Dairy investigation shows short filling

The Delaware Department of Agriculture Weights and Measures Section joined the USDA in an investigation of dairy short filling. A report reveals violation by one of Delaware's three dairies for short filling milk lots.

During inspections of several Delaware schools on March 23, 1998, DDA inspectors determined that the schools had received short filled milk lots from its contracted supplier, Hypoint Dairy in Wilmington. DDA notified the USDA and a joint USDA/DDA four month investigation of Hypoint Dairy and its federal/state contract customers ensued. The investigation revealed that Hypoint Dairy was short filling milk lots and delivering them to their contract customers and several Delaware retail outlets. The federal and state contract customers included Delaware schools, colleges, Emily Bissell Hospital, Governor Bacon Health Center, and state office buildings. Forty-seven percent of the inspected lots of Hypoint Dairy milk were rejected by DDA Weights and measures Section inspectors due to short filling.

On June 1, the USDA responded to DDA's information by issuing a stop sale order and suspending Hypoint Dairy for ninety days. USDA and Hypoint Dairy are currently negotiating a compliance agreement.

New Main Street apartments being snapped up quickly

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

IN THE PAST two years, almost eight dozen new apartments have been added to Main Street. And as of Tuesday, almost everyone of them was rented.

The eight apartments at Traders Alley, and 12 at Astra Plaza have been taken by students. Six more are already approved at the commercial/residential site on the old Roy Rogers property.

Two nearly-complete locations, owned by Commonwealth Management, have only a few apartments left, according to Commonwealth president, Jeffrey Lang.

"We have about three apartments still unrented between 325 and 123 E. Main Street," said Lang. "We're still advertising because you never really know if students will come back or not take it at the last minute. We like to have a waiting list."

The former Newark Emergency Room site at 325 has 42 apartments with rents beginning at $950 a month while 20 apartments at the old Farm & Home site at 123 start at $1,100. The three-bedroom units could be as high as $1,500.

Lang said he expects to have all the units rented and ready for people to move in by Sept. 1.

Waiting on the sidelines are projects at the old Newark Lumber site where 51 apartments are among the items to be looked at by city council on Monday night. Another plan for 71 apartments, proposed on South Chapel Street by Gus Tsionas, is temporarily on hold after bad reviews from the city planning commission.

Lang said many of the persons renting his units are students but he also has people he calls "university-related," like graduate students. "We also have younger adults, people in their 20s, who work at MBNA and Chase," Lang said. "They feel comfortable living where there are a lot of students."

On the commercial side, Lang said all the spaces at the old EMS are under lease. "But the leases for the two spaces at the front of the Farm & Home are not signed yet," Lang said. "You can say those are still available even though we have people who are very interested."

The Learning Station, which opened in June, has leased the entire back of the first floor at the Farm & Home site. Parents and teachers, who apparently have no trouble finding the entrance to the parking lot, thronged the store on Saturday.

Developing Koelig site concerns Newark

County reviews proposal to develop property

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

NEW CASTLE County is currently reviewing a proposal to develop the Koelig Estate property which is approximately 1,500-feet east of Paper Mill Road adjacent to Jenny's Run and Chapel Woods.

Currently the property contains a two-story house, two barns and a shed. According to information filed with the preliminary plan, developers want to build 143 single-family residences, 71 townhouses, and 16 semi-detached residences on 112.26 acres at the site.

County planner Don McCombs said the subdivision advisory committee held a meeting this week to get comments from technical staff and the public. "The most critical issues still to be resolved appeared to be storm water management and the Traffic Impact Study," McCombs said. "Agencies and the public can also make comments to the county land use department up to two weeks after the meeting about issues."

According to McCombs, the traffic study is being done, but DelDOT has not yet seen it. "Once the developers are able to satisfy the technical requirements, then they can file a record plan for approval by county council," he said. "This plan was filed before the Unified Development Code was passed so it goes under the old rules."

McCombs noted that Newark had discussed annexation of the property and the city would receive copies of the report filed after the two-week comment period is complete.

The proposed subdivision would be surrounded by incorporated areas of Newark and the developers asked for an entrance connected to Hayden Way in the Hunt at Louviers, a community within Newark.

"The Newark Police department has reservations about opening the proposed subdivision to Hayden Way," said city planning director Roy Lopata in a letter to the county after the initial filing in 1997.

Lopata said Newark Police also have serious concerns about increased traffic flows on Old Paper Mill and Paper Mill roads from this subdivision.

City officials also believe development of this property will add to Newark's problems in developing the nearby Moore and Karpinski properties as city parkland.

"In response to a request for financial assistance for Karpinski Park, the county responded by indicating such assistance would not be available," said Lopata. "(But), obviously, Nonantum Mills and the Koelig property residents will quite naturally use nearby city parks."

Since the property is located within a Wellhead Resource Protection Area, Lopata stressed that special density requirements must also be met.

Because of the impact on city services, Lopata said the city manager and other department heads believe the site might more appropriately be considered for development in Newark.

"The Koelig property subdivision is an example of the type of development on municipal fringes that has been discussed over recent years by city, county and state officials as part of on-going efforts to improve state and local planning (which can only be upheld through annexation by Newark)," concluded Lopata.

Lopata said this week that the owners of the property would have to ask the city for annexation. He declined any other comment about the site.

Board barely passes new resolution

Regulating communications among members is the aim

By LAURA SANKOWICH

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Christina School Board has passed a resolution, with marginal board consensus, that will regulate communications among members. After discussion at two readings, the measure passed by a split vote of 4-3.

The resolution proposed by boardmember George E. Evans states that when any member of the board communicates with the school superintendent as a part of their job, other than at a meeting of the school board, to request information or to request action, that member shall also inform all other members of the board of the communication when it is made.

According to school superintendent Nicholas Fischer, the resolution means that when a member makes a request for information, his office will distribute the information that was requested to all members of the board.

Fischer said, "It affirms what we need to be doing anyway, so other board members know what each board member asked and what our response is."

Evans said the purpose of the resolution is to create better cohesion among board members. "If a board member requests information or a course of action, the board members would communicate on that request for information," he said. "It will create a better time line for receiving information that someone requested. In terms of taking action on an issue the board is supposed to act in concert. If a request is made all board members will now know."

Evans said he has proposed that the board communicate their requests to one another through e-mail or fax. He said information of communications will also be disseminated through a communications packet distributed by the school superintendent's office. "All the board members have access to computers and of course e-mail is the quickest response," he said.

He also said the process will help to make sure requests for information are within the resources of the district.

School boardmember Michael Guilfoyle said he does not feel the resolution will improve communication on the board. "As Mr. Mullen said, the implication of putting the resolution in place is that (Evans) thinks we're not doing what we're supposed to do," Guilfoyle explained.

"Evans said we were asking for too much information, and that in trying to run the district we weren't making effective use of our resources."

"(But) I don't think that there is such a thing as asking or too much information when it comes to making decisions that will effect children in the district."

Guilfoyle, and boardmembers Charles Mullin and Spring Davidson voted against the resolution.

Guilfoyle also said Evans suggested what members of the board were doing was wasting time. "When I'm making decisions concerning students there is no such thing as wasting time," Guilfoyle said.

112 AND COUNTING

Delaware's oldest resident celebrated her 112th birthday on Aug. 15 with a party attended by friends of all kinds. Mary M. Allison was born in Greenwood, Sussex County, in 1886. Working as a housekeeper until she was in her 90s, Allison lived in New Castle before moving to Ingleside Care Center in 1993.

existing deed restrictions allowing access to Red Mill Road for residences currently there," explained Gregor. "When commercial use begins, access would be restricted to cross easements from the adjoining properties formerly owned by Randy Eastburn and Red Mill Nurseries."

Gregor said, since all four properties are now owned by one entity, the cross easements are not necessary. Further, a traffic study recently completed by the state Department of Transportation shows that as a result of decreased traffic levels after the completion of Route 273, DelDOT now recommended a right-turn entrance but no exit off Red Mill Road for the proposed shopping site.

Gregor said Shamrock wants to build two main buildings on the site with 60,000 square feet of retail space and storm water management area. An eight-foot high opaque barrier and extensive landscaping would screen the development from homes in Red Mill Farms.

"The current proposed access is from eastbound Kirkwood Highway," said Gregor. "Right turns in, right turns out, only."

According to Gregor, the problem with this plan is that westbound traffic must make a U-turn at Delaplane Avenue — or even further west — in order to get into the shopping center. "That's almost impossible for anything larger than a normal pedestrian vehicle," said Gregor who noted an entrance on Red Mill also would be more accessible for emergency vehicles and deliveries.

Jerome Smith, who has lived on Delaplane Avenue for 22 years, said he through the developer's request was OK. "The traffic from U-turns would concern me and (large trucks) might even have to go farther to find a place big enough — Windy Hills or Cleveland Avenue are not much better — even to the other side of Newark."

The owner of Lums Restaurant, Jerry Ehrlich, said the request also made sense to him. "I've seen truck drivers who have to keep on schedule drive right over the median to make a left turn from Kirkwood Highway (in my 27 years) here," Ehrlich said. "It's only three or four inches high."

Ehrlich added that getting emergency vehicles into his site with right turn in only from eastbound Kirkwood Highway is almost impossible at rush hour.

Tony Sworbick, co-owner of Shamrock, said there used to be a deceleration lane along Kirkwood Highway which made the U-turn easier at Delaplane. "That lane was taken out in 1992 for safety reasons," he said, "even though it originally was required there for safety reasons."

Gregor said on Wednesday that the owners would proceed with the project utilizing the originally planned access from Kirkwood Highway.

Kirkwood Hwy. land to be preserved state park which now covers 2,375 acres. Combined with Middle Run, it creates a protected area of almost 3,700 acres north and east of Newark.

"White Clay Creek State Park is now the largest permanently protected block of open space in northern New Castle County," said Mark Chura of Delaware State Parks. "It is the most ecologically diverse tract of preserved land in the county, surrounded by expanding urban and suburban development."

Judge Hugh Morris, for whom the University Library is named, bequeathed the property to the University of Delaware in 1966. Morris lived on the property from 1935 until his death.

Among the three single-family homes on the site is the Andrew Gray house.

According to information provided by James Owen, part of the home was built before the Revolution. The property was named "Chestnut Hill Farm" after Gray acquired it in 1808. It is eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

The transfer marks the end of a 10-year effort by state park officials and creates a "land bridge" joining Middle Run Nature Preserve with the area on Route 896 known as Carpenter State Park.

According to DNREC, future plans for the new parkland include upgrading the existing hiking and bike trails, and renovating the estate mansion and other buildings for possible public use. The agricultural lands which stretch along Kirkwood Highway and Polly Drummond Hill Road will continue to be tilled.

White Chapel Drive in May 1996 following two years of community fundraising and construction. According to the staff, the membership has almost doubled and so have the number of programs since its opening.

Williams said a 22-member Strategic Planning Board formed this summer is trying to identify the needs of the center's users and the resources available, and come up with a "road map" for the facility's future.

"We want to mesh what we want with what we're building," Williams said.

Warner Perry, who died on Aug. 6, 1997, left an estate of more than $1 million to build a new wing on the center. Williams said the money has been invested until expansion plans are completed.

"We don't want to rush into anything and build something that's too small," Williams said recently. "When the staff moved into this building two years ago, no one thought we could ever want more."

However, in only 24 months the center has felt the squeeze of too many activities in the same limited space. "We need a larger classroom for things like the recent legislative meeting," Williams said.

The Newark Senior Center is often used for public meetings like the one recently hosted by state senators Steven Amick (R-Newark West), Donna Reed (R-Breezewood II), Liane Sorenson (R-Hockessin), and state representatives Timothy Boulden (R-Newark) and Stephanie Ulbrich (R-Newark South) who discussed legislative action and answered questions after the close of this year's General Assembly.

"We moved them into part of the Evergreen Room but then there was distraction from the chorus practicing in the other part."

The classroom also holds the computers set up for the use of seniors which makes the room more crowded, according to Williams.

"We also need more office space as we expand our staff and services with programs like Legal Aid, BC/BS and Medicaid which need a place for one-on-one interviews," Williams said.

"And the current wellness/fitness room is way too small."

Other areas needing expansion are storage spaces and the kitchen. "We're not sure if we can do all this," said Williams. "It depends on the funding."

For this reason, the strategic planners are asking for input from seniors about what they want at the center. Interested persons should mail or drop off answers to the survey at the Newark Senior Center, 200 White Chapel Drive, Newark Del. 19713.

What is the Board trying to say here?

FOR A TRULY harrowing example of lack of communication, the Resolution passed by the Christina School Board at their last regular meeting has to be read to be believed.

But in the interest of brevity, we will simply say that it is a masterpiece of non-information.

Ostensibly the resolution was proposed by school board member George Evans so that information requested by and provided to some board members, in their capacity as boardmembers, would be shared with all boardmembers. So far, so good.

But that doesn't explain the backbiting, fingerpointing and criticism that accompanied the first and second readings before this resolution was passed.

It also does not explain why only information shared by the school superintendent is what's in question here.

Nor does it tell us anything about what information got previously lost in translation and necessitated this action.

As a result, we are at a loss to understand what interests of the students of the Christina School District are paramount in this matter.

What is all too evident, unfortunately, is a lack of genuine trust and communication between the boardmembers. And that is not something that can be surmounted by demands or orders for more information.

Townwatch was not a choice in childhood neighborhood

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

SUPPORTERS OF NATIONAL NIGHT Out recently encouraged people to sit or walk outside their homes for one night to promote townwatch and neighborhood unity.

Where I grew up, 40 row homes faced each other in two lines across a narrow one-way street. Among our closest neighbors were the Norton boys, Marty, Albert, Jackie and Billy, who lived in the three-bedroom rowhome "next door" to ours.

Marty was always called Young Marty to distinguish him from Big Marty who was really BIG and worked at the oil refineries down near the airport. Jackie was called Peanuts. Albert and Billy were called Albert and Billy.

The Norton boys were known to "get in trouble." Most of their troubles came when Big Marty had to make a trip to the nearby parochial school to discuss one of the boy's "trouble with Sister."

Other troubles involved roaming the alley behind our homes and getting into fights with boys who lived on the next street where most of us were forbidden to go.

Shortly after Big Marty came home from work each evening, all hell would break loose next door as the boys' mother, a very depressed-looking woman named Blanche, reported on the day's activities.

First would come yelling inside the house, sometimes punctuated with running footsteps and crashes. Then one of the boys, usually Albert, would burst through the front door, and clearing the porch in one bound, race down the steps and up the block.

Next to emerge was often Young Marty, closely pursued by Big Marty who was swinging as he shouted. Young Marty always kept his head down as he hurriedly crossed the porch and sought his own refuge down the block.

The Norton boys, as well as my two bothers and a dozen other boys who lived on our block, played noisily and intensely in the street before us. Every day was a scene from the Dead End Kids, with games of stick ball, hide-and-seek, baby-in-the-air, roller-skating, and bike races all taking place in a space approximately 10 feet wide, bounded on one side by a four-foot sidewalk and on the other by a row of parked cars.

Things always started out calmly enough as the boys sat on someone's front steps to decide on the agenda. But soon the arguments broke out as they chose up sides, continued through the drawing up of rules, followed by the game itself, interspersed with yells of "did, didn't!"

Most often, just when things got truly frightening, and usually at the point when they got truly deafening, Big Marty or another father would appear and shout for quiet.

That was the signal for all the boys, and especially the Norton boys, to start the proceedings all over again from the beginning.

Even in the early mornings, things were seldom quiet. First would come Blanche's shouts of each boy's name. Then came a prolonged period of slamming doors, muffled arguments and running feet, followed by the front door crashing as each boy went off to school or out to play.

Once or twice a week, usually in the winter, Blanche would have to resort to more pointed action. Then we would hear thuds, followed by "Marty!" or "Albert!" and more thuds. Blanche was pounding the end of her broom against the kitchen ceiling to stir the boys in the bedrooms overhead.

Summer, winter, spring and fall, we lived with the doings of the Norton boys and their

Stockholders inspect local cannery

Yesterday was "inspection day" at the local plans of United Canneries, Inc., and upwards of two hundred people took advantage of the opportunity to see for themselves the newest methods used in packing tomatoes and sweet corn.

Headed by Morton Harvey, president of the company and other officials, the party drove into the cannery grounds shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon. After a brief survey of the arrangements of the buildings, the guests were conducted through the plant by Mr. Harvey.

Armed with a megaphone, he explained as best he could above the noise of the machines, the process by which the vegetables are prepared and packed into cans.

Newark disappointing in Saturday's game

Piling up a total of 11 hits to their opponents' five and playing a much better game afield, Newark was forced to accept defeat at the hands of Krebs Saturday afternoon on the latter's diamond, score 10-6.

Watkins, Newark's twirler, was completely off form. He walked 11 men and hit four with pitched balls during the nine innings, and was always in trouble. Fishback, his battery mate, had a lame arm and the Krebs runners ran wild on the bases. The catcher also had two passed balls which accounted for a like number of enemy runs.

In a continuing effort to boost support for the Wilmington Medical Center's proposed hospital, dubbed "Plan Omega" and slated for construction in Stanton, The Weekly Post is increasing its per subscription contribution to the cause.

Beginning August 1, any regular $7 subscription received by mail or through Post telephone solicitors will automatically see $1 set aside for the "Newark Weekly Post Hospital Fund."

Say good-bye to tolls

Drivers approaching one of the 14 toll booths on Interstate 95 between Rt. 7 and Rt. 896 won't have to dig for spare change much longer.

It'll be nothing but easy riding after September 30, the date Delaware Turnpike Director Harold T. Bockman projects as the deadline for removal of the toll booths.

"We're shooting for September 30, and the tolls will come off at that time," he said.

The date of removal of the tolls depends upon the proposed re-financing of the turnpike, said Bockman.

Newark cops in hot pursuit: Moving vans are making tracks to new station

The Newark Police are moving into their new building at 220 Elkton Road this weekend.

Police Chief William Hogan said moving vans will start being loaded by a moving company after 5 p.m. on Friday and continue through the night.

He said mostly being moved are boxes packed with things such as old records, office supplies, books, training materials and police supplies.

Also being moved is the department's exercise equipment.

"We're not moving most of the old furnishings," said Hogan. He said police officers will be moving their personal objects.

He was moved to Christiana Hospital by paramedics where he was pronounced dead.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Jackie Foster
Newark

As a regular attendee to the Christina Board of Education Meetings, I have been able to observe some polarization on the Board over the years. Sometimes the polarity has been on lines that made me very uncomfortable because of the apparent parochialism of certain board members.

Each new year, I hope to see a united Board whose main concern is the betterment of education for all children in the Christina District. As always, I was hoping this was the year. However, if the July and August meetings are any gauge, unity may not be forthcoming this school year.

As described in a recent issue of the News Journal, a resolution was narrowly passed requiring that any communications by a board member to the Superintendent, including but not limited to requests for information, must also be communicated to each board member.

The motivation for such a resolution is unclear to me. It certainly smacks of mistrust among the members of the Board. Furthermore, it also requires additional time and effort on the part of individuals who already volunteer an inordinate number of hours to the district each month. Finally, it fails to meet the "how does this benefit the children test."

The Superintendent made it clear that it is his policy to provide all board members with the same information irrespective of who requests it. With such a policy in place, is it really necessary for the resolution?

To the Christina Board of Education members who find themselves short of certain information, why don't you attend the various District informational meetings, PTA meetings, school assemblies, etc. that some of your colleagues do?

Sorenson will run again

State senator Liane M. Sorenson (R-Hockessin) announced that she will seek a second term in the 6th District which includes areas of Talleyville, Greenville, Centerville, Yorklyn, Montchanin, Hockessin, Corner Ketch and Newark north of Main Street and along Route 896.

"It has been a real pleasure serving the residents of the 6th District and I look forward to another four years," said Sorenson. "A lot of work remains, including examining how our schools are financed and assessing the progress of educational reform efforts."

Since being elected in 1992, Sorenson has helped get legislation passed addressing domestic violence and co-sponsored a bill that created the Domestic Violence Coordinating Council. She was appointed to the Delaware Family Law Commission and has been recognized for her work by the Delaware State Bar Association, the YWCA and the Domestic Violence Project Inc.

A member of the Joint Finance Committee, she is also the only Republican member of the Senate Banking Committee and the Senate Education Committee. Sorenson has also secured state funding for Delaware greenways and trails in her district.

Sorenson is director of women's affairs at the University of Delaware.

Ramone will try for Assembly

Political newcomer Michael Ramone has announced he will seek the office of state representative in the 22nd District this November.

New Castle County councilmember Joseph E. Miro (R-3rd District) previously said he would also run for the seat after current state representative Joseph Petrilli (R-Pike Creek) stated he would not run again.

Ramone is the owner of Ramone's Flower Shoppes, Aquatic Management Systems, and Delaware Swim and Fitness Center. He is a co-owner of Gilmore-Nichols Funeral Home.

The 37-year-old Delaware native said his campaign will focus on fiscal responsibility and Ramone has been coaching youth for over 20 years on swim teams at the Western Branch YMCA, Delaware Swim Team, John Dickinson High School, St. Mark's High School, and Oakwood Valley and North Star swim clubs.

A graduate of St. John the Beloved School, St. Mark's High School and the University of Delaware, Ramone lives with his family in Cotswold Hills.

Farmers doing their part for water quality

THE agricultural community has long taken an active role in water conservation and water quality efforts throughout the First State. Because farmers are stewards of the acres they plow and plant, it is second nature for them to conserve the soil and water resources so vital to their livelihoods.

Although some would like to see agricultural runoff take all the blame for the decline of water quality in Delmarva's streams and bays, the fact remains that nutrient runoff from home lawns and gardens, septic tank discharges and municipal sewage also contribute to excess nutrients in our water supply.

For years, Delaware's concerned farmers have cooperated with Cooperative Extension and University of Delaware researchers, and other state and federal agencies to find better ways of storing and utilizing animal wastes as important nutrients for their crops. They have learned how to maximize the efficiency of nutrient applications through regular soil testing, alternative tillage methods and best nutrient management practices. With research data from the UD, and programs from other agencies they have implemented new ways to protect the soil from erosion and ground water from degradation.

According to a recent survey by the Delaware Department of Agriculture, Delaware farmers already make a significant effort to reduce the impact of agricultural production on water quality. The survey found that:

- A significant percent of the dairy, swine and poultry operations have animal manure structures that are designed to prevent nutrient runoff to local waterways.

- Over half of the state's farms use soil tillage practices that help reduce sediment, and nutrient and pesticide runoff, thus lessening agriculture's impact on water resources.

These survey results offer excellent evidence that as Delaware farmers produce more food on less land, they continue to take a leadership role to protect water quality.

Virtually all users of ground water—families, farms, industries, and municipalities—are potential polluters.

Let's all do our part to protect and enhance water quality.

Keeping an eye on the ball

By STEVE WESTRICK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

THE DAY started like any other round of golf on July 15, 1992, for four local firefighters in the habit of playing golf together.

Mike Shaw, a firefighter from Wilmington Manor, and Dave Thomas, Phil Sereni, and Jon Townley, all of Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Company in Newark, made a trip to Moccasin Run Golf Course, in Avondale, Pa.

All went well, until the men hit the "lucky 13th hole," as Townley now calls it. "Phil Sereni had muffed the shot and only put it about 15 yards out," Townley said, explaining the incident that would change his life. "He decided to hit from the green, so I walked over the little hill in front of us to see if anyone was by the hole."

Townley waited until a group below had cleared. Then he instructed Sereni to proceed and walked to the side.

"Instead of walking behind him I went to the side," said Townley. "Phil shanked the ball and yelled 'fore.' I ducked and turned to see what was going on."

At that instant, the ball hit Townley square in the eye. He was transported to Wills Eye Hospital in Philadelphia where his eye had to be removed.

Next to Townley's brother Rand, a New Castle County Police Officer, Townley credits Sereni with helping to keep his spirits up while he was in the hospital. "My brother and Phil visited me every day and kept me laughing even in the hospital bed," Townley recalled.

A year later, Townley, Sereni and another friend, Ken McMahon, set out again to play golf, this time partly to help Sereni. "Phil Sereni hadn't played since the accident," said Townley who felt no animosity towards his friend and never thought twice about playing golf again.

That was the start. Eventually, while playing the commemorative round each year, Townley created the One-Eyed Golf Tournament now held each July 15 at Moccasin Run.

The original four men from that golf game six years ago play on the same team in the fund-raising tournament that grew out of friendship.

"It was unfortunate that I lost my eye," Townley said. "But at the same time we felt something positive needed to be done on the anniversary of this unfortunate incident."

This year the tournament featured 110 players, including 95 Delaware firefighters, and officers from various police agencies. Thomas is also a Delaware State Trooper.

A variety of businesses from Delaware, Pennsylvania and Maryland sponsor the event.

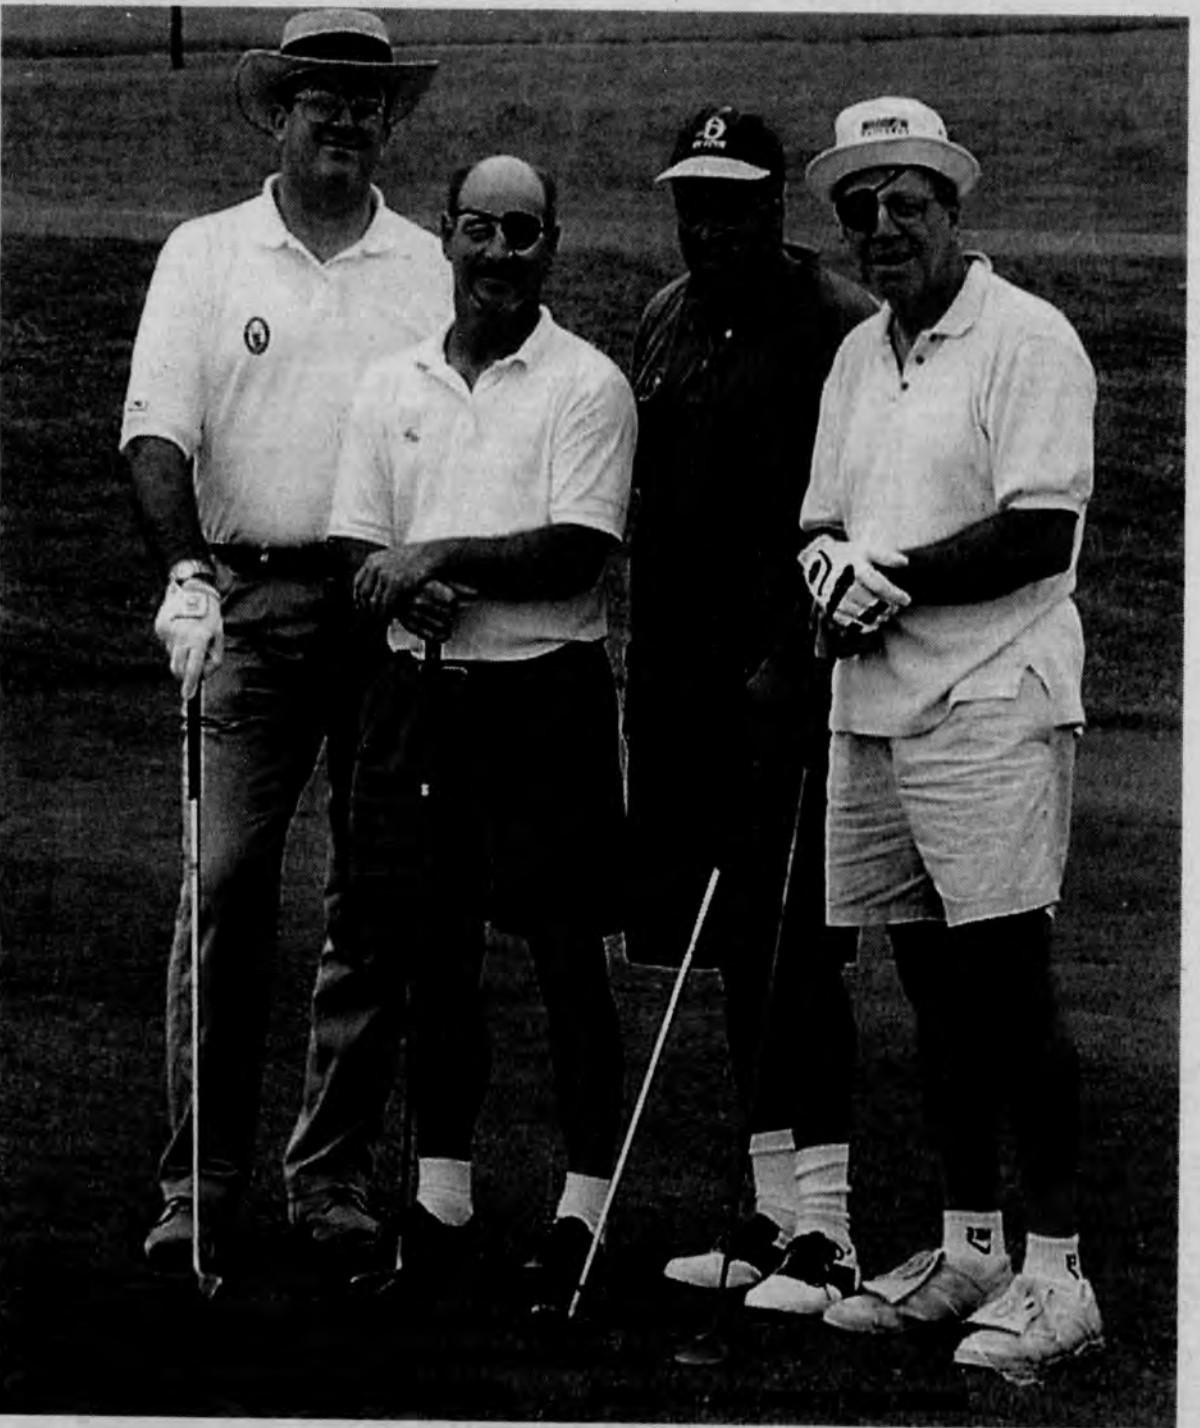

To make the tournament more interesting, each player must wear a patch over one eye on the fourth hole, chosen instead of the 13th simply because it is the easiest one on the course. The players compete in a scramble format on teams of four. A scramble means each team member plays the ball of the best shot on the previous hit.

A team of four Delaware fire marshals, Bill Bush, Ron Gray, Bob Carlson and Randy Lee, took home this year's first place trophies. Townley's team finished seventh out of 27 teams.

Sereni said he is back to enjoying golf. "(But) I still get an empty feeling in the pit of my stomach playing (the 13th hole)," he said. "I don't think about it until I get there, but when I get there, oh-boy, I feel it."

All the proceeds, which this year amounted to over $3,000, all go to the Wills Eye Hospital. "After seeing Jon being treated at Willis-Eye—the way he was treated was exceptional—we know it was a great place," Sereni said. "We decided if we're going to do something like (the golf tournament) we should do it right and donate the money to a good cause like Wills Eye."

Magazines online at schools

THANKS to a partnership between the University of Delaware Library and the state of Delaware, all Delaware public middle schools, junior high schools and high schools will have access to an electronic library of online magazine and encyclopedia articles beginning this fall.

The University of Delaware Library has received $452,000 in state support for the expansion of UDLib/SEARCH which has provided the service to high schools since the fall of 1997.

UDLib/Search builds on the computer infrastructure that was created when the state provided internet connections to public schools in Delaware. The system adds content to this educational network, allowing students, teachers and administrators to read and search magazine and journal articles in online databases.

Every computer connected to the web via the state network in every school library, classroom and office will have access. University of Delaware library staff will work with school librarians and others during the first few weeks of school to confirm access. Training will take place during the year, and is available to all Delaware public middle and high schools throughout the state.

Since July 1997, Delaware public high school students have read more than 300,000 magazine and journal articles online and searched through many more.

The system increases the average number of periodicals in a public high school library from 75 to more than 500.

The databases available to all public high schools in Delaware during the 1997/98 year included "SuperTOM" and "Expanded Academic ASAP." Access to "SIRS Researcher" was added during the Spring of 1998.

Public high schools also have access to "Britannica," including more than 1,000 additional articles not found in the printed set, and thousands of complementary illustrations and graphics. More databases will be added.

All Delaware public middle schools and junior high schools will have access to full text online periodical databases appropriate for students in those grade levels beginning in September.

Berlin orchestra coming to Grand

THIS WEEK I WOULD like to share more information about the 1998-99 season at the Grand Opera House, a task I began with last week's column. Three world renowned orchestras are in The Arts spotlight today and all of them will perform in the second half of the season.

On January 28, at 8 p.m., The Radio Symphony Orchestra of Berlin under Chief Conductor Rafael Fruhbeck de Burgos will be on the stage of Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts. Founded in 1923, it was one of the earliest "radio" symphonies in the world. It has grown well past its primary purpose of broadcasting concerts and become a well traveled symphony orchestra earning praise as it moves about the world. Today its concert home is the former Schauspielhaus Berlin, now known as Konzerthaus am Gendarmenmarkt. Of course, as its name implies, it still performs for the radio audience at Haus des Rundfunks.

The orchestra's repertoire and reputation have grown enormously since its present chief conductor took over during the 1994-95 season. It has many recordings in the CD marketplace.

The orchestra will present a program to include Brahms' Symphony No. 3 in F, Op. 90, and Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring."

Looking for something to do with your sweetheart on St. Valentine's Day? Well, the Grand is offering a sweetheart of a concert that evening at 7 p.m. The Moscow Philharmonic under Mark Ermler will be performing with guest piano soloist Alex Slobodyanik in an all-Russian program.

The orchestra was founded in 1951 and is young by the measure of other European orchestras. Despite its youth, it has earned an enviable reputation which grows with each performance at home and on tour around the globe. Among the many guest conductors under whom it has performed, the names of just a few might give you some idea of the quality the orchestra has developed: Igor Stravinsky, Zubin Mehta and Igor Markevich.

This is the Moscow Philharmonic's eighth tour of the United States, one of them with Van Cliburn as guest soloist. It has over 100 recordings to its credit, many winning some of the recording industry's highest prizes.

Their program at the Grand includes Liadov's "The Enchanted Lake," Op. 62; Borodin's Symphony No. 2 in B minor and Borodin's Polovtsian Dances from "Prince Igor." The orchestra will be joined by its guest soloist for a performance of Prokofiev's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C Major, Op. 26. That combination should please just about any audience!

The Jerusalem Symphony Orchestra will round out the world class ensembles at the Grand this season on March 17 at 8 p.m. The performance will be conducted by Music Director David Shallon. The piano soloist will be Orli Shaham. The program on that Wednesday evening: Noam Sheriff's "Aleda," in memory of Yitzhak Rubin; Bartok's "The Miraculous Mandarin Suite" and Stravinsky's "Firebird Suite." With their guest soloist, they will also offer Schumann's Piano Concerto in A minor, Op. 54.

I like to call this orchestra the "miracle" orchestra. If there were ever an orchestra which should not have succeeded, this is it. Yet it has grown and prospered. Permit me to explain.

The Jerusalem of 60 years ago was not the capital city we know today. The country was administered by a British Mandate whose functionaries were becoming disenchanted with their role. Resources for an orchestra were, to say the very least, limited. The whole future of the country was up for grabs. It was into this atmosphere that the orchestra was born. It not only survived, it prospered. I am pleased to say it continues to do so today.

If you are interested in information or tickets for the 1998-99 season, please contact the Grand Opera House. You may stop by the Grand box office at 818 The Market Street Mall, or reach them by phone at 302-652-5577 or 1-800-37 GRAND; on the World Wide Web at <http://ameristar.net/grand/> or e-mail at GRANDOPERA@AOL.COM.

There are many more programs this season at the Grand. I have selected what I consider some of the best for this column. They have a great, free, colorful brochure with the complete season. It's yours for the asking.

Tennis clinic tomorrow at Lums Pond

The Women's Tennis Club of New Castle County invites women and men over the age of 18 to a free tennis clinic 10 a.m. to noon tomorrow at Lums Pond State Park. "We're planning a very light, fun time with food and prizes," said organizer Kim McFadden. "This is for anyone whoever thought about holding a racket or just wants some pointers. They don't even have to have a racket."

According to McFadden, USA Team Tennis is also forming recreational tennis teams for new and/or inexperienced players. The group is looking for non-competitive players for doubles, mixed doubles and seniors over-60 teams. "Sites will depend on the response," said McFadden. "We plan to schedule seniors on weekday afternoons so they can carpool during daylight hours. It's also usually less expensive then."

For information about either the clinic or the recreational teams, call 738-7046.

Closing summer thoughts

AS SUMMER DRAWS to a close (hard to believe, isn't it?), We thought I'd throw out some random thoughts on the local sports scene before jumping into the fall.

We'll first start with the local baseball leagues.

It was a bit of an unusual summer for the local youth baseball teams.

In the eight previous years I have covered the All-Star beat, there has always been at least two state champions coming from the local Little Leagues — Newark American, Newark National and Canal. This year there were none.

Last year, in fact, all five district championships (the ones that can advance anyway) were won by teams from those three leagues. This year, just two.

Only the Newark National Major Division (11-12 year-olds) boys and the Canal Major girls won District II championships.

Newark National was beaten by Georgetown in the state championship while Canal failed to capture the major softball crown for the first time since 1981.

We figure it would be interesting to see how far the teams that beat the local teams advanced.

It didn't take long to find out the quality of the teams from the state that the locals were beaten by was pretty good.

Take the Newark National majors, for instance. Georgetown has gone on to great success in the Eastern Regional. As of Thursday, it had won five of its six games and advanced to the regional championship game against Toms River, N.J.

The District II senior division (14-15 year-olds) were beaten out by Brandywine. All Brandywine has done is go on to win the state, Mid-Atlantic and Eastern Regional championships. This week, it's playing in Kissimmee, Fla., in the Senior League World Series.

In the senior softball division, Stanton-Newport — after losing its first game to Canal — came back to beat the perennial champs twice and earn the District II title. From that point, Stanton-Newport won the state championship and got within one game of playing for the Eastern Regional title.

Brandywine also won the

Russell eyes big senior year

Tight end heads quartet of former Newark High players

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

IT REALLY DOESN'T GET ANY BETTER than this for Jody Russell.

Russell, a fifth-year senior for the University of Delaware football team, is entering what could be the best year for him as an individual and for the team as a whole.

The three-year letter winner from Newark High will see significant playing time at the tight end position and again will be the long snapper on punts.

"I think it will be like it was at the end of last season," Russell said of his tight end playing time. "I'll play for two series and then [Jason VanKerkhoven] will play for two."

Russell's strides last year, which saw him break through with five receptions for 142 yards (an amazing 28.4 yards per catch).

"It's all confidence," he said. "Last year and before, I was a little hesitant. This year, I don't think, I just go out and do it." Blocking was always the one thing that the Blue Hen coaching staff pointed to as one of Russell's drawbacks. That too has improved.

"I'm doing much better," said Russell, who now stands 6-4, 255 pounds. "I've got the technique down better and with the extra time I've gotten, I've just gotten better at it."

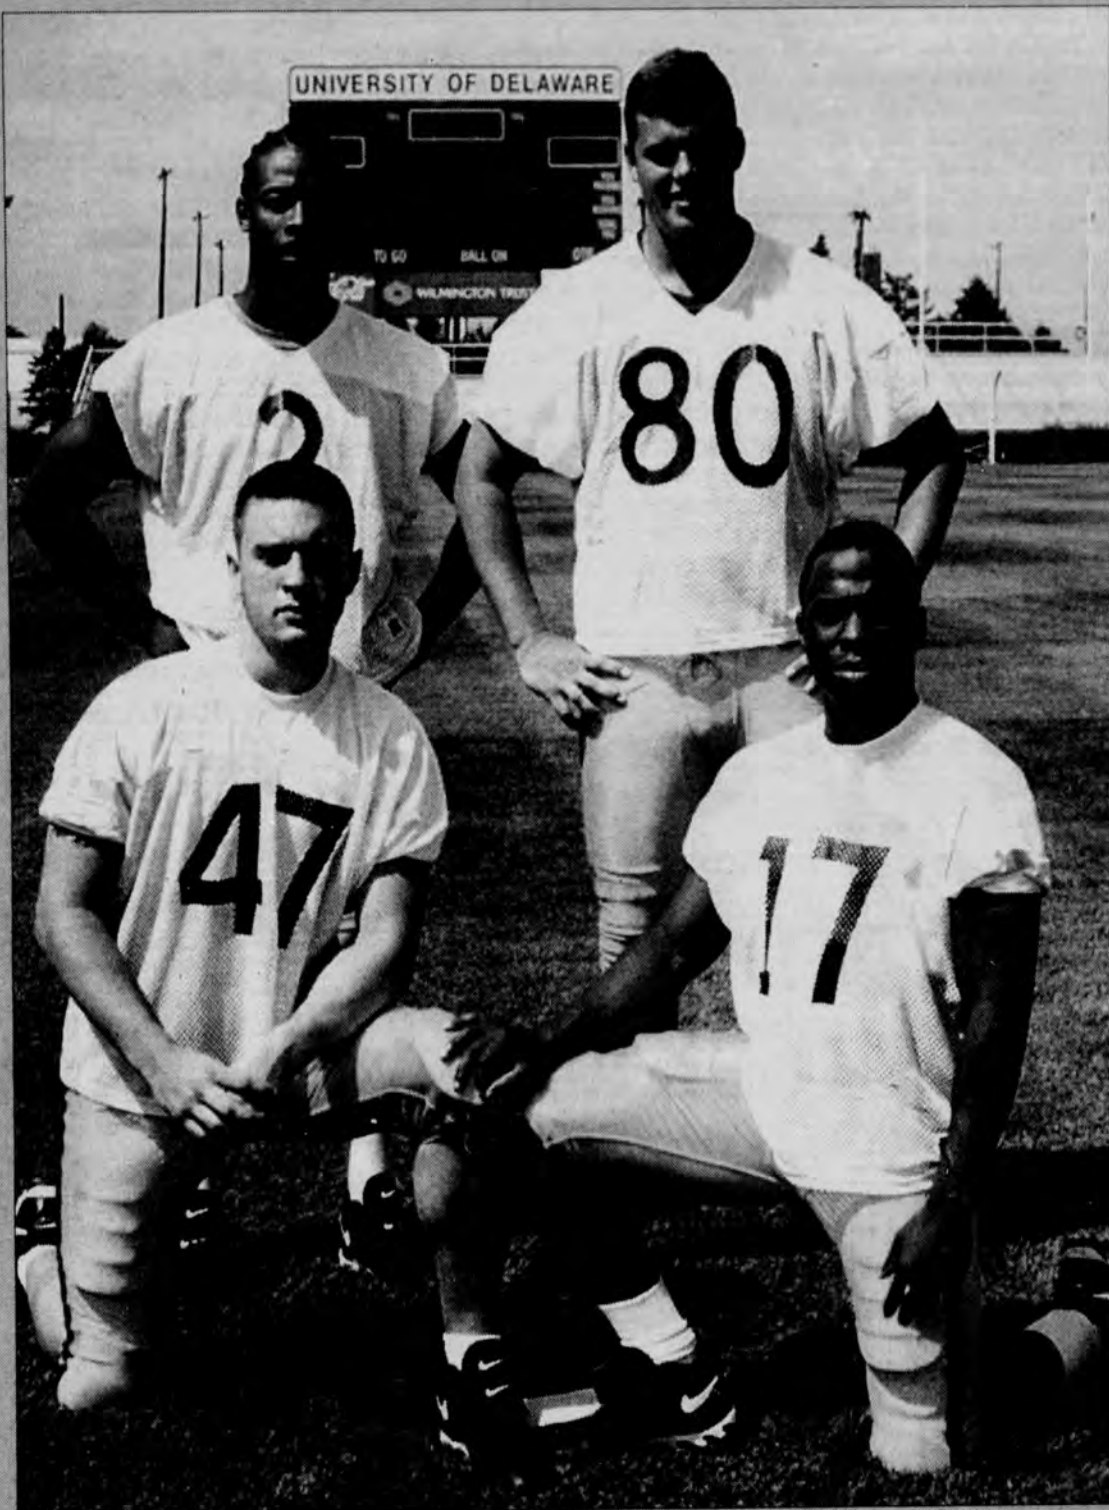

Russell, who weighed just 195 pounds his senior year in high school, was a three-sport star at Newark. He earned all-state in football, basketball and baseball and was the 1994 Newark Post Athlete of the Year.

"I'll tell you one thing," he said. "If anyone would've told me that I would be able to carry 255 pounds, I'd have thought they were crazy."

While things are looking up for the Russell individually, there's also high potential for the Blue Hens.

The team is coming off a 12-2 season in which it advanced to the NCAA I-AA semifinals. Only a last second field goal by McNeese State prevented the Hens from earning a spot in the championship game.

With a host of players returning, this year's team is aiming even higher.

"Everybody got a taste of it last year," Russell said. "And everybody's been pushing real hard all summer. We want to take that extra step. I think everybody's been real focused on that this year."

Success, however, won't be a given.

Delaware faces four stiff road tests against teams ranked among the Top 25, including No. 1 ranked Youngstown State (Oct. 17) and Atlantic 10 rival Villanova. The Wildcats were ranked seventh in the preseason poll and will

Cotton Club excelling in big track competitions

By STEVE WESTRICK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Cotton Posse Track Club is looking to bring developmental track to the Bear/Glasgow area.

The club is currently run by Michael and Esther Cotton. The club has five members all from the Cotton family.

"At this point it is just a family club," Michael said. "But it is open to others who want to join."

The Cotton family moved to Delaware from Philadelphia two years ago. Most of the family, which is made up of eight siblings, ran in a developmental club while in Philadelphia.

However, Delaware had only two developmental clubs in Wilmington and Dover.

Michael felt these were too far away. Because he already had some coaching experience, Michael decided to open up a developmental club in the area.

"There's a lot of children in Delaware who don't play soccer, don't play basketball. This will be good for them," Esther said. "Kids in Delaware don't start track until they get into high school. That puts them at a big disadvantage—especially the girls— from kids in other states."

Michael said the club would accept anyone between the ages of 6-18. However, most kids don't start running competitively until they're 7 or 8. In addition, Esther is going to open a developmental Track & Field club at the Greater Newark

Rocks provide great entertainment, value

At one time Major League baseball parks were a place a family could escape for an evening of entertainment.

Now, however, prices have escalated to the point many families can no longer afford going. Many players flaunt their big paychecks with even bigger attitudes. And the organizations clearly care more about your money than your entertainment.

That is where minor league baseball steps in. All over the country minor league teams have experienced resurgence in attendance. Wilmington is no exception. The Class-A Blue Rocks draw around 5,000 fans a night. So why is a Class-A team drawing such good attendance when both Baltimore and Philadelphia are within an hours' drive?

Here are several reasons.

■ Ticket prices.

While tickets for the Baltimore Orioles run between $9-$35 and $5-$16 for the Philadelphia Phillies, the Blue Rocks charge a reasonable $2-$7 for admission.

■ The park.

Although Frawley Stadium is a far cry from Baltimore's Camden Yards, it has all the features of most major league parks. Frawley features a large score board and interactive screen. In addition, while $5 will get you into Veterans Stadium, you will find yourself in peanut heaven. Likewise, to get close to the action for an Orioles game be ready to dish out closer to $35 than $9. At Frawley all the seats are relatively close to the playing field. Not only does this cozy feel make for a better vision line to the field; it also makes the fans feel more like part of the game.

By Steve Westrick

■ Autographs.

Blue Rock players are noted for signing autographs before the game. In fact kids align the top of the dugouts to have their favorite player sign a ball, shirt or just a piece of paper. This is no longer a feature at major league games where players now charge for autographs before and after a game.

■ Concessions and parking.

While parking will cost you $5 at Veterans Stadium and Camden Yards doesn't have a major parking lot (meaning you will pay between $5-$10 to use a downtown parking garage) the Blue Rocks provide free parking. The concessions at Frawley are by no means cheap. However, you can get out of the park spending under $10 and getting more than just a small snack. Some of the food prices include: peanuts $1.75, ice cream $2.50, jumbo hotdog $2.50, hamburger $2.50, french fries $2.00 or $4.00, soda $1.00, $2.00 or $2.75.

■ Competitiveness of play.

Because there is no salary cap in the majors, and the high cost of players' salaries, only a few teams can afford to compete each year. Big market team likes the Yankees, Orioles and Braves, constantly buy themselves a competitive ball club in the off season. In return, many teams like the Expos, Tigers and Pirates find themselves developing good players only to see them lost to free agency. Not only does this process lead to an uneven league, it leads to many lopsided games.

In the Carolina league, where the Blue Rocks play, all the teams are in the process of developing players. Thus, the competition level is relatively even. This makes for interesting games. 61 percent of the first 77 Blue Rocks' games were decided by three runs or less.

■ Entertainment.

Players in the minor leagues still seem to enjoy the game, playing it with a youthful type of exuberance. This leads to plenty of action on the field. For example on Aug. 15 Wilmington and Winston-Salem combined for three home runs in a 7-3 Blue Rocks victory. In addition, the Blue Rocks organization provides plenty of family entertainment both before and during the game. The Blue Rocks constantly have between-innings games allowing fans from all ages to take part. For smaller kids, there is always Rocky the Moose and his "beach cruiser" (a bicycle he rides around the field).

Nichols promoted to AA

By STEVE WESTRICK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Former St. Mark's pitcher Jamie Nichols was promoted, within the White Sox organization, from the A-Winston-Salem Warthogs to AA-Birmingham Barons.

Nichols, who was drafted by the White Sox in the 27th round of the 1994 draft, turned down a scholarship at the University North Carolina-Charlotte to become a professional.

The call-up came last week.

Nichols' record was 3-3, with a 5.50 ERA, in 19 appearances with Winston-Salem.

"Jamie was doing good at this level," Warthogs pitching coach Curt Hasler said. "We told him before he left that he should look at this as a tremendous opportunity."

Hasler said the Warthogs used

Russell, Hens ready for season

► HENS, from 13

host Delaware Sept. 12.

"Playing four Top 25 teams on the road is rough for anybody," Russell said. "I don't care if you're Nebraska."

Right now, however, the Hens are focusing on their opening game — Sept. 3 at home against the University of Massachusetts.

"We're really pumped for the UMass game on Thursday night," Russell said. "For some guys on the team, this will be their first-ever night game. It should be a great time. A lot of students should show up. It's just the first week of classes and there's nothing else for them to do. It should be great."

Yellowjackets abound

Russell is not the only former Newark High player on the Blue Hens roster. In fact, there are four.

All-State running backs Butter Pressey and Butch Patrick also will be members of the team. Pressey spent last year redshirting while Patrick was at Virginia Tech.

Patrick was a second string cornerback after the Hokies' spring practice.

Things, however, didn't work out for him in Blacksburg. After briefly considering a transfer to Western Carolina, the Delaware native ended up back in Newark.

Barry Zehnder, who graduated from Newark in 1997 and was a member of two Yellowjacket state finalist teams, is also on the squad.

Zehnder spent last year at a Har- graves Military Academy — a prep school in Virginia.

Watkins joins squad

Newark resident and former St. Mark's High star Mike Watkins will be a contributing member of the Hens as well.

Watkins, who graduated from St. Mark's in 1997, rushed for over 1,800 yards his senior year in high school and was named the state player of the year. He spent last season at Milford (Conn.) Prep where he was the team's leading rusher and also blocked seven punts.

Entering the season, he is listed as the third string halfback.

The rich get richer

McNeese State, already returning almost its entire squad from last season's championship game team, got Cecil Collins from LSU.

Collins, known as Cecil the Cotton Club athletes have big summer

► TRACK, from 13

Boys and Girls Club, this spring.

Despite the small size of the club, it's very successful. The club took third place, out of 20 clubs, at the United Age Group Track Developmental meet, in Willingboro, N.J. Esther attributes the club's performance, beating teams often three times its size, to the success of Myniqua and Samuel.

The club competed in both the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Jr. Olympics and the USA Track and Field Jr. Olympics.

At the AAU championship meet in Norfolk, Va., Myniqua became the national champion in the 400 meter dash and 800 meter run, for the 8 and under age group. In addition to her two gold medals, she also received a sixth place medal in the 100 meter dash.

Samuel received silver medals for finishing second in the 200 meter and 400 meter dash for the 12 year old division, in Norfolk.

"This year was very successful for us," Michael said. "Myniqua got 6th place in the 100 meter dash in Nationals. Up to that point she had not finished less than second in any event," he said of his daughter who also won two golds and a silver at the USA Track and Field championships.

The club begins training in April.

Then it competes in the United Age Group Track Developmental meet for five weekends in May. The developmental meet, held each year in Willingboro, has four weeks of qualifying meets then a championship weekend.

The club then competes in both the AAU and USA Jr. Olympic qualifying meets. Both qualifying meets are held relatively close to home, in Horsham and Germantown, Pa., respectively.

Competitors can then qualify for the championship meet in both associations.

For information on becoming a member or coaching call Michael or Esther Cotton at 836-5147.

► NICHOLS, from 14

Nichols as a starter and relief pitcher.

"He did everything we asked of him," Hasler said. "He's still young—only 24—he has a chance to do well in AA and beyond."

Hasler said Nichols has the natural body build to make the majors. He also described Nichols' primary strength as the ability to throw strikes.

"He throws a hard fastball and slider," Hasler said of Nichols' pitch selection. "He needed and out pitch, so to speak. So we gave him a split-finger-fastball. He just started throwing that pitch in May so he is just now getting comfortable with it."

DART wins award

DART First State, operated by the Delaware Department of Transportation's Delaware Transit Corporation, announced that it has received the William T. Coleman Award for Improvement, a 1998 Bus Safety Award, from the American Public Transit Association, Washington DC.

DART First State was recognized for a superior safety record and excellence in its safety program.

The Improvement Award indicates that DART First State has shown improvement in all aspects of safety during the year compared to the two preceding years. The award was presented to DART First State at the annual APTA Safety Awards dinner in Phoenix, Arizona in late May, and accepted by Paul Ford, Industrial Safety Officer.

Nancy J. Shevock, DART First State and Delaware Transit Corporation Director, stated, "We are pleased to be recognized nationally with this Safety Award, and congratulate our employees for their commitment to safety, and to the safety of our riders. Operating safely is crucial to the Delaware Transit Corporation's commitment to its community. With this award, we reaffirm our mission to provide the highest quality public transportation services."

DART First State, operated by the Delaware Department of Transportation's Delaware Transit Corporation, provides commuter rail service, intercounty bus service, fixed route bus service, paratransit services, commuter assistance service, and the RideShare Delaware program. DelDOT, which has custody and control of the road, has been petitioned to abandon and vacate that portion of Old New Castle County Road 314 which has ceased to be of necessity to the highway system. CAPITAL IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM
PUBLIC PARTICIPATION MEETING

The Council on Transportation and the Metropolitan Planning Organizations (MPO's) for New Castle and Kent Counties are jointly sponsoring three meetings to solicit public input in the preparation of DelDOT's Capital Improvement Program (CIP), Fiscal Years 2000 - 2005. Interested citizens are encouraged to attend any of the meetings and to provide their suggestions on shaping Delaware's future transportation program. This series of meetings will provide a variety of opportunities to discuss the existing Capital Improvement Program, the MPO's preliminary draft Transportation Improvement Program as well as bicycle and pedestrian issues, transit services, roadway/bridge improvements and the statewide long-range transportation plan. Council on Transportation and MPO representatives, along with DelDOT support staff, will be available to listen to comments and discuss proposed plans and projects.

Each meeting will have an informal workshop session at the start, followed by an auditorium session. A court reporter will be available during both sessions to record formal comments. Interested persons are also invited to submit written comments during the public meeting process and these also will be included in the formal record of the CIP meetings. Another series of meetings will be scheduled in early 1999 at which time draft CIP and the MPO's TIP documents will be prepared for review and comment.

The meetings will be held in:

- Sussex County at DelDOT South District Administration Building, US 113, Georgetown, on Thursday, September 17, 1998. Workshop session - 6:00 p.m., Auditorium session - 7:00 p.m.
- Kent County at the DelDOT Administration Building in Dover on Tuesday, September 22, 1998. Workshop session - 6:00 p.m., Auditorium session - 7:00 p.m.
- New Castle County at DelDOT Stanton Campus, Churchman's Road, Stanton, on Wednesday, September 23, 1998. Workshop session - 6:00 p.m., Auditorium session - 7:00 p.m.

The Council on Transportation is composed of citizen representatives from every county in the state. The members are appointed by the Governor. The MPO's are composed of representatives from state, county and local governments, and citizen and technical representatives. Mandated by Subsection 8409, Chapter 84, Title 29 of the Delaware Code, the meetings are designed to ensure that the public has ample opportunity to participate in the planning process.

If requested in advance, DelDOT will make available the services of an interpreter for the hearing impaired. If an interpreter is desired, please make the request by phone or mail to DelDOT.

Questions, comments or written material can be submitted to: Michele Ackles, Manager, Office of External Affairs, Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 778, Dover, Delaware 19903, or call 1-800-652-5600.
