VISIT HAMPTON INSTITUTE

SEEKING IDEAS FOR STATE COLLEGE FOR COLORED STUDENTS

The Prudential Committee of the State College for Colored Students, composed of Mr. Francis Hofferker, of Wilmington, Mr. John Hutton, of Dover, with Prof. Hayward, made a visit to Hampton Institute on Sunday and Monday of this week. They were very much impressed with the character of the school, as none of them had ever had the opportunity of visiting this famous institution before.

The Institute now owns about 1,500 acres of land, has 135 buildings, and is attended by about 1,000 students during the year, in addition to which there are a large number of teachers attending the summer school, and many children who attend the school connected with the Normal Training Department.

The keynote of the whole institution is industry, as the school authorities have found, after 40 years' experience, that the negro race is helped more by knowing how to work and how to do work well than in any other way.

Besides the 13 grades taught, there are two academic courses intended primarily for teachers, a four years' course in Agriculture, and a four years' course in Domestic Science. All students in the school take Agriculture, even though they are in the trade schools or pursuing the academic course.

The school plant is a model. Few, if any, institutions for white students have a more complete equipment, or a better maintained plant than is to be found at Hampton Institute.

This institution is so well known and so highly thought of that for every applicant turned away. This makes the question of discipline very easy, because unless a boy or girl is serious and earnest, and appreciates the opportunity they have at Hampton, he or she is soon given to understand that they are not wanted, and that there are five others eagerly waiting to take their places.

The cost per pupil at Hampton is $100 per year. The school is a private corporation supported in part by endowment and in part by private contributions. The expenses of the school exceed the resources by about $125,000 annually. The heads of departments are in nearly every case white. Some of the sub-teachers are colored.

Hampton Institute is one of the show places of the South, and attracts a great many visitors of more than ordinary note—foreign noblemen, military and naval attaches, ambassadors, aside from philanthropists, statesmen, and business men of note who are interested in the race problem and the welfare of the negro, are constant visitors at Hampton.

One of the most interesting features of the school is its music. In connection with the military organization—in which no fire arms or side arms are permitted, there is a large band, and the singing at chapel and church exercises is very stirring.

The gentlemen from Delaware thoroughly enjoyed the services. Sunday evening, conducted by the President, Dr. Friezel, a part of which consisted of a half hour devoted to the singing of plantation melodies without accompaniment, under the leadership of the commandant—a large and a very black man, who is the grandson of an African Chief.

The purpose of the visit was to get ideas in regard to administration which could be adapted to the conditions obtaining at the State College for Colored Students in Delaware. The committee feel that the trip was very profitable, and that many ideas were obtained that can be put in practice at the colored college at Dover.

EXPERIMENTS ON THE COLLEGE FARM

Eighteen men from various parts of the State sent in to the Extension Division of the Department of Agronomy 10 ear samples of corn to be grown in the variety test. Along with these samples of corn will be grown 15 or 20 standard varieties. These lots of corn will be grown on the College farm and on one farm in each county. The men who will conduct these trials are: Harvey Ball, Stanton; G. J. Meredith, Felton; George Ray, Bridgeville, and Andrew Marvel, Georgetown. The object of this test is to determine the relative productiveness of local varieties with the so-called improved types on various kinds of soil.

Very gratifying reports are being received from the 50 alfalfa co-operators, who began alfalfa culture last fall under the direction of the Extension Division of the Department of Agronomy. Many of these growers anticipate a yield of two tons per acre the first cutting. Several will enlarge their acreage this season.

TEACHERS APPOINTED IN THE NEWARK SCHOOL

The Board of Education organized last Thursday evening following the election of April 25th. E. L. Richards was re-elected president and Dr. Joel S. Gillilan secretary and Treasurer. The following teachers were elected for the coming year: Principal, Prof. Reuben F. Friezel; first assistant, Miss Mabelle C. Nemock; second assistant, Miss Minnie Armstrong; commercial, Miss Mary C. Anderson; eighth grade, Miss Lillian West; seventh grade, Frances Medill; sixth grade, Louisa R. Swayne; fifth grade, Agnes P. Medill; fourth grade, Emily Pennington; third grade, Anna M. Duzzenbaker; second grade, M. Jennie Raub; first grade, Esther P. Ferguson; Kindergarten, Martha R. Steshorn. Miss Armstrong and Miss West are in this year's graduating class at the West Chester Normal School. Both are Delaware girls highly recommended by their instructors at that institution. Miss Anna Zehley, resigned, will enroll at the same normal school and take up the regular course next September.

PLANS FOR MEMORIAL DAY

J. B. Lutton of the Reynolds Post, G. A. R., No. 9, has plans under way for the observance of Memorial Day.

According to the custom followed for years, school children will be taken in bands to the Head of Christiana cemetery, where they will mark the graves of the soldiers with the stars and stripes and strew the mounds with flowers. Last year 18 graves were visited in the Head of Christiana cemetery, 13 in the Newark M. E., 3 in the St. Thomas P. E., and 1 in the St. John's R. C. cemeteries.

Mr. Lutton hopes this year to have speaking at the Head of Christiana, as well as in the Newark M. E. cemetery.

MISS DAVY RECEIVES APPOINTMENT

Assistant postmaster of Newark, William R. Lyman, secretary of the local civil service board has received a letter from the acting district secretary at Philadelphia, announcing the average of the right applicants who entered the competitive examination held in the Newark High School on April 6th for the clerkship position made vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Elwood Wollaston. Miss Alice Davy, who has been filling the position temporarily, will be appointed permanently upon the recommendation of Postmaster J. W. Brown.

Miss Davy, by her courteous manner, has already made herself popular with the public and the news of her appointment is received with pleasure by her many friends.

The Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Presbyterian Church, Newark, will give a strawberry festival on Friday, May 31st. Proceeds for the benefit of missions.

ILLUSTRATION USED IN MOTHERS' DAY SERVICE

SAMUEL DAVIS ONE TIME PRESIDENT OF PRINCETON, NEW CASTLE COUNTY MAN

In a sermon on Sunday morning at the Presbyterian Church, Newark, Dr. W. J. Rowan gave a sketch of the life of President Davies to illustrate the influence exerted by a good mother. Since President Davies was born and reared in New Castle county, a few miles from Newark, it ought to be a matter of local interest to know the facts concerning him. On Nov. 3rd, 1724, Samuel Davies first saw the light of day, his parents being of Welsh descent. He was their only son, his mother declaring that she gave him the name Samuel; for like Hannah, of old, she had asked God for the child, promising to lend him unto the Lord as long as he lived. His mother superintended his early education, because there were no schools nearby. At the age of ten, having absorbed all the knowledge his mother was able to give him, he was sent to an English school some distance from home. Here he was converted, and resolved to prepare himself for the gospel ministry. At the age of fifteen he entered the Academy at Faggs Manor, Pennsylvania, under the tutelage of Rev. Samuel Blair. Lack of means prevented him from taking the full course in the classics and theology. Henceforth he was obliged to work with his hands and study in private.

At the age of twenty-one he was licensed to preach the gospel. Close application to his books bore hard on him, and, believing himself affected by consumption, he determined to give himself unto the Lord for the few remaining days of his life. He located in Hanover, Virginia, and for several years labored with signal success. The out-of-door life restored his health, and with the removal of his strength he devoted much time to enriching his mind. When men were needed to represent the cause of the College of New Jersey in Great Britain, Mr. Davies was selected, for his oratorical gifts were known all through the Middle Colonial section. Although not quite thirty years of age, he produced a remarkable impression on the learned men of London. Even King George II. heard the distinguished American divine, and, astonished and delighted by his eloquence, sent for him to receive him kindly and present him with a large sum of money for the college. In 1759 Mr. Davies was chosen president of Princeton College, to succeed the distinguished metaphysician, Jonathan Edwards. His labors in the new office brought him to an untimely end. He died February 4th, 1761, when he was only 37 years of age. It is a matter of strong probability that President Davies powerfully influenced Patrick Henry, who from his eleventh to his twenty-second year lived in the neighborhood of Hanover, and frequently heard the divine preach. Davies was by nature fitted for oratorical work. He was tall, well-proportioned and erect. His voice was loud, clear and flexible; his gestures graceful. His very carriage, as one expresses it, "made him look like the ambassador of some great King." At times in impassioned speech his fiery oratory held his hearers spell-bound. It is no wonder that the youthful Patrick Henry "spoke in terms of enthusiasm of Mr. Davies, who first kindled the fire, and afforded the model of his education." When he became President of Princeton College, he set about to remedy the defect in his early training in the physical science, with the result that he neglected to give his body proper exercise, and hence an inflammatory fever in two days brought his life to an end.

His success he attributed to the training received from his mother. In a letter written to a friend in London he said: "I was blessed with a mother whom I might account, without flattery or partiality, one of the most eminent saints I ever knew upon earth. And here I cannot but mention an anecdote known but to few; that is, that I am a son of prayer, like my namesake, Samuel, the prophet, and my mother called me Samuel because she said, I have asked him of the Lord. This early dedication to God has always been a strong inducement to me to devote myself to Him as a personal act; and the most important blessing of my life I have looked upon as immediate answers to the prayers of a pious mother." His published discourses show him to have been a marvelous combination of deep learning and simple piety. Had he lived longer, he might have given to the world a work on theology comparable with the encyclopaedia of theological information, the result of years of patient toil by the late Charles Hodge.

FENCE VIEWERS APPOINTED

The Court of General Sessions has appointed the fence viewers for the year. Those from White Clay Creek hundred are: Harry Tendin, William J. Barnard, Samuel Clarence Stroud, Arthur G. Webber, Arthur T. Neale, John P. Wilson, Harry Fordham, William P. Wollaston, Charles P. Diekey and Frank J. Jamison.

Mill Creek—Newton I. Brinkin, Richard G. Buckingham, Philip Chandler, Joseph Eastburn, C. Frank McVaugh, Howard H. Jordan, A. Frank Klair, James H. Moelary and Reuben Satterthwaite. Pender—Henry C. Ellison, Jacob B. Cazier, John W. Davis, William T. Dayett, John T. Wright and Charles Walton.

CHANCE TO GET SEED

The Extension Department of Delaware College will distribute, free of charge, a limited number of four-pound lots of soy beans to farmers this season. Directions for planting, fertilizing and cultivating the crop will accompany the seed. The only requirement made of the grower is that he report the yield of seed when harvested. Write for the soy bean bulletin which will be ready for distribution in a few days. Address A. E. Grantham, Department of Agronomy, Delaware Experiment Station, Newark.

PEACH CROP THREATENED

A recent examination of a number of peach orchards throughout the State has shown that the peach crop is seriously threatened. Many of the blossoms and young twigs have turned brown and died. The damage is more severe in some orchards than in others. In all cases, the trouble will be found to be most serious in those orchards which produced a crop of peaches in 1910 and were not sprayed for the rot. The dying of the blossoms and twigs is caused by the brown rot; and the source of infection was the rotted peaches from the 1910 crop. The disease lives over for two years and if conditions are favorable the second spring, we can almost invariably expect severe blossom infection to be followed later by the peaches rotting on the tree.

In those peach orchards which were too young to bear in 1910, and are located some distance from older peach orchards, there will probably be little if any signs of dying twigs and blossoms.

The remedy is to spray thoroughly. The blossom infection for this year cannot be stopped as the damage is already done; but by prompt measures, the remainder of the crop may be saved. If spraying is neglected and there should happen to be hot moist weather at peach ripening time, the majority of the fruit on unsprayed peach orchards, over three years old, will rot upon the trees. Spraying thoroughly to control the rot this year will also be of value in controlling attacks of brown rot upon blossoms and twigs in 1914. Spray now. "A stitch in time save nine."

Directions for spraying peaches have been previously published. For further information, write C. A. McCue, Horticulturist, at Newark.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE DAY

GAINS SINCE THIS ANNIVERSARY LAST YEAR

With May 14th, International Peace Day, only three days away, we may find it of interest to pause and review the advances made in the peace movement since this anniversary one year ago.

During the past year the subject has received more public attention than in almost any similar period, largely fostered by the presence of the arbitration treaties among the problems of national political interest.

In 1912, for the first time within the history of the movement, the work was begun fully organized in all its parts. This great gain in working power was due to the Ginn gift of 1909 and the Carnegie gift of 1910, which enabled the limitation of lack of co-operation to be removed. Indeed, these gifts have entirely changed the aspect of the work, now promising to be handled as a scientific problem, for since the Carnegie endowment has been at the disposal of the workers there has been mapped out a pacifist program, which scientifically covers the entire field and co-relates the mass of pacifist work in the world.

Denys P. Myers, the librarian of the world peace foundation, in reviewing the movement, refers to this progress toward co-ordination as the outstanding fact of the year. The following information is gathered from an article by Mr. Myers, published in the Chautauqua Magazine for May 1912:

"By March 1911, the Carnegie endowment was organized and in action, as yet its influence has been chiefly felt in Europe, where pacifism heretofore had performed the miracle of existing without visible means of support.

"An American development of the year was the removal of the American Peace Society from its ancestral home in Boston to the national capital. Its succession in Boston by the Massachusetts Peace Society followed by organizations in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—there was already a good society in Connecticut—has been a notable instance of activity. In other respects also the American Peace Society has taken on a character more national and better designed to perform its proper service. The organization by states has been further supplemented by division into departments, covering the central west, New England, New York and the Pacific coast portions of the country. Most of these changes were prepared for previous to 1911, but were made effective in that year.

"The Carnegie endowment which has given such impetus to the work, is under the exclusive control of its board of trustees, the executive committee, of which has set down as its policy: (1) That the organization will not seek to supplant associations now existing, but will seek to strengthen and co-ordinate them; encouraging new organizations in parts of the field not adequately covered; (2) That the work will be world wide; (3) That abroad work will be conducted by assisting national organizations; (4) That special attention will be given to the direction of work 'along the line where the sentiment for peace comes into immediate contact with the difficulties and exigencies of practical international affairs.'"

The work of the endowment is to be done in three divisions: Economics, international law and education. Professor John B. Clark of Columbia, is director of the economics department; James Brown Scott, secretary of the endowment, the division of international law, and Nicholas Murray Butler, the division of intercourse and education. Under the last named division, Prof. Nitobe of Tokio, is lecturing in this country and Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, is in the far east for the same purpose.

The World Peace Foundation, essentially the educational instrument of the government, emphasizes the great gain in public interest. In one year 300,000 pamphlets were distributed, a surprisingly large number being sent by request. During the same period requests for information have quadrupled, and most of the inquiries indicate that they are writing, studying or lecturing on the subject.

The remarkable work of the American School Peace League, which supplies literature, including interesting programs and stories, which exalt the heroes of peace as well as those of war, for use in the school rooms, has been largely extended during the year. Their publications represent an unusual excellence in this line of work and every teacher loses by failing to get in touch with the splendid work of the league. It offers all of this interesting matter to any teacher who displays an interest by a post card request for the same. The league is now in touch with teachers in every state in the Union, as well as in many European countries.

Through the prizes offered annually by the School Peace League and the Lake Mohawk Conferences in international arbitration, the colleges and secondary schools are taking an increased interest in the subject, while school and college debates on phases of the subject have notably increased. All of these public activities have indicated by the kind of question asked that the people have become familiar with the peace proposition, for more and more they desire facts rather than opinions or essays.

This increase of public interest was shown by the action of the people when the arbitration treaties were under discussion. From the submission of a single resolution over 200 chambers of commerce throughout the country acted favorably to arbitration and after the texts of the arbitration treaties became available, resolutions favoring their ratification poured in upon the Senate. Through the legislative day of March 5th, Senators received 1,496 resolutions favoring the treaties from chambers of commerce, churches, commercial associations, lawyers, women's clubs, public welfare clubs, not to speak of soldiers' citizens, who transmitted their names to the Senate, literally in thousands. A public letter had been sent to the Senate, and had occasion to consider the subject earnestly and to study it to a small extent. Viewed broadly, it is probably not too much to say that the whole nation within the past year has expressed itself unanimously for peace, even though the citizenship was not so single-minded as to the merits of a particular arbitral solution of the problem.

Quoting Mr. Myers: "A movement, as diversified in its points of contact with public, political, social and moral questions, as is the peace movement, is naturally exceedingly difficult to summarize in a word.

"The attempt, however, is sometimes worth trying and it would seem to the writer that at the present moment the peace movement, as a great public force, has clearly made the moral field a conquered province and is definitely waging its present campaign in the practical fields of economics and international affairs."

FARM INTERESTS

The safety of the Delaware fruit crop is a matter of interest to dwellers in many states.

The following forecast was found in last week's issue of the "Rural New Yorker," and is the opinion of Wesley Webb, secretary of the Peninsula Horticultural Society:

"The fruit crop in Delaware seems to have escaped serious injury during the past winter and up to date, I have seen a little winter-killing of peach twigs on trees that were forced to a late growth last fall, but not enough to be called a real injury to the trees. Most orchards are now, April 26, just past the blooming period, but many of them showed an abundance of bloom. Certain yellow varieties bloomed sparsely, notably the Reeves, and in some cases the Elberta. Apples and pears have bloomed profusely, and strawberries are in excellent condition to produce a full crop of fruit."

Throughout the country the indications are that the hay crop will be below the average this year, owing to the killing of last year's seedling through the cold winter. The wet weather we have had this spring will help matters, as far as the hay crop is concerned.

Some agricultural students of University are making a trip around the world, making observations of agricultural possibilities and conditions. That is surely "going some" in education.

In a table of statistics of alfalfa culture, the value per acre for that grown in Delaware is $38.67.

At the summer session of the Connecticut Agricultural College there will be a model country school, where may be seen how agriculture may be taught rural school children.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

Cows and Hogs—and Men.

By PRESIDENT TAFT.

We have an agricultural department, and we are spending $14,000,000 or $15,000,000 a year to tell the farmers by the results of our research how they ought to treat the soil and how they ought to treat the cattle and the horses, with a view to having good hogs and good cattle and good horses. There is nothing in the constitution especially about hogs or cattle or horses, and it out of the public treasury at Washington we can establish a department for that purpose it does not seem to be a long step or a stretch of logic to say that we have the power to spend the money in a bureau of research to tell how we can develop great men and good women. Some of our enthusiastic conservators of national resources have endeavored how much the life of each man and each woman in the community is worth to that community. I do not think it necessary to resort to that financial calculation in order to justify the saving of human life, such as can be accomplished by the results of research and advice that will proceed from a properly established bureau of health.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

Concerning Predisposition.

By DR. LAWRENCE F. FLICK.

Some families undoubtedly are more prone to tuberculosis than others. This is true not only of families but of races. Predisposition is usually divided into three kinds—individual, family and racial. The individual predisposition is often brought about by improper living and by excess in eating and drinking. Family predisposition may be due to tuberculous tendencies or to environment under which the family lives. Racial predisposition appears to hinge largely upon the length of time to which the race has been exposed to the disease and the resistance which the race has built up against the disease.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

Stamping Out the Disease.

By HOMER FOLK.

There is absolute unanimity, too, among our expert authorities as there was not a decade ago as to just what we need to do in order to prevent tuberculosis. We must have general public education as to the nature and symptoms of the disease, and we have it. We must have reporting of cases by physicians, and we are getting it. We must have free dispensaries in every city and considerable village at which any person can secure an expert and thorough diagnosis of his condition and adequate instructions as to what he must do, and we are getting dispensaries. We must have visiting nurses to visit the patients in their homes and instruct them, not once, but many times, in the protection of their households. We are getting visiting nurses. We need, above all, hospitals in the larger cities and a county hospital in every county, and we are getting hospitals.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

The Business of Sitting Out.

By LOUIS HAMMAN, M. D.

You must address yourself to the task of sitting outdoors day after day most faithfully. You must make it your constant occupation and stick to it as though you were paid money for it. If you do not get the idea of continuous rest firmly set in your mind you will not succeed. By rest I mean lying down in a bed or chair in the fresh air. You are not to spend any time in a closed room except when bathing or dressing or eating. Rest all the time. Take no exercise or work until your doctor tells you—no walking, no standing, no rambling, no riding, no driving, no housework, no office work, no chores, no trips, no visits, no knocking about, no odd jobs, no exertion of any kind. Put yourself at rest in the open air after breakfast and stay there. Do not be forever jumping up and doing little things about the house or fetching and carrying. Every morning sit out; every afternoon sit out; every evening after supper sit out or lie in your outdoor bed.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

D. S. F. W. C. CONVENTION

Our Ad. Directory

The State Board of Education met on Friday and Saturday, May 10 and 11, for the election of Superintendents. W. Twintner of Wilmington, president; Henry B. Hynson, secretary, pro tem. The resolution was adopted: "That the County School Commission at New Castle county should at once take action on the recently submitted report of County Superintendent A. R. Spaid on effective and sanitary conditions of the rural New Castle county public schools, and take action to correct the improper conditions of some of the schools which are referred to in his report."

It was also resolved "that it is the sense of the Board of Education that it lend its moral support to any movement having for its object an experimental demonstration of a consolidated rural schools in each of the three counties of this State, with the idea of increasing the schools."

By resolution, the committee on statistics was authorized to secure the services of some capable person to serve for the next two or three months to go over the individual statistical report and maps, showing boundaries and to formulate, under the direction of the committee, a consolidated report on which to make a recommendation to the next General Assembly.

At the annual meeting of the Delaware Association of Teachers, held at the Hotel Marlborough, New York, May 10, 1912, the following resolutions were adopted: "Resolved, that the Delaware Association of Teachers, in its annual meeting, should take action to secure the services of some capable person to serve for the next two or three months to go over the individual statistical report and maps, showing boundaries and to formulate, under the direction of the committee, a consolidated report on which to make a recommendation to the next General Assembly."

The annual convention of the Delaware State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in Middletown Thursday and Friday of this week. On Friday afternoon the time will be devoted to a discussion of the higher education of Delaware girls. Rev. George Edward Reed, formerly president of Dickinson College, will speak on the subject: "College Education for Girls." Mrs. J. F. Pennypacker will tell of some modern ideas in education. A discussion will follow in which Dr. G. A. Harter, Dr. G. W. Twintner, Professor Harry Hayward, George B. Hynson and others will take part.

MASONIC HOME BEING IMPROVED

David C. Ross of Newark, chairman of the committee on buildings and grounds of the Masonic Home of Delaware was authorized at the regular monthly meeting of the board of managers to proceed by plans submitted on Architect Rhoades to have a mansard roof placed on the home which will make a complete three-story structure. Also to have installed an up-to-date heating and water system. The house is to be wired and repainted and a general overhauling given the gas plant. The entire buildings are to be put in first-class condition prior to the dedication and opening in October. When the exact date will hold its annual meeting. Chairman Ross will act for the home in the absence of the president, who is in the hospital.

EBEN B. FRAZER, Administrator.

THE VALUE OF GOOD PLUMBING

Good plumbing is one of the most important features of the home and should receive your careful attention at all times.

When you consider that the health of the entire household is governed absolutely by domestic sanitary conditions, you can readily see the extreme necessity of equipping your home with only the best and most sanitary fixtures to be had.

Many people pay out yearly for doctor bills, for sickness caused by deadly sewer gases due to poor and imperfect plumbing, more than the difference between the cost of the cheapest and the best work.

This fact alone should be sufficient to warrant your close attention. If your plumbing equipment is not thoroughly modern, let us quote you a price on installing new fixtures and correcting the defective piping, etc. We sell and install "Pumco" plumbing fixtures, because of their thorough sanitary efficiency, lasting service and because they are absolutely guaranteed. Illustrated literature always on hand.

LOCALLY PERTINENT

The latest squib from Teddy can well be told in connection with the attitude of the Every Evening in its masterly defense of Heald. Colonel Roosevelt was in The Outlook offices, when one of the associate editors was criticizing a speech made by some well-known statesman. On saying he was going to roast the orator and call him an ass, Roosevelt replied: "Don't, just print his speech."

So in order that we may not be accused of having a prejudiced view, we simply print the following from the Every Evening:

The Republican organization and the Newark Post continue their assaults upon Representative Heald, and the newspaper is especially bitter, its editor being an aspirant to the Congress nomination. But there is no indication that the Organization, while it will refuse to renominate Mr. Heald, is at all inclined to name its servile editorial supporter as his successor.

PEOPLES' COLUMN

SHALL WE BE MAN HUNTERS FOR KINGS?

Editor The Post: If the Root amendment to the Dillingham Immigration Bill becomes a law the right to an asylum in this country will be denied to the oppressed of other lands. The amendment, which Senator Root, in the interests of foreign aristocracies, slipped into the bill and got passed through the Senate, provides that any foreign-born persons who "conspire" against any government recognized by the United States shall be deported. This country is already filled with Russian and other spies and to make the safety of patriots who have fled from Russia, Spain or other countries having oppressive governments, depend upon their not having spoken or given money for freedom in their native lands, is to destroy that safety. If the amendment becomes law no foreign patriot will be safe, for to make what is said in private talk a basis for deportation is to not only destroy freedom of speech, but is to put into the hands of the spies, who will readily purjure themselves, the power to have any foreign-born resident seized by our government and delivered over to a czar or a king; men, women, youths, girls, to be imprisoned, tortured, executed or worn into mere shreds of humanity in Siberian mines. To make the United States, with all its boasted free institutions, a man-catcher for tyrants, is infamous, a turning away from our traditional opposition to tyrants, a debasement of a free people such as no one but an intellectual slave of the millionaire class, like Root, would be guilty of knowingly supporting.

Our country was founded and maintained by refugees. It was Catholic refugees who founded Baltimore and Quaker refugees who founded Philadelphia, German refugees who founded Germantown, and fugitives who helped establish Delaware. The Huguenots, the Moravians, and Cromwell's men built up the civilization of the Carolinas, and of the Virginia and Maryland coasts. Of those fleeing because they conspired, and conspiring afterward for liberty in the lands they left were the families that produced Washington and the Fairfaxes, with many a splendid example of human devotion to truth. The men who landed at Plymouth, families whom to this day are splendid Americans, conspired in public prayer and private talk against the governments of their native land. The continual coming of the Irish to our land has been because the Irish conspired, and would the more conspire, for freedom. The Jews, who financed the American Revolution, were working against the governments that drove them across the seas. The great masses of foreign peoples who come here today come because of evil conditions of government in lands as rich as fertile, as dear as ours. Shall we deny the age-long hope to those we admit? Shall we encourage foreign kings to set spies beneath the windows in American cities and villages, and bind mothers and daughters for delivery to the bloody manor the infamous tortures of Spain? Is there no Americanism left that a man who has voted for such a proposition dares hope to again be elected to office?

If we pass such a bill we shall declare ourselves no longer even self-respecting, for no first-class power would do such a thing for us. We shall repudiate John Paul Jones, our great admiral who fled from England to lead our ships and crush the English that this Republic should survive. We shall repudiate that splendid company of English-born, who helped us fight England in our two great wars for independence. We shall repudiate our action as to Kossuth, whom we welcomed as a nation and sent back with millions of treasures contributed by the common people, to free Poland. We shall repudiate the welcome we gave many a German and Irish patriot, who came here because they loved freedom. We shall join with the Russian church in hunting its heretics at the bidding of the Russian Czar. Every Chinese plot, every Japanese internal disturbance, every Austrian insurrection, English struggle with colonies, Indian mutiny, Greek rebellion and Italian civil war, will make a multitude of refugees who will reach our land only to be hunted out by our officials at the bidding of infamous spies, employed by foreign rulers, and we shall be forced by our own laws to send girls back to the lash, the mine and degrading death, the men and women loving liberty, we shall hold to the orders of those who are an indictment of the character of humanity. And for what? To please J. P. Morgan and the international financiers? Have we come to that? If not for that, then for what purpose? Do the "conspiracies" against Russian or other tyrannical governments injure us? Are we concerned to help hang the men and women whom bad governments have made fugitives? There was never since the world began masses of refugees save as tyranny or robbery in some form made them. It is the interest of a true republic to shelter all who hate kings. The world cannot remain half plutocracy and half democracy. No man worthy to be counted American puts his hand to the work of protecting monarchies from the wrath of outraged victims. It is the duty of every good citizen to write at once to the member of the national House of Representatives he thinks represents him, making known his deep resentment of such partnership with foreign oppression.

MOTHERHOOD

The best mother that ever lived—your own.—Anna Jarvis.

She may be the poorest, the meanest of our kind; but give her her child in her arms, and her features assume a dignity, a beauty of love's expression that seems a transfiguration. She may be haggard, wrinkled, decrepit; but let her only be seen through her children's eyes—let her but appear to the world with one of them beside her—and a halo of such sanctity invests her as a saint might wear in the reverence of the faithful.

It is because she is a mother; that is all. No trappings of wealth, no vanities of adornment, not the widest tumult of any popular acclaim, can give to a woman that one sacred beauty, or even an approach to it, if nature, or herself, has denied to her the highest office of her sex. Her maternity, ravishingly fair though she may have been in innocent girlhood, is her crown and her glory.

It may be that her ordeal of suffering has lent to her charms a deeper, more abiding luster, as it has searched in her nature depths that were previously unrevealed. It may be that within her there abides, through weal and woe, the sublime consciousness that she, at her appointed stage in the destinies of the race, has been the chosen vessel for creation's latest miracle in the evolution of mankind. It may be the simple happiness of her exquisite mother love that transforms her humble humanity into something that partakes of the divine.

All confess the power of that mother-love, imbued with beauty; all yield homage to its inherent grandeur. Instinctively, however ill-favored the woman herself may be, we find her, as the mother, beautiful North American.

FAN WHO GETS N. A. BASEBALL EDITION STARTS RIGHT

Every baseball fan, whether rooter for big league team or member or partisan of minor league club, school or college, amateur or semi-professional team, should see The North American's annual baseball supplement, which appears next Sunday, May 19.

As usual, it mirrors the entire field. Everything is there. The front and back pages are in color, superb illustrations, James C. Isaminger, The North American's baseball columnist, writes a story on superstitions of the ballplayers, which is admirably illustrated by Cartoonist Hoban.

Sporting Editor George M. Graham contributes an article on dramatic drives that have made ball-players famous, with a striking full-page picture of "Home Run" Baker.

National, American and Tristate batting and fielding averages, with a page which gives the photograph of every player in the Tristate League, are other important features.

Robert E. Kauffman has covered the school and college field in detail, with many photographs and accounts of the work of various nines. The line-up of hundreds of state, minor league and independent clubs contains valuable information.

With something like 300 local line-ups in full, with names and addresses of managers and ages of players, the two pages about activities of Philadelphia teams become a valuable directory.

Previous editions have always been oversold. Be on the safe side and order now.

Record of Hon. William H. Heald

The Record of Hon. W. H. Heald for the first session of his second term will be given in detail, next week.

By request of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society of Delaware, we are printing a series of short articles by eminent authorities. They are well worth reading.

REPORT FROM NEW CASTLE COUNTY WORKHOUSE

According to the report submitted to the board of trustees of the workhouse by Chief Warden Crawford at the monthly meeting yesterday, the average daily population of the prison during April was 241. This is far below what the average population was until a few months ago. The big drop in the number of inmates cannot be accounted for by the prison officials. They say there are just as many prisoners being sent from the two lower counties as heretofore, but they have noticed a falling off in the number sent from New Castle county and Wilmington.

Until recently there were usually 125 prisoners in the workhouse serving time for the non-payment of fines and costs. This class of inmates has dropped until the present number is 37. Work being plentiful, most of the city court prisoners who are convicted pay their fines and costs or have their friends pay it for them and thereby avoid a trip to the workhouse.

Routine business was only considered by the trustees yesterday. In addition to the average daily population Chief Warden Crawford's report showed the average daily number employed 220; manufactured during the month, 4,596 dozen pairs of trousers; receipts, $4,831.99; amount outstanding in board and other bills, $3,300, of which Sussex county owes about $1,200 for four months; board of prisoners; cost of officers 36 cents per diem; prisoners, 94 cents.

"Should agriculture be taught in the public schools?" was the subject for discussion by members of Delaware Grange at Newport, on their last regular meeting night. In the opinion of the grange it should not be, on account of the average teacher's unfamiliarity with farming, and the expense of employing experienced instructors. The members believed that lessons in farming should be imparted in exclusive agricultural colleges.

Fred Gibbons, Presley Geoghegan, Elmer Hoke were chosen from the tennis finals, played at the college last Monday, to compete in the intercollegiate meet to be held at Annapolis on Friday.

Hockessin Grange was largely attended last Monday night, when the sisters entertained the brothers. An interesting program was carried out by the ladies of the grange.

The Senior class at Delaware defeated the Juniors in an interesting game played Tuesday, by the score of 5 to 3. This makes the fourth season the Seniors have won in the chess contests and gains for them the championship of the college.

According to a ruling passed by the Board of Education at its meeting last May the salaries of all the re-appointed teachers of the Newark schools were increased $25 a year. The salary of Miss Anderson, the commercial teacher, was increased to $700 a year.

The members of the Delaware College track team are working hard, preparatory to the meet with St. John's College at Annapolis, on Friday. The only meet scheduled at home for the season is with Drexel, the other two being with Haverford at Haverford, and with Swarthmore at Swarthmore.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Slack have returned home after spending some time with relatives and friends of Philadelphia, Pa.

By Iron Hill winning from Strickersville, and Newark winning from Bay View on Saturday, makes Iron Hill in first place; Newark and Bay View tie for second place and Strickersville still trailing along.

The game at Iron Hill was a fairly well played game and after the sixth inning looked like anybody's game for a while, but the Strickersville boys were unable to solve Whiteman's delivery, not being able to get a hit off him the last three innings. Lomax also pitched a masterly game and with better support, the score would have been quite different. Drennon, second baseman for Iron Hill, met with a very painful accident in the seventh inning, he having one of his fingers broken in taking a throw down and tagging his man at second base. Score:

REPEATS THE CHARGE TO OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY

Also K. Baylis, department commander of the Delaware G. A. R., has published the following order from the commander-in-chief to the Department of Delaware:

Headquarters Grand Army of the Republic, Washington, D. C., May 5th, 1868.

General Orders No. 11.

The 30th day of May, 1868, is designated for the purpose of strewing flowers with, or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion, and those bodies now lie in almost every city, village and hamlet churchyard in the land. In this observance no form of ceremony is prescribed, but posts and comrades will in their own way arrange such fitting services and testimonials of respect as circumstances may permit.

We are organized, comrades, as our regulations tell us, for the purpose, among other things, "of preserving and strengthening those kind and fraternal feelings which have bound together the soldiers, sailors and marines who united to suppress the late rebellion." What can aid more to assure this result than by cherishing tenderly the memory of our heroic dead, who made their breasts a barricade between our country and its foes? Their soldier lives were the reveille of freedom to a race in chains, and their deaths a tattoo of rebellious tyranny in arms. We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance. All that the consecrated wealth and taste of the nation can add to their adornment and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of her slain defenders. Let no wanton foot tread rudely on such hallowed ground. Let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of reverent visitors and fond mourners. Let no vandalism of avarice or neglect, no ravages of time, testify to the present or to the coming generations that we have forgotten as a people the cost of a free and undivided republic.

If other eyes grow dull and other hands slack, and other hearts cold in the solemn trust, ours shall keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remain to us.

—Let us, then, at the time appointed, gather around their sacred remains and garland the passionless mounds above them with the choicest flowers of springtime; let us raise above them the dear old flag they saved from dishonor; let us in this solemn presence renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us, a sacred charge upon the nation's gratitude—the soldier's and sailor's widow and orphan.

11. It is the purpose of the commander-in-chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year, while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of his departed comrades. He earnestly desires the public press to call attention to this order, and lend its friendly aid in bringing it to the notice of comrades in all parts of the country in time for simultaneous compliance therewith.

111. Department commanders will use every effort to make this order effective.

By command of
John A. Logan,
Commander-in-Chief,
N. P. Chipman,
Adjutant-General.

THE ADVICE OF JEFFERSON

Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States, gives this advice:

Do not sit up late at night; study and work in the daytime. Rise early and go to bed early. Avoid novel reading and cultivate the companionship of good books. Never tell a lie or stoop to a mean act. Be kind to every living creature. Speak no evil of any one. Be good, adore God, be loyal to friends and love your country better than yourself. Take hold of things by the smooth handle; avoid disputes; do not turn pleasant conversation into heated argument. Too much speaking is not best. Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today. Never spend your money before you have it. Never buy what you do not need because it is cheap. Pride costs more than hunger, thirst and cold. We never repent of having eaten too little. Never borrow trouble.

Absent Ones

Absence makes the heart grow fonder but the memory of the absent one becomes vague and dim. You long to picture in your mind just how "HE" or "SHE" would look, but there's a mysterious something which makes the mental picture impossible.

But if you had a photograph before you, then you could recall the forgotten face, yes, even the kind acts, the gentle words.

Wouldn't that "ONE" so far away appreciate your photograph too?

A Winning Fight

By DR. WILLIAM OSLER.

This is not a battle of a year or a generation. The probabilities are that it will take two or three generations at least before we have the mortality from tuberculosis reduced to the rate, say, of that of typhoid fever in well regulated countries. This will probably be a matter of two or three generations. Whether tuberculosis will be finally eradicated is an open question. It is a foe that is very deeply entrenched in the human race, but when we think of what has been done in one generation, how the mortality has been reduced in some localities 50 and even 100 per cent, we at least feel that we can continue the battle with hope, and so long as we are fighting with hope the victory is in sight.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

A Brief History of the Disease.

By DR. MONTGOMERY E. LEARY.

Consumption is called a disease of the masses because of its great prevalence among all classes of people. The first records of it date back to the fifth century before Christ, or about 2,500 years ago.

In 1845 Villmin, a French physician, demonstrated beyond doubt that tuberculosis could be transmitted from one individual to another. This was verified by other famous physicians, until the disease was generally branded as infectious. In 1882 the specific germ which causes consumption was discovered by the great German scientist Robert Koch.

Researches in recent years have demonstrated that consumption, also many other forms of tuberculosis, may not only be prevented, but can in many cases be arrested and lastingly cured. Governments have taken measures to suppress the scourge, but their efforts have not been wholly successful owing to the lassitude and carelessness of the people.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

Consumption—What It Is.

By DR. WILLIAM S. ELY.

Tuberculosis of the lungs, the most contagious and fatal form of the disease, is caused by the presence of tubercle bacilli (germs) in the lungs. The germ multiplies rapidly and feeds on the lung substance, which it gradually destroys.

The important symptoms of consumption are cough expectoration (or spitting) of phlegm containing the tubercular germs, hemorrhage (or bleeding) from the lungs, fever (increased temperature of the body, especially in the evening), difficulty in breathing, pains in the chest, night sweats, loss of appetite, emaciation (loss of flesh).

The germ of consumption enters the system in three ways—first, by being inhaled or breathed into the lungs; second, by being ingested—that is, eaten in tuberculous food or drunk in milk or water contaminated with the germ; third, by inoculation or the penetration of tuberculous substance through a wound in the skin. Of these three the first is the most important.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

Early Cases of Consumption.

By ALBERT H. GARVIN.

Tuberculosis occurs, unfortunately, at the time of life when most people have assumed their life responsibilities. The progressive case in whom there is neither a personal fault nor a fault in the environment that can be discovered, who becomes accidentally overwhelmed infected, represents a loss of life that is due only to infection by the bacillus and a loss which need not have occurred if it is really possible to cause this germ disease to disappear. We know that we can alter this situation according to our knowledge of the disease and its nature, and we can correspondingly promise a hopeful outlook provided we can obtain the patient in the early stages of his infection. Remove any personal bias that objects to the acceptance of the necessary discipline called the simple life and remove responsibilities that the patient is unable to cope with, and he will usually get well.

TAKES UP NEW WORK

Rev. R. Howard Taylor, for the past six years pastor of the Oxford Presbyterian Church, has resigned to accept the office of general secretary of the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, to which he was recently unanimously elected by the International Council. The Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip is interdenominational, some twenty-seven different denominations being identified with the movement. The general work is in charge of an international council, composed of prominent Christian business men. The headquarters are in Philadelphia. The Men and Religion Forward Movement emphasized in its recent congress, held in New York, the need for an international work by and for men.
