Reyburn Radio Store Responsible for RCA Survey in Newark

The past week the Radio Corporation of America has had several technicians here making a survey of the town for radio interference and found the conditions in Newark deplorable for radio reception. One of the main sources of the trouble was at the corner of Main street and Elkton road, which it is understood is the junction of the 33,000 volt line running through the center of the town and down Elkton road to Elkton and vicinity.

The expenses of the survey were borne personally by Mr. Reyburn and he is to be congratulated for taking these steps for the radio fans of Newark and vicinity, for the reception in Newark has been very bad for some time.

The Atwater Kent and Spanton engineers also expect to follow up the survey of the RCA.

In another column of The Post there is a notice to the effect that the current will be shut off on Sunday from 6 a. m. to 10 a. m., which shows that the Town Council is willing to do all in its power when these things are brought to its attention; and they are to be congratulated for taking these steps so quickly after the survey and recommendations were made.

U. S. ARMY BAND TO PLAY AT LONGWOOD

The Concert Will Be Given Under Auspices of American Legion

General Pershing fought the war with music as well as bullets. His A. E. F. Headquarters Band, recruited among the flower of American musicianship then in the service, was one of the finest military musical organizations the world has ever seen.

Realizing that peace-time morale is almost as important and much harder to maintain than a war-time spirit, General Pershing ordered the U. S. Army Band organized in 1922, when he became chief-of-staff. He gathered the remnants of the A. E. F. Band—"Pershing's Own," at Fort Hunt, Va., in the Spring of 1922, along with the best musicians in the various regimental bands of the farflung army posts throughout the country.

This was the beginning. In September, that year, the band was ordered to Washington. Captain William J. Stannard was named leader after exhaustive competition. The wisdom of the choice has been demonstrated by the outstanding reputation the organization has gained under his leadership.

When the War Department was besieged with requests to allow the U. S. Army Band to leave the country to represent the United States musically at the Ibero-American Exposition at Seville, Spain, this year—a privilege never before accorded a service band—General Pershing enthusiastically supported the proposal.

Congress, recognizing that the Army Band was the official exponent of Latin-American music in this country—so named by the Pan-American Union—readily consented and made provision for the necessary funds.

The tour will bring the U. S. Army Band to Longwood on Tuesday, October 7, at 2:15 and 8:15, under auspices of the American Legion.

Tickets may be purchased at Longwood on the day of the concert. Afternoon, $1.00; evening, $1.50.

Charles Pie, who is a senior in high school, won the club championship last year.

In the second round of the first 16 for the club championship on Saturday Charles Pie defeated E. B. Wright, 4 and 2; L. H. Lewis defeated H. C. Souder, 4 and 3; P. F. Pie, Jr., defeated E. W. Steele, 3 and 2; and H. A. Turner, Jr., defeated C. A. McCue, 7 and 6. Of the four who will play in the semi-finals this week, Charles Pie is a high school student and the other three are students at the University of Delaware.

Special committees have been appointed to take care of the various departments of the exhibits of poultry and commercial displays and the cooperation of all the poultry raisers and hatcherymen throughout the state is being solicited in order that this show will be a marked success and a credit to the poultry industry of Delaware.

It is expected that a large number of commercial poultry raisers, including both the growers of production and exhibition stock, will take an active interest in this show and exhibit their birds along with their displays of baby chicks and eggs. A special department is also being arranged for the members of the 4-H clubs and the vocational agricultural departments in the high schools throughout the state.

LOGAN'S FAMOUS RUM

CASES IN CECIL CO. COURT

The third week of the September term of Circuit Court for Cecil County, started in Elkton Monday. A number of the criminal cases have been disposed of. The remainder including the eighteen persons, mostly roadhouse proprietors of upper Cecil County charged with local option law violations on evidence submitted by George B. Campbell, of Phoenixville, the two Pennsylvania detectives, and Robert H. Kramer, of Auburn, hired by Sheriff George Clinton Logan, to clean up the county, will be tried this week.

After the accused persons were arrested, the detectives failed to put in their appearance at the hearings before Magistrate Scotten, of this town, and consequently the charges dismissed. Following the detectives' non-appearance, Sheriff Logan started action in Pennsylvania to have the license of both Campbell and Kramer revoked. However, before the day set for the hearing in West Chester, Pa., the detectives appeared before the Grand Jury here and testified, resulting in twenty-six indictments being returned against the eighteen persons who had previously been arrested and dismissed.

CONVICT BUT ONE

ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Trials of alleged bootleggers who were arrested on information of two Pennsylvania detectives some time ago, who failed to appear at a hearing but later did so, have been occupying the attention of the Circuit Court in Elkton.

Robert Hoffman, a road house keeper, near Conowingo, was convicted and sentenced to three months' imprisonment, two of which he has already served, while awaiting trial. Mrs. Flora Owens, of Rising Sun, was acquitted. It is understood that the case against Jack Dalton, of Rising Sun, will be dismissed as the Pennsylvania detectives failed to identify him although he is 6 feet 6 inches tall and striking in appearance because of his height.

These cases are a few of Sheriff Logan's pre-primary causes which upset Cecil county, and no doubt helped to defeat his wife who aspires for the sheriff's office, but the voters in our neighboring county decreed otherwise.

KEEP THE WHEAT SOIL BALANCED

KEEP IT BALANCED!

IF YOU WANT MORE HERE

It is a matter of record that wheat yields in most winter wheat States are better now than they were 25 or 30 years ago. This is due largely to the use of commercial fertilizer to increase the total supply of plant food and to properly balance that present in the soil.

It is a well-known fact that the cost of growing a bushel of wheat depends on the acre yield than on any other single factor. It is, therefore, says County Agent Ed Willis, Jr., essential to get high yields on each acre in order to produce the grain at a cost that will leave a margin of profit for the grower. Since the plant food supply has so great effect on the yield, it is essential to provide a balanced and liberal ration if the yield is to be kept at a high level. In order to get more on the wheat production side of the scale, one must add more to the food supply side.

POULTRY SUPPER AT UNION

Leola Council No. 4, D. of P., will hold their annual Poultry Supper in Red Men's Hall at Union, Delaware, on Thursday evening, October 9.

University Now On

Regular Schedule

All Classes Organized and Routine Work of College Year Started

Despite the unusually large freshman class at Delaware College, University of Delaware, the classes for the term were all organized without any delay and the routine work for the college year started. Some few freshmen came in during the past week, which brought the total in this college alone up to about 166. With the several transfers from other colleges there are more than 170 new students in Delaware College.

The new class at the Women's College numbers between 90 and 100. Last week every student at the Women's College was given a thorough medical examination under the auspices of the State Board of Health and with the assistance of the members of the physical education department of the college and physicians and dentists of Newark and Wilmington who volunteered their services.

This examination is required before any student is allowed to take part in any physical exercises. Where any physical defects are found a report is made to the parents of the student so that the family physicians can be called in.

A similar examination is made of every student at Delaware College by the military department.

It has been decided not to open the new gymnasium at the Women's College for general use until the start of the next term in the winter. By that time every detail in connection with the gymnasium will have been completed.

Every place on the faculty of the two colleges has been filled and the University faces what is expected to be the most successful year in every respect in its history. It is noticeable that students entering the college from Delaware are better qualified each year as the standards of the high schools are increased. There is also no doubt that the general standard of the faculty is also increasing from time to time as salaries are gradually increased in an effort to get them near the average of other similar institutions.

The first football game of the season on Frazer Field, Newark, will be played on Saturday of next week with George Washington University, of Washington, D. C., as opponents. Delaware opens the season Saturday of this week with St. Joseph's in Philadelphia.

Conches Zeigler and Rogers have the squad of fifty football candidates in excellent physical shape and prospects are that the Blue and Gold team will be one of the strongest, if not the strongest, in the history of the college. In view of the fact that nine players who are being used on the varsity team are freshmen would indicate that the team will be strong at least for the next few years.

More interest is being shown in the team by alumni and the student body than ever before.

This season the college band of fifty pieces will be provided with new uniforms and will turn out for all home games. The new uniforms will arrive the latter part of this week. One feature will be long blue capes with the color gold inside so that when the capes are pinned back across the shoulders both blue and gold, the college colors, will show. The new caps are blue with gold trimming.

DELAWARE

IN GOOD FORM FOR OPENER

Tackle St. Joe This Saturday at Philadelphia; Beat Scrubs 43-0

With the opening game of the season, scheduled for Saturday with St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, the University of Delaware football squad faces a hard week's work starting this afternoon to get in the best shape possible for the opener. St. Joe on Saturday in their first game was defeated by the big Muhlenberg team, but held them to one touchdown, which would indicate that Delaware has a hard game ahead to open the season with.

Conches Zeigler and Rogers have arranged for a practice game here Wednesday afternoon with the Fort du Pont team. This will give them a chance to work out in an actual game some of the plays that the varsity has been drilled in since the Penn scrimmage. The Fort du Pont game will start about 4.

It is hoped to have the new uniforms for the musicians here in time for the band to accompany the squad to Philadelphia on Saturday. The new uniforms will include a long blue cape, the color gold inside so that when pinned back across the shoulders both the blue and gold, the college colors, will show. The caps will be blue with a gold trimming. There will be about 40 in the band.

The varsity was put through a hard four-quarter scrimmage against the scrubs on Saturday and defeated the second team 43 to 0. The work of the varsity was the smoothest of the season and demonstrated that the long period of preliminary practice is bringing results. The team showed more punch and drive than any Blue and Gold team ever seen on Frazer Field.

WILLIAM CRESSWELL

BURIED MONDAY

The funeral of William Cresswell, 70, who died Saturday at his home in Newark, after an illness of several days, suffering heart trouble, was held Monday with services at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lilly Willis, at Mechanicsville. Further services were held in Head of Christiana Church, followed by burial in the adjoining cemetery.

Mr. Cresswell had made his home at Newark for the past three years, coming from Cowtown, Md., where he was born and had lived on a farm for many years. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Cresswell.

Mr. Cresswell was a member of Little Elk Tribe of Red Men, Cherry Hill Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and the Knights of the Golden Eagle. He had been a lifelong member of Head of the Christiana Presbyterian Church, and for several years had served on the board of trustees.

Surviving him besides the daughter at whose home the funeral was held, are one son, Dr. George W. Cresswell, of Washington, four grandchildren, and a brother, James Cresswell, of St. Louis, Mo.

PA. CHESTNUT TREES

COMING OUT AGAIN

Young chestnut trees at Waynesboro, Pa., are developing to such an extent in the Blue Ridge Mountain forest lands in this vicinity that some of them are of bearing age, according to a number of people who have made pilgrimages to the forests.

This bears out the contention of forest research and forest school men that chestnut trees destroyed by a blight several years ago are now coming back and a few years hence it is thought that the mountain sides will again be dotted with trees laden with nuts. Those that are now bearing were sprouts that came up from the roots or stumps of the dead trees.

BEETLE RESTRICTIONS OF FARMER NEAR END

All restrictions on the interstate movement of farm products in the area covered by the Japanese beetle quarantine will be removed Wednesday, October 1.
The plant quarantine and control administration of the Department of Agriculture announced today that danger of spreading the beetle pest through farm products was ended for this year. Restrictions on cut flowers and other portions of plants remain in effect until October 15. Restrictions on the movement of nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock are enforced throughout the year and are not affected by this order.

Present Vogue in Architecture and Furnishing Restores Wrought Iron to Many Uses

It may be questioned whether the forges of medieval Spain or any later time in Europe or colonial America, ever surpassed for grace and effectiveness the products of our best art metal shops today.

The present trend of architecture has been largely responsible for this development. Residential designing calls for authentic reproductions of fence may dictate. We have a resulting wealth of good andirons, fire tools, fire screens, hearth seats, benches, chairs, lamps, chandeliers and lighting brackets, flower baskets, curtain rods, and like things too many to name.

Our cathedral-like office, bank, and apartment buildings offer many opportunities for ornamental iron work, and nothing is more in keeping with well defined types; Old English, Colonial, Spanish, Italian, etc. All these require ornamental iron work and other accessories of appropriate character. There are several reasons for the prominence of wrought iron. To begin with, all hardware was formerly hand made; and no other metal carries the hand made look so effectively as wrought iron. Again, the climate of the countries from which these revived styles are brought, was such that for ventilation and comfort iron gates and grilles, gratings, and fences were used instead of doors and close shutters. When these time-honored objects come back, they not only bring with them old companions but also prepare the way for some that our grandfathers never knew, as modern conventhe design of such architecture than the grace and beauty of wrought iron which has been so much associated with it in the past.

Like other things of the most unquestioned merit, wrought iron has been subject to fluctuations of favor. Few things, indeed, are indispensable, and vogue may shift from time to time. But wrought iron has come back. The same qualities that endeared it to craftsmen of other times, attract the sincere and intelligent worker today.

Its great durability in many useful forms, some as prosaic as roofing, pipe, or fence wire, is winning new recognition.

Designers and artisans grow fond of it, discriminating patrons of the arts and crafts approve of it, and its place in our buildings and elsewhere is enlarged year by year.

SENATOR HASTINGS TALKS ON AMENDMENTS

Five Per Cent of the People Can Prevent Ratification He Says

It is possible for 13 States, having but five per cent of the country's population, to prevent the ratification of a Constitutional amendment, United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings pointed out Tuesday night in an address on "Constitutional Amendments," broadcast over Station WEF and its network in New York. Theoretically, he said, all the people in the other 35 States constituting 95 per cent of the population, may want the Constitution amended, but cannot have it done.

Senator Hastings spoke under the auspices of the American Bar Association, and was introduced by Col. Thad Brown, general counsel for the Federal Radio Commission.

Senator Hastings, in his speech, said in part:

"My observation has been that those persons who declare against the Eighteenth Amendment always qualify their statement by saying they are positively opposed to the return of the saloon; and this should be noted, too, that every prominent person who says he is against the Eighteenth Amendment has some particular remedy of his own. Remembering the difficulties of amending the Constitution as I have outlined, let everyone seriously consider what progress is being made toward the repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"You may talk as much as you like about disrespect for the law undermining the foundation of the country, but the advocates of this cause will not be able to convince millions of religious people of the country that that kind of patriotism is as important to them as their kind of religion.

"But whatever may be our differences of opinion, all good citizens must unite on the one essential thing, namely, the preservation of the Constitution in its entirety, and the enforcement of all of its provisions. In no other way can we maintain it and boast of it as the greatest document in the world."

DEL. LEADS IN REDUCTION OF ACCIDENTAL DEATHS

Announced by National Safety Congress Meeting in Pittsburgh

RATE 13.4 PER CENT

Baltimore was awarded the 1929-30 intercity motor vehicle safety banner for the best traffic record of an American city at the nineteenth annual Safety Congress and Exposition which opened at Pittsburgh Monday with 7000 safety workers in attendance. Fitchburg, Mass., was awarded second place and Providence, R. I., third. The presentation was made by the Albert Russell Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research, Harvard University. Delaware showed the greatest percentage of reduction in accidental deaths, 13.4 per cent; North Dakota was second with 10 per cent, and Nevada third with a decrease of 5.6 per cent.

Arkansas had the greatest gain in accidental deaths from all causes last year, 20.8 per cent; South Carolina second, 14.8 per cent, and Wyoming and Nebraska were tied for third with a gain of 14.4 per cent.

Baltimore "Safest" City

Baltimore's best record for the year was a period of 19 days, during winter months, without a motor vehicle fatality. With its population of 805,753, this gives a total of 15,309,307 "man-days" without a traffic death. Last year the award was won by Rochester, N. Y., with 20,348,400 "man-days."

The population of Fitchburg forced that city into second place although it had a perfect record for the year. The record is based on the number of consecutive days without a death, multiplied by the population of the city, and Fitchburg's 365 day record and population of 40,672 totaled only 14,845,280 "man-days." Providence had 49 consecutive days without a traffic fatality, giving that city a total of 12,366,914 "man-days."

Other cities in the order that they placed in the contest were Rochester, N. Y.; Evanston, Ill.; Worcester, Mass.; and Toledo, Ohio.

Women had a much better record in 1929 for avoiding accidents than men. The accident death rate per 100,000 for men was 114.8, while for women it was 45.3.

Ways and means of staying alive in this era of industrial expansion and fast moving life were emphasized. Chief executives of two nations praised the safety workers for their efforts to reduce the country's accidental death toll of 97,000 lives and the economic loss which it represents.

Governor Lord Somers, of Sydney, Australia, opened the congress with an address broadcast by short wave radio from Sydney, and later a message from President Hoover was read. Addresses by Miller McClintock, Harvard University, and Major Harry Steere-Clark, Vancouver, B. C., urging that the safety program be made international, were broadcast to Australia by the short wave station of KDKA in Pittsburgh.

Reads Hoover's Message

The message from President Hoover, which was read by C. E. Pettibone, retiring president of the National Safety Council, said:

"I deeply appreciate the value of the work of the National Safety Council in efforts to prevent the frightful loss of human life due to preventable accidents in industry and elsewhere. The death by accidents of almost one hundred thousand persons in the United States is a challenge to the resourcefulness of the nation to devise measures to eliminate this disastrous loss both of economic assets and of previous human values. Most of it is preventable and your educational campaigns to teach the methods of such prevention are worthy of praise."

A significant improvement in accident prevention was heralded by Pettibone in his address at the annual meeting of members. He declared that although social progress was slow, the teaching of safety workers was having a great effect on the American people and the principles and technique that were already known need only to be "persistently and continuously expanded to have safety become an integral part of every day living."

Walter Dent Smith, of the Delaware Safety Council, was in attendance at all sessions and is to be congratulated on his part in reducing accidents in Delaware.

Given Lift in Own Stolen Car

A thumb-wagger, to coin a word, is a person who stands in the road and yanks his thumb at passing motorists in the hope that one of them will stop and give him a lift.

Harry W. Olson became a thumb-wagger Monday, not through choice but by necessity.

Someone had stolen his automobile. He decided to stand out in the road and be a thumb-wagger.

After a while a car came along. The driver seemed different than the rest; a cheery soul, and kind hearted. He stopped the car and Olson got in.

Olson dropped into the seat and began twiddling his thumbs abstractedly. A thumb-wagger will do that absent-mindedly, nine times out of ten. He glanced down at the instrument board. He was amazed.

As soon as they reached an intersection where there was a policeman, Olson summoned the officer.

"Arrest this man," he said, pointing to the driver, one Ralph Klingensmaier.

Mr. Olson, it seems, had thumb-wagged his own stolen automobile.

SELL EGGS ON QUALITY BASIS

If you sell eggs to local dealers, insist on selling them on a quality basis, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Under a quality basis, the buyer does not pay for eggs that are unwholesome and unfit for food; and he should pay a differential, based on quality, for the good eggs. This system offers an incentive to produce good eggs. Some States regulating egg buying require purchasing on the loss-off basis.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear mother, Mary L. Jamison, who departed this life one year ago, October 2, 1929.

When the Golden Gates were opened, And God's gentle voice said "Come," Then with farewell unspoken, Mother calmly entered home.

As I loved her so I miss her, In my memory she is near, Loved, remembered, longed for always, Bringing many a silent tear. Sadly missed by daughter, Carrie J. Guthrie.

CAPPER ENDORSES RADIO AUDITION

Coupled with the announcement of the first state competition in the Fourth National Radio Audition in Portland, Oregon, September 27, comes a radio statement by United States Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, hailing the competition inaugurated by the Atwater Kent Foundation as "one of the most useful and public-spirited enterprises with which I am familiar."

"I am very glad to have the opportunity to say a few words this evening in commendation of the National Radio Audition held by the Atwater Kent Foundation," he said. "It is refreshing to find a leader in a great national industry ready to devote his time and attention and money to a plan not only to utilize the industry for constructive and public-spirited purposes but also to prepare young men and women for the greatest possible service to an art with which the industry is associated. This is what my friend, Mr. A. Atwater Kent, is doing through the National Radio Audition. I have no hesitancy in saying that he is outstanding in American business in his genuine interest in raising the standards of performance, taste, and appreciation. An outstanding engineer and inventor, a successful business man, deeply interested in music, he has the versatility and public spirit which will contribute more and more to the substantial value of radio broadcasting in this country."

"The National Radio Audition is a splendidly worked out plan for choosing a group of young men and young women who give promise of contributing to the future of music in the United States. Ten young people, selected for their talent, receive each year the opportunity for the musical training for which they long and which in many cases they never had really hoped to obtain. This is the fourth year of the competitions, which are to go on indefinitely, affording a steady flow of promising and trained young people opportunities for public performance in the musical field."

"Nothing pleases me more than chances given to young boys and girls and young men and women. The National Radio Audition gives these opportunities. More than this, it gives promise of contributing greatly to raising the standard of music over the radio, in concerts, on the stage, in opera, in church services, and elsewhere. It is one of the most useful and public-spirited enterprises with which I am familiar."

Senator Capper has been one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the National Radio Audition since its inception by the Atwater Kent Foundation in 1927. He has served as an active member of the Kansas State Audition Committee in each of the previous auditions and is serving again this year. His estimate of what the competition means to the community, the state and the nation, is found in a radio address broadcast to the young people of his city and state through station WIBW, at Topeka.

PARTIES "WARM UP" IN CECIL COUNTY

The Republicans of Cecil County opened their campaign in Cecil County Tuesday night with a mass-meeting in the New Theatre. The principal speaker was Mayor William F. Broening, of Baltimore, the Republican nominee for Governor.

The Democrats have made plans to open their campaign with mass-meeting in Elkton, Wednesday evening, October 8. The speakers will be Governor Ritchie, Attorney General Thomas H. Robinson, Congressman T. Alan Goldsborough, all candidates for re-election, and others.

The Ledger's New Publisher

It is a pleasure for The Post to welcome Mr. George T. Maxwell, new publisher of our esteemed contemporary, The Delaware Ledger, into this community. Mr. Maxwell is no newcomer to the journalistic world and his long experience in newspaper work has properly fitted him for the role he is assuming.

Under the name of "Gee Tee" Mr. Maxwell has created some cartoons that received more than passing notice. His work on several metropolitan dailies was an outstanding accomplishment. Through his connections with several State papers he is thoroughly familiar with the problems confronting Delaware and his editorial advice on these problems will be worth considerable thought.

Again we welcome Mr. Maxwell and wish him every success.

Fire Prevention Week

Starting Sunday and continuing for one week, Delaware, in conjunction with other States in the Union, will observe Fire Prevention Week. This is undoubtedly one of the important movements of the year and should be earnestly observed.

Statistics reveal that efforts put forth during this week last year resulted in activities that removed fire hazards from property valued at five and one-half millions of dollars throughout this country.

Delaware should give fire prevention week more than passing interest. The records reveal that during the present year the fire loss in timber land alone in this State will almost reach the half million dollar mark.

Carelessness with things that might appear unimportant may be the cause of a loss through fire that can have disastrous results. Let us all join in the observance of fire prevention week by examining our own surroundings and removing any and all objects that we believe may be the cause of starting a fire.

We owe it to ourselves and our neighbors to use every precaution in matters of this kind.

Curiosity and Imagination

Are Attributes of Intellect

Ten of the "strongest general characteristics of a highly intelligent person" are listed by Walter B. Pitkin, professor of journalism at Columbia University and former American managing editor of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, in his new book, "The Psychology of Achievement." The characteristics which Professor Pitkin notes are:

- Lively curiosity toward many matters.
- A desire to investigate some of these matters for one's self.
- Strong trend to analyze whatever one thinks about and, as a result to perceive the factors of the matter in their interrelations.
- Fairly active imagination, at least in some subjects.
- Unusually even performance over long periods; little tendency to deviate much from one's usual level of skill.
- Clear understanding of one's chief desires and aspirations; hence concentration on dominant interest.
- Memory somewhat better than average and decidedly selective.
- Patience with details, based on a grasp of their importance.
- Interest in reflection and observation much stronger than interest in handling things or managing people.
- Distinctly modern self-appraisal, often even to the point of belittling one's self.

Despite the widespread belief that social interests aid a man's career, Professor Pitkin finds in his analysis that "lack of social interests aids the man who would achieve. In some lines, to be sure," he says, "the aim itself requires intense social activity. Imagine a bond salesman who shunned dances, dinners, wild parties, and week-ends! Imagine a rising young politician who disliked after-dinner speeches, orations, caucuses, and committee meetings to the point of dodging them!"

"I am not arguing that nobody who plays the social game can succeed. Thousands have. But they have thereby added to their burden. Their triumph is by that much the greater, of course; yet we must wonder how much more brilliant it would have been if they had run their course unhampered."—New York Times.

HASTINGS FOR DRY LAW, HE TELLS W. C. T. U.

Senatorial Nominee Says
Eighteenth Amendment
Cannot be Repealed

U. S. Senator Daniel O. Hastings is of the opinion that the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution cannot be repealed, nor can any better method be found to control the liquor traffic than the present laws, unless and until "the great moral forces of the nation that are responsible for the amendment have worked out their own satisfactory remedy."

Senator Hastings outlined definitely his position on prohibition in a letter addressed to Mrs. Anna Lee Waller, State President of the W. C. T. U., which was read Wednesday morning at the opening of the organization's 51st annual convention in the Harrison Street M. E. Church in Wilmington.

Mrs. Waller, in a letter sent to Senator Hastings, asked him the question: "Whether you are in favor of the annulment of the 18th Amendment."

Senator Hastings replied: "I answer that question with an emphatic

"No," if by annulment you mean to place us in the position that we were in before its passage. I am not prepared to say that it is impossible to find some better method to control a bad situation than the existence of the 18th Amendment and the laws now on the statute books."

In another part of his letter Senator Hastings said that "of course, every one must admit that every person has a right to work in a reputable way for the repeal of the 18th amendment."

SELECTING HEIFER CALVES FOR FUTURE DAIRY PRODUCTION

By Prof. Walter B. Kreuck

It has taken many hours of labor to build some of the substantial buildings of every community. Did you ever realize how quickly you can destroy the efforts that were exerted in building these buildings?

A few sticks of dynamite in each one of these large buildings can destroy them in a very few seconds. The recent dairy situation may be dynamite to a great many dairy herds unless the dairyman himself has full faith in his industry.

It takes about three years to build a dairy cow and bring her into production. The present dairy situation can be materially changed in a period of three years and the "in-and-out" may find himself scrambling for good dairy stock at that time. The wise dairyman is still continuing to save his good heifer calves.

Many folks may be asking themselves whether there is really going to be a demand for these calves. We know that the present situation will have a tendency to eliminate the inefficient cow. As people are learning the value of milk and its products for human food, the demand for dairy products should continue to increase.

There are still thousands of boys and girls in every large city in the United States that are not obtaining the amount of dairy products which they should have. With more educational work to carry the message of the value of dairy production for human food, it should soon create a demand for replacing the "boarder" cows that will be eliminated and by the time that the present calves are grown to production age they will undoubtedly find plenty of demand.

Even during the rather low prices in dairy marketing, the real efficient cow in the herd has still made a little profit for the feeder. There will always be a demand for this efficient type of cow and it would be absolutely wrong to market the heifer calves from this type of cow. We are quite confident that there will be a real demand for them by the time they are grown and ready for production.

Furthermore, the recent dairy situation should arouse and inspire all dairy extension agencies toward exerting greater efforts to place before the public more effectively the true value of their products from a nutrition standpoint.

With the proper concentration of efforts and the large consuming centers, the consumption of dairy products can still be improved materially over present conditions.

PUBLIC SCHOOL MEN GUESTS OF LIONS CLUB

The men of the Newark School Staff were invited guests at the weekly dinner meeting of the Newark Lions Club last Tuesday evening. Dr. Wallace Johnson, president of the Club, was in the chair, and Mr. Ira S. Brinser, chairman of the program committee, served as toastmaster. The guests responded with short addresses, telling of their work in the Newark School and their enthusiasm in entering upon the beginning of the school year.

The members of the staff present were: Harold E. Barker, of the Mathematics Department; Leon K. Buehler, of the Junior High Science; William K. Gillespie, Coach of Athletics and Head of the Science Department; John A. Miller, Junior High Mathematics; Charles A. Boone, Junior High School Social Science; John Phillips, Department of Agriculture.

President Johnson, in welcoming the teachers, expressed the hope that this year would be a banner year of good work in the school, with full team work of the community and the school.

PATRIOTISM WILL BE THE KEYNOTE

George Washington Bicentennial Celebration in 1932 to Unite All in Common
Bonds of Loyalty

While the celebration of the two-hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birth is being planned by Federal and State agencies upon an unprecedented scale, those who are directing the preparations want it distinctly understood by the people of the United States and by the foreign governments that will be invited to participate that the Washington bicentennial is not intended to be an exposition in the sense of a great display of material achievements and resources.

The keynote is to be historic and patriotic, says Senator Fess of Ohio, vice-chairman of the executive committee of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission. In other words, we will avoid anything like the usual world's fair. There will be no exhibit of that character.

The expense and glamour of the usual international exposition will be in the series of celebrations planned for the year 1932 in the National Capital and throughout the Nation, according to the policy adopted by the commission.

The entire program, whether addresses, pageants, or films, explained Senator Fess, will have as its major purpose the historical and patriotic significance of the statesmanship of the founder.

It would be natural to show the contrast between the small beginnings of the Nation when established by George Washington and the same Nation 200 years afterwards. Within this background estimates of George Washington in his day can be contrasted with estimates of him in our day. A program ought to include the modern-day judgment of the thinkers of the world, both in and out of America, of this founder 200 years after life began.

This alone would be a tremendous contribution to the history and literature of America.

Amplifying his suggestions for great monthly celebrations in 1932 in this city and throughout the States, quoted in the third article of this city and throughout the States, quoted in the third article of this series, Senator Fess said that the various agencies of public opinion will be requested to cooperate. One of the chief agencies, he went on, will be the educational forces of the Nation. The directors intend to continue their conferences with the leading educators of the country to plan a series of programs for the schools. These will include directions for pageants as well as indoor entertainment.

It is designed to offer prizes, perhaps in the form of medals, to arouse the interest of the school population of the country.

The churches also will be enlisted to permit their pulpits to be used for the advancement of a deeper appreciation of Washington.

The various patriotic organizations of whatever name will be asked to take a leading part, especially here in Washington City. The Boy Scout movement has already solicited and will be given an opportunity to make a demonstration here during the year.

It goes without saying that the newspaper fraternity will use the editorial columns, not incidentally but from a planned program, to promote a Washington-minded people.

It also is the purpose of those in charge to interest the various associations that hold conventions annually to meet, if possible, in the National Capital in 1932, and to plan the time of meeting so as not to conflict with any of the celebrations in the specific months for which they are planned. This will be worked out in conjunction with local authorities here in the Capital City.

It will be recommended that whatever be the convention and wherever the meeting is held part of the program should be devoted to George Washington. If the conventions are held in this city, quite naturally pilgrimages to Mount Vernon will be arranged as part of the programs.

Representative Sol Bloom of New York and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, the directors of the bicentennial celebrations, under auspices of the United States Commission, are considering a plan for the participation by foreign governments in some part of the 1932 program.

Foreign countries, said Senator Fess, will naturally be invited to participate in the degree that seems fitting.

Intimations have already reached here from citizens of various foreign countries that they desire to be given prominent places on the programs, in order that they may show their appreciation of George Washington, what his life and achievements have meant to the world, and particularly to their own nations.

While no details have been considered yet in connection with foreign participation in the bicentennial celebrations, certain suggestions have come naturally to mind. The close association between Washington and Lafayette brings France into the picture. In many of the Latin American countries the name of George Washington was an inspiration to those who won independence from Spain after the United States won independence from England.

The people of Great Britain and the British dominions now regard Washington as one of the greatest men of the world, and many British citizens have claimed him as a leader of the English-speaking people with almost as much pride as the Americans. It is expected by those in charge of bicentennial plans that Great Britain will desire to take a leading part in doing honor to his memory, along with the rest of the world, in 1932.

CHRISTIAN B. SANDERSON ADDRESSES STUDENTS

Under the auspices of the Delaware Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, Christian B. Sanderson delivered an address in the Newark High School on Tuesday morning of this week, taking for his subject "The Skirmish at Cooch's Bridge and the Battle of the Brandywine."

Mr. Sanderson outlined the movement of the British army in 208 sailing vessels south from New York during July, 1777. There was no destination known but information which came to General George Washington led him to believe they were headed to Chesapeake Bay or South Carolina. On August 25 they landed near Elkton, Maryland, after which they moved northward, having skirmishes at Iron Hill and Cooch's Bridge.

The American army, which numbered 12,000 ill-fed, undisciplined and poorly equipped troops, which was just 6,000 less than the British army, followed their opponents southward and when the British attempted to force their way through to Wilmington, Washington's army retreated to Newport and Marshallton, Delaware. On September 11 the British had gotten as far as Kennett Square, the English commander did not wish a battle with Washington's army. On this September 11 the British and American forces clashed at Longwood, Hammorton and Old Kennett Meeting. By noon all of the Americans had been driven to the east side of the Brandywine.

Washington assumed that he had the major portion of the British army in front of him but subsequent information showed that he was being enveloped by another portion of the British forces, and it was only a matter of time before he would be forced to retreat. He was able to extricate himself from what looked like a severe defeat. When night came the Americans retreated toward Chester, but the British did not follow them, remaining around Chadds Ford three or four days before proceeding to Philadelphia.

What will probably be the first benefit ever held on a Tom Thumb golf course in this State is scheduled for the University Greene course on Main street, adjoining the Farmers' Trust Company, for Friday, October 10. It will be held under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Thomas' P. E. Church.

The Guild is planning to make this a notable affair, and prizes will be awarded for the best scores in vari- ous age groups. The first group will be under 12 years of age. Then there will be prizes for the group from 13 to 18 years; 19 to 25 years; 26 to 35 years; 36 to 50 years and 51 years and over. There will also be a grand prize. ## JACK LÖDERER PLAYS FOR NEXT ELKTON DANCE

Jack Loderer and his Maryland Country Club orchestra, who broad- cast regularly over radio station WBAL, Baltimore's superpower plant, will furnish the music for the Au- tumnal Ball for the Company "E" Club in the State Armory, Elkton, Md., Friday evening, October 10.

This group of ten musicians are ar- ranged with three saxophones, two trumpets, one trombone, tube, banjo, piano and drums and are regarded by many as the outstanding band that the Monumental City has to offer.

Popular demand occasioned this affair when it was learned that the organization in the Cecil County town did not intend to sponsor their second affair until Halloween night, and the Country Club complied when they found that they could book Loderer for the engagement, although they had intended having him later in the season.

Invitations have already been sent to more than seven hundred dance en- thusiasts in this section of the country and the officials of the organization, although they have not been able to reach everyone, hope that the public will respond.

This event will mark the initiation of the new Lester Baby Grand piano which the Company "E" Club has purchased for its orchestras to use in the Elkton Armory for an affair which will feature decorations in yellow and red, colors that are particularly appropriate for the fall of the year.

Those who attended the opening dance, for which Ted Brownagle fur- nished the music, probably noticed the new floodlight that has been in- stalled behind the stage in order to place the orchestra at a better ad- vantage, especially by doing away with shadows and making for better light reflection at that end of the floor.

HIGH SCHOOL ASSEMBLIES

Under the auspices of the Delaware Historical Society, Mr. Christian San- derson addressed the Senior High School assembly on "Historical Dela- ware."

Newark Board of Education was host to Newark school staff, Depart- ment of Education of the University of Delaware and student teachers, Wednesday evening in school audi- torium, at an informal reception. The evening was spent in get-acquainted stunts and dancing. The Newark school student-orchestra furnished music and several members of the senior class assisted in serving re- freshments, which were served in the cafeteria. There were about eighty-five present. A committee of Newark school teachers was in charge of the arrangements.

At the Senior High School assem- bly, Thursday morning, Miss Gallaher, instructor in the Social Sciences in the Senior High School, gave a talk on "Thrifty: Its Value," and Mr. Miller took up some subject in Junior High School assembly.

Building Committee meeting, Octo- ber 2. All Newark members were present with Engineer Taylor and Architect Belletto.

Newark Boy Injured In Football Game

Newark High Defeats Beacom College In First Contest of Season

Newark High School football team last season winner of the secondary high school football championship of the State opened the season on Sat- urday by defeating Beacom College of Wilmington, 7 to 0. The victory, however, cost the local team the ser- vices of Victor Willis, an end for the remainder of the season as he suf- fered a fracture of the right wrist. Young Willis, who is a son of Victor G. Willis, star pitcher on the Boston and Pittsburgh National League teams 20 years ago, played left end on the championship team last season and was starting his senior year in the same position.

Newark had an edge on Beacom's practically the entire game and had the visitors on the defensive most of the time. The only touchdown of the game came in the second quarter when Edmondson, a Newark back, carried the ball over on a line plunge. Dean made the extra point by a run around the end.

Despite the fact that Coach Gilles- pie lost a large group of last year's first team by graduation in June he looks to have the material for another winner, judging from the work of the team Saturday. The line did excep- tionally well and Beacom was unable to make any consistent gains through the line.

FIRE AT DANBY HOME

Yesterday at noon the Aetna Fire Company was called to the home of George Danby, at Academy street and East Park Place, to extinguish a fire which would have proved serious but for its timely discovery. The fire was caused by a defective flue and when discovered the flames had eaten their way through the weather-boards near roof.

TB CAUTIONS

Tuberculosis is not likely to be in- troduced into a healthy herd of cattle if the following precautions are ob- served, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Purchase animals only from herds known to be free from tuberculosis or from herds under supervision for the eradication of the disease. Don't feed calves with milk or other dairy products from tuber- culous cows. Don't allow cattle to graze in community pastures. Cattle also contract tuberculosis at fairs and exhibitions, or through shipment in cars which have not been disinfected properly after carrying infected cattle.

KEEP FARM WOODS GROWING

Farm woodlands yield, on the aver- age, only one-half to one-third of the wood that could be grown under good management, says the Forest Service of the U. S. Department of Agricul- ture. The chief essentials in keeping farm woods producing are preventing fires, allowing humus to collect on the forest floor, and maintaining a fully stocked stand of thrifty, growing trees. Do not allow large openings in the woods; they reduce the annual yield of timber. If trees are to be planted, select those native to the region which grow most rapidly and produce the most useful kinds of woods. Natural seeding in woodlands can be promoted by harrowing the open spaces, logging in a good seed year, and leaving several seed trees to the acre. After logging, a new stand of young trees usually starts from seeds or sprouts from stumps. The most thrifty sprouts come from clean, well-cut stumps of trees felled in late fall, winter, or early spring. Trees that reproduce most success- fully by sprouts are such hardwoods as the oak, hickories, chestnut, bass- wood, gums, cottonwood, and willows, and young short-leaf pitch pines. In logging, unnecessary injury to young growth should be avoided.

SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING NEW CASTLE CO. COW TESTING ASSOCIATION

Twenty-two members and friends of the New Castle County Cow Testing Association met in Wolf Hall last Thursday for the semi-annual meeting. A free lunch and a talk on "The Dairy Industry—Its Future" by Dr. DeVoe Meade, of the University of Maryland, were features of the meeting.

Starting at 1:00 p. m. with dinner, served in the University of Delaware Dining Hall, the meeting was under the direction of the president, Mr. Paul Mitchell, of Hockessin. Report of the secretary-treasurer, Mr. J. R. Danks, of Winterthur, showed the organization to be in a sound financial condition.

County Agent Ed Willim, Jr., mentioned the new bulletin on "Wheat to Replace Corn in Dairy Rations," after which the association supervisor, Mr. Frederick Samendinger, presented a summary of the first five months of 1936 in comparison with the same period in 1935. Professor T. A. Baker, of the University of Delaware, observed that the increased fat production shown in this summary would more than pay for the expense to the members in the association.

In his talk on the future of the dairy industry, Dr. Meade brought out the facts that the drought of the past summer did much to lower the large surplus of butter and decrease the amount of fluid milk marketed during that period. He showed that with normal weather conditions a large surplus of milk would have been received during the summer. This, according to the speaker, would have been so because of the increased number of cows on Delaware and adjoining farms. Large numbers of heifer calves and heifers coming into milk soon have been raised by every dairyman in the territory. This increasing competition among dairy farmers in each community and state will make it imperative that cow owners keep only the best cows and feed them according to their known production.

To do this, records must be kept and the cow testing association is the easiest means of keeping these records. He advised every dairyman to consider these facts and start keeping records on their cows or join an association organized for that purpose.

In conclusion, Dr. Meade stated that the cow testing association should do four things: (1) Find the high producing cows and allow the cull cows to be removed; (2) show how the high producing animals should be fed; (3) be a guide in directing breeding operations; and (4) show up the need of a good sire at the head of the herd.

President Mitchell appointed Mr. Irvin C. Klair, of Marshallton, as director of the association in place of Mr. Ned Ratledge, of Townsend, who resigned.

NEW DRY AGENT ASSUMES DUTIES

Three Gun Wilson Succeeds Frank D. Gunning; Woodcock's Statement

"Prohibition enforcement in Delaware is perhaps the worst I have ever seen."

This statement comes from none other than the commander-in-chief of the prohibition agents in the United States, Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition administrator.

Mr. Woodcock gave his opinion on prohibition enforcement in Delaware to newspaper men in his office at Washington.

His statement was received through the press by Harold D. "Three Gun" Wilson, newly installed deputy administrator for Delaware and Frank D. Gunning, retiring acting deputy for the State in silence.

Both officials declared they had no statement to make for publication.

Mr. Gunning left Monday for Pittsburgh, Pa., to take up a new assignment as an inspector in the industrial alcohol permit division. He was acting deputy in Delaware for two months and was assigned here after George A. Hill, of Bridgeville, resigned as deputy.

"While co-operation is working out well in Pennsylvania, New Jersey still leaves something to be desired," Mr. Woodcock said. "They have had something like twenty-seven administrators there and with so many changes it has been difficult to handle things."

Delaware is perhaps the worst off of any state I have visited. They had no administrator there for a month."

Friends of Mr. Gunning looked upon Mr. Woodcock's statement as a reflection upon the retiring acting deputy, who will no longer work under Mr. Woodcock but will be responsible to Major Samuel O. Wynne, in charge of alcohol permits for Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Gunning is looked upon as one of the aces of the prohibition service.

BAYARD TO PLAN CAMPAIGN

Party to Become Active Following Curtis' Visit to Aid Hastings

Thomas F. Bayard, Democratic Senatorial nominee, will go to Washington this week to confer with Senator M. E. Tydings, of Maryland, chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee.

It is likely selection of a leading Democrat of the country to open Mr. Bayard's campaign here will be discussed.

The calling of the former Delaware Senator to Washington followed the announcement last week that Vice-President Curtis would be in Wilmington Thursday to open the Republican campaign in the interest of Senator Daniel O. Hastings and Representative Robert G. Houston.

It was pointed out several weeks ago that Republican and administration leaders were deeply interested in the election of Senator Hastings in November, and the assignment of Vice-President Curtis to speak in the interest of the Delaware Senator and his running mate, Representative Houston, together with other indications of national interest in the past several weeks clearly indicated that national party leaders intended to lend hearty support to the campaign of Senator Hastings.

The loyal support of President Hoover by Senator Hastings since he became a member of the Senate, in upholding the President's appointments and policies, has placed the Delaware Senator high up in the ranks of the Republican side of the chamber.

BOHEMIA FIELD MASS

The annual field mass on Sunday, Oct. 5, at St. Francis Xavier's church, better known as Old Bohemia, will bring many reminiscences to the scattered folk and wide of the Catholic church on the Eastern shore of Maryland. In Cecil County, about a mile from the village of Pikesville, stands this early center of the activity in the propagation of the Gospel. The annals of the society that the mission near the head of the Bohemia River and which is almost generally called "Bohemia" was founded by Father Thomas in 1704. The fact that his name is mentioned in the records of the society as Mr. Mansell gives color to the belief that there was a desire to remove the sacred character of the Jesuits at the time both in Maryland as well as in England.

From 1712 to 1748 Father Poulton in charge and during his incumbency a school was founded which is considered the germ from which present Georgetown University grew. Among the pupils were John Carroll, afterwards the first bishop in the United States and Charles Carroll, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Among the best known of the past of Old Bohemia was Father Vilas, S. J., who was rector of St. Francis Xavier's for twenty-five years and worked zealously for the spiritual and material improvement of the parish. He was greatly beloved by not only his congregation but by the non-Catholics of the county who speak of him to this day with love and reverence. The ancient chapel which is still preserved stands upon a sloping piece of ground and is approached by a walk edged with box-wood. On the right is the grave yard, where lie those who generations ago sat under the walls of the church and the Gospel from the lips of their father. On the edge of the cemetery, two bushes of box-wood, grown to the height of five or six feet and surrounded by an iron fence mark the graves of some of the fathers, who died amongst the people they were tending.

It will be the picture and the sight to greet the friends of Old Bohemia as they gather from far and near to celebrate the 226th anniversary of its foundation on the first day of October in the annual field mass. The Rt. Rev. Edmond J. Fitzpatrick, D.D., bishop of the diocese of Philadelphia, the Mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Patrick A. Brennan, pastor of St. John's Church, Newark, and the Rev. John M. McManis, pastor of St. Dennis Church, Md., as deacon, and the Rev. J. H. Hoken, chancellor of the diocese of Philadelphia. The Rev. James J. D.D., pastor of St. John's church in Hockessin, will be the Master of Ceremonies at the Mass and the service on the occasion will be delivered by the Rev. William Temple, pastor of St. Elizabeth's Church, Wilmington. The Rev. Pierre Launay, O.S.B., superior of the Oblates' house at Childs, Md., will be present with the solemnarians, who will care of the minor offices of the service.

MAN BELIEVED DEAD RESTORED TO LIFE

Given up or dead, after emergency workers had labored for nearly an hour to restore him to consciousness when he suffered from carbon monoxide poisoning, Grover C. Thorpe, 36 years old, of West Main street, Penn's Grove, was taken to the Salem Hospital and three hours later was reported by hospital authorities to be on the road to recovery.

Thorpe, an automobile mechanic employed in the garage of Harry Longacre, was working under a machine Tuesday night, when he was overcome. He was discovered lying under the car by Longacre, who pulled him from beneath the chassis and took him to the Dye Works Hospital. Arriving there attendants worked futilely for nearly an hour and a call was sent for the Salem ambulance.

At the Salem Hospital physicians worked on him and almost three hours later he regained consciousness.

Jerome P. Walsh was placed on the ticket as candidate for Senator in the First Senatorial District. Clarence Jester was selected as candidate for Representative in the Eighth Representative District. W. E. McSorley withdrew as candidate for Representative in the Sixth Representative District and Francis Harvey McCrea was selected to fill the vacancy.

The State Board of Education and one or two other boards are yet to be heard by the Governor.

Cemetery Sunday at White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church

Over two hundred people gathered Sunday in White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church, to celebrate the third annual "Cemetery Sunday and Homecoming Day." Since the incorporation of the cemetery two years ago, this church has held a yearly service for the benefit of the Cemetery Association. The special services held Sunday morning were in charge of the Rev. S. L. Irvine, of Wilmington, Moderator and former pastor of the church. The sermon for the occasion on "Millions Now Living Are Already Dead," was delivered by the Rev. Clyde E. Rickabaugh, pastor of the church. The musical program for the service was as follows: anthem, "The Master's Call," by the young people's choir; vocal solos, "I Come Unto You" and "Rock of Ages" by Wesley Dempsey, of Newark; contralto solo, "Because He Loved Me So," by Mrs. Clyde E. Rickabaugh.

After the luncheon served by the ladies of the church, the business meeting convened with prayer by the Rev. Rickabaugh. In the absence of the president of the association, J. Rankin Davis, of Wilmington, who had been called out of the State on business, B. L. Dickey, vice-president, presided. The treasurer, S. B. Morrison, gave a report which showed the association to be in good financial condition. S. L. Irvine, secretary, told of the improvements made in the cemetery during the past year and of the ones which the association hoped to complete soon. The present board of directors was re-elected to serve for the year, as follows: J. Rankin Davis, president; B. L. Dickey, vice-president; Samuel L. Irvine, secretary; S. B. Morrison, treasurer; Frank V. White-man, Charles H. Rubenham, Nathaniel Richards, Leslie Derrickson, Lewis H. Lynam.

During the past year Mr. Davis, the president, has collected many notable facts concerning the early history of old White Clay Creek Church, which account was given Sunday by Rev. S. L. Irvine. White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church, which this year celebrates its 209th anniversary, was organized in 1721. During the first few years, the church had no regular pastor. The first church edifice was erected near Polly Drummond's Hill in 1723. On September 22, 1724, the Rev. Thomas Craighead was installed as the first pastor of the church. He was a native of Ireland, coming to this country in 1715. The second church was built in 1735. Tradition says it was a log building, 25 by 40 feet. In 1737 the Rev. Charles Tennent became pastor of the church. During his pastorate the great clerical orator and revivalist of England, George Whitefield, preached here. The third edifice was erected in 1752 on the same site as the present church building, which was built in 1855.

COUNTY AWARDS BRIDGE WORK

Levy Court Acts on Road Matters at Tuesday's Session

The Levy Court Tuesday afternoon awarded three bridge contracts and inspected and accepted another completed bridge and a new stretch of road.

George E. Shockly, of Rehoboth, was awarded the contract to repair the Silver Run bridge on the River road, below Macdonough, at his bid of $2,835.33, the work to be completed November 10.

B. W. Jones, Wilmington, was awarded the contracts for reconstruction of the bridge over White Clay Creek, near Ruthby, on the road from Ruthby to the Lincoln highway, and for reconstruction of the bridge over Burris run on the Hillside Mill road. The Ruthby bridge will replace an old covered bridge, one of about seven bridges of that type now remaining in this county.

Mr. Jones' bid for the Ruthby bridge was $2,966.10 and his bid on the Burris' run bridge was $2,286.23. The bridge that was inspected and accepted is the new concrete span at Greenbank on the Newport-Gap turnpike. The bridge was opened to traffic Tuesday and the contractor, the Luten Bridge Company, has now only to clear away the debris.

The stretch of road inspected and accepted is the old Baltimore pike north from Price's Corner toward the Ferris Industrial School. R. H. Johnson and Company, of Wilmington, was the contractor. The old Baltimore pike is now opened entirely from Price's Corner to the Lancaster pike, the county having sometime ago improved by its own labor the stretch running south from Lancaster pike to the north end of the stretch completed by the Johnson Company.

The portion of the pike between Lancaster pike to the branch railroad underpass road is also temporarily opened to traffic while the base, now completed is curing. Laying of the surface will probably be started next Monday.

County Engineer Alban P. Shaw reported to the court that he is experimenting with a low-cost type of road in Lorewood avenue, Richardson Park. The experiment, from all indications, will have satisfactory results.

The old steel truss bridge at Greenbank, where the new concrete bridge was placed in use Tuesday, has been removed and re-erected to replace an old covered bridge across the Red Clay creek at Mt. Cuba.

R. H. Johnson and Company has started laying the surface on Silver-side road, from Concord pike to Hume's blacksmith shop.

D. I. A. A. SEASON OPENS FRIDAY

Close Contests Expected This Year with Stronger Teams in the Race

The D. I. A. A. football season, which opens on Friday, promises to be the most interesting season for the grid iron sport since the Delaware High School League was organized.

Of the fourteen teams comprising the circuit at least eight of them have squads of more than ordinary strength and should give a good account of themselves during the season. These teams also have a number of players who possess several years' experience on the football field.

Keen interest is being displayed in the sport all through lower Delaware this year and indications point towards each team having the backing of a large number of followers.

The majority of the coaches are men who have played on large college and university teams and the instruction they are putting forth includes many trick formations that have made some of the larger teams famous.

Major P. S. Prince, director of the D. I. A. A., stated at his offices in Dover, that the season just beginning will show marked improvement in the caliber of football to be played by Delaware high schools. He has viewed most of the squads in action and predicts many close contests before the season is ended.

Most of the coaches are optimistic and are predicting great things for their teams, providing injuries do not bar some of their star players. Coach Gillespie at Newark, last year's champions, has moulded together another fast combination, but will have stiff opposition for the sectional honors from du Pont, where Coach LeCrone has the best squad that has represented that school in years.

Coach Latchaw at Dover, has the largest squad that has turned out there in the history of the school. A number of the players are veterans of two and three years' experience. Seaford, runners up for the title, a year ago, has almost a complete veteran squad which includes Sullivan, one of the greatest broken field runners ever turned out in local high school ranks.

At Georgetown, Coach Bostic has another heavy squad, composed largely of veterans, and should give Seaford considerable trouble again for the sectional honors.

The opening layout for Friday's games is Middletown at du Pont, Dover at Felton, Rehoboth at Millsboro, Frankford at Selbyville, Laurel at Georgetown, and Seaford at Delmar.

SUPT. IRA S. BRINSER

ADDRESSES JR. O. U. A. M.

At the meeting of the American Flag Council No. 28, Jr. O. U. A. M., Monday night, Ira S. Brinser, superintendent of public schools, spoke on "Work of the Public School with Juniorism."

He also told of the proposed new addition to the school building, which will complete the high school building as called for in the original plans for the building. This will make the building one of the finest in the State. The addition is much needed as the school has been overcrowded for the past two school years. This resulted after the abandoning of several country schools in the vicinity of Newark, taxed the capacity of the buildings and necessitated the addition to the school staff. The addition is expected to take care of the overflow adequately.

WDEL TO GIVE "HOME TALENT" A CHANCE

Believing that radio audiences are missing much real entertainment through the failure of program directors to gain access to latent talent remaining obscurely in the background because of bashfulness or for other reasons, Willard Wilson, president of station WDEL, has decided on a plan to bring that talent before the public.

Each Saturday, beginning this week, Mr. Wilson has arranged for the broadcasting of an amateur hour over WDEL. This amateur hour, to be broadcast from 4 until 5 each Saturday afternoon, will serve as a climax to the popular Variety Program which goes on the air each Saturday from 2 until 4.

The amateur hour will be open to any one who thinks he or she can make good before the microphone, whether it be in singing, playing a piano, violin, accordion or any other instrument. All that is required is that the performer register at the WDEL Studio, in the Odd Fellows' Building, Tenth and King streets, the Friday preceding the broadcast.

"It is my opinion," said Mr. Wilson, in announcing this plan, "that many people have talents of which they alone know, and that they need encouragement to bring that talent before the public for general recognition. I think that many potential radio stars are staying from the broadcasting studios because of bashfulness, and in encouraging them to step forward, I believe WDEL is performing a genuine public service."

Autos Failing to Pass State Inspection Will Forfeit Tags

Within a few days, officials of the State Motor Vehicle Department, will start calling on persons who have not had their cars inspected in accordance with this year's safety program. If the automobiles, after inspection, are found to be defective the registration tags of the owners will be taken away from them and the operation of the automobiles forbidden. On September 25, a letter to this effect was sent out by the State Motor Vehicle Department, by order of Charles H. Grantland, Secretary of State.

The letter was sent to 400 persons who have not so far had their cars registered, according to records in the Motor Vehicle Department. The letter stated that records showed that the owners of the automobiles had not had their cars inspected, and requested that satisfactory proof be given as to the fitness of the vehicle to be operated. Five days' grace was given in which to do this. The letter then stated that those cars that are not fit for operation, will have their registration cancelled by the State Motor Vehicle Department and the tags will be ordered returned.

Elmer J. Bailey, inspector of the Motor Vehicle Department, said that since the letter went out a large number of owners had reported for the inspection. Several reporting had already had their cars inspected, but the records had been in error and corrections were made. As soon as the balance of the owners cease to report voluntarily for inspection, these owners will be called on and an inspection given the cars. If they are unfit to operate, the tags will be taken away. Any car that has not been inspected by the first of the year, will be refused new registration tags, and no automobile manufactured in 1927 or before will be granted registration tags, unless it passes the inspection.

The Lady—Then and Now

She arrived at the steamship pier just a few minutes before the sailing hour, alone and apparently going abroad for the first time. The taxi which brought her was just ahead of mine, to which fact I owed my opportunity to observe her more closely. In the jam of traffic, the confusion of much noise and the brilliancy of many lights, our respective cabs deposited us at the entrance to the long piers.

"Caronia to the left, Berengaria to the right" was the definite instruction to the hurrying throngs. As we walked along the causeway the object of my interest kept a constant eye on her luggage, and hesitated for a moment when the labels were affixed to her bags and she was assured that they would be in her cabin when she "got up."

Probably she, too, went at once to her stateroom and then came to the starboard side for the last few minutes before we sailed. She stood close to the rail, her eager eyes taking in every detail of the colorful and— to her—novel scene. On the pier last minute travelers continued to arrive, and people who were seeing friends off were hurrying from the ship to take advantageous positions by the pier gates. Messengers with boxes of flowers, messengers with telegrams, messengers with baskets of fruit dodged in and out amongst the crowds. There was surge and sound of many voices, laughter, jovial reminders of what to do and what not to do. The ship's crew were politely but briskly telling all who were not passengers that they could go ashore. The first deep-toned signal drowned out all else for the moment. The tempo of the scene increased, the other signals were given, followed by a pause in which all eyes were riveted on the gangways. Noiselessly they were lifted, and as noiselessly and almost imperceptibly the ship, with its thousand or more aboard backed out into wider spaces, swung half round and slowly steamed away for the British Isles.

Why all of this should remind me of another scene of departure, I can only attribute to the girl, about whom I found myself already weaving a story. The other scene forms the opening chapters of "The Lady of the Aroostook," at one time a much discussed and widely read novel. The Lady, who was the heroine of the tale, was the only one of her sex on board the Aroostook, a sailing vessel out of Boston, bound for Trieste. The usually careful Captain Jenness had been as much surprised as were his crew to learn that the "little girl," whom he had agreed to deliver safely to her aunt in Venice, was a beautiful young woman of nineteen. The worthy captain who had faced many a problem before, was not to be vanquished because the grandfather of this fair passenger had unthinkingly spoken of her only as "my little girl." Any escape by Captain Jenness was made doubly difficult by the fact that the young girl did not reach the pier until just before the anchor of the Aroostook was lifted.

As time passes I think of many phases of comparison between the girl of that day and of this. Already I am calling my traveling companion Lydia, the name bestowed by Howells upon his heroine. On the first morning after we left New York I found myself wondering if my Lady of the Caronia had been up early in order to familiarize herself with every nook and cranny of the ship that was to be her home. True, it was to be her home for but one week as against Captain Jenness's necessarily indefinite schedule of "a few weeks." But that, remember, was a sailing vessel; not a modern twenty-thousand-ton steam propelled ship. My Lydia came to this ship with two smart, compact and far from large suitcases, as compared with several boxes and trunks dear to the heart of that New Hampshire girl of many years ago. My Lydia wears sports clothes during the daytime, rubber soled shoes and a plain beret. At night her blonde beauty—for this Lydia is also good to look upon—is enhanced by dinner frocks of sapphire gauze, of Nile green crepe or orchid silk, and her silver cloth or satin slippers with tiny high heels, trip lightly over the dance floor or along the moonlit promenade deck. The Lady of the Aroostook had fewer toilettes, but he who has read the story will not forget the pleasure caused by that Lydia when, on the first Sunday at sea, she wore the best black silk, of which she was so rightly proud.

With the exception of the Bible, from which Captain Jenness used to read aloud, there were few books on board the Aroostook, and although Thomas, the cabin boy, took great care to secure the little kerosene lamp, in its bracket by the head of her berth, Lydia was not given to night reading. Perhaps Mr. Howells did not wish to detract from the importance of the one book which his heroine often took on deck to read—the book that played so great a part in the romance of her life. But my traveler today has a wide choice when it comes to reading, and to judge from the contents of her deck chair, her friends had not sent her aboard bookless. Besides the ship's varied library and the publication of a daily newspaper, the bulletin board carries confirmation of the fact that "this vessel is in telegraphic communication with all parts of the world throughout the voyage."

Then, too, there is the cordial exchange amongst the passengers of their bon voyage gifts. Lydia herself has just this moment been offered Tomlinson's "All Our Yesterday's" in exchange for the Indian novel "Laughing Boy."

The five-piece string orchestra, with both skill and a repertory to satisfy the most critical or the most music-hungry, pleases Lydia. But no more so, I fancy, than did those songs of the other Lydia charm the passengers, captain and crew, on the long run of the Aroostook, years ago.

How many people today read Howells? And if there are not many, in spite of Howells' ability in character delineation and the purity of his English, is it to be wondered at when the times have so changed? I doubt whether the once popular novel would be more than mildly readable today. And when it comes to heroines, why even the designation itself is changed. No longer would she be called The Lady—but The Girl of the Aroostook.—W. H.

ANNIVERSARY AT ANCIENT CHURCH

Many Attended Services at Barratt's Chapel Last Sunday

The birthplace of Methodism on the Delmarva peninsula, Barratt's Chapel, near Frederica, celebrated its sesquicentennial Sunday when more than 2500 followers of the doctrine of John Wesley gathered from several states to honor the memory of its early pioneers.

Here these pilgrims from Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland gathered to hear again how Bishop Thomas Asbury, who had been sent to America by Mr. Wesley, to organize Methodism, had accomplished his purpose. Many old acquaintances were renewed and greetings enjoyed among former members of the parish.

"It was the life of salvation that stirred Wesley to send Bishop Asbury and later Thomas Coke to America to spread the gospel of Methodism," said the Rev. W. G. Harris, pastor of the M. E. Church of Georgetown, who delivered the address.

"After 150 years," said Mr. Harris, "we are gathered here in front of this historic religious shrine in a time when the world is bidding to the people to raise the banner of righteousness that there may come everlasting peace."

He was speaking from an improvised altar directly in front of the chapel, where in the year 1784, Bishop Asbury and Mr. Coke met for the first time, without knowledge of who the other was. Today there is mute evidence that tells the story. A brass star marks the meeting place just inside the railing of the altar, and the old wooden bench that the two sat on, rests in a glass case.

The Rev. R. W. Campbell, pastor of the Magnolia Circuit, which includes Barratt's Chapel and Bowers Beach, was in charge of the arrangements for the day.

Following the opening prayer, made by the Rev. George A. Cooke, of Wilmington, and a few remarks by the Rev. E. W. Collins, of Harrington, Mr. Harris began his address by referring to the coming of General Lafayette to the aid of Washington in the time of need, and of Bishop Asbury's coming when the pages of Christianity were dark ones.

"I can almost hear the voice of that pioneer, Bishop Asbury, as he stood on this hallowed ground," said Mr. Harris, "and how he pleaded for a salvation that would never die."

"Today we should forget this history of the past and go forth to make history so that the message brought by Asbury and Coke will not perish."

"It is true that the messengers of faith have changed during these 150 years, but the message that these two early pioneers brought to the people of this Peninsula has not changed."

Repeating a present day phrase with relation to peace, Mr. Harris said that "peace can only come to the world through Christianity," and that "peace pacts mean nothing until the time arrives when the world will be united in the great cause of religion."

"Russia and China need religion today more than any time since their being," said the speaker, "if the uprisings are to stop and peace is to reign."

The speaker took occasion to refer to selfishness and prejudices which he said can only be cast asunder through the medium of Christianity. He said religion is not a process to be remembered, but to be repeated every day, and in closing his address, offered a prayer in which he made a plea that those present pledge themselves to renewal of their faith and spread the same religious spirit that was held by Asbury and Coke.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. E. W. Matthews, of Smyrna, blind chaplain of the House of Representatives.

Preceding the services, the combined choirs of the Magnolia Circuit sang several hymns. There was also congregational singing.

Among the ministers who occupied the pulpit in addition to those mentioned were the Rev. W. E. Habbart of Dover, who introduced the speaker, and the Rev. Harry Taylor, Dover.

Those who made the pilgrimage to the chapel today began arriving as early as 10 o'clock. Picnic lunches were brought, along and eaten either in the automobiles or on the stands. The services did not start until 2 o'clock, but between the hours of gathering and the services, there was afforded time to inspect the building and walk through the cemetery, where lay buried many of these pilgrims' kin, and also some notables who held State offices.

Those attending the ceremony wrote their names in the church ledger which is kept from year to year. The chapel is used every Sunday afternoon when services are conducted by the Rev. Mr. Campbell.

The old building has not undergone many changes. Save for the renewing of old timbers, it is practically the same as the day it was built.

Within the structure, the brass star and the old bench are possibly the greatest relics. The star bears the year and date of the meeting of Asbury and Coke, which was a Sunday in the latter part of 1784, and the bench is the one on which they sat to discuss the future of the church in America.

The preservation of this old bench was suggested at a meeting of the Wilmington M. E. Conference some years ago. The idea was broached by Bishop W. F. McDowell, the presiding officer.

The cemetery is well kept. Many floral pieces were placed on the graves during the day by friends and relatives of those buried there. Including among some of the prominent persons interred in the cemetery are former Governor John W. Hall, former Secretary of State William T. Smithers, who served under the late Governor Simeon Pennell and members of the Barratt family, for whom the chapel was named. The building was named for Philip Barratt, a wealthy land holder in Kent County who contributed the land and much of the money to build it.

DEL. INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS FEW

Twenty-eight industrial plants affiliated with the Delaware Safety Council reported operation during August without an accident, while 24 plants reported accidents causing a loss of 1087 days.

These figures are included in the August edition covering the activities of the Industrial Inter-Plant Safety Contest.

Delaware is the only one of the high ranking Councils in the previous contest placed near the top in the 4th Inter-Council Contest. Springfield leads the new race, Providence steps off in second and Delaware follows in third. There are seventeen councils competing in the new contest.

The bulletin contains the following announcements:

As an appropriate commencement for fire prevention week (October 5 to 11), the Industrial Fire Chiefs' Association, under the direction of its President, W. A. Thompson, will meet in the Wilmington Public Library Auditorium Monday evening, October 6, at 7:30 o'clock. An interesting program has been arranged including prominent speakers, entertainment and motion pictures.

Fire Prevention Week is a week of education; it is the period in which to bring to the attention of every man, woman and child the dangers to life and property which lurks in fires and the methods by which the majority of fires can be prevented. Do you know that in 1929 fires killed approximately 10,000 people? A human being burned to death about every half hour, usually a woman or child. Have you any right to tolerate conditions which promote such wholesale death and suffering?

Of the deaths from fire 34 per cent are from the country and 66 per cent from the city. Of the injuries from fire, 20 per cent are from the country and 80 per cent from the city. One of the startling features is that 30 per cent of the deaths from fire and 11 per cent of the injuries are children under 10 years of age. Classification shows that 62 per cent of the deaths by fire and 42 per cent of the injuries occur in dwellings, 20 per cent of the deaths and 11 per cent of the injuries result from open flames such as un-screened fireplaces, gas jets, etc. Fourteen per cent of the deaths and 11 per cent of the injuries follow fires originating from defective heating devices. Twenty-four per cent of the deaths and 27 per cent of the injuries follow improper use of flammable liquids, such as gasoline, kerosene, naphtha, benzine and energene.

Although canaries when acclimated can stand a good deal of cold, they are susceptible to sudden changes in temperature, and their cages should be hung away from drafts, says the Biological Survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is a good plan to hang a cage before a window, where the birds will get light and sunshine, provided it is draft-proof and kept closed in cold or stormy weather. Keep the room at a fairly even temperature day and night, and in cold weather cover the cage with a cloth at night, says the Survey. Don't hang a cage above a radiator, or in the kitchen.

Steers will be in better condition for shipping if they are given such feeds as oats, flax, and linseed meal toward the end of the feeding period. Other grains and all laxative feeds, including silage and legume hay, should be reduced at least half during the last two to three days before shipping. Some dry roughage such as grass hay should be fed.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY ELECTS

The primary interest of the Auxiliary during the short time it has been inaugurated in Newark has been in the men at Perry Point Hospital. A party was given to Ward 4. Contributions of subscriptions to newspapers, monthly magazines, cards, flowers and candy were sent to the ex-service men at Eastern State. Mother's Day. A basket was held, netting a goodly profit for disabled men.

Upon request of the Roy Society, Unit assisted in dressing dolls given to the poor at Christmas.

Contributions of food, fuel, clothing were made several times in the community.

The Auxiliary's interest in national enterprises has been manifested by contributing toward a fund by the Delaware American Legion Committee to purchase copies of Constitution of the United States distribution among foreigners having naturalized; also copies of Flag Code were obtained and distributed to the different towns.

Last year the Auxiliary offered a prize of $2.50 in gold to girls who attained highest average in the 8th grade American History the Newark Public School and Colored School.

The Unit is proud to have two Star Mothers enrolled in its membership.

During the year Mrs. Little organized a Junior Auxiliary and is expected that during the coming year this little organization will cooperate with the older organization in their things.

The installation of the newly elected officers will take place in the American Legion Home in Wilmington, on October 20th.
