Issues make election important

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Tuesday marks an Election Day that arguably is one of the most important in recent Newark history.

Incumbent first-term mayor Vance Funk will be trying to retain his position against challenger and former five-term city councilman Tom Wampler in a race that is distinguished by the quality of experience each candidate brings to the table.

The winner will face some significant issues, and those are what make this election so important.

With tens of millions of dollars at stake, the appeal of the verdict against the city in the reservoir litigation is a big concern to both candidates and many residents. Clearly, nobody wants any more of the gaffes that hurt the city in the initial case.

The impending closing of the Chrysler plant is the source of several issues, such as the city's ability to create more jobs for Newarkers, and the best use of the site when Chrysler pulls out.

Of course there are the long-standing issues of university-city relations and noise in the neighborhoods.

There are also more concerns about safety and crime — especially violent crime — now than there probably ever have been.

Being a university town, how crime is handled here is a big deal. It affects our current residents, it affects the students that come here and it affects how the city is perceived nationally. It also Happy hunting!

Easter comes early at annual egg hunt

Some unusual colors could be spotted in the woods of the White Clay Creek State Park the morning of Saturday, March 31. Plastic eggs in all shades of blue, orange, yellow, green and pink were scattered throughout the Carpenter Recreation Area — much to their hunters' delight — as part of Newark's annual egg hunt. The yearly event, sponsored by the city's Parks and Recreation Department, brought out youngsters ages 1 to 9 and their parents. The Easter holiday continues this weekend. Newark men accused of trafficking designer drugs

Two roommates at the West Knoll Apartments in the 200 block of Elton Road were arrested and charged with drug trafficking and weapons offenses after Newark Police searched the apartment on Wednesday, March 28.

Police said Melec J. White, 20, and Melvin J. Smith, 25, were arrested and charged with trafficking designer drugs, possession of a firearm while committing a felony, possession with intent to deliver marijuana, maintaining a dwelling for controlled substances and possession of drug paraphernalia. White and Smith were arraigned and committed to the Howard R. Young Correctional Institute in lieu of bail, said police.

The charges came after police were called to the apartment to investigate a report of a disturbance. Responding officers noticed various drug paraphernalia in the apartment while on the scene, and they obtained a search warrant for the home, said police.

When the officers executed the warrant, they recovered more than 25 vials of mint leaves that had been saturated in embalming fluid. Police said this mixture, referred to on the street as "Wet" or "Illy," is placed into cigars or cigarettes and smoked, giving the person a high similar to that of PCP.

Officers recovered additional mint leaves and what they thought to be embalming fluid ready for packaging, said police. They discovered marijuana and various drug paraphernalia, as well as a loaded .22 caliber handgun, said police.

Police said Paul Cooper, 21, of the unit block of Bobby Drive in Newark and Jamie L. Whittaker, 19, of the 3000 block of Telegraph Road in Elkton, Md., were arrested and arraigned on charges of second degree robbery.

Cooper was committed to the Howard R. Young Correctional Institute in default of a $95,000 secured bail. Whittaker was committed to the Delores Baylor Women's Correctional Institute in lieu of $55,000 secured bail, said police.

Two additional suspects, Djuan D. Frazier, 26, and Alysha J. Andrews, 19, were arrested earlier.

Police said the victims, ages 17 and 18, knew the suspects. The victims reported to police that the four suspects robbed them at gunpoint in a hotel room. Stolen in the robbery was an undisclosed amount of cash and other items.

Brookside Lions Club screens pre-school-aged children for eye disorders

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

One-by-one, students at the Newark Day Nursery on Barksdale Road filed into a room at the school last Friday, March 30, ready to "say cheese."

With some gentle coaxing from Brookside Lion Day Muscelli, each student took a seat in front of an unusual Polaroid camera. "Look right at the light," she told each of them as she lined up the shot.

A minute after they were snapped, the photographs developed, and Brookside Lion Milt Draper checked each picture to make sure it was usable.

Unlike most photos, where the smile takes the lead, these black-and-white pictures showed only the children's eyes. But, they could be some of the most important photos these youngsters ever take.

For several years now, the Brookside Lions Club has been using a special camera to screen preschool-aged children for eye disorders. Club volunteers take the pictures, usually testing children ages 2 to 5.

"Most of these children can't read an eye chart yet, but they love to have their picture taken," said Draper.

The images are reviewed then by an optometrist — in this case, another member of the Brookside Lions Club — who has been trained to read the pictures and check for disorders. Common disorders, such as "lazy eye," "crossed eyes," near-sightedness, far-sightedness and astigmatism can be seen in the picture.

If the optometrist notes a possible disorder, the parents of the child are informed and encouraged to have the child's vision examined.

Draper said a number of parents have found out about their child's eye disorder through the work of Lions Club volunteers. And, the club's good deed has not gone unnoticed. He has received letters of thanks from parents who would have been otherwise unaware of their child's condition.

The Brookside Lions Club shares the camera equipment with several other local groups, including Middletown, Pike Creek and Newark Lions Clubs. Volunteers travel to nursery schools and day care centers throughout the greater Newark area, sometimes taking photos of up to 100 children at one site.

The program is a rewarding

Condos may be coming to Barksdale Road

Planners recommend approval of "Sutton Place"

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A vacant office building at 711 Barksdale Road about 600 feet west of the Apple Road intersection may be replaced by 12 townhouse condominiums, if the Newark City Council accepts the positive recommendation by the city's planning commission.

Planners met Tuesday, April 3, to discuss the project proposed by property owners Eddan LLC, of which Dan Kandra is the managing member.

The plan, known as "Sutton Place," calls for 12 townhouse condominiums to be built on the site in three separate buildings.

It will require a rezoning and major subdivision of the 1.16-acre property. The plot, now zoned for "business limited" use, would have to be rezoned by Newark's City Council to "RR," which allows row and townhouse residences.

Matthew Longo, an engineer with Hillcrest Associates, described the architecture as "attractive, English Tudor style."

If the project is approved, the exterior of the buildings will be faced with stone, brick and stucco in muted gray and brown colors, he said. Each unit will be about 2,000 square feet with a two-car garage or an optional three-car garage.

The units will be arranged around a boulevard-style entrance with landscaped islands. Large shade trees and other landscaping are proposed for the interior of the site, along Barksdale Road and in the portion of the property nearest Elkton Road.

Rental use of the condos would be restricted so that no more than two unrelated tenants could live in each unit. "We're going to market more to adult, professional buyers interested in being close to town with a maintenance-free sort of ownership," said Longo. The condo association would be responsible for all upkeep, he said.

Discussion among the commission centered on the portion of the plot that backs up to the CSX tracks along Elkton Road. Commissioners debated which type of fence would be most appropriate to separate the property from the railroad right-of-way.

"I would agree with the idea to go with something more substantial," said Commissioner Ralph Begleiter, about the fence. He proposed a masonry wall of "sufficient height" to be built in lieu of a chain link fence.

The planning commission voted 5 to 0 in favor of his recommendation and the project as a whole. The city council will have the final say and will review the proposal at a future meeting.

State's Recovery Team 'a burden' on taxpayers

Christina District can manage its own finances now

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The chair of the Financial Review Committee (FRC) urged the Christina District school board to find a way to end the role of the state-appointed Financial Recovery Team [FRT] in overseeing the District's finances and daily operations. "The state loan balance [to the District] is projected to increase to the tune of half-a-million dollars to fund FRT compensation this year," FRC chair Frank McIntosh told the board on Tuesday. "The District has no control, no oversight of this expense [and] there is no end date to the involvement of the FRT [in Christina District]."

The State Office of Management and Budget named the members of the Financial Recovery Team for the Christina School District as authorized in Senate Bill 308 after a major shortfall in District funds precipitated a financial crisis in May 2006. The FRT was expected to continue its work until financial procedures and organizational structures are in place to ensure the financial stability of the District.

The FRT reports monthly to the Governor, Delaware Legislature, the state Office of Management and Budget and the Controller General. In a January letter to the Newark Post, Delaware Secretary of Education Valerie Woodruff stated, "[all but two] members of the Financial Recovery Team are being paid from the state of Delaware loan to the Christina School District. As such, the amount of those payments must be repaid by the District per Delaware Code..."

Costs previously published (see Newark Post, Dec. 22, 2006) indicated that the District paid FRT members Frank Rishel, Kenneth Brown, and Karen Cannon a total of $185,130 for a combined total of 37.5 weeks of work in 2006.

The state also mandated that the Christina school board create the FRC, composed of one or more members of the board and residents of Christina District. The members of the FRC do not receive compensation for their Committee work.

"The FRC believes strongly that the District is capable of managing its affairs at this juncture," McIntosh said. "As a result of this belief, we petition the board and provide our advice to seek relief from the oversight of the FRT."

McIntosh added that his Committee believes the FRT should be terminated "no later than" the end of the current fiscal year. "The District needs to conserve what money we can," McIntosh said. "We need to relieve the taxpayers of this additional burden — there are a lot of places we need $500,000 in the District."

It's a win-win celebration at Christiana High

Christiana High School celebrated dual victories with a pep rally where many students and faculty wore attire paying tribute to the Boys Basketball team that brought home the first basketball State Championship title in the school's history.

Christiana's Competition Cheerleaders were also applauded for not only becoming state champions, but also national champions for the second consecutive year.

"Congratulations to the boys who made history," basketball coach Nate Mariano said. "You have made this program, your school and your family proud! Thanks for the great and everlasting memories."

Tim Steed has been playing basketball for Christiana High since 10th grade. "I started playing basketball when I was 7 years old and when I was 12, I started to really improve," Steed said. "What made this year so different from the others is that this year, we were more like a family. I see [the players] as real brothers."

Anthony Boyer had hoped for the celebration since joining CHS Varsity basketball in his freshman year. "As a team we were more together and we even went out to just hang out outside of school," Boyer explained. "We were always together in school, and we became our own family."

"The State Championship win was icing on Aaron Meades' birthday cake. 'I couldn't ask for a better present,' he said. 'Our win helped bring back school spirit. Everybody has been buying our championship gear and wearing it at school."

During the Pep Rally, Bernie D'Marco, Student Government Advisor, presented a banner to recognize the State Boys Basketball Champions. In addition, Athletic Director Kim Huggins and Coach Mariano presented the players with Championship hoodies.

The cheerleaders performed many routines and kept the Viking spirit during the special assembly. "Congratulations to

Shue administrator wins DMEA Award

Jason DeJonghe, assistant principal at Shue-Medill Middle School, received the Outstanding Administrator Award from the Delaware Music Educators Association (DMEA).

This Award recognizes the significant contributions of administrators who extend extra effort to support music education in schools.

DeJonghe joined the Shue-

Medill staff in the summer of 2005. A product of the public school system in New York State, he played the violin in his school orchestra program from third through 12th grade.

According to Wendy Lapham, District public information officer, DeJonghe goes beyond the scope of his position to support Shue's music program and works tirelessly to maintain the building's facility and develop the master schedule to support the performing arts.

"Mr. DeJonghe's willingness to connect with students on a personal level sets an example for other administrators to follow," Lapham stated. "Last year, he performed an arrangement of Vivaldi's "Spring" with the Shue Strings orchestra. He attended rehearsals along with the students, and spent extra tutoring sessions with a student mentor in order to prepare his part."

BEMUSED, AMUSED, CONFUSED

A day's work

By MARVIN H. HUMMEL

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

After a long, painful and sometimes lurid affair with a telephone company, I was reluctant to renew my medical prescription by phone. After all, I felt fine without it. But, if I were ever to recover my ability to leap tall buildings at a single bound, I had to have those pills!

Then the rains came and my phone service cancelled itself out as usual, thereby affording me the time to prepare for taking on the pharmaceutical firm. On the fourth day, I could get a dial tone and, gritting my teeth, I dialed the appropriate "800" number for the company. It was busy – still time to back out! I decided to try once more.

Finally, the line was not busy. But all the operators were. The mechanical voice "thanked" me for my business and my patience, then treated me to a concert which was punctuated periodically by the promise of my being "next in line." More music. More promises.

Finally, another mechanical voice wanted me to hit the correct number on my phone when the nature of my query had been listed orally. I didn't "fit" any of them! As I pondered which one was closest to my needs, the ghostly voice said, "Shall I repeat the categories? If so, press one." I did. More music and further assurances that someone would be right with me.

Enter the dilemma: should I wait or hang up? The investment of 73 minutes would be wasted. On the other hand, I would never let myself go through this again! Then I looked at my calendar. Oh! Oh! I had a doctor's appointment in three weeks, and I knew his first question would be, "Are you taking your pills?" I decided to hang on, listen to more music and be assured and reassured that I was a valued customer and that I was "next."

Finally, I was allowed to give my ID number to a voice. There was no such number! I gave it again. This time it computed. But, because of their overload, I would have to put on hold. I still did not meet any of their categories, so I would have to wait for an operator to be free. An hour later a human operator came on, requested my ID number, said it was incorrect, asked me to repeat it, "this time slowly," misstated it back to me and told me to check my prescription card and read it to her once more!

"I'm going to have to get my supervisor. Hold on a minute!"

Forty-five minutes later, a very exasperated supervisor came on line with the greeting, "Yes! What seems to be the problem?" I told her, "What's your ID number?" I gave it to her, and then she wanted to know the prescription number. I gave it to her. After another repeat, she "found it." Then more questions: what is your zip code, your address, your name, and your credit card's name, number and expiration date. I gave her all of them; some I repeated once, some twice.

In the midst of all this, I asked a stupid question: "Isn't all of this in your computer system already? I have been a customer for at least 10 years!" She turned churlish, and I honestly don't know why.

Finally, "Your medication will be delivered within 10 days. But in the future, ignore the questions you are asked and your call will be picked up directly by an operator. And also in the future, be ready to give us all your information when we answer your call."

With considerable effort, I suppressed the temptation to tell her my data were in front of me at all times during the four-plus hours.

During the pause, she thanked me for my business, told me how valued I was as a client and wished me a good day.

Actually, it is a good pharmaceutical company – unless you suffer from stress or are depressed and/or suicidal.

Candidates Expect Stiff Fight in Council Election Tuesday

With a three-cornered contest having developed in the middle district and with a contest in the western district, candidates for election to Town Council were prepared for a stiff fight when the citizens go to the polls next Tuesday.

The triple contest in the middle district is between William Lovett, incumbent; C.E. Rittenhouse, and George Krapf, the latest to file his name. In the western district, the contest is between William Kennedy and O.W. Widdoes, incumbent.

Bandits hold up R.W. Heim and escape in auto with $38

Three unmasked bandits held up R.W. Heim, State Director of Vocational Education, in the heart of the town and robbed him of $38 last Tuesday night, making good their escape while Mr. Heim, completely unnerved by the incident, failed to report it to police.

U.D. public bus service in danger

A complaint lodged against the University of Delaware for opening its student shuttle bus service to area residents may doom the two-week-old free public service, as the university faces regulation from the Delaware Transportation Authority for becoming a public carrier.

The complaint was registered with the authority by Robert Dowling, of the Newark Transit Co., which runs the Newark Taxicab Co.

Transit hub, truck scales are possible

The Delaware Department of Transportation told Newark's city council recently that truck scales, a transit hub and road maintenance on state roads in Newark are all possible – at a price.

Nathan Haywood, Secretary of Transportation, said DelDOT has seriously considered a transit hub for trains – an expensive priority at any time, let alone in an economic downturn.

Lost pets get help in finding their way back home

No matter how far they roam, there's a place on them that's home. Newark Police have become the latest agency in New Castle County using a scanner to read information about a pet's owner off a microchip imbedded in the animal.

"The chip is always put in a spot between the shoulder blades of the animal," explained Newark Control Officer Donna Vickers, demonstrating on her midnight-black cat Evil.

A fine time for Wine & Dine

A warm evening last Saturday, March 31, proved the perfect backdrop for Newark's third annual Wine & Dine event. Seventeen restaurants in downtown Newark participated in the festival, which drew out Newark residents and visitors from around the region. Attendees had the chance to taste fine wines from participating wineries and snack on good eats at local restaurants. Musicians set up along Main Street provided entertainment. Here are some scenes from the day.

Quality candidates vie for seat affects businesses around town. The last thing local businesses want is for people to be afraid to venture on to the streets at night.

The good thing is that we have two quality candidates. They may have different ideas of how to accomplish what's best for Newark, but the fact is we have two qualified people vying to be mayor.

So what are the differences between the two?

Judging from answers to editor Christine Neff's questions in last week's issue, it appears that Mr. Wampler feels the mayor's position should be heavily involved in helping city council set policy and enact ordinances.

He has many years of experience on city council and understands the dynamics of this type of government. He most likely would approach the position from that standpoint.

Mr. Funk approaches the position as an ambassador for the city as well as mayor, establishing events that have made Newark more of a destination. In addition, his background as a lawyer offers experience in dealing with the litigation that has plagued the city over the years.

Which is the better of the two? That's for the voters to decide.

The winner will have significant issues to confront. Thankfully, we have two excellent candidates for voters to choose from.

Closing the gender gap

By CAROL SCOTT

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Recently a 17-year-old high school senior, Mary Masterson from Oklahoma City, Okla., won the first place, $100,000 college scholarship in the 2007 Intel Science talent search competition. She was chosen as the ABC News "Person of the Week" for her science accomplishment. Even with her inventive science skills she didn't expect to win. When her name wasn't called as a 10th place winner, she figured that her chances were over.

Even with supportive parents, Mary's surprise at winning and wavering confidence with science is typical of young girls who begin to dismiss science as a potential interest starting as young as age 10. Though women are 46 percent of the national workforce, they make up 22 percent of the scientists and engineers (National Science Foundation, 1999; Davis 2002.)

Young girls need the support of parents, teachers, and role models to nurture early interests in science through grade school and beyond. For girls in particular, parental support, contact with female role models in science careers, and experiential, informal learning opportunities are key ingredients to boost confidence in science interest and choosing science careers.

Here are some recommendations from The National Science Foundation that parents can use to support their children's interest in science:

Look for opportunities to talk about scientific ideas with your children. Discuss news articles or visit exhibits at school events or

Team handball championships coming to Newark

By JOE BACKER and CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark residents may not be too familiar with the sport of team handball — a mix of basketball and soccer that's played more often in Europe and North Africa than here in the United States.

But this weekend, residents have the chance to watch some of the best teams the sport has to offer at the 2007 U.S. Team Handball Open National Championships, taking place Friday, April 6 through Sunday, April 8, at the University of Delaware.

The U.S. Olympic Committee selected UD's Newark campus to host the national event. The Delaware Economic Development Office put forth the successful bid, in partnership with UD's Sports Management program and Hotel Conference Services and the Greater Wilmington Convention & Visitors Bureau.

Tim DeSchraver, associate professor in UD's sport management program, said the university is thrilled to be taking part in the unique event. "This is a great opportunity to showcase the university and its facilities. And we hope it will draw more attention to the sport in this area," he said.

DeSchraver says 23 teams

MLB urns excite Delaware buyers

By EILEEN DALLABRIDA

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

For eternally hopeful Phillies fans, a team funeral urn offers the prospect of everlasting baseball.

"It's the only time we've seen people getting really excited about a funeral urn," says Beth Cooper, vice president of marketing at Cooper Wilbert Vault Co., a regional purveyor of funerary vaults and urns with operations in Middletown and in Selbyville.

Cooper supplies funeral homes from New York City to Baltimore. In recent years, the company has added such innovations as burial vaults with tops embellished with collages of family photographs. There's a collage of battle scenes for soldiers killed in Iraq.

She said she started getting calls for urns licensed by Major League Baseball after Eternal Image, the Michigan-based manufacturer, pitched the product and its other licensed items at a funeral industry trade show in Philadelphia.

In addition to the Phillies, there are urns representing teams in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York and St. Louis.

The official product launch is April 2, the opening day of baseball season. Cooper said she received multiple advance orders in February and March.

"We've been in business since 1971 and that is the first time that's happened," she said. "These urns are really touching people."

The architect of Eternal Image is Clint Mytych, the former manager of a luxury rental car business. He originally wanted to license urns patterned on muscle cars, with enthusiasts cruising the eternal highway in Mustangs and Corvettes.

He couldn't get out of the starting gate with automakers but Mytych kept brainstorming. He sat down and started making a list of the organizations that attract large, dedicated followings. Right off the bat, he thought of the Roman Catholic Church.

"After all, there are 3 billion Catholics in the world," he said. "We were delighted that the Vatican Library was eager to work with us."

So was Precious Moments, the maker of a line of sentimental figurines, which designed a series of angels for its line.

It took only one pitch to hit a homerun with management at Major League Baseball.

"Great to work with, a simple transaction over the phone," Mytych recalls. "They understood immediately that this was an idea that would be embraced by fans."

Eternal Image also is currying favor with pet owners with a $149 dog urn licensed by the American Kennel Club. A deal with the Cat Fanciers Association is whisker close.

Priced at $699, the MLB urns are made from die-cast aluminum and are mounted on a black-bordered base shaped like home plate. Each is topped with a dome that holds a baseball, which is included with the urn; the standard Major League ball is removable so it can be easily replaced with a ball that might hold sentimental value.

The Phillies' urn is accented in the team's bright red with a hydrographic coating and bears the Liberty Bell logo. The Yankee urn is finished in pinstripes.

Mytych said Eternal Image is rolling out a line of licensed caskets this fall, in time for the pennant race.

Encourage your children to pursue scientific interests and develop ownership of their learning. Try hands-on activities at home or sign up for summer science camp programs. Check the summer camps website at www.udel.edu/camps for camps sponsored or held on campus at the University of Delaware.

Encourage and model the skills of scientific inquiry, curiosity, and openness to new ideas. Talk about the use of data and skepticism that characterizes science methods.

Create a place for your child's experiments and science supplies. Look for hands-on experiments to do at home at the library or bookstore. Help your child gather basic supplies from your kitchen or junk drawer and assist as a resource and safety check adult as needed.

Consider setting up a "bring your child to work" career day for your child with a family member or friend working in a science career field.

Look for year-round science learning opportunities. Consider clubs that include hands-on learning in a variety of science topics and adult role models to encourage ongoing informal learning in a supportive community setting. Check out the 4-H Youth Development programs at the Cooperative Extension by calling 302-831-8965.

All of these steps can lead to a greater interest in science for young girls by increasing science awareness, hands-on experiences, and positive perspectives about women's role in science careers.

Handball games open to public

Field House location.

The event promises, not only fine athletes and exciting games, but a boost to the local economy, as well. Tim Morgan, director of the Delaware Tourism Office, said the event is expected to bring $350,000 in gross domestic product to Delaware.

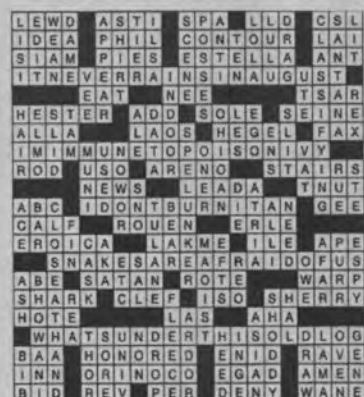

It's part of the office's efforts to expand sports and gaming in the state and attract other sporting events to Delaware, which, according to Morgan, offers prime facilities and a convenient, mid-Atlantic location.

"This event is of great stature because it's an international sport," said Morgan. "Anytime you get an event with an international flavor, it opens up a region to (future) economic development."

Team handball is very popular in Europe and North Africa and is played in more than 180 countries. "Team Handball is like a combination of soccer and basketball, and is played on a court with six players and a goalie, with two 30-minute halves. They play with an inflated ball that's bigger than a softball, but smaller than a volleyball," said DeSchriver.

Morgan said he was first exposed to the sport a number of years ago and has seen it played at the Olympic-level in two Olympics events. "I think it's real exciting. I encourage people to come out and take a look at it," he said.

NEWS FOR NEWARK FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

BRIEFLY

Art of Edward Loper on view

"The Art of Edward L. Loper Sr.: On the Path of the Masters" opened this week in the University of Delaware's Mechanical Hall, Main Street and North College Avenue, on UD's Newark campus. The exhibition follows Loper's artistic journey from his early, realistic detailed works to what is described in the exhibition catalogue as the "kaleidoscopic cubism" of his later years. The exhibition runs through July 20.

University Museums galleries are open 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays; 11 a.m.-8 p.m., Wednesdays; 1-4 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays; and are closed on Mondays and University holidays. Admission is free.

There are 40 works by Loper on display – from early works as a draftsman for the Works Progress Administration (WPA) to his still lifes, landscapes and figurative paintings, known for their bold color and fragmented forms. Loper was the first African-American artist to be awarded a prize in the Delaware Art Museum's annual exhibition.

PTTP to stage three plays

The University of Delaware's Professional Theatre Training Program (PTTP) is staging three plays in rotating repertory from April 11 to May 5.

Tennessee Williams's "A Streetcar Named Desire" will preview at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 11, in the Thompson Theatre of the Center for the Arts (CFA), Orchard Road at Kent Way, on the UD's Newark campus; Moliere's "Tartuffe" will open at 7:30 p.m., Friday, April 13, in Hartshorn Hall Theatre; and William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" will preview at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, April 19, in CFA's Thompson Theatre.

Single tickets range from $8 to $18. For more information on show times and to order tickets, visit www.pttp.udel.edu/season.html, call 831-2204, e-mail pttp-boxoffice@udel.edu or stop by the Hartshorn Hall box office.

UD honored at U.N. for innovative international programs

On Friday, March 30, the University of Delaware received the 2006-07 Andrew Heiskell Award for Innovation in International Education in the category of Internationalizing the Campus from the Institute for International Education (IIE), one of the world's largest international education and training organizations. UD President David P. Roselle accepted the prestigious award during a presentation at the United Nations.

"The university has achieved many milestones, it is also a very special place in the Olympic skating world, but, to us, the best record that [Roselle] achieved is, in his tenure, moving study abroad participation from 11 percent to 41 percent. That's a huge number," Allan Goodman, president and CEO of IIE, said at the ceremony, which was held during a luncheon at the U.N. Delegates Dining Room.

In his acceptance remarks, Roselle outlined the history of UD's study abroad program and cited the impact it had on Ann Nields Garstin, a young woman who went on one of UD's first study abroad programs in 1929.

Allan Goodman, right, president and CEO of the Institute for International Education, presents the Andrew Heiskell Award for Innovation in International Education to UD President David P. Roselle.

Garstin, who died in 1998 at the age of 88, became a generous benefactor of the University and upon her death bequeathed nearly $10 million to the John P. Nields Scholarship Fund in memory of her father, a gift that now helps send other students abroad.

Also honored during the presentation, which was part of the second annual IIE Best Practices Conference, were Emory University and Florida A&M University for increasing diversity in study abroad, and the State University of New York System for international exchange partnerships.

The award is named in honor of the late philanthropist Andrew Heiskell, former publisher of Life magazine and chairman of the board of Time Inc., who was born in Naples, Italy, to American parents. He lived in Germany, Switzerland and France before he moved to the U.S. at the age of 19 and studied at the Harvard Graduate School of Business.

During a panel discussion at the conference, "Comprehensive Internationalization Strategies for Provosts, Deans and Faculty," Lesa Griffiths, director of UD's Center for International Studies (CFIS), said the University's success is built not only on a rich history, but commitment from the administration and a decentralized approach that allows academic units to help design programs that fit into their respective understanding of international education, thus giving them ownership.

Griffiths said CFIS programs have grown steadily and now involve 75 percent of UD's academic departments, which send about 100 faculty members with more than 1,200 students abroad every January.

UD student is skating double in 'Blades of Glory'

Former Olympian Tiffany Scott of Wilmington, a senior applied nutrition major and coach of the University of Delaware intercollegiate skating team, traveled to Los Angeles for the premier of "Blades of Glory," a figure skating comedy in which she appears as the stand in for actress Amy Poehler.

In the movie, rival figure skaters Chazz Michael Michaels (Will Ferrell) and Jimmy MacElroy (Jon Heder) get involved in an embarrassing, no-holds-barred fight at the World Championships. They are stripped of their gold medals and banned from the sport for life. Now, three-and-a-half years on, they have found a loophole that will allow them to compete: if they can put aside their differences, they can skate together – in pairs' figure skating.

"Blades of Glory" opened in theatres March 30, and Scott hosted a special fundraising screening on Saturday, March 31, at the Regal Cinemas at People's Plaza in Glasgow. All proceeds from the screening will benefit the UD intercollegiate skating team.

Scott, who skates with Patrick

Hancock for Poehler and Will Arnett, respectively, said her role in the movie, which makes her eligible to join the Screen Actors Guild, has opened a lot of new acting possibilities for her following her retirement from competitive figure skating in May 2006.

Scott said that she learned a lot about the "whole new world" of filmmaking during the seven weeks that she spent in Los Angeles as the film was shot. The directors and actors were friendly and helpful, she said.

Scott said it is possible to tell when she is the one in the picture by the way she skates and that she did most of the skating in the film with Poehler's face expertly superimposed on her using green screen techniques.

Scott, who is expecting to graduate next year, said that even if she pursues more acting, she plans to remain in Delaware and start having children after her husband, Brian Pryor, completes his medical studies at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine and further studies in surgery.

Funk leads fund raising efforts

► ELECTIONS, from 1

Of four council positions up for re-election, only the mayor's seat is contested.

Councilman Paul Pomeroy of District 1, Councilman Jerry Clifton of District 2 and Councilman David Athey of District 4 drew no challengers. These councilmen will be sworn in to new, two-year terms after next week's elections.

The City Secretary's office said, as of March 5, Newark had 15,100 registered voters eligible to participate in the election. In past mayoral races, voter turnout has hovered around the 17 percent mark. The last mayoral election between Funk and incumbent Hal Godwin drew a larger turnout — 23.3 percent of voters — to the polls.

Finance filings

According to finance reports filed with the Delaware Commissioner of Elections by both mayoral candidates, Funk has a huge lead in the money-raising aspect of the race.

On March 13, Funk reported that he had raised $14,255 for the campaign since Jan. 1. By mid-March, he had spent about $3,000 of that amount on campaign events.

As of March 12, Wampler's campaign had raised $1,200. According to a report filed on April 2, he increased that amount by $1,315 between March 13 and April 2, bringing his total earnings to $2,515. As of April 2, he had spent about $1,900 on campaign materials and advertising.

Polling places

Residents will vote for mayor on Tuesday, April 10, at the following polling places:

District 1 — Pilgrim Baptist Church at 1325 Barksdale Rd.

District 2 — Aetna Fire Station #8 on Ogletown Road.

District 3 — Aetna Fire Station #7 on Thorn Lane.

District 4 — St. Thomas Episcopal Church at 272 S. College Ave.

District 5 — First Presbyterian Church Memorial Hall at 292 W. Main St.

District 6 — First Church of the Nazarene at 357 Paper Mill Rd.

Polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Specific questions about the elections should be directed to the City Secretary's Office at 366-7070.

Aneda still going strong at age 97

By TOM TOMASHEK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The afternoon was sunny and unseasonably warm, Joe Aneda was enjoying his fifth or sixth round of the season on the Newark Country Club course, and the start of the Masters Championship was only three days away.

Without hesitation, the former NCC head professional who four months ago celebrated his 97th birthday agreed that it just doesn't get any better. In his mind, this is the week that golf comes alive.

"Spring is here. Golf is here. And the Masters will give [golf] a shot in the arm," the man called the "Pro" throughout Delaware said headed down the seventh hole at Newark. "That's the greatest tournament there is. After that it's the U.S. Open, and the PGA Championship. Everybody looks forward to the Masters. It's one step ahead of what every other tournament is trying to accomplish."

Aneda's ranking of the U.S. majors is possibly surprising to some. When the Masters Championship was launched in 1934, he was 35 years and the other two majors had bountiful histories — the U.S. Open having been started in 1895 and the PGA Championship in 1916.

Perhaps, the fact that Aneda had caddied for Horton Smith and Gene Sarazen in his youth accounts for his special appreciation for the Masters. Smith was the inaugural winner, Sarazen won the following year, and later a couple of former cronies from Delaware, Porky Oliver and Dave Douglas, competed at the sylvan Augusta National Golf Club course in Georgia. In fact, Oliver finished second to Ben Hogan in 1953 when the latter's 274 shattered the tournament scoring record by five shots.

"I never got down there to see the Masters, but I wish I had because it's the tournament of the year," Aneda said of the PGA Tour's first major stop. "All of the old greats are gone now: [Sam] Snead is gone, Hogan is gone. Sarazen is gone. Nelson is gone. You look at the starting sheet now and you don't recognize most of the names, but those young guys in there hit the ball so well."

Newark nips Penn, stays unbeaten

Senior Ryan Perkins pitched a gem in leading Newark to a 2-1 Flight A Conference victory over William Penn Tuesday afternoon on the Colonials home field.

Perkins gave up only four hits and struck out eight Colonials on the sunny but blustery afternoon.

The Yellowjackets improved to 4-0 on the season, 2-0 in conference, while Penn fell to 2-1.

In winning his second game of the 2007 season, Perkins outdueled William Penn ace Bret Oberholtzer, who went 11-0 last year.

"Our lineup, I feel, is one of the most dangerous lineups in the state. We have the pitching and the hitting to be successful this year," said Perkins.

After two scoreless innings, Newark finally pushed one run across in the top of the third. Right fielder Bartley singled to left center and advanced on a single by shortstop Jared Keith. Bartley scored on a line-drive smash of the bat of Billy Morton that was misplayed by Colonial rightfielder Brandon Rayne for an error.

William Penn scored its lone run of the game in the bottom of the sixth on consecutive singles by Rayne and Oberholtzer. Rayne proceeded to steal third, and came home with the tying run on a disputed balk call against Perkins while clean-up hitter Mel Robinson was at the plate.

"I just didn't let the balk effect me," said Perkins. "Things are going to happen during the course of the game, that you just gotta let go."

Newark came back in the top of the seventh thanks to the Morton's heroics at the plate.

Chadd Lane ripped a double down the left field line to start the rally. Then Keith walked and stole second to put two runners in scoring position.

Morton stepped up and punched a single to left center just over the infield for the go-ahead RBI. Morton's eventual game-winner came after fouling off a handful of tough pitches from Oberholtzer.

"It's definitely a big confidence booster when you get a hit off a pitcher like him (Oberholtzer)," said Morton. "With this team this year, I have a lot of confidence."

With Perkins on the mound and the defense and hitting we have, it inspires lots of confidence," said Morton.

"We're a young ball club this year," said William Penn coach Mel Gardner. "And it's always very difficult to win against a team like Newark when you make four errors a ball game like we did today."

State's women's teams honored in Dover

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The state's two major collegiate women's basketball teams were honored in separate ceremonies held in Dover recently by the Delaware General Assembly.

The University of Delaware's Fightin' Blue Hens and the Delaware State University Lady Hornets received the commendations for highly successful seasons, and for reaching the NCAA Women's Basketball Tournament this March.

On Tuesday, the House of Representatives cited the University of Delaware's team and head coach Tina Martin for their outstanding 26-6 season.

This year, the Blue Hens tied the school mark for wins, and surpassed the 20-win mark for the seventh time in the last eight years. The team also tied a school record for conference victories, going 16-2 in the Colonial Athletic Association.

Along the way, the Blue Hens beat two Top-20 opponents, defeating Kentucky 86-70 in November, and getting past James Madison University 77-67 in February.

This was Delaware's second NCAA appearance in school history. The other time was at the end of the 2000-2001 season.

State representative Richard C. Cathcart, R-Middletown, said he was delighted to honor the teams.

"I wish to congratulate the Delaware women's basketball team and the Delaware State Lady Hornets on their outstanding achievements," he said.

Senior guard Tyresa Smith helped lead the Blue Hens to the NCAA Tournament this season.

nearly 90 years -- a few as a caddie and many as a club professional -- speaks reverently about the game's greats from Sarazen through Nicklaus, but he becomes extremely animated when discussing the game's reigning icon, Tiger Woods. The veteran professional who in 1996 was inducted into the Philadelphia Section Hall of Fame leaves no doubt where he believes Woods stands on the all-time pecking order.

"I don't think we've seen anyone like him before and I doubt we'll ever see another [player] like him," said Aneada, who is the fifth oldest living PGA member. "He has set some records I don't think will ever be broken. Some golfers can learn to play, but he was born with a little more talent. He has the ability to make all kinds of shots and I've never seen any player who putts better under pressure."

Aneada was NCC's head professional from the early 1950s until 1976, when he retired and headed for Puerto Rico where he remained full-time for several years. He returned to Newark and became a part-time pro in the NCC shop and a full-time player on the rolling course sprawled along 272. He was never a regular on the region's competitive circuit, saying that you can't be both a good club pro and a competitive pro.

He said he's pleased that he still plays the game at age 97, but he conceded that he's made some adjustments to his game. He still hits the ball from the tees and fairways, but bad knees have forced him to use a designated putter because the walk to the green is too painful.

"At times when I'm sitting at home and watching a tournament on television, I think back and wonder, 'where all the years have gone?'" said Aneada, who is the fifth oldest living PGA member. "But when I look back, I have no regrets . . . I've enjoyed every minute of it... and I'm glad that the Lord lets me play yet."

Volunteers to clean up Christina River Watershed

Nearly 800 volunteers will join together on Saturday, April 14, from 8 p.m. to noon to remove roughly 20 tons of debris from the waterways as part of the Christina River Watershed Cleanup.

Volunteers are being sought for the annual, all-volunteer event, which started in 1991. Sponsors for this year's event include the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control and the Christina Conservancy, along with support from the Partnership for the Delaware Estuary and other state agencies.

Shirley Posey, coordinator, estimates that over the past 16 years, the cleanup committee has worked to organize about 11,000 residents who, altogether, have removed about 320 tons of garbage from the Christina River, White Clay Creek, Red Clay Creek and other waterways.

Frequently their finds include tires, appliances, household items and truckloads of recyclable materials, such as plastic.

Crews are often assembled from businesses, civic associations, community organizations, conservation groups, families, government agencies, religious institutions and student clubs. This year's volunteers will receive a free t-shirt.

To participate as a volunteer, call Posey at 838-1897 or visit www.ChristinaRiverCleanup.org. Volunteers are advised to wear brightly-colored clothing, long-sleeved shirts, pants, boots or water-resistant shoes, hats and heavy duty gloves.

Sunday Breakfast Mission in need of donations

The Sunday Breakfast Mission has increased the number of meals it provides to the community from 149,000 in 2005 to over 195,000 in 2006.

The ever-growing demand of food for the homeless and disadvantaged has resulted in a significant depletion of canned food, said the organization, which is now faced with an urgent and immediate need to restock the food pantry.

The mission is asking the community to help, particularly with donations of canned vegetables. Dried goods such as spaghetti, macaroni, mac and cheese and instant potatoes would be welcomed also.

Food donations can be dropped off at 110 N. Popular St. in Wilmington, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monetary donations can also be made by making checks payable to the Sunday Breakfast Mission and mailed to P.O. Box 342, Wilmington, DE 19899.

'Get the dropout rate as low as possible'

nationwide."

According to Woodruff, more than 2,100 Delaware students in grades 9-12 dropped out of school in the 2004-05 school year, and nearly half of all African-American students failed to graduate. "[Even] many who do graduate from high school find that the jobs they are seeking require more sophisticated skills and knowledge," Woodruff said.

Using Student Success Plans, also known as Individual Learning Plans, each student will meet with a teacher, mentor or advisor to set a path and logical steps to achieve their aspirations and career goals. "In 2007-08, every 8th and 9th grade student will have an SSP by the time he or she is ready to plan for the next school year," Woodruff said. "When they reach senior year, they will plan for the 'year out of high school' — no students will leave high school without knowing what they are going to do next year."

Woodruff said the goal is to have the same mentor assigned to connect with the student over his or her entire high school career. "We also hope to arrange SSPs so they can go with kids when they transfer to another Delaware school," Woodruff said. "The kids that are most mobile are also the most vulnerable."

The idea of building "some stability" into students' high school careers came directly from the students. During six day-long forums, students from every high school in the state told the DOE how to improve middle and high schools. "Expect more from us, believe we can, help us do it, and let us know why we're doing it," was the consensus. "Nag us to do it — and have at least one adult in the school who knows us [personally] and believes in us."

The Delaware Department of Education has also contracted for an interactive electronic tool called "Career Cruising" to be in every middle and high school. "This program makes you think in terms of, not only what you like, but what's real, what's possible," Woodruff said. "A student may want to work with animals, but not realize the amount of science and other education need to be a veterinarian."

Woodruff noted that students also don't realize the range of jobs available in any given field, so the state DOE will also load information from the Department of Labor in Delaware onto the site with Career Cruising. "Our purpose is not to narrow options at ages 12 or 13, but to broaden the range of possibilities and careers," Woodruff said. "It amazes me that people don't know the array of jobs available right here in Delaware."

According to Woodruff, Delaware businesses tell her they can't find employees for some jobs because no one knows those jobs exist or what education they would need. "We'd also like more businesses to offer job shadowing or unpaid internships for high schoolers in the summer," Woodruff said. "Having real-world experiences will help impress on kids the importance of high school."

The SSP program is currently being piloted in six middle schools in Delaware. The DOE is hosting a Student Success Summit at Dover Downs on April 27 to launch SSPs and "Reaching Higher for Student Success" for all Delaware middle and high schools. Attendees can preview Career Cruising and hear from schools piloting the program in 2006-07. "Each school will be a little different in how they implement it," Woodruff said. "It calls for a different way of going about things, a need to change the mindset."

In one school, every staff member is mentoring students. "Even the superintendent does it in a pilot school," Woodruff said. "We are also launching a public awareness campaign to create a shared commitment among students, educators, parents and the community [to insure] that all high school students graduate ready for college, work and citizenship."

According to Woodruff, the programs included in this initiative are funded through a combination of grants, state funds and federal dollars. In 2005, Delaware was one of 10 states to receive a two-year, $2 million grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation through the National Governor's Association Honor States program that also helped in establishing this initiative. "Further improvements will be necessary, but our goal is to work on getting the drop-out rate as low as possible in Delaware," Woodruff emphasized. "Zero would be perfect."

Home Grown celebrates seven years

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Eric and Sasha Aber opened their Home Grown Café on Main Street seven years ago with just 24 seats and quick, counter service.

The couple has since grown their restaurant into a successful Newark hotspot, known for its gourmet fare, full service bar and funky ambiance.

Earlier this week, the Abers celebrated Home Grown's seven years on Main Street and the addition of a new awning that covers the restaurant's patio-dining area. City of Newark officials and members of the New Castle County Chamber of Commerce joined the Abers in a ribbon-cutting event.

"It went by like that," said Eric, snapping his fingers to signify the passing of time since the restaurant opened. "And it gets better everyday."

The Abers said, not only has their restaurant changed, but Main Street as a whole has been transformed into a community of upscale restaurants, boutiques and specialty shops.

Eric said Home Grown helped to expand Main Street's draw from the typical college crowd to an older clientele. "We stepped up and said, 'we're going for a different crowd,'" he said.

The couple is active in the Downtown Newark Partnership, and Home Grown participates in many of the DNP-organized events, such as Taste of Newark and last week's Wine and Dine.

These events, said Sasha, expose the restaurant to new people. "It's been fantastic," she said. "The city has been great."

Part of Home Grown's attraction is its fun menu and atmosphere. "We make everything from scratch," said Sasha, adding that the menu revisits and dresses up old favorites, such as sloppy joe sandwiches. Specialty dishes are available for vegan and vegetarian diners. The atmosphere reflects New York style, and Sasha said the addition of the outdoor awning continues that effect.

So what's next for Home Grown? Eric said the restaurant is "ever-refining." We're always trying to smooth out the business," he said. Sasha said they're working to improve the wine menu to complement their wide martini selection.

And, for the Abers, the next seven years may hold a different goal. "We may even start a family," said Eric.

Sasha and Eric Aber, middle, owners of Home Grown Café on Main Street, celebrate the completion of the restaurant's new awning with the help of Mayor Vance A. Funk, Councilman Paul Pomeroy and members of the New Castle County Chamber of Commerce.

Tom Wampler for Mayor

Because of the issues Newark is facing, this year's mayoral election is especially important. With my 10 years experience on City Council, I will be a mayor who is committed to:

PLANNING NOT REACTING

I will work with Council to create a long-range development plan for Newark as a measure for evaluating individual proposals. Five years from now will we say that Home Depot was the best we could do for Newark? I am afraid not.

LEADING NOT BLAMING

As Mayor, I will take responsibility for working with Council and Staff to resolve the problems confronting Newark. As we face issues like the reservoir, it is important that we present a unified front rather than trying to assign blame.

10 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR VANCE A. FUNK, III, MAYOR

1. Our sense of community is stronger than ever.
2. Vance is a lawyer who was NOT involved in the reservoir litigation and was NOT the Mayor when all litigated issues were decided.
3. We need someone who is independent and can objectively review the reservoir law suit.
4. Vance has established relationships, which never existed before, i.e. the Mayor's Campaign Against Litter, which is a collation of 29 student groups.
5. The Newark Police Department has five new officers at the request of Vance and City Council to help combat crime.
6. The University and the City are working together. Our police and UD Police are now participating in joint operations to make our community safer.
7. Taste of Newark has revitalized our downtown business community. People come from all over to walk Main Street, visit our stores and eat in our restaurants.
8. Burglary Task Force. Vance formed it with the help of Captain Bill Nefosky. He personally called all the Police Chiefs and asked for their help. Burglaries are greatly reduced.
9. Vance is our ambassador of good will. Everyone responds to his requests for help. When Del Dot cancelled the Pomeroy Trail, Senator Tom Carper told WILMAPCO he wanted to do something special for Vance. Pomeroy Trail construction will start soon!
10. Newark will have trolleys in December and begin celebrating the 250th Anniversary in April, 2008. His 250th Anniversary Book Committee has over 50 assistants. The spirit of volunteerism has spread throughout the area.
