As Fire Chief; Doyle, Allen Smith, Sam Gray Re-elected

A new president and new fire chief for the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company were named last Friday night with the annual election of Newark's volunteer fire department. Charles Wollaston was elected president, succeeding Olan R. Thomas; and Clifton Knotts was elected fire chief, succeeding George W. Smith. Neither Thomas nor Smith were candidates for reelection to these offices.

William M. Doyle was re-elected as vice-president; Financial Secretary Allen E. Smith and Treasurer Sam Gray were re-elected; and Olan Thomas was elected recording secretary. Directors elected to serve two-year terms are Robert Cook, George Cullen, Joe Moore, and James Wood, while James Mullen was elected a director for one year to fill an unexpired term.

Holdover directors who have another year to serve, are Charles Eissner, John List, and Henry Van Name.

Deputies
Frank Beers and Andy Walp were elected deputy fire chiefs; John and William C. Smith as first assistants; and Walter Seydell and Richard Shannon, second assistant chiefs.

Deputy and assistant chiefs will be assigned to each of the two Aetna fire stations—on Academy Street and Ogletown Road.

Herman Gray was elected chief engineer for the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company.

Retiring President Olan Thomas announced a total of $29,325 contributed to the current annual fund drive—contributions in excess of the $25,000 goal.

Thomas expressed satisfaction of the Aetnamen for public support of Newark's volunteer fire department, and said that funds in excess of the goal would be applied to purchase of a new fire engine pumper next year.

Kirkwood Highway Widening Expected Complete By Fall

Additional Traffic Lights,
Third Lane For Turn-Offs
Scheduled For 11,100-Ft.

Addressing a public meeting last Monday night at Cranston Heights, State Highway Department representatives said that proposed $600,000 widening and improvement of two miles of Kirkwood Highway could be finished by next fall.

Ernest S. Davidson, department director of operations, admitted that Kirkwood Highway is "one of our biggest headaches," and said many intangibles will influence the work.

He and Joe S. Robinson, chief engineer, agreed that if contracts can be signed by spring, the work could be completed by late fall.

The plans call for widening sections of the highway over a stretch of 11,100 feet west of St. James Church Road to near Prices Corner, depending on availability of funds.

A third lane will be added in some sections to allow turns without slowing traffic. A particular problem is near the Almart store, where there is a possibility the entrance will be moved.

Turning points would be protected by traffic signals so an increase of lights is expected.

Davidson said the 1963 average daily traffic count for the highway was 23,000 west of the Newport Gap Pike and 25,000 east of it, with the traffic increasing 6 or 7 per cent a year.

Sky Dive, Rainbow Climax Wedding At Wiggan Home

A perfect rainbow across the sky, and an airman parachuting with a bottle of champagne from a plane at 3,000-ft. to land on the lawn amid the guests last Saturday afternoon, provided pleasant, unexpected climax for the wedding party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wiggan in Christiana Manor.

The rainbow—an appropriate symbol of beauty and hope for the newly-married couple—was uncheduled, but arrangements for the sky diver had been made by the best man—Lt. Jack Tiffany, stationed at Aberdeen, Md.

The lieutenant had requested Jack Demme, a Baltimore parachuting enthusiast, to make the jump, and Ned Surratt of the Edgewood (Md.) Flying Club, to pilot the plane.

Both completed—Ned Surratt gave three passes over the Wiggan lawn to gauge wind and range with a white sheet target on the lawn below serving as a puzzle for the assembled guests—and on the third pass, a red chute blossomed out in the sunset sky.

Very shortly thereafter, Jack Demme landed on the lawn with a cold bottle of sparkling grape vintage extract held safely aloft.

"I jump for fun—have never made a nickel at it," the handsome, big, young parachutist said. "I didn't even know anyone at the wedding."

But he soon became acquainted last Saturday afternoon.

Patricia Robinson

Miss Robinson performed an acrobatic dance in the talent test.

Lillian D'Amico, Wilmington High School dancer, won the Delaware Junior Miss title and trip to Mobile, Ala., where she will compete with other state titliss in the March 12-20 national pageant with $14,000 in scholarships to be awarded.

"Too Old" For College In Early 1900s, Karl Herrmann Returns To Campus At 83

"You're too old to go to college," Karl L. Herrmann in the early 1900s. He ignored their advice and went to Delaware College, earning two degrees—in mechanical and electrical engineering.

Now 83, with a career as engineer, inventor, and consultant behind him, Karl Herrmann has returned to the University of Delaware as an extension student, and he's wondering what his friends of 60 years ago would say today.

He's taking extension courses in Russian history, basic economics, oral communications in business and industry, and advanced composition.

Three of the classes meet at night and the writing course is Saturday morning.

Mr. Herrmann confessed to some difficulty in getting back into the routine of study—"too many outside things creep in"—but said he has liked that problem. He's been looking for a challenge.

Born in Germany, he moved to the United States as a child and spent his early life on a farm on the outskirts of Wilmington. His father, who died in 1900 when Karl was 18, was a stone mason and farmer, and Karl helped keep the farm going.

Working order, taking them apart each winter to clean and repair them.

His pre-college career as a young machinist boomed—mainly because he accepted—and conquered—such new challenge in a series of jobs. He worked in Wilmington, York, Philadelphia and other eastern cities, adding to his versatile skills with each job.

On one of the jobs, he roomed with a student from MIT, and formal education beckoned. He had been taking correspondence courses and night schoolwork, but wanted a degree.

Speedy tutoring helped him meet entrance requirements at Delaware College and in 1904 he became a college student despite friends' advice.

Three years later he earned a degree in mechanical engineering, and in 1907, received a degree in electrical engineering.

Participating groups under the direction of Jane Cooper and Harley S. Hastings, will be the A-Cappella Choir, the Madrigal Singers, the Girls Chorus, and the Woodwind Ensemble.

Lois Nelson and Sharon Walstrum will be accompanists.

With something to appeal to everyone, an opening choral fantasy of old carols—"Christmas Day"—will feature soloists Ann Hanev, Norris Saunders, Edward Sabrowski, Loretta George, and David Hudey.

Featured soloists Judith McVey and Gerald Brunner, will present the "Shepherd's Story" by DeKerens, and the Woodwind Ensemble will play Leroy Anderson's "Suite of Carols."

The A-Cappella Choir will sing Rachmaninoff's "Ave Marie," an early 16th century French chanson, and a group of contemporary tunes including "Wolcum Yole" and "This Little Babe" from "A Ceremony of Carols."

The Girls Chorus will sing a group of carols dating back to the 15th century in an arrangement by Cope. A special arrangement by John Work of a negro spiritual, "Wasn't That a Mighty Day," will complete the choral offerings.

Audience participation will include the singing of "O, Little Town of Bethlehem" and "Silent Night."

In Costa Rica
J. Caleb Boggs

Delaware's U. S. Senator J. Caleb Boggs addressed the Congress of Costa Rica last Friday evening, and told the 77-member Congress that the United States valued its long friendship with Costa Rica, "the heartland of Central America."

His trip was under auspices of International Christian Leadership, Inc., a non-denominational group which encourages prayer breakfasts and other religious exercises by world leaders.

Boggs also toured the Panama Canal Zone, and saw the volcano in Costa Rica which erupted a year ago and resulted in D-8 based cargo planes flying in supplies.

Former Foreign Students At NHS Receive
Hands-Across-The-Sea Holiday Greetings

"One of the nicest things Newark High School does at this time of year," says Dr. Frederick B. Kutz, principal, "is send greetings and a holiday letter from the staff and the student body to each of the American Field Service and foreign exchange students who have attended Newark High."

This hands-across-the-ocean greeting was begun in 1955 with Newark's first exchange student, Ferdinand Chaffart from Belgium.

From that first greeting has grown a tradition based on 14 pairs of hands joined in world-wide wishes for peace and happiness, with Newark High School the focal point.

Other students who have followed the first from Belgium, have come from Turkey, England, Indonesia,

Germany, Finland, Japan, Switzerland, South Africa, Norway, France, and Chile—and this year's foreign exchange student at Newark is Mira Bellotti of Italy.

Another of Newark High School's programs for sharing with others is the community Christmas basket project sponsored by the Student Council in cooperation with Mrs. J. Harvey Diecker, Newark Welfare League chairman.

Baskets of staples and food to provide holiday cheer for less fortunate members of the community will be placed around a Christmas tree in the main lobby of the school, and just before Christmas, the baskets will be taken from the school to the American Legion building for distribution.

NHS Class Of '64 Has 47% Enrolled In 4-Yr. Colleges

Russell Williams Reports
Graduate Study Completed;
17 In Military Service

Russell Williams, guidance counselor at Newark High School, has announced completion of the 1964 graduate study, an investigation conducted each year into the whereabouts and doings of the June graduates.

"The school's interest in the child does not stop when we present diplomas in June. It is an on-going interest. The graduate study program is one of our chief ways of gathering data to evaluate the effectiveness of the high school programs," Williams said.

According to Williams, 47 per cent of the class of 1964 is enrolled in a four-year college program, with one per cent enrolled in a two-year college, for a total of 48 per cent of the June graduates in full-time college attendance.

Seven members of the Class of 1964 are in military service.

Of graduates attending a four-year college, 63 per cent are enrolled at the University of Delaware, with the remaining 37 per cent spread over colleges from the University of Hawaii to Delaware State College in Dover.

Graduates attending business, nursing, vocational, or evening schools represent 11 per cent of the Class of 1964.

One-quarter of the class is employed on a full-time basis, and of this 25.3 per cent, three per cent is enrolled in evening classes.

The graduate study program at Newark High School is conducted by sending questionnaires to graduates with request for information. This information is checked against the student's desires and plans during high school days, by using cumulative record folders.

Both Williams and Mrs. Jeannette Wernitz, the two counselors at Newark High, point out the value of student comments in space provided on the survey forms, and thank those who participated, along with parents who relayed cards to the student at college or elsewhere.

48-Year Veteran
William A. Marrs
Retires From NVE

William A. Marrs, superintendent at National Vulcanized Fibre Company's Newark paper mill, has retired after 48 years service with NVE. He lives with his wife Edith, at 23 East Cleveland Avenue in Newark.

Marrs was a dinner arranged by fellow employees at the Horseshoe Carriage Restaurant in Ogletown last Tuesday. Marrs has been an active member of the Lions Club, Odd Fellows, and Industrial Management Club, and has been a member of the Paper Industry Management Association since 1927.

He has served as superintendent of NVE's Newark paper mill for 38 years.

NVE paper mills at Newark and Yorklyn supply cotton paper for manufacture of vulcanized fibre and industrial plastics by other company divisions.

NVE operates 11 plants in the United States and Canada, and has two plants near Lyons, France, producing industrial plastic materials and parts, materials handling containers and equipment, and fine papers.

Physician, state and local board of health officer, and Newark city councilman, Dr. John R. Downes served for years as medical doctor for Newark High School athletic teams, and was one of the Yellow-jackets' most loyal fans.

The Newark Lions Club also has suggested that the Newark Board of Education name the new school in Dr. Downes' honor.

Referendum On Public Housing Approved By 4-3 Council Vote

Public Opinion For Or Against Housing Program Slated
For Ballot With April Municipal Election; Attorney
For NHA Threatens Lawsuit With Plans For Referendum

Voters of Newark are to cast their ballots for or against public housing in the city, in conjunction with the municipal election of three councilmen next April, as the result of a 4-3 vote by Newark City Council at its regular meeting last Monday night. Councilmen Albert P. Chittenden, David H. Doehrlert, and Henry R. Folsom, Jr., opposed the referendum proposed by Councilman LeRoy C. Hill, Jr., and approved by Mayor Shields, Hill, and Councilmen William M. Coverdale and Olan R. Thomas.

"I know this housing has caused hard feelings . . ." Hill said. "Some people are vocal and others are not." He urged that the question of public housing for Newark be included with ballots "and decide it by referendum by the people of Newark next April . . . For or against public housing."

"Old Chestnut"
The greater portion of last Monday night's meeting was devoted to a discussion of the Public Housing Authority program in Newark, and Folsom introduced the topic with "This old chestnut—housing"—and the council and a pair of attorneys took it from there.

Concerning Coverdale's query of "do we have a valid contract or co-operation agreement if it was misrepresented at time of passage?" Folsom asked Solicitor Kenneth W. Lewis if "it is not the fact that the co-operation agreement is a valid contract?" And Lewis replied "In my opinion it is a valid document."

Referring to advice from Public Housing Authority officials, Folsom asked Lewis "Would abrogation of the agreement by the City of Newark constitute a breach of contract?" And Lewis replied "Probably."

Coverdale countered with "I don't appreciate the lack of truth" which Folsom attributed to his statements concerning misrepresentation with presentation of the co-operation agreement.

"Never at any time have I said that this was a valid legal opinion," Coverdale continued, citing his statements as those of a layman, not an attorney.

"I still contend—now more than ever—that this should be explored," Folsom said. "What misrepresentation do you have in mind?" and Solicitor Lewis interjected "The city had no liability as long as the Housing Authority went on." In reference to the $155,000 in federal funds expended and to be repaid by the city with termination of the public housing program.

Coverdale said "I think this should have been all brought out" at the time of passage of the agreement.

Misrepresentation?
"Mr. Coverdale says we should have been told something," Councilman Doehrlert declared. "Was there misrepresentation that invalidated the contract as of now?" he asked the solicitor. And Lewis said "No."

Doehrlert said that since there was "no question as to the legality of this agreement," termination would constitute "a breach of contract."

And Lewis opined that the co-operation agreement was "probably good."

Coverdale said that he had voted for the co-operation agreement and public housing program in Newark with the 6-0 balloting on the basis of what he was told. "I was misled," he said.

"It was pointed out that 'The federal housing people would never have come into Newark if you had not asked them,' and Hill said 'The genesis of this housing project came up as a local thing.'"

Coverdale claimed that "some 200 people were driven out of Newark because they could not qualify for low rent housing but could qualify for housing under Public Law 221."

He urged that the referendum proposed by Hill be held according to the Phillips Amendment. This amendment to the housing law has not been tested in court, Coverdale said. That may permit termination of agreement with the Public Housing Authority upon repayment of federal housing money expended prior to the vote.

"What good is this referendum?" Folsom asked. And Chittenden concurred with "Our lawyers already told us we cannot break this contract."

NHA Attorney Speaks
Arthur F. DiSabatino, attorney for the Newark Housing Authority, stated that the Phillips Amendment was not general law, and may be unconstitutional.

"If you proceed under the Phillips Amendment," he said, "you will be buying yourself a lawsuit."

DiSabatino was asked "Suppose the people rejected public housing, would the Authority proceed against the will of the people?"

And DiSabatino replied "The people would vote for an illegal act."

Doehrlert said that the city might then be involved in two court cases—breach of contract with the Newark Housing Authority, and the referendum.

Driver Education Requisite In Schools Proposed As Curb For Student Drop-Outs

Compulsory driver education may reduce the high school drop-out rate, a student suggested at the 10th annual Youth Conference on Safety at the University of Delaware last week.

"The license is the biggest thing for most of these kids (drop-outs). If you require them to stay in school longer to get it, it might help," he said.

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, at the closing session of the all-day meeting, noted that 20 per cent of students eligible do not take driver education.

He urged conferees to get 100 per cent participation, saying "I am sure the General Assembly will provide necessary funds" for additional teachers and facilities.

More than 300 high school students throughout the state took a day off from classes to attend the conference sponsored by the Delaware Safety Council.

Carolyn Mignini, 17, Miss Teenage America, who narrated a film on the value of seat belts, was the luncheon speaker.

Agreeing in substance with Smith's comment were Capt. Robert J. Bain of Wilmington's Traffic Division, and Edwin C. Laubach, senior safety engineer for Liberty Mutual Insurance.

Several police officers are interested in dragging, and all police organizations and the Delaware Safety Council would cooperate, Smith said.

But, he warned, "We need driver education to go with it." The problem in New Castle County, Laubach said, is the growing scarcity of land, and the probability that residents will complain if a strip is built near their homes.

Bain noted that dragging in streets account for a high number of teenage deaths—which might be avoided if a strip were available.

Capt. Charles E. Riley, state police public information officer, said a policy announced several years ago opposed drag strips, and that the International Association of Chiefs of Police is on record against sponsorship of drag strips or any competition involving speed. A drag strip near Delmar, is not sponsored by the police, he said.

Police, however, generally will approve controlled-speed rallies and rodeo testing driving skill, Riley reported.

Another panel recommended statewide registrations for bicycles, as Wilmington requires, and equipping school buses with seat belts to get youngsters used to them.

A fourth panel urged the widest possible showings of "Signal 30," a safety film that portrays what can happen to accident victims.

One student said he was told that "in your lifetime, one of every two people is going to be hurt in an accident."

"You look to the guy sitting next to you, and realize that one of you is going to be hurt some day," he said. "If that doesn't shake you up, nothing will."

At the luncheon session, Miss Mignini of Baltimore said, "Teen-agers have an excellent opportunity to do something about improving highway safety. We can learn good habits from the start, so we won't have to 'unlearn' bad habits later."

The Peninsula Horticultural Society, meeting in Dover on Dec. 8-9, passed resolutions calling for increased research and dissemination of information on irrigation and called for legislation to protect agricultural interests in the area of surface and sub-surface moisture supplies.

Saturday Review Praises Seminar On Local Campus

The University of Delaware's recent seminar on people and technological change is praised in the Dec. 12 issue of Saturday Review.

The eight-page article terms the Oct. 30-Nov. 1 seminar "significant and encouraging departure from the traditional ivory-tower image of a university," saying:

"The unusual project brought together a number of distinguished spokesmen from the often separate worlds of education, business, science and government. Their assignment was to explore, each from his special point of view, the increasing crucial subject 'Education for Human Competence in the Face of Technological Change.'"

"The three-day meeting was one of the few times such a group has ever gathered under academic auspices, and it thus represented a significant and encouraging departure from the traditional ivory-tower image of a university."

The accompanying article includes excerpts from six of the 12 speeches given at the conference.

Quoted are Lamont du Pont Copeland president of the DuPont Co.; William L. Reese, chairman of the department of philosophy at the university; Fred M. Hochinger, education editor of the New York Times; Howard A. Meyerhoff, professor of geology at the University of Pennsylvania and former director of the Scientific Manpower Commission; James A. Donovan, staff director,

ATHLETE'S FOOT

Because the fungus infection known as athlete's foot occurs so often on the feet of those people who frequent gymnasiums, locker rooms and swimming pools, it has been associated with athletically inclined people. However, studies on this subject indicate that most human beings begin to carry fungi on their feet during childhood and that disease from this cause appears only when resistance of the skin of the foot is lowered enough to permit active growth of the previously inactive fungus.

The fungus grows in skin which has become detached from the growing layer of the skin. Hot perspiring feet are a favorable field for the fungus.

The symptoms of athlete's foot are an increased scalliness between the toes, followed by an itching or burning sensation. Blistering may appear on the sides of the toes and the soles of the feet, and in severe infection there are large raw areas, much pain, and swelling of the feet.

Application of patent remedies and irritating disinfectants can be harmful. If an active infection has become well established, you should seek the advice of your family doctor.

There are some preventive measures that you can take to protect your feet from this type of infection. During hot weather, wear shoes that are perforated. This reduces the tendency toward moist feet, which encourages the growth of the fungus.

Wool and cotton socks, which absorb moisture are better for the feet in warm weather than are nylon, rayon and other non-absorbing sock materials.

Regular use of drying, mildly fungicidal foot powders such as boric acid and talc will help prevent growth of this fungus. Do not use strong chemicals or disinfectants which sting and burn, as these can irritate the skin.

This column is a weekly service of your doctor through the Medical Society of Delaware.

Improved Lighting Slated On Campus To Protect Coeds

The University of Delaware plans to brighten its campus after complaints this fall about lighting facilities.

The project will be based on a report from H. Eugene Pierce, director of the physical plant, on lighting conditions on the Newark campus, a report submitted to President John A. Perkins.

Implementation of Pierce's recommendations will be made gradually over a period of several weeks. In general, Pierce found the university campus is "lighted as well as streets in most cities and towns in Delaware."

But, after a survey, Pierce called for placing bulbs of higher wattage in several existing lamps, and for installing new lamps in some spots on the campus. In addition, when present construction work is completed, buildings now dark will provide more light, he said.

Student complaints of lighting followed reports that university coeds had been annoyed while walking the campus at night.

"Yep-Here's One With Plenty of Interest!"

THE HOUSING HASSLE

At least five attorneys were present at last Monday night's meeting of Newark City Council, and while three were there in the roles of observers, two of the lawyers spoke publicly—and Mrs. Betty Stiltz, the City of Newark's able recorder at these council conclaves, might be more gainfully employed as a professional court stenographer.

Since controversy over the public housing program in Newark, council meetings have become more complex with frequent expression of legal opinions, and other opinions of illegal proceedings.

Four council representatives are opposed to present plans for federally financed public housing which have resulted in an expenditure of some $175,000—and three members of council, along with all members of the Newark Housing Authority, its attorney, and public housing officials in Philadelphia and Washington appear determined to proceed with the program.

After the effort expended at the request of council to obtain a public housing program for the city, members of the Newark Housing Authority have good reason to be nettled at announced plans to abandon the project.

However, with the multitude of problems confronting council with the public housing program—and these problems seem to multiply from day to day—the four opponents to the low-cost housing plan financed by the federal government, have grave reasons for their objections.

The number of court cases on record with municipalities attempting to get out from under the bureaucracy of federal public housing, indicates that PHA may be more Chimera than panacea.

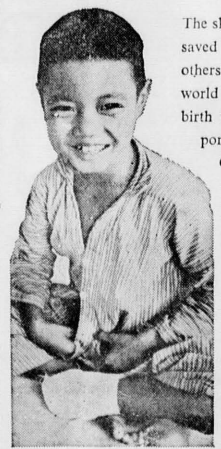

And of course, the proposed poll of opinion will result in an overwhelming disapproval of public housing for the simple reason that the majority has no need for it.

In his report to the Delaware River and Bay Authority, General Manager Frank J. WATCH YOUR TABLE MANNERS

A good way to start off the New Year is with a resolution to improve your table manners. Proper table etiquette is important, no matter where you may be, so why not brush up on your manners now by declaring January "Watch My Table Manners" month?

Plan to concentrate on the do's and don'ts of etiquette during every meal during the month of January. You'll find that in no time at all you are more confident and poised, because poise is a result of self-confidence. Your family and friends will appreciate your efforts, too. After all, no one likes to be around a person whose bad manners are showing.

Here are some important rules to remember. Label them your "Daily Dozen," and use them each day.

1. Always come to the table as soon as you are called.
2. Check your appearance before going to the table. Be sure your hair is combed, your clothes are tidy, and your face and hands are clean.
3. Sit up straight in your chair, with both feet placed side by side on the floor. No slumping or slouching, please.
4. Say "please" and "thank you" when asking for or receiving food.
5. Do not forget to use your napkin, which should be unfolded across your lap, when it is needed.
6. Keep elbows off the table.
7. Raise the food to your mouth slowly. Don't bend over your plate and operate your fork as if you had only three seconds to eat the meal.
8. Cut only one small piece of anything at a time.
9. Break bread or rolls into small pieces. Butter one piece at a time.
10. Do not hum or sing at the table, or talk in a loud voice.
11. Eat everything on your plate. Not only is it impolite to leave food, but you could be leaving foods with the largest content of vitamins and minerals important to your health, growth, and beauty.
12. Remember to compliment your mother or hostess after the meal is finished; and if you are eating away from home, be sure to thank your hostess for inviting you.

Christmas Toy Selection Advice Offered For Little Folks' Parents, Other Adults

Santa may know what to bring for little boys and girls, but what about parents and grandparents who go toy shopping?

What you think would be interesting or fun may not be the best toy for a child. Pay more attention to what the child is capable of doing, says Mrs. Suzanne Tattall, New Castle County home economics extension agent.

Toys a child will enjoy depend on what child development experts call his "motor development." A toy the child can't handle or operate is more frustrating than stimulating, Mrs. Tattall points out.

"Very young children aren't capable of precise movements with their hands and fingers," she says. "Therefore, the younger the child, the easier his toys should be to handle."

"No matter what age child you're buying for, be sure the toy can be washed or cleaned. When they're about a year old, many youngsters like toys to take to the bath with them, but the toys must be waterproof."

How long a toy will last is another factor to be considered in your purchase. Remember, the best constructed toy isn't always the most expensive.

You don't have to spend a lot of money for creative equipment. An inexpensive newspaper pad and three or four primary colored, large crayons he can hold easily, will satisfy most children. A four- or five-year-old will scatter crayons around if he has too many. And he isn't capable of staying in the lines of a coloring book drawing.

The blank paper gives him a chance to use his imagination, experts say. Be sure toys are safe for children. They may put nearly anything in their mouths, so paint should be lead-free.

Be sure toys aren't so small a very young child could swallow them. Avoid sharp edges and rough undersides. And be sure the wood or plastics won't splinter or crack.

Mrs. Clarence W. Brown Heads Unitarian Service

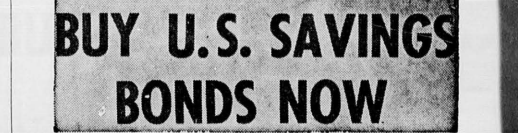

Members of the Sunday School, and adults of the Unitarian Fellowship will participate in a Christmas celebration on Sunday, Dec. 20.

SCIENCE SKETCHES

HEARTBEATS are turned into "heartbeeps" by an electronic device invented by a Detroit surgeon, Dr. William F. Veling. The heart monitor audibly signals the heart's electric wave activity, alerting hospital personnel to any need for oxygen, stimulants, heart massage or other measures.

UNDERGRADUATES at Harvard University eat more than graduate students, 3,300 calories a day compared to 2,900. Harvard football players put it away at the rate of 4,100 calories a day. But that's not much when you compare it to the intake of a Connecticut football squad in 1890: 5,700 calories per man a day.

Almond Chicken and Rice

Cooking in a chafing dish can be as much fun for the hostess as it is for her guests.

For example, when Almond Chicken and Rice is the entree chosen, the ingredients can be artfully arranged on an attractive tray and placed next to the chafing dish at the table.

Almond Chicken and Rice is a quickly cooked entree which combines chicken and crisp tender-cooked vegetables with a well seasoned sauce that is delightful served over hot fluffy rice. Complete such a menu with jellied fruit salad, and for dessert, chocolate sautéed snowballs.

The rice for this Oriental-inspired entree can be cooked especially for the dish or it may be reheated cooked rice. Leftover rice, unlike other foods, never tastes left over. Cooked rice will keep, covered, in the refrigerator for a week; at zero degrees in a freezer for at least 8 months. Cooked rice and thawed frozen cooked rice are easily reheated — simply add 2 tablespoons liquid to each cup of cooked rice, cover and steam 4 to 5 minutes.

1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon sugar
4 teaspoons soy sauce

SPECIAL WASHINGTON REPORT

Opportunities And Problems
Accompany Automation In U.S.By W. Willard Wirtz
Secretary of Labor

Automation simply cannot be opposed, either in the self-interest of any particular industry, or in the interest of the economy as a whole. There is only one conceivable way in which we in the United States can maintain a higher standard of living: by making the fullest possible use of the technological advances of which the people in this country have been proven capable.

It is only if we produce better and cheaper, in terms of the net product, that we can maintain the highest standard of living in the world. Our advance in a world that is getting smaller everywhere is the only way we can maintain this higher standard of living.

I would hope it can be accepted as a first principle of an approach to the problem of automation in every industry, that the improved method must be accepted in the interests of industry and economy, and in the interest of keeping this free society operating at the highest standard of living.

The first proposition is worth nothing, however, unless the second proposition is accepted just as completely. It will be no justification for automation in the human terms, unless it results in an increased standard of living for everybody, not just for a few, or not just for some.

We have got to face squarely the fact that there is no justification for charging up to a single individual who happens to stand in the way of automation the price for this society's progress as a whole.

What that means is that we have got to make arrangements in one way or another so that the person who is displaced by the machine, or the new operating method, has another work opportunity. Unless we make provision, and that arrangement, it may be expected, at each individual, and each individual union, will hang on desperately to the jobs which they already have.

It is imperative that we work out other arrangements. It will mean that if a man loses his job to a machine there will be an alternative work possibility for him, and I don't mean just any alternative work possibility, I mean an alternative work possibility that is attractive in terms of the security which it

Donald Fieldhouse Cites Conservation Of Soil Moisture

A University of Delaware horticulturist says crop producers should take steps to preserve moisture available for plant growth. Reporting at the 78th Peninsula Horticultural Society meeting in Dover, Dr. Donald J. Fieldhouse listed these practices for conserving moisture.

Plant crops so they go through the most critical period before the hot dry season.

Plant in moist soil which has not had soil water depleted by a vigorous cover crop.

Prepare a firm seed bed which will allow water to move up to the seed.

Plant seed resistant to nematodes and other organisms that reduce root areas.

Provide adequate drainage to encourage deeper rooting.

Control weeds but avoid deep root pruning of crops.

Fieldhouse cited several practices being tested at the university for use in water conservation programs.

These include methods for speeding up germination and early plant growth by increasing soil temperature with spray mulches.

Another technique is to reduce surface evaporation from the soil surface by means of emulsions.

Other techniques include "anti-transpirants" used as dips or sprays, dwarfing compounds, sprayed on anti-transpirants and the reduction of salt content of the soil by a means of controlled release nitrogen fertilizers.

Include Safety In Plans For Christmas Holidays

Include safety in your plans for the Christmas holidays, Mrs. William N. Cann, Delaware Safety Council vice-president for home safety suggested yesterday.

"Let's remember safety in our plans for the holiday because—in addition to being a season of goodwill, it is also 'Deadly December' as far as holiday accidents are concerned."

"We owe it to our families, loved ones and fellow-men to take every precaution to avoid accidents. As we go about our preparation for the holidays, be sure to take the time and thought to do it safely," Mrs. Cann cautions.

Refuse will not be collected on Christmas Day, Friday, December 25, 1964. Refuse normally collected on Friday will be collected on Thursday, December 24, 1964.

The crews will not be able to return for any items not at the curb at the time of collection.

Thank you for your usual co-operation.

New Castle County just had its annual 4-H Achievement Banquet in Middletown High School, and 335 persons attended.

All county medal-winners received their awards at this banquet, and the eight Chicago trip-winners told about some of their experiences.

Emily Fisher, Brandywine 4-H Club, gave a very interesting account of her trip to Peru, and Sandy O'Neill received her wrist watch as state winner in the dog husbandry project.

The Friend of 4-H Award was presented to the Suburban Propane Gas Company for their interest and support of the county 4-H program.

Mr. Penn from the Dover office received the award.

Joe Mitchell, leader of the White Oak Club in Hockessin, presented his Joe Mitchell Award to seven first year members — Karen Fuhrman, Elaine Pasma, Brandywine; Nancy Harvey and Francis Bartsch.

Highlighting leader awards were Mrs. Dora Walther of the Bear Club, with 20 years of voluntary service; Mrs. David Pordham, Stronghold Club, with 28 years of service.

"I think it's becoming a pretty sad day when people do not have the right to vote on an issue," Hill declared. "When a bureau and Authority tell the people they cannot vote."

Addressing Mayor Shields, Councilman Chittenden said "If we are obligated for this $175,000, you said you would change your vote to yes" for continuing the public housing program in Newark.

And Shields replied "But I am not going to do that. The Newark Housing Authority would hold onto this property and not give it back to the city," the mayor said concerning liquidation of NHA land.

Coverdale called for renewed action on rezoning the north side of East Delaware Avenue for business, citing "unreasonable delay" with the problem. A first reading of a proposed ordinance for rezoning the property is to be included on the agenda for the next regular meeting of council in January.

Folsom opposed the measure, citing council's previous rejection of the proposal pending completion of a survey to determine effects of traffic in the area with business zoning plans.

Coverdale called attention to traffic jams in the area of the A&P circle at the end of East Main Street, and City Manager J. Francis Neide is to investigate for assignment of a policeman at peak travel periods.

Neide reported that the State Highway Department is investigating feasibility of installing a traffic light on Capitol Trail at Lumbrook, and arrests in the area had increased with reduction of the speed limit.

The city manager replied that he did not have this information available, but Councilman Hill said "By the sound of my phone, I think it has."

Solicitor Lewis is to investigate the city's anti-litter laws with regard to enforcing clean-up by building and maintenance, and Coverdale also called attention to the unpaved cul-de-sac on Brook Drive in Silverbrook. Neide said that lots facing the cul-de-sac had not been built upon, and that Silverbrook had been built before adoption of the city's sub-division regulations. The status is to be checked.

Councilman Chittenden urged that work on the Casho Mill Road walkway be suspended pending a meeting with petitioners and city planners in January, and this proposal was agreed upon.

Christmas Safety Leaflet Written By Coral Morris

Christmas should be a happy time for everyone, but each year accidents mar the holiday for hundreds of families. You can avoid Christmas accidents, and especially fire, by taking a few simple precautions, according to Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Choose as fresh a tree as possible. It is less likely to catch fire and especially less likely to flare up rapidly if it does catch fire. You can check for freshness by pulling lightly on some of the needles; they should be tightly attached to the twig.

More information on Christmas safety is available in the University Extension leaflet "Ideas for a Happy Christmas," written by Miss Morris. Copies are available from the University of Delaware department of rural communications, Newark.

Christmas Rose Provides
Blooming Winter Beauty

The Christmas rose (Helleborus niger) is noted for its flowering during the winter. True to its name, it is often found in bloom during the Christmas season, says Dave Tattall, assistant agent in ornamental horticulture.

Planting can be in the early spring or early fall. A protected, partially shaded location should be selected.

Hill observed that university construction workers were throwing lunch trash on properties in the area of Chambers Street, and this is to be corrected.

Action on a plan for traffic improvement at the Chrysler plants was deferred pending receipt of the municipal traffic survey.

A proposal to extend Monday's meeting for a half-hour beyond the 10:30 deadline was defeated with Chittenden and Coverdale opposing the extension. A three-quarter vote of council is required.

With no open dates remaining this month, a special meeting of council to act upon some 40 unattended items on last Monday night's agenda, was deferred until January, but council is to meet at 7 o'clock this Thursday night prior to an 8 o'clock meeting with State Highway Department officials, to act upon unfinished business.

Coach Bill Fessenden Has Two Lettermen For Christiana Viking Basketball Squad

But two lettermen—Keith Handing and Fred McCullough—are with the 10-man varsity basketball squad selected by Bill Fessenden, new head coach at Christiana High School.

Other returning veterans are Tom Chidester, Gene Christmann, Ken Huey and Tom Chidester.

Coach Fessenden's top 10 includes Don Carlini, Art Durham—co-captain and tackle for Coach Bill Fessenden's football Vikings of the past season—Mike Harris and Steve Williams.

Sixteen other basketball team candidates are working out daily with Jayvee Coach Bob Turnerberger, and may see varsity action during the coming campaign.

David Harris and Bob Lewis are basketball team managers for the Christiana Vikings.

Christiana opens an 18-game Blue Hen Conference card at Brandywine on Jan. 5, and the schedule is to be concluded at Wilmington High on March 5.

Junior varsity games starting at 6:30 will precede varsity contests on Tuesdays and Fridays throughout the season.

Mike Walker, co-captain and tackle for Coach Bob Hoffman's Yellowjacket Blue Hen Conference championship football team in 1963, has returned home to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Walker, at 16 Longview Drive, Newark.

He is a student at Mason Junior College, Grand Junction, Colo.

Walker, second team All-State tackle from Newark High School in 1963, also was a track star for the Yellowjackets.

With 31 fishermen aboard the Capt. Applegate out of Atlantic City, expect two codfish were caught—and both of these were taken by Joe Marousek's companion of the day, J. Max Rowe, a comparatively inexperienced angler. And Max Rowe was one of the few on the Applegate who didn't get sick.

In some wintertime wizardry, Mr. Rowe caught a great 22-lb. green-brown spotted cod while fishing beside Mr. Marousek at the leaving rail of the headboat, and when this mighty fish was drawn splashing to the surface, Joe Marousek momentarily forgot the heaving with added interest in rail fishing.

"Catch one for me, Max," J. C. Marousek said in half jest—and that's just what Max Rowe proceeded to do. He promptly boated another big cod—an 18-pounder.

Either fish would have won the $31 dollar pool, and both certainly did.

"I was sick," Joe Marousek said, "but I really felt sorry for a 10-year-old boy who came along with his father. I tried to tell him to keep fishing, that it wouldn't make him feel any worse and he might even catch a cod during it all, but he had lost all ambition."

"The waves were quite high," Mr. Marousek mused in retrospect with a visible shudder. And as Plymouth Doryman Al Priestley so well said of a somewhat similar sortie "some trip by cod!"

"Max Rowe used the smallest reel I ever saw, to wind those doggone fish up," Joe added. "And while the rest of us were sick—and tired, too, of losing our rise when they snagged on the bottom, Max didn't lose any terminal tackle—nor anything else."

Woodman John Jackson, who regularly harvests a deer a year in a hunting trip to Maine, bagged his buck again this season—and managed to get lost in the snow and woods at night in the process.

Hunting in Maine's Allagash wilderness with "Old Guide" Willard J. Albert, a native Down-Easter; and with Marshall Lake, a neighboring businessman on Newark's Elkton Road, John Jackson found—or more accurately, lost—himself in the middle of nowhere with night fast coming on.

Instead of panicking—and panic would have been easy in the cold and snow and dark—John built a cozy lean-to and a fire and spent a more comfortable night than did his worried companions.

They found him early the next morning with the aid of his rifle shots at regular intervals—and also found the tracks of four bear that had circled the Jackson campsite in the snow during the night.

"They were just curious—the bear, that is," John Jackson said with real thankfulness. "I never even knew they were there, and by the time I found out, it would have been too late, anyway."

Marshall Lake shot the trophy buck—a burly eight-pointer; Carrico collected a beautiful seven-point stag; and Baker, a big but legal doe—all on the first Monday.

John Jackson shot a four-point buck on the final Friday of the trip—venison to take home—after passing up other chances in quest of a really big buck.

Members of the quartet from Newark and Elkton saw two moose while in Maine, along with fur-bearers seldom seen outside of a trap—mink and otter—and the very rarely observed fisher, black cat of the Indians and second in size to the wolverine of the wensel clan.

Quite an animal, the fisher, who can from reliable reports, kill a Canada lynx on the ground, and overtake a marten in the treetops. And a squirrel doesn't stand a chance in the trees with a marten. And a fisher is seldom seen in or out of a trap.

Sell-Out Audience Sees Globetrotters Wallop Generals

A standing-room-only crowd of nearly 3,000 watched the Harlem Globetrotters defeat the Washington Generals 91-57, in basketball at the University of Delaware's Carpenter Fieldhouse last Saturday night.

The Globetrotters, led by the clowning Meadowlark Lemon, took an early lead and the serious Generals were never able to catch up.

Leroy (Satchel) Paige, former pitcher ace with the Kansas City Monarchs, the Cleveland Indians, and St. Louis Browns—joined the Globetrotters' act late in the game when he and Lemon formed a basketball battery.

A six-act variety show was included on the night's card.

Sportsmen Form Hunting-Fishing Club At Newark

The Diamond State Hunting and Fishing Club was organized recently in Newark to help in the preservation and restocking of wildlife, and "to continue the fight to preserve what little remains of our natural outdoor environment," club officials state.

Officers are President Clifford Moore, 287 Porter Road, Bear; Vice-President Larry Hults, 65 Prang Lane, Rambleton Acres; Secretary Richard Schultz, 233 West Park Place, Newark; and Treasurer Frank Ramzek, 15 Utah Road, Wilmington.

Last week, the Diamond State Hunting and Fishing Club joined the Delaware Wildlife Federation as the 18th affiliate.

"Money earned by the club will be used to buy land, raise small game, lease farms for hunting, and eventually to build a clubhouse," a club spokesman said yesterday.

"As the 18th club in the Federation, we will do everything possible to cooperate with this wonderful state group to help give conservation a boost," the club spokesman concluded.

Interested persons are invited to a club meeting this Sunday at 1 p.m., at 138 East Cleveland Avenue in Newark.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day The Elephants Helped

Race riding today still requires a talent that goes beyond the ability to stay in the saddle, but there was a time when jockeys felt that "you can't be ruled off for trying" and sometimes they tried a bit too hard. Today, augmenting the trained eyes of the stewards and patrol judges, is the unblinking battery of lenses in the patrol film cameras spotted around the course.

The starting gate, too, has eliminated some tactics frowned on by the officials. Recalling the running of the St. Louis World's Fair Handicap of 1904, A. W. Booker told Thoroughbred Record writer Lea Tracy how he deliberately delayed the start knowing that the favored Hermis, already in hurtled across salt speedway at 243.44 mph over flying kilometer. Her two-way average speed for flying mile was 226.37 mph, officially timed by U.S. Auto Club and F.I.A., world auto speed record keepers. Old mark of 161.29 mph was set by Paula last year in Studebaker passenger car.

International Fete Of Carols Planned For NHS Assembly

In a musical around-the-world grand finale, the foreign language department of Newark High School will present an International Festival of Carols for a special assembly this Friday. Choral Director L. Jane Cooper, and Band Director Harley S. Hastings are assisting Aileen Ritchie and Mrs. Pauline Lacey, foreign language instructors, with the planning.

This program is intended to capture the imagination of the audience by telling of the Christmas story and the singing of carols in French, German, Latin, and Spanish.

The assembly will be concluded with the general singing of favorite carols. During activity periods of Christmas week, halls of the school again will ring with medleys of seasonal favorites caroled by members of choral groups.

A tradition of faculty and students alike, this is the occasion when classroom doors are kept open to receive the musical gift and holiday greetings of the school's songsters.

Social Security Benefits Offered Retired Farmers

Thousands of self-employed farmers and their dependents have retired with Social Security benefits since 1954 when Congress extended coverage to this group. Today another 4½-million people whose living depends upon farming are building Social Security protection against loss of income resulting from old-age, disability, or death.

Urging farmers in this area to file prompt and accurate income and earnings reports for 1964, Myron Milbauer, Social Security district manager, pointed out that failure to do so may result in reduced Social Security benefits.

Intellect, Faithfulness Cited As Criteria For Ministry As Bishop Addresses Youth

Speaking last Saturday at the Newark Methodist Church to some 150 high school students considering the ministry as careers, Bishop John Wesley Lord said, "If you don't have the intellectual capacity, don't try. We have too many of that kind."

Bishop Lord apologized for "bearing down so hard on demands and standards required for the ministry," but added, "I could not forgive myself if I had made entry into the ministry cheap, easy and alluring. There is no shortcut to it."

He opened the Bishop's Conference on the Ministry, which continued through the afternoon, by saying "We have come to a great moment in history when the two conferences—Delaware and Peninsula—are holding a joint meeting on this level. It is a foretaste of when the two conferences merge in May of 1965, and we rejoice in that."

The Negro Delaware Conference was equally represented with the white Peninsula Conference. Youths were accompanied by their ministers.

Bishop Lord said some young men may receive a call to the ministry today, others may discover that the ministry is not for them and still others may postpone any decision.

The bishop said that besides good study habits and intellectual ability, it is essential for a minister to be free of prejudice.

"You need to love people. It's strange how many people love others as long as they remain in their own countries. They even send them money. But they can't find love when they come and ask to join their church," he said.

Bishop Lord warned young men they would have to control their aggressiveness and ambition to get ahead in the ministry. He said he had known men who exploited every church and every conference connection to advance their personal ambitions.

He said that the criterion is faithfulness, not success, but warned that success will not necessarily follow faithfulness.

The bishop told young men to avoid self-indulgence. Too many come into the ministry with the handicap of having been indulged by their families, he said, and ministers frequently indulge young men in order to be able to say they produced a new minister.

March of Dimes Research Aids Birth Defect Battle

More than a dozen internationally known scientists have told the nation's March of Dimes volunteer leaders that impressive gains have been made in the fight against birth defects while research promises even greater advances in the future.

State Chairman Alexis I. duPont Bayard, who just returned from a conference at the Salk Institute for Biological Studies at San Diego, Calif., said "the complex medical, social and economic problems caused by the birth of more than 250,000 birth defect children in this country each year, were analyzed for us by some of the most brilliant men in medicine."

Most of the financial support for the construction of the Salk Institute has come from the American people through the March of Dimes, Bayard pointed out.

Kiwanis Club Offers Trees With Advice For Safety

The Newark Kiwanis Club, which is offering fire-resistant Christmas trees for sale on the parking lot at Newark Farm and Home Supply off East Main Street, offers safety suggestions for those who may buy trees elsewhere.

Dissolve nine 9-oz. of borax and 4-oz. of boric acid in a gallon of water, and spray the tree. Cut the bottom of the tree at an angle and immerse in a sugar-water solution while the tree is in the home.

"If these precautions are taken, and your electric tree lights are in good condition, you should have a safe and merry Christmas," Kiwanis President Charles F. Reott, Jr., advises.

Repaying a Tragic Debt

Twelve thousand victims of Nazi persecution—including 2,239 in the United States—will share a $12.5 million year-end bonus distributed by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).

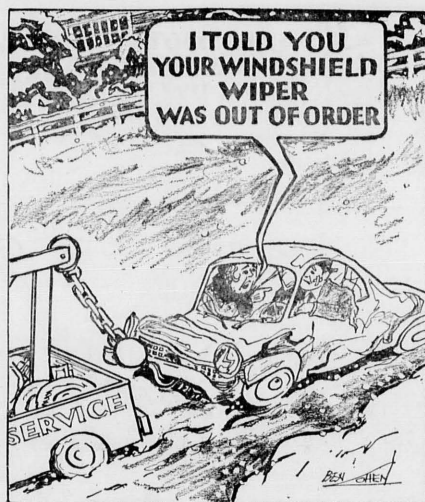

The payment, third and last of a series to this group, stems from an agreement under which the West German government put some $17 million at UNHCR's disposal to indemnify victims of Hitler's regime.

The first and second payments were made at the rate of $100 and $130 a point, respectively.

The point system is based on an applicant's length of detention in a concentration camp, injuries resulting therefrom, present capacity to work, age and other factors. For example, a person who spent three years in a concentration camp is allotted four points. If he is more than 70 years old, he receives another two points.

UNHCR says the last payment, to be made before the end of the year, "will be the largest of the three."

The Safe Winter Driving League presents the following reminder from the National Safety Council: "Be sure your wiper blades are in good, live condition, and have arm pressure of one ounce per inch of blade length to sweep snow and sleet off instead of sliding over it." Dead blades may make dead drivers. Check defroster, too. You must see a hazard to avoid it.

Autumn brings fruit; summer is fair with harvest; spring gives flowers; winter is relieved by fire. —Ovid
