Ignoring redlights getting costlier

By KATY CIAMARICONE
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark Police have already made drivers aware of the city's new fines for ignoring traffic signals.

During a campaign against aggressive driving over the Labor Day holiday, Newark Police arrested 23 people for violating traffic laws in four days, according to Lt. Thomas LeMin of the city traffic division.

While 10 charges were for speeding and related offenses, another 10 drivers disregarded traffic lights and three disregarded stop signs. All of the violators received a fine of at least $75, said LeMin.

An ordinance passed by city council in August raised fines for drivers caught running traffic signals and stop signs in Newark. The minimum fine prior to the amendment was $25. Now, ignoring a red light or stop sign will cost "runners" between $75 and $200 when they are caught.

The new ordinance is part of a national campaign against aggressive driving, said LeMin. Governor Thomas Carper signed the new fines into state law earlier this year.

Wilmington city officials have also adopted the bill, and recently installed cameras at some traffic lights in the city so drivers who do not obey traffic signals will be caught on tape and then billed for the fine.

In Newark, the most accident-prone intersection as the result of drivers disobeying traffic signals is Ogletown Road and Library Avenue, LeMin said there were 29 accidents occurring there last year.

This intersection, as well as Christina Parkway and Elkton Road, was considered for a pilot video camera program in 1997. Law enforcement officials in Newark are not yet using cameras to monitor traffic lights, but recording devices are a definite possibility for patrolling in the future. "We have looked into it in the past," LeMin said, "but we're not interested in going that route just yet."

Property damage is up on and off campus in Newark

University officials may ban skateboarding altogether

Vandalism and property damage is increasing both on and off campus around Newark according to city and college officials, but there are improvements in other crime.

Newark Police Chief Gerald Conway told the Town and Gown Committee last week that criminal mischief cases, such as graffiti and other acts of vandalism throughout Newark totaled 589 this year, compared to 484 last year.

At this week's city council meeting, government relations director Rick Armitage said the University has a lot of damage from skateboarders. "We are on the verge of banning skateboards on campus," Armitage told councilmembers. "We have tens of thousands of dollars in damage on walkways and walls as the result of skateboarding."

Armitage said the University was researching their legal options to restrict the currently permitted use.

Mayor Hal Godwin said he thought liability for people getting hurt on college property might also be an issue. "We're lucky over the years we have not had any really serious injuries," said Armitage, "but liability is also an issue."

Armitage said both students and non-students skateboard on campus. "Right now, the only legal option with non-students is for the Public Safety officer to give them a trespass notice if there is no damage," said Armitage. "The second time we catch them, we can arrest them for trespassing."

On the positive side, Conway said that September "hasn't been too bad" in terms of student rowdiness and incidents of disorderly conduct on Main Street.

However, the police chief said crime is becoming more apparent in residential neighborhoods, especially on Kells, Wolleston and Prospect Avenues, where hundreds of students reside each school year.

Alcohol-related arrests made by Newark Police increased by almost 100 cases as compared to last year, partly as a result of an increase in efforts by law enforcement, Conway said.

Lawrence Thornton, director of the University's department of public safety, said the campus police recorded a seven percent decrease in alcohol-related crimes, with 244 incidents and 140 arrests this year.

"Everybody is playing a role in controlling alcohol on campus," Thornton said.

Mayor Hal Godwin said the University of Delaware has paid the city of Newark an amount of $10,000 a month for at least 20 years to help pay for a police officer to patrol residential areas that are known as "hot spots" because of their high incidents of alcohol-related activity. The University increased the amount to $15,000 a month in July.

Town and Gown committee members agreed landlords should warn students, as soon as they move into housing units, about the legal consequences that could result if they throw loud parties

UD Trustee could join Town & Gown

High level decisionmaker is desirable to city

By MARY E. PETZAK

Newark city council wants more muscle on the Town and Gown Committee. This week they voted to invite the University of Delaware to add a trustee to the city/college body.

"David Athey has only been to one meeting and he already proved a good choice," said Mayor Hal Godwin of the newest city member. "He made this suggestion."

Godwin said the committee agreed to the idea with two University members abstaining. "They looked like they thought it was a good idea, though," said city councilmember John Farrell who attended the committee meeting as an observer.

City councilmember Jerry Clifton said he liked the suggestion. "I think it's a solid suggestion and we should move forward with it," he said.

Although councilmembers agreed it was important to maintain a balance on the committee, which is currently permitted 14 members evenly split between city and university representatives, they said one trustee would not be a problem.

"If they only have a non-binding vote on anything, then balance is not so important," said councilmember Frank Osborne.

Councilmember Christina Rewa added, "The mayor and city manager at the highest level of city decision-making are on Town and Gown, so it would be a good idea to have someone at that level from the University."

Godwin said the city would have to change the current ordi-

Kohl's: That's more like more traffic

Residents invited to discuss options with developers

Residents of Perch Creek and others in Glasgow concerned about the local impact of a new department store on Route 40 can talk to the developers in person.

New Castle County councilmember J. Christopher Roberts (D-Odessa) said residents should voice their opinions at the Technical Advisory Committee meeting on Oct. 11, when they can sit down with the developers and try to come up with some plans that will benefit everyone.

Perch Creek homeowners said they fear that the property value of their homes will significantly decrease if a 165,000 square-foot Kohl's store opens at the now closed Sports Plus location on Route 40 near Frenchtown Road.

At a recent civic meeting, the residents cited increased traffic and noise, high-intensity lighting and environmental hazards as reasons why the store should not open for business so close to their homes.

"Who's going to compensate us for the depreciation of our homes?" Perch Creek resident Brooke Uhde asked.

The new St. Margaret of Scotland Catholic Church and a Wawa Superstore with an eight-pump gas station are also planned within one-half mile of Perch Creek and the proposed Kohl's store.

In addition, Christina School

POLICE BRIEFS

Armed robbery, shooting in Bear

New Castle County Police are investigating an armed robbery on Friday, Sept. 22 in Brookmont Farms off Route 40.

At 9:30 p.m., Newark resident Jamal Powell was approached by a suspect wearing a dark colored hooded shirt and armed with a handgun in the area of Teal Circle.

He forced Powell to the ground and robbed him of his personal property. When Powell attempted to stand up, the suspect, described as a black male between the ages of 18 to 22, shot him in the knee and ran.

Powell was treated and released by the Christiana Medical Center.

Anyone with information is asked to call County Police Detectives at 571-7924 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

CHS student arrested for bomb threats

On Wednesday, Sept. 20, a Christiana High School student was arrested and charged with terroristic threatening.

According to police, on Sept. 11 and twice on Sept. 12, the student phoned the school and said that a bomb was on the premises. The school was evacuated for approximately two and a half hours on both dates. State Police searched the school with the assistance of K-9's but found no explosive devices.

The student will undergo a mandatory psychological evaluation.

Burglary at Glasgow storage facility

Sometime between 2:42 and 3:45 a.m. on Sept. 24, a surveillance video recorded two males entering the Glasgow Self-Storage on Scotland Drive. The suspects burglarized 37 units and fled in a pick-up truck with an unknown amount of property.

Investigation is ongoing by the Delaware State Police Troop 2. Anyone with information is asked to call police at 323-4411 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Shooting threat results in arrest

Youth Aid Detectives arrested and charged an 11-year-old Skyline Middle School student with terroristic threatening on Sept. 21. State police reported the student was apparently upset with a 12-year-old female student and advised her he was going to "shoot up the school and she would be the first to go." No weapons were found during the investigation.

Newark girl killed in bridge collision

On Saturday, Sept. 23, around 7:55 p.m., Newark resident Amber L. Ray was driving a 1991 Nissan Sentra southbound on the Reedy Point bridge, south of Delaware City, when she crossed onto the northbound lane striking the bridge abutment. Then she crossed the southbound lane, striking the bridge abutment again, and came to rest near the east side of the bridge.

On arrival, troopers could not find the driver but on further search found Ray had fallen from the bridge, approximately 80 feet to her death. Troopers are investigating how she fell because investigation revealed that ejection from the car was not consistent with the collision.

The investigation is ongoing by the Delaware State Police Fatal Accident Reconstruction Team. Anyone with information about this incident is asked to call state police at 477-8501.

Route 13 collision kills Del. woman

On Saturday, Sept. 23, around 10:30 p.m., Maryland resident Krishna C. Battuca was driving a 1994 Subaru southbound on Route 13 approaching Black Diamond Road.

Middletown resident Louise Pleasanton, driving a Ford Tempo northbound on Route 13, made a left turn across the southbound lanes, into the path of the Subaru causing it to strike the passenger side of her vehicle.

Pleasanton died from multiple blunt force trauma. Her passenger was taken to the Christiana Hospital and treated for a fractured skull. Battuca and her three passengers were treated and released at Kent General Hospital.

There was no alcohol involvement and the use of seatbelts is unknown at this time. No charges have been filed, but the Delaware State Police Fatal Accident Reconstruction Team is still investigating the circumstances of the accident.

Other empty retail locations noted by residents as alternative to Route 40 facility

▶ KOHL'S, from 1

District expects to open Keene Elementary School nearby within the next year.

"With the extra traffic that will result from the school, the church and the store, Route 40 is going to be deadlocked," said a resident of Perch Creek. "Come Christmastime, with shopping and church services, there is going to be about 1,000 cars in one concentrated area at one time."

Some people suggested that the applicant find another location for the store, such as the former Caldor or Genuardi's sites in Pencader Plaza and People's Plaza.

"Why do they have to put this in people's backyards when there are two empty stores in the area," one woman asked.

Shawn Tucker, general manager of the New Castle County land use department, said DelDOT is conducting traffic impact studies and officials will not allow the store to open if they believe it will generate traffic hazards.

In addressing concerns that water runoff might change the area into a soggy wetland, Tucker said DNREC will most likely survey the church, Wawa and Kohl's sites to be sure that they will not cause property damage to surrounding areas.

Local firefighter is EMT of Year

Irene Lavita-Harris of Aetna Hose, Hook & Ladder Company of Newark is the EMT of the Year for the state of Delaware. The award was announced Wednesday in Dover at the annual conference of the Delaware Volunteer Firemen's Association.

The emergency medical technician joined Aetna in 1987 while a student at the University of Delaware.

"She has been a fixture on the Wednesday evening EMS crew for over 10 years," said Aetna spokesperson John Farrell. "Her dedication to this crew assignment is inspiring, especially in these times of decreasing volunteerism."

Farrell said Lavita-Harris frequently serves as a mentor to new members who show an interest in emergency medical services.

"She plays a critical role in Aetna's ability to respond to over 4,800 requests for EMS service a year," Farrell noted, "and demonstrates a clear understanding of the assessment and treatment skills that are expected of an EMT."

Lavita-Harris

Her professional qualifications include completing the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians course and the Methods of Instruction course. As an instructor she is involved with CPR and automatic external defibrillator education for Aetna Hose, Hook & Ladder Company and the Delaware State Fire School.

Lavita-Harris holds a position of responsibility in Aetna, serving as the fire recorder. "She is the first female elected officer in the history of our fire department," Farrell said. "She also serves as Aetna's Infection Control/Exposure officer."

In addition to her EMS duties, Lavita-Harris is a fire service educator, teaching Fire Prevention and Fire Safety classes at Safety Town, Newark Community Days, Newark Night and in local schools.

"She also excels as a firefighter on Aetna's fire apparatus," Farrell concluded. "The EMT of the Year honor awarded to her exemplifies Aetna's motto 'Service for Others...'"

Newark auto dealer sued for deceptive advertising

Attorney General M. Jane Brady filed a consumer fraud and deceptive trade suit on Sept. 12 against Martin Newark Dealership Inc., Scott Newark Inc. and their general manager Michael M. Kardon, ("Martin"), charging them with consumer fraud and deceptive trade practices, as a result of alleged illegal advertising tactics used by Martin in its advertising.

The complaint, filed in the Delaware Court of Chancery alleges that since 1996, Martin has been unlawfully advertising vehicles for sale at prominently displayed sale prices, but has been actually charging consumers thousands of dollars in additional costs, buried in the fine print of Martin's advertising.

"This type of advertising constitutes unlawful 'bait advertising,' designed to lure unsuspecting consumers into the Martin dealerships for the purpose of selling automobiles for prices higher than advertised to the customer," stated Brady.

"This conduct is manifestly unfair and highly misleading, and has been condemned by the automobile industry throughout the state of Delaware."

The Attorney General's office has investigated these practices for some time and has worked with the Delaware Automobile and Truck Dealers Association in a cooperative effort to develop advertising guidelines that conform to state law.

According to the Association's executive director, Marlene Petrylak, "Our Association and its dealer members are highly committed to ethical and 'consumer friendly' business practices, and we have worked closely with the Attorney General's office to achieve this mutual goal."

The lawsuit seeks a preliminary and permanent injunction against the use of these deceptive trade practices, surrender of any profits made from violations of the law, restitution for consumers and businesses, costs to the state, and civil penalties of up to $10,000 for each violation.

or are disruptive to neighbors.

Godwin said incidents of crime have decreased in Blair Court because the permanent residents go door-to-door at the beginning of each school year. "This way they can meet their new neighbors and inform them in the sweetest way they know how, about what might happen if loud partying becomes an issue in their community," said Godwin.

One older woman handled it herself when student partying got out of hand. "She went over there in tears and said, 'please, I can't go to sleep,'" explained Godwin, "and she never heard another peep from them. She later baked them a cake and asked them if they would mow her lawn."

Parents, teachers, & astronaut star in Downes video

A video starring teachers and parents from Downes Elementary School and a NASA astronaut, aims to help students become more organized and accountable for doing homework.

Parents in Action for Quality Education gave all 630 children at the school a copy of the 10-minute video on good study habits.

The idea for the video was suggested to parent volunteers by teachers at Downes Elementary. They did so in response to a parent pledge to make Downes the first school in the state at which every child passes the Delaware Student Testing Program (DSTP) tests given children in the third grade.

Parents obtained grants from the school's PTA chapter and the MBNA Delaware Excellence in Education Program. Newark High School's telecommunications department provided technical support.

"We wanted to personalize our message by including images and people with special meaning to Downes' kids," said parent Robert Stachnik. "The fact that the video goes home with students and can sit on a child's own bookshelf could also help assure that it 'connects'."

Parent Nancy Breslin said the group filled the video with familiar teachers and settings. "We expect the children will want to watch it again and again and that they will proudly show it to their parents," she said. "If so, the messages about homework and the value of reading might really make a difference."

A novel element was inclusion of a clip from NASA

Astronaut Pam Melroy, provided by the NASA Johnson Space Center.

Melroy will be pilot on a Space Shuttle flight scheduled for launch in October to the International Space Station. Following her flight, Melroy is expected to speak at a number of locations, including Downes Elementary, in the Newark area.

"At one point in the video she says to the kids 'I'm too old to go to Mars,'" said Stachnik. "But, someone between the ages of 5 and 25 will be the first person on Mars and I hope it's one of you." It's hard to overstate the effect a comment like that has on a bunch of wide-eyed children.

If the video proves successful and cost effective, the parents have said they would help other schools make videos of their own.

University Dean of Students Timothy Brooks to retire

Special to the Newark Post

University of Delaware's long-time student advocate Timothy F. Brooks, assistant vice president and dean of students, announced that he will leave on June 1, 2001, after more than 20 years of service.

Brooks, 55, who came to Delaware in 1979, will leave behind a legacy of helping students achieve their goals.

"Seeing a student who has really, struggled succeed, not only here, but also in her or his career, is an incredible perk of the job," he said. "That is an aspect of my position that I enjoy immensely."

A large folder full of thank-you notes in a filing cabinet in his office is cited as one of the reasons why he's stayed for so long in his challenging job.

Brooks said he plans to collect the notes in an album as a retirement gift to himself. "I think this office has done a great job of helping students," he said. "There are quite a few students, who, without our help, would not have graduated. That has to make you feel good."

During Brooks' years of service, the University has seen the size of the graduating class increase by more than 1,000 students, with the average around 4,000 currently. Since 1979, some 57,584 students have joined the ranks of University alumni.

Known for his strong, but supportive, hand in disciplining students, Brooks said the hardest part of his job has been dealing with crises.

"Dealing with student tragedy is draining," he said. "I am a very emotional person and each time a tragedy occurs I get close to the students and families. It never gets easier."

As dean of students, Brooks oversees all aspects of student discipline, crisis management, volunteerism and Greek life. He also serves as liaison on student behavior with the city of Newark.

Two of the most notable programs implemented during his tenure, he said, are the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation-sponsored project to curb abusive drinking and the five-star rating system for fraternities and sororities.

Vice president for student life Roland Smith said Brooks' absence will be felt throughout the University. "He has served the division of student life and the University with exceptional dedication and leadership," Smith said, "and he will be sorely missed."

Smith said discussions about filling Brooks' position will occur later in the academic year.

Brooks said he feels he has accomplished all he can in his position. "It has been a fantastic experience, but also an extremely stressful job. As dean of students, I am on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

Brooks said he is considering working with agencies that support persons with disabilities or volunteering with the National Park Service. He currently is chairperson of the Governor's Council for the Mentally Retarded.

A fitness fanatic, Brooks said he also may try his hand at promoting physical fitness in adults, something about which he feels strongly.

"Without exercise, there is no way I would have been able to handle the stress of this position," he said. "I have always placed great importance on physical fitness in my own life, and I think there is a lot of work to be done for promoting it in the lives of middle-aged adults."

Brooks said he has been able to experience what he calls "the incredible changes" that have taken place at the University as a whole.

"UD has increased positively, in every sense-the faculty, the physical plant and the quality of students," he said. "The students have definitely changed," he continued. "They are more consumer-oriented and much better academically and technically. The diversity of the student body has also increased, and more students are involved in part-time work than ever before."

Brooks said his main regret will be leaving the people of the University community. "There have been some interesting and trying times, but I am proud to have been a part of UD for 21 years. It has been a fantastic experience!"

LAMBLACK HONORED

Newark's City Secretary Susan Lamblack has been honored with the Municipal Clerk of the Year Award by the Delaware League of Cities. Lamblack, a city employee since 1964, is currently president of the International Institute of Municipal Clerks. She is the only municipal employee in Delaware to have earned certification as a Master Municipal Clerk.

nance establishing the city committee membership and functions. "We're changing the ordinance to allow a University of Delaware trustee to be a member," said Godwin. "We will invite the University administration to put a trustee on the committee, but they are not obliged to do so."

The Town and Gown Committee advises city council on matters concerning the relationship between the city of Newark and the University of Delaware.

Meeting quarterly, the committee suggests programs and policies to limit the impact of off-campus student housing on non-student residents and to improve the relations between Newark residents and the University community.

In addition to Godwin, Athey and city manager Carl Luft, current members include: Marilyn Prime of the University's student activities office; Timothy Brooks, dean of students; current Chair Joan Barchi Odell, assistant University secretary; Lawrence Thornton, director of public safety at University; Newark Police Chief Gerald Conway; Todd Ladutko, local business representative; William Redd Jr., Newark resident; Kim Franchino, president of Delaware Undergraduate Student Congress; David Matz, Greek Affairs representative; and David Balseiro, off-campus student representative.

Yes, there are traffic options

There are ways to get around the traffic in Newark.

You can walk – and sometimes it seems quicker than inching along in a car.

You can ride bikes. Theoretically bicycles on the road are bound by the same laws as motorized vehicles, but all too many riders think they can switch randomly from driver to pedestrian – to jaywalker.

One of the most perverse is the bicyclist who comes up unexpectedly on the right side of cars waiting at the light at Woodlawn Avenue and Capital Trail, weaves between the startled and fuming drivers, rides illegally across a break in the traffic proceeding on and turning left from Capitol Trail to Cleveland Avenue under the CSX Railroad bridge, snakes through the line of vehicles backed up waiting to turn left onto Ogletown Road, and finally veers off to terrorize motorists on Main Street in Newark.

He never signals. The only pause in the progress is sometimes a brief wait at the barrier in the middle of four lanes of traffic on Capitol Trail before making the last dash to the less congested eddy of traffic in the right hand lane leading past McDonald's and Shinn's.

It's possible to see this in great and unrelieved detail several mornings a week because, in the time it takes to do, the light has not changed for the drivers still waiting at Woodlawn.

You can run that traffic light in the first place, and apparently many drivers do this with – up to now – substantial success. Recently, however, Newark raised their fines for this kind of behavior and, in only four days, 13 people were charged with the new $75 minimum for disregarding traffic signals.

Then there's mass transit – you can ride the bus or train. In some places around the world, buses and trains come every few minutes – all day and well into the night. The routes are busy, if not packed, almost constantly.

DART First State wants transit riders in Delaware to be this dedicated, but without any guarantees the service will move as quickly as the route changes.

You can get around the traffic in Newark – we're just not sure how useful or legal the possibilities are at present.

LETTER TO EDITOR

To the Editor
From: Martin J. Duszak

I am troubled by your decision to run the "abortion information" ad in your Sept. 15 issue. I regard this as insensitive and insulting to the many of us who hold the unborn as sacred human beings. You have crossed the community standard of good taste.

I submit that your advertising guidelines need to be revised. Would you run an ad for an adult book store, an ad for Dr. Kervorkian's services, or an ad for a racist meeting? I think not. Certainly, this is not a free speech issue but simply a matter of doing what is morally right.

NEWARK POST newpost@dca.net

By MARVIN HUMMEL

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

Oscar came into my life on my first Sunday as an ordained clergyman. We talked during the coffee hour and he was really interesting and very nice. He was a retired railroad detective and had great stories.

That afternoon, he had a "slight" stroke. I went right to the hospital, and we talked some more. We talked the next three mornings – and then he died in the afternoon following that last talk.

I had to – and wanted to – console his widow, but I didn't know what to say. So I pretty much just sat there with her until leaving seemed appropriate. I felt that I had let her and the church down – possibly even worse than that – but I could not think of a thing to say that didn't seem obvious and/or maudlin. Was I in the right vocation?

Amazingly, the widow told everybody how wonderful I had been to her. She told them I just sat with her rather than talking a lot. She told a lot of friends, "That was exactly what I needed!" Lesson One for me!!!

Sam became a really good buddy. An older man, he didn't start coming to church until he was retired, but he was very faithful and very helpful – and a lot of fun. But one day, he really irritated me.

He called and asked me to come over immediately!! Besides being such a good friend, he also was very demanding, but not this time. I had to come over now!!! I had a meeting I had to go to, a meeting at which I had to make a big report. But Sam didn't care – he had to see me and wouldn't accept my reason – not excuse – so I went.

What irritated me was the conversation. He went through the entire lineup of the Cleveland Indians 19 years before, position by position, ERA by ERA, batting average by batting average, and it looked like the next topic would be game by game!

I held back the temptation to ask him what was going on. I could visualize the pompous committee chairman saying, "Hummel hasn't bothered to show up, so I guess we'll go to our other business and then go home!" (I was going to make his day and would hear about it ad nauseam!!)

Just when I was about to scream the scream of both the wounded as well as the angry, Sam said, "Marvin, I have terminal cancer. I just found out this morning and didn't know how to tell you!" I cancelled out my report.

New auto sales agency here opening here

Maxwell O. Hammond, of Flint, Mich., purchased the Richards house adjacent to Renshaw's lane on East Main street. Buick and Chevrolet cars, products of General Motors, will be handled by Mr. Hammond.

These two cars were formerly sold here by J.C. Vansant and Sons on South College Avenue which took over the agency for Oldsmobile and Oakland, leaving the local field clear for the former cars.

Bright Outlook by officials of Newark Mills

An encouraging note has been injected into the community life here with the steady increase in business at the three large Newark mills.

Curtis and Brother, Inc., the pioneer plant in this community, reported through an official today that the mill is running five full days each week, at about 80 percent of their capacity.

At the Continental Fibre Company, similar conditions are prevailing in the fibre business. Full time operation is the rule, and men have been taken on in nearly all departments.

Superintendent McClintock, of the National Vulcanized Fibre Company's plant indicated his plant to be running about 90 percent capacity.

Results of corruption probe disclosed

An investigation by Newark Police into alleged improper conduct by unnamed city of Newark employees has failed to uncover evidence that would warrant criminal prosecution, says City Manager Peter S. Marshall.

The police department did find that one city inspector borrowed money "on a number of occasions" from contractors whose work he inspected, said Marshall.

Council urged again to buy Legion tract for parkland

A resident of George Read Village has again demanded that Newark City Council buy a 2.75-acre parcel of land near his home for parkland.

He also said residents of George Read Village will actively oppose any development of the land.

September 29, 1995

Plan just 'fluff, history'

The new Metropolitan Transportation Plan is only a week old and WILMAPCO has already gotten some public feedback it doesn't like.

According to Roy Lopata, director of the Newark Planning Department and a member of the WILMAPCO Technical Advisory Committee, he has some concerns about the draft proposal.

"It appears from this plan that we are basically going to live with existing roadways (in the Newark area) for the next 25 years," said Lopata.

Ice arena okayed

Newark will soon be home to Delaware's third ice skating facility, but the developer said that's still fewer than nearby states.

Newark city council voted to annex seven acres of land off Marrow's Road behind Price Toyota to build an indoor ice arena.

Council also gave subdivision approval for the project and granted a special use permit for its operation.

Of silence, Indians, clean eyeglasses and life's lessons

Lesson Number Two: Something important may be lurking behind the Cleveland Indians! Take the time to look!

Another man was dying with terminal cancer, and a woman he loved visited him as faithfully as I did. Once we were walking out of his room together, and she lit into me about how dirty my eyeglasses were, how I should have more respect than to visit Lew with dirty eyeglasses!

I didn't know how to field that particular criticism, so I just let her yap. She slowed down in the elevator, but after that, I heard it all the way to my car. I'm glad she was a woman because I would have known how to handle a man!

Later, I found she had lost her husband the same way we were losing Lew, and she couldn't take it all over again! She had a lot of understandable fury in her and didn't know where to unload it. She knew I loved Lew too, so she couldn't just unload on me without a just and due cause!

And then she espied my dirty glasses! Wham! Lesson Number Three: if someone acts like a nut when someone she loves is dying a miserable death, just take it! (My glasses weren't all that dirty anyway!)

Getting a lift on a Wednesday morning

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

He said he needed something to lift his spirits. He had nothing else to do around 11 o'clock on a Wednesday morning, he explained, because he was disabled.

So, he followed me out of the store into the parking lot after he heard me say I had a flat tire.

"I can change your tire," said the middle-aged black man. "Let me get my car right over there."

He had a screwdriver to get the cap off the lugnuts and his own jack.

I asked him if he lived in the area off Elkton Road in Maryland where my predicament had landed me.

"No," he said in a soft voice. I live near the train station."

We uncovered the spare in the wheel well of my car and he hauled it out.

Then he calmly and methodically pushed and pulled on all the lugs of the flat tire until they loosened.

Sticking his head under the car, he surveyed the positioning of the jack. I said I hoped his disability didn't involve a bad back.

"No," he said, "I had two heart attacks."

That's not too good, either, I observed. When did you have your last heart attack?

"April 1999," he replied. "I'm still learning about heart attacks."

I asked him what kind of work he used to do before he was disabled.

"My main job was forklift operator," he said. "I actually had two jobs."

That didn't help your heart problem, I said.

"I think that's what did it," he replied.

He pumped the car up, stopping a few times to check when the bad tire came off the ground. "I'm not sure that's enough," he said before trying the spare. "I better do it a little more before I take off the lugs."

Finally it was where he wanted it and he deftly switched the tires. He rotated the obviously flat one, touching it here and there.

"It could just be a slow leak," he said. "That happens."

He placed the tire in the wheel well, screwing it carefully on the holder provided. Then he picked up his jack and began to put it in his trunk.

I took one of my business cards and all the cash I had and went over to him as he reached his car.

"Please take this," I said. "You've been so kind."

"No," he replied, "I needed the exercise. I don't get enough."

I tucked the business card inside his shirt pocket and told him to call if he ever wanted to talk to anyone at the Newark Post.

I don't think he knew who we are. A lot of people don't.

It didn't really matter. He was just doing a kindness for a stranger.

We shook hands and he waved as I drove away.

Thank-you.

My spirits needed a lift, too.

School uniforms alone unlikely to make schools safer, UD expert says

Simply adopting school uniforms is unlikely to make schools safer and administrators and parents who are considering requiring students to wear uniforms should proceed cautiously, advises Janet Hethorn.

Getting input from youngsters and discussing all the implications of such a policy is important, the University of Delaware professor of consumer studies and assistant director for design in the UD Center for Historic Architecture and Design says.

Hethorn, whose research for the past decade has focused on issues of youth style, including gang involvement, offers this analogy: If a school district had serious difficulties with its student transportation system, officials and parents would scoff at the notion that repainting the buses would solve the problems. But, many of these same administrators and parents believe problems with student behavior can be solved by putting uniforms on the pupils.

"There are a lot of assumptions made about school uniforms and what they can and can't do, and many of those assumptions are incorrect," Hethorn said. "There are also side effects to implementing a school uniform policy, and those side effects often aren't taken into consideration when the policy is decided."

Although she said she recognizes that the nationwide interest in uniforms is motivated by understandable frustration and good intentions, she advises schools to take the time to make an informed policy decision.

Adolescents experiment with different styles of appearance as a necessary part of defining their identity, and adults should understand that this is a complex part of growing up, Hethorn said.

"In a time when we're all concerned with recognizing and respecting diversity, we need to ask: Who gets to decide what the uniform will be? What group does it represent, and what groups are left out?" she said. "I'm not telling schools what they should or shouldn't do, but there are a lot of variables in the mix."

Some schools that have mandated uniforms have reported improved student learning and behavior, Hethorn said. But, she added, those uniform policies were generally part of numerous other educational changes, which might account for the improvements.

She also pointed out that adults are advocating more formal student attire at the same time that their own dress in the workplace is becoming more casual.

Although schools frequently cite youth gangs and violence as reasons to require student uniforms, Hethorn's research has found that young people most often communicate their membership in gangs in ways that aren't easily covered by a school uniform policy.

Tattoos, hand signs and body posture are more reliable signs of gang identity than what adults often believe is the case—wearing a particular color or style of clothing, she said.

Her research also found that subtle clothing variations, such as wearing socks or a belt in a certain way or turning one point of a collar in or out, can be used to communicate gang membership.

"Gang appearance that is linked to behavior must definitely be identified and omitted from school campuses," said Hethorn.

However, Loren Evenrud, a supervisor with the police department in Minneapolis Park, Minn., wrote in an article in the National School Safety Center newsletter, "...it is fallacious to assume that uniforms will eliminate gang representation in schools."

To make schools safer, Hethorn and Evenrud suggested several guidelines.

Focus on behavior and intervene to stop students who are threatening or intimidating others, but be careful to target the behavior, not just label a particular style of appearance as gang related or dangerous.

If a school administration decides to implement student uniforms or a dress code, students should be involved in the discussions to develop those policies.

Student input can be critical in identifying what various styles mean. At the same time, dress codes should be flexible, because fashions and their meanings change rapidly.

Immediately report and document school crime. Accurate records allow police and administrators to develop strategies that address safety problems in the schools.

Hethorn earned her doctorate from the University of Minnesota and joined UD three years ago.

Agway Gift will Fund agriculture research at the University of Delaware

The College of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Delaware has received a gift of $25,000 from Agway Inc.

According to Joseph Bradley, director of development for the college, this gift — made as part of the Campaign for Delaware — will establish a fund to support undergraduate research in nutrient management at the college.

Provided by the Agway Foundation, the funds will be used to support students who, under the direction of UD faculty researchers, will research nutrient management as it relates to soil and water quality.

"The benefits of Agway's gift are far-reaching," said Dr. John C. Nye, dean of the college. "Students win because their research gets much-needed funding. Faculty researchers advance because they are able to expand the scope of their research. Our region prospers because increased research capabilities improve our opportunity for resolving some issues in nutrient management. And the body of knowledge for the field of environmental soil science increases."

Nye said proper management of nutrients can reduce environmental problems and improve the profitability of crop production.

"Nutrient management is an important issue for Delmarva, and Agway looks forward to learning about the university's research results," said Robert Fischer Jr., president of Agway's agricultural group and vice chairman of the UD board of trustees.

The Campaign for Delaware, which will begin its third year in October, is a five-year capital campaign aimed at developing sources of income for the UD.

At present, the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources exceeds $10 million in commitments, with a goal of $15.45 million.

NEWARK OUTLOOK

Dogwood gets spots

Any time we have a damp growing season, we can expect to see more fungal disease on plants in our lawns and gardens. Two leaf spot diseases of dogwood are of concern, though one is dangerous to the tree and the other is not.

Discula anthracnose of flowering dogwood first hit the news about 12 years ago with tales of extensive affliction and death among woodland dogwood trees. Scientists soon learned that the relatively cooler and more humid atmosphere in the understory could predispose dogwood to infection. Landscaped dogwoods standing out in the open were less likely to be affected.

By Jo Mercer

This year, with the frequent periods of cool damp weather, even some of the lawn trees have more discula anthracnose than usual. Discula anthracnose works its way up from the lower branches. In the cool spring and fall, the leaves (and flowers) develop tan spots that have purplish rims. The dead tissue in the tan spot may fall out, leaving a shot hole effect on the leaf.

Heavy infections can also cause large blotches of dead tissue in the leaf and along the edges. Blighted leaves become grayed and droop, and may not fall off in the autumn. The infection can also get into the stems, blocking the flow of water. The resulting canker causes the twig to die, often at a node where the leaves would sprout.

Dead twigs stimulate the growth of suckers, or epicormic shoots, on the trunk and larger branches below the dead and dying twigs. These leaves and shoots are very prone to infection and become the prime entry of discula anthracnose into the main branches and trunk. Once the disease gets this far, it's essentially the end of the tree. Weak, drought stressed trees are more prone to discula anthracnose infection.

Responsible watering and mulching will go a long way to keep dogwoods healthy and infection resistant. Fungicides are effective at reducing infection—chlorothalonil is one—when applied in the spring 3 or 4 times during leaf expansion and other times in the season when cool, wet conditions prevail.

The less harmful, but similar looking foliar disease is called spot anthracnose or Elsinore leaf spot. It thrives under moist growing conditions. Spot anthracnose has tan spots that are less than 1/8 inch across, have maroon borders and show tiny black fungal fruiting bodies on the upper surface of the lesion.

The fungal fruiting bodies of discula anthracnose are on the underside. Spot anthracnose is a purely cosmetic disease that is not harmful to the tree's health. A spray program such as that used against discula anthracnose would provide control.

For more information about this and other lawn and garden topics, contact the Garden Line at 831-8862 or email garden-line@udel.edu

Service under fire

Army Spec. Charles B. Maddox, a graduate of Newark High School, didn't expect his weapon in the military to be a pickaxe.

Military firefighters like Maddox were on 20-man teams with an experienced firefighter advisor.

Firefighters in the western United States came from all walks of life, including the U.S. Army.

Special to the Newark Post
By Keith Thompson

It's a cunning enemy fighting on its home turf. It slinks silently through the forest, challenging the soldiers fighting it to even find it. It goes unnoticed until it strikes, and in a matter of seconds, turns a spruce tree into a towering inferno or silently topples several hundred pounds of smoldering fir.

Fighting a 30,000-acre fire is a dangerous, daunting task, but the son of a New Castle man traded his M-16 for a pick and shovel to take on one of the biggest blazes in Idaho history.

Army Spec. Charles B. Maddox, son of Charles B. Maddox III, of New Castle, was a part of the more than 560-man strong task force from Fort Hood, Texas, deployed to Idaho to help out with the fires that ravaged more than 335,000 acres in the state.

"In Idaho my mission is to help control the fires that they have blazing in their forests," explained the 1997 graduate of Newark High School as he worked at the scene. "We're trying to prevent the fires from reaching any nearby cities and to save as much of the forest as possible."

The task force was broken down into 20-man fire teams, each with an experienced firefighter advisor. The teams went into the woods to primarily mop up sections that had possible hot spots that could ignite again or dig new fire lines.

The soldier firefighter's presence freed up the Forest Service crews to take on other assignments.

The addition of two 500-soldier task forces, one from Fort Hood, Texas, and one from Fort Campbell, Ky., to help in Montana, along with Marines out of Camp Pendleton, Calif., helping at the Clear Creek fire in Idaho, gave a much needed helping hand to the nation's force of civilian wildfire fighters.

In all, more than 2,700 active duty, reserve and National Guard service members assisted with 85 major wildfires burning up the West.

Although Maddox was called upon to help with what Forest Service officials are calling the worst Western fire season in 50 years, he spends the majority of his time in the Army as cannon crewmember with the Third Battalion, 16th Field Artillery Regiment.

"I'm a cannon crewman," said Maddox. "I shoot projectiles out of an M109A6 Paladin self-propelled Howitzer."

While it's not the type of battle Maddox trains for as part of the fourth Infantry Division, working at more than 7,500 feet in the rugged landscape of the Payette National Forest provided him with plenty of challenges. If the fire didn't get him, altitude sickness or injury just might.

Getting to the fire lines was just one challenge. For Maddox, the journey entailed a two-hour truck ride along with a two-hour knee-and ankle-breaking trek through a mountainous, scorched landscape. If his fire team "spiked out," Maddox stayed on the fire lines overnight in a two-man pup tent.

The days were long, and the work was hot and dirty, but for many of the soldiers, helping protect America's national forests was a very satisfying experience.

"This is a different mission for me compared to what I normally do," said Maddox. "It's tiring and stressful, but we have to protect our American people. This goes to show that there aren't too many obstacles or missions where our country's Army can't compete."

Visit the train station museum tomorrow

As I began to prepare for today's column about a museum which offers us a glance at the past, present and future, I began to muse on the changing faces and venues of museums in general. Before I get to Toman's Topic for Today, I would like to share those musings with you and encourage you to consider the same thoughts.

When I was a child, museums had a universal appearance. They were huge, generally with large columns and large front doors. They were places in which to either be quiet or whisper your questions and responses. Guards glared at you every minute and you felt about as welcome as the plague.

It was the only place in the entire world where boys were encouraged to keep their hands IN their pockets! True or not true for you?

Consider my early museum trips. I had an aunt who lived in the city so she escorted little Philip to the Metropolitan on Fifth Avenue. When we visited Philadelphia, it was out the Parkway to the Art Museum. In Washington...well, you get the idea.

In my opinion, museums have changed for the better. They are showing up in venues which would have been unthinkable 200 years ago when I was a little boy.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

Today there are even some part-time museums, getting extra service out of existing buildings, and their topics they cover range far afield. Which brings me to my subject for today.

For 364 days a year, the building which will become a museum tomorrow is Amtrak's eighth busiest passenger station. I refer to Pennsylvania Station at Front and French Streets in Wilmington. To be certain, the trains will all be running tomorrow but, thanks to many people and many organizations, Saturday will find the Annual Delaware Transportation Day in full swing where we will see the past, the present and the future of travel and vehicles of travel and enjoy a special excursion trip on the rails.

Transportation Day is the result of efforts on the part of DeDOT, Delaware Transit Corp., Amtrak, SEPTA, Norfolk Southern, CSX, Wilmington & Western Railroad, Delaware Rail Passenger Association, Operation Lifesaver and many more.

Included in views of the past will be a live steam engine, Wilmington & Western's No. 58, pulling its train in and out of the station. It will be on view with a head of steam up all day long to give visitors a chance to experience the sights, sounds and, yes, smells of steam railroading.

A picture of No. 58 being cleaned for tomorrow's events in the railroad's Marshallton Yards, is with my column today.

As another locomotive from the past, The National Railway Historical Society will have two of its beautifully refurbished FP-7 Diesels in the former Reading Railroad livery. Of course there will be many exhibits, too.

Both Amtrak and SEPTA will offer views of present day railroading and you can see their scheduled trains arriving and departing Penn Station throughout the day as well. SEPTA is offering an excursion ride from Wilmington along the banks of the beautiful Delaware River into Pennsylvania and return. Again, there will be exhibits of present day railroading too.

I would mention one exhibit from the future of railroading due at Transportation Day and that is Amtrak's RS Acela cars soon due to be racing at 150 miles an hour from Boston to Washington along the Northeast Corridor. There will be more.

One of the nicest things about the annual event according to DTC's Doug Andrews...is the fact that it is all free! That's right, the exhibits on the rails, the model trains and all the other displays are all free all day long. Doug does know how to get our attention, doesn't he?

There are also exhibits of land and water transportation in the parking lots and the Christina River behind Penn Station. There is something for everyone and the event goes on rain or shine! Of course, there will be refreshments for sale.

Baldwin-built Locomotive 58 belonging to the Wilmington & Western Railroad gets up a head of steam after being cleaned and polished for tomorrow's appearance at Delaware Transportation Day to be held at Pennsylvania Station in Wilmington. It will be the central focus of the "Railroads of Yesterday" exhibit at Transportation Day.

Visit this unusual "museum" and see if you don't agree that the face of museums is changing. And your whole family can have a great time as well!

A Tip of The Toman Topper to all those individuals and organizations, many of whom are volunteers, who make Transportation Day possible each year. We are all in your debt.

Toman has been a columnist for the Newark Post since 1969. An enthusiastic supporter of the arts locally, he has a vast knowledge of the arts in the mid-Atlantic region. He and his wife, Marie, are longtime residents of Newark.

Candlelight Theatre has new owners

After 31 successful years of providing quality entertainment at the Candlelight Music Dinner Theatre, the O'Tooles have retired. John and Lena O'Toole, along with the late Julian Borris, founded the dinner theatre in 1969.

The operation of the dinner theatre at 2208 Millers Road in Ardentown is being assumed by Ennio J. diGenova and Kathleen Nadolny of The Candlelight Production Group Inc.

A lifetime resident of Wilmington, diGenova majored in music at the University of Delaware. He is a professional musician and has been involved on-stage and off-stage with many area performing arts organizations including The Brandywiners Ltd., Candlelight Music Dinner Theatre, ATA, OperaDelaware and Mid-Atlantic Ballet.

A graduate of Salesianum High School, he was the vice-president of the Salesianum Alumni Theatre board of directors and established the Eddy diGenova Music Scholarship Fund at the school.

He is a long-time member of The Brandywiners Ltd. and presently serves as a member of the board and sings with The Brandywiners' Chorale.

Nadolny's experience includes management positions with the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Ballet and Arts United of Greater Fort Wayne. Before relocating to Delaware five years ago, she spent eight years as program manager for Fort Wayne Public Television and chaired Fort Wayne's Three Rivers Festival of the Arts.

After arriving in Delaware, she served as the education coordinator for OperaDelaware and then established her own marketing and design business. In 1997, Nadolny helped found the Mid-Atlantic Ballet in Newark. She has performed with Arena Dinner Theatre of Fort Wayne, Ind., Fort Wayne Ballet, The Brandywiners Ltd., ATA, Candlelight Music Dinner Theatre, and The Brandywiners' Chorale.

The partners plan to carry forth the legacy established at Candlelight Music Dinner Theatre through continuing to present popular works from the musical theatre repertoire, as well as audience participation murder-mysteries, comedies and revues.

FAIR HILL INTERNATIONAL

Fair Hill International's 1999 Champion David O'Conner Wins Gold in Sydney Olympic Games

Sydney, Australia - September 28, 2000 - Fair Hill International favorite David O'Conner won the first Olympic Gold Medal for the United States Equestrian Team (USET) since 1984 when he clinched the individual eventing championship on Custom Made, a 15-year-old, Irish Thoroughbred gelding owned by Xandarius, LLC.

O'Conner, who took the top prize at the 1999 Fair Hill International on Rattle & Hum, finished the three-phase Olympic competition with a score of 34.00 penalties, the best score in Olympic history.

For O'Conner, the Gold Medal topped a historic week. On Wednesday, O'Conner turned in the best eventing dressage score in Olympic history when he opened the individual competition with a score of 29.00 penalties. On Tuesday, he made history by sharing an Olympic medal (team Bronze) with his wife Karen for the second time. (They shared the eventing team Silver in 1996).

Additionally, O'Conner now has won three Olympic Medals (1996 team Silver, 2000 team Bronze and individual Gold), two Pan American Games medals (1999 team Gold and individual Silver) and one World Championship medal (1998 team Bronze) since 1996.

Nina Fout, who joined the O'Connors in earning a team Bronze medal in Sydney, and Julie Black, who finished 9th in the Olympic individual eventing competition, have already filed entries to compete at the Fair Hill International in Fair Hill, MD on October 27-30, 2000. The O'Connors are also expected to return to Fair Hill, where David can defend his USET Three-Day Event Fall Championship title, and all the Olympic riders can expect a resounding "welcome home" from the Fair Hill crowd.

The Fair Hill International brings Olympic veterans and other world class equestrian athletes in combined driving and eventing to the beautiful Maryland countryside. In addition to hosting the USET Three-Day Event Fall Championship, the Fair Hill International also hosts the final leg of the Jaguar Triple Crown of Driving, the USET Four-In-Hand Driving Championship and the USET Pairs Driving Championship.

While enjoying the world-class equestrian competition, families can also enjoy the "Festival in the Country" which features Country Shops, a Classic Car Exhibition, and a specialty gourmet food court. Spectators will enjoy watching the exciting United States Dog Agility Association (USDAA) Trials and the Dog Agility National Championship.

Tickets for the Fair Hill International are $8 for adults per day or $20 for a four-day pass. Children 12 and under are admitted free. All events and activities take place rain or shine. For more information, contact the Fair Hill International at (410) 755-6065 or www.fairhillinternational.com.

POST GAME

Intensity is key to football's best

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

If you want to know why Newark and Middletown continue to win year after year, you don't have to look any further than at the intensity with which these two programs bring to the game.

Sure, both programs have talent. Sure, they get some transfers.

But what really sets them apart from other teams is how hard they play — every play every game.

Just ask St. Mark's coach Vinnie Scott or Caesar Rodney coach John Covaleski about Newark.

Valania

After each of the last two weeks' games with Newark, both coaches singled out the Yellowjackets' intensity. And it wasn't like both coaches just threw those comments out there. They were made with almost awe.

"They're at another level of intensity," Scott said after watching the Jackets dismantle his Spartans. "They play unbelievably hard on every play and right up to the whistle. They had linemen chasing down the field trying to make blocks on every play. Their intensity is overwhelming."

Covaleski said much of the same thing last week. Middletown is doing the same thing in Division II. They're overwhelming people with talent and intensity.

The only team to come anywhere close to matching Newark's intensity was Middletown — and that was in the first scrimmage of preseason. The Cavaliers were much harder and more intense than either of the last two opponents Newark has played.

Caravel was supposed to be a big test for Middletown. So, what happens.

Middletown goes out and beats them 32-0. Not even close.

Newark has posted 35-0 leads against two of the state's biggest and best programs in the last two weeks. That's meant a running clock in the second half. Newark also waffled a good Salesianum team 32-0.

These two programs are good because their coaching staffs are able to get their players to play the hardest on the most consistent basis.

"We play with a passion," Newark coach Butch Simpson said after the St. Mark's game. "Your best players are the ones that set the tone and we have a number of guys that love to play the game."

That's certainly evident and that's the biggest reason why these two teams will be in contention for their fourth straight state titles.

Newark earns national ranking

In addition to being top ranked in the state of Delaware, the Yellowjackets received votes in the Rivals.com National High School Top 25.

Newark came in ranked 34th nationally.

Central Bucks West (Pa.), Erie Cathedral Prep (Pa.) and Hackensack (N.J.) are the only other teams from the Northeast receiving recognition. Go to www.firststatesports.com to see the whole poll.

Newark keeps rolling, beats St. Mark's

Jackets post third straight lopsided win

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Finding an opposing team that will force it to play four quarters of football may be the Newark High football team's biggest test of the season.

The Yellowjackets whipped

St. Mark's 49-14 Friday night at Baynard Stadium for its third lopsided victory of the young season. The game also marked the second straight week the Jackets built a 35-0 halftime lead, forcing a running clock for the entire second half.

As it has all season, Newark dominated all phases of the game in dismantling the Spartans. Newark outthit, outmuscled, outran and outpassed St. Mark's as it did to Salesianum (a 32-0 win) and CR (38-0) before.

"That's one of the better football teams I've seen in a long time," said St. Mark's coach Vinnie Scott. "They're at another level. They're intensity is overwhelming."

Newark made it look easy, scoring on its first possession of the contest. Quarterback Eric Spiese threw a perfect 29-yard fade pass to John Parkinson, who did a nice job of making the catch and keeping his feet in bounds in the corner of the end zone. John Brayman added the first of seven extra points on the night to give the Jackets a 7-0 lead.

A minute later Newark struck again as Nelson Drew ripped off a 27-yard touchdown run. The run was set up by Drew Kisner's 35-yard punt return. Drew added a 47-yard touchdown run in the second quarter. He ended the night with 136 yards on 13 carries — all in the first half.

Fullback Brandon Snow also scored on a two-yard run in the second quarter and Drew Kisner added a 50-yard interception return for a score.

"I really thought we played a good half in all phases of the game," Newark coach Butch Simpson said of his team's dominating first half performance. "I was happy we came out ready to play and not satisfied with what we had done so far. I was glad we were able to establish our intensity on offense, defense and special teams."

Newark's lead grew to 42-0 as Pete Callahan picked up a fumble and returned it 25 yards for a touchdown. Alex Thomas added Newark's final touchdown on a four-yard run.

St. Mark's did become the first team to score on Newark this season as it converted on two long touchdown passes against the Newark backups. Starting quarterback Mike Lemon threw a 63-yard touchdown pass to Tom

NEWARK VOLLEYBALL KEEPS WINNING

The Newark High volleyball team continued its strong start to the season with a 2-0 victory over Christiana High last Friday afternoon at Christiana.

Vikings knock off Dragons

Christiana gets first win of the season

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

It took three weeks, but the Christiana High football team that many expected to see this season finally showed up.

The Vikings, reeling after two straight losses, regrouped and rolled over Flight A and Christina District rival Glasgow 32-6 Saturday afternoon at Coder Field. A dominating defense and a scintillating performance by senior halfback Danny Foster (217 yards on 13 carries) were keys to the Vikings' physical performance. Some team meetings and a new attitude were keys to the team's improved mental state.

It took just one offensive play for Christiana to see its luck had changed. Fullback Kevin Ransome went up the middle and fumbled. Instead of Glasgow falling on the ball like Dover had at the beginning of last week's game, the ball bounced right to Foster who sprinted 80 yards for a touchdown.

"We never get breaks like that," said a very happy Christiana coach Marvin Spence. "We've had no good luck and to have that happen was a help for us."

Contrary to the Vikings' good luck, the play signaled more bad luck for the Dragons.

"If that first play goes the other way, maybe it gives us a little bit of confidence," said Glasgow coach Mark DelPercio. "We need to have some luck go our way. We need some things to go our way."

Christiana improved its lead to 12-0 when Ransome capped a seven-play, 49-yard drive with a two-yard scoring run with 3:27 to play in the second quarter.

The second half began almost identically as the first. There was no fumble for Foster to pick up as he got a direct hand off and raced

Hens to host Northeastern

UD rips West Chester 84-0

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

While it is still only September, after the last two weeks it's going to be hard for fans not to get excited about the University of Delaware football team.

The Blue Hens (4-0) followed up a 44-14 romp over fourth-ranked Hofstra with an 84 (gasp)-0 pasting of neighborhood nemesis West Chester last Saturday night. The point total and winning margin set numerous school records, but more importantly it showed this team — as some in the past have — will not take any nights off.

That's a good sign for Hens' fans as there are no more West Chesters left on the schedule. Five of the seven remaining Delaware foes are ranked in the Top 25, and they're all Atlantic-10 games.

"Week in, week out, there's a lot of pressure," Delaware coach Tubby Raymond said of the rest of the regular-season schedule. "There's a lot of pressure, a lot of pounding. We had a tough game against a hard team like the Citadel and then had to go on the road and play the No. 4 team in the country. The Atlantic-10 schedule is so tough. It's an incredulous league."

Delaware's next test comes against Atlantic-10 foe Northeastern. The Huskies (3-1), under first-year coach Don Brown, already have more wins this month than they were able to get all of last season.

Northeastern trailed the season with two lopsided victories over American International (48-7) and Albany (63-14). The Huskies then stepped up in class and knocked off former Atlantic-10 rival Connecticut, who moved up to Division I-A this season. Northeastern trailed UConn 27-15 at halftime but rallied for a 35-27 win.

"Northeastern hasn't won a

Newark field hockey off to great start

The Newark High field hockey team is off to one of its best starts in years. The Yellowjackets have posted a 4-0-1 record so far this young season.

The team has improved gradually over the past three seasons and its hard work appears to have paid off this year.

Newark knocked off Glasgow 2-1 to start the year and then played an always-tough William Penn team to a 3-3 tie.

Next, Newark District rival Christina District rival Christiana 4-0. The Jackets then rolled over Middletown 7-1 and St. Elizabeth 4-0.

Jessica Coombs has led the Jackets in scoring with 11 goals so far this season.

The hockey team will take on Mount Pleasant Friday afternoon at Mount Pleasant and Christina District rival Glasgow Wednesday afternoon at home.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

DANNY FOSTER — CHRISTIANA

One of the big reasons that the Christiana High football team finally got its first victory of the season was the play of senior running back Danny Foster.

Foster rushed for 217 yards and two touchdowns on just 13 carries against Glasgow last Saturday. In addition, Foster set a up another touchdown with a long kickoff return that would have also gone for a touchdown except for a penalty near the end of the run.

Even more important than his yards were the touchdowns and when they came.

Foster's first score came on the Vikings' first play from scrimmage. It also came in an unconventional way as he picked up a fumble by teammate Kevin Ransome and bolted 80 yards for the score.

"We don't ever get any breaks like that," said Christiana coach Marvin Spence. "That was important for us."

Foster also scored on the Vikings' first offensive play of the second half. This time it was an 83-yard run.

And when Glasgow appeared to be getting back into the game with a touchdown, Foster returned the Dragons' kickoff for 80 yards and another score. A penalty late in the run brought the ball back to the Glasgow 16-yard line, but it set up another touchdown that really sealed the Christiana victory.

"Danny Foster is a special back," Spence said. "He can do those kinds of things."

Christiana gets first victory

► VIKINGS from 12

83 yards for a touchdown. Will Milem's run for the two-point conversion was successful and the Vikings lead was 20-0.

Glasgow showed some signs of life by answering the Christiana score with one of its own. Quarterback David Ayers threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to Tom DeSanto to cut the lead to 20-6 and appeared to be back in the game.

That changed on the ensuing kick off as Foster returned it 80 yards for an apparent touchdown. A penalty toward the end of the run brought the ball back to the 14, but it took just three plays for quarterback Jeff Tatnall to run the ball into the end zone for another Christiana score. Ransome added another two-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter to provide the final margin.

"I feel really good for these kids," Spence said. "We really came together this week. We had meetings and really tried to stress that we were a family. That togetherness hadn't been there in the first two weeks and we missed it. I think we had it there [against Glasgow] and it showed.

"Everybody had to take a look at themselves and try to make improvements. I'm really proud of the effort. It was our first Flight A game and we can still have a successful season."

Christiana has next week off before playing Delcastle Oct. 7. Glasgow had a short week of preparation before having to play powerful Sussex Central Thursday night.

Newark stays undefeated with victory

► NEWARK, from 12

Russo for the Spartans' first score. Freshman Joe Wright then threw a 76-yard scoring pass to Robb Mullen.

"We play with passion," Simpson said trying to explain his team's superior intensity. "Your best players are the ones that set the tone. We're fortunate to have some very good players that just love to play the game. That's how they practice and that type of attitude rubs off on everybody. It's the players that bring that intensity. That's the type of people we have."

Newark has this week off while St. Mark's takes on William Penn.

Local youths win Punt, Pass & Kick

More than 20 children took part in the NFL Gatorade Punt, Pass and Kick competition hosted by the Newark Parks and Recreation.

In the girls division, Megan Brown won the age 8-9 category, Dana Griskowitz won the 10-11 age group and Sarah Reeves won the 12-13 age group.

Billy Wessels won the 8-9 year-old boys division, Taylor Brown captured the age 10-11 division, Michael Ingram II won the 12-13 age group and Jonathan Lanouette won the age 14-15 group.

The seven winners will move on to a sectional competition to be held Oct. 22 at Wesley College. They could qualify for the team championship competition to be held at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium Dec. 3 in conjunction with the Philadelphia Eagles game against the Tennessee Titans.

The NFL Gatorade Punt, Pass and Kick football competition allows youngsters to showcase their talents in punting, passing and placekicking with scores based on distance and accuracy.

Many Annuity Owners Lose Money. Do you?

Many annuity owners lose 75% of the value of their annuity when it pays off! Will this happen to you?

It's true. Annuities and IRAs can be double-taxed assets (subject to income taxes PLUS estate taxes). After estate taxes and income taxes, there can be as little as 25% of the value remaining. You can learn how to avoid the loss in the FREE educational booklet "Annuity Owner Mistakes." The booklet is free and shows how to avoid double taxation and get more benefits from your existing annuity value.

Hens defense nationally ranked

► HENS, from 12

big game in a long time." Brown said of the victory over UConn. "We needed to get that to prove to our players that we belong."

Offensively, the Huskies return a host of players from last season and have added I-A transfer Logan Galli at quarterback. Galli connected on 22-of-30 passes for 231 yards and three touchdowns against UConn.

"We have a veteran group on offense with the big addition of Logan Galli," Brown said. "The biggest difference is that we've been able to run the ball better."

T.J. McKanas racked up a career high 225 yards on 47 carries at Connecticut.

"Northeastern is a good football team," Raymond said. "They have 11 starters back from last season and another 10 that were second team on the depth chart last year. This is a very experienced football team. They have a good quarterback, a good running game and they have a hardness about them."

Defensively, the Huskies aren't quite as experienced. They start seven sophomores on the defensive side of the ball. They were, however, able to shut UConn out in the second half of last week's victory.

Despite being in his first year, Brown, who formerly was a defensive coordinator at Massachusetts, is familiar with the Blue Hens.

"They're exceptional on defense," said Brown, who echoed the pre-game thoughts of the last three coaches the Hens have played. "And, obviously, discipline and reading keys is the key to trying to play defense against them. They put a tremendous product on the field."

Tubby defends West Chester

In lieu of the large margin of victory last Saturday, Raymond was forced to field questions about, not only running up the score but, playing West Chester at all.

"That's just one game in 33 years," Raymond said. "They've beaten us before and we've played a lot of close games against them. Plus, look around and see who some of the other teams are playing.

"Villanova plays Millersville and Norfolk State, UMass plays New Haven and American International, Maine plays Kutztown, James Madison plays Lock Haven and Youngstown State plays Slippery Rock and Edinboro."

Don't look for the series to end any time soon.

Hens drop to No. 8

Believe it or not, Delaware dropped a spot in the national rankings - from No. 7 to No. 8 - after its top-sided victory.

Appalachian State, which beat The Citadel 61-14, moved from No. 8 to No. 7.

Butter Pressey rushed for 94 yards on eight carries and needs just four yards to surpass the 1,000 yard mark for his career... Delaware has never lost to Northeastern, winning all seven of the previous meetings... The Delaware defense ranks third nationally in rushing defense (55.3 yards per game), scoring defense (5.3 points per game).

With Newark and Christiana having open dates and Glasgow hosting Sussex Central Thursday night, this weekend's schedule of games is relatively light. Nevertheless, we'll take a stab at picking them.

ST. MARK'S (2-1) VS. WILLIAM PENN (1-1)

- Friday night at Baynard Stadium, 7. Both teams are coming off old-fashioned butt kickings last week. The Spartans were hammered 49-14 by top-ranked Newark while the Colonials were beaten soundly 21-0 by Salesianum. This is a big game for both teams. The loser will have a tough time qualifying for the state tournament. William Penn needs to show it can play well enough to compete in Flight A. This has all the makings of a good high school game. We think that William Penn may bounce back better, though. The Pick: William Penn 15, St. Mark's 14.

HODGSON (2-1) AT LAUREL (1-2)

- Friday night at Laurel, 7:30. The Silver Eagles suffered their first loss of the season last week to Delcastle. Laurel has had a tough season so far, losing its first two games. Following its game against the Bulldogs, Hodgson has two big back-to-back conference games against Howard and Middletown. Look for the Silver Eagles to tune up for those games. The Pick: Hodgson 27, Laurel 14.

CARAVEL (1-2) VS. RIVERDALE BAPTIST

- Friday night at Peoples Stadium, 7. The Bucos must find a way to bounce back from its 32-0 loss to powerful Middletown last week. Riverdale Baptist is a team that it has handled in the past and we don't expect that to change this season. Caravel must have a good showing to get its season headed back in the right direction. The Pick: Caravel 34, Riverdale Baptist 18.

High school baseball players get scholarship opportunity

The Roberto Clemente All-Stars are now recruiting baseball players to participate in intensive six-day instructional camps to be held this winter.

The camps, which will take place Dec. 26-31, in Miami and Phoenix, offer unique opportunities for players to showcase their talents before some of the country's top college coaches.

The Arizona camp will be at the spring training home of the Chicago Cubs, and the Florida camp will be at the former home of the USA National Team. The staff will include major league scouts and college coaches. To take advantage of this opportunity, call 1-800-723-6398 and receive a free application.

JOB OPPORTUNITY

Chesapeake Publishing Corp.'s respected community newspapers-The Newark Post and The Route 40 Flier-has the following immediate full-time opening:

ASSISTANT EDITOR

Founded in 1994, The Route 40 Flier has become an important "house organ" to residents of the fast-growing, suburban Delaware communities of Bear and Glasgow. This is a beginning editor's position, where a qualified candidate can cut their editorial teeth in a safe, supportive newsroom environment. In addition to reporting and writing, this working editor is responsible for processing and making decisions involving processing of all copy, editorials, story selection and page design of the weekly. Works closely with the hands-on publisher and fellow editors in the busy Newark office. A perfect position for career growth for a journalist with "street smarts" and proven ability to write and report.

The best candidate must possess a keen interest in community journalism, and be able to work independently in a busy, but small and spirited newspaper office. The position offers a competitive salary and all Chesapeake Publishing Corporation benefits, including Blue Cross/Blue Shield group medical coverage and 401K.

The newspaper works out of offices that are conveniently located just off I-95 near the University of Delaware's Bob Carpenter Center.

Qualified applicants for this position should immediately forward a resume detailing their experience and clips to:

LOOKING FOR INN-EXPERIENCED PEOPLE!

Hospitality Help Wanted

Come for a rewarding career. Sandy Cove Ministries, one of the largest Christian Conference Centers in the United States, is looking for people who want to work in an environment that is challenging and fulfilling.

Housekeepers - Morning housekeepers and day/evening Lobby help wanted. Make the stay for our guests a memorable experience.

Conference Services - Join our team and help service our guests by setting up their conference facilities and responding to their immediate needs. Applicants must like to work with people and be able to prioritize and carry out multiple activities. Experience not required but customer service and knowledge of sound systems helpful.

Front Desk - We want glowing faces to greet our guests as they arrive, provide them with room assignments, work the switchboard, and take reservations over the phone. Computer experience necessary.
