Chrysler to Spend $300 Million For New Model Cars For 1966

President Lynn A. Townsend Addresses 300 Newsmen At New Car Preview In Boston; Announces Firm's Bid For Larger Share With Continued Strong Car Market

Chrysler Corporation is spending $300 million to bring out its new models in a bid for a larger share of a continued strong car market in 1966, according to Lynn A. Townsend.

The Chrysler president also predicted an era of stable growth for the automobile industry for the years ahead in his address before 300 newsmen from all sections of the country, gathered at Boston last week to preview the 1966-model cars.

All the potentials are there to make the next 10 years a golden era for our industry, Townsend said.

In the matter of safety he said he expected to see "more progress in highway safety during the next 10 years than has been achieved in the 20 years since the end of World War II."

Townsend revealed that Chrysler's 1966 models will be available with 16 of the 17 requirements established by the General Services Administration for 1967 models purchased by the federal government.

Thirteen of the GSA items will be standard on all of the company's car lines in 1966. In addition, two more items—a four-way flasher system and shoulder belts—will be offered as optional equipment.

He said that the new models continue the company's emphasis on a maximum variety of offerings at all levels of the car market.

No Over-Emphasis
"We are going to try to avoid the instability that can come from an over-emphasis on a product that appeals to one age group—or on one automobile type and function—or on one kind of taste in car styling," he declared.

Reporting on Chrysler's progress, he noted that the company's share of the U. S. market for domestic-built cars between 1962 and the first seven months of this year increased from 10.3 to 15.5 per cent, and for the month of July this year reached 16.4 per cent.

During this period, he said, Chrysler's "aggressive dealer recruitment and financial assistance program" has resulted in an increase in its number of dealerships from 3,580 to 4,645, with over 100 dealerships being added during the past 12 months.

Dealers Increase
"Chrysler is the only U. S. automobile company to show a substantial net increase in revenue in the number of dealers handling its products in the United States," he said.

He revealed that during the next 24 months Chrysler expenditure for facilities and investments throughout the world, exclusive of outlays for special tooling, will be in excess of a billion dollars.

The company's current four-year capital expenditures and investment program, which started in 1964, will total approximately $1.7 billion, with some 25 per cent of it being invested in acquisitions, plant expansions and improvements outside the United States.

International operations are now beginning to make a substantial contribution to the company's earnings, generating net earnings of $50.6 million in 1964 as compared with $6.4 million just two years earlier, Townsend reported.

Outlining an optimistic outlook for the long-range future, Townsend said stability of the automobile industry in recent years has been produced by new social and economic forces which generated a stronger demand for automobiles and by new and important developments within the industry itself.

Progress Factors
Among more widely recognized factors working for stable growth, Townsend said, are such things as the four million youths annually reaching driving age, continuing spread of population to the suburbs and steady progress in better highways and parking facilities.

The fact that currently only about 25 per cent of suburban families have more than one car, provides market potential for further expansion of sales, he indicated.

Intangible factors such as a "new and widespread confidence in our business system" and the position of the automobile as a universal necessity for the individual in our society also contribute toward the outlook for the industry, he said.

First Grandchild Arrives
For Mayor, Mrs. Shields

Mayor and Mrs. Joseph A. Shields became grandparents early last Tuesday morning, with the arrival of Matthew Joseph Shields in the U. S. Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., where Matthew's father—Lt. Joseph A. Shields, Jr.—is serving his internship as a medical doctor with the U. S. Navy.

Lieut. Shields, who married the former Miss Jean R. Ashcraft of California, graduated last May from the University of Pennsylvania as a doctor of medicine.

J. Watson Miller, Flying A Station dealer at Chestnut Hill and Marrows roads, has graduated from the company's retail business management course in Philadelphia. Miller received a diploma awarded at the conclusion of a four-week training program that covered all phases of retailing in the service station business.

Former U. S. Chief Educator To Speak At CHS Assembly

Public Invited To Hear
Dr. Lawrence G. Derthick
At Preschool Conference

An educator of international renown—a man labeled as one of the most important forces in education today—will address the Newark school district's preschool conference at Christiana High School on Tuesday, Sept. 7.

In making the announcement, Supt. Wilmer E. Shue said that because of the world reputation of the speaker, Dr. Lawrence G. Derthick, this portion of the preschool conference would be open to the public.

The pre-conference begins at 9 a.m. in the Christiana High School auditorium.

Derthick, former U. S. Commissioner of Education, became assistant secretary for educational services of the National Education Association in 1961. At that time, NEA Executive Secretary William G. Carr called his appointment an indication of the high priority the NEA puts on its program to improve quality of instruction in the nation's schools.

Specific programs under Dr. Derthick's supervision include studies of school dropouts; technological innovations in education; instructional program in the public schools; academically talented pupils; and a series of regional conferences on instruction improvement.

Derthick was named U. S. Commissioner of Education in 1956.

A teacher and principal in elementary and high schools from 1927 to 1935, he was state high school visitor and professor of education at East Tennessee State College from 1935 to 1939; assistant superintendent in charge of instruction for the Nashville Public Schools to 1942; and superintendent of schools in Chattanooga in 1942.

Dr. Derthick received his BA degree from Milligan (Tenn.) College in 1927, working his way through school by driving a produce truck. He received his MA degree from the University of Tennessee in 1930, and has honorary doctorates from a dozen colleges and universities.

In 1953 he was elected president of the American Association of School Administrators, and in 1958, directed a United States mission of 10 educational leaders on a 7,000-mile tour of Russia, studying its educational system.

That ended Robin's birthday party, and Mike was hospitalized with a broken leg in Room 1027, Wilmington General Hospital, where he will be happy to receive visitors and cards during the next three or four weeks.

From the hospital that night, Jimmy Smith received a phone call from Clyde Louth. "I took you to Elktion this morning. Now I need a ride—home,"

Louth is a teacher at Ogletown Junior High School.

Motorecycle Found
Without Operator
In Accident Case

Upon report of a motorecycle accident at the Newark Shopping Center last Monday morning, Newark police found a motorecycle but no operator at the scene.

It was learned that the operator had been taken to Wilmington General Hospital for treatment—and later, Michael S. Ganos of 126 East Main Street, stopped at the police station with 13 stitches in his head.

He reported that the cycle kick stand dragging on the pavement caused him to lose the handlebars. He was thrown off the cycle and down an embankment where he struck his head on railroad ties.

Edward H. Richardson Associates, Inc.
To Move To New Robscott Building Site

Construction has begun on a two-story, 10,000 sq. ft. air-conditioned office building on Chestnut Hill Road at Newark, adjacent to Robscott Manor, and completion is scheduled for early 1966.

The entire first floor will be occupied by Edward H. Richardson Associates, Inc., consulting engineers and land surveyors. The firm's principal office is now on Cleveland Avenue, in Newark, and it has branch offices in Dover, and in Snow Hill, Md.

A second floor tenant will be Richard Phillips Fox, A.I.A., Inc., which now has two separate locations in Newark. Fox is the architect for the new building on a two-acre plot near the 896 Interchange

George Robinson, Edward Berg Families Provide Foster Homes For AFS Students

Mrs. David Doehrl, president of the Newark chapter, American Field Service, announced arrival of AFS students who will spend the 1965-1966 school year in Newark.

Nina Borovchenko from Brazil, is living with the George Robinson family at Horseshoe Drive, Covered Bridge Farm.

Mrs. Borovchenko is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Borovchenko. Her father is a doctor and her mother is a school teacher. She has one brother, three sisters, and an adopted sister and brother. In her American family she will have two "brothers" and two "sisters"—Linda, Jill, Bobby and Peter Robinson.

The Robinson family went to New York and met Nina at the American Field Service Building.

Alciavida Acritas from Greece, the other Newark American Field Service student, is living with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Berg, 401 Nottingham Road. He arrived in New York on the Dutch steamship Groote Heren, having flown from Greece to Rotterdam, Holland, to embark.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Acritas. His father is station master of the Levadia Railway station, and he has one younger brother. In his American family there are four "brothers"—Edward, William, James, and John Berg.

Alciavida likes soccer, basketball, and swimming and wants to study electrical engineering.

Bicycle Accidents
Hospitalize Two
Of Louth Children

Clyde Louth, former University of Delaware basketball and cross country star, had more than enough of bicycles and hospitals last Thursday.

After taking former teammate and Blue Hen Basketball Capt. Jimmy Smith to Elktion, Clyde returned to his home at 213 Barr Road in De Paul Manor that afternoon, to find that his seven-year-old daughter Karen had caught her foot in the wheel of a bike while riding with her brother, and was in the hospital where 12 stitches were required for a rash in her heel.

That evening, with the Louth family preparing for three-year-old Robin's birthday party, son Michael, eight, was hit by an automobile while riding his bike on Limestone Road in front of the 7-11 store.

That ended Robin's birthday party, and Mike was hospitalized with a broken leg in Room 1027, Wilmington General Hospital, where he will be happy to receive visitors and cards during the next three or four weeks.

From the hospital that night, Jimmy Smith received a phone call from Clyde Louth. "I took you to Elktion this morning. Now I need a ride—home,"

Louth is a teacher at Ogletown Junior High School.

Three Boys With BB Guns
Arrested By Local Police

Newark police arrested three boys last Thursday afternoon, for shooting BB rifles in the vicinity of workmen at the Park Place Apartments building project.

One of the workmen was hit in the leg with a BB while on the second floor of the building.

The boys were turned over to their parents.

Local Youngsters Honored
For Artwork At Rehoboth

Three Newark youngsters have received annual student awards for ability in artwork with summer classes conducted by the Rehoboth Art League.

Jackie and Sue Lynnam, and Belle Hollen were honored for their work as art class students.

School For Adults

The Newark school district's adult evening school fall course offerings, the largest group in its history, will include astronomy, electronics, and IBM data processing.

Director George V. Kirk said the purpose of the evening school is to offer courses for those who have completed high school and who are interested in furthering themselves culturally or in acquiring a new skill. These courses do not offer credit toward high school graduation.

All courses will be offered at Newark High School, with the exception of astronomy which is to be taught by Alvin I. Naeman at the district planetarium in Christiana High.

One of last year's most popular courses, IBM data processing, includes fundamentals and practice.

A short course in driver improvement will be offered for the first time in cooperation with the National Safety Council for licensed drivers who want to improve their skills.

Other courses popular in the past and offered again this year include bookkeeping and business machine operation; driver education for those seeking a license; French, shorthand, Spanish, tailoring, sewing, and typing.

Worldwide Sales Progress Planned By Chrysler Corp.

Former Newark Executive
I. J. Minett Addresses
News Preview At Boston

Increased penetration in the U. S. imported car market, and continued advances in world auto sales were forecast for Chrysler Corporation last week in Boston by I. J. Minett, vice president for international operations.

Minett, formerly assigned here in Newark, reviewed Chrysler's international marketing programs for 300 newsmen attending the company's national news preview.

In addition to seeing the 1966 Plymouth, Dodge, Chrysler and Imperial passenger cars, the newsmen also viewed the Simca and Rootes cars which are imported into the U. S.

"We know that if Chrysler Corporation is going to continue as a serious contender in the industry, we must compete on a worldwide basis not restricted to our national boundaries," Minett said.

Production of automobiles and the market outside the United States now exceeds U. S. production, and the U. S. market, he reported. These were major factors in Chrysler's decision to invest in Simca of France and Rootes Motors of England, he continued.

"We at Chrysler intend to be there to meet the demand as it comes, with products suited to the needs of the markets in all parts of the world," Minett asserted.

In the U. S. import market, Minett reported that for the first six months of 1965, combined Simca and Rootes registrations led all other import competition in percentage of increase over the comparable period of 1964.

"Impressive as these gains are, we have set our sights on substantially higher penetration of the import market," he told the newsmen.

The line-up of vehicles Chrysler will import into the U. S. includes the Simca 1000 sedan, GLS, and Bertone, and the Rootes-made Alpine, Tiger, Imp and Sunbeam.

Shields Sends Model Check
To Mayor Of San Diego

Mayor Joseph A. Shields congratulated Mrs. Edsel C. Fike last week upon her selection as Mrs. Delaware, 1965, and with Mrs. Fike as a special messenger, sent a replica of a chicken to the mayor of San Diego, Calif.

"The City of Newark is happy to forward to you a replica of a representative of the poultry industry which finds its center in our state," the mayor wrote, "along with our greetings from Mrs. Vivian Fike, Delaware's representative in the Mrs. America Contest being held in your city."

Senior Citizens Tax Exemption Hailed By School Authorities

Newark School Supt. Wilmer E. Shue Praises New Law Exempting Residents 65 And Over From Certain Taxes On Real Property, As Necessary For District Progress

A new law in Chapter 163, Volume 55 of the Laws of Delaware is hailed by Newark school officials as long overdue legislation.

This new law exempts residents of the state from certain taxation on their real property if they are 65 years of age or older, and Newark School Supt. Wilmer E. Shue has commended the legislature and the governor for approving the law originally introduced as Senate Bill 41.

"The Newark Board of Education has time and time again gone on record as favoring this type of legislation, and when it was introduced, lent its full support to passage of Senate Bill 41," Shue said.

"The Newark special school district," Shue continued, "is growing at an unprecedented rate and we must have buildings, facilities, teachers, and programs to keep pace with this growth."

Understanding
"But at the same time," Shue added, "we realize the position in which this places retired folks who live on a fixed income. These people, out of sheer necessity and not out of any ill will toward the schools, have been against referenda in the past, because while taxes went up, their incomes did not."

"At last these folks have the opportunity to stand up and be counted with the supporters of education in our district."

Another local school spokesman noted that when Sen. Margaret Manning introduced this bill in a previous session of the Delaware General Assembly, the Newark Board of Education and others throughout the state rallied in the support of this bill—but nothing was ever done about it.

"This time when the bill was introduced, it passed, and was approved by the governor last June 17," Shue said.

Warnings
He cautioned of two sections of the bill which should be clearly understood by residents of Newark over 65.

A section of Paragraph 831 states: "Resident means one legally domiciled within the State of Delaware for a period of three years immediately preceding October of the pre-tax year. Mere seasonal or temporary residence within the state, of whatever duration, shall not constitute domicile within the state for the purposes of this Act. Absence from this state for a period of 12 months shall be prima facie evidence of abandonment of domicile in this state. The burden of establishing legal domicile within the state shall be upon the claimant."

The superintendent also called attention of senior citizens to Paragraph 831 of the new law.

"An application for exemption hereunder shall be filed with the assessor of the taxing district on or before Nov. 1 of the pre-tax year. If an application is approved by the assessor, he shall allow an exemption from the taxing district on the assessed valuation of the real property assessed to the claimant in the amount of the claim approved by him."

Tom Waters' play "Laughwind," will be presented at the Student Center this Friday and Saturday in the Rodney Room, in the form of a concert reading as a contribution to the university's summer session, and to provide the author an opportunity to see his work done on stage prior to his taking it to New York for its October off-Broadway opening.

Waters has requested Dr. C. Robert Kase to direct the production in New York. Kase has expressed interest in the play but is not expected to reach a decision until his return from vacation.

"Dr. Kase is the only man who knows my work well enough to direct it in New York. He is a director and has produced and directed successfully in Delaware for 30 years. Besides, he taught me," Waters said.

The concert reading will begin at 8:15 p.m. Admission is free and the public and critics are invited.

The local premiere cast will include Ed Mullen, who is slated for the lead role with the off-Broadway opening; Bee Young, who starred with Mullen in the recent UDG production "Tennessee Williams' 'Glass Menagerie' and E. C. Mahanna.

Weiner Associates Offer Twin Ranch With Greenbridge

Leon N. Weiner Associates have introduced a twin ranch model home at Greenbridge, a new residential community in the eastern suburbs of Newark.

Following latest concept in home design, which the firm has originated in several recent homes at Greenbridge, the upper Brandywine Hundred, the Yorklyn at Greenbridge is designed for those who seek lower taxes, minimum upkeep and heating costs, and manageable landscaping and outdoor maintenance costs.

The twin design, Weiner says, offers these advantages and also gives the owner a full-size home with room for a garden, a play area for the children, a barbecue and a private patio.

Brooksiders Told Drainage Problem No County Matter

The New Castle County regional planning commission told a group of Brooksiders residents last week that the county will have no control over drainage problems in a proposed neighboring community.

Residents told the commission there is occasional flooding in the area next to where the Fountain Square community is being built, and they are afraid the new development will add to the problem.

Commissioners explained that when a development's layout is submitted to them for approval, they can insist that its drainage plan be satisfactory to the state highway department. But they can't do anything about drainage next door, and have no direct control over drainage anywhere.

They have been seeking power to control drainage, but no drainage law has been enacted, commissioners said.

Thomas M. Donohue, who presided at the meeting, declared that land in New Castle County is going to be developed, and that development increases drainage problems with water that cannot be absorbed by the land.

In the case of Fountain Square, the developer has proposed to build a retention basin to hold storm water, and to release it at a rate of not more than 1-cu. ft. per second into a Brookside storm sewer that runs to a creek.

This plan is functional in the view of the highway department. The only part of the plan before the commission was the question of adequacy of a legal document guaranteeing that the developer—or any future owner—will operate the system, rather than the county.

415 Undergraduates In Summer Session On UD Campus Range From Age 17 To 61

Undergraduate students enrolled in the second term of the University of Delaware's summer session range in age from 17 to 61, and the 415 undergraduates are among 1,000 students enrolled in the second term.

Almost half of the 353 Delawareans are from Wilmington, and Newark accounts for 21 per cent of the total.

Other communities well represented are New Castle with 25; Clayton and Dover with 12 each; Smyrna, five; and Seaford, four.

Twenty other Delaware communities each provide from one to three students.

New Jersey has the largest contingent among other states, with 22, followed by Pennsylvania's 21.

Maryland sent two, New York four; Virginia three; and single students represented Connecticut, Florida, Indiana, Tennessee, and Washington.

There are two foreign students among the 415, hailing from Kenya and Viet Nam.

While the age range takes in 45 years, the most common age is 20, represented by 73 students—with 73 just able to vote. Each age from 17 to 35 is represented, and above that it skips up to the maximum 61.

The most popular credit hour load is three, which has 190 students, with 140 taking six credits.

More than half the second term students are repeaters, with courses during the first term.

The college of arts and science has 181 students; education, 99; business and economics, 47; engineering, 37; home economics, 29; and agricultural sciences, 12.

Nine students are enrolled for associate degrees and one student is undecided.

C. Milton Jackson, director of Red Cross disaster services for a 10-state area including Delaware, said today his organization, along with the U. S. Weather Bureau, Civil Defense units, and related agencies will be on constant alert for the next three months with the hurricane season.

Hurricanes and tropical storms increase in number and intensity as the summer goes along, Jackson stated.

Of 636 hurricanes and tropical storms recorded by the U. S. Weather Bureau since 1886, there have been 142 in August, 214 in September, and 146 in October.

Although more hurricanes reach the coasts of the United States than in former times, there has been a welcome and dramatic drop in fatalities caused by these vicious storms in recent years, the Red Cross official said.

Records show an estimated 9,306 persons died in 55 hurricanes between 1909 and 1932, while in 65 hurricanes reaching the U. S. between 1932 and 1964 the death toll dropped to 2,322.

Letters Of Thanks Sent To Volunteer Head Start Aides

Robert W. Mayer, assistant to the superintendent of student services, on behalf of the Newark school district's Head Start program, has sent letters of thanks to all community volunteers who cooperated with the district and U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity in the eight-week program which has just been concluded at Central Elementary School.

As neighborhood volunteers Mayer listed Mrs. John M. Firth, Mrs. Robert Mayer, Mrs. J. Frank Nichols, Mrs. Henry Peterson, and Mrs. Warren Smith—all of Newark.

Junior volunteers are Helen Wholehan, Rochester, N. Y., and Linda Gardner, Cheryl Kirk, Cora Leigh, Carol Louth, Marti Pfeiffer, Joyce Sage, and Sue Schell—all of Newark.

Nurses cooperating with the Newark school district's Head Start program are Mrs. Carolyn Brunner, Mrs. Martha M. Coverdale, and Mrs. Cynthia Nickle—all of Newark.

No enemy can come so near that God is not nearer.

Newark Revival Tabernacle Plans Children's Crusade

This year instead of Vacation Bible School, the Newark Revival Tabernacle near Ogletown, will feature a Children's Crusade next Monday through Friday from 7 to 8:15 p.m.

All children six through teens are invited to enjoy singing, stories, games and a full spiritual program. For further information and registration, call the Rev. Arthur E. Hardt, Tabernacle pastor.

Flight Time For Wounded Reduced By Two-Thirds

The Air Force has cut the time it takes to air evacuate wounded men from overseas to the United States by two-thirds since the Korean War.

In Viet Nam this means that flights that once took 40 hours, are completed in 13 hours of flying time across the broad Pacific. The reason is modern jet aircraft.

In World War I, 8.1 per cent of the wounded who reached medical facilities died. During World War II, the rate was 4.5, and during the Korean conflict the rate was reduced to 2.3.

SUTTON-REYNOLDS

WED AUGUST 21
St. Paul's Church in Delaware City was the setting Saturday afternoon, Aug. 21 for the marriage of Miss Joyce Mary Sutton to Mr. Richard Reynolds with the Rev. Philip E. Coyle officiating at the 2 p.m. ceremony. A reception followed at the Tidewater Community Center in Delaware City.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sutton of St. Georges.

Mr. Reynolds is the son of Mrs. Howard Reynolds of Delaware City and the late Mr. Reynolds.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of ivory satin overlaid with embroidered lace. A pearl headpiece held her veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of white carnations and roses.

Mrs. John Reynolds of Delaware City, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jill Walton of Delaware City, Miss Linda Moody of New Castle, and Miss Julie Gibbons of St. Georges. Miss Mary Ann Glinicki of Bear, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Florence Reynolds, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl, and Lawrence Swift, cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

The attendants were gowns of pink and contrasting cerise with matching colonial bouquets.

Best man for his brother was John Reynolds of Delaware City.

Ushers were Mr. James Francis Sutton of St. Georges, brother of the bride; Mr. William Keiper, Mr. James Russell and Mr. William Brown, all of Delaware City.

The bride is a student at Goldie Beacom School of Business and her husband is associated with James Julian Co.

Following a wedding trip to New York, the couple will live in Delaware City.

WILEY-DORRELL ENGAGEMENT

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Janice A. Wiley, daughter of Mrs. Irene Wiley, of Manor Park Apartments, New Castle, and Benjamin M. Wiley of Wilmington, to Hestman T. Dorrell.

Mr. Dorrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Dorrell of Newark. Miss Wiley is an alumna of William Penn High School and is with the Beneficial Finance Co. Mr. Dorrell is an alumnus of Newark High School and is associated in construction business with his father.

DELAWARE DISCOVERY

One of the many wonders of Delaware is the Great Cypress Swamp in southern Sussex County between Schuylkill and Gumbert. Great Cypress is the largest fresh water swamp on the Delmarva Peninsula, embracing some 50-sq. mi.

GUILD NAME CHANGE

Directors of the Catholic Welfare Guild, Inc. have approved a proposal to change the name of the agency to Catholic Social Services, Inc. The change in name was advocated by Msgr. Thomas J. Reese, who felt that the term Catholic Social Services "better expresses the nature of our agency," which is concerned primarily with fortifying family life through counseling, foster care, and adoption services for children.

Grandmother Never Had Things So Good Laundry Ladies Told At Farm-Home Day

"There is a vast difference between current laundry methods and those used in grandmother's day," Irene Knauff, home economist with Frigidare Sales Corp., told women attending the laundry clinic at the 21st annual Farm and Home Field Day at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Agricultural Substation.

"Without careful treatment in the laundry, fabrics will soon be dingy," she stressed. Dinky wash-and-wear clothes are often caused by clothes becoming too dirty before they are washed or sometimes by the small amount of dye they pick up from other clothes. Soap scum left on clothes washed in hard water will leave them dingy. Too high heat in the dryer or too hot an iron will also cause dinginess.

Periodically, remove soap or detergent that has not been rinsed out of your clothes, by washing with a non-precipitating water softener. Miss Knauff recommended. Wash in the machine, using one or one and a half cups of the softener, without any soap or detergent.

Take out any stains before laundering. A medicine dropper or a syringe help put a stain remover exactly where needed. Corn starch, talcum powder, powdered chalk or corn meal remove grease stains, she noted. If the grease stain is old, clean first with a little detergent. Do not use too much detergent or soap. Too many suds are hard on some washing machines. Also, they may not completely rinse out of the clothes. However, do not use too little detergent either. Lint, grayed or yellowed clothes often result when not enough detergent is used. The correct amount depends on the hardness of the water and the dirtiness of the clothes. Miss Knauff said.

When washing clothes, first measure the amount you need for a particular load of clothes, then pretreat heavily soiled areas with measured detergent. Brush on a liquid detergent as it is or make a paste of dry detergent and adding water. "A fingernail brush with a curved handle works well for brushing on the detergent."

A short soak with a short wash cycle often works better than a long wash cycle alone. Miss Knauff advised against overnight soaking. "The long soaking that worked well enough for grandmother will only put dirt back into today's synthetic and treated fabrics. A 10-min. soak works best."

Low suds, high suds, liquids, granules, pellets, light duty, heavy duty — which detergent is best depends on the individual homemaker's equipment and type of wash.

"When you choose your detergent, consider your water supply — is it hard or soft or in-between? Consider your washing machine — does it work best with a high or a low suds? How dirty do your family's clothes ordinarily get?"

of Park Place, motored to North Springfield, Va., on Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burris and family. Mrs. George V. Chalmers of Amstel Ave., returned home with them. Mrs. Chalmers had been visiting the Burris.

The Todd-Hill Park Needlework Guild will hold their first fall meeting on Sept. 1 at the home of Mrs. Margaret Witt, 9 Merriman Road at 8 o'clock.

The guild will chance off a hand made quilt on Sept. 10, the drawing to be held at the office of the Newark Weekly, Main Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sikes and family, James, Alice and Kenny of Brookside, have returned from a vacation in Georgia and Florida. They also visited a former resident of Brookside, Mrs. Christine Coia in Birmingham, Ala.

Mrs. Raymond Helm of Orchard Road had as her guests this past week her niece Mrs. Andrew Brown and daughter Jean of Meadville, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Wilder, with their daughters Pat and Carol traveled on Tuesday to Kennedy Airport to await the arrival of their daughter, Denise, from Geneva, Switzerland.

Denise spent three weeks visiting with the L. Richardson family, formerly of Newark, touring Switzerland, Lyon and Paris, France.

Needlecraft News

by Nancy Baxter

THESE MAY NOT BE THE MOST ferocious dragons that you've ever dreamed about, but they're ready and willing to go to battle for your feet whenever it comes to fighting off a drafty or cold floor. And, what's more, they can be your very own personal dragons because they're so small that you can take them with you wherever you go.

SPOOKY, OLIVE GREEN

It would be fun to crochet these slippers in a spooky olive green, wouldn't it? An edging of jumbo gold rick rack which is sewn around the bottom is not only very colorful but it does double duty as the dragons' teeth! Your sewing basket will probably yield scraps of red, brown, and white felt that are used for the eyes and nostrils. Snug around the ankles, the scalloped top takes away some of the terrifying look that these dragons have. With just a few hours work, you can have a very novel addition to an "at home" wardrobe which is both practical and fun.

A LOVELY PRESENT

If your teenager doesn't want to make these for himself, it's very easy to do, they are definitely a lovely present from you to her — and while you're at it, why not make a pair for yourself? Free instructions are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet PC 3225.

Group Downstairs To Continue Plays For Fall, Winter

The Group Downstairs, which recently completed its first summer season of plays in Newark, has announced plans for fall and a winter production.

It is also making its children's theater productions of "Cinderella" and "Beauty and the Beast" available for birthday parties, and a shortened version of "Dirty Work at the Crossroads" available to banquet parties at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge on Delaware 836, Newark.

Forthcoming productions will be John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger" on Nov. 17-20 and Nov. 26-27, and the musical fantasy "The Fantasticks" will be staged Feb. 2-5 and Feb. 9-12.

Jerome LaFountain, president of the group, said the decision to continue with a limited winter program was influenced by success of the summer season and the desire to continue bringing provocative theater to the area.

Most of the members of the group are drama students at the University of Delaware.

Arrangements for children's theater and banquet parties may be made through the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in Newark.

—AND ALL FOR ONE!

LABOR DAY, 1965

Labor Day is everybody's day—for almost everybody is engaged in some physical or mental toil, bodily or intellectual exertion. It may be the newspaper delivery boy making his daily round in the neighborhood. It may be a typical mother's day, where the 40-hour work week is unknown. It may be the work of the military, sweating-out the insect-infested swamps of Viet Nam.

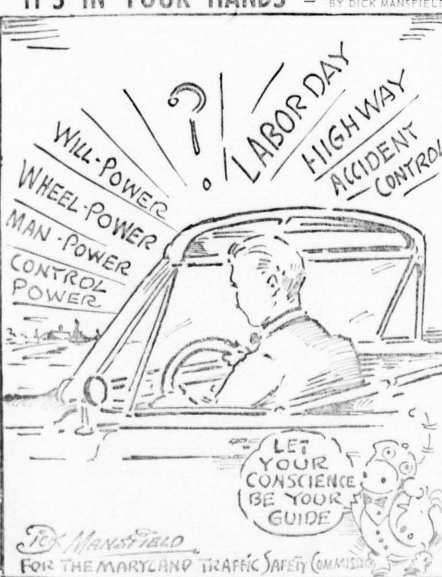

When Labor Day was first celebrated in New York in 1882 under sponsorship of the Central Labor Union, it became the day set aside for commemoration by organized labor.

However, today, Labor Day in a broad sense, is dedicated to all those in the work force, skilled and unskilled, white collar and blue, educators, artists, and members of all the professions.

Labor, of course, is not limited to brawn alone. Labor of the mind is exemplified by the men of science; labor of the spirit is epitomized by the religious, and labor of the heart is personified in the work of medicine and social service, among others.

Therefore, let us pause during Labor Day in tribute to the opportunity in America for physical, mental and spiritual work, the responsibility each entails and above all else, the pleasure to be derived from work that is well-performed.

"IT'S IN YOUR HANDS" — BY DICK MANFIELD

Social Security Changes

By Myron Milbourn, Manager
Wilmington Social Security Office

Many young people in this area who receive Social Security benefits as the children of retired, disabled, or deceased workers, and who have not finished their education by the time they reach 18, can continue to receive payment until they finish school or reach age 22, as a result of a change in the law.

Former beneficiaries whose benefits stopped when they reached age 18, and who are not yet 22, can have their benefits started again if they are attending school full-time. These students will be required to file new applications for benefits.

Under this provision, a mother is not eligible for benefits on the basis of having in her care a child who is receiving benefits after 18 because he is attending school full-time. Anyone who has a question about this or any other provision of the Social Security law is invited to write or phone the Wilmington Social Security office, at 304 West 10th Street.

Extension Division Schedules Courses For Businessmen

Management Development, Writing, Speech Offered In Continuing Education

Continuing education courses especially designed for businessmen are scheduled this fall at the University of Delaware.

Two of the courses deal with management development, one in technical writing; another is in speech—and a fifth course is designed for insurance men.

Registration for the courses can be made by calling the university extension office at Newark or writing to 79 Amstel Avenue. Enrollments are limited.

Supervision of personnel and management of men, is a basic course covering three main phases of supervision: psychology of supervision, personnel management, and labor-management relations.

Meeting at Newark from 7 to 9 p.m. for 15 Wednesday nights starting Sept. 22, the course will be taught by George W. Chartrand, training advisor for Tidewater Oil. Economics and labor-management relations is designed for persons who have completed the first course or have equivalent experience, according to Arthur W. McDaniel, supervisor of continuing education at the university.

The advanced course covers theory and practical aspects of its title, and is intended for supervisors.

Instructors for the Monday night course, starting Sept. 20, at Newark, will be Jules Schwarz of Thikol, and Donald DeForest, Chrysler.

The speech course will meet Tuesday nights beginning Sept. 21, at P. S. du Pont High in Wilmington. Under the instruction of Dr. C. Robert Kase, chairman of the university department of dramatic arts and speech. Hours for the 15-week class will be 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Emphasis in the course will be given to accurate and effective oral transmission of information and ideas at various levels within an organization. The course will analyze principles and theory of effective speaking, and provide practice in both formal and conversational speaking.

The technical writing course will meet for 15 weeks in Wilmington on Wednesday nights from 7 to 9:30 p.m. starting Sept. 22. The course is a professional writing assignment—preliminary planning and organization; writing and revising; editing, and production. Class lectures, discussions, and selected problems in business communication will stress basic principles and practical techniques.

Instructor for the writing course will be Henry Robertson of the university English department. Prerequisite for the course is one year of college English.

The non-credit insurance course will meet in Wilmington for 20 weeks starting Thursday, Sept. 23, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The two-semester course for insurance underwriters and others who are interested in studying for the professional designation of chartered property casualty underwriter, emphasizes such as risk analysis, survey preparation, marketing, rate-making, reinsurance, loss prevention, and loss adjustment.

World War I Vet Leonard De Vault Dies In Smyrna

Leonard Faust De Vault, former Newark resident and veteran of World War I, died Aug. 9, in Smyrna at the age of 64.

A native of Morgantown, W. Va., he lived in Hawaii and the West before moving to Newark in 1937 to live with his half-sister, Laura Watson.

He is also survived by three brothers—Henry of Morgantown; Walter of Akron, O., and Omar of Kansas City, Kan.

Services were conducted Aug. 12, at Calvary Baptist Church, Newark, by Pastor Paul E. Cooke, with interment in Newark Cemetery.

Voice Of Democracy Test To Be Conducted By VFW

The Department of Delaware, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, has announced the 19th annual Voice of Democracy Contest for public, parochial and private high school students. The theme is "Democracy. What It Means to Me."

National prizes total $13,500, with a first prize $5,000. Commander Ronald J. Riale and President Carmen Beckson are coordinating the program through Chairman Edward T. Campbell.

Each school will be visited by the local post chairman, and district commanders are supervising area activities. School finals will be completed by Dec. 10, and district finals by Jan. 15.

The state winner will be selected at finals on Jan. 27.

Chris Short Week Slated For Phil Ate At Rehoboth

Mayor Joel C. Stamper announced this week that he is proclaiming Aug. 28 through Sept. 4, as Chris Short Week in Rehoboth Beach.

This action was taken at the request of the Rehoboth Beach Chamber of Commerce to honor the Phillies' ace pitcher, now a resident of the community.

Short has run up a string of 14 victories for the Phillies this year.

New Students To Arrive Sept. 7 at Delaware State

Janet Reed Advises On Stretch Fabrics Ranging From Swim Suit To Slip Cover

Stretch fabrics are tops with home-makers. Increasingly popular, stretch is available in weaves ranging from batiste to denim, and is used for everything from bathing suits to slip covers, says Janet Reed, clothing specialist at the University of Delaware.

Stretch in woven fabrics is obtained in three different ways. To get the best use and most satisfaction from each type of stretch fabric, you should know their various characteristics, Miss Reed says.

Core spun fabrics stretch because the yarn is spun around a core of elastic material before the fabric is even woven. This elastic is often a man-made fibre called spandex. The spandex core is completely hidden, so the final fabric looks the same as a non-stretch version of the same fabric.

Spandex is very lightweight and has a high tensile strength. Therefore, these core spun fabrics stretch the most of any stretch fabrics and have the greatest recovery. Unfortunately, they are also apt to be the most expensive.

Core spun stretch is best for action clothes, such as men's suits, sport clothes, or whenever maximum stretch is important, Miss Reed says. Twisted or looped synthetic fiber yarns set their stretch through crimping or twisting of yarn followed by heat setting. Degree of stretch varies, depending on the amount of twist and also on the weight and weave of the fabric.

These yarns may stretch almost as much as the core spun stretch but they will not recover as well. Miss Reed says this type of stretch is suitable for dresses, sportswear, children's clothes and possibly slip covers.

Fabrics can also be chemically and mechanically stretched. The yarn after it is woven. This type can usually be identified by the term "slack mercerization" on the label. Most are all-cotton, though some may be wool or rayon or a cotton and polyester blend.

Slack mercerized fabrics will not stretch as much as the other types.

Before you pay extra for the stretch feature, consider whether it is really needed. Miss Reed advises. You may pay more for a feature you do not really require.

A garment that hangs straight, has no sleeves, no waistline, or no areas that bind the body, does not need to be made of stretch fabric. Ease is not needed in shifts, skimmers or A-line jumpers.

Stretch fabrics are made for comfort, Miss Reed says. They move with your body when you stoop, sit, reach or bend. They give you full freedom of movement—unless you buy too small a size. Stretch garments should fit closely, but do not buy a smaller size than you usually wear thinking that the garment will stretch to fit.

Wash stretch garments frequently with whatever pre-treatment is needed for any heavily soiled areas. Do not use a chlorine bleach unless the label says it is safe. Use warm washing water. Rinse with cool water to prevent wrinkling. Dry in an automatic dryer at low heat, if you want to, but be sure to remove garments while slightly damp. Use a warm iron to press, never a hot one.

Stretch garments need to rest between wearings so the fabric will recover its original dimensions. This is particularly true of slack mercerized textiles.

Whenever you buy stretch garments, be sure you choose the correct size in a high-quality garment—then treat it according to the directions on the hang tags. Then you will certainly be satisfied with this new type of fabric, Miss Reed says.

I wonder why roses must have thorns? I wonder—but there must be a reason!—M.R.D.

16 Killed On Highways In Maryland Last Week

Sixteen persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Ten of those killed were drivers; three were passengers; and three were pedestrians.

Alcohol was a contributing factor in four of the deaths; speed in five; and driver error was present in two fatalities.

"Last week's highway toll again emphasizes the importance of using seat belts," Supt. Jarman stressed.

Memo from your Doctor

MONONUCLEOSIS

Infectious mononucleosis is an odd disease which raises a number of questions whose answers are debatable. What causes it? How does it spread? What is the best way to treat it? Do these particular symptoms indicate "mono?"

Because many instances of "mono" have occurred among teenagers, it has been called "the kissing disease." However, researchers are not at all sure that "mono" is spread by oral contact.

It is thought that it may be caused by a virus and may be spread through airborne droplets. To date no virus has been isolated, and scientists have not been able to transmit "mono" experimentally from man to man or from man to animal. "Mono" is a difficult disease to diagnose since it imitates the symptoms of other diseases such as polio, leukemia, rheumatic fever, and pneumonia.

The most common symptoms are sore throat and swollen neck glands. Some of the other symptoms which may or may not appear are swollen upper eyelids, pin-point rash on the palate, and an enlarged spleen.

The onset of "mono" is usually sudden, although the patient may realize he has felt unusually tired for several days previous.

A definite diagnosis of infectious mononucleosis can be made only in the laboratory by specific blood tests.

Fortunately, "mono" is usually a relatively mild disease and is almost never fatal. Serious complications are rare.

The usual treatment of mononucleosis is prolonged bed rest, good meals, and convalescent care. Moderate activity is usually permitted as soon as the "mono" victim feels up to it.

It is almost with relief that the doctor can diagnose that his patient has "mono" rather than some of the diseases it mimics.

This column is a weekly service of your doctor through the Medical Society of Delaware.

Corrosion Control To Feature Course Scheduled At U. D.

Corrosion and its control will be the topic of a 15-week course this fall at the University of Delaware, starting at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 25.

The course is sponsored by the college of graduate studies, cooperating with local chapters of the National Association of Corrosion Engineers and the American Society for Metals.

The graduate-level course will cover corrosion of metals and deterioration of non-metallic materials. Topics included in the course will be electrochemical and metallurgical aspects of corrosion; interaction of environments and materials; corrosion testing; corrosion prevention, and utilization of non-metallic materials.

Course coordinator is Dr. Joseph B. Arois of the Hercules Research Center.

Other instructors are Dr. Michael A. Streicher and Dr. Robert F. Steigewald from the Du Pont Engineering Research Laboratory, and Donald B. Bird of Tidewater Oil's technology department.

Registration materials for those taking the course without credit may be obtained by writing to the University of Delaware extension division, 79 Amstel Avenue, Newark.

Chrysler, 1966

Citing industry policies contributing to steeper sales performance from year to year, Townsend said the auto industry's price stability for the past six years; greater variety of products available to the car buyer compared with the 1950s; and industry trend toward evolutionary rather than radical styling changes.

"The industry has continually built greater quality, comfort, safety, and reliability into its products—and without substantially changing prices in the last six years," Townsend declared.

"The Consumer Price Index of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics shows that the average price of new cars actually declined by 3.6 percentage points between 1959 and 1965. In the same period, the average price of used cars increased by 13 percentage points. This has meant a substantial net saving to new car buyers in recent years.

"Over the past six years, in a very literal sense, every day has been a bargain day at your favorite automobile dealership," the Chrysler president concluded.

State Budget Procedures Offered In UD Classes

A course in state budget procedures, open to members of all state agencies, is being offered this fall by the extension division of the University of Delaware, with two classes meeting in Dover and in Wilmington on Wednesday nights from 7 to 9:30 for 10 weeks, starting Sept. 22.

The course is an orientation to fiscal operations of the state budget department for all personnel, including administrators and secretaries responsible for budgetary accounting.

Persons interested in taking the course, may write for registration materials to the University of Delaware Extension Division, 79 Amstel Avenue, Newark.

Fall-Flowering Daffodil Offers Splash Of Color

The fall-flowering daffodil, brings a late-season splash of springtime to the garden. This unusual plant, although known in American gardens since colonial times, deserves much wider use in the home landscape, says Dave Tattall, assistant agent in ornamental horticulture.

Sternbergia is a bulbous plant, producing large golden yellow crocus-like blooms in September and October. The flowers held proudly erect, form a rich contrast to the dark green strap-like leaves. The foliage remains until the following summer when it ripens and dies.

Sternbergia bulbs should be planted as soon as obtained in late summer. They prefer a warm sunny location and a rich well-drained soil.

SPECIAL WASHINGTON REPORT

To Feed the Poor

By Senator WALTER F. MONDALE (D-Minn.)
Senator Mondale is a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee

One of the few really bold, pioneering international efforts by any government over the last decade has been our American Food for Peace Program.

Under this program, we have sent out more than $13 billion in surplus commodities to help feed the hungry peoples of the world. Altogether we have saved millions of all ages from hunger and malnutrition, from disease and death. What is more, we have used our food, and the local currencies paid for it, to build schools and roads, to make loans for private investment, to help support the Peace Corps, and to perform countless other good works.

And this program has also brought major benefits to the United States. It has developed new markets for the American farmer. It has reduced the costs of our storage of surplus commodities. It has eased our balance of payments by providing foreign currencies to pay overseas government expenses.

But for all its accomplishments, this program stands today in urgent need of revision and reform. Eleven years have gone by since its birth. It has been modified time after time, yet events have moved faster still, until today we have a program which, despite its unmatched accomplishments, needs to be reshaped in fundamental ways.

HUNGER EXPLOSION

For one of the grim facts the world must face is the actual increase in the number of human beings who go without enough to eat every day. What we have is a hunger explosion, and its cause is all too clear—in the poor countries of the world, recent statistics indicate that population is growing faster than agricultural production. In Latin America, for example, food production expanded 6 percent in the last 5 years. But population grew more than 11 percent.

America has so far kept up with the hunger explosion. But if the present program remains unchanged, we will not be able to continue to do so. For our food for peace legislation is still based on the negative principle of surplus disposal—that we should give only our leftovers which we cannot use ourselves. This means that many people overseas feel we are just dumping, rather than carrying out a great and humanitarian international program.

SURPLUSES SHRINKING

And today, our present agricultural surpluses are shrinking even as world needs are growing. Unless we go beyond the philosophy of surplus disposal, we will soon have no choice but to cut down our Food for Peace Program, just when the world needs demand that we expand it.

The hungry world is a dangerous world. Men who are hungry, men who must look at the swollen bellies of their children and watch them starve to death, are not too interested in the philosophical differences between democracy and communism. Thus, our food is essential in helping to create an environment in which democratic government can develop and survive.

Walter F. Mondale

Plans Announced For 92d

Year At Wesley College

Dr. Donald Douglas, academic dean of Wesley College, Dover, has announced plans for the opening of Wesley's 92nd year.

Faculty workshops are scheduled for Sept. 8-9; orientation week begins with pre-breakfast football practice on the 10th, and concludes with the convocation program at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 15, at the Dover Junior High School Auditorium.

The intervening days will acquaint students with every phase of college life.

More than three hundred freshmen and new students will arrive on campus on Friday, Sept. 10; and the full-time student body will number 526.

By-Products Of Delaware's Truck Crops

Cited By Haenlein For Animal Feed Use

Because Delaware produces a large number of truck crops, researchers are considering possibilities of using some by-products as animal feed, especially in drought years when pasture and hay supplies are low.

A recently completed study at the University of Delaware shows that lima bean vine silage can be a satisfactory dairy cattle feed if adequately supplemented.

Dr. George F. W. Haenlein, dairy research scientist for the Agricultural Experiment Station, conducted a four-year study comparing corn and lima bean vine silage fed to heifers and milking cows.

He found that while lima bean silage produced adequate growth rate in the cattle, the animals had to eat almost twice as much of this as corn silage to produce the same rate of growth. When heifers were allowed as much lima bean vine silage as they wanted, supplemented by proper amounts of hay and feed concentrates, satisfactory growth rate was achieved.

High milk production was supported by lima bean vine silage, but levels of milk production and weight changes were higher with corn silage, Haenlein said.

While dry matter and organic matter contents were lower in lima bean than in corn silage, the lima bean product had a protein content almost double that of corn silage. This would mean that protein supplements would not need to be as high as is necessary with corn silage. However, energy supplementation would have to be greater, because the percentage of mineral content of lima bean silage is much higher than that of corn silage, and therefore, the relative energy content is lower, Haenlein pointed out.

He concluded that lima bean vine silage can be an acceptable source of roughage for heifers and milking cattle if preservation is good, soil contamination low, and pesticide residues are no problem.

Haenlein pointed out that the high acreage of lima beans grown in Delaware could provide large amounts of supplementary roughage for cattle feed, especially in years of low rainfall.

Delaware, with 16,000 acres of lima beans, ranks second in the nation in the production of this crop.

Results of the study are explained in a new Experiment Station Bulletin "Nutritive Value of Silage Made from Vines of Lima Beans," written by Dr. Haenlein and C. R. Richards, former staff member at the university.

Copies of the bulletin are available free from the Department of Animal Science and Agriculture Biochemistry, University of Delaware, Newark.
