also served as the fall conference of the Delaware Scholastic Press Association. Students from more than 30 schools, including Christiana, Glasgow, Newark and Shue, participated.

State approves funding

The Delaware State Board of Education has approved $10.3 million in capital improvement funding for Newark area projects.

That is nearly one-quarter of total funding in the state, which reached $46.9 million.

The largest single grant approved by the state went to the New Castle County Vocational Technical School District. The district will receive $6,584,899 to convert Hodgson Vocational Technical School to a full-service high school.

Hodgson, located in Glasgow, has been strictly a vocational and technical school. Many of its students attend a full-service high school for part of the school day, then are bused to Hodgson for their technical training.

The conversion will enable students to remain in the building the entire school day, as is the case at the New Castle County Vocational Technical School District's Delcastle High School in Newport.

Christina School District will receive $3.6 million for renovations at Pulaski and Drew schools.

Christina must make alterations in those buildings to accommodate a growing number of students within district boundaries.

Amick on the Issues

A VISION FOR OUR COMMUNITY

Over the last several weeks I've tried to talk about several of the issues that concern me in this column. I've talked about better planning for our growth, making sure our children get the education they deserve, providing a tax break for senior citizens on pension incomes and better managing our criminal courts to make them do their job more efficiently. These are among the many matters that I think are important. I hope there is a common thread among them, a vision for all Newark and our State should be and can be if they are led by leaders with integrity, a willingness to work hard and a drive to make things better.

We have many advantages as a community and as a state. Our economy is robust and healthy, providing jobs for almost everyone who wants to work. Our citizens are well educated and well trained for important and meaningful jobs. Our University provides us with a stimulating intellectual environment.

Our people care about the poor and the homeless, the sick and the lame; literally dozens of agencies and volunteer groups in our community work to better the lives of the less fortunate.

Government is only a partner in the efforts of many in our community to make it a better more productive, healthier place to live and to raise families. Without partners in the community agencies, civic groups, business community, labor unions, environmental groups and many others government can do little. But in partnership with these groups government can provide a leadership to bring to bear the full resources of all the community to effectively deal with the kind of issues and problems I've been discussing in these columns, in my district newsletters, on the doorsteps of residents and on the floor of the State House of Representatives.

Voters seek psychological compatability in the candidates

Voting behavior depends, to some degree on psychological identification between voters and the public images projected by political candidates, according to Dr. Gordon J. DiRenzo, professor of sociology at the University of Delaware.

Even party cross-overs and defections are partly a result of voters' psychological attempts to seek compatibility between their own personality structures and those projected by the candidates, DiRenzo said.

Focusing on authoritarian and dogmatic dimensions of personality, DiRenzo has studied presidential elections since 1964. His research findings show that Republican and Democratic voters often can be distinguished by their typical personality structures.

"The dogmatic personality is an individual who is power-oriented, who is authoritarian in style, but also an individual who has a closed-minded or dogmatic way of thinking," DiRenzo said. "We're not so much concerned with what they think or how they think but, rather, the way that they think."

"Dogmatic personalities can be found associated with any ideology," DiRenzo continued. "In the United States, you find them among Democrats as well as among Republicans. However, our data do show that dogmatic personalities are more extensively found among Republicans or on the political right of the political spectrum rather than on the left or among Democrats."

According to DiRenzo's findings, non-dogmatic voters overwhelmingly selected Lyndon Johnson in 1964, Hubert Humphrey in 1968, George McGovern in 1972, Jimmy Carter in 1976 and Walter Mondale in 1984. Dogmatic and authoritarian personalities in those respective years displayed preferences for Barry Goldwater, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan.

Past research in this area offered inconsistent results, DiRenzo said, which led to some question of the validity of such explanations of political behavior. DiRenzo contended that inconsistencies are due in large part to the fact that, in some elections, there weren't enough differences between opposing issues or candidates for the personality factor to make a significant impact.

Other presidential elections, notably those of 1964 (Goldwater-Johnson), 1972 (Nixon-McGovern) and 1980 (Reagan-Carter), he asserted, offered the public clear choices in terms of ideological differences and psychological images projected by the candidates.

What does all this mean for the 1988 presidential election? DiRenzo said that the compatibility phenomenon applies only when the voter has sufficiently diversified choices from which to make his or her selection. Such a situation appears to be present in this year's campaign, he said, which seems to provide the voter a clear choice.

Sufficient psychological differences are being projected by Vice President George Bush and Gov. Michael Dukakis, DiRenzo said, to permit voters to identify with one candidate or the other.

DiRenzo predicts that Bush will attract the overwhelming bulk of the dogmatic and authoritarian voters; Dukakis will attract primarily non-dogmatic voters.

Be sure to vote

Like most children, my seven-year-old daughter has few worries.

Although she may not realize it, she depends on adults to take responsibility for the matters that guide her life.

It is for her that I will cast a ballot in next week's election.

According to reports in the national media, many Americans are turned off by the choice of candidates in this year's election — so much so that they may not cast a ballot at all.

It seems that people are tired of negative campaigning and feel they do not have a choice in the election.

Because we live in a democracy, Americans do have the right to not cast a ballot in the election. Not only are there some countries in this world that deny people the right to vote, there are some that force people to vote in elections.

However, voting is a responsibility that should not be cast aside lightly.

Our ancestors fought for our right to vote. Many died fighting. I hope their struggle was not in vain.

If people choose not to vote at all because of the tone of national politics, they will not be voting on local candidates and issues. It is local politics that very often has more immediate impact on our daily lives.

As is the case every four years, some very important issues will be decided by our next president and the next U.S. Congress.

Not only will those issues affect me, they will affect our next generation, which includes my daughter.

Police contract

There are valid points to be made on both sides of the contract dispute between the City of Newark and its police officers.

City officials are concerned about protecting the interests of the taxpayers. Police want retirement benefits to provide for their families down the road.

We can see both sides.

But we can also see that seemingly endless contract disputes — and such problems have dragged on for more than two years now — cannot help but have an overwhelmingly negative effect on the morale of the police department.

What we have here, to restate that famous line from "Cool Hand Luke," is a failure to negotiate.

That cannot continue. There absolutely must be a mechanism by which to settle city-police contracts.

The simplest solution is for both sides to agree to abide by the report of the independent fact-finder, who in the current dispute sided with the police in their efforts to win greater retirement benefits.

A more drastic solution is that offered by Republican State Rep. William A. Oberle, who is considering the introduction of legislation to establish a binding arbitration procedure.

One way or the other, it is important to Newark that a mechanism be established to end the near-constant haggling.

Confessions of an 'L' person

At the risk of offending about 60 percent of our readers, I am stepping out of the closet to admit that, yes, I am an "L" person and that, yes, as an "L" person my vote next Tuesday is going to Michael Dukakis.

"L" people, of course, are liberals. There I said it. Morton Downey Jr. prefers the term pabulum pukers. No matter what you call us, we're persona non grata in the America of 1988.

Personally, I think that's a shame. Liberals have a long and proud tradition in America. The Founding Fathers were liberals, and not merely run of the mill liberals but raving radicals. Democracy? In 1776?

But back to the present, and to the presidential race which seems to be turning off so many voters despite very real ideological differences between Michael Dukakis and George Bush.

I am voting for Dukakis because of the five E's — environment, education, economy, empathy and earnestness.

Taking first things first, I believe that the Reagan-Bush Administration has been an absolute horrorshow when it comes to environmental issues. Gains made during the 1970s have been wiped out, and the result is a hole in the ozone, record-setting air pollution this past summer, high levels of bacteria in ground water, hard-pressed aquifers and needles washing up on our beaches.

by Neil Thomas

Mother Nature is screaming at us loud and clear and if we don't get her message, heaven help us. I believe Dukakis offers a kinder and gentler solution on the environment. And on education, as well.

To Bush, the pledge of allegiance is an educational issue. That, any thinking person can see, is a red, white and blue herring. And lest you forget, he is part of an administration which told our children in its first term that ketchup is a vegetable and peanut butter a meat.

There are real issues in education, and they concern teacher training, morale and pay, they concern textbooks and facilities, they concern the need for well-trained young people to lead this nation in the future. America is in a very competitive world and we cannot afford to rest on our laurels. Our young people must have the knowledge and skills to keep our economy strong.

The economy is often cited as a prime reason to vote for Bush. I disagree. Perhaps in the very short term and for the wealthier few, Bush is the answer. But for a healthy economy over the long term the nation must change direction; we cannot continue to spend ourselves further and further into debt.

Our leaders must understand that Dwight D. Eisenhower was correct in his warning about the ill effects of a military-industrial complex on the overall health of a nation, politically and economically. The strongest America is one with a combination of military and economic power.

Also in the realm of the economy is my fourth E, empathy. As an American, my heart bleeds for the growing number of poor in this nation. It bleeds that so very many of them are children, and so many are homeless. We are so rich. We could do so much, given a truly caring president.

This administration's record is abysmal. The budget of the Department of Housing and Urban Development has been slashed more than 75 percent, ensuring that there is not nearly enough low-income housing and in turn forcing an estimated 750,000 Americans into the streets each night.

These homeless people should not be easily dismissed. Many of them are working, but cannot afford shelter. Many of them believe in the American dream, in the work ethic, but see that it is not working for them. This is the ultimate shame upon the current administration.

Finally, there is earnestness. The conservative George Bush of 1988 is wholly different than the moderate George Bush of 1980. Bush is a chameleon, a political chameleon, a garden seemingly without bedrock philosophies to call his own.

You may agree, you may not. That's fine. This is, after all, America. But no matter what your views, I do urge you to get out and vote for the candidate of your choice. It is important, and it does make a difference.

Welfare system about to change

by U.S. Senator Joseph Biden

We are all too familiar with the stories of welfare mothers driving luxury cars and leading lifestyles that mirror the rich and famous. Whether they are exaggerated or not, these stories underlie a broad social concern that the welfare system has broken down — that it only parcels out welfare checks and does nothing to help the poor find productive jobs.

Welfare policy should be based on a simple premise: we have an obligation to help society's less fortunate receive the education, training and transitional services they need to work their way out of poverty. In return we expect a commitment from them to do all they can to succeed in becoming productive members of their communities.

Unfortunately, our current system of welfare has failed to meet the goal of self-improvement and has relieved the recipients of the incentive to take control of their future. The current system is largely one of income support which has forced too many people into a cycle of dependence.

The old system is about to change. Congress has reached a compromise on a major overhaul of the welfare system and the bill is ready to be signed into law by President Reagan.

These reforms are the product of years of hard work and legislative wrestling which have finally resulted in the most substantial changes to occur since the program's creation. These changes will not produce results overnight. The problems with our welfare system took decades to develop and will take time to correct. But the reforms are powerful enough to eventually change the lives of millions of disadvantaged people and our society in the process.

Here is what the legislation sets out to accomplish. It creates a fundamental shift in emphasis from solely income support to job training and job preparation. Parents who do not have regular jobs will be given the tools to do all they can to find employment and get off welfare.

Single parents with children over the age of 3 who cannot find jobs for which they are qualified, must enroll in educational and job training courses that will prepare them for employment opportunities. For those who can find jobs there are provisions for day care and Medicaid health insurance to help them during the first year of transition.

The reforms also tackle the problem of unpaid child support. It requires states to automatically withhold child support payments from parents' wages, even in cases

Campaign is public charade

To the Editor:

Those running for national office, specifically George Bush and Michael Dukakis, could take a lesson from the local level of the political spectrum. Local civic forums, personal contact with the electorate and a generally enlightened group of civic leaders requires we at the local level to address the hard issues in a factual and, hopefully, intellectual way.

Rhetoric and slogans cannot and will not provide a candidate for local office with a margin of victory. Unfortunately, the same may not hold true in the race for the most powerful position on earth, president of these United States.

To date, the American electorate has not been told by either candidate how they intend to deal with our growing national deficit, a situation that threatens our economic welfare. Oh, there have been vague suggestions veiled in language that would insult any intelligent form of life. But it is becoming painfully clear that neither Bush nor Dukakis have the vaguest notion about how to deal with this alarming problem. Or they just don't care to deal with it.

On other fronts, we have heard mundane and garbled statements regarding out trade imbalance and a tirade of litany about our military build-up. The bottom line is that both candidates have refused to put forth reasonable and rational proposals to deal with even the simplest of our immediate and long-range problems.

What we have been subjected to is a protracted campaign laced with character assassinations and name calling. One must wonder whether either of these characters is intellectually equipped to fulfill the obligations of the office they are seeking. It almost boils down to voting for the devil you know versus the devil you don't know.

There may be hope for us yet. Delaware, in my estimation, has two excellent candidates for the presidency in 1992 — Joe Biden and Pete duPont. Each possesses the abilities and tools to lead this nation and to lead it well.

Perhaps, with this knowledge in hand, we can all bite our tongues, enter the voting booth praying we vote for the lesser of two evils and hope we survive the next four years.

The only upside to this multimillion dollar public charade is that it will end on Nov. 9. God bless us all.

Council owes life to Forshey

To the Editor:

I barely knew Linda Forshey in 1985 when she approached me to become zoning chairman of the Greater Newark Civic Council, an umbrella group for civic associations in the Newark area, and I knew even less about zoning.

Linda felt then, and feels still, that the Newark area had come of age, that it was time to participate, not spectate. She brought me members to work on the committee, and the most knowledgeable woman I ever met to teach me the county land use system. But then, that's how Linda works.

In forming our civic council, she was emphatic that we become a forum for the meeting of minds among civic associations not only on the issue of development but also to follow environmental issues, to form a solid community watch system and to discuss the typical problems facing civic association presidents.

In forming our council, she went out and found civic leaders with the determination to get a job done, surrounded them with resource people who could teach them the job, and more people who could get involved to get the work accomplished.

There are those who have said Linda Forshey began the Greater Newark Civic Council to give herself a platform for election as state senator. I disagree. But whatever the reason, it is four years later, Linda has not held office in the council for nearly a year, and it lives on, bigger and stronger than ever before.

There was obviously a critical need in the Newark area to form such a forum for civic associations to meet and compare problems, offer solutions and unite to produce well-informed participants, not spectators. It had often been discussed, but we needed Linda Forshey to get it off the ground. And we need her as state senator in the 11th District.

Peggy Tracy
Zoning Co-Chairman
Greater Newark Civic CouncilPhil Cloutier honest, sincere

To the Editor:

Honest, sincere and knowledgeable — three words that politicians usually use to describe themselves — are words we use to describe Phil Cloutier. Interestingly enough, Phil is not a politician. He is a citizen, like the rest of us, who decided that the people's input into New Castle County's future is worth his time.

He has dedicated a vast majority of his time to remaining informed and knowledgeable on zoning issues in his area and speaking out for the benefit of the public, particularly as issues relate to our highways, and he has passed that information and knowledge on to others in the community less likely to take the time to search it out.

He carried this concern a step further by volunteering to serve on the transportation committee of the county's new comprehensive plan, and yet further by working diligently on the state "quality of life" legislation.

This is the type person we want to see as the next president of County Council — a man who maintains contact with the community, has the best interests of our county as his driving force, and who puts his ideas and knowledge to work for all of us. It's time the whole county benefitted from his experience.

Greater Newark Civic CouncilBand festival was a success

To the Editor:

The New Castle County Field Band Festival went on like clockwork Oct. 22 in spite of the rain that came on and off all day up to about 30 minutes before the starting time. The performances of the 10 high school bands and the University of Delaware and University of Massachusetts bands were outstanding.

Many of the students who graduate from local high schools attend the University of Delaware, and these kids love to perform for their old high school bands.

The crowd loved the entire evening, especially the exciting performance by the UMass band. This 300-member ensemble is directed by George Parks and Tom Hannum. Mr. Parks is a native of Newark who graduated from Christiana High School and both he and Mr. Hannum have achieved national attention for their work in the marching field with drum majors and with percussion.

Two times during the festival, some of the lights went out. Murphy's Law was in effect. But despite the rain and problems, people saw one of the best shows ever.

I want to thank all of the parents who worked for the event and all of the bands who worked hard to get here. I think it's important for our kids to see bands like Delaware and UMass.

To the Editor:

As a senior at Newark High School, I have seen first-hand how hard Linda Forshey works for the community. Mrs. Forshey worked hard behind the scenes to help Newark High School's softball team purchase and install an indoor batting cage.

Linda Forshey is always there to help the people with any problems they have, no matter how small. She worked with Rep. Bill Oberle to find additional fields for the Brookside Soccer League. Linda Forshey really cares about the people and will continue to work hard for them in Dover.

AROUND TOWN

• Bogie boycott. This Wednesday, Nov. 9, is a day which will live in infamy. It is the day when Ted Turner and his colorizers molest and air the classic black-and-white film "Casablanca." Film critics Roger Ebert and Gene Siskel have called upon all who love the film to boycott the colorized version, in which Humphrey Bogart is given sparkling rosy-red cheeks. Of all the films in all the movie joints in the world, he had to colorize this one. This will definitely not be the start of a beautiful friendship. Here's not looking at you, kid.

BIDEN

where there is no delinquency. This will help ensure that absent parents, mostly young fathers, will be forced to take financial responsibility for their offspring.

An important provision, which may have the most significant long-term impact on the family structure of the poor, is that states must provide benefits to two-parent families. This is to discourage unemployed fathers from leaving so that their children can become eligible for welfare. As part of this provision at least 16 hours of unpaid community work per week is required from one parent, if a regular job cannot be found.

In addition, there is considerable flexibility built into the reforms so that the state and federal governments can adjust as these reforms are put in place and improved. Many states already have instituted reforms which are producing results. For instance, Delaware has experimented with health insurance subsidies for working families where no insurance is provided on the job and its First Step program has promoted education and job training. Changing our welfare system is like trying to melt an iceberg. It cannot happen all at once and will take a lot of hard work and supervision. But with these reforms the thaw has begun and the tools are there for many more people to move off the dole and into lives of economic independence.

With Michael Dukakis on the monitor, Andy Saxton asks his question.

GLASGOW

"and with our relationship with the State Association of Student Councils in winning standards of excellence six years in a row, it gives us a good reputation and makes us a good representative."

William Conley, Glasgow High's student government advisor, said the school was contacted late Monday afternoon and approached with the possibility of having some of its students ask questions of the presidential candidate.

School had let out, so students were contacted at home and asked to prepare questions.

"The students were a little baffled at first," said Conley, "but then we explained that we were selected because we were a student government with a good record."

Christina School District officials rounded up the television equipment and telephone lines needed to hook into the CNN broadcast.

Due to time constraints, only Saxton was able to ask his question. Conley said the young man was chosen because "as an elected officer, he was one student who could best represent the concerns of the student body."

When asked what he learned from the experience, Saxton said, "With my involvement in student council, this gives me a push to work harder and strive toward learning more about politics. That's what I'm really interested in."

more than one hundred varieties, ranging from the cushion and spoon types to daisies.

With a little care and about six hours of sunshine daily, regardless of whether your backyard looks like Longwood Gardens or a sandbox, mums are guaranteed to dazzle and delight.

Walker's Florists and Greenhouses in Hockessin has sold nearly 7,000 hardy mums this fall. The most popular color is yellow, although customers have purchased nearly the entire stock of grenadine coral mums, a new color variety, during the first week of sales.

Charlotte Anderson, supervisor of Walker's nursery, offers advice on caring for garden mums. "They bloom in spring. The idea is to initially cut them back. When they get 6-10 inches tall, begin pinching back every stalk until about the second week in July and then let them go."

Mums will bud again and bloom in the fall, and pinching makes them "bushy and full of blooms, not so leggy."

"Sometimes when you plant them in the fall," she said, "they don't have time to get hardy before winter. Some varieties are just heartier than others, too. The key is to mulch over them with pine needles, regular mulch or even fallen leaves. Then you should have a nice mum the following year."

Anderson suggested using a general fertilizer, such as 20-20-20.

Hot house mums that are sold in florists and grocery stores year around are sometimes confused with garden mums. But because they are specifically bred for indoor decorative purposes they seldom, if ever, respond well to outdoor planting.

Hardy mums provide garden color for weeks during the fall, when their many shades of burgandy, rust and gold complement landscapes with an abundance of turning leaves.

They will thrive until the first harsh frost.

disagreed on almost every aspect of county government.

Two first-time candidates are seeking the presidency of county council. Republican Philip D. Cloutier and Democrat Susan C. Holmes have debated the issue of experience in their campaign.

Cloutier, a DuPont company employee and Holmes, a Division of Motor Vehicles employee, have been involved in civic organizations before seeking political office.

A Libertarian, Vernon L. Etzel, is also campaigning for council president.

Robert S. Powell, a Republican, is unopposed in his campaign for the Third Councilmanic District serving northeast Newark.

Among Newark legislative races, the hottest would appear to be in the 11th Senatorial District, where incumbent Democrat Roger A. Martin of Windy Hills is being challenged by Republican Linda S. Forshey of Brookside.

Forshey has said she will quit her job if elected to become a full-time senator. Martin, a teacher, said he must earn a living and that his job has not kept him from his duties in the Senate.

Libertarian Lawrence D. Sullivan is also seeking the 11th District seat.

Republican State Sen. James P. Neal is unopposed in his bid to keep his 10th District seat.

In state House of Representatives races, incumbent Republican Roger P. Roy is challenged by Democrat Charles R. Smith for the 20th District seat.

Incumbent Republican Steven C. Taylor is trying to keep his 21st District House seat. He is opposed by Democrat Salvatore J. DeAngelo Jr.

Republican incumbent Joseph R. Petrilli is not challenged his bid to keep his 22nd District seat.

Also unopposed are incumbent Democrat Ada Leigh Soles, who is seeking re-election to the 23rd District seat, and incumbent Republican William A. Oberle Jr., who is seeking re-election in the 24th District.

Democrat K. Yvonne Dickerson has challenged Republican incumbent Steven H. Amick for his 25th District House seat.

In the 26th District race, Democrat Jane L. Perillo is trying to unseat incumbent Republican Richard F. Davis.

Incumbent Democrat Katharine M. Jester has been campaigning against Republican challenger Vincent A. Lofink for the 27th District seat.

Valiant Vikings fall

by David Woolman

There are many ways to measure how well two teams match up in a game. The most obvious, the score, would have Concord High clobbering Christiana 26-9. But sometimes the most obvious way isn't the best.

Christiana contained the Raider offense, controlled the ball on offense, outgained the Raiders 251-211...and continued to be one of the unluckiest teams around as all the breaks went against them and every mistake seemed to cost them dearly.

"We should have won this game," said fullback Eric Kalbfleisch, who ran for 99 yards. "We played as hard as we could play."

"I expected to win today," said coach Marty Cross, whose team is now 0-6-1. "We have quality kids playing for us. They work hard and they went out there and played intense, emotional football. That's what we asked, and that's what we got."

"All four backs ran hard. Our offensive line controlled the line of scrimmage. Time after time we get bad breaks and come back. The holding penalties were the only thing that stopped us all day."

Holding penalties killed the first two Viking drives. A fumble recovery and runback gave Concord, now 5-1-1, the ball on the Christiana 32 yard line on its second possession, and the Raiders converted two fourth down plays, the latter a Mark Connolly to Scott Morin pass for a touchdown. A failed two point conversion left Concord with a 6-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Christiana drove 63 yards on four plays to take a 7-6 lead. Fullback Christiana High running back Eric Kalbfleisch slashes through Concord defense in scoring the Vikings' lone touchdown Saturday.

Dave Pullen started the drive with a 25-yard run up the middle, and Kalbfleisch ended it with a 24-yard run up the middle. Chuck Popolos' extra point gave the Vikes the lead, which they took into halftime.

Christiana started off the second half by holding Concord to four downs for the third time in the game, and drove from its own 10 yard line into Concord territory. A holding call killed the drive and Popolos' field goal attempt fell short.

Two plays later, Concord's Lee Coleman changed direction on a counter play and ran 76 yards for a touchdown. Connolly ran the ball in for the conversion and the Raiders had a 14-7 lead.

Christiana took its next possession from its own 31 yard line to the Raiders' 7 yards line, but there lost the ball on downs. Two plays later, Viking linebacker Aaron Beres sacked Connolly in the endzone for a safety to make the score 14-9.

The Vikings fumbled the ball away on the first play from scrimmage on their subsequent possession, and Concord drove 50 yards to score. Christiana fumbled again on the third play of its next drive, and Coleman recovered and ran 55 yards for the final Concord score.

Thompson, Newark slip past G'gow

by David Woolman

Much like last year, Glasgow High came into Newark's Hoffman Stadium loaded for Yellow-jacket.

When the dust settled Friday night, Glasgow was on the short end of a 21-12 score but the emotionally-charged Dragons were pleased with their effort.

"We knew coming in that emotionally, we'd be ready to play Newark, and physically we'd be ready to play Newark," said Glasgow coach David Scott, whose team is now 0-7. "We grew an awful lot tonight."

"We looked pretty good," said halfback Pat Williams, who healed enough to go both ways for the first time since early in the season. "That's the way we should play all the time, but everybody isn't Newark and we don't get up for them. I think that now that we know that we can play like this..."

Less than pleased with his team's effort was Newark coach Butch Simpson, whose Yellow-jackets are now 5-2 overall, 4-1 in Blue Hen Conference Flight A.

"We lack a lot of things in our preparation and game intensity," Simpson said. "It's haunted us before; this was just another version of it. It's a tribute to Glasgow's players — 21-0, everything going our way. They're just getting to be a better team. I'm glad we're not playing them in the next three weeks."

Newark looked to have the game in hand early, driving 55

St. Mark's gains win, prepares for Newark

St. Mark's High School's 18-7 win over Middleship Township, N.J. was more than a victory, it was an affirmation of the Spartans' (4-3) ability to play football like they know they can. Just in time for their matchup against Newark this week.

"It was a good game for us," said coach Jack Smiley. "We did a lot of good things. I think that in the last three weeks, we've seen a resurgent team in terms of confidence."

St. Mark's gained 345 yards on offense while the defense held Middle Township to under 100 yards. The Spartans' Mike Smyth (220 yards on 16 carries) scored on runs of 35 and 88 yards.

Mike Donovan had a four-yard touchdown run for St. Mark's.

"We felt defensively and offensively that we had a superiority up front," said Smiley. "They've gone out and done what we asked them to do."

The Spartans will face off against Newark at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Baynard Stadium.

"It's a great game to play for both sides, because it's such a local game," says Smiley. "It's also a must win for both of us."

Christina champs capture titles

Conley, Brannon are one-two

by David Woolman

As has been true in several Newark High cross country meets this season, the Christina Cup was not a race between teams, but between the Yellow-jackets' Brian Conley and John Brannon.

The pair have taken turns beating each other all year, with Conley leading all the way and running a personal best 17:27 at Carpenter Park Friday to get the better of Brannon this time.

Newark won the Cup, with Glasgow second and Christiana third.

Conley won the race by 24 seconds, making this his largest victory over Brannon so far. "I thought John was going to beat me today," said Conley, a sophomore. "He's had a real good streak — he's beaten me by a lot in the last four races."

"When he (Conley) started to turn in on today, I didn't have anything," said Brannon. "I felt good up that first hill, they all of a sudden it vanished. I guess I just had an off day today."

"It really helps then work each other," said Newark coach Bob Ward. "They run extremely well with each other and against each other. If one of them has a bad day, the other one is going to beat him. We always know we're going to have someone up there with the leader. Some days we have two."

Glasgow's Dan Amberg finished fourth, edging out the Dragon's usual number one man, Rob Riley.

"It was a nice surprise," said Glasgow coach Ron Hull. "He started out the year our fourth man. He didn't seem to be practicing harder than anybody else, but in the meets, when it counted, he just seemed to really keep coming on. In the last couple of meets he's been our number tow man, and now here he beat Rob Riley."

"I ran with Danny in eighth grade," said Amberg. "I knew I could beat him. I just had to get Christiana High received a steady performance from Diana Pitts and an excellent one from Kathy Cleveland to win the Christina Cup cross country race Friday at Carpenter State Park.

The Cup, an annual showdown between the three Christina District schools (Christiana, Glasgow and Newark) marked the first major triumph for the Vikings since coach Greg Schneck started the team last year.

"The good thing about today was that this was the first meet where we were expected to win against a good team," said Schneck. "They're running with confidence now. They're thinking about winning. It's so hard to get things started."

The Christiana team sported tattoos and red and blue hair for the meet. "We came here all dressed up," said Pitts. "We didn't want to do this for nothing. People from our school were here and rooting for us. I really wanted to come in first."

Pitts and Newark's Emily Ludman battled it out on the front end most of the way, before Pitts pulled away in the final half mile and finished in 22 minutes, six seconds. Cleveland caught the faltering Ludman in the final 50 yards to take second place.

Newark spikers on top

The thing about playing the Blue Hen Conference Flight A-leading Concord High volleyball team is that you never know which unit is going to show up — the great one or the mediocre one.

Both showed up Wednesday night, and Newark won the match 15-9, 2-15, 15-4 to tie the mercurial Raiders for first place in BHC Flight A.

"I've seen them like that before," said Newark coach Barbara Jo Apichella of the Concord team. "They've lost a number of games and come back. But you can't give (Newark) enough credit for hanging in there. To come back from losing 15-2 takes an awful lot of heart, and they've got it."

The Yellowjackets played very consistent volleyball, perhaps their best all year. And as in the past, the effort started from the bottom: the defense.

"We had awesome passing," said setter-hitter Terryn Pedrotti (four kills, one ace), who once again came up with assist after amazing assist in yet another effort which qualifies her for player of the year. "That's what made our hitting so great. We could be aggressive — the passes were coming and the sets were going up, so the hits were going down."

No. 9 Delaware wins, faces UConn

by David Woolman

That the University of Delaware football team has gotten better as the season has gone along was made quite vivid in last Saturday's 31-14 win over Maine in Orono.

This season, the Hens have gone from losing, to winning by getting by with a lot of tenacity and a little luck, to now, finally, winning by control, by domination, by design.

This win was a Tubby Raymond ball control special. Delaware ran the ball 61 times, gaining 218 of their 366 yards on the ground. They held the ball a full 12 minutes more than Maine.

And while heralded Maine quarterback Mike Buck completed 23 passes for 278 yards, none of them was for a touchdown.

The improved health of a number of Delaware running backs, particularly Gil Knight, helped, as did the continued improvement of the once-new offensive line. Raymond thinks there's more to it than that.

"I think that in some ways this game pointed out the positive aspects of the team in that we won a football game and you'd be hard pressed to put your finger on any one individual who ran away with the ballgame," said Raymond on Monday. "Offensively, it was a team effort. Our rushing game was the best it's been all year. (Quarterback David) Sierer played the best game of his career, his most consistent, solid performance. John Gilman comes through and catches the ball well in addition to (John) Yergey and (James) Anderson.

"I felt that was the offensive line's best effort, as reflected by the running game. They work well together, and they react well together. I think the same thing happened defensively. The great thing about Saturday from my standpoint was we kept Buck out of the end zone."

The team appears healthier now than it has been in a while, not only the running backs but the linebackers as well, giving the team quite a bit of depth. There's really only one thing Raymond could want.

"I'd like to feel that our running game is not a mirage. I'd like to see it be more consistent. I'd like to see it come on again," he said. "We were so battered up there for a while. There were seven running backs that were

AT A GLANCE

The University of Delaware football team has advanced into the NCAA Division I-AA top 10 for the first time this season.

Delaware (6-2) is ranked ninth in the most recent poll, released late Monday. The Fighting Blue Hens climbed three places after being ranked 12th one week ago.

Connecticut (6-2), Delaware's opponent this Saturday in Newark, is ranked 14th.

Villanova (5-2-1), beaten by the Blue Hens three weeks ago, is ranked 15th, giving the Yankee Conference three of the top 15 teams.

Holding down the top spot in the rankings is Marshall (8-0). Western Illinois (9-0) is number two and Stephen F. Austin (7-1) is number three.

In balloting for the Lambert Trophy, given annually to the top small college in the East, Delaware is tied with Lafayette for second place. Atop the Lambert Trophy race is Ivy League-leading Penn (7-0).

Delaware's number one receiver, Glenn Antrum, is the division's number one receiver. The UConn offense is ranked in the top 10.

"It just seems that every team we play is better than the one before," Raymond said.

DeGennaro, a sophomore, is playing better than he was last year when he led Connecticut to a 20-19 victory over Delaware, according to Huskies coach Tom Jackson. And Antrum is having a terrific season.

"He's really developed into a top flight collegiate receiver," said Jackson. "Saturday, he broke everybody's record and now he's the number one receiver in Connecticut history."

Things are looking up for University of Delaware football coach Tubby Raymond and his 6-2 Blue Hens.

Jimmy Lorenzo wins $250,000 Breeders Cup

by David Woolman

FAIR HILL, Md. — For two years, America's leading steeplechase trainer, Jonathan Sheppard, had the favorite going into the $250,000 Breeders Cup Steeplechase, and for two years he was denied steeplechasing's richest honor.

Indeed, Sheppard gave more than he got to the race, losing his champion Flatterer to a career-ending injury in last year's edition.

This year, Sheppard got his return, training Jimmy Lorenzo to a mild upset in the third running of Breeders Cup here Saturday. The six year old English bred gelding came from the rear of the pack to win by three quarters of a length and pay $18.80 to his backers in the crowd of 13,185.

From the very first Breeders Cup, run two years ago, owners have sought and obtained foreign jumpers they felt would thrive in America in the hopes of winning the big race. This was that strategy's first success.

Jimmy Lorenzo was bought by owner Bertram R. Firestone in England this summer, according to Mrs. Firestone, who accepted the winning trophy for her husband. The Firestones own a horse farm in Ireland and the manager of the farm, Jonathan Muldoon, made the purchase for them.

"He was asked by the Firestones to keep an eye out for something over there that might be a top horse to bring to this country," said Sheppard. "Most of the very top horses didn't seem to be for sale, or they weren't the right type. He seemed to be the first one at all within a reasonable price that might be the necessary caliber.

"Although he wasn't quite top over there, we thought the different conditions (the firmer ground and the lower obstacles) in this country might make the difference. He wasn't a very impressive individual when he first arrived (in June), but I rather liked his type. He was tough, sound and clean legged.

"The race in Middleburg (his only start in America before the Breeders Cup, an eight length win in optional claiming company in the beginning of October) reconfirmed what we were beginning to think — that he was an unusual horse."

No more conformation was necessary after the race, which went nearly perfectly for Jimmy Lorenzo. The gelding stayed to the rear of the field for the first 11 of the 19 jumps over national fences while Cuckold and the Irish entry Blaze Key set the early fractions.

Jimmy Lorenzo moved up on the outside the last time down the backstretch, caught the leaders at the third to last fence and withstood a late challenge from Kalankoe, the only mare in the field, to win by three quarters of a length. Polar Pleasure, also trained by Sheppard, finished a length and a half back in third. Jimmy Lorenzo ran the 2½ miles in 5:12 and two fifths.

"It was Plan A all the way," said English jockey Graham McCourt, who rode Jimmy Lorenzo for the first time. "They showed him a bit of daylight, and he just ran to them very quick and sweet.

"I would have preferred to get there going to them on the second last (fence), but I got there at the third last because he came up so quick. Two miles five (furlongs) was as long as he's ever been.

"He doesn't jump very big or brave. He just jumps very economical. His biggest asset is that he's a little lion. He's got a heart as big as himself."

Census, the 2-1 favorite, and Kesslin, who finished first and second in the first Breeders Cup 'chase two years ago and raced little since, felt their age and their infirmities and failed in their comeback efforts. Census finished ninth, 20 lengths behind, and Kesslin broke down going down the backstretch the final time.

"(Jimmy Lorenzo) did what we bought him and trained him for," said Sheppard. "To me, that's sort of the real challenge as a trainer. I really like that. It's very gratifying when everything falls into place. Usually it doesn't."

Caravel stars support one another

by David Woolman

With two quality football players on one high school team, the personal competition can take on an edge.

But at Caravel Academy, which has ridden the talents of quarterback Macadoo Harrison-Dixon and halfback Derek Shaw to a 5-1 record, the stars have sublimated their own egos for the good of the team.

"Before the game, we make a bet as to who will help out the most," says Harrison-Dixon.

"Like, 'If you score here, I'll buy you a cheeseburger,'" adds Shaw.

"We challenge each other," says Harrison-Dixon in all seriousness, "but we don't go off as individuals. We try to help our wherever the coach needs us. We're really close. I help him out, he helps me out."

The norm for a football team that doesn't have enough bodies for a junior varsity program is to have one legitimate star, if that. For a team to have two is a blessing.

The pair produce approximately 85 percent of Caravel's very effective offense, which has gained more than 400 yards in three games this season. Halfback Shaw has run for more than 200 yards in games twice this season and quarterback Harrison-Dixon churned for more than 100 yards on the ground once.

"You can't key on one because we have the ability to come back with the other," says Caravel coach Larry Cyle. "They've really been a great aid for us."

"Last year, I ran for over 300 yards in the first two games and after that the linebackers followed me all over the field," says Shaw, a junior who spent his freshman year at McKean. "This year, if people start keying on me, Mac (Harrison-Dixon) can fake it to me and take it outside."

While the pair have made a great impression on offense, they haven't made a great impression on the offense — such is Cyle's way.

"We feel our offense highlights those positions, so we initially placed them in those positions knowing that we had the ability to offset one against the other," says Cyle. "If we're getting good production out of our halfback and quarterback, then the rest of the offense really goes smooth."

"What I have done with my offenses as a coach is pretty consistent," Cyle says. "It just so happens that we have two very good people doing what I've been doing for the past five years. We haven't altered or changed anything."

The pair make an effort to fit into the team concept as well, and at very least appreciate what the rest of the team does for them. "The line is doing a terrific job opening holes for us," says Harrison-Dixon.

"No matter who's in there, they're going to get yardage," adds Shaw.

"We have a nice group up there," says Cyle. "They've opened a lot of gaping holes. But what's good with a good back is that there doesn't always have to be a hole. When they do get one, they hit it, but both of those guys have the ability to break a play."

On the other hand, this is more of a ball control rather than a big play team, with the backfield pair eating up the clock more than the yardage. It's about more than just keeping the opponent's offense off the field.

"If we can get three, four, five yards each play and keep doing that constantly down the field, the other team is going to get frustrated," says Harrison-Dixon. "Then we can get the big play that kills them."

Harrison-Dixon, a sophomore from Wilmington, was the starting quarterback at Wilmington High School last year where he set what is believed to be a state record with a 99½ yard touchdown run.

"I expected to play a lot, but I also expected to come in with someone else ahead of me, showing me," says Harrison-Dixon. "It turned out differently, and I ended up starting. It felt comfortable from the start. Coach Cyle has taught me a lot about quarterbacking."

Shaw, a junior from Hockessin, spent his freshman year at McKean High School before joining the Caravel varsity last year.

Both appreciate the small school atmosphere at Caravel — the small classes, the special attention, and most of all, the closeness of the students, and how it affects the spirit of the team.

in shape."

Christiana, handicapped by an incomplete squad and injuries, edged out Glasgow 28-29 in the dual meet scoring but ended up finishing third to the Dragons in the Christina Cup because of the intervening Newark runners. Christiana's Danny Farren did not run in the meet, and E.J. Bliey was injured early in the race. Tony Casula was the top finisher for the Vikes.

"He's been our mainstay all year," said coach Rick Bartkowski. "He hasn't been hurt, he's been real consistent."

"I just came out to get into shape for wrestling," said Casula. "I was scared I was going to get blown away, so I started running over the summer to build up. I didn't expect to do as well as I've done."

"We've been really plagued with injuries," said co-captain Andy Lennon, "but we'll finish the season with a better than .500 record (7-6) and that's better than Christiana has done in quite a while."

"This team has been wonderful. Last year, everybody just fell into a slot. I was number one, this guy was number two, that guy was number three, and that's the way we always ran," Lennon added. "This year, we have E.J., we have Tony, we have Dan. Everybody's running in a big pack, so you never know who's number one or two. We race amongst ourselves and against the other team. It makes us a much better team."

"We took second place down in Salisbury. We're happy with the way we've run."

GIRLS

"She (Ludman) was the one they told me about before the race," said Pitts. "They told me to keep up with her. Every time I went faster, she went faster, too. I knew there was a hill coming so I didn't push it. As I hit the hill I started to sprint."

Cleveland said this was her best race so far, and that finishing second was a surprise. "I didn't expect to beat Emily," said Cleveland. "I almost lost her on the hills, but as soon as I started coming in, I knew I could beat her."

"I think I got psyched out," said Ludman. "I thought if I kept up with Diana I'd be in the race. I've beaten her before in races. I think what beat me today was more mental than physical."

The loss was bittersweet for Newark coach Harry Davies, having trained runners on both sides. "Kathy, Patty (Cleveland) and Cindy Harvey are all my neighbors. I'm the one who got Cathy running, and I gave them programs over the summertime. I want to get half credit for Greg's program," joked Davies.

"If you had told me that we would finish 8-1 in dual meets, I would have told you that you were nuts, because we had two freshmen and a sophomore that had never run before," Davies added. "I'm extremely pleased. That's the fun part of coaching, to take a young team like this and bring it along."

Christiana and Glasgow also ran this as a dual meet, with Christiana winning 16-41. Glasgow's top runner was Mindy Stayton, who finished 12th overall.

"We achieved a goal which I personally set, which was to get five girls to finish a course," said Glasgow coach Bob Rutkowski. "They're all running better too. The future looks good."

The teams finish their seasons with the New Castle County meet Nov. 5 at Brandywine Creek, and the state meet Nov. 12 at Killens Pond.

Caravel falls to Tatnall as Bergey stars

Caravel Academy's second taste of Delaware private school football was as bitter as the first. Tatnall School defeated the Bucs 18-0 Saturday, dropping their record to 5-2.

"We've run up against two good football teams, and we've had a lot of penalties against us," said Caravel coach Larry Cylc. "Things haven't come easy."

Turnovers at critical times led to Tatnall scores, and the Bucs were forced to leave their game plan and play catchup ball, according to Cylc. Tatnall controlled the ball the better part of the game, and scored twice on big plays: a 54-yard run by Jason Bergey and a 28-yard pass from Chuck Singleton to Bergey.

Bergey is the son of Bill Berger, Tatnall coach and former Philadelphia Eagle linebacker.

"The inexperience shows," said Cylc. "We're all new and we're still learning each other. We haven't done anything different in the first few games, except we've made a lot of mistakes and given them scoring opportunities."

"I think the kids have realized that there are some good football teams out there, and that they're not going to be able to get by as they have in the past."

Caravel hosts a very good Germantown Academy team Saturday night at 7:30.

NEED HELP? O Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue, rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present petition. In return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Father's, Hail Mary's and Glory Be's. Publication must be promised. St. Jude, pray for us and all who invoke your aid. This must be said nine consecutive days and has never been known to fail.

Sean Money (22) combined with the Williams brothers, Pat and Paul, to lift Glasgow in its effort against crosstown rival Newark.

JACKETS

and 45 yards in their first two possessions for touchdowns. The first was driven by halfback Steve Thompson, who scooted through the Glasgow defense on several counter plays and ran the ball in for the touchdown.

The second drive was built on two 17-yard passes from Bill Dilenno to Ted Raftovich, the second of which was for the touchdown. Two Dave Gwinn extra points gave the 'Jackets a 14-0 lead with 3:21 left in the first quarter.

Glasgow moved the ball only once in the first half on offense, but kept Newark contained on defense, aided by an excellent pass rush.

Then with just 47 second left in the half, a fumble recovery by lineman Kevin Scannell gave Newark the ball on the Glasgow 31. Dilenno threw to Raftovich for a 20-yard gain, and then scrambled in from the 11 to give the 'Jackets a 21-0 lead at the half.

In the second half, Glasgow took their second possession down to the Newark 20 yard line before Steve Fierro intercepted a Shawn Money pass in the end zone to end the threat.

On its next drive, Glasgow went 55 yards in three plays, most of it on an option pitch to Pat Williams, who ran 41 yards for the touchdown. Rob Arehart missed the extra point, and the score stood at 21-6 with 1:06 remaining in the third quarter.

Glasgow took their subsequent possession 55 yards as well, with Money completing passes to Kris Hull twice on fourth down, the second time for the touchdown. A two point conversion failed, and the Newark lead was cut to 21-12 with 6:47 remaining.

Steve Thompson bettered last week's kickoff return against Christiana by taking this one 78 yards to the Glasgow seven yard line. The Glasgow defense and some penalties pushed Newark back to the 29, and the Dragons took over on the 40 when Newark fumbled the snap on a field goal attempt.

Money threw an interception to Mike Gerhart on the first play, but Glasgow got the ball back three plays later on a fumble. With the ball on their 48 yard line and 1:57 left, Money completed a pass to Hull for 20 yards, but then Newark's defense held and the game ended 21-12.

After Newark's first three scoring drives, they managed just three first downs, only one in the second half. Glasgow outgained the 'Jackets 178-24 from that point on, 158 to negative 5 in the second half.

"In the first half, we were too pumped up. But coming in 21-0 after halftime, we had nothing to lose and we just started playing relaxed football and everything just started falling into place," said Hull.

"The team needed to come together as one," said Paul

Miller, who led the reappearance of the Glasgow lines. "We played as a team; that's what we've needed to do all season."

Glasgow quarterback Sean Money has recovered from his finger and ankle injuries sufficiently to return and this marked the first game that he and Pat and Paul Williams were healthy and in the same backfield.

"At Elkton, we said 'when those three get together...' " said Scott. "Sean gives us a new dimension as quarterback. We've been an option team as long as I've been around and we haven't been able to run it as well without him. We really ran it like heck in the second half. We needed a springboard...We're starting to see a little structure above ground."

"I guess we weren't as emotionally ready for it," said Newark lineman Kevin Scannell. "We definitely have to come ready to play the next three games if we want to get into the state tournament."

"I have never had a comfortable feeling going into a game — that we are the dominant team, or that we are the best team," said Simpson. "I feel like we could win or lose every week, we are just so inconsistent in our mental approach and in our execution. I'm responsible for this, and I'm very frustrated about my own personal ability to make us the best team that we can be."

NEWARK

Once again, the weakness was in blocking, which led to the 15-2 drubbing in the second game. Simply enough, the 'Jackets don't have the trees to fill up the middle.

"But they're making up for it in other ways," said Apichella. "In years gone by, when we had the biggest hitters and blockers, we probably didn't work as much on our defense as we should have. I decided last year after the loss to Archmere in the tournament, which I felt we lost because we didn't play enough good defense, that we will never lose that way again."

Concord took a 7-1 lead early on, but the 'Jackets settled and came right back on a four point service run by Dianna Rewa (10 service points, five aces, six kills), which included two aces, and a three point run by Stephanie Leedle (five service points, one ace, one kill) to take a 8-7 lead.

Newark led from that point on, and two kills by Andria Miller (12 service points, three aces, nine kills) on Rewa's serve won the game, 15-9.

Concord again took the early lead in the second game, but this time played much more consistent defense, allowing them to set their hitters much more consistently and win 15-2.

"Our mental intensity wasn't as good that game," said Pedrotti. "We were putting our hits right to the defense, then when they hit back to us, we weren't up for it. I was just a mental lapse. We realized how much we wanted it. We weren't going to give it away like that. In the third game, we played our game and we controlled the pace."

In that game, the 'Jackets scratched out a 2-1 lead early, and then Andria Miller ran off six service points, three on Rewa kills, to give Newark a 8-1 lead. Rewa served two aces to extend the lead to 10-3. Miller came back with five more service points, the game winner on a kill by Rewa, and Newark won the match.

Miller's performance was her best of the year, something she attributes to her hard work in learning both the outside and middle hitter positions she's been placed in.

"She's amazing," said Apichella. "I played her a lot last year when she was up and down, because I saw it there, and I knew it would come out. It's come out. Last year paid off."

It was a season's best performance for two other hitters as well, the experienced Rewa and the sophomore Jenn Sternberg (one kill).

"The last couple of practices, I realized that I haven't been playing as well as I can," said Rewa. "I really couldn't tell you why, but this time I knew it was the big match."

"I expected that all along," said Apichella of Rewa. "She's an awesome player too. She hasn't shown what she can do in a whole match (All of Rewa's kills were in the third game) but when she gets cranked up, like in that third game, she can carry us."

"I have a sophomore at middle hitter — she came of age a little tonight. That was a position I needed to replace."

"I was scared at the beginning," said Sternberg. "My teammates were really supportive."

Book retorts

Unlike yesterday's dawn which was a two-booker, today's was a three-booker. Now that's an attention-grabbing opening sentence. It's precisely the kind of sentence Miss Fisher, my wonderful high school English teacher, would have cherished. She was one of those superbly enthusiastic teachers we all hope our children have at least one of. (Miss Fisher would not have cherished that last sentence quite.)

It was she who beguiled a bunch of callow and skeptical 17-year-olds in Omaha into reading The Classics. Were we surprised to learn how fascinating those books were! (I reserve comment on "Billy Budd.") Until Miss Fisher introduced me to Dante, I thought Beatrice was either a small town in western Nebraska or the food processing company that made my favorite mayonnaise.

So I hope you, like Miss Fisher, will read on to find out what in blue blazes a three-book-down is. But before I explain, a bit of background. Regular readers know that my family is owned by a cat named Tuxedo who, for the past several months, has felt that it is his bounded duty to awaken us in plenty of time to see the sun come up. And once we are up, we might as well fix him a hearty breakfast, enjoy the pleasure of his company while he eats it, and then let him out to pursue his catly pleasures.

We aren't wild about Tux's agenda. However, polite entreaties haven't worked, neither have explanations of why we need our sleep. Tactfully ignoring his desire for our company has proven useless. Not even my husband's 15 minute presentation — complete with five-color graphics and background music — of biorhythms and sleep cycles has changed Tuxedo's mind.

Seeing that sweet reason wasn't working, I escalated the discussion into soft missiles, namely unmatched socks that were just waiting to find a useful purpose.

Unmatched socks, even cranberry and navy argyles mixed with chartreuse and navy tweeds, aren't much of a threat. Five hundred-page paperback books are.

They send Tux scuttling away, ears back and tail high in alarm. I am not the mighty and brilliant reader that the books on my bedside stand indicate. "WordPerfect—Secrets, Solutions, Shortcuts," "The Synonym Finder," "The Physicists," and Barbara Tuchman's "A Distant Mirror" are not for expanding my intellectual capacity. These weighty tomes are, instead, sleep extenders. So, at last, you know what a three-book-down is.

I suspect that most families have their own ways of measuring things. Grace measures the length of a trip with her children by the number of bags of Oreos it takes to reach her destination. Her son holds the family record with 12 bags, and he didn't even throw up when they crossed Nebraska.

A neighbor measures the power of his sneezes by the number of tissues needed. His record is six; that particular sneeze also loosened the screws in the storm door.

My sister-in-law measures movies by hankies "Gone with the Wind" holds the record of seven, but "Terms of Endearment" isn't far behind. A relative, I won't name him to protect his privacy, measures a pizza's success by the number of burps. I think the current record of five is held by an anchovy, sweet pepper and pepperoni with double cheese on a thick crust.

Of course there are three-gasp stops when a teenager first learns to drive, four-whistle hunks at the beach, and five-yawn concerts. But the best measure of all goes to my son who was on the college swim team in Wisconsin. He measured how cold it was in January by the number of blocks it took for his wet hair to freeze as he walked from the gym to the dorm.

One hopping Halloween parade

Sunny skies and a brisk breeze greeted thousands of Newark area residents who turned out for the 41st annual Halloween parade held Sunday on Main Street.

Caravel Academy was the big winner, taking first place in the division for floats. Avon Grove High School of nearby West Grove, Pa. was second and Mother Hubbard Child Care was third.

Girl Scout Troop 111, presenting a bee hive and buzzing bees, was judged best of the large marching groups. Brownie Troop 429 was second and Brownie Troop 221 was third.

Among family marching units, the Saadehs place first with the Houtz family second, the Parkens family third and the Hansen family fourth.

Other winners are as follows:

- Seventh graders — Amanda Garr, Lisa Hill, Carrie Johnston, Kevin Eller, Jennifer Harman.
- Fourth, fifth and sixth graders — Gary Rossman, Erin McLaughlin, Amanda Shanahan, Katie Perry, Ka Wansi, Katie Garrett.
- Second and third graders — Beth Guest, Laura Green, Stephanie Rice, Jason Hough, Tiffany Morris.
- First graders — Shane Smith.

Christopher Walzl, David Hepner, Tanya Smullen, Megan McMillan, Stacey Smith.

• Kindergartners — Bryan Fitzgerald, Jonathan Ellis, Nicholas Perry, Erin Kennedy, Sasha Wright, Miranda Porter.

• Preschoolers — Max Hellstern, Nathan Pochomis, Natalie Pochomis, Karly Laughlin, Megan Love, Kristi Parks.

THE ARTS

OCP prepares for event-filled season

With the Opera Company of Philadelphia — Luciano Pavarotti Voice Competition behind, the opera company can now focus its full attention on one of the most exciting and event-filled seasons in its relatively short history. General Director Margaret Anne Everitt never does anything half way!

The 1988-89 season finds four new productions of complete operas, a recital and a "Messiah" spectacular. Knowing me as you do, you know I will start with the opera, right? Right!

Each opera will be performed twice at the Academy of Music. The first offering will be on the boards Monday, Nov. 21, and Friday, Nov. 25. It is Antonin Dvorak's "Rusalka." It stars Ashley Putnam and Mignon Dunn, and will be conducted by Max Epstein.

"Rusalka" tells the story of a water nymph who falls in love with a prince and the price they both have to pay for that love. It is based on the popular Czechoslovakian fairy tale.

I saw Mignon Dunn in the opera at the Spoleto Festival in the same role she will sing in the OCP production. You are in for a real treat. The music is richly textured, lyrical and beautiful.

Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio," will be the second offering and be performed Monday, Jan. 16, and Friday, Jan. 20. Margaret has drawn a very strong cast from the great music festivals of Europe. It includes Jeannine Altmeyer, William Johns and Hans Sotin. The conductor is on a par with the singers, none other than Gunter Neuhold.

The choral work in "Fidelio" is most demanding and chorus director Michael Korn is already hard at work with the "prisoners." Even though the story is one of supreme heroism, there is a lot of comedy in the opera, for example the quartet "Mir ist so wunderbar." Then, of course, there is always the "love" of the turnkey for Fidelio; unrequited to say the least.

The last two operas of the season will both star Luciano Pavarotti with the winners of the voice competition held last month. It is too soon to know exactly which winner will play which part, but I will keep you informed. On Friday, March 31, and on Monday, April 3, Giuseppe Verdi's "Luisa Miller" will be sung. On Sunday, April 9 and Thursday, April 13, Gaetano Donizetti's "L'Elisir d'amore" will round out the four operas.

"Luisa Miller" is a very personal Verdi opus, no crowns or empires at risk, a story of much more simple people. It isn't performed as often as the Verdi standards, and that is a shame. The work is well suited to the younger voices of the winners and is one of Pavarotti's favorites.

The final opera is one of everybody's favorites, the delightful comedy of love potions, misunderstandings and a surprise inheritance, "L'Elisir d'amore." The role of Nemorino will give Pavarotti a chance to stop the show with "Una furtiva lagrima." That one aria is always worth the price of admission.

Jessye Norman, who made her American stage debut with the Opera Company of Philadelphia will present a recital on Feb. 26 at 7 p.m. She has been interested in returning to the scene of her first triumph and this is the season in which she will do it.

One event in the season will not take place in the Grand Old Lady of Locust Street; it will be at the Spectrum. It will be a performance of "The Messiah" on Dec. 9 at 8 p.m. The professional orchestra and chorus will be matched, person for person, by music students of the area. What a super idea for company outreach and what a super way to introduce children to performances by the Opera Company of Philadelphia.

We are truly fortunate to have a world class company so close to us, about an hour from Newark via I-95. For a season brochure or reservations, you may call (215) 732-5811.

By the way, opera lovers, if you like your opera with a lot of laughs, don't miss the Gilbert and Sullivan Showcase on the next edition of "The Sunday Opera" heard at noon, Sundays, on Delaware's public radio station, WXDR, 91.3 on the FM dial.

Entry deadline is Nov. 14. For details, call Jo Kmetz at 738-9340.

McFann to sign book

Jane McFann of Newark, an author whose novels are becoming increasingly popular among teenage readers, will be featured during an autograph signing 2-4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 5 at Volume II Books in the Newark Mini-Mall.

McFann is an English teacher at Glasgow High School and discusses her work with her students to draw a more accurate picture of teenage life.

Her most recent book, published by Avon, is "One More Chance." It follows the successful publication of "Maybe By Then I'll Understand."

McFann will autograph both books during Saturday's session.

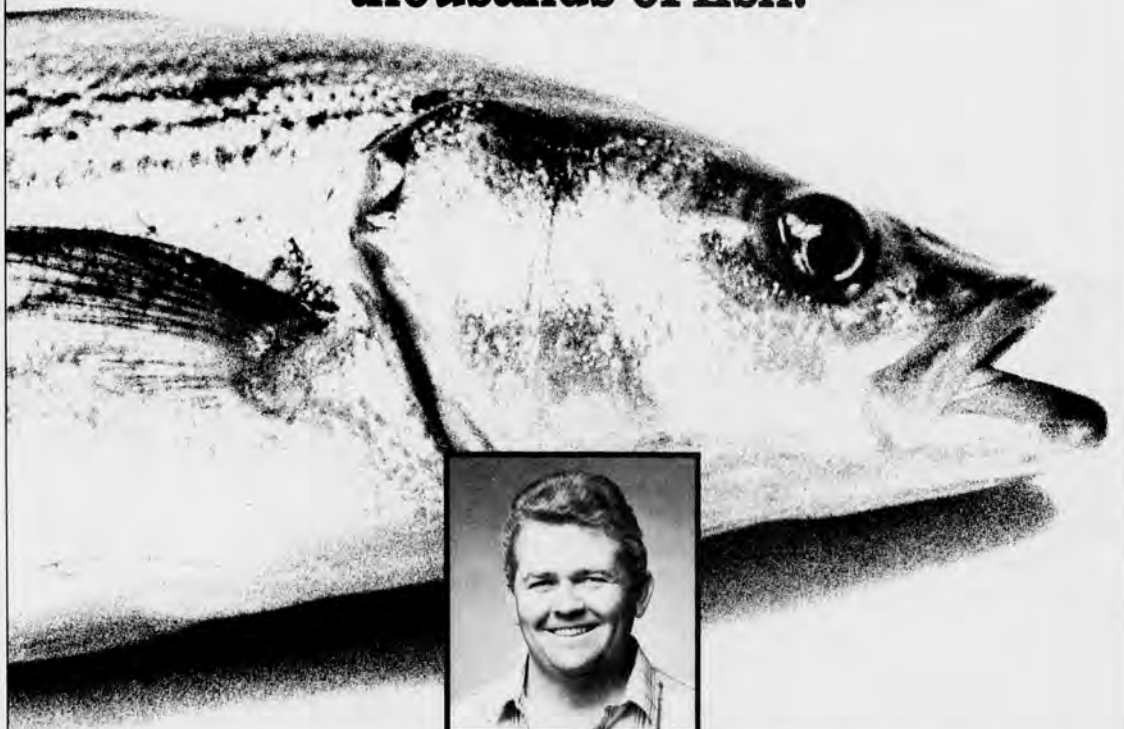

Avon has awarded McFann a

Jane McFann, novelist contract for yet a third book, and she is already working on the manuscript for her fourth.

The public is invited to meet and talk with McFann at Volume II.

Gene Lowe creates power for thousands of homes and a home for thousands of fish.

Gene Lowe and his co-workers at the Delmarva Power plant in Vienna, Maryland produce electricity for thousands of homes. But on their lunch hour they're involved in a different kind of production. They're helping to restore the Striped Bass population by breeding them right at the plant and releasing them into the Nanticoke River.

Gene's been fishing the river since he was a boy. So he took a personal interest when Delmarva Power helped the Delmarva Ecological Laboratory set up a shore side spawning facility. Concerned about the declining Striped Bass population, Gene and his plant buddy Ed Larmore suggested building an on-site breeding pond for the fish to grow in. In just three years, Gene, Ed and other Delmarva Power volunteers, have helped raise over 42,000 fish to restock the Chesapeake Bay.

Conserving our ecology is just one way Delmarva Power people like Gene are working to make life better for all of us today and tomorrow. We're also building new power plants and finding other ways to meet your growing energy needs. Because the Delmarva Peninsula is more than where Gene works. It's the special place he calls home.

Jesse Read, bassoonist, joins the Del'Arte Wind Quintet for a performance Wednesday, Nov. 9.

Read joins quintet

Jesse Read, a member of the select number of world-class bassoon soloists, will make his debut as a member of the Del'Arte Wind Quintet during a recital Wednesday, Nov. 9.

Del'Arte will perform at 8 p.m. in the University of Delaware's Loudis Recital Hall, Amstel Avenue and Orchard Road.

Read joined the performing faculty at the University this fall.

He has established himself as a distinguished bassoon soloist, having made several recordings. The most recent is a highly-praised solo album of the sonatas of Francois Devienne.

Other members of the quintet are Eileen Grycky, flute; Lloyd Shorter, oboe; Peter Hill, clarinet; and Francis Orval, horn.

Wednesday's program is free and open to the public. It includes Wind Quintet No. 1 in E flat by Peter Muller, "Summer Music" by Samuel Barber and "Quintette" by Jean Francaix.

The Francaix composition is typical of the author's ability to express the tradition of French music in a witty 20th century style. "Summer Music" is an impressionistic work reflecting the eclecticism for which the Pulitzer Prize-winning Barber is known.

'Harvey' staged by Newark

"Harvey," the Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy by Mary Chase, will be staged Friday and Saturday, Nov. 18 and 19 by the Newark High School theater department.

The production will feature Michael Hall as Elwood P. Dowd, a harebrained sort who imagines that his best friend and companion is a white rabbit over six feet tall.

Other cast members include Tara Boulden as nurse Ruth Kelly and Chad Nelson and Marc Guthrie as the psychiatrists Drs. Sanderson and Chumley.

Also in the cast are Erik Martin as Wilson the orderly, Gina Silveira as society matron Mrs. Chauvenet, Sandy Graham as Judge Gaffney, Tara Forshey as Dr. Chumley's wife, Ruth, Shuba Iyengar as Miss Johnson and Carl Kelsh as the taxi driver.

The production is being directed by Donald Morgan, and Mark Freidly is supervising scenery design and construction.

Members of the technical theater class and Drama Club are responsible for lighting, sound effects, props and costumes.

Curtain time is 7:30 p.m., and tickets cost $3 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. They will be available from cast, crew and Drama Club members and at the door.

ENTERTAINMENT

Stages
spring to life

Two Newark stages will spring to life next week as the Chapel Street Players present "Death Trap" and E-52 Student Theatre offers the premiere of "The Untold Tale of a Prince and a Pauper."

Both shows will open Friday evening, Nov. 11.

"Death Trap" is a well-known play by Ira Levin, author of "Critic's Choice" and "No Time For Sergeants."

According to critic Clive Barnes, "The intricately fashioned plot contrivances bring gasps (and) the comedy lines draw delighted chortles."

The story concerns Sidney Bruhl, a writer of Broadway thrillers who has fallen upon hard times with a series of flops. While conducting a seminar at a nearby college, a student submits a manuscript for what Bruhl believes will be a sure-fire hit.

He devises a plan to collaborate with the student, at which point the plot thickens.

"Death Trap" is directed by Don Pruden, president of the Chapel Street Players. The cast features Pamela Corbin, Blair Ferguson, Steve Masters, Debra McGuire and Tom Sweeney.

It will be staged in the Chapel Street Theater on North Chapel Street. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Nov. 11-12, 18-19 and 25-26 with a 3 p.m. matinee Nov. 20. Tickets cost $8 for adults, $7 for senior citizens and $6 for students. Call 368-2248.

"The Untold Tale of a Prince and a Pauper" is an original musical written and composed by Rita Augustine, an honors student and DuPont scholar at the University of Delaware.

The play is loosely based on Mark Twain's classic, and details the events and complications that result when Prince Edward switches identities with a young pauper named Tom.

Tom is left to save the crown from the prince's scheming advisor and win the heart of Lady Jane. The music is set in a magical age of love, power and revenge.

The play is directed by Scott F. Mason, and Scott Porreca is musical director.

It will be staged in Room 100 of the University's Wolf Hall. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Nov. 11-12 and 17-19, with a 2:15 p.m. matinee Nov. 19. Tickets cost $3. Call 451-6014.

E-52 Student Theatre is celebrating its 65th year this season.

CHURCHES

Lenny Seidel will perform Sunday evening at Faith Baptist Church in Pike Creek.

Seidel to perform at Faith

Pianist Lenny Seidel of Connecticut will perform a sacred music concert at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 6 in Faith Baptist Church, Limestone Road, Pike Creek.

A graduate of Bob Jones University, Seidel holds degrees in music and theology and is the founder of Grace Unlimited Ministries and Publications.

The Virginia-based organization is dedicated to upholding the high standard of music in churches and schools through seminar and concerts.

Seidel performs about 130 concerts each year and one reviewer wrote, "He possesses a rare combination of the technique of the keyboard and a warm sensitive spirit of interpretation. With the classics as a foundation, sacred music from Wesley to the fine composers of our day comes alive and touches the heart of all who love and appreciate the splendor of our musical heritage."

Seidel is the author of a book on the biblical exposition of music and is currently writing another on contemporary church music.

Kingswood to dedicate renovations

Marrows Road church plans special celebratory service Sunday

by Cathy Thomas

Although people make up a church, a beautiful building can inspire those in worship.

Such is the thought behind the just-completed $90,000 renovation of Kingswood United Methodist Church on Marrows Road in Newark.

"The purpose is to enhance worship," said Rev. Gary L. Moore. "It was necessary work that had to be done."

A major part of the renovation is new structural stained glass windows in the church sanctuary. Not only are the new stained glass windows beautiful, Moore said they are practical.

"They offer us insulation," said Moore. "What you have is double-pane instead of single-pane. The windows, through their design, tell of prophecy fulfillment. It's a big brush painting of what God wants for his world."

The windows, which cost about $44,000, were designed by The Baut Studios, Inc. in Kingston, Pa. The windows were brought to the church in pieces and then put together in the church.

Other aspects of the renovation project include refinishing of pews and woodwork, new carpeting and new front doors.

Moore said the renovation was financed through pledges of church members. "We were able to raise one-third of the donations up front," said Moore.

Moore also the church was able to depend on the technical expertise of church members, including Joseph Lansberry and Randy Olney, which help cut costs on the project.

The renovation has been under way for several months. The project will be dedicated during services at the church Sunday, Nov. 6.

"It's the high point of my pastoral career," said Moore. "I think it marks a new day for the life of this congregation."

Church Women United units merge

Church Women United in Delaware and Maryland Upper Shore is a newly-constituted organization, the result of a request from the Upper Shore unit to transfer its affiliation from Maryland to Delaware for geographical and economic reasons.

The Upper Shore unit includes Church Women United in Maryland's Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne, Caroline and Talbot counties.

Winifred Hardy, president of Church Women United in Delaware, will continue as president of the enlarged organization.

Nancy Leathrum, president of the Upper Shore unit, will join the presidents of the three local Delaware units — Jean Dunson, Newark; Thelma McGinnis, Wilmington and northern New Castle County; and Charlotte Hunt, Dover.

Hardy welcomed the Upper Shore unit, saying, "I look forward to the new opportunities this relationship offers, those which are apparent now and also those yet to be revealed."

Church Women United is a national, ecumenical movement that brings Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women together into one community of prayer, advocacy and service.

The organization has 1,564 units throughout the United States, 52 state units (including Puerto Rico and Washington, D.C.) and a national unit with offices in Washington, New York City and the United Nations.

CWU plans 'World Day'

World Community Day, sponsored by Church Women United, will be held Friday, Nov. 4 in St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 276 S. College Ave., Newark.

World Community Day is an annual event that unites Christian women in a common worship experience. Topic will be "Everywoman's Ministry."

Registration will be at 9:30 a.m. with service one-half hour later.

Long-term care a concern

Insurance can provide financial protection, home economist says

Many people worry that they or their loved ones will one day be unable to care for themselves because of physical or mental disability.

Long-term care is one of many significant financial fears faced by people as they grow older, says University of Delaware Extension home economist Debbie Amsden. One form of financial protection against this fear is long-term-care insurance.

A relatively new product, this insurance has both advantages and disadvantages. "It can help you secure fairly substantial benefits by paying modest premiums," says Amsden, "but unless the risk becomes a reality and you incur expenses, you won't receive any benefits. Also, some policies contain terms that aren't in the consumer's best interest."

To determine whether buying long-term care, or LTC insurance is in your best interest, consider all of the pros and cons in light of your own situation, advises Amsden.

For example, could you afford to handle the LTC risk on your own? Saving can be an alternative to buying LTC insurance. Compare how much you can save to how much you would pay for insurance, says Amsden.

Remember, too, that the coverage offered by some LTC policies is similar to Medicare/Medicaid coverage. New Medicare/Medicaid regulations will be in effect soon, so be sure to compare them to any LTC policy you already have or are considering, advises Amsden.

One step in evaluating the need for insurance is to determine your chances of experiencing a specific risk. "Read the LTC policy carefully to find out whether it covers what, in fact, are likely risks to you," says Amsden.

Consider factors such as your health, how long people in your family live, and your chances of needing nursing home care. "Between 5 percent and 10 percent of the population will ultimately need long-term nursing home care," says Amsden.

Demographic research shows that other risks include the need for home health care services; a short-term nursing home stay for recovery from hospitalization; services such as meal preparation, transportation or a night nurse; and a hospital stay for a person eighty or over. People who don't have family to take care of them are most in need of these services.

While there aren't many LTC policies on the market, it's important to comparison shop, says Amsden. For example, most policies cover only "skilled" care, one of three levels of care available in a nursing home. However, many nursing home residents receive custodial or intermediate care. For this reason, look for a policy that includes coverage for custodial as well as other types of care, advises the home economist.

Most, but not all, policies pay only for services provided by facilities licensed by the state and certified by Medicare and/or Medicaid, says Amsden. However, more than 80 percent of nursing homes do not fit this description.

Also look for coverage that includes patients with Alzheimer's disease, the leading cause of nursing home admissions.

According to Amsden, if the policy provides coverage only for care that follows a recent hospital stay of three days or longer (most policies do), it won't help patients with Alzheimer's and other chronic conditions who seldom are hospitalized before entering a nursing home.

LIFE FILE

Lee Lydick, secretary of the Glasgow Lions Club, has been honored by his club and Lions Clubs International. Lydick, a Navy career officer who is retired from the Delaware Trust Co., was named a Melvin Jones Fellow, the highest recognition a club can bestow upon one of its members.

Glasgow Lions Club has been awarded a plaque for its award-winning club bulletin, "Tracking Glasgow Lions." The publication earned honorable mention in the International Lions bulletin contest, and was one of only four worldwide to receive that honor. The plaque features an inscription congratulating the club and its bulletin editor, Ed Short of Glasgow, "on being selected as the second best bulletin within our association." The publication has been named best in Delaware the last three years.

Leukemia Society hopes to brighten the holiday season through "Santagrams," special letters and gifts which can be sent to area children for $2.25 apiece. "Children love to receive mail," said Laurie McArthur, executive director of the Leukemia Society's Delaware chapter. "Imagine the excitement and happy faces when they open their very own letter from Santa Claus." The packages will be sent directly to children in time for Christmas provided they are ordered by Dec. 10. For details, call 764-7700.
