

Foreword

"All the world's a stage, and all men and women merely players." Our play is now over. At times the lights have been low; the scenery has not always been in harmony with the different colored lights; the actors have sometimes forgotten their cues; the applause has been inaudible. But, after all, it is our play.

In this book we have tried to picture the play as it has been at the Women's College. If we have failed, we expect only your disapproval. If we have succeeded, we have accomplished that which we set out to do.

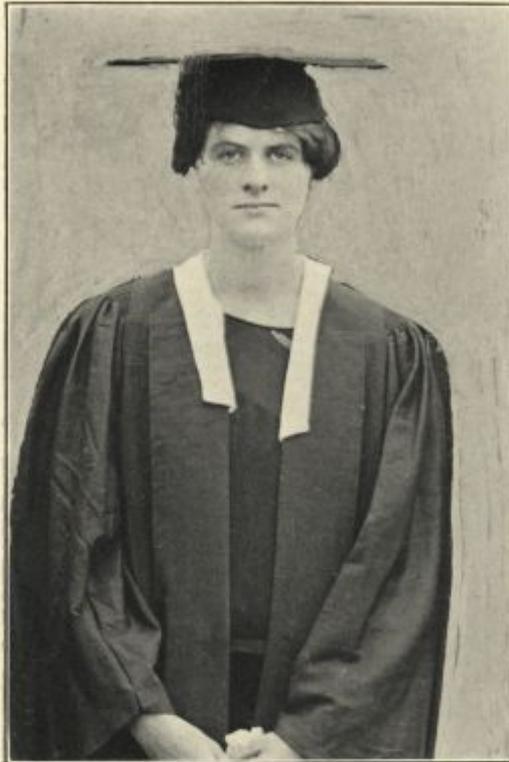

Contents

2

DEDICATION
FOREWORD
THE CAMPUS
FACULTY
CLASSES
ORGANIZATIONS
HUMOR
ADVERTISEMENTS

IN MEMORIAM

This page is respectfully dedicated to the memory of

ARTHUR E. CONGDON

by the classes of 1926 and 1927 of the Women's College of the University of Delaware

