New Fire Engine to be Tested Tomorrow

Representative of Underwriters Here

Will Try Out the Machine for Several Hours at Paper Mill

The official test of the handsome new quadruple Stutz engine which arrived last Thursday, will begin at 11 a. m. tomorrow and continue for several hours. This will be conducted by a representative of the Underwriters' Association who will arrive here early that morning. It will take place near the Curtis paper mill.

This test will be watched with interest not only by the members of the Aetna Company but by visiting firemen from Phoenixville, Pa., Penns Grove, N. J., Baltimore and Havre de Grace, Maryland, Wilmington and Middletown, the fire companies of which towns contemplate the purchase of fire fighting apparatus. The Good Will Co. of New Castle inspected the engine on Sunday.

The engine was unloaded at the B. & O. station on Friday and under the direction of R. R. Martin, delivery engineer, was given a preliminary tryout for speed on Saturday. Later, Chief E. C. Wilson took the wheel and with admiring fire ladders clinging to every available space on the handsome red wagon, gave the townspeople, resident on the principal streets of Newark, an opportunity to view the recent purchase. Both fire engine and fire fighters came in for a full share of admiration and applause.

Should this engine prove satisfactory in the official test and be accepted by the Aetna Company, plans will probably be made immediately for proper housing ceremonies.

The manufacturers guarantee 750 gallons a minute for this engine and warm admirers claim that it can do better than a thousand.

FORMER NEWARK RESIDENT RECEIVES RECOGNITION

Commandant at Delaware College Made Brigadier General

Newark will be pleased to hear of the promotion of Colonel Walter H. Gordon. Last week he was named by President Harding as Brigadier General. Back in '98 General Gordon, then Lieutenant, was Commandant of Cadets at Delaware College. He was called at that time to command the Delaware Regiment at Middletown, after encamped at Camp Meade, Pennsylvania. After the Spanish-American War, he saw service in the Philippines and also served in the War, General Gordon saw much service with the American forces and was "cited" several times. The little snap soldier of '98 that inspired school and soldiery has won out. His energy, sense of honor, and patriotism did it. It will be the consolation of all who came under his sage and command.

FINE STORE BUILDING TO BE ERECTED ON MAIN STREET

Bids Opened This Morning; Preparations Now Underway

Bids were opened today for the erection of a handsome new store and dwelling to be erected for Louis Handloff on Main St., adjoining the Farmers Trust Co. bank. The plans, drawn by architect Roscoe Cook Tindall, of Wilmington, show a handsome two story structure covering a frontage of 66 feet and 100 feet deep. The entire store frontage is an ingenious arrangement of display windows on the lower floor. Adjoining this in the residence part is an attractive portico entrance. The second story will also be a residential portion.

Between this building and the Chapman property will be a driveway. In the rear and facing this driveway will be several residences including the former Major residence and other buildings which occupied the site of the new store property. Workmen are busily engaged in moving these buildings and preparing this site for immediate building operations.

Work is well under way for the bungalow to be erected on the Wollaston tract by Harry H. Cleaves, of Elkton, foreman at Kells.

Painters have completed the job of beautifying the store and dwelling recently purchased by General Richard Buckingham. The latter has put in a line of dry goods, shoes and general supplies. The window displays are attractive and the general improvement adds much to the appearance of that part of Main Street. The properties of John K. Johnston and Mrs. Rebecca Crossan have recently received a coat of paint.

The store property of Mancill Tweed recently gutted by fire originating in the Bon Ton Shop, is being remodeled and made into a dwelling.

Improvements are being made to the Washington House where new porch flooring is being laid.

Other building operations now contemplated or under way is doing much to relieve the tenacity of the industrial situation which at his time is rather bad.

The University authorities are improving the frontage to the President's dwelling. The shoulders of the pavement are being sodded and a top dressing placed on the sidewalks themselves.

Local Farm Bureau Receives Bean Shipment

The Newark Farm Bureau community has received its order of 65 bushels of soy beans from Sussex county.

A series of demonstrations will be held in the community showing the use of soy beans as a hay crop, a seed crop, a hogging off crop and a silage supplemental crop.

The Odessa Farm Bureau community at a meeting held last Wednesday night, at which Mr. P. E. Pleasanton presided, suggested the idea of the local farm bureau cooperatively buying a car load of binder twine.

Quotations received show that the farmers can realize a handsome saving by buying their twine on this plan. Middletown, Townsend and Mt. Pleasant Farm Bureau communities have agreed to the plan, and orders for practically a car load of twine have now been received. The committee will at an early date announce that they are ready to receive bids from dealers and wholesalers on the order.

MANY FROM EPISCOPAL SCHOOL VISIT WILMINGTON

Attend Exercises Marking Close of Missionary Contest

This marked the close of a contest waged by the Sunday Schools during Lent for the largest general missionary collection during Lent. It covered also the largest per capita amount and the largest increase per capita. It was won by St. Andrew's Church.

Bishop Philip Cook who conducted the morning service at St. Thomas', conveyed a part of the Newark delegation in his machine. Others were taken by W. D. Dean and John Slack. The delegation consisted of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Dean, Mr. and Mrs. John Slack and family, Mrs. J. W. Christadora, Mrs. Jackson Burnley, Walter Christadora, Marjorie, Reginald and Dorothea Rose, Molly Getty, Irene Shaw, Mildred Collins, Mary Armstrong, Dorothy Hayes, William Hayes, and Claude Collins.

University Summer School to Open on Monday, June 27th

Able Faculty Secured; Helpful Courses Planned

Demonstration School in New One-Room Building to be Significant Feature of the Session

Announcement of the Summer Session of the University of Delaware, awaited with eager interest by teachers and prospective teachers throughout the State, is made this week. The session will open on Monday, June 27th, and close on Friday, August 5.

A special effort has been put forth by the officers of administration to make the first University Summer School one of unusual merit. To this end a particularly strong faculty has been secured and a carefully planned course of study arranged by collaboration of President Walter Hullihen, Director W. A. Wilkinson, and Dean Mary E. Rich.

Demonstration School a Feature

A vital and helpful feature of this session will be the Demonstration School, conducted under ideal conditions. For several years this popular feature of the Summer Session has been conducted in the Newark Grammar School. During the past month there has been erected on the University campus a model one-room building, a gift of the Delaware School Auxiliary Association. This is now used to house an ungraded class of Grammar School students. During the summer session there will be conducted therein a model one-teacher school of six grades. This will be in charge of Miss Edith L. Van Syckle, now Supervisor of Rural Schools in Kent county. Here Summer School students will have an opportunity to observe the best educational practices with regard to the daily program of studies, the alternation of classes, methods of teaching, and other school activities feasible in a one-teacher rural school.

For the art courses, always a popular feature of the Summer Session, Miss Harriet Thorpe Baily, Art Instructor Children's University School, New York City, has been secured.

A Strong Faculty Chosen

Miss Edna B. Lick, Supervisor of Primary Grades, Waterloo, Iowa, a teacher of strong personality and excellent training, will conduct the class in Primary Methods.

New Century Club Holds Election of Officers

Plans for Rummage Sale in May

Many and Varied Activities Mark Close of Year's Work

The winding up of business affairs for the year together with the observance of Reciprocity Day with Smyrna and the annual children's party has made the past week a particularly active one for members of the New Century Club.

Next week's meeting will be the last of the club year. Officers will be installed and a social time enjoyed. The club will, however, hold a rummage sale on May 5th, 6th and 7th. Club members and friends of the organization who desire to contribute articles to the sale were asked to notify Mrs. E. B. Wright or Mrs. H. L. Bonham, who will see that the articles are collected.

The annual election of officers took place yesterday afternoon when the following were chosen for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson.

First Vice-President, Mrs. T. F. Manns.

Second Vice-President, Mrs. C. H. Short.

Recording Secretary, Mrs. Emma Wilson.

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. F. M. K. Foster.

Treasurer, Miss Elinor Harter.

The appointive offices will be filled at an early date.

Reports of the various committees read yesterday showed the activities of the club to be varied and helpful. The financial report, read by Miss Harter, showed the organization to be on a sound basis, a great source of gratification and encouragement. Mrs. Geo. E. Dutton gave the report of the secretary; Mrs. H. E. Tiffany that for social service; Mrs. C. O. Houghton for Education and Child Welfare; Mrs. C. A. McCue for Conservation; Mrs. C. A. Short for Hospitality; Mrs. Ernest Frazer for Library, and Mrs. L. K. Bowen for the Corporation.

The Children's Party

The party given last Saturday afternoon for the children of the members was a delightful affair. The little tots played games, sang and enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Miss Mary E. Rich, assisted by several young club members, planned the afternoon pleasures and led the children in their play activities. About 50 little people enjoyed the hospitality of the club.

The Visit to Smyrna

The far-famed hospitality of the Smyrna New Century Club drew an unusually large number of local club members to that delightful old town last Friday when Reciprocity Day was observed. About 50 members were guests of the neighboring club. The Newark organization presented a program which consisted of a vocal trio by Misses Rohr and Wilcox of Women's College, and Mrs. J. Pearce Cann, with Miss Nellie B. Wilson as accompanist; a paper on the Dutch Influence in New York; a vocal solo by Mrs. Cann; personal reminiscences of John Burroughs by Dean Robinson of Women's College; a paper on Virginia by Miss M. E. Rohr; a piano solo by Mrs. W. E. Holton; an Uncle Remus story by Miss Rohr, and a piano duet by Mrs. F. M. K. Foster and Mrs. George E. Dutton.

For The Homemaker's Eye

Salads and Desserts

from Despised Whey

Whey is the thin, watery part of milk which is left when the solids have been collected either by souring or in the process of cheese-making. In a bottle of milk which has been allowed to sour, the whey is the pale, yellowish substance in the lower part of the bottle.

Whey should not be considered a waste product. It has again and again been proved of value as a protein supplying food. In several of the old-world countries a cheese is made from the whey alone.

How to Secure Whey

Follow the usual method for making cottage cheese. Clabber the milk thoroughly. Set the pan of clabbered milk in a pan of hot water to heat slowly until the curd separates from the whey. When the curd is entirely separated, turn it into a strainer lined with a piece of cheese cloth wrung out of hot water and placed over a bowl to collect the whey as it drips through. Then turn the curd into a bowl, crush it with a fork and add salt and other seasoning as desired. Both cottage-cheese and whey are then ready for use.

Cottage-cheese and whey may also be made from sweet milk by the use of junket. For this four quarts of sweet skim-milk, one cupful of sour milk, one-eighth junket tablet and one tablespoonful of cold water are required. The sour milk is added to the sweet milk and the mixture heated until it is luke-warm. The junket tablet must be dissolved in cold water and added to the lukewarm milk. Then it is set aside at room temperature overnight. In the morning the clabbered milk is turned into a cloth to drain. The whey is collected in a bowl and the cheese remains behind in the cloth.

Whey Pie

Two-thirds cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 cup whey, strained; 1 lemon, grated rind and juice; 1 tablespoon melted fat, salt, 2 eggs.

Mix the sugar and cornstarch and add them to the boiling whey. Cook the mixture until it is thick. Add the beaten egg-yolks, melted fat, salt, lemon-juice and rind and cook for two minutes. Pour it into a crust which has been baked. Cover the top with meringue made by beating the whites of eggs until stiff, adding two tablespoons of sugar and a little flavoring, and beating until it is glossy. Spread the meringue on the pie and bake in a slow oven twenty-five minutes.

Whey pie has outstripped the old favorite lemon pie in popularity, particularly with the men of the family.

Whey Sponge

Two cups whey, 2 tablespoons gelatin, 1/3 cup cold water, 2/3 cup sugar, 1 egg-white, 1 cup grated raw carrot, grated rind and juice of 1/2 lemon.

Soak the gelatin in the cold water. Dissolve it by setting the cup in a pan of boiling water. Mix the gelatin thoroughly with the whey, add the sugar and set the mixture in a pan of ice-water. When it begins to thicken around the edges, beat it well with a Dover egg-beater, add the lemon-juice and grated rind and the grated carrot. Fold in the well-beaten white of egg and turn the mixture at once into a mold. Serve the sponge with soft custard or whipped cream.

Strawberries, rhubarb, pineapple, orange or peaches may be used instead of carrot.

Whey Sherbet

One quart of whey, juice of one lemon, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 1/4 cup cold water, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 cup crushed pineapple, peaches, berries, cherries or orange-juice.

Soak the gelatin in cold water and dissolve it over a pan of boiling water. Mix together all the ingredients except the crushed fruit. Pack and freeze. When the mixture begins to thicken add the fruit and continue freezing.

Whey Punch

Boil one and one-quarter cup of sugar and one cup of whey together for five minutes. Cool, add one quart of whey, the juice of two lemons and one cup shredded pineapple. Mix well. Serve with cracked ice or very cold.

A few fresh mint leaves, bruised by twisting slightly in a cloth, may be added instead of the pineapple. Cherry, raspberry, strawberry or peach juice may be used instead of pineapple.

Whey punch has a delicious flavor and is very refreshing. Cherries, mint leaves, or fancy cuts of lemon may be used as a garnish.

Whey Custard

One cup whey, 1 1/4 tablespoons sugar, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 egg-yolk.

Heat the whey, add the sugar and flour mixed well together and pour the mixture slowly over the beaten egg-yolk. Cook the custard in a double boiler, stirring it constantly until it coats a spoon.

Whey Corn-Starch Pudding

Four tablespoons cornstarch, 1/4 cup cold whey, salt, 1 pint scalded whey, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix the corn-starch with the cold whey and add this to the hot whey, stirring the mixture rapidly. Cook it stirring it constantly until it thickens. Add the sugar and continue cooking in the double boiler for 30 minutes.

Why Mint Salad

One and one-half tablespoon gelatin, 2 tablespoons lemon-juice or vinegar, 2 cups whey, 1/2 cup finely chopped fresh mint, 1/2 cup sugar, salt.

Soak the gelatin in one-quarter cupful of cold water and dissolve by setting the cup in a pan of hot water. Strain the whey through a cheese-cloth and add the gelatin, sugar, mint and acid. Pour the mixture into molds and chill. The mixture may be tinted green with any vegetable coloring before it is poured into molds if desired. Serve with mayonnaise dressing. This salad is particularly refreshing in a summer luncheon menu.

Whey Salad Dressing

One cup whey, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons melted fat, 1/4 teaspoon turmeric, 3 tablespoons flour, 1/4 cup sugar, paprika.

Heat the whey and vinegar together. Mix all the dry ingredients and add them to the whey. Add the melted fat and cook the mixture until it is smooth and thick.

NEW YORK MARKETS NOT ATTRACTIVE TO SHIPPERS

Wholesale prices for fruits and vegetables have gone down so low in the New York market in the last few weeks that many farmers who shipped produce there have received nothing in return but a bill for the balance of the freight. Not only have prices declined to the point where the farmer is getting little or nothing for what he produced after transportation charges are paid, but even at the low wholesale prices the demand is very light.

A grower in Sanford, Florida, shipped a carload of 400 crates of lettuce which sold there for $339.48. The freight alone amounted to $339.75, the icing charges $77.50, war tax, $12.52, cartage $27.93 and the commission to the receiver there $33.95. When the total expenses of $491.65 were paid, the farmer got a bill for $152.17 due the commission men.

It is not only the growers in distant states that are suffering big losses from the drop in prices for farm products and the high freight rates. Dozens of New York farmers have shipped carloads of cabbage, onions, potatoes, apples, carrots and celery to the market in the last few days only to receive net returns so small as to pay little more than the cost of the containers. A carload of 29,400 pounds of carrots from Western New York sold for 8 1/2 cents lb. wholesale and out of that the farmer actually got a little over 3 cents a pound, or $99.13 on the whole carload. A shipment of 190 crates of celery from Wayne county, N. Y., brought this week the farmer only about 50c a crate, containing 6 to 8 dozen stalks. The transportation and commission charges came to $197.90 and the net returns of the farmer only $103.35.

Potatoes, which brought $8 to $8.50 a barrel this time last year are now selling at $2.25 per barrel for 180 pounds. A carload received there this week from Genesee county brought the farmer after he had paid the freight and other charges, only about $1.50 per barrel.

—From the report of New York Division of Foods and Markets.

According to the Economic World, the business and financial problems in this country are manageable, but all of them have not yet been solved.

The American labor situation is improving. The important problem is that moderate men among employers should co-operate with moderate men in the labor ranks to hold in check extremists in both camps.

Extravagant consumption, both in the United States and in Europe, meant that an abnormally large proportion of our industry was devoted in 1919 and early 1920 to the production of goods for immediate consumption, including luxuries, rather than to production of housing and long time equipment. Physical capital in the United States deteriorated decidedly during 1919 and early 1920. We were living on capital. This ominous aspect of the matter is rapidly being corrected.

Of that reduced part of our labor and resources which was devoted to the production of capital, a substantial part was misdirected during 1919 and early 1920. Government shipbuilding continued on a great scale. We over-expanded the automobile industry. We neglected railroad equipment, public utilities and housing. Unwise expansion has ceased. New operations of the right sort are being planned.

Business psychology in 1919 and early 1920 manifested an irrational exaltation of an extreme sort. From this we swung to a state of shell shock in December of 1920. Today we have recovered from shell shock. Business men are facing facts squarely, with caution but with courage.

Progress in credit liquidation has taken place since October of 1920, but monetary ease has not yet been achieved. The reserve ratio of the Federal Reserve System in recent weeks has been rising slowly at the rate of a fraction of 1 per cent a week. A much more thorough going paying off of loans will have to precede real ease in the money market. With any considerable acceleration in the movement of goods, however, this might come with surprising suddenness.

Price readjustment has gone far, so far as the general average of wholesale prices is concerned, but a harmonious price system has not yet been achieved. Further declines in the general average may be looked for, and sharp declines in those lines that have fallen least, including wages, many special manufactures, building materials, steel and retail prices. Industrial readjustment involves a considerable diversion of labor and resources from luxury lines to the building of houses and the replacement of capital equipment. This is so far only half accomplished. Labor has been released from non-essential lines but has not yet been absorbed in essential lines. Further price readjustment must precede the revival of building activity, railroad construction and similar long time investment.

Arnold Bennett says that meditation is not a practical characteristic of this age, but that meditation is none the less an essential to real living. Its value lies in keeping the mind directed upon a chosen theme and not allowing it to wander at random. We allow a magnificent machine to rust within our craniums, writes the gifted author, and are prevented from undertaking some serious study by a mental apparatus which is out of condition, puffy, weedy, through sheer neglect. The remedy which Mr. Bennett has demonstrated is the cultivation of will-power and getting our mental apparatus into condition. "To will is easy; it needs but the momentary bright contagion of a stronger spirit than our own. To fulfill, morning after morning or evening after evening, through months and years—this is the very Dickens."

A farmer has communicated to the Editor a sure method to prevent crows visiting corn fields, which he has practised for some years, and has ever been attended with the desired effect. As those mischievous birds have been very troublesome for years past to many farmers, the following method is thought worthy the public attention:

Take three or four old shoes that are worn out, and fill the toes of them with sulphur, or the roll of brimstone broken small, make a fire with chips, or any small dry wood in or near the middle of your corn field on a flat rock, or on the bare mould (a rock being preferable) after planting your corn field; then lay the toes of the shoes on the fire and let them continue until the leather be burnt through and the brimstone has taken fire; then after sticking down poles of ten or twelve feet in length at each corner of your field, and inclining them toward the centre, make a string fast to the heelquarters of each shoe, and tie it fast to the top ends of the poles, letting the strings extend half way down, and when swinging, not to interfere with the poles; and no crows will alight on your field that season.—From the Old Farmers' Almanack, 1797.

"The questions to be asked concerning any work of art are simply these: Is that which is embodied really elemental? And is the concrete form embodying it really beautiful? Any other question is an impertinence." —Hamerton.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING

Farm Loan Valid

The United States Supreme Court has declared the Federal Farm Loan Act valid. The purpose of the act is to assist agricultural development by providing easily accessible credits to farmers through the Federal land banks.

Sales Increase

Sales in the Woolworth Five and Ten Cent Stores for February of this year amounted to $9,138,262. This is nearly 12 per cent increase over the same month of last year. The sales of the United Cigar Stores amounted to $5,730,000, an increase of 7 per cent over the same month last year.

High School and Trade

The new Secretary of Labor in President Harding's Cabinet, Mr. James John Davis, is a millionaire who started out as a working boy. This lends special interest to a recent interview in which he discussed some of the problems of his new office. In regard to education he said:

"If we can give every child in America at least a high-school education and a trade our troubles will be over. For with the trade he'll have something to do, and with the education he can reason out the problems of his life, as well as be ready for the chance to rise above his trade if he is mentally capable of something higher."

America Safe

Lord Bryce's new book, "Modern Democracies," gives a hopeful outlook for the future of America, and as this keen student of government, now nearing his 83rd birthday, speaks from sixty years of thoughtful observation, the following has added interest:

"Fifty years ago administration was worse and politics more corrupt than they are today, but reformers were fewer and found fewer listeners. Today they are heard gladly, because the public conscience and the public sense of what America means for the world is more sensitive. Every fresh effort stimulates these feelings and keeps the need for improvement before the minds of those who lead. When I compare the volume of discussion of political, social and economic subjects which issues from the American press today, descriptions of present evils, analyses of their sources, suggestions for their extinction, with the scanty consideration these matters formerly received, and with the spirit of lugubrious despondency that chilled the reformers of those days, I am astonished at the change, and welcome it as auguring well for future progress."

Dogs Muzzled

All dogs in Brandywine, Christina, Mill Creek and White Clay Creek hundreds will have to be effectively muzzled, confined or kept in leashes for the next ninety days, or until July 17. Otherwise they will be captured and sent to the pound.

The quarantine order also prohibits the transportation of dogs into or out of the quarantine area.

This decision was reached at a special meeting of the State Board of Health in Dover, as a result of the epidemic of hydrophobia among animals existing in these sections of New Castle county.

Owners of dogs in the quarantine sections will be notified of the quarantine order by newspaper advertisements. After owners of dogs have been given a reasonable length of time to comply with the order, the State Board of Health will take measures to enforce the order, and any dogs found in the quarantine areas, whose owners have not complied with the quarantine order, will be dealt with via the pound.

According to reports reaching the State Board of Health there are several hundred dogs in the adjoining counties of Pennsylvania and Maryland, that either have hydrophobia, or have been bitten by other animals so infected. The young son of Charles Ward Hanby, of near Grubb's Corner, who is now undergoing the Pasteur treatment as the result of being bitten by a pet dog which examination showed was suffering from rabies, lives only about a mile and a half from the Pennsylvania State line.

According to C. H. Wells of the State Board, who attended the Dover meeting yesterday, several persons in the quarantine districts are now undergoing the Pasteur treatment after having been bitten by affected dogs.

Printing Costs At Kells

A recent visitor at Kells made the observation that our "building was palatial for a country job office." I crossed my fingers and thanked him for the compliment. Glancing at him, I wondered what he meant to say. There was a long ——— in his expression. So I have been thinking. In the language of University Circles, he said a mouthful. At first it did not seem to be much but the blank line insert was the thought. He had hidden it by what he thought would flatter. But it didn't. He did not sense us nor the place. His expression contains two errors, one reflection and one very pertinent question.

First, the building is not "palatial." The word smacks of aristocracy and royalty in the gilded sense. And Kells—the building nor the idea are not thus conceived. There is nothing of palatial royalty here.

Second, this is not a "country job office." It is a Plant. The country job office as generally and correctly understood is a smell of oil, ink, litter and dirt—unfit and unfitted for any expression of one's work. The engine and boiler room of the ordinary factory far surpass it. Neither light nor sunshine are welcome. But at Kells—a plant where Master Craftsmen study and work at the art of printing, it is different. Here is a Shop open on all four sides, light, air, sunshine, a place where boys and girls laugh and work, play and express the best that's in them. Kells, a palatial building, and job office are but faintly associated with one another. Yes, we are in the country and proud of it. The idea of printing being done only in the city is out of date. In some quarters by the unknowing it prevails, but not among those used to the best in either artistic or commercial printing. All the way back to the Monastery of Kells itself in the Seventh Century, the best in printing has been done in the country.

The visitor meant to inquire our costs of printing but a social training reared upon a false basis, prevented the business inquiry. Such a building with such spaces, with expressions of interests in the workmen's welfare, meant to him increased costs. This is pertinent and is deserving of a reply. There are printing places and in cities nearby of ten times our machinery and capacity with less floor space than here. Down town on some close side street, half a hundred men work at press and machine by fly specked electric bulb, all day long. They eat their lunch leaning up against the roller rack. The idea of color of walls that is restful, a flower in the window ledge that cheers, a lawn to enjoy are all unknown to them. Then surely printing could be done cheaply there. But wait. Electric lights cost money, rents are high and enter into costs. Insurance costs, dull headaches from lack of air add to the time card.

At Kells, sunlight, air and cheer of the open are all free. No lights are necessary. Insurance rates on Kells are reduced to minimum. Taxes are out-in-the-country taxes. Our overhead is such that city printers dream of. Rent costs are insignificant. Our building upkeep and all that goes into overhead do not compare with the smallest "job office" of the city.

But how about equipment and labor-saving machinery, you say? All right. The lay out and arrangement at Kells has been copied and blue-prints made by one of the largest Type Foundries in the country. It is considered a model. Our machinery is the most approved in the craft.

So at Kells, you will find our overhead charges very low. Our men? They are the kind that the City is constantly trying to get. They are efficient and love their work.

Our building and lawn, our little touches of color and art are not only lovely things to have but are labor saving, cost cutting devices.

Our ideals are all well founded and practical. Printing here costs less rather than more than in the city shop. That is—for the Kind of Printing we do and the service we render.

So here endeth the lesson on "palatial," "country job office," and printing costs.

THE OLD MAN AT KELLS.

SPRING at the Quality Shop

Just as soon as the Weather Man gives the word, SPRING is here. I am all ready.

The line carried this year is larger and of better qualities. The War conditions are becoming adjusted. No where can this be seen so plainly as at the Tailor Shop. The prices are surprising and assortment and qualities are quickly coming back to normal.

Not only is this true of clothing but of all men's wear. Shoes, here, this season are offered at prices that show the Back-to-Pre-War times.

I have made a special effort to meet the demands of the most exacting.

Newark deserves a Furnishing Shop for men that compares with the best. That desert has been provided.

There may be more display in the presentation of goods in some of the High Class city shops—but the same quality at less money can be secured right here at home.

Suitings to measure can be given here. The tape line is the same, the styles and cuts are the same as the city—the price is, we admit, different. It's cheaper. Our rents and expense of operation are less.

It actually pays to buy at home.

Try it. Pay us a visit and let us show you.

Roads---and Why?

During the past two weeks there have been rumors that the General Assembly might reconsider its action on Highways when it reconvenes May 9th. It is hoped that this is true.

No one need argue longer for Good Roads. General du Pont, by his magnificent gift, has silenced all opposition, honest or prejudiced.

In our judgment the Assembly would act wisely in providing for increased appropriation at this time because,

First, the State is in better financial condition than at any time in its history. There is a prevailing impression in many quarters, even among our financiers, that the State is suffering from the same business depression as found in the industrial world. But the facts will not bear out this opinion being spread broadcast. There is more money in the State Treasury today than at any time in its history. The income for this year can be reckoned with surprising certainty, except that resulting from corporations. Judging from the receipts from this source so far, the income from this will equal our normal average. So the funds are available to make possible the completion of the program outlined and approved by the Highway Commission.

Second—It is business economy. The present staff of engineers now employed must be retained to do the work already provided for. Double the supervision of construction could be done at very little extra cost. With the work once completed, the force of the Department could be very much reduced. This organization has been built up at cost to the State and should not in any way be broken up with the program incomplete.

Third—To provide employment. Just after the close of the war, public work and construction was urged to take care of the labor transfer, incident to the closing down of war industries. This was an appeal made in the spirit of patriotism and business economy. Last year, road construction was increased in many rural sections because it tended to draw labor from the farm. This year, no such objection prevails. The State by authorizing construction could relieve a labor situation that is becoming serious. Thousands are out of work in Wilmington, so it is reported—and much of this labor is easily available.

So with finance available, labor looking for work and economy, it is a good year to build roads. It's good business and good statesmanship—aside from the advantage of the roads.

Citizenship and Politics

"It is not rightly a matter of choice whether a man shall trouble himself about affairs of government in his community, or confine himself to his business, his profession, or his pleasures, and leave others to govern; it is a matter of peremptory obligation, which cannot be avoided by any intelligent man who has any understanding of the conditions under which he lives. The essential feature of the present condition is that the burden and duty of government rests upon all men, and no man can retire to his business or his pleasures and ignore his right to share in government without shirking a duty. The experiment of popular government cannot be successful unless the citizens of the country generally take part in the government. There is no man free from the responsibility; that responsibility is exactly proportioned to each man's capacity—to his education, to his experience in life, to his disinterestedness, to his capacity for leadership—in brief, to his equipment for effective action in the great struggle that is continually going on to determine the preponderance of good and bad forces in government, and upon the issue of which depends results so momentous to himself, his family, his children, his country, and mankind. The selfish men who have special interests to subserve are going to take part; the bitter and malevolent and prejudiced men whose hearts are filled with hatred are going to take part; the corrupt men who want to make something out of government are going to take part; the demagogues who wish to attain place and power through pandering to the prejudices of their fellows are going to take part. The forces of selfishness, of self-control, of justice, of public spirit, public honesty, love of country, are set over against them; and these forces need every possible contribution of personality and power among men, or they will go down in the irrepressible conflict."—Elihu Root.

Man and the Hour

"The great voice of America does not come from the seats of learning. It comes in a murmur from the hills and woods, and farms and factories and the mills, rolling and gaining volume until it comes to us from the homes of common men. Do these murmurs echo in the corridors of the universities? I have not heard them. The universities would make men forget their common origin, forget their universal sympathies and join a class—and no class can ever serve America."—Woodrow Wilson, while at Princeton.

AMERICA ACCORDING TO HARDING

Significant Paragraphs from President Harding's Inaugural Address

The recorded progress of our republic materially and spiritually, in itself proves the wisdom of the inherited policy of non-involvement in Old World affairs. Confident of our ability to work out our own destiny, and jealously guarding our right to do so, we seek no part in directing the destinies of the Old World.

We do not mean to be entangled. We will accept no responsibility except as our own conscience and judgment in each instance may determine.

We sense the call of the human heart for fellowship, fraternity and co-operation. We crave friendship and harbor no hate. But America, our America, the America built on the foundation laid by the inspired fathers, can be a party to no permanent military alliance. It can enter into no political commitments or assume any economic obligations which will subject our decisions to any other than our own authority.

We wish to promote understanding. We want to do our part in making offensive warfare so hateful that Governments and peoples who resort to it must prove the righteousness of their cause or stand as outlaws before the bar of civilization.

We are ready to associate ourselves with the nations of the world, great and small, for conference, for counsel, to seek the expressed views of world opinion, to recommend a way to approximate disarmament and relieve the crushing burdens of military and naval establishments.

America is ready to encourage, eager to initiate, anxious to participate in any seemly program likely to lessen the probability of war and promote that brotherhood of mankind which must be God's highest conception of human relationship.

While the world's embittered travail did not leave us devastated lands nor desolated cities, left no gaping wounds, no breasts filled with hate, it did involve us in the delirium of expenditure, in expanded currency and credits, in unbalanced industry, in unspeakable waste and disturbed relationships.

Amid it all we have riveted the gaze of all civilization to the selfishness and the righteousness of representative democracy where our freedom never has made offensive warfare, never has sought territorial aggrandizement through force, never has turned to the arbitrament of arms until reason has been exhausted.

We hold no national prejudices, we entertain no spirit of revenge, we do not hate, we do not covet, we dream of no conquest nor boast of armed prowess.

Discouraging indebtedness confronts us, like all the war torn nations, and these obligations must be provided for. No civilization can survive repudiation. We can reduce abnormal expenditures and we will. We can strike at war taxation, and we must.

We contemplate the immediate task of putting our public household in order. We need a rigid and yet sane economy, combined with fiscal justice, and it must be attended by individual prudence and thrift, which are so essential to this trying hour and reassuring for the future.

The business world reflects the disturbance of war's reaction. Herein flows the life blood of material existence. The economic mechanism is intricate and its parts interdependent and has suffered the shocks and jars incident to abnormal demands, credit inflations and price upheavals.

Perhaps we never shall know the old levels of wage again, because war invariably readjusts compensations, and the necessities of life will show their inseparable relationship, but we must strive for normalcy to reach stability.

I speak for administrative efficiency, for lightened tax burdens, for sound commercial practices, for adequate credit facilities, for sympathetic concern for all agricultural problems, for the omission of unnecessary interference of Government with business, for an end to Government's experiment in business and for more efficient business in Government administration.

Our fundamental law recognizes no class, no group, no section; there must be none in legislation or administration.

The supreme inspiration is the common weal.

No one, justly, may deny the equality of opportunity which made us what we are.

It has been proved again and again that we cannot, while throwing our markets open to the world, maintain American standards of living and opportunity and hold our industrial eminence in such unequal competition. There is a luring fallacy in the theory of banished barriers of trade but preserved American standards require our higher production costs to be reflected in our tariffs on imports. Today, as never before, when peoples are seeking trade restoration and expansion, we must adjust our tariffs to the new order.

We are mindful today as never before of the friction of modern industrialism, and we must learn its causes and reduce its evil consequences, by sober tested methods. Where genius has made for great possibilities, justice and happiness must be reflected in a greater common welfare.

GENERAL WOOD ELECTED HEAD OF U. OF P.

General Leonard Wood was on Monday elected head of the University of Pennsylvania by the board of trustees. General Wood was nominated at the meeting of the board last month, his name being the only one placed in nomination.

The trustees made no statement regarding the title under which General Wood would be known beyond the resolution which designated him "head of the university under such appropriate title as may hereafter be agreed on." The board authorized such amendment to the statutes as may be necessary to carry the resolution into effect.

It is the intention of the trustees to arrange for a division of the administrative and educational policies of the university between General Wood and Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, present acting provost. As soon as General Wood returns from the Philippine Islands, where he was sent on a special mission for the United States government, the method by which this experiment will be put into effect will be worked out. It is said to be the first of its kind to be tried by an American university.

The most potent and beneficial forces are stillest. The strength of a sentence is not in its adjectives, but in its verbs and nouns, and the strength of men and of nations is in their calm, sane, meditative moments. In a time of noise and hurry and materialism like ours, the gospel of the still small voice is always seasonable.

—John Burroughs.

When the final good-bye has been spoken,
When the last farewell has been said,
Then the tired heart that is broken
Can say to the tired head,
"Rest, for thy journey has ended,
Life's duties have fallen away.
The sunshine and shadows have bleaded,
'Tis the dawn of a glorious day"
—Clare Fitzhugh Rhines, in the New York Herald.

Buff Orpington May Outshine Lady Eglantine

This question may be answered in Delaware this year. After Lady Eglantine made the Delaware record of 314 eggs in a year a Buff Orpington beat this record by laying more than 330 eggs. Another Buff Orpington at Georgetown, is now promising to go far ahead of Lady Eglantine. This chicken is owned by Joseph Thomas, of Garstang, England, and between November 1, 1920, and March 28, 1921, she has laid 141 eggs, a record unequalled by any individual layer in this country. It seems that this bird is possessed of the intention to out-do all other layers with authenticated records of England or America.

So far the laying of this bird surpasses anything ever encountered in these competitions, and the pen performance of her team-mates is fairly well up for those birds that are active. At the end of the twenty-sixth week, just half way to the goal, this bird is expected to have laid 167 eggs. Second bird, No. 3 in pen 90, is coming along at a very good rate, having laid 120 eggs in 154 days.

ORDERS TAKEN for baby chicks and hatching eggs. Barred Plymouth Rocks, White Leghorns and White Plymouth Rocks, also Pecan and Indian Runner ducklings and hatching eggs.

N. A. C. EFFECTS PERMANENT ORGANIZATION

Defeats University Freshmen in Initial Game of Season

The Newark Athletic Club met last Monday night and effected permanent organization by electing Frank Mote manager, and Charles M. Eissner captain. This redoubtable organization will be known as the N. A. C's. They have some excellent material for a first class baseball team and will be heard from this summer in athletic circles. In a game played on Saturday against a Freshman team from the University of Delaware, they won out by a 4-1 score in a snappy, well-played game.

The outstanding features of the game were the clever work of N. A. C. battery, Armstrong and Whiteman who also showed up well in stick-work. Nunn starred for the Freshman nine. The line-up and score:

Stanton Loses Opening Game to Marshallton Score 3 to 2

H. Truxton Boyce, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, gave a short talk and threw out the first ball.

The score indicates that both teams played excellent ball, but due to errors occurring at inopportune times Stanton failed to hold the visitors. Kulp, a new entry in the Suburban League, pitched excellent ball, allowing Marshallton but three hits.

For Stanton, Bunting, the former Harlan catcher, excelled, while Scott and Lang furnished the feature play for Marshallton. The score:

BASEBALL IN THE SEVENTIES

Recollections of Squire Lovett Recalled

Dan Finkbone, overseas man, rehab student, superintendent of grounds at Kells, good American always, hails from Reading but is interested in Kells, Newark, and other good things hereabouts. So this week, Dan brings in an interesting story from the Reading Eagle. The story is that of the "Diamond Deeds of the Famous Actives," Reading's Pioneer Baseball Team, which back in the '70's was one of the country's best. Col. William A. Jamieson of the U. S. District Court, Denver, Colorado, is the writer of this interesting story.

Among those who in those days played on the old team, of local Newark interest is the photograph of Leon Lovett, as pitcher of the Actives, now known to us as L. W. Lovett, our town 'Squire'—and was the speed arm of his day. The team was, according to the story, at its height in '74 and '75, playing a winning game from the big fellows, and winning a National recognition. The word "Active" blazed across the uniform of Leon Lovett has not faded for the 'Squire is still an "Active" in baseball, as a magistrate, and as a citizen.

Local Ball Team Defeats St. George's

The American Vulcanized Fibre Co. baseball team defeated St. George's on the latter's grounds last Saturday by the score of 1-0.

The pitching of Robinson for the Newark boys won the game, as it was a pitcher's battle from start to finish. Robinson scored on Brown's timely hit in the second inning. Pitcher Carr for St. George's had 11 strike outs, while Robinson had 18 to his credit. Both pitchers allowed only two hits each. No one walked.

This Saturday, April 23, St. George's will be here to try to even things up with the local boys. The game will be called at 3 o'clock, on the High School diamond. The team invites everybody out to root for the home team, and see Robinson pitch his last game before leaving for the Blue Ridge League, where he is to pitch for Hanover this season.

Most of those who had responded to the call were the younger graduates and more familiar with college affairs, with the result that the enthusiasm made the meeting a success.

A temporary organization was effected with Hugh M. Morris, '98, Judge of the Federal Court, as chairman. He, with his committee, will plan out an organization and propose by-laws. A meeting will be called in another week to make the organization permanent.

At the meeting last week the affairs at Delaware were discussed with interest. A scholarship by the chapter a committee on placing Delaware men, on athletics, on Review, and scholarship and college rating were among the propositions mentioned activities of the Chapter.

The idea back of it is more than mere social organization, though that in itself is worthy of attention. It was estimated that there are 200 Alumni of Delaware in the city. A monthly luncheon was proposed which if put into execution, would place the institution under the direct attention of the alumni at all times.

Vagabond Printer Visits Kells

Writes of His Impression of the Shop, and His Philosophy of Work

While vagabonding through Delaware I dropped into Newark. Being in Newark, I dropped into Kells. I had heard of Kells; had seen on some of its output its distinctive triangular mark of identification. To me, it stood for a printing plant. That's what I expected to find,—greeted at the threshold by the smell of ink and the peculiar odor of old, close paper flavored with benzine, making that combination of neither aroma nor stench, which has become intimately associated in the human nostril with all print shops. I expected to see the regulation "office" separated from the "shop" by a dwarfed wooden picket fence; a desk piled high with letters, bills and proofs; in the background, the cases, the stones, the printers, the rhythmically clattering linotypes and a couple of Gordon jobbers; from some back room I expected the salutation of a Cottrell or Miehle.

I experienced a sensation of surprise and began to feel that everything was not orthodox when the village bus driver stopped in front of what I thought was either a church, the public library or one of the buildings of Delaware State College and said "Here it is," in response to my previous request to "put me off at Kells." But before I had time to card index my sensations, I was across the lawn (who ever heard of a print shop having a lawn!) and into the door. Then it was useless to attempt any card indexing of my sensations. All my previous experiences with print shops out of which I had drawn material for picturing Kells, all of my standpoint ideas as to what constituted a print shop, collapsed. It was not a wreck; it was a cataclysm; there was nothing to salvage. There weren't even any landmarks left by which I could guide myself back to the more or less familiar world of print shops. I was standing in what might have been the ante-room of an art exhibit, looking through a broad doorway into an unusually large, well-lighted, open raftered room that might have been the home of some artist's private library.

But all of this is material whose description and narration belong to those who know and can describe interior finishings and furniture. Besides, unusual and attractive though they were, I felt they were only the symbol, the outward sign of Kells. I knew they were not a print shop; I began to feel they must represent an institution, an idea and an ideal and that this institution was christened Kells, where, so I had somewhere read, "the art of printing is studied and practiced." And it was that which I wanted to see.

I went into the "business office." A safe, a file cabinet and a typewriter probably justified its being called a business office where folks did routine work and people came in and paid bills and got estimates and all that sort of commercial thing. Otherwise it was in harmony with the two other rooms.

Then somebody came up and asked if I wanted to see the "shop." I did. He (it was the owner and proprietor himself) acted as guide. It was a genuine print shop, minus all the disorder and dirt and dinginess that are considered the bosom companions of print shops. It was a genuine print shop as to machinery and equipment, plus high ceilings, many broad windows on four sides, lots of fresh air and cleanliness. It was a genuine print shop,—plus personality, plus esprit de corps. There, that is what I have been trying to say! You could see it and feel it the minute you entered the shop.

I knew then I had come upon the secret of the place. Here was the tangible thing of which Ruskin and Morris and Browning wrote; the performance of work, not from a sordid commercial viewpoint but from the viewpoint of turning out a product that is a credit to the workman; that finds its justification not in its cost tag but in its honesty and perfection and artistry; that reflects not merely technique, but also temperament; something that is not only handicraft, but also soulcraft into which the workers have put something of themselves. Raphael, when asked how he obtained his wonderful tones and matchless expressions, replied, "I mix my paints with my tears and I paint with my soul rather than with a brush." If Raphael had been a printer, he would have worked in a shop like Kells.

The masterpieces of fiction have been written, the masterpieces of art have been painted, the most exquisite harmony has been composed by those who thought of the work rather than the reward; who strove to transfer and translate into material form the truth and beauty that was within them. They looked upon their work as an opportunity rather than a necessity, as something to be glorified rather than something to be endured.

"The man most man, with tenderest human hands Works best for men, as God in Nazareth."

Christ worked—to what end? To establish a political kingdom, to make himself rich, to gain power? None of these! He worked to do good, to make mankind happy! He worked for men! So, too, have the greatest men of all ages. And by so doing they have been blest with that which has been denied those who have worked for gain. Not a school child but can tell of some great man or woman who did great whole-hearted, burning-souled work, who are remembered not for what they got from their work, but for its character and quality.

How much did Columbus get for discovering America? The price Shakespeare received for running the scale of human emotions and dropping the plummet into every depth of the human soul would be rejected by a newspaper sporting editor of to-day. Michael Angelo didn't receive the compensation for painting the Sistine Chapel that a member of the painter's union would receive today for painting a house; yet when men look upon that great work, they fall upon their knees and worship God.

What did Harvey get for discovering that blood circulates; or Jenner for discovering the virtues of vaccination; or Lister for giving humanity the theory and practice of antiseptics, or Gorgas and his band of medical students who lived in a hell of yellow fever to prove it was not contagious but was carried by a certain family of mosquitoes?

What did Eads get for building the first great jetties into the very maw of the ocean? What did Goethals get for constructing the Panama canal—in comparison with the achievement and the world benefit?

How many rich men of the past ages can you now recall—men who did what they did because of the money that was in it? Time has washed their names from the memory of man as a rude scrawl from a schoolboy's slate. But the men who toiled with human hands and human sympathies for men; the men who worked at their task for the love of it have their memories carved on tablets of stone and indelibly written in human hearts. Those who starved in garrets while they wrote of human love, who fought the wolf from the door while they wrote of human wrongs, who mixed their paints with tears while they limned the beauties of God and nature—these men's names are today all that is left out of yesterday's multitude.

Who was the wealthiest contemporary of "Bobbie" Burns or Thomas Hood? What did he do? You cannot tell; yet the world is familiar with the "Song of a Shirt" and "The Cotter's Saturday Night," written not for money nor fame but because the men who wrote loved their work for its sake, because they had a message in their hearts they wanted to give to the world. The very reason their work lives behind them and glorifies their memory is because they gloried their work and did not debase it for lust of gold or the bauble of reputation.

On the other hand, the men who work and sweat and cringe and fawn and lie and sell their souls in order to acquire wealth and fame are cheated. They are cheated out of the life they are living here and the life to come. Living, they are cheated out of the respect and the love of their fellowmen; dead, they are denied the grateful memory of their posterity.

The spirit of service and fellowship is at Kells. Those who are on the payroll do not work for the proprietor; they are his associates, who work with him. They both work for one thing—the reputation of Kells as a place which does good and honest work that represents an ideal rather than a cost plus system. Work is not a drudgery here. Those associated with the proprietor and the proprietor, himself, conquer their work, dominate it, breathe into it the breath of creative genius and make it distinctive.

Only the spirit of the place could do this. In one corner of the proprietor's office, I saw a card, printed in two or three colors, captioned, "A Tribute to the Old Man of Kells." It was a reprint of an editorial from a paper which praised some service the proprietor had rendered the public. At the bottom of the card was the line "Done by the Kids without the Old Man's Authority." The "Old Man" is the proprietor. "The Kids" are those in the "shop." Both terms originated in the "shop." No such comradeship is possible where commercialism prevails, where the plant is divided into capital and labor, where things are on a cash basis—the employer, thinking of profits and the employee, thinking of the scale; where the "help" tiptoe into the front office to appear before the "boss" and the "boss" struts through the shop to impress his "help"; where when the whistle blows all intercourse between the two must cease because of the decrees of Social Position and Money.

No Snobocracy at Kells! "The Kids" gave the "Old Man" an electric grill and chafing dish; then one day, in his absence, borrowed the chafing dish because they needed something in a hurry in which to boil some glue! Imagine that happening with one of our "Captains of Industry"! But that is the misfortune of the "Captains of Industry." Think what they are missing! Think what they are becoming,—callous, hard-hearted, taskmasters in search of dividends and surpluses and subsidiary corporations. To them work is measured by the accumulation of money rather than by the good it does, the men it gives honest and self-respecting employment, the homes it makes possible and contented, the opportunity it affords creative genius and the joy the created product gives to the lover of a thing well and beautifully done.

And when in the winter of their years, they find the fruits of life turning to ashes on their lips, they will probably realize, if they candidly review their motives, they made their mistake in working to acquire gold rather than to accomplish good for their fellow-man and lift the world a little higher. They turned the fires of their genius and zeal upon selfish gain rather than upon the problems of human service and so they were self-consumed. Of them it was once written "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul."

They are not gaining the whole world at Kells. But they are making a small portion of it in their immediate vicinity well worth living in and they are keeping their souls free from the curse of Midas and their work free from the dollar sign. When you see the finished product you say not "How much is that worth?" but "What a fine piece of work." It speaks to you not of profits but of men and women.

And so I came away from Kells with a feeling that I had spent a day in an institution instead of a print shop and I had witnessed master craftsmen who lived their work and loved it and wrought honestly, patiently and beautifully not that the unthinking rabble in the market place might admire and purchase, but that "the gods who see everything" might approve and the work might live and speak its own message of sincerity and beauty.
