UP FRONT

Del. vs. Del. State

By MARTY VALANIA

ell, there you go, you all have what you've been screaming about for years - Delaware vs. Delaware State in a football game.

Despite the University of Delaware's reluctance to the game between the state's two long-time football powers, the two schools will meet Friday at 1:30 p.m. Delaware Stadium in the opening round of the NCAA I-AA playoffs. The game will be televised on ESPN.

The NCAA Valania accomplished what the media, some fans and Delaware State couldn't. All it took was a little push from ESPN.

Not that Delaware succumbed easily. Heck, when it became clear that the game had real potential for actu-ally happening, the Blue Hens went out and lost their last two games of the regular season, obviously trying to get out the much anticipated contest. They even made it look good - playing league champion Richmond to five overtimes before losing and then having their worst offensive day of the season in a loss to real rival Villanova.

From everything I've read and listened to, I'm pretty positive there are many people out there - most probably working in the media or posting on Internet message boards - that are convinced the losses were ordered by the university's board of trustees.

The NCAA selection committee saw the Hens' ruse, however, and granted them entrance into this year's tour-

Police called to break-in Police were called to a home in the 300 block of Wilson Road on Wednesday, Nov. 14, at 1:24 p.m., when a resident found the back door damaged, ajar and with a broken pane of glass. Officers checked the home, finding no one inside. Few items in the house were disturbed, but $30 cash was stolen from a bedroom dresser. Investigation will continue.

Employee assaulted in parking lot

An employee at a Main Street restaurant reported being assaulted by four males in a parking lot in the unit block of E. Main Street on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 9:06 p.m. The 21-year-old victim said he was pulled out of his car by one of the suspects, who was described as a black male, 17 to 18 years old. All four suspects then punched and kicked the victim, demanding money. They tried to get his car keys, said the victim, but he prevented them. The victim's glasses were broken during the incident, and he had cuts and scrapes on his face and a bloody nose, said police.

PNC Bank branch in Newark Shopping Center robbed

The PNC bank in the Newark Shopping Center at 230 E. Main Street was robbed on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 4:48 p.m., said Newark Police. Police said the suspect, a white male between the ages of 18 and 22 with a fair complexion and a "chin-strap" beard, entered the branch and passed a note to the teller stating he had a weapon and wanted cash. The clerk passed over an undisclosed amount of money, and the suspect fled, said police.

The man, who is wanted for first degree robbery, was wearing a red, zippered sweatshirt with the letters "RI" in a 3-D design on the front, a black knit hat with small visor and ear flaps and a white t-shirt that came below the sweatshirt. He has a tattoo on the left side

CAR ACCIDENT

A free report is now available to auto accident victims that reveals the hidden truth about injuries caused by "low impact" auto accidents, or "fender benders". The pain from auto accident injuries can last weeks, months, even years! Auto accident victims may feel frustrated because they don't know how they should feel, how long it should take to get better and what they should do. This free report reveals information most insurance companies hope car accident victims never learn. To get your copy of this free report, call the toll-free, 24 hour hotline at 1-888-610-7124.

New Castle County residents are encouraged to use it by leaving loose yard waste materials there. Items should not be left in plastic bags or containers. The yard waste will be ground into landscape mulch, which will be made available to residents, free of charge.

This is the second yard waste drop-off site opened in New Castle County this year. In July, DNREC opened a site at the southwest corner of U.S. Rt. 13 and Rt. 72 near Bear. A third drop-off site is scheduled to open in January in northern New Castle County.

Yard wastes make up nearly one fourth of the residential waste that goes into landfills and includes all plant materials resulting from lawn maintenance and landscaping activities, such as grass clippings, leaves, prunings, brush, shrubs, garden materials, Christmas trees and tree limbs.

Ferguson scholars announced

Students in 21 high schools in northern New Castle County were among 473 winners statewide receiving 569 Delaware Department of Education (DOE) and the Delaware Higher Education Commission (DHEC) scholarships of $1,000 each who have attained high scores in reading, mathematics and writing on the March 2007 Delaware Student Testing Program (DSTP) in grades eight and 10. (See Box this page.)

The scholarship program, named in memory of Michael C. Ferguson, former deputy superintendent and acting superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction and former state budget director, was included in the Educational Accountability Act of 1998 and is funded by Delaware's General Assembly. The program authorizes a maximum of 600 scholarships annually ($1,000 each) to be awarded to eighth and tenth graders who attained the highest scores on the DSTP in the content areas of reading, writing and mathematics.

"To date, 3,689 public school students have been awarded $4,445,000 in scholarships since the program first began eight years ago," said Valerie A. Woodruff, Secretary of Education. "The Michael Ferguson scholarships have been a wonderful opportunity for so many students to be provided with much needed financial support for an academic job well done."

Alan Philips, DHEC data analyst, said "studies show that students from less affluent families often perceive college to be financially beyond their reach. And students who believe they will not be able to afford college may not be doing all they should to prepare themselves academically. Early information about financial aid-and especially early commitments to financial aid dollars-is thought to make an important difference in encouraging many students to attend college who might otherwise have thought it impossible."

This year, seven eighth grade students earned three scholar-ships; 33 students earned two scholarships; and 205 earned one scholarship. In the 10th grade, five students earned three scholarships; 39 earned two scholarships; and 184 earned one scholarship.

"To date, 37 students have qualified for six Ferguson scholarships, earning $6,000 each toward their college expenses before they even consider which college they will attend. Wherever they choose to attend, whether in Delaware or out-of-state, these students have a terrific financial head start on a college education," says Maureen Laffey, director of DHEC.

The law states that up to 300 of the Ferguson scholarships will be awarded to students who participate in the free and reduced lunch (FRL) program. Of the maximum 300 scholarships awarded in both the FRL program and the 300 not in FRL, up to 150 scholarships will be awarded to eighth graders and 150 awarded to 10th graders. Furthermore, the law specifies that the number of awards in each content area shall be as close to fifty as possible, and that any unassigned awards shall be allocated in the priority of reading, mathematics and writing.

Students can use their scholarship once they begin their postsecondary education; however, they must enroll at an institution within five calendar years of high school graduation or the scholarship will be forfeited. The award can only be used at regionally or nationally accredited postsecondary institutions or at Delaware other state-approved private business and trade schools in the United States. The award cannot exceed direct educational costs.

DHEC will contact each recipient with instructions for setting up an online account where they can keep track of their scholarship funds, update contact information as needed and identify what college they plan to attend. Recipients can use the same account to access other DHECadministered financial aid programs online.

The Annual Turkey Bowl

By JON BUZBY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

Thanksgiving Day is my absolute favorite holiday. The only way it would be better is if you could walk around to neighborhood houses after dinner and collect candy. And then, when you got home from your walk, there would be presents waiting to be unwrapped before you had your turkey sandwich. Now there's the perfect holiday.

But back to Thanksgiving. Even as a kid it was my favorite. The two-hour drive to and from my cousins' house and from my cousins' house was one trip I never minded taking. It always seemed to be cold and drizzling, but we still managed to have a great time. Probably because we only did it once a year.

The smells in the house, the food on the table and the football on the television are just three of the reasons why

I love Thanksgiving. And then there's the game. Not the NFL games on TV, THE GAME.

Buzby

All over Newark (and America) this Thursday, men will be giving thanks – thanking God or whatever higher being they worship that they survived their annual Turkey Bowl.

For what many wives call foolish reasons, Thanksgiving Day morning is when men choose to battle on the local field in a friendly game of two-hand-touch football. This isn't a league-ending game or a tussle played for fun. The ramifications go far beyond any championship trophy – this contest is for bragging rights for the next 364 days.

Whether it's with neighbors, high school buddies, or just a bunch of uncles and cousins, the game is the highlight of the weekend for these gridiron stars. In fact if the answer wasn't obvious, my guess is more people would remember the score of the game than what was served for dinner when next year rolls around.

What most likely started as a means for women to get the men out of the house and out of the way so they could cook, has turned into a manly rite of participation. Every single one of us (and our joints) wants to be the first to say, "I'm not playing this year!" But not one of us has the courage to do so.

The weather is irrelevant. The same men who would whine about having to take out the trash in a cold drizzle are out twisting ankles, bruising knees and tearing up clothes in the exact same conditions.

The overly-friendly part usually ends as soon as the first touchdown is scored and the newest celebration dance ensues. And the two-hand-touch part quickly becomes rough-touch and in many cases tackle.

For many of these men, the Turkey Bowl is their annual physical activity. For all of them, it is without a doubt the most bruises per hour they will get the rest of the year.

The game usually ends not by a time limit or a final score, but rather when there aren't enough players left standing to continue.

So moms and daughters and aunts and grandmothers, as you watch the men in your family limp to the dinner table please don't laugh at them (at least not out loud). Instead be proud of them. After all, they are imbibing in a rough-and-tough family tradition that was passed onto them and that they in turn will pass onto others. A ritual that if they survive will go down in the family annals as one of the most memorable events of the year – until next year's Turkey Bowl. Happy Thanksgiving!

Hundreds attend dedication of new H.S. Gymnasium

Long before the opening hour for the dedication of the Newark School Auditorium and Gymnasium last Friday evening, the auditorium and corridors were crowded with hundreds of parents and friends of the Newark School. Prior to the opening of the exercises, Mr. H. E. Barker directed the Newark School orchestra in a number of selections.

The dedication exercises were very impressive and all who participated in making this building a reality are to be congratulated. This addition to the Newark School makes it the largest school plant in the consolidated districts of the State. Some of the most prominent men of the town and the State took part in the exercises.

Path clear for new Main St. parking lot

After protracted negotiations, the Newark Parking Authority last week reached agreement with Dr. Clyde M. Cox to lease the back of his property at 96 Main St., paving the way for construction of a 130-space parking lot in downtown Newark.

According to City Manager Peter Marshall, Dr. Cox signed a 10-year lease with the authority, the terms of which provide for the authority and Cox to evenly divide profits after

What students can do to save some money

To: the Editor From: Jim Kelly, COF of ING Direct

ith the new school year well under way, many students are off at college with credit cards and access to bank accounts for the first time. ING Direct USA, the nation's largest direct bank, asked its summer interns what they wished their parents had told them as they headed off to college.

Here's their advice:

Start saving at a young age. Have your parents open up a savings account or CD for you before you get to college. This way you will always have money to fall back on when you need it, and you'll learn the importance of saving.

Use a credit card only when absolutely necessary. because a credit line is available, doesn't mean you need to max it out. It can take many years and thousands of dollars to pay off credit-card debt. Only use a credit card in emergency situations.

Maintain a budget. College is costly. You must buy books, clothes, supplies. Create a budget for each semester so you can prepare for future expenses.
This will save you the headache of figuring how much money you need for everything, and leave you with extra conditions. leave you with extra spending

If you live off campus, don't go out to eat all the time. Buy enough groceries for a week or two so you can make lunch and dinner on your own. It can be a fun way to save money, and you can always split the grocery costs with your roommates.

Car pool to class with your friends or roommates. If your schedule with your friends or roommates is the same, try car pooling once in a while. It saves you all money on gas in the long run since you can take turns driving each week. Also, check to see if your campus has a bus service that you can use to get

Buy your textbooks from dis-count Web sites. Textbooks can be very expensive, especially if you buy them from your campus bookstore. Consider purchasing your books from discount Web sites such as Amazon.com or Half.com. It saves you the hassle of waiting in line for books on the first day of class, and saves you a lot of money.

Split your bills with your roommates if you live in an apartment. Make a financial plan you can all agree on to pay your bills every month. Split the bills equally among all of you. This way you're all paying an equal amount, and the plan will keep everyone on a schedule.

If you have a job at school, take money out of each pay-check and put it in a savings account. You won't be tempted to spend all of your money, and you will always have some extra spending money for fun or when you really need it.

Make sure you can access our bank account at school. When moving from your hometown, check to see what banks are in the area of your school. By opening a local bank account, you can easily cash and deposit checks and might be able to avoid surcharge fees at ATMs.

Keep track of your money. Keep a log of deposits and purchases, especially from checks and debit cards. Even though your bank may track this electronically, it's good practice for you to personally manage your funds. Plus, transactions might not go through as soon as you make them. Having a hard copy is always a good idea.

Del-awareness for military youth

By JORDAN ASHBY

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

ver the past few months, there has been heightened attention being paid to our country's position over the war in Iraq. Many Americans are focused on this topic because they have an honest concern for all of our military troops and personnel currently serving our country, and not only in Iraq. Those serving our country are not the only heroes; the other heroes are here at home.

They are the children and spouses of our military families.

The children of military families are in our schools, workplace and communities. They are not wearing a sign to identify themselves; they do not look any different and they enjoy the same things that you and I do. However, they are also now carrying this invisible burden. So the question becomes, how do we support the youth of these families? The University of Delaware Cooperative Extension is participating in a nation-wide program called Operation Military Kids (OMK). This initiative is designed to work throughout the state of Delaware with partners to provide sustainable support services to youth in military families before, during, and after family members are deployed. There are several components of the Delaware

OMK program:

To help recognize the youth for all of their sacrifices and to help them stay connected with their deployed parent(s), Military Hero Packs are distributed. Youth receive a backpack that contains materials to help them communicate to

The passing of a peacemaker

Friends, family remember active Newark resident, Barbara Kerner

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

ne story could never fully describe Barbara Kerner, a longtime and active Newark resident who died Oct. 28, at the age of 85. It takes many words, insights from many people to provide a clear picture of her life.

She was a Quaker, a peace activist, a guardian of rights.

During the Vietnam War, she counseled young men in the Newark area about becoming conscientious objectors. She allowed her daughter to wear pants in middle school, starting a trend that eventually ended the school dress code.

She mentored members of a generation some 30 years younger. "She was somebody who we looked up to," said Cathy Macuga who met Kerner in the 1970s.

HOTO SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Barbara Kerner, right, working in the Hope Dining Room with friend, Fran Beer.

"She had this sense of idealism and an awareness of what people could do when they put their mind to it and if they were generous with their time." Time was something Kerner seemed never to have enough of. Friends said they would visit or call, sometimes late at night, and she would always be awake, willing to discuss their problems and guide them to an answer.

The time she had, she committed fully and passionately to her causes, of which there were many. She was a founding member of the Newark Natural Foods Co-op, an organization she continued to be active in until she died. She participated in the Newark Friends Meeting and the Pacem in Terris peace education organization. She served meals at Hope Dining Room and played cello in the Newark Symphony Orchestra.

"She was passionate about whatever she undertook, and she was an ultimate defender of independent thought and action," said friend Fran Beer.

Friends and family marvel at her packrat habits, how she kept a house full of documents and newspaper clippings to pass on to people she felt should read them. They often came with a note signed, "From Kanga," the motherly character in A.A. Milne's their deployed parent (paper, pens, envelopes, stamps, and cameras), books to explain the deployment process, various 4-H goodies and prepaid phone cards. We have already distributed 300 Hero Packs in Delaware and are currently preparing for another shipment of 105 backpacks.

The special sacrifices and challenges of military youth need to be understood by other youth. In order to build support among peers, Speak Out for Military Kids (SOMK) is a community service opportunity to train both military and non-military youth to advocate for youth affected by deployment and to help build understanding between young people.

Youth want to be able to touch, talk to, or turn to their deployed parent in times of need, but also to discuss their everyday happenings. The Mobile Technology Labs are developed to assist in this endeavor. These labs contain laptops, printers, scanners, laminators, DVD burners, digital cameras and video cameras, as well as a variety of software packages to help kids stay connected to deployed parents.

Lastly, OMK provides training for adults and families who are working with or supporting military families. Because emotions and issues that are experienced as a result of deployment vary from child to child, friends and family who want to learn the best ways to support kids can attend the Ready, Set, Go! Training. The goal of this training is to increase your understanding of the unique issues facing military youth and assist them in creating support networks.

The Delaware OMK program is supported by a growing network of the partnerships and efforts involving Delaware 4-H, Army and Air National Guard, Dover Air Force Base, all Reserve units throughout the state, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Boys and Girls Clubs, the YMCA, Family Workplace Connection, the Delaware Department of Education, Child Inc., numerous community civic groups and community volunteers rank B. Murray of Newark has received the prestigious Crystal Apple Award from Michigan State University's College of Education for his work as a professor of education and psychology, most notably in contri-butions to the national teacher education reform movement.

Murray was among 25 outstanding educators to receive the honor during the Crystal Apple Awards Dinner on Oct. 26, at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing, Michigan.

He was nominated by Jim and Denise Anderton in recognition of being a powerful motivator for more than 38 years at the University of Delaware, where he was dean of the College of Education and director of the Center for Educational Leadership and Policy. He continues there as the H. Rodney Sharp Professor of Education and Psychology. Murray also became founding president of the Teacher Education Accreditation Council, or TEAC, an innovative outcomes-based approach to accountability launched in 1997. He has overseen a number of other reform projects.

"Winnie the Pooh."

She had a playful side, too. At Halloween, she would let down her long hair and stick toy spiders in its strands, much to the delight of the young trick-or-treaters who came to her home. Her daughter, Winnie Kerner, who now lives in Oregon, described a time the family drove to the beach to watch a solar eclipse and how they once saved wildflowers from being destroyed. "She was so active. She gave us a perspective on how there are important things in the world beyond our own home, our own family," she said.

But family was important to Kemer. Her Newark friends knew well the accomplishments of her grandchildren, as the proud grandmother often shared their stories.

Friends and family have described her as tireless, insightful, compassionate, independent, humble. "She was a real compass, and a watchdog," said friend Robin Lindsay. "She was one heck of a watchdog.

In 2006, Pacem in Terris chose another word for her: peacemaker. The organization awarded her a "Peacemaker Among Us" citation for "her work to make our community and world a better Kerner left this world on Oct. 28, after a brief battle with cancer. Friends, surprised by her death, said she never alluded to the seriousness of her illness. "She was such an independent person that it was hard for anybody to do for her because she was so into doing for everybody else," said Joann Woodall.

Inspired by Kerner's example, the people she touched in life continue to work towards improving her community, sometimes with a little help from beyond. "She left a lot of notes for us to keep us on the straight and narrow," said Walt Wagner, finance manager of the Newark Co-op, smiling.

Barbara Kerner was predeceased by her husband, Edward, a physics professor at the University of Delaware, and a son, Jeffrey. She is survived by a son, Benjamin; a daughter, Winifred Kerner; sisters, Frona Vicksell and Edith Allison; a brother, Norman Brooks; two grandchildren, four step-grand-children and two step-greatgrandchildren.

A memorial service in her honor will be held at the Newark Co-op on Sunday, Dec. 2, at 1 p.m. The family will hold a service in Newark next spring.

Budget includes tax rate increase of $.01

▶ BUDGET, from 1

affairs program, which includes the addition of a full-time professional to handle the city's Website, Channel 22, municipal newsletter and media relations. Council, faced with a 16 percent increase in tax rates in 2006, delayed creating a similar position then, seeing it as non-essential.

Technology improvements proposed for 2008 include the addition of computer workstations at city hall, software upgrades and a new digital document storage system at the cost of about $98,000.

The budget has funds for the city's 250th anniversary celebration, which kicks off in December and continues through 2008, new

"Welcome to Newark" signs, improved handicapped access to city hall and money to implement a curbside recycling program, if the city council approves one.

the city council approves one.

The 2008 budget totals
$33,261,960, an increase of 4.8 percent from 2007. Revenues are expected to increase in the city as well, due to a rise in utility margins, an increase in property tax revenues and higher fines and fees for city services that were recently adopted by council.

Luft is recommending a property tax rate increase of $.01. This will support the new programs in the budget and help reduce the financial pressure on the city's utility business, he said.

If approved, the increase

If approved, the increase would cost a typical single-family home with an average assessed value of $67,100 an extra $6.71 per year. "I still think Newark is the best buy. A one-cent raise is quite nominal. Our taxes are still relatively low compared to other towns across the state," he said.

Despite a tumultuous year in the world economy, Luft said the financial situation in the city has improved.

The city has been relatively insulated from the housing market downturn, and property and real estate transfer tax revenues remain strong, he said. In addition, he said, tight cost management and a reduction in the capital budget has resulted in "a strong 2007."

The city's ongoing litigation with the initial reservoir contractor continues to be a "negative cloud on the horizon," but, said Luft, a contingency plan established earlier this year is still in place to deal with any negative outcomes

Newark residents will have a chance to comment on the budget at next week's council meeting. The meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 26.

The meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 26.
Copies of the budget can be viewed in the Finance Department and Manager's Office at the Municipal Building on Elkton Road. A copy will be available at the Newark Free Library.

Let the holiday shopping begin

Stores expect big turnout on Black Friday

Black Friday, an event that has become something of a holiday in and of itself, takes place this Friday, Nov. 23, the day after Thanksgiving.

For the second year now, Christiana Mall will open its doors to thousands of shoppers at 3 a.m. on Black Friday to host a Rockin' Shoppin' Eve. The mall describes it as "a unique" holiday party, including early morning shopping hours, discounted merchandise, plenty of coffee and live entertainment." More than 75 stores will be open at 3 a.m., and many of them will feature discounts. In addition, there will be musical entertainment by Chorduroy, giveaways and prize drawings, free samples of Starbucks Blended drinks and free food samples at Ruby Tuesday's from midnight until 6 a.m. The mall expects to exceed last year's turnout of 35,000 shoppers. "Rockin' Shoppin' Eve is a great way to kick off the holiday shopping season for shoppers and retailers alike," said Christina Steinbrenner, marking manager for the mall.

Merchants in downtown Newark, though not part of the early morning craze, will be open on Friday. The Downtown Newark Partnership is encouraging shoppers to "relax, sleep in, enjoy a cup of coffee or a leisurely breakfast, and when you are ready to shop, we'll be there for you."

Downtown merchants have special events planned throughout the holiday season, including Wonderful Winter Wednesdays to be held each Wednesday from now until Christmas.

Parking will be free in all municipal city lots and at Main Street meters on Wednesdays, starting at 3 p.m. Downtown businesses will host special events, such as discounts, refreshments and gift-wrapping.

Wonderful Wednesdays start Nov. 28, and continue Dec. 5, 12 and 19.

PIC spends more than 21,000 hours per year helping families

► GRANT, from 1

$493,250 per year for the next four years

 Funding will support programs to educate parents, including parents of children ages 3 to 5, about their children's development and how to become more engaged in their children's educational growth.

 The PIRC project will disseminate, through schools and community agencies, information to low-income families about school accountability and parental options as per the Federal No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Act.

· Moreover, each year of the grant, the project will enroll up to 30 parents to participate in the Delaware Parent Leadership Institute (DPLI) to add to the already thirty parents recruited by the Rodel Foundation's DPLI. Parent graduates will subsequently become leaders and drive positive outcomes in Delaware schools.

"We must provide access to accurate, timely information and support parents as they take advantage of school choice and supplementary educational service opportunities," said Marvin N. "Skip" Schoenhals, chairman Vision 2015 steering committee. "The PIRC funding would enable Delaware to make significant progress on the implementation of the many important vision 2015 recommendations.

In just one year:
• 21,760 PIC staff hours were spent helping families.

• PIC staff gave one-on-one assistance to 1,109 parents.

learning opportunities to 1,679 traditionally underserved families.

• PIC staff mailed 1,748 info packets and 8,000 newsletters

• 44,450 persons visited PIC's Website.

Ellen Coulston, PIC board president, strongly believes that the PIRC project will greatly enhance PIC's ability to reach even more families and strengthen student performance. "As parents, everyone on the board of the Parent Information Center understands the critical role family involvement plays in helping children reach their full education potential," Coulston

PIC is a statewide nonprofit organization and Delaware's only federally mandated Parent Training and Information Center, reaching nearly 5,000 parents professionals annually. PIC offers individual technical assistance, training seminars, large conferences, a newsletter, and an informational Website at www.picofdel.org.

DPLI is an intense training program that graduates 30 accomplished parent leaders each year and who subsequently become successful change agents within their schools and communities. The goals and successes of DPLI link directly to Vision 2015, an unprecedented public/private partnership that has brought together business, education, and community leaders to develop a worldclass public education system in Delaware by 2015.

The Delaware Department of Education is responsible for the statewide Parents as Teachers (PAT) program. PAT provides curriculum-based education children. Parents of a child up to 36 months old receive monthly home visits from a trained parent educator providing information and strategies to promote and facilitate their child's development. This grant will allow PAT to hire three additional staff who will serve children ages 3 to 5.

who provide for the elderly poor in Delaware, have received a $2,500 gift from the Food Lion Charitable Foundation. The gift will be used to assist the dietary department with muchneeded purchases for the health and nutrition of elderly residents at Jeanne Jugan Residence, a continuing care retirement community in Newark.

"It is through the generosity of the Food Lion Charitable Foundation, our benefactor, that we are able to improve the quality of life of our residents. Our gratitude comes with our promise of prayer," said Sister Chantal Peyton, Mother Superior. With three daily meals to pro-vide for 80 residents, 365 days a year, the Food Lion Charitable Foundation's gift will enable the caring staff to impact the health and well-being of the aged residents of low income. The Little Sisters of the Poor care for the needy elderly in the spirit of humble service that they have received from their Foundress, Blessed Jeanne Jugan. They welcome the elderly as they would Jesus Christ himself and serve them with love and respect until death. Established in 2001, the Food vides financial support for programs and organizations dedicated to improving the communities in which Food Lion operates.

New owner for Chasemont apartments mpire Realty Investments has paid $5.9 million for the Chasemont apartments in the Newark area.

The 30-year-old property has about 100 residential units with a rentable building area of approximately 70,000 square feet. It is located at 54 Cheswold Boulevard in Newark.

"Chasemont presented the kind of opportunity we look for in purchasing properties that may be performing below the market but are located in thriving, growing areas. Our strategy is to come into those locations and create long-term value," said Michael Pearlstein, president of Empire Realty Investments.

Pearlstein said the company would grow value by marketing the fact that the apartments were completely renovated in 2005.

Empire purchased Chasemont from Fairfield Residential. Empire has acquired and managed retail, office, multi-family and residential properties throughout the metropolitan Philadelphia area and in 15 states across the country.

Runner hopes to raise $1,000 for African daycare

earlier this year that he says changed his outlook on life and put new purpose into every step he takes.

He traveled to South Africa with 24 of his fellow students for a month-long trip. There, he spent a week volunteering at Tumelong Haven, a daycare center run by a church in the community. Some of the children, who range in age from infant to 5 years old, were orphaned or had lost a parent to AIDS; some of them are infected with HIV.

The center and the children it serves struggle with poverty, said Slacum. The facility lacked basic amenities, such as sanitary items and working toys. Some of the children had no shoes and showed obvious signs of teeth decay.

Even so, said Slacum, the children "were so happy it poured out of them." "It was so rejuvenating to be able to see life through their eyes and be able to grasp onto how little you really need to be happy in life," he said.

Slacum said he and the other volunteers played with the children, singing songs and teaching them words of English. The kids enjoyed their visits. "I swear, at any given point, I had two or three kids hanging on me. I felt like a human jungle gym," he said, laughing.

The staff impressed Slacum, too. A strong Christian connection led them to care for the children, even when the center could not afford to pay them, sometimes for months at a time. They, in my mind, really epitomize what sacrifice of one's self is," he said.

For Slacum, that week at Tumelong Haven was life changing. "As cliché as it may sound, I always tell people the boy who got on that plane Jan. 3, 2007, was not the man who got off it Jan. 31," he said.

The Slacum who returned to Newark felt led to raise awareness about the center and funds to support it. A friend from the trip, Barney Fortunato, also moved by the experience in South Africa, decided to run a marathon. Slacum, an experienced runner, thought he would push himself by running two marathons in a span of three weeks, something he recognizes as extreme.

On Oct. 28, he ran the Marine Corps Marathon in Washington, D.C. This past weekend, he was to run the Philadelphia Marathon with his friend, Fortunato.

He has been sharing his story with family, friends, members of his fraternity, Phi Sigma Pi, and the Newark community, hoping to raise money to send to Tumelong Haven before Christmas. He will also take donations of clothes, toys and other items the daycare can use. "I always tell people, nothing is too much, nothing is too little, and I'm willing to take almost anything," he said. He intends to match every dol-lar he raises with $.50, and he hopes to collect $1,000 this year. He also hopes his story raises awareness in this community about others' needs. "Through all of this, I'm hoping individual students, parents, people in the com-munity could really look inside themselves and find the ability to look outside themselves to benefit those that are less fortunate than us," he said.

Slacum is the son of Newark residents, Mark and Linda Slacum. Persons interested in donating to his cause can contact him by email, sslacum@udel.edu.

Babies driving robots at University of Delaware

B abies driving robots. It sounds like the theme of a cartoon series but it is actually the focus of important and innovative research being conducted at the University of Delaware that could have significant repercussions for the cognitive development of infants with special needs.

Two UD researchers – James C. (Cole) Galloway, associate professor of physical therapy, and Sunil Agrawal, professor of mechanical engineering – have outfitted kid-size robots to provide mobility to children who are unable to fully explore the world on their own.

The work is important because much of infant development, both of the brain and behavior, emerges from the thousands of experiences each day that arise as babies independently move and explore their world. This is the concept of "embodied development," Galloway said.

Infants with Down Syndrome, cerebral palsy, autism and other disorders can have mobility limitations that disconnect them from the ongoing exploration that their peers enjoy.

"If these infants were adults, therapists would have options of assistive technology such as power wheelchairs," Galloway said. "Currently, children with significant mobility impairments are not offered power mobility until they are 5-6 years of age, or older. This delay in mobility is particularly disturbing when you consider the rapid brain development during infancy. Their actions, feelings and thinking all shape their own brain's development. Babies literally build their own brains through their exploration and learning in the complex world."

The tiny robot is ringed with sensors that can determine the obstacle-free roaming space, and will either allow infants to bump obstacles or will take control from the infant and drive around the obstacle itself. The next prototype, UD2, will build on the current technology to provide additional control to a parent, teacher or other supervising adult.

The UD1 robot is being developed to be light enough for moms to stow in a car trunk, and robust enough for babies to use in the home, yard and playground.

Galloway said no one had ever tried using robots with babies — early experiments show that 7-month-olds can learn to operate the simple joystick controls — and he is passionate about the possible benefits to children with special needs of even younger ages.

The project will now move on to a second generation with more than one robot. The goal is to place multiple mobile robots with special needs infants in communities throughout Delaware and to gather data to analyze how they are used and what the children learn so that the research team can continue to make modifications.

UD again tops public institutions in study abroad programs

Por the third straight year, the University of Delaware is the only public institution that is named among the top 20 doctoral/research institutions in terms of undergraduate participation in study abroad. In its latest report on international education exchange, Open Doors 2007, the Institute of International Education (IIE), also ranks UD among the top four doctoral/research institutions nationwide for short-term study abroad programs.

The release of the reports today coincides with UD's celebration of International Education Week, Nov. 12-17, which includes films, lectures, photo exhibits and special ethnic meals and a visit by the ambassador of Tunisia to the U.S., Mohamed Nejib Hachana.

"The University of Delaware is very pleased by this ranking," said UD President Patrick Harker. "As the University works to prepare students as global citizens, we recognize the value of international education and place a premium on study abroad. The ranking is particularly noteworthy in that it continues a long and proud tradition, with UD the home of the nation's first study abroad program begun in 1923."

Almost 42 percent of UD students will have participated in at least one study abroad program before they graduate, said Lesa Griffiths, director of the Center for International Studies.

Study abroad has been a signature program of the University of Delaware for the better part of a century, but it is a more important dimension of the education of our students now than ever before,' said UD Provost Dan Rich. "A UD education must prepare our students as citizens, scholars and leaders in an increasingly global community, and study abroad is a critical facet of that preparation. We're proud that we have the highest study abroad participation rate of any public university. We want all UD students to have the opportunity to study abroad."

Havidán Rodríguez, vice provost for academic affairs and international programs, said UD is committed to enhancing the international experiences of its

"We continue to educate the next generations of leaders in this country by also providing them the opportunity to have a better understanding of the international or global context in which we live. Having so many faculty and students engaged in these initiatives reflects the need, importance and the significant impact that they have on our educational process, Rodríguez said. "Our University was a pioneer and is a leader in programs that aim to internationalize our campus; being recognized as such by the Institute of International Education is an added bonus.'

According to Open Doors 2007, the number of U.S. students studying abroad increased by 8.5 percent to a record 223,534. The number of American students receiving academic credit for their study abroad has increased 150 percent in the past decade, from fewer than 90,000 students in the 1995-96 academic year.

"These increased numbers reflect a growing recognition by students and educators that an international experience is important to students' future careers," IIE stated in a news release.

"While recent growth has been fueled in part by programs that offer study for shorter lengths of time than the traditional academic year, there has also been an increasing interest in studying in more diverse destinations."

Earlier this year UD received the 2006-07 Andrew Heiskell Award for Innovation in International Education in the category of Internationalizing the Campus from IIE. UD President Emeritus David P. Roselle accepted the prestigious award during a presentation at the United Nations.

"The success of our study abroad program is largely due to the creativity of the faculty who design and direct the majority of our study abroad programs," Griffiths said. "The breadth of the programs is extensive – allowing most students to find a program that works into their academic program in a meaningful way. UD students have embraced study abroad – making it part of the undergraduate culture of the institution."

Not even the National Collegiate Athletic Association could mess this opportunity up.

While the organization will probably face major criticism no matter who it chooses to meet in the Football Bowl Subdivision championship game, the choice of matching the University of Delaware and Delaware State University in the opening round of the 16-team Football Championship Series begs no explanation.

In fact, NCAA seleccommittee tion in light of the national recent publicity involv-ing Delaware's long-time failure to schedule pre-

- would have been mocked for NOT having pitted the two universities in a firstround game. The game not only will be high theater, a classic if you will, the game is a potential financial major moneymaker which already has been placed on ESPN - not ESPN2 or ESPNU, but the real-deal ESPN. As a box office attraction, the contest could draw a sellout or nearsellout crowd on Thanksgiving weekend, traditionally a modest time at the gate for first-round

On Monday morning, some Delawareans were certainly shaking their heads, grousing how embarrassing it is that it took the NCAA to schedule this intra-state contest. Then again, a large faction of fans might feel a sense of relief after years of hearing how racism has been Delaware's underlying reason for not scheduling Delaware State.

No doubt, the game should have been played long ago, but elitism rather than racism seems to be a more likely the underlying reason. No matter what the reason, however, there was an irony late Saturday afternoon when it appeared that Delaware's chances of an at-large berth hinged heav-

Quarterback Chris Cruz tossed three touchdown passes to a trio of receivers to lead number three seed Glasgow to a 21-7 home victory over Newark Saturday night in the first round of the 2007 High School Football Championship Tournament.

"I have a lot of confidence in my team," said Cruz. "And we had a chip on our shoulders after losing earlier this season to them, and for taking our playoff spot last year, so we had a lot to

The game marked the first playoff appearance for the Dragons since 1992, when Glasgow coach Shannon Riley was junior on the football team.

"Our guys played hard," said Riley. "We told them it's a onein-a-lifetime chance to get to the playoffs, and nothing is guaranteed, so we had to go 100 percent. We executed, we played hard, and did what we had to do, and I'm so happy for the guys," he said. Early in the second quarter, Glasgow got on the board when Cruz threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to Reggie Carter at the 9:26 mark for a 6-0 lead.

Wayne Wilmore's PAT attempt was smothered by Newark's defensive line.

Carter's reception capped an 11-play, 35-yard drive that started at the end of the first quarter, and consumed more than five minutes off the clock.

Six minutes later, Glasgow increased their lead to 14-0 after completing a 7-play, 77-yard

St. Mark's falls to Salesianum in state soccer f

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Salesianum blanked archrival St. Mark's 1-0 Saturday night to win its fourth consecutive Delaware High School Boys Soccer Tournament in a match held before a near sell-out crowd at Caravel Academy.

Senior Matt Margiotta scored the game's only goal in the 55th minute off a direct free kick Spartan keeper Chirs Phipps. Margiotta also scored two goals in the Sals' 5-0 victory over Newark in the semifinal match last Wednesday night at Middletown High.

Margiotta said he was very proud to be part of the Salesianum tradition, especially to be on the first soccer team to win four straight titles.

This is something very special not just for me, but for the guys who came before me who started this run, to keep it going for them and, hopefully to keep it going for those guys who come after me," said Margiotta.

Defense remains the hallmark of winning soccer programs, and both teams were at their best throughout most of the evening.

Phipps made several dazzling saves against the Sals Thatcher Howell in the 31st minute, and again in the 47th minute against

In the 79th minute, St. Mark's nearly scored the equalizer, when Mark Dobos passed the ball to Brent Hayden, who ripped a shot towards Sals' keeper Brian

Keeler, Blue Hens excited for historic matchup

The much anticipated firstever football meeting between the University of Delaware and Delaware State University will take place this Friday, Nov. 23, as the Hens and Hornets will square off in the first round of the NCAA Football Championship Subdivision playoffs at 1:30 p.m. at 22,000-seat Delaware Stadium.

The No. 9 ranked Blue Hens (8-3) were among an NCAA-record five teams from the Colonial Athletic Association selected to the 16-team field and will take on the 10th-ranked Hornets (10-1), who captured the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference title this season with a perfect 8-0 mark in league play. The game will be televised live on ESPN.

The other seven first round games will all be played on Saturday, Nov. 24 with the Fordham vs. Massachusetts game set for 12 noon.

Delaware will be making its third trip to the tournament in five years but its first since 2004 while Delaware State, which has won eight straight games, qualifies for the post-season for the first time in school history. The Blue Hens, who captured the NCAA I-AA title in 2003, will be making their 19th NCAA post-season appearance, including their 14th as an NCAA FCS member. Delaware advanced to the national championship game in 1982 and also competed in the semifinals in 1992, 1997, and 2000. MEAC teams have lost nine straight NCAA playoff games since North Carolina A&T won its first round game in 1999.

"The goal of our program here at Delaware is to get into the playoffs," said Delaware head coach K.C. Keeler, who is 10-1 all-time in first round NCAA playoff games, including a 2-0 mark at Delaware. "We've had a great season and we deserved the chance to play again. We didn't finish off the season like we wanted (losses to Richmond and Villanova), but we are in the tournament for the third time in five years and not many people can say that.

"This is a great matchup against a very good opponent," continued Keeler. "A lot has been said about us never playing in football, so this is a historic matchup. But we are excited just to be in the playoffs. The proximity of our two schools makes sense and there is the chance for a great draw. There is very little difference between No. 1 and No. 16 in this tournament, but I think we are capable of beating anybody."

No. 1 ranked Northern Iowa

No. 1 ranked Northern Iowa (11-0), earned the top seed in the tournament field and will host No. 20 New Hampshire (7-4); No. 2 seed McNeese State will host No. 15 Eastern Washington. No. 3 seed Montana (11-0) will host No. 13 Wofford (8-3).

drive.

This time, Cruz found Sammy Vaughn over the middle, and the shifty wide receiver zipped down the right sideline for a 44-yard touchdown with 3:37 left in the half. Barren Griffin ran in the two-point conversion.

Newark then got a nice run back on the kickoff, as Shaun Thomas returned the ball back to the Dragons 39-yard line.

On fourth-and-one at the 30, Newark opted to go for the first down instead of punting or attempting a long field goal by senior Alex Carlton.

Instead, a handoff to Brandon Norwood resulted in a 30-yard touchdown run with 1:35 left until half.

Carlton's PAT cut Glasgow's lead in half to 14-7.

No scoring occurred in the third quarter, however there was some tough defense by both squads, and some interesting plays from both sides.

Early in the period, Newark faced a fourth down near mid-field. Carlton received a good snap from center, but instead of punting, delivered a pass to a wide-open Andrew Young for a first down.

Several plays later, the Jackets drive stalled, and Carlton then punted the ball down to the Glasgow two-yard line.

On second and long, Griffen broke through the line of scrimmage and raced 76 yards to the Newark 18, before he was caught from behind by the speedy Thomas.

Newark held the Dragons on downs, but were unable to sustain another offensive drive.

"They controlled the line of scrimmage pretty well," said Newark coach Butch Simpson. "As I said at the beginning of this season, I felt Glasgow was going to be one of the best teams in Division I this year. They had a great team last year, and they had everybody back," he said.

In the fourth quarter, Glasgow put together a game-clinching, four minute drive. During the series, Cruz hit Carter with a 23-yard pass to pick up an important first down. Several plays later, Cruz found Jules Jones for a 19-yard touchdown. Wilmore's PAT finished the scoring and finished off the Jackets for the season.

"They came out and played a good game, and they were the better team, and they played a little tougher than we did," said Norwood. "We thought we had what it takes, so we came out and gave it the best we had."

Glasgow travels down state next week to play number two seed Sussex Central in the state semifinals

In the other semifinal matchup, Salesianum travels to Middletown to battle the Cavaliers. The Sals, 7-4, gave the 9-1 Cavs their only loss of the season.

The 6-foot-4-inch junior netminder skied to reach the shot and deflect it harmlessly away from the ferocious Spartan attack.

"I couldn't be more proud of my team," said St. Mark's coach Tom DeMatteis. "They just played fantastic. These teams deserve so much credit, and its been a pleasure. They just had a great run, and I couldn't be happier for them," he said.

Salesianum ended the season with a 16-2-1 record. The victory gave Sallies their eight soccer championship overall. The Spartans finished with a 14-4-2 mark.

In the semifinal round,

Salesianum blanked Newark 5-0, dashing the Jackets hopes of reaching the title match.

Senior John Procope had a goal and an assist as the Sals dominated play from start to finish.

Newark ended the season with a fine 14-3-2 record and plenty of hope for the future. The Jackets' roster had only a handful of seniors, and a solid nucleus of underclassmen for next year.

ily on Delaware State already having secured a playoff spot – therefore setting the stage for Friday's historical intra-state confrontation.

Based on Sunday's selection process, the 8-3 Blue Hens apparently needed no help (then again, did they?). Five Colonial Athletic Conference schools led by automatic qualifier Massachusetts were positioned in the tournament bracket, including 7-4 New Hampshire, which is the only entrant with four losses. Granted, UNH – undoubtedly helped by having 2006 Payton Trophy recipient — is being sent to undefeated Northern Iowa (11-0), the odds-on tournament favorite, but one can legitimately question whether one conference deserves four at-large berths, even if it has produced two champions and a runner-up in the last four seasons.

Youngstown State, 7-4, has ample room for to take umbrage for not being selected considering its losses were to major-college Ohio State, the FCS No. 1 seed Northern Iowa, No. 4 seed Southern Illinois, and Illinois State. The Penguins only lost 14-13 to Northern Iowa which won its other 10 games by an average of 25.8 points per game including a 24-13 win over Iowa State, the week before Iowa State defeated Iowa, tied for fifth with Penn State in the Big Ten. Georgia Southern, Elon, and the Citadel, all 7-4, are three others who might be questioning the selection process today.

Delaware coach K.C. Keeler, whose Hens lost their last two games, had to experience some anxiety after Saturday's loss, despite defending his team's "body of work" that included a victory over bowl-bound major-college Navy. The anxiety could have been paralyzing if North Dakota State, No. 1 or 2 in the polls all season, had been eligible, if Georgia Southern hadn't been upset Saturday, and if five of the eight conferences hadn't lacked depth. Keeler did an excellent job of assembling an incredible offense this season, but if he is to be faulted for a coaching lapse, it would be that he refused to acknowledge the rivalry that exists with Villanova.

The Wildcats, having nothing to lose, came at Delaware with an intensity the Blue Hens failed to even faintly match. 'Nova defeated Delaware with defense, but got far too much out of an offense that had a young and inexperienced quarterback working at half strength.

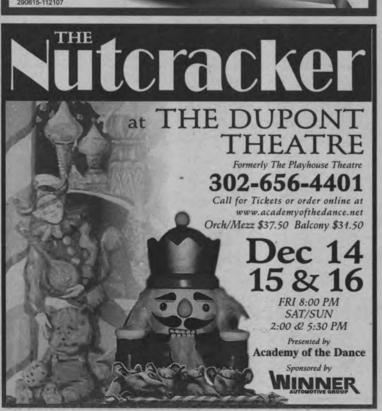

As for Friday's game, so much has been made about racial implications linked to the absence of a UD-Delaware State football series that the one might look upon the game as a potentially volatile situation. Delaware State President Allen L. Sessoms could be accused of talking trash Saturday when asked about a possible playoff meeting between his university and the University of Delaware. He said it would be a "novelty," insisted that it would only be a real breakthrough if played annually, and even implied that 10-1 Delaware State would deserve to be the host rather than the University of Delaware.

A skirmish resulted in the first basketball meeting between the two schools a few years ago. Hopefully, though, this piece of history and maybe the beginning of a tradition will unfold in peace.

Here's a Thanksgiving wish: may the better team win and both leave the field knowing that their schools will play again in a series for which they laid the groundwork.

Kathleen Brereton Policastro

Kathleen Brereton Policastro, 92, of Newark, died on Friday, Nov. 9, 2007, at her home.

She was born on June 8, 1915, daughter of the late James Brereton and Katherine McManus Brereton. A gifted vocalist throughout her life, she performed with the Merrill Sisters from 1939 to 1944. During World War II, she assisted in the stateside war effort as a secretary in the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard. She later worked as a medical assistant for an otolaryngology (ear, nose and throat) medical practice in Philadelphia. In 1944, she married Theodore B. Policastro and became a full-time homemaker. Active in Holy Angels parish since the late 1950s, Policastro was a founding member of Holy Family parish and was involved in the church's music ministry for many years. She was also a member of the Christiana Hospital Committee, by whose efforts the medical campus was established in Newark. She was an avid birder and a lifetime member of the Republican Party.

Money raised for Boys & Girls Club of Delaware

The Boys & Girls Clubs of Delaware presented a check for $80,251 to the Greater Newark Boys & Girls Club Board, celebrating the success of the annual fundraising campaign.

Gregg Bacchieri, corporate board representative, and Boys & Girls Clubs of Delaware Vice President Jim Logullo presented the check at a meeting of the Greater Newark Club on Friday, Nov. 2.

The check represents a dollar for dollar match by the statewide organization of the Greater Newark Club's local fundraising efforts, which raised $80,251. Accepting the check was Cindy Campanella, board president, and Stuart Sherman, executive director.

"A key feature of our annual fundraising effort is the provision of matching dollars for each club, reflecting our appreciation of their community donors' support of the One Campaign. Every dollar raised in the community is used in the community. In addition, the matching dollars are raised by the corporate board statewide and are returned to the local club's budget for use in their town or community," said Logullo.

The Greater Newark Boys &

Girls Club opened in 1994 and currently serves more than 2,500 members. Programming includes after-school care, Homework Help, mentoring, arts and crafts, recreational and competitive sports leagues, and citizenship.

The 2007-2008 One Campaign will kick off in November and will continue into the new year, ending in June. Volunteers who would like to participate in this year's campaign should contact Stuart Sherman, executive director of the Greater Newark Boys & Girls Club, at 836-6464.

Watch out for deer crossings

The end of daylight savings time means more 9-to-5 workers will be driving home at dusk, and the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control's Division of Fish and Wildlife is reminding drivers to remain alert for deer crossing roadways.

"We might be heading home to relax at the end of our day, but deer are just beginning their busiest time around dusk," said DNREC Game Mammal Biologist Joe Rogerson. "Twilight hours, especially from sunset to midnight and shortly before and after sunrise, are when motorists need to be especially alert and watch for them."

Statistics from the National Safety Council show 490,000 animal-related accidents nationwide in 2006, resulting in 100 deaths and 8,000 injuries. The average cost per insurance claim for collision damage is $2,800, a number that increases in cases involving injury.

In 2006, the Delaware State Police logged 373 animal-vehicle crashes – the overwhelming majority involving deer – which resulted in 27 personal injuries and 346 property damage-only cases. One motorcyclist was killed after losing control of his bike when a deer ran out in front of him.

Attentive driving is the best way to avoid deer collisions. Keep these tips in mind:

• Turn your headlights on at

• Turn your headlights on at dawn and dusk and keep your eyes on the road, scanning the sides of the road as well as what's ahead of you. When there is no oncoming traffic, switch to high beams to better reflect the eyes of deer on or near the roadway. To reduce your risk of injury in a collision, always wear your seathelt.

• Watch for deer crossing signs that mark commonly used areas, and be aware that deer typically cross between areas of cover, such as woods or where roads divide agricultural fields from forestland.

• If you see a deer crossing the road ahead, slow down immediately and proceed with caution until you are past the crossing point. Deer usually travel in groups, so if you see one deer, there are likely to be others.

• Do not swerve to miss a deer – brake and stay in your lane. Losing control of your vehicle, crossing into another lane, hitting an oncoming vehicle or leaving the roadway and hitting another obstacle such as a tree or a pole is likely to be much more serious than hitting a deer.

• If you hit a deer, stop at the scene, get your car off the road if possible and call police. Do not touch the animal or get too close.

Hopefully, true rivalry will start on the field

▶ UPFRONT, from 1

So now Delawareans get what they've been deprived of - cheated out of actually - our very own football game on Thanksgiving weekend between State U and University of. You know, just like North Carolina State and North Carolina, Arizona State and Arizona, Oregon State and Oregon, Florida State-Florida and

I'm not quite sure how we got along without it for so long.

Of course, there were those first 80 years of the last century when the Blue Hens had Hall of Fame coaches and players and were winning small college national championships and the Hornets were getting beat 105-0 by Portland State.

The two schools didn't belong anywhere near the same football field during those times and nobody was clamoring for them | for decades upon decades? Um, | to be either.

Whoops, forgot about that part of the history, didn't you?

So Delaware didn't actively try to avoid the matchup for most of its history? Um, no. Nobody actually wanted the game for a good 100 years or so.

So what happened?

Well, Delaware State - finally embarrassed enough after years of ineptness and the aforementioned 105-0 pasting – looked to Delaware for some help. Former UD assistants Joe Purzycki and Bill Collick built the Hornets program - first to respectability and then beyond.

You don't think those former assistants had some reluctance to all of a sudden scheduling Delaware after just a relative few years of success?

That gets us into the 1990s, which is just last decade.

So these two schools really haven't both been football equals no. Sorry, they haven't. Clearly, Delaware State has a fine program at this point - and a game between the two schools seems like a no-brainer. Yes, it took the NCAA to schedule this one but it won't be long before the game becomes a regular season ritual.

And if the two programs remain on somewhat equal footing (of course, Delaware State has its eyes set on Division I-A and games with Penn State, Maryland and West Virginia so why it is looking for a longstanding rivalry with little old Delaware, I'm not exactly sure) then an annual game will be a good thing for the state.

But spare me the hundreds of years of UD ducking DSU talk or that racism is at the root of the game not being played. That's not the case at all - it's just convenient revisionist history.

Hopefully this weekend's game will be a great one and a true rivalry will start on the field instead of one manufactured on the Internet and in the newspa-

Residents can learn to compost at home

► YARD WASTE, from 3

when Delaware Solid Waste Authority (DSWA) applied to DNREC to expand the landfill's size. The expansion was granted, but the landfill was capped. Once it reaches capacity, it will be shut down. The ban is an attempt to extend that timeframe.

Though initially meant to take effect this January, the ban on yard wastes sparked public opposition, which led to a year delay. When it takes effect on Jan. 24, 2008, it will apply to all county residents who use the Cherry Island landfill, including citizens of Newark.

County residents have three choices for dealing with land waste: 1) compost and use it at home/on site, 2) take it to a landfill or composting location yourself or 3) pay a trash hauler or landscaper to pick up the yard waste and take it to an appropriate site.

City of Newark residents have an additional option. The city will collect miscellaneous yard waste through its bulk collection or special fee collection program. Yard waste must be prepared in bundles less than four feet long and less than 40 pounds, or be placed in an approved 32-gallon container with a lid.

A maximum of six bundles or six containers or a combination of the two will be accepted at no cost on a scheduled, first-call, first-served basis. For more information, contact the city's Public Works Department at 366-7045.

Some types of yard and home waste can be composted at home with small compost bins. Examples of such materials are hay and straw, hair and lint, corncobs, coffee filters, food scraps, fruit wastes, coffee and tea grounds, eggshells and bread and grains. Compost can be used to fertilize lawns and gardens and as potting mix for indoor plants.

The University of Delaware Cooperative Extension has resources available for residents wanting to learn how to properly compost their yard waste at home. Interested persons should call 831-2667 for more information.

To learn more about yard waste regulations, contact DNREC at 739-9403, or go online at www. dnrec.delaware.gov. Contact the Delaware Solid Waste Authority, at 1-800-404-7080, or go online to www.dswa.com for information about taking yard waste to Delaware landfills.

"A lot of what we do is handson. We try to get them up and out of their seats so they can get a better feel for what we do," said Simpson.

The grant-funded program fosters a more positive opinion about law enforcement in the community by educating the public about what the department does, said Simpson. Through the citizens' police academy, "we have 20 more friends of the department," he said. "We can't do anything better than this for public out-

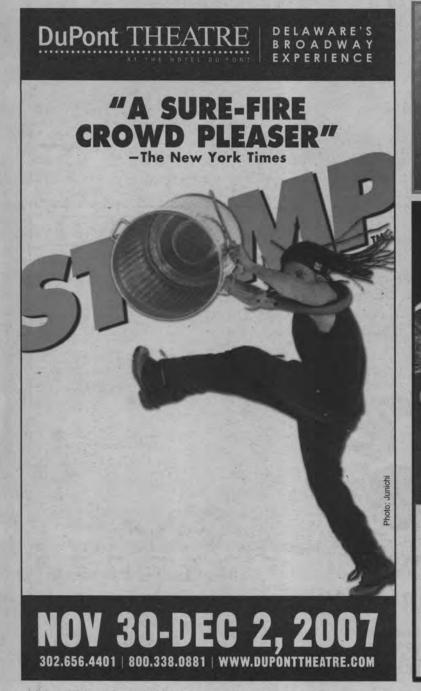

This year's students graduated from the program in a ceremony held Wednesday, Nov. 14. They received certificates and congratulations from the Chief of Police Paul Tiernan "Hopefully you will be our ambassadors and explain how we do things to others in the community," Tiernan told the students.

He also commended the officers who participated in the program. In addition to Simpson, several officers led classroom discussions about their specialties and participated in the mock crime investigation and trial.
