Second bike accident near same intersection

For the second time in only a year, a Univeristy of Delaware student has been seriously injured as the result of a collision between a bicycle and a vehicle near the same intersection in Newark.

According to the Newark Police, a 22-year-old female University student collided with a vehicle while riding her bike on Tuesday around 4:37 p.m. on Elkton Road near Amstel Avenue. Media officer Curt Davis said Ha-Kyung Jung turned into the path of a 1997 Pontiac Grand Am driving westbound on Elkton Road.

Jung was flown to Christiana Hospital where she was admitted with multiple abrasions, head trauma and a broken pelvis.

On Nov. 12, 1996, 20year-old David Toman, an arts and science student, was struck and killed by a delivery truck while riding his bike in almost the same spot. Toman was riding eastbound at mid-morning on Elkton Road in front of the Crab Trap located at Elkton Road and Amstel Avenue when he was hit by the truck turning into the restaurant parking

Police said at the time that they believed the truck driver caused the accident.

In March 1996, an 18year-old woman enrolled at the University was struck by a car while crossing the intersection of South Chapel Street and Delaware Avenue on her bike. Police said Sonja Teresa Rivera was going the wrong way and was on the wrong side of the street at the time. She was treated for unspecified injuries at Christiana Hospital following that collision.

According the Wilmington Area Planning Council, Delaware State Police ranked the area from Main and McKees streets to Amstel Avenue in Newark as the third most dangerous area in New Castle County for crashes in 1996.

Bear gunman charged after standoff ends

Tony Edwards, tackled and threatening, three counts captured around 8 p.m. on July 10 of possession of a firearm by a New Castle County police officer after a 48-hour standoff at a Bear townhome in Raven Glen, faced a long list of charges on July 11.

The 44-year-old Edwards was charged with attempted murder, second degree assault, terroristic during the commission of a felony, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, possession of a deadly weapon, three counts of criminal mischief and two counts of reckless endangering.

Edwards was talking with County police chief John L. Cunningham about his latest demand of food when other officers rushed him. Found in his pocket was a 9milimeter handgun which he tried to reach before police knocked him down.

And although Edwards had claimed to throw the high-powered rifle out the window that he had been shooting on and off during the siege, police later found it in the townhome.

Under Delaware law, Edwards could face life in prison on the attempted murder charge or more than 90 years in prison for conviction on the charges. He other remains in Gander Hill Prison in lieu of $419,500

Residents asked for letters about railroad concerns

City officials in Newark are asking local residents and organizations to voice their concerns and comments about the impact on Newark of the impending reorganization of the CSX, Norfolk Southern and Conrail freight operations.

"I think the more letters generated the better," said city planning director Roy Lopata, noting that letters must be received by the Federal Surface Transportation Board by Aug. 6.

Lopata said his department is concerned about any increase in rail traffic on the CSX line that currently crosses three "at-grade" locations in

"Among other things we are concerned about the impact on public safety, pedestrians, emergency vehicle response, air quality, noise, the proximity to homes and housing for the elderly, student dormitories, downtown businesses, increases in the routing of hazardous materials and the changes proposed for the intersection of New London Road/Main Street/Elkton Road," said Lopata in a letter sent to members of the commu-

Lopata said he was also concerned about discrepancies between reported amounts of increased freight traffic. "We have been told in the past that this reorganization could result in an increase of CSX freight traffic from between 4 and 10 new trains daily," said Lopata. "The Railroads' Environmental Report, ...indicates that they anticipate a freight rail increase of 1.9 trains per day.'

Lopata said the city has no way to reconcile the differences in these numbers but any increase in freight rail traffic through the "heart of our community" would have a negative

Chief William Hogan pointed out that it's impossible to get from the North campus to the Main campus of the University of Delaware without crossing tracks.

Rick Armitage, University director of government and public relations, said the University is working on figures to send to the Board for the student pedestrian traffic at at least three CSX/Norfolk Southern/ CONRAIL EIS COMMENTS

Written comments, in the form of a signed original, and 10 copies, should be addressed to:

Office of the Secretary, Case Control Unit, STB Finance Dockett #33388, Surface Transportaiton Board, 1925 K Street, NW. Washington, D.C., 20423-0001, Attention: Elaine K. Kaiser, Chief, Section of Environmental Analysis, Environmental Filing.

All comments must be received by Aug. 6, 1997. City of Newark planning director Roy Lopata has also requested that a copy of the comments be forwarded to his department at the Newark Municipal Building crossings in Newark. "We can't wait until September when the students come back, so we're extrapolating from numbers we already have," said Armitage this week. "The railroad crossings at the Deer Park, North College Avenue by the nursing building, and under the tracks to the Rodney dorm are all concerns to us."

Armitage also noted that students indiscriminately cut through property and cross the tracks at other places in Newark. "After we had a sexual assault last year on Frazier Field we rebuilt the fence along the tracks there repeatedly," said Armitage. "Students tore it down and continued to use it as a short cut."

Armitage said the University is considering asking CSX for funds to help make such locations more secure. "After all, shouldn't they have some responsibility to keep people out of an area already shown to be dangerous?" noted Armitage.

Ethics Board to consider procedures

Motion on Monday night directing the Ethics Board to examine the city Code of Ethics for procedural changes if

The action came during transmittal to council of the Board of Ethics findings in the matter of the complaints of Shirley Tarrant and Scott Bowling.

In response to questions from councilmembers, city solicitor Roger Akin explained why the hearing on June 19 was more formal than the one on March 18. The city code does not provide any guide to procedures for the Board which prior to March 18 had not met for almost 14 years.

According to Akin, prior to the June 19 hearing, he provided a memorandum to the Board in which he suggested that in light of the probability that attorneys would be present, and since the penalty for a violation could involve dismissal from office for accused councilmember Hal Godwin, that there should be rudimentary standards of due process.

"The Board was free to reject my suggestion," said Akin. "But this way, I acted as a traffic cop while they concentrated on the facts.

Following the June hearing, Ethics Board chairman Frank Forster said he Newark city council passed a was "completely comfortable" with the decision they had reached and the way the hearing was conducted.

However, Tarrant and Bowling have both complained that they were not informed about the court-like procedures that were followed.

Gerald Grant, councilmember for District 6, said he thought the Board hearing could have been "manipulated and turned into a shouting match" if some procedures were not followed.

"We didn't appoint these private citizens to deal with that," said Grant, adding that the recent events surrounding the hearing were a "raw wound" that should be allowed to heal before the matter of procedures was addressed.

But councilmember Anthony Felicia suggested that the city charter should be changed to include definite procedures for the Board in the future.

In passing the Motion, council also directed the Board to review the changes with city staff.

The Board can offer their recommendations and opinion, but we can't ask people from the community to draw up changes to the city code," said Mayor Ronald Gardner. "That should be done by staff."

Vacha memorial service on Monday

A memorial service for Thomas R. Vacha, assistant vice president for facilities at the University of Delaware, will be held at 4 p.m., Monday, July 21, in Pearson Hall auditorium on the University campus. Vacha died on July 8 after a six-month battle with cancer.

The 58-year-old Newark resident was responsible for the University's multi-campus facilities, involving more than 400 buildings on approximately 2,600 acres, with an annual operating budget approaching $50 million.

"All friends of the University of Delaware are indebted to Tom Vacha," UD President David P. Roselle said. "In particular, the many improvements in the physical plant for which he was responsible will benefit our institution far into the future."

Executive vice president David Hollowell said, "Tom Vacha loved the University of Delaware. His contributions to the improvement of the campus will be a lasting memorial to his dedication and good work."

Vacha joined the Delaware staff in 1988 as director of plant operations, and was named an assistant vice president in 1994 in recognition of his contributions and expertise.

Previously, he had served as superintendent of building operations at the Massachusetts Institute Technology and as manager of building operations at Harvard University. He held engineering and maintenance manwith the common-

Co., all in Massachusetts. This week, Vacha was to have assumed the presidency of the Association of Higher Education Facility Officers which he first joined in 1974.

Born Aug. 5, 1938, in South Boston, Mass., Vacha graduated in 1956 from Technical High School in Boston, and pursued his college degree part-time at night for 13 years, before earning a bachelor of science degree in industrial technology in 1968 from Northeastern University. He also had an associate's degree in mechanical engineering from Northeastern.

Two years ago, in Delaware's alumni publication, The Messenger, Vacha, reflected on his involvement with the campus: "I've done all sorts of things that I never had a chance to do as a young person because I didn't have a conventional four-year college experience. With my daughter, Tara, and her friends, I was able to go on a spring break, and I went to Indianapolis to see our basketball team play in the championship."

A veteran of the U.S. Army Reserve, Vacha retired as a lieutenant colonel in 1990, after 34 years' service. His last military assignment was as chief of the Maintenance Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics in the 94th Army Reserve Command.

Vacha is survived by his wife of 34 years, Margery; children, Timothy of Quincy, Mass.; Tammy Carreiro of Assonet, Mass.; and Tara Dick of New Castle; brothers, Edward of Scituate and Robert of South Boston; eight nieces and nephews; and one grandson.

A funeral Mass was held on July 11 at St. Mary of the Nativity Church in Scituate Harbor. Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests contributions to Compassionate Care Hospice of Delaware or to the American Cancer Society.

Woolworth's closing forever

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Woolworth's 5 & 10, a fixture at the Newark Shopping Center since the center opened in the 1950s, will soon be a memory.

Retail giant Woolworth Corp. is giving up on the business started by company founder Frank Woolworth at a Lancaster, Pa., site in 1879. The company announced yesterday that it would close more than 400 sites in the U.S. after losing a fight to wring profit from the aging 5 & 10 stores beloved by generations of Americans.

It was unclear what would happen to the more than 9,000 employees presently employed at the stores. The Wall Street Journal reported that the company would convert some stores to its more profitable Champs Sports or Northern Reflections apparel shops.

Newark manager Glenn Waesco confirmed that his store would be closing but said he had "no idea" when the closing would come or whether any other company business would open there. "They really haven't told me beans," he said yesterday. "I wish I knew."

The store in the shopping center boasts some of the original fixtures and design of "five and dime" stores. At least one waitress behind the traditional 5 & 10 lunch counter with red vinyl and chrome stools has worked there for over 20 years.

In July 1996, the company reopened three Woolworth's in Wilmington as "test sites" for a new and updated look. At that time, president and CEO Paul Davies, said the initiative was a "work-inprogress" which would be expanded to other stores if successful ARENA DILEO KNOWS how to build a levitating train that can travel on tracks on a Martian landscape. Greg Park can build a functional Mars rover out of legos, and Jen Olinstead and Jocy Oster have landed on Mars.

Jake Lehrand and Ben Thompson have designed, built and tested a composite beam for use in space. None of them have even graduated from high school Aspiring aerospace engineers like these attended a week long overnight camp recently at the Delaware Aerospace Academy on the University of Delaware campus in Newark.

One of the purposes of the space academy said program commander Drew Yeager, is to "encourage the kids to become interested in science and math in high school and college.'

Yeager said that it is also important to generate interest in engineering among girls.

Program commander Mary Koster said that one activity included a mock space mission, where campgoers become stranded on Mars and have to build a rover with a signaling device that will work.

Park explained how to build a rover. "We build these little Mars rovers out of legos and then we connect them to a computer outlet and put them on a terrain and program them to move around," he said.

Using a simulated program called Destination Mars, Olinstead and Oster landed on Mars. "So far I've learned crisis handling and problem solving skill and rocketry design," said Olinstead. "I liked rocketry design the best.'

The kids are really just expanding their knowledge of simple machines and using technology. "Its just an applied physical science," Koster said. "They're taking what they learned in the class room a step fur-

Ben Thompson, Bobby Lockwood, Meghan Gloyd and Annette Smith put the finishing touches on their levitating train.

Commander Charlie Michels was in charge of the hovercraft design project. "They are given a set of guidelines," he explained. "It's whether or not they have met the criteria set up for them in their designs that determines their success.

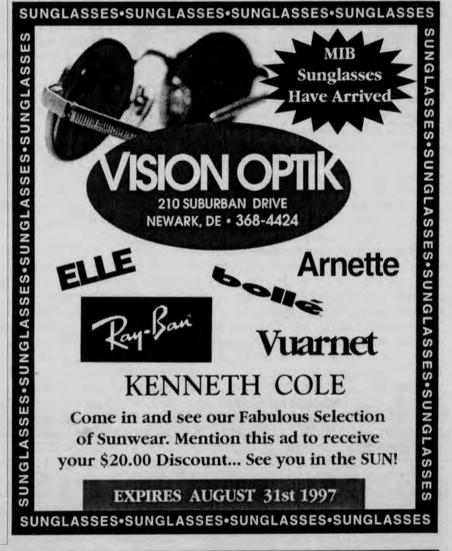

DiLeo, who built a hovercraft using magnets and track said the program is a lot of fun. "We went to Boeing and we were able to fly a Comanche helicopter simulation," she said. "We were also allowed to use their wind tunnel and we were able to see how airplanes and helicopters work with wind coming at Dileo said that she also enjoyed building a rocket out of spare parts and testing it before the launch at aerospace academy graduation.

According to Yeager, some enthusiastic students who have completed all of the levels of the academy often return to teach classes. "One girl from the program went on to Penn State to major in aerospace engineering," said Yeager.

Aerospace camp includes sessions for students ranging from the third grade level up to the tenth grade level. Other topics taught at the camp were how to live in space, astronomy and space architecture.

Pyramid-like sex scam involved eight persons

plete a series of acts in order to collect a large sum of money which police said did not actually exist.

Between May 27 and July 9 of this year, the 47-year-old Zeock allegedly demanded sex from three males in their 20s in exchange for participation in a business relationship to make $1 million.

All of the sex acts with the victims, who had heterosexual backgrounds, allegedly involved contact, penetration and intercourse.

One victim told police that he had sex with Zeock on three separate occasions at the Gateway residence.

A second man said Zeock had oral sex with him on two occasions and sex with penetration on a third. Zeock allegedly "made clear" to this victim that refusal to participate in the sex would result in forfeiting his monetary reward.

A third man said he had intercourse with Zeock who told him that in order for the victim to claim the money, Zeock "needed passionate love from him 12 times.

Officer Steve Fox said Zeock has previous arrests for sex crimes. "We discovered through old news reports that he has been arrested several times in the past for similar behavior," said Fox. "We're still investigating that."

Fox also said on Tuesday that police had not completed their search of Zeock's residence and the place of business. "There's a lot of stuff to go through," Fox noted.

Zeock was arraigned on July 14 and committed to Gander Hill Prison in lieu of bail.

Anyone with information about information about these or similar incidents, Zeock, or his financial holdings, is encouraged to contact Newark Police at 366-7111.

Good idea, mayor

AYOR RONALD Gardner was right Monday night when he urged fellow city councilmembers to scrap a resolution offered by the Western Newark Traffic Relief Committee. Instead, Gardner suggested legitimate concerns about proposed changes to the so-called Deer Park intersection be addressed simply in a letter to state transportation officials.

According to the city planning director DelDOT plans to appear before the city council "soon" to explain their reconfiguration plans for the busy downtown Newark intersection. The letter will ask the transportation office specifically to address concerns raised by members of the Western Newark Traffic Relief Committee when they appear before the city council.

In recent weeks, some have complained that DelDOT has been receiving mixed messages from Newark. The mayor's suggestions avoid further confusion and speeds the intersection project along.

PER CHANCE

'Aren't you Ed Sullivan?'

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

Several Months Ago, the New York Times published a feature story about Ed Sullivan and the impact of his long-running Sunday evening television show on American society. The story was based on a recently published book, "Glued to the Set: The 60 Television Shows and Events That Made Us Who We Are Too

That Made Us Who We Are Today," by Steven D. Stark, a commentator for National Public Radio.

Those who have seen the show will recall that it began in 1948 as Toast of the Town, but soon became known at The Ed Sullivan Show. It ran on CBS for 23 years and was one of television's most popular programs. Sullivan, who had hosted vaudeville shows and early telethons and had briefly worked in radio, was a columnist for the New York Daily News.

Though not a performer himself and often criticized for his impassive facial expressions and awkward introductions, he was without a peer at recognizing talent. He booked the television debuts of Bob Hope, Dinah Shore, Walt Disney and Victor Borge and early appearances by Liza Minnelli, Itzhak Perlman, the Beetles and Elvis Presley. When Elvis made his first appearance in 1956, an unprecedented 82.6 percent of the viewing audience watched the show. Critics and historians tell us that Ed Sullivan personified a simpler time when Americans gathered around their TV sets and television provided a cohesive national culture.

This subject has a special fascination for me because of a bit of family folklore associated with Ed Sullivan. My late father was vice president and general manager of the Wilmington Appliance Company, a division of the now defunct Wilmington Auto Sales Company. Because his dealership was one of the largest in the Philadelphia area, my dad was frequently invited to outings sponsored by product manufacturers and distributors.

He had accepted an invitation to participate in one such function, a golf trip*to Florida with a number of major East Coast appliance dealers, when an executive of his company unexpectedly died. Dad immediately called the sponsor and informed him that he would be compelled to withdraw, but his host, a longtime friend, suggested an alternative

"Pete," he said, "the other fellows are traveling to Florida by train and the trip takes several days. Why don't you attend the funeral and then drive up to New York? We'll book a seat for you on the red-eye flight, and you'll arrive at about the same time the others do."

Despite the passage of more than 25 years, I still clearly recall my dad's description of that trip. He arrived for the midnight flight from LaGuardia Airport and found only one other passenger in the terminal lounge.

"Aren't you Ed Sullivan?" my dad asked. It was, and he invited my father to sit with him on the flight.

Their wide-ranging discussion of show business and world affairs eventually led to the revelation that dad was on a golf trip, and Mr. Sullivan asked what course he was going to play. When told, he said, "You know, the pro there is a good friend of mine and I wonder if you'd give him a message for me. Tell him I expect to play with him when I come down again in two weeks."

My dad, of course, agreed and the remaining flight time passed quickly and agreeably. Though my dad declined a lift to his hotel in Mr. Sullivan's chauffeured limousine, they parted like longtime friends.

When, early the next morning, my dad joined his business associates at the golf course, the queue of foursomes ahead of them indicated a long delay before they could tee off, so dad took this opportunity to seek out the pro and deliver Mr. Sullivan's message. Moments after rejoining his foursome, the starter's voice rang out over the P A system, "Mr. Chance and party off No. 1." It was then that dad realized that Mr. Sullivan had used his message to identify hem as a friend, and the pro had responded by extending preferential treatment. Every morning thereafter, an identical announcement was made when dad arrived, and his colleagues accused him of giving someone a big tip.

"No such thing," my dad replied, with what I'm sure was a well-remembered twinkle in his eye. "The people here just know a big shot when they see one!"

But my story does not end with this punch line. Within the next several years, Ed Sullivan was invited to Wilmington and was entertained at a dinner in the DuBarry Room of the Hotel DuPont. My dad promptly bought tickets, telling my mother that he just couldn't miss an opportunity to see his old friend Ed.

Mom greeted this line with one of her own down home sayings. "Pete, you must be crazy," she said. "Ed Sullivan meets thousands of people. He won't know you from a bunch of turnips!"

"We'll see," dad confidently replied.

So they entered the DuBarry Room and Ed Sullivan, chatting with a group of admirers on the far side of the room, immediately broke away and shouted, "Hi ya, Pete!" And moments later, to my mother's further astonishment, he confided, "We were the Lindberghs."

■ The author, when not on the golf course, can be heard each fall as the familiar voice announcing University of Dealware home football games, a job he has done for four decades. Chance is a longtime Newark resident

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week, we feature a newspaper photo of the Minnehaha Band of Newark. According to the July 30, 1924 edition of the Newark Post, "This band will give the second outdoor concert of the season on the Academy lawn tomorrow evening." The same lawn at Academy and Main streets remains the site this year of the city's summer concert series. "Out of the Attic" features historic photographs from Newark's history, recent and long ago. Readers who have a historic photo and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. For information, call the Newark Post, weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 737-0724.

Cleveland Avenue will soon be repaired

Contractor Lovett will start work in a few days on the paving and curbing of Cleveland Avenue.

This is a street that has long needed improvement and it was welcomed news when Town Council announced a short time ago that work on this street would be started.

The members of council have notified the property owners along this street that all sewer connections to the curb must be made now inasmuch as it can not be torn up for five years.

People's Column

Sir: Is there any truth in the rumor that the Town Council is going to set the thermometer back twenty degrees for the remainder of the summer?

I hope they do this, for I can't imagine anything just now that would be half so agreeable as kidding one's self into believing that the weather is cool.

Fall decision due on Windy Hills annexation

Windy Hills residents are not expected to decide on whether to apply to the city of Newark for annexation until sometime this fall, according to Brian Gagnon, executive vice-president of the Windy Hills Civic Association.

The idea of annexation of Windy Hills by the city was first proposed at a public meeting held in March by interested residents of the development.

Sewer OK paves way for work at Brookside

New Castle County Council approved an agreement Tuesday for sewer and drainage at Newark's Brookside Plaza and, in effect, gave developers the county's blessing to begin construction a new building.

The project will add nearly 41,000 square feet tot he Marrows Road shopping center, which will be completed in two phases.

According to District 5 Councilwoman Karen Venezky (D-Newark), the owner of the shopping center, Louis Capano, had put off renovating the original building because he had planned to rebuild it.

Corn's a-maize-ing value to our lives

■ This weekly feature on the Lifestyle page is authored by the staff of the Newark-based Cooperative Extension Service.

ORN IS OUR nation's number one crop and our county's number two crop in terms of acres planted - approximately 80 million and 23 thousand acres respectively. If you're like me, you're enjoying the recent arrival of our great locally-grown sweet corn as a favorite table treat. However, in actuality, most corn grown in Delaware and the nation is field corn, which is fed to livestock and poultry and processed into a variety of other food and interestingly enough many, many industrial products. As I have previously, the

Delmarva Peninsula is a net importer of corn to satisfy the demands of our very large and important poultry industry. Corn is a primary livestock feed source, with more than 60 percent of the crop devoted to putting meat on the nation's dinner table. A bushel of corn fed to livestock produces 5.6 pounds of retail beef, 13 pounds of retail pork, 19.6 pounds of chicken or 28 pounds of catfish. While livestock, poultry and dairy producers currently use more than 80 percent of the nation's corn for feed, it is estimated that in 1996 more than 1.58 billion bushels of corn went into food, seed and industrial products.

Corn yields are measured in bushels of corn kernels. A typical bushel of corn weighs 56 pounds and contains approxi-mately 72,800 kernels. Most of the weight is the starch (61.0%), protein and fiber (19.2%), oil (3.8%) and some natural moisture (16.0%).

What can be extracted from a bushel of corn? Approximately 32 pounds of starch, or 33 percent of a sweetener, or 2 - 3 gallons of fuel ethanol, and 11 - 12 pounds of gluten feed (20% protein), and 3 pounds of gluten meal (60% protein), and 1 - 2 pounds of corn oil.

We'll look closer at some of the many products in each of these categories that touch our lives every day, in a future col-

Incidentally, do you know what crop is number one in acres in our county?

Known as the 'Flower Lady' to her neighbors, Daphne McDermott has been gardening outside her apartment for nine years.

By MEGHAN AFTOSMIS

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

ARDENING IS A HOBBY that comes naturally to Daphne McDermott. "It runs in the family; I came by it honestly," she said. So it seems only natural to McDermott to plant a garden outside her home, even if that is an apartment.

Known as "the flower lady" to her neighbors near Fairfield Apartments, the 73-yearold McDermott has been gardening since she was a child.

Originally from England, McDermott just recently applied for naturalization, though she moved to the U.S. in 1951

McDermott's English Cottage garden has nine flower-beds with almost 75 different kinds of flowers. Her favorite, the Columbine, blooms beautifully outside her apartment building. She is quite pleased at the growing popularity of English Cottage gardens in the U.S., said McDermott.

When McDermott retired nine years ago, she moved to her apartment and had only Many people marvel that McDermott window boxes. She quickly became tired of them and asked management if she could plant some geraniums around the lampposts.

"Things just kept growing from there and now I have nine gardens," McDermott said. "I am very pleased with the fact I was allowed to do it."

The majority of her flowers are perennials, according to McDermott. Most come from local stores and friends' gardens, but a few seeds have come from her daughter in England who is a professional gardener.

McDermott said most of her six children garden, again commenting that gardening has been in her family since the 19th century, when her great-great-grandmother eloped with a gardener and was disinherited.

"We are that side of the family," she said

Though a neighbor, Mel Liechty rototills for her in the spring, McDermott does all the planting, weeding, edging and upkeep by herself, working at least two hours a day in her gardens.

"It is not work for me. I enjoy doing it," she said. "It's my pride and joy does her gardening for free, even buying all the flowers herself. "It's amazing that she does it all herself, at her expense and is only renting." said neighbor Jane Nickle. "You re not going to find that in many apartment buildings.

"She does it not because of us, but because she wants to," said her landlord Sami Khan. "It's her hobby."

But McDermott does not see anything strange about her endeavor. "I find it odd people don't want to garden just because it's on rented property," she said. "It's not like I'm young and just starting out. I'm hoping to stay in this apartment much longer.'

Many people stop and talk to her while she is gardening. "I've met some very nice people that way," said McDermott. "They are always intrigued because there are so many different kinds of flowers.'

McDermott sits on the porch of her building in the evenings or walks around in the gardens just enjoying them. Her neighbors also benefit from her beautiful garden. "You can t help but be overwhelmed," said Nickle. "Everyone appreciates it. They are all amazed." MAKAN CHANGE BENEFICE COLLAND

Check out the art down at the shore

YOUR SUMMER PLANS involve the beaches and you would like to nurture your interest in the fine arts while you are nurturing a sun tan, etc., may I suggest an institution almost 60 years old that can help you do just that. The institution? The Rehoboth Art League, 12 Dodds Lane in Rehoboth Beach.

The League is easy to reach from any of the beaches on the lower part of our peninsula and will provide you with something interesting for a much time as you care to spend. It is not only a place to enjoy the fine arts passively, many summer classes are offered to awaken or further develop your artistic talents.

There is an interesting history dating back to 1743 when Peter Marsh, seeking a safe haven from the pirates - including the notorious Captain Kidd who lurked in the vicinity purchased a 10,000 acre plantation. (Rumor has it there are still some "pirates" lurking around the Bottle and Cork late at night, but you how know rumors are!) Marsh selected a rather simplistic name for his purchase, 'The Homestead.

In 1930 The Homestead was purchased Col. and Mrs. W. S. Corkran. Mrs.

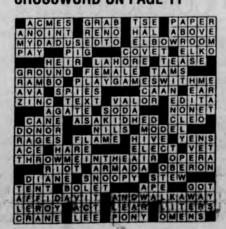

Louise Chambers Corkran had always had an interest in the fine arts and was a graduate to the Philadelphia College of Art. When a group of faculty wives from St. Andrew's School and the University of Delaware came down to sketch in 1936 an idea began to take form. How about providing art classes right on the grounds? Seven members and $43 later, in the fall of 1937 the Rehoboth Art League was founded.

Things have progressed quite a distance in the last 60 years. Today RAL offers events eleven months of the year. There are outreach programs, a permanent collection and delightful changing exhibitions, concerts and they haven't lost sight of the original aim, classes in the arts.

Their permanent collection is a very interesting one. RAL's holdings include a selection of art works which reflect changes in the creation and appreciation of art in and around the community of Rehoboth Beach. The collection includes Ethel P. B. Leach, Howard Pyle, Jack Lewis and Howard Schroder. I found it fascinating how the League's works could be both parochial and universal in

There is a great catalog available including over 65 workshop offerings in many different media. They range from the traditional to cutting edge. While there are courses that run several weeks, there are many that would fit the vacation schedule of those with a shorter stay at the beach.

The fee schedule varies from class to class but, from those I examined closely, were well worth the cost. Age is not a deterrent either. If you have a stroll through the Rehoboth Art League's Annual Outdoor Fine Art and Craft show can be time well spent at the beaches this summer.

budding young artist in your party, check out RAL and the offerings for them as well. You needn't worry about the supplies you might need. Well in advance of the workshop you select, you will receive a list of everything you will need so there will be no wasted time on the first day or Knowing me as you do, dear reader, let me offer you some advice about food. There is no garden cafe or food court at the RAL. It is situated in an area where there are no food retailers near by. If you sign up for courses, prepare to brown bag it!

You really need the catalog for complete details, and they are free. I would share with you that the Rehoboth Art League Sketch Group meets on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. The Open Pottery Studio is open Thursdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Corkran-Tubbs Gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Sundays from 1 to 4 p.m. The same hours apply for a visit to The Homestead.

A call to RAL at 302-227-8408 will provide you with all the information you need and I suggest a call the earlier the better. You can get a fee schedule and all other information in

In addition to their large, illustrated catalog, there is also a fine brochure on The Homestead. Reading this in advance will certainly enhance your visit.

If you are at any of the beaches this summer, you can keep the arts in your life through The Rehoboth Art League.

DelDOT to ask council for approval of intersection plan

► INTERSECTION, from 1

"I'm not saying this shouldn't be done," said Mayor Ronald Gardner. "I'm trying to make it faster."

WNTRC sponsors of the Resolution said that they had spoken with DelDOT engineers working on Main Street who seemed to be unaware of other traffic projects related to and overlapping their own. Currently planned for the area in question are: a redesign of the Deer Park intersection at New London Road/Main Street/Elkton Road; installation of new traffic signals at the Deer Park intersection, and at Delaware Avenue and Elkton Road; traffic signal synchronization for intersections in downtown Newark; up to five pedestrian crosswalks between the Newark United Methodist Church on Main Street and the Deer Park;

and increased rail traffic on the CSX tracks crossing at the Deer

Another problem appeared to be that the most recent traffic study done in the area was premised on two-way traffic on New London Road. DelDOT has said that the most likely alternative as of this time for the reconfigured Deer Park intersection would include one-way traffic on New London.

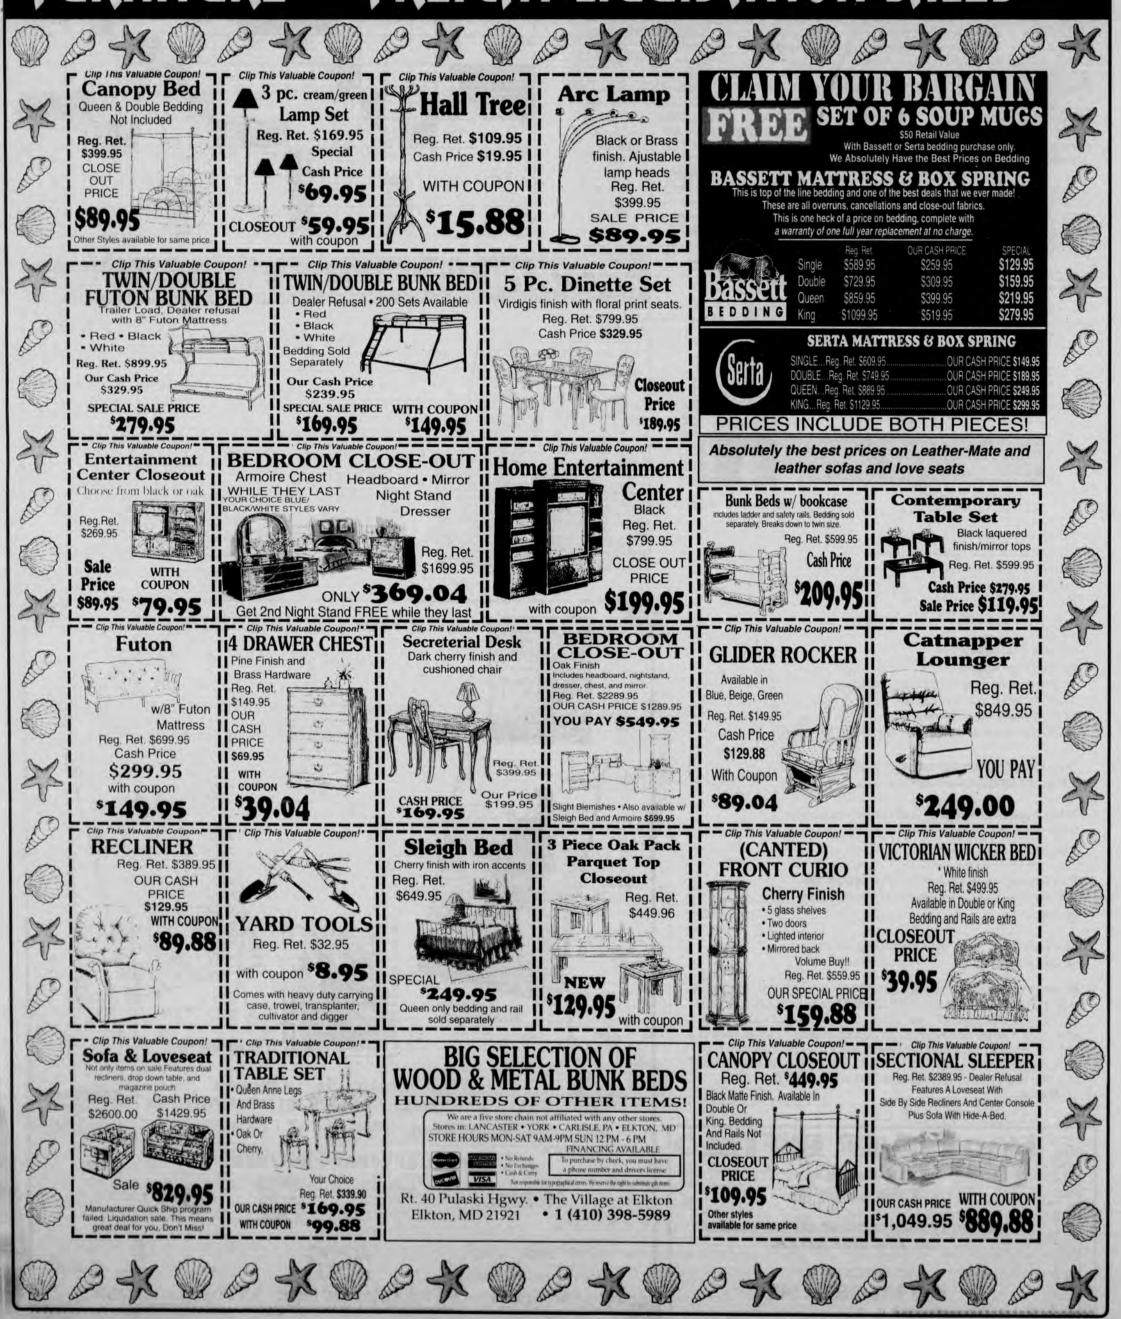

Gardner said he spoke with DelDOT officials on Monday who assured him that some concerns like the two-way traffic and increased rail traffic had definitely been considered. "I think we should make a Motion to send a letter to DelDOT about what items we want to see when they come before council with their proposal for the (Deer Park) intersection," said Gardner. "We don't want one of those, 'we'll have to get back to you on this,' because they didn't know what to expect."

Gardner continued. "We want (DelDOT) to cover all the bases and tell us what's been done – and don't come without it."

City planning director Roy Lopata told council that DelDOT was planning to come before them soon and agreed that a Motion was faster. "I can pick up the phone tomorrow and discuss what's been done with DelDOT."

One of properties discussed in the stories was a 270-acre tract in Glasgow. Canby said that the Legislature has made it clear that DelDOT cannot sell the land. A News-Journal story indicated that DelDOT had mismanaged the land, forcing the legislature to ban the agency from selling the property.

She said the newspaper "chose to mislead the public," even though it was given free access to information. The lot in Newport, which was acquired as part of a road improvement project, is typical of much of the land held by DelDOT, she said.

In a statement released late Monday, Gov. Tom Carper said he was "confident that the News-Journal has greatly exaggerated and misrepresented some facts about the operation of DelDOT's real estate office." However, he said he had "some concerns about the policies and procedures many of them required under Delaware law — that dictate state decisions about land purchase.

Carper said he was directing Chief of Staff Jeff Bullock to look into the real estate practices of DelDOT Bullock, according to Carper's statement, will oversee a review of policies and procedures in place "with an eye toward legislative changes that may be necessary."

In other cases, the News Journal counted as surplus land property that had been transferred to other state agencies, such as the Delaware State Police, Canby said, and forest land in Sussex County as well as land around the Bear DelDOT office.

Canby said the stories of appraisal practices also contained numerous errors and failed to take into account the complexities of appraising a wide range of proper-

Canal Senior girls rally for win

T WASN'T AN EASTERN or Mid-Atlantic regional championship; it wasn't even a state championship. But Canal's 8-6, 9-inning win over Stanton-Newport in the opening round of the District II Senior (14-15 year olds) softball tournament ranks among the top few comebacks in the league's rich championship history.

Megan Richardson and Stephanie Rice scampered home on Lisa Scanlon's two-out infield hit in the ninth inning to lift Canal to the victory Tuesday night at Stanton Junior High. The two runs capped an improbably yet amazing comeback and advanced Canal to Thursday's winners bracket final against Suburban.

Stanton-Newport scored two runs in each of the first three innings to take a commanding 6-1 lead. Stanton had not only taken advantage of five hits but also two Canal errors, two hit batsmen and a walk.

Making the five-run deficit even more challenging was the fact Canal was facing secondteam All-State high school pitcher Dana Travis, who compiled a 17-3 record at St. Mark's as a freshman and helped lead the Spartans to the state championship. All she did in the title game was shut out previously undefeated Brandywine – the 18th ranked team in the country.

"It looked a little bleak," admitted Canal manager Carl Rice. "We just didn't play as well as we can early on. I think we had some opening game jitters."

Momentum, however, shifted in the top of the fourth inning.

Canal manufactured three runs on just one hit to cut the gap to 6-4. Erica Richardson executed a perfect bunt to score Terry Mangini from third for the inning's first run. Two batters later Erin McGlynn ripped a single down the left field line to score Stacey Watson and pinch-runner Jaime McLaughlin.

The bottom half of the fourth brought more encouraging signs for Canal as well. Christi Franks replaced starting pitcher Alison De Boda and held Stanton-Newport scoreless for the first time all game.

Franks went on to hold Stanton-Newport scoreless the remaining six innings, giving Canal a chance to catch up and eventually win the game.

"She was unbelievable," Rice said of Franks. "She did an outstanding job. We have two good pitchers and that showed. I don't think Alison got the defensive support and that's why they scored runs early. But we played a lot better after that and Christi did a great job."

Canal finally tied the game in the sixth inning as Mangini led off with a single. Two batters later Erica Richardson was hit by a pitch. A wild pitch advanced the runners to second and third base. Mangini raced home on another wild pitch and Richardson moved to third on the same play. Richardson rounded the bag as Mangini slid home and the Stanton-Newport catcher picked up the ball. In attempt to pick off Richardson, the catcher fired the ball to third base, but no one was covering the bag, and as the ball sailed into left field,

Richardson trotted home with the tying run. Neither team was able to score in the seventh and eighth innings. Travis, in fact, struck

Pete Callahan hit a game-winning, RBI-double to give the Newark American Major Division All-Stars a seven-inning, 2-1 win over cross-town rival Newark National Saturday morning in District II tournament winners bracket game.

The pitcher's duel, played at the Brandywine Little League complex, was tied 1-1 through the regulation six innings. American's Greg Sturgis and Drew Kisner allowed just three hits while National's Matt Logan limited the American hitters to five in the first six innings.

the seventh inning, though, J.R. Word walked, bringing Callahan to the plate. Callahan then hit the ball up the middle between two National outfielders to score Word.

Both teams had trouble scoring until the bottom of the fourth inning when American's Keith Kowanick drew a bases-loaded walk to force home Greg Read.

The very next inning National tied the game 1-1 when Scott Klatzkin tripled home Allen Rayfield.

"Greg Sturgis pitched well for us," said American manager Pete Callahan. "Both pitchers kept hitters off balance with curve balls."

The manager also pointed out Word's quick speed that enabled him to score the winning run from first base.

Newark American had a strong second inning and avoided a late threat to earn a 5-3 win over Suburban in a Senior Division District II game Friday.

American quickly jumped to a • 1-0 first-inning lead. John Brennan led off with a single and eventually scored on a Jon Gagliardino two-out hit.

The key inning came for American in the second when Zach Clark hit an RBI-single that scored Andrew Keely and Steven Hauer. Scott Brooks singled home Brennan for the third run and Clark scored the final American run on a balk by Suburban pitcher Mike Pierce.

Suburban began its comeback with a one run in the top of the fourth inning on an RBI-double by Robert Anderson.

American's biggest scare came in the sixth inning as Suburban's Nick Hagan tripled home Larry Bonsall. Hagen then scored on a fielder's choice grounder by Derek McFarland to cut the lead to 5-3. The bases were loaded with two outs in the same inning, but pitcher Hauer struck out the next batter to retire the side.

Pierce pitched all seven innings for Suburban. Hauer pitched six innings and Tony Tanzilli the last for American.

American manager Tim Murphy gave a lot of credit to his defense and to a "gutty performance" by Hauer on the pitching end.

"This game scared me because we've never been this far (in the playoffs)," Murphy said.

American beaten by B'wine

The Newark American Senior All-Stars were overpowered by Brandywine 17-7 in the winners bracket final of the District II tournament Monday night at Midway.

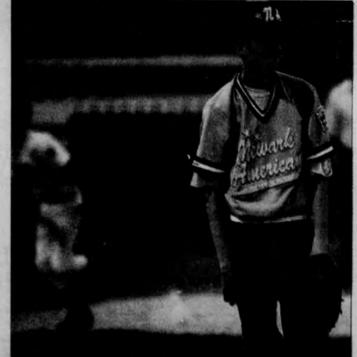

Brandywine took advantage of Newark's relief pitching in the bottom of the sixth to score six runs. It finished the inning with a two-run homer by Randy Kosmolski and another two-run homer by Greg Sachs.

Newark had its only lead in the first inning 1-0 on an RBI-single by Jon Gagliardino that scored Matt Ryan.

Brandywine went ahead 3-1 in the bottom of the first inning and scored five more in the second inning to take command of the game. Kevin Dempsey and Kosmolski both hit home runs in the inning.

Canal Senior boys nipped by Brandywine

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Despite being just a third-round District II game, the Canal-Brandywine Senior Division game was played with the intensity and emotion of a state championship contest.

Canal dropped the hard-fought, see-saw matchup 6-5 as Brandywine scored four runs in the bottom of the sixth and held on for the victory.

The game - between two of the best teams in District II - had big ramifications. The winner advanced to the winners bracket final and, with a win there, would only need one more victory to claim the District II title. The District II champ this year gets an automatic berth in the Mid-Atlantic Regional.

Brandywine appeared in control of the game, staking a 2-0 lead through five innings. To that point Canal had managed just one infield hit and one walk off of Brandywine pitcher Scott Henning.

Then came the sixth.

Canal's Brock Donovan led off by drawing a walk. Kevin Maloney followed by reaching base on an who golfed a towering fly ball that landed about 10feet beyond the center field fence. The blow gave Canal a 3-2 lead.

Tom Gallagher, the next hitter, quickly improved the lead to 4-2 with a massive home run that flew about 50 feet over the left field

Canal got two more hits and two more walks in the inning but was unable to push across any more

That would prove costly as Brandywine, in the bottom of the sixth inning, staged its own four-run rally to take a 6-4 lead. Three of the runs came after there were two out and nobody on base. Brandywine managed just two hits in the inning but took advantage of an error and two walks.

Canal tried to again rally in the seventh inning but could do nothing after Kevin Maloney's lead off homer that cut the margin to 6-5.

"It was a great game," said Canal manager Dave Blake. "I believe these are two of the best teams in the district. It was a big game and they came out on top.

'We had some misplays that I don't think this team normally makes and they SENIOR BASEBALL really hurt us. I still think we can come back and face them again."

In addition to the three home runs, Devon Wiley had two hits for Canal while Matt Folke had one. Husser, the Canal pitcher, gave up just six hits and struck out eight.

Canal 9, Capitol-Stanton-Newport 2 - Less than 14 hours after the heartbreaking loss to Brandywine, Canal bounced back with a victory to stay alive in the tournament.

Matt Folke pitched a three-hitter and struck out nine to help Canal to the win. Brock Donovan and Nate Husser each had three hits to lead the Canal offense.

Canal 15, Midway 3 - The Canal Senior All-Stars scored seven runs in the seventh inning, including Nate Husser's grand slam, to crush Midway 15-3 at Leroy C. Hill Park Tuesday evening.

The win advanced Canal into Thursday night's loser's bracket final against Newark American. The winner of that game will play Brandywine Saturday evening at Frawley Stadium. If Brandywine wins Saturday's game it is the District II champion and will advance to the Mid-Atlantic regional. If Brandywine is beaten Saturday, a deciding game will be played Sunday at Canal at 4 p.m.

John DiStefano led off the seventh inning with a walk and eventually scored on a bases-loaded walk. Husser followed with a grand slam over the center field fence to give Canal a 13-3 lead.

Canal continued to score as Matt Folke and J. P. Reinholt picked up RBIs. Canal scored early with a run in the second inning and two more in the third on RBIs from Tom Gallagher and Folke.

Midway cut the lead to 3-2 in the bottom of the third with runs from George Heinly and Josh Nelson. Midway scored once more in the fifth for its final run.

Canal added three runs in the fifth with RBIs from Gallagher and Devon Wiley. Two more runs came in the sixth as Shawn McCarthy and Kevin Maloney both scored to build Canal's lead to 8-3.

Maloney and Husser combined to pitch seven innings for Canal.

The Canal offense had a total of 14 hits while Midway managed just six.

Newark National knocks out Canal

Newark National advanced to the losers bracket final of the District II Junior All-Star tournament with an 11-1 victory over Canal Tuesday night at the Naamans Little League complex.

Eric Speice pitched a four-hitter and Mark Rash had two hits, including a two-run home run, to help lead National to its second straight victory after falling into the losers bracket.

Speice also had two hits and three runs scored. Mike Murray added two hits and three RBI for National.

Tommy Price hit a solo home run for Canal, which was eliminated from the tournament. Both of Canal losses came at the hands of Newark National.

National advanced to play Brandywine Thursday night. The winner of the game will advance to Saturday's 4 p.m. game at Frawley Stadium against unbeaten Suburban.

If Suburban wins Saturday's

game it is the District champion. If National or Brandywine wins, a deciding game will be played Sunday at 1 p.m. at Canal.

Suburban 8, Newark National 1 – Newark National dropped to the losers bracket of the District II Junior Division tournament.

National took a 1-0 lead in the first inning as Greg Boulivous singled home R.T. Plumsky.

That, however, was all Newark National could manage. Suburban tied the game with a run in the second and took the lead for good with three more in the fourth inning. The winners sealed the victory with four more runs in the fifth inning.

Besides the RBI single, Adam Poppitti, Brandon Farmer and Ryan Thompson each got one hit. Mark Rash picked up two singles. Newark National 12, Naamans 8 – Newark National bounced back from the loss to Suburban with a big win over Naamans to stay alive in the tournament. Mike Murry had four hits and five RBI to lead Newark National to the losers bracket victory.

Greg Boulivous add three hits and three RBI and Eric Speice had four runs scored and Mark Rash scored three times. Steven Briley was the winning pitcher and Rash got the save.

Canal 12, Capitol Stanton-Newport 3 – Canal continued its march through the losers bracket with a big win over Capitol Stanton-Newport.

Tom Price and Breck Wiedenmann combined to pitch a four-hitter. Chris Armstrong, Matt Swank and Price all had two hits to lead the offense.

Canal also beat New Castle in an earlier losers bracket game.

Canal American falls to Brandywine in extra innings

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Emotions covered the entire spectrum as the Canal American All-Star team dropped an eight-inning, 7-2 decision to Brandywine in the winners bracket semifinal of the District II Major Division Tournament Saturday afternoon at Brandywine Little League.

Trailing 2-0, and with just one infield hit off Brandywine pitcher Dan Santabianco through five innings, Canal American forged an improbable two-out, two-run rally to tie the game in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Michael Potts ignited the rally by reaching base on a sharply hit ball to third base. Two batters, and one out, later Danny Richardson beat out an infield hit. A wild pitch moved the runners to second an third base.

Following another Santabianco strike out, Ryan Buckland stroked a single down the right field line – Canal's first hit out of the infield all day – to score Potts and Richardson with the tying runs. Buckland was thrown out trying to get to second base but the damage was done and the game moved into extra innings.

Momentum had definitely switched to Canal American.

Pitcher Bryan Greenwell mowed down three Brandywine hitters in order in the top of the seventh and the fired up Canal team came to bat poised to win the game in the bottom of the seventh.

Jason Biddle led off the inning by reaching first base after getting MAJOR BASEBALL hit with a pitch. Marcus Alexander then executed a perfect bunt that the Brandywine defense threw away allowing he and Biddle to advance to second and third base with nobody out.

Needing just one run to win the game, Canal, however, was not able to get a run home.

Santabianco answered the challenge by striking out the next three batters to get out of the inning and switch the momentum once again.

"We knew we had three good hitters coming up," said Canal American manager Jim Fannin. "We thought we could get somebody home. But you have to give Danny Santabianco credit. He did a great job."

Brandywine, now the fired up team, came out strong in the eighth. The first five batters in the inning reached base and scored. Santabianco, who finished the game with 16 strikeouts, didn't allow a run in the bottom of the eighth and Brandywine advanced to Wednesday's winners bracket final against Newark American.

"It was a great game," Fannin said. "We battled back and then we had our chance. But Brandywine is a good team. Our goal now is to come back and play them again." Canal American dropped to the losers bracket and played Capitol Wednesday night.

Canal major girls advance to District championship game

By MARTY VALANIA

The Canal Major Division All-Star softball team moved a step closer to its 15th straight District II title with a 4-2 win over Suburban Monday night at the Suburban Little League complex.

Canal, which has won every district and state championship since 1983, will play for the district title Saturday at 1 p.m. at Canal against the winner of the losers bracket final game between Suburban and New

The winners broke open a scoreless pitcher's duel between Canal's Stacy Maloney and Suburban's Kendra Russell with four runs in the bottom of the fifth inning.

Malony, herself, ignited the rally by reaching base on a bunt-single. Lindsay Niggebrugge followed with a sharply hit ball to left field and then Jaclyn Temple laid down a perfect bunt for another single to load the bases.

After a ground ball back to the pitcher forced Maloney at the plate, Amber Hicken hit a single to left field to plate Niggebrugge and Temple with game's first two runs. Kenya Hodges followed with a blooper off the second baseman's glove that scored Lindsay Long for the third run. Christin Mills' ground ball then scored Hicken for the fourth run of the inning.

Maloney then had to hold off a sixth-inning Suburban rally to preserve the Canal victory. Suburban got two hits in the sixth and were also aided by two errors and three walks in the inning. Maloney, however, got a strikeout and a groundout to leave the bases loaded and end

'It felt great to be out there," said Maloney, an 11-year-old, who struck out seven and allowed just six hits. "I was pretty nervous when it was tied but I just went out there and tried to do my best. When we got the runs, I thought we could hold them if we just played good defense."

Russell limited Canal's offense to just six hits. Long led the way with two hits while Debbie Slifer, Maloney, Temple and Hicken picked up the others.

"I'm proud of the way we played," said Canal manager Charlie Marioni. "Suburban was ready to play and played a great game. They're a very good team. But we were able to pull the game out. It's a lot more fun playing in those close games."
