ROTARIANS HEAR PLEA FOR PEACE

Speaker Asks
Understanding
Among Peoples

A plea for achieving world harmony through a greater understanding between peoples and a deeper recognition that men everywhere are basically the same was made by the Rev. Thomas Wingate, of Salem, N. J., in a talk before the Newark Rotary Club Monday evening.

Factors which divide people into national groups, the age-old barriers of varying languages, political boundaries, divergent customs and traditions causing deep cleavages between peoples, can only be overcome, he said, when men rise to a broader understanding which sees beyond superficial differences and recognizes man's basic humanity.

As a homely illustration, Rev. Wingate described the bitter friction which once existed between New Jersey and Delaware over rights to the oyster beds and fishing areas on the Delaware River. The dispute became so grave it was taken to the Supreme Court, he said. Yet today, he pointed out, few recall the heat and ill-feeling of the time. Raised to an international level, he said, similar understanding can be achieved.

Plans have been completed for the annual Ladies' Night to be next Monday at 8 p. m. The usual dinner meeting has been canceled.

Hallowe'en Party At School Next Wednesday

Working in cooperation with the local police department and parents of school children, there will be held at the Newark High School, on Wednesday evening, October 30, a costume Hallowe'en Party for children of grades 5, 6, 7, and 8.

While the affair is styled a costume party, costumes are not essential and it is hoped that parents will permit their children to attend the party and keep them off the streets and out of mischief on the night before Hallowe'en.

The party will be divided into two groups—for grades 5 and 6 and another for 7 and 8. Games and appropriate entertainment will be provided with prizes for the winners.

EDUCATION HELD KEY TO WORLD PEACE BY SPEAKER

Noted Women's Group Leader

In an eloquent appeal for education as the key to world peace and the more abundant life, Mrs. Stewart Schrimshaw, of Wawatosa, Wisconsin, chairman of education for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, spoke on "Education in An Atomic Age" at the New Century Club meeting here on Monday afternoon.

"The race is no longer between Education and catastrophe as H. G. Wells once put it but between education and certain annihilation," she said. Calling on women to assume their responsibilities in achieving world harmony, Mrs. Schrimshaw pointed out that during the year women in the U. S. had 66 percent of the voting power.

She urged women to encourage adult education and aid in the work of building a truly peaceful world as a memorial to those men and women who laid down their lives to achieve it.

Mrs. R. O. Bausman, president, presided at the business session, and the speaker was introduced by Mrs. T. D. Mylrea, program chairman. Mrs. Jack Pie, sewing chairman for the Red Cross, made an appeal for workers.

ISSUE NEW REPORT CARD AT SCHOOLS

First Grade
School Marking
Period In Nov.

The first report cards based on the new marking system introduced at the Newark Junior-Senior High School this term were issued yesterday.

Besides grading personal subjects, the reports rate the personality development of the student, covering such traits as courtesy, cheerfulness, initiative, good sportsmanship, citizenship and effort. Health habits are also rated.

As the previous system, alphabetical symbols will be used as follows: "A" excellent; "B" Good; "C" Fair; "D" Poor, and "E" very poor. A general average of "C" in the basic subjects is required for promotion. Requirements for the Honor Roll will remain unchanged.

The new cards also include space for written comments by the teacher on the student's progress for the benefit of the parent.

Elementary school reports, which will also be of new type this term, will not be issued until the second week in November, it was also announced.

The elementary reporting system this year will outline attitudes, skills and citizenship traits rather than give general grades on subject matter. Parents are urged to discuss any question directly with the teacher.

CRAWFORD ADDRESSES CONVENTION

U. Of D. Dean Talks At Quota Club Parley

Speaking from an educator's viewpoint on the influence of women in the peace-time economy, Dr. Gwendolyn S. Crawford, Dean of Women at the University of Delaware in Newark, Del., recently addressed delegates to the district convention of the Quota Club being held in the Hotel Dennis in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Declaring that the only hope for world harmony lies in having individuals with both educated hearts and minds, Dean Crawford stated that educational methods must recognize this challenge and function to prepare students for the intelligent discharge of personal and civic responsibilities.

Miss Crawford, an alumna of Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., received her doctorate in economics from the University of Virginia. In 1945, coincident with the transition of the University of Delaware to a coeducational status she was appointed Dean of Women at the Newark institution.

Dean Crawford offered a positive program for women, which emphasized coexistence of the noblesse oblige behind democratic ideals rather than mere blind acceptance of their advantages, and stressed an open-minded approach to all critical issues.

While not disparaging the influence women may have in the economic and political phases, today more than ever, Dean Crawford emphasized that their greatest influence on our peace-time economy lies in the field of human relationships, notably in the family.

Newark, Delaware, Thursday, October 24, 1946

DELAWARE FARM FRONT

There is still time to send in entries for the Delaware Food Preservation Contest, says Miss M. Gertrude Holloway, state home demonstration leader and nutrition specialist for the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service. This contest, to determine the 1946 food preservation champion in the state, will close on October 31. Any woman who has canned, frozen or stored food for home use in 1946 is eligible to enter. Entry blanks may be obtained from County Extension offices, Delaware Power and Light Company offices, canning centers at Lord Baltimore and Caesar Rodney High Schools, local Farm Bureaus and Granges, and must be mailed to the State Board of Agriculture in Dover. A silver loving cup will be awarded the winner. This contest is sponsored, and a trophy awarded in each participating state, by the National Garden Institute.

The Department of Agriculture reminds honey producers that the honey-use limitation order (WFO 47 and 47.1) is still in force, even though honey price ceilings were removed at all levels, effective September 27, 1946. Beekeepers, as well as buyers and users of honey, can now sell or purchase honey without being restricted by governmental price regulations.

The purpose of WFO 47 is to aid in keeping open the normal market outlets for the sale of honey, and to lessen the possibility of honey going into channels which will not provide a permanent market. At the present time it would be easy to sell a honey crop several times the size of that produced this year, department officials said. This situation is not expected to last, however.

Delaware farmers have until December 31 to carry out their farm conservation practices under the 1946 Agricultural Conservation Program. Farmers participating in this program are urged by C. E. Ocheltree, state director of the Production of Marketing Administration, to carry through to completion as many of the practices listed on their individual farm plans as possible.

Under this year's program, purchases may still be made of lime and fertilizer with commercial companies until the end of this year for credit toward that part of the conservation plan.

With legume seed in scarce supply, farmers are reminded, too, that a bonus of nine cents per pound will be paid for clean red clover seed put into commercial channels by December 1. This is in addition to the market price for the seed and the payment of $3.50 per acre up to 10 acres for the growing of this soil conserving crop.

Sweet potato growers in Delaware are expected to harvest some 2,500 acres this season. Yield per acre is expected to be about the same as last year. Average yields for last year were reported as 130 bushels per acre—three bushels more than the 1935-44 average.

E. P. Brasher, extension horticulturist for the Delaware Extension Service, cautions growers and gardeners to take extreme care in digging this year's crop to prevent cutting and bruising. Sweet potatoes should be handled as carefully and as little as possible from the time they are dug until they are marketed. They should never be thrown loose in a wagon or truck, or poured into sacks, but should be carefully placed in storage crates or hampers as they are picked up.

Should the price of sweet potatoes drop below the government support price, C. E. Ocheltree, state director of the Production and Marketing Administration, advises growers that upon request government purchases will be made to relieve the market. The sweet potato support price is $1.40 per bushel heavy pack U. S. No. 1. Mr. Kenneth Meredith has been named purchase representative for the sweet potato purchase program. He is located in the Kent County Agricultural Conservation Program office in Dover.

NEWARK, DELAWARE.

The whereabouts of "Wareabouts" this week is probably the question uppermost in the minds of those accustomed to glance at this space.

We hasten to reassure such fans (if any exist) that "Wareabouts" will appear in its usual slot here next week. Truth is, the author of that imperishable pillar of literature has retired for a spell to lick wounds suffered in the recent "Yellow Jacket Controversy," and it devolves upon us (the hired help) to stick out our nose too sturdy neck this week.

As regards the calumnious campaign waged by our worthy colleague in the past two issues against the Newark football team, we feel inclined to pour a little oil. The "Wareabouts" diatribes were directed mainly against the fact that the Jacks aren't winning football games.

We recall a vague and probably romantic illusion of our youth that sports, including football, had something to do with sportsmanship, fair-play, character-building, and the difficult art of being good losers.

It is a little unfair, we realize, to bring up these academic sentiments in the middle of a football season. They are best reserved for ceremonious occasions such as football banquets and varsity letter presentations, when they are not expected to mean anything in particular.

In the present crisis, though, they might serve as a consolation to Jacket fans. If the theory is correct, the Jacks are indeed a fortunate team this year. They must be chuck-full of newly built character by now. Imagine, what moral enrichment the game with Brown provided when the Jacks had their characters reinforced to the tune of 23-0. And, consider also, the Salesianum affair, another invaluable experience in which the Jacks learned to be even better losers. As for the Wilmington High adventure—the Jacks fairly soared in stature.

In short, if the boys are doing their best, that's all that need be asked.

A matter of far graver significance on the local scene, we feel, is the melancholy decline in a once noble craft—that of newspaper delivery boy.

We can remember a time when a newsboy was not only held in awe and respect as a potential president of the U. S., but was regarded as a master craftsman in his own right.

We can recall being lost in wonder and amazement at his masterly skill in hurling wadded papers with ease and unerring accuracy at front doors. Newsboys then brought this art to a pinnacle never since attained. What's more, they delivered papers every day.

Since then, the Golden Age has passed; the craft has declined and today's crop seem to be nothing more than talentless bunglers.

We will admit, though, that the modern newsboy is faced with more exacting problems. He has more to consider than merely delivering papers.

There is, for example, the preliminary processing which apparently all papers must go through in order to make certain the customers will not be able to read them when, and if, they're delivered.

Even before beginning his route, the modern newsboy must first lay all his papers out on some busy street so that they may be imbued with a clear, sharp impression of a dirty tire track, (preferably truck). Next, if his training has been sound, he must attend to the dipping process. This requires a large muddy puddle of just the proper consistency.

The dipping is not easy and must be exactly timed. The paper should be more than merely surface dampened, yet, where possible, complete disintegration should be avoided. Each paper should be held in the puddle only long enough to insure that the pages adhere firmly together and that the type is slightly blurred. This step, of course, is greatly simplified on rainy days.

Once his papers have thus been worked into proper shape for delivery, the newsboy's job is just beginning. From here on, to succeed properly, he must be a master technician, intimately familiar with the topography of his territory, especially every obscure bush, gutter or inconspicuous hiding place on each customer's property. He must know his neighborhood as a military strategist his battleground.

The rest is a mute undercover battle between the newsboy and the customer in which the latter can only go down gamely.

We are happy to report, though, that we're gradually turning the tide against our own newsboy. We have, after many setbacks, begun to out-think him. He is running short of hiding places and is growing desperate.

You can imagine then what a bitter blow it was one day last week when we suffered another disastrous defeat. After spending our usual half hour checking the ash cans, the neighbor's porch, the hedges, we were on the verge of a final crack-up, when we discovered the paper—neat, clean and carefully folded exactly where it should be, by the front door.

It is to this sort of unscrupulous trickery our newsboy has sunk. One thing gives us solace, though. We feel confident that the chances of his ever becoming president of the U. S. are rather slim.

DOWN TO HARD FACTS

There may be a bright side even to the coincident shortages of men's pajamas and bed sheets. A fellow ought to be able a little later to sleep on tick, anyway.

63 PER CENT INCREASE IN BIG LEAGUE ATTENDANCE

An increase of 63 per cent in major league baseball paid attendance the past season over 1945 setting new records in both leagues was claimed in an unofficial but practically complete report released this week.

The American League drew 9,666,421 compared to 6,002,366 last year, and the National League drew 8,946,283 compared to 5,372,819. Last year's totals were the highest up to that time.

The New York Yankees with 2,309,029 broke the major league record of 1,485,166 set by the Chicago Cubs in 1929. Although the Yankees wound up in third place and played under three different managers, their total was more than double last year's 1,014,936.

Two other clubs also exceeded the Cubs' 1929 mark—Brooklyn in the National League with 1,796,155, which was tops in that circuit, and Detroit in the American League with 1,722,590.

The American League champions, the Boston Red Sox, came close with 1,416,944.

Hitherto 1,000,000 paid attendance has been accepted in statistical-minded baseball as the ultimate goal of any club owner. Ten of the 16 teams bettered that figure in 1946, compared to five last year and none in 1944.

To the New York Giants went the distinction of being the only last place team to attract more than one million customers, the total being 1,234,733. Two other second division clubs also bettered one million, the Phillies and the Cleveland Indians.

The Phillies, emerging from a long residence in the National League cellar, made the greatest increase of any team in the circuit with a gain of 734,856 over the 1945 total of attendance of only 310,389.

Each club in each league broke its previous attendance record except for Philadelphia and St. Louis in the American League, and Chicago and Cincinnati in the National.

JACKETS TO SEEK FIRST WIN

Odds Even For Claymont Tilt Saturday

The Newark Yellow Jackets, who absorbed their third disastrous defeat in a row last Saturday when they bowed to Wilmington High School, 33-6, find their chances for victory a little brighter this week as they encounter Claymont High on the latter's field in a matinee tussle.

Although Claymont rates as pre-game favorites, Newark will be entering the fray with the odds fairly even for the first time this season. Until now, they have been outclassed by their opponents in size, power and experience.

In their romp over Newark last Saturday, the Red Devils were enjoying their first victory of the year. The Devils' first score came when Joe Valturo blocked Dick Davis' kick for a safety. They scored three touchdowns during the second period, the first on a short pass from Hushbeck to Cooling; next, Foster carried thirty yards of a eighty yard drive; and for the third fully Geiger returned a punt sixty yards.

The Yellow Jackets finally broke through in the fourth quarter on a pass from Ford to Gregg, for the only tally.

Then the Red Devils came back strong, Foster scoring on an eighty yard run; while a pass from Hushbeck to Cannatelli accounted for the final tally.

HENS TO APPEAR BEFORE HOMECOMING CROWD HERE SATURDAY AGAINST DREXEL

Only Game On Frazer Field This Season; Kick-Off Set For 2 P. M.; Hens Meet Stiffest Test Of Year In 27-6 Triumph Over Gettysburg

The high-flying Blue Hens will settle in their home roost on Frazer Field this Saturday afternoon to preen themselves under the fond eyes of the university's old grads in a colorful Homecoming Day setto against Drexel Tech. The kick-off is set for 2 p. m. Drexel, rated as one of the tough small college aggregations in this section, may not prove docile scapegoats for the festivities, but the Hens, who have been priming earnestly for the event all week, aim to display their best form for the Homecoming crowd.

Tech, which has won three in a row, last Saturday trampled over Haverford, 33-20.

Something of a scare was thrown in Delaware last Saturday by the Gettysburg Bullets, who, although they went down, 27-6, put on a potent offensive which registered 18 first downs to Delaware's nine and provided the Murray-men their stiffest opposition this season. Several times the Bullets launched sustained drives which Delaware managed to smother only when nearing the danger zone.

Major factor in swinging the tide for the Hens was the scintillating performance of Gerald Doe Doherty, who three times set out on long distance tours accounting for three of Delaware's four scores.

As customary, the Hens stabbed through their first six-pointer in the opening canto, when Paul Hott gearied freshman Wray Hushbeck with a 30-yard aerial.

From there on Doherty took personal charge of the scoring, his runs coming with lightning suddenness in each of the next three periods, the first two when the Hens were loitering deep in their own territory.

For his first score, Doherty headed an off-tackle reverse and soloed 62 yards. His next stab came with equal abruptness in the third period, when after being downed on a punt return on his own 18-yard line, Doherty whisked off-tackle for a scorching 65 yard non-stop trip.

The Bullets, who completed 14 of 18 pass tries, sliced off most of their yardage via the air. Their only gain came in the final quarter when they marched 59 yards in a series of plays. Similar offensive by Gettysburg invariably bogged down.

Doherty answered that German effort with his final effort of the day. His last one-way expedition covered 28 yards.

HOME FOOD STORAGE IN FALL URGED

Saving Late Vegetables To Aid Shortages

Literally billions of quarts of food have been preserved during this year's harvest season. To contribute further to the food supply, homemakers are urged to save late vegetables.

The general theme will be "Education for the Atomic Age."

Special phases will be emphasized daily as follows:

November 10, Practicing Brotherhood; November 11, Building World Security; November 12, Facing New Tasks; November 13, Developing Better Communities; November 14, Strengthening Home Life; November 15, Investing in Education; November 16, Promoting Health and Safety.

Foods produced in gardens this year can be a great help to the family budget and help to relieve the inflationary pressure on food prices, says Miss Whitcomb.

To answer homemakers' questions on home storage, E. P. Brasher, extension horticulturist, says that the following foods may be stored "as is" in a cool, well-ventilated cellar: cabbage, potatoes, parsnips, turnips, beets, carrots and apples.

Dry storage in a generally cool place is recommended for dried beans, peas, lentils and hot peppers.

Moderately cool and dry storage is adequate for pumpkins, squash and sweet potatoes.

When foods are being prepared for storage, great care should be taken to discard all fruits or vegetables that show any sign of injury or decay. Once decay gets into a bin of food, it may quickly spoil the whole lot.

Good ventilation is necessary in successful food storage to carry off odors and to maintain the proper temperature and humidity. Windows should be screened to keep out light. Containers should be set a few inches off the ground to assure proper circulation of air.

a decline of more than 2,000 from August.

Shortages of sheet steel pig iron, copper and lead were blamed for the drop. Truck output, for the same reasons, fell much more sharply.

Production of trucks in September totaled 92,044 units, compared to 105,506 in August. Medium weight trucks showed the biggest drop. Manufacturers anticipate a rebound to 127,331 trucks in October, CPA said.

Enough Food is no Accident

It is no accident that the largest crops in our history are being harvested this year when we, and the rest of the world, need them most.

In spite of war, loss of labor and little new equipment, the American farmer has again taken care of us and provided a life-saving surplus for abroad.

How do our farmers do it? How is it that only sixteen per cent of our people can feed all of us and go on breaking records in the face of circumstances which slow up industry?

There are three reasons: First, farmers work harder and longer than most other Americans. Second, they know how to make the best use of tools. And, third, they have a long-standing partnership with industry seeking to satisfy their urge to get more out of the land for the same labor. Farmers are still practicing the kind of enterprise that built America.

National thanks are due the farmer for the job he has done in the last five years. Universal respect is due him for his foresight in helping industry equip farms to meet a whole series of emergencies.

BUT . . . we should not crowd our luck, or the farmer's luck either. Too many farm tools are now worn out. Without new ones production may go down. Farmers need over eight hundred million dollars' worth of new implements and equipment. It is up to industry and labor to keep wheels turning to produce them, but any recurrence of strikes would prevent this.

America should see that the hard-working farmer gets what he needs.
