TWELFTH ANNUAL MEET SCHEDULED FOR TOMORROW

Many Records Likely To Be Lowered By Athletes

The Twelfth Annual Interscholastic Field and Track Meet of the University of Delaware will be held on Frazer Field, Saturday, May 9, at 1:30 p.m., Standard Time. This event is one of the most important on the College Calendar. According to coaches France and McKelvie, the meet this year promises to be bigger and better than ever. Twenty-eight High and Preparatory Schools are entered in the different events, representing more than 400 athletes. Last year several track and field records were lowered, and judging by the caliber of the entrants, some new marks should be hung up this year.

Among the schools which have signified their intention of being represented are the following: First Class—West Chester State Normal School, Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, and Central High School of Philadelphia; Second Class—Wesley Collegiate Institute, Wildwood High School, West Philadelphia Catholic High School, Coatesville High School, Temple University High School, Wilmington High School, Friends School, Millville High School; Third Class—Chesapeake City High School, Dover High School, Avondale Vocational School, Newark High School, Middletown High School, Oxford High School, Caesar Rodney School, Easton High School, Tower Hill High School. Haverford Beats Del. In Hard Fought Match

The Delaware Tennis Team put up a good fight against the superior team of Haverford College at Haverford, Tuesday, May 5. Although the score was one-sided, 5-1, most of the individual matches were close.

Captain "Jim" Malloy was the only Delaware man to win. "Fred" Creamer gave his opponent a long battle, running the match to extra sets.

Tennis at Haverford is a major sport. The "main-liners" always develop a good team on the well-kept courts at their disposal. In their recent contest with the University of Pennsylvania they tied the match, 3-3.

Malloy (Delaware) defeated Webster (Haverford) 6-2, 8-6.

Johnson (Haverford) defeated Turner (Delaware) 6-2, 6-4.

Marshal (Haverford) defeated Creamer (Delaware) 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Lester (Haverford) defeated Jones (Delaware) 6-4, 6-1.

Johnson and Lester (Haverford) defeated Malloy and Creamer (Delaware) 7-5, 6-4.

Webster and Marshall (Haverford) defeated Turner and Carroll (Delaware) 6-2, 6-1.

Senior Ags On Tour

The Senior Ag students of Delaware, accompanied by Professor George L. Schuster, recently made a tour of the state for the purpose of studying fruit growing and poultry raising. The men made the trip in "Miss Delaware" which attracted much attention down state.

Announcement

The Blue Hen, the biennial publication of Delaware College, will be out within the next few days. Since only a limited number of copies have been published it will be essential for those who have not yet reserved a book to place their orders at once.

PIPPIN NEW HEAD OF LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Well Known Clergymen Address Meeting of Students

Day by day the Y. M. C. A. is growing and becoming stronger. The third open meeting of the organization was held on last Tuesday night. At that time, those who attended were addressed very informally by the Rev. Charles L. Candee, D. D., of Wilmington. His talk was not only interesting but also very instructive. It provoked a liberal discussion in which practically everyone participated. Dr. Candee, who is well known in intellectual circles, was at one time the rector of the American Church in Paris.

Two weeks ago, the organization was addressed by Dr. R. W. Trapnell also of Wilmington. Dr. Trapnell gave an excellent talk on "Man vs. Man." This was a psychological discussion of the development of the will. Dr. Trapnell is intensely interested in college life as such; hence, he gave the students present some fine food for thought.

At the close of the discussion on last Tuesday the election of officers for the ensuing year was held. The results are as follows: President, R. R. Pippin; Vice-President, J. E. Wilson; Secretary, I. T. Ellis; Treasurer, J. E. Pryor. These men will lead the Y. M. C. A. next year.

Faculty Decision

At a meeting of the Faculty held on April 9, 1925, the following action was taken:

1. That all University social affairs and entertainments given by social organizations must first have the approval of the Faculty Committee on Public and Social Functions, and that hereafter no exception will be made to the enforcement of this rule.

2. That any University of Delaware dance held without permission of the Committee on Social and Public Functions shall be considered a matter for discipline by the Faculty.

Signal Honors For Two Delaware Men

A graduate and a Senior of the University of Delaware are included in the announcement of the fellowship and scholarship awards made by the University of Pennsylvania. The graduate is Eugene Reynolds Manning, now an instructor at the Pennsylvania Military College, who has been awarded a scholarship in chemistry. The other Delaware man is Francis Joseph Cummings, who has been given a scholarship in Romantics.

Although Cummings has been blind for ten years, he succeeded in being chosen as a member of the First Foreign Study Group and won high honors for himself abroad.

"WHAT DELAWARE NEEDS MOST"

Members of Faculty and Student Body Give Opinions

We have asked members of Faculty and Student Body to express their ideas on the subject "What Delaware Needs Most," to be printed in this column. The object of the article is to present first-hand opinions from authoritative sources on a subject of common interest. A very open expression of opinion is a thing to be desired, while the exchange of ideas is valuable in any case.

The following persons have contributed to this article this week: President Hullihen, Dean Dutton, Dr. Patterson, members of the faculty; and Paul Rinard, a member of the Student Body. Next week the opinions of others on the same subject will be printed in this column.

The greatest need of the University of Delaware: Constructive loyalty. True co-operation for the attainment of the University's highest purposes between trustees, administrative officers, faculty, students, and alumni.

President.

For the best account of experiences in the field of labor and the interpretation of the industrial situation involved, "The Nation" will pay a prize of $125. The second and third prizes are for $75 and $25 respectively.

HOME ECONOMICS DEPT. TO FEATURE MAY DAY

Novel Exhibitions To Be Presented By Students

The Home Economics department will take an active part in the May Day exercises this year. During the past few years, there have been displays on May Day of the work of the clothing and nutrition classes. This year, however, a definite place on the program for the afternoon has been given to the department, and the girls are working out novel plans by which they will present the work that they have done during this year.

Following the exercises at the Red Men's Grove on Saturday afternoon, the nutrition and clothing classes will present two short plays at Wolf Hall. The nutrition class, under the direction of Miss Gumble, will give a sketch written by the members of the class which will illustrate the principles that they have studied. The play is based on the work done at the Practice House and the facts discovered which deal with the Chemistry of Nutrition. Such points as the budgeting of time and money, the value of labor-saving devices, the proper use of leisure time, and the need of a proper diet will be cleverly brought out.

The clothing classes have worked together in writing "Madame's Personality Shop," a play which emphasizes clothing selection, with reference to the pocketbook as well as to the person, and the value of costume design. The presentation of this play will be a Senior project and will serve as training for similar work in high school teaching. The play includes a fashion

TEACHERS OF STATE HOLDING CONF. HERE

Important Business To Be Considered In Sessions

Delaware will again be given an opportunity to display its hospitality when she throws open her doors to the high school teachers of the State who will be here tonight and tomorrow for the seventh annual meeting of the State High School Conference, bringing together teachers from all sections of the state to discuss with the members of the University faculty the promotion of educational welfare. According to Professor Wilkinson of the Department of Education, and who is in charge of all arrangements, more than one hundred and fifty guests are expected to attend the dinner which will mark the opening of the Conference in the Commons tonight at 6:30.

Tonight's program will be featured by the presence of Governor Robert P. Robinson who recently signed the bill allotting to the University its appropriations and new buildings for the Women's College. He will respond to greetings to the guests offered in the name of the University by Dr. Hullihen and by Dr. Foster. Responses will also be offered by Miss Rosalie R. Martin, Georgetown High School; and by Miss Helen Groves, Wilmington High School. Mrs. William K. du Pont will act as toastmistress. After the dinner a social hour will be held in the Lounge Room.

The business meeting will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 in the West Wing, and will be divided into two parts. The first part will be presided over by Professor Wilkinson. Professor Rees will deliver an address on "The New Type Written Examination," which will be followed by an open discussion. This will be followed by an address on "Extra-Curricular Activities in the High School" by Professor M. Channing Wagner, Principal of Wilmington High School. Professor Wagner has been engaged to give courses on this subject at the summer session of Colum-

Last Meeting of Forum

The last meeting of the Forum at the Women's College was held just before the Easter holidays, ending the program for this scholastic year. The officers who have been elected for next year are as follows:

President, Tacy Hurst; Vice-President, Elizabeth Crooks; Secretary, Irene Wilkinson.

Both Tacy Hurst and Elizabeth Crooks attended the meeting for college girls interested in civic affairs that were held at Richmond during the convention of the National League of Women Voters. Under the guidance of these girls next year the Forum is sure to have programs which will prove interesting.

Interscholastic Dance

A Student Council Dance will be held in Old College tomorrow night. This dance will be the last sponsored by the Student Council for this collegiate year. George Madden and his seven-piece orchestra will furnish the music. Dancing will be from seven-thirty to twelve.

WELCOME TO DELAWARE

We extend a hearty welcome to all of you who are visiting the University this week-end to attend the Interscholastic Track and Field Meet. It is always a pleasure for us to say a cheery "hello" to the young men who come from the high schools to participate in this meet. Avail yourselves of this opportunity to learn something about the University and you will like it. We want you to carry away a worth-while impression of Delaware.

ELECTIONS

The time for student elections is at hand. Now, if ever, must we be actuated by our finest impulses, to be truly loyal to Delaware. Student Government means much to this University, and we must support it to the limit. It is the duty of each individual to vote for the person he or she believes most capable and efficient. Petty and personal feelings must be laid aside and replaced by a broad-mindedness which is the surest index to intelligence and culture. Incapable officers can, quite unconsciously, do much to undermine and weaken a strong organization.

College spirit should not be restricted to the grand-stand and the "rah-rah team" surroundings. If introduced into the drab side of daily college life it can accomplish miracles. It can make us true to our Alma Mater without the drive of sentimentalism. It is able to inspire in us a desire to do the best thing at the cost of personal feelings.

The success of a government depends mainly upon its officers. The selection of officers is a vital proposition and we must not slight it. Popularity is absolutely no index to ability. One knows intuitively who is fitted, or who is not fitted, to be an officer.

Let us elect the very best and most capable students to the offices of our Student Government. It is a duty.

CRITICISM

Criticism is a good factor in the development of any organization, any enterprise—if it is made openly. Criticism which is confined to hidden channels is almost entirely destructive, and is rather an expression of cowardice on the part of the individual who makes it. He is afraid to come out openly and say what he thinks, for fear that he too will be criticized. A clear-cut, straightforward, fault-finding criticism has an evident constructive benefit to the enterprise at which it is aimed.

The University of Delaware REVIEW welcomes criticism of the constructive kind—that which is made openly in the form of a letter to the Editor or his associates. Criticism of this sort is welcomed because it is at least a sincere manifestation of interest on the part of the Student Body and materially aids the staff in making the REVIEW representative.

Charming Artists
To Perform Here

A new form of concert entertainment which has created a furore in Washington, D. C., the King-Smith "Fauvettes," will be given at Wolf Hall, May 25, at 8 p. m. "Les Fauvettes," which is a company composed of talented and beautiful young ladies, present a delightfully artistic combination of pantomime with vocal and instrumental music of old French and Russian songs, old English singing games, American folk melodies. The beautiful voices of "Les Fauvettes," the entrancing instrumental music, charming costumes, and settings designed by Robert Bell, the well-known master of American stage craft—all combine to make an ensemble of tone, color and motion unsurpassed on the concert stage or platform.

Some of the selections which "Les Fauvettes" will sing and interpret at Wolf Hall are "Vanya," "The Sowing of the Millet," "May Day Morn," "Le soir, le matin," "Bergere le gere," and "Dixie." The performance will be under the auspices of the University of Delaware. Admission to students will be seventy-five cents.

Pratt Inst. Swamps
Delaware Twirlers

Delaware's nine was defeated decisively, Tuesday, May 4, when Pratt Institute of Brooklyn, N. Y., scored eight runs in the second inning, and after that, two runs, making the final score 10-0. This is the fourth victory out of five games played by Pratt. McAvoy's protégés could not prevent their opponents from tallying sixteen hits, while they themselves were held to six hits by Renner, of Pratt.

The whole trouble was perhaps due to the fact that Pryor's arm was sore, and he was in no condition to pitch. The score follows:

Boys' Own Arithmetic

"Boys' Own Arithmetic," by Raymond Weeks, is an interesting innovation in the realm of that "Queen of the Sciences"—Arithmetic. In the preface, the author explains that the problems set forth in the book are designed, by virtue of their subject matter and manner of presentation, to eliminate the drudgery that is so generally incidental to the study of Arithmetic. The author feels that the teaching of Arithmetic is too conventional. The very matter of requiring exact answers to problems is not analogous to the usual ways of Life. Therefore, he presents his book as "A flank movement against the enemy."

Each of the one hundred and eleven problems is sugar-coated with an engrossing little story. It is scarcely possible to select from this charming collection one problem as an example. But our choice would be "Misfortunes of a Cross-Eyed Young Man." Champ Runyon, a cross-eyed young man, endeavored to ask a young lady for a dance, as she stood talking to a fair companion. Both girls interpreted his invitation in terms of ego, and as he says, "tired to move off with him in opposite directions." Complications followed. Marriage and a breach-of-promise suit (and their contingent expenses) are some of the items to set up against a substantial inheritance in order to find out how much Champ had left.

The author means that "Boys' Own Arithmetic" should have its beginning in the home, and then proceed to the school ('as an Arithmetic or as a Reader.') The book is not only psychologically sound, but it is extremely amusing. Humor, swiftness of style, and variety of subject matter are elements of intense interest that make the reading pleasurable as well as profitable.

Mr. Weeks is a distinguished scholar and phonetician and a member of the Faculty of Columbia University.

Collegiate Comment

Now that they have suppressed The Harvard Advocate, The Harvard Lampoon and the Boston College Beanpot—we expect any minute to see the boys from Washington stick their noses in our little door.

From the looks of things it seems as though the faculty will be represented by a new eleven next Fall.

The elections on the campus will soon be with us and just watch the philosophers, the idealists and the brain-stormed intellectuals change to Babbitts, Boss Tweeds and college professors!

The Footlights Club (despite momentary resistance) has proven itself to be the most active organization on the campus. Two editorials in the Wilmington papers (politicians pay a hundred bucks for one) and one in a down-state paper! Give them the deserved laurels—they asked for no help—no one seemed to want to help them at the crucial moments. The club has succeeded—let the other utterly “dead” ones follow suit.

The only way some girls can attract men is by wearing moving billboards—pink and blue slickers—they hide the face but give an air of collegeism. On the other hand every ten-cent store clerk wears them. Gee they look great! I asked some fair Ophelia the other day (down the lane) while engrossed in a conversation concerning slickers: “Don’t you think Linoleum is more charming?” She replied: “Why we don’t take up his poems until our senior year.”—and they shot Lincoln.

The Delaware boys are expected to carry away the honors this summer at Plattsburg—and also, Montreal.

The flapper will never die—not as long as there is prohibition. Bu 2, poison ivy, red flannels Coca Cola, the Newark Opera House, W. C. D., Henry L. Mencken, feathered gin, “Secretes” and chocolate milk shakes. On the other hand, the old man died from eating stewed balloon tires.

Many a college man puts the blame on W. C. D.—for blocking the beautiful view to the Pennsy station.

It is about time for that good old sentimentalism to enter our portals. “Good-bye old pal (kisses the column of Old College)—you’re been (bean) such a good old hang-out. Out—out into the cold dismal world where men are bootleggers and women are movie-hounds. (A sob is heard.) And will she be waiting? Me little gal? Will she? (A sledge hammer is seen to drop upon the speaker’s dome.) Ah, at last—someone has killed me. To think I have waited (four) years for this to happen! Oh! bury me deep among them tall trees so that I may forever smell the sweetness of the Spring odors: Ah, Life is cruel.”

(Don’t worry folks this is only a dream)—and just then the fairy ballet entered carrying the beautiful Soapaline, who seeing the wounded Don Juan, sang three verses of “Old College” and departed mysteriously into one of the local busses.

Be happy: Only a few more weeks and we go out on parole!

We suggest for the coaching staff: Jack Keough, late Penn Frosh coach, or Gus Zeigler, or Bill Lilly, or Fred Harmer, or “Buck” Wharton. But let us remind you that other people are suggesting also.

Some one suggested that Life is lifeless, and that Judge lacks judgment. Anyway, Punch Bowl doesn’t lack punch, Hot Dog is still hot, and Red Pepper is still red.

The need of co-education is apparent: Some fair W. C. D. asked us the other day whether Major Sports is the head of R. O. T. C. at Delaware College.

the University of Delaware is, I think, a true sense of responsibility among students, especially in regard to financial matters. Some students apparently feel no hesitation in subscribing to the support of social affairs, although they have requested and have been granted loans from the Student Loan Fund and other sources because of their inability to pay their college fees. Moreover, a number of former students who borrowed money under similar circumstances during their college course have failed to repay their loans, and have thereby deprived certain students of an opportunity to secure money with which to continue their work. It has also been my experience that a few students who have been lent money have not exercised the greatest care in keeping their extra-collegiate expenditures down to the minimum. In spite of the fact that the students to whom I have referred constitute a comparatively small percentage of the student body, I consider the awakening of a sense of responsibility in the contracting and discharging of financial obligations one of the greatest needs of our students.

G. E. DUTTON,
Dean.

Simple, hard-working, and completely sincere men and women attract simple, hard-working, and completely sincere men and women. What would an ideal college be? Not necessarily a rich college, and certainly not necessarily a large college.

It would seem that a simple, hard-working, and completely sincere board of trustees, assisted by a simple, hard-working, and completely sincere administration and faculty, with simple, hard-working, and completely sincere students, would be a happy and useful combination. Friendship would be possible because we should speak the same language. If we have not quite achieved this at Delaware, it is probable that each one of us is partly to blame. Are we simple enough? Do we work hard enough? Are we completely sincere? These are painful questions.

We don’t need many buildings, we don’t need many books. But we shall always need men. Money buys buildings, money buys books, money buys dangerous men, but there is a kind of men that money cannot buy. How are they to be obtained? They are attracted by those who like them. Simple, hard-working, and completely sincere men and women attract simple, hard-working, and completely sincere men and women. That seems to be the answer.

W. M. PATTERSON.

Our greatest need, if we consider the relations between student body and faculty, is the same need that is felt in every community, be it local, national, or international, but especially in our university—a breadth of mind that enables us to consider our mutual problems from the viewpoint of the other party. I think that of all qualities in which we are generally lacking at Delaware, this is one of the bria University. Discussion of this topic will terminate this part of the meeting.

The second part of the session will be presided over by Mr. John Shilling, Assistant State Superintendent, and will be devoted to the discussion of such matters as the State Department may wish to bring to the attention of the Conference. The problem of standard text-books in the various high schools, and the question of the entrance requirements of the University in relation to the high schools will be among the questions discussed.

The Conference will end in time for the participants to cheer for the athletes representing their respective schools at the Interscholastic Athletic and Field Meet on Frazer Field tomorrow afternoon.

Swarthmore Defeats Delaware In Meet

The twenty-four men representing the University of Delaware Track Team failed to win the dual meet with Swarthmore by a score of 83-43 on the Pennsylvania school’s field on Friday, May 1. With the handicap of the muddy track, the drizzling rain, and the cold weather, many of the men ran off their matches in good time. Delaware was not able to make a first place in any running event but succeeded in making three firsts and one tie in the field contests. The only event in which Delaware did not place was the 880 yard run. It may be remembered that Swarthmore received first honors in Class B at the University of Pennsylvania Relays, and these same men ran in the one-quarter and one-half mile events on Friday, since there was no relay.

Captain France, McKelvie, and Baxter performed well for this University, each placing in two or more events. Rosier jumped 19 ft. 8 in. against a 22 ft. man and placed second. This is one of the best jumps he has made.

most noticeable, and one most to be deplored. There is a gentle play at hypocrisy in an attempt to convince both the other and yourself that you are considering his side. But in my four years at Delaware, I know that many, many times, in fact, most of the time, there has actually been no such consideration.

There have been countless narrow decisions made with scanty information of the other side, and once made, so determinedly stood by, that there is no possibility for admission of the other side. Until a breadth of mind, coupled with an honest endeavor to consider the other man comes to us all, Delaware’s student body and faculty will stumble along in difficulties, there will be sporadic outbursts between the two, a great undercurrent of smouldering resentment, and there will never be any real progress to any marked degree. For the student body and the faculty are the university; the buildings comprise but the shell.

IDEAL PROFESSOR IS CAREFUL ORGANIZER

Should Be Inspiration For Clean Honest Living In His Teaching

Chief among the characteristics which the Rhodes scholars of 145 American colleges believe should make up the ideal college professor is that he be “an inspiration for clean, honest living in his teachings.”

This fact is brought out in a questionnaire circulated by Wendell S. Brooks, assistant dean of the college of liberal arts of Northwestern University, and from which he has prepared a discussion of the requirements of the ideal teacher in the current issue of School and Society, an educational magazine.

Summarizing the views of these Rhodes scholars in the United States, Mr. Brooks delineates the perfect professor as follows:

He is “carefull in organizing his material,” i. e. prepares assiduously for his classroom work.

He “expects more initiative from and allows more independence to students.”

He “appreciates better than most teachers the difficulties which students experience.”

He—and this is written down as among the most important of all—is an inspiration for clean, honest living in his teaching.”

As to human qualities in the ideal professor these American students wrote they expected him to be “perfectly human”; they wanted him “energetic and enthusiastic” and with “personal charm.” Some of the Rhodes men went further and said the ideal teacher must, in his classroom be a “director of discussion”; he must “always take time to explain any question.”

A learned Rhodes man had this to say of his ideal: “I visualize a professor who puts his subject matter across by a combination of methods; Socratic question and answer, text-book recitation, lecture and note book, and by frequent outlines.”

Many of the students who answered Mr. Brooks wanted their ideal professor a leader of men—one who could teach a real student how to work” and a professor who is “interested in men rather than in events.”

“Whether at school or college,” Mr. Brooks said, “all of us have enjoyed the inspiration of two or three teachers, the memory of whose work holds fast despite the flight of years. Time has idealized some of these teachers; we might have difficulty in analyzing our reasons for admiration of them.”

“But not so the student fresh from college halls. He has grown up in an inquiring age; he has become used to analyze. To him therefore I turned when I began to search for the qualifications of the ideal professor.”

Letter To Editor

To the Editor:

Is the Faculty satisfied now that the lowly commuter can make his way to the halls of higher learning via bus, arising an hour or so earlier and adding a few more shekels to his expense account? Of course we can see that it was a clever idea, this shoving of classes ahead one hour, thus supplying the Newark schools with fair teachers and evading the State law, and we commuters can be magnanimous and overlook the fact that we were not even consulted about the matter. On second thought, now that this rule was railroaded through, it’s not such a bad idea after all. The faculty can now adjourn to the country club and play golf and we commuters can go to our backyards and shoot marbles.

The How and Why Of An Annual

There are several preparatory remarks that I wish to make concerning what one may expect of the Blue Hen of 1925-26. My ideas of what a year book should be are perhaps different from the accepted ones of most editors of college annuals.

First, I believe that an annual should contain a concise record of the classes to whom the book belongs. Secondly, there should be incorporated in the book a certain beauty of makeup, a definite theme for the art work, a uniformity of lay-out, and a dignity of atmosphere that reflects that spirit of the school which the annual represents. In a year book there is no place for jokes and cheap cartoons such as may be obtained any day in any current college comic. A year book is too expensive and has too serious an object to be made into a comic section. It may, however, contain those incidents, in themselves humorous, that occurred in college, and which every graduate and student will be glad to remember.

Snap shots of student horseplay, meant as graphic stories of college affairs, are indeed permissible and desirable. Further than a record of the classes and faculty, there should be a complete covering of athletic events, of organization activities, and a mention of social affairs. Snap shots of student horseplay, meant as graphic stories of college affairs, are indeed permissible and desirable. Further than a record of the classes and faculty, there should be a complete covering of athletic events, of organization activities, and a mention of social affairs.

The staff of the Blue Hen has endeavored to put all these in this year’s book. Perhaps it will appear incomplete to some, but certainly it will be adequate in the minds of most of the students. We are all human; we are all different.

Local Nine Drops Fast Game To Dickinson

The University of Delaware baseball nine lost a thrilling game to its old rival, Dickinson, Saturday, May 2. The whole contest developed into a pitching duel between Pryor, Delaware's "ace," and Books, Dickinson's star slab artist. Delaware started off with a "bang" and scored a run in the first inning. They kept this lead until the sixth. This inning spelled Delaware's doom, and before Dickinson's last man was retired they had tallied three runs. Pryor pitched a fine game but lack of hitting power by his team mates in the pinches caused him to lose out.

show. All of the dresses to be worn in this have been made by the students in the Freshman, Sophomore and Senior courses.

The work of the Art department is not entirely related to the Home Economics work, but since a large portion of it is, the exhibit by the students taking the various art courses may well be mentioned here. Miss Taylor has divided the exhibit into two parts. In the art studies, there will be exhibits of the work done by the students in drawing and painting. Work done in design and color which applies to both home decoration and costume planning will also be exhibited. There will be demonstrations given of work in weaving and wood-block printing. The other phase of the art work is that done by members of the teacher training classes. The members of the classes will have entire charge of arranging the exhibit which will consist of work in illustration, color, and design suitable for the first six grades in the elementary school. There will also be a display of elementary school problems in weaving, clay modeling, and cardboard construction.

No Bolshevism In American Colleges

Colleges and Universities of America are intolerant and obstructive of free thought and speech, Roger Baldwin, executive director of the Civil Liberties Union told Columbia University students at a meeting held under the auspices of the Social Problems Club. "There are a few colleges where tolerance lives," he continued.

"On the whole colleges like Columbia situated in large cities are more tolerant because of their cosmopolitan environment." Mr. Baldwin asserted that "the Western State universities must heed every political wind that blows, since they depend on the State Legislatures for money to carry on their work."

"I find the college attentive but cynically inclined toward radicalism," he continued. "There is no Bolshevism in the American Colleges. There is a good deal of student curiosity but there is not much student conviction."
