Summer is 'growing' season

University of Delaware students and area residents use a renovated area near Amstel and Orchard roads where the University recently created a landscaped mini-park in the heart of Newark.

Construction projects on UD campus take on new life in summer

The word summertime for Newark residents is synonymous with a number of things: Rita's Water Ice, Margherita's Pizza, day camps, community pools and weekend trips downstate to the beach are a few.

But, perhaps the most constant reminder that summer has begun is the buzzing, digging and drudging about town. With many students gone for the summer, University of Delaware officials use the hot season as an opportunity to fix up Newark before students return in the fall.

This year's projects on campus included redesigning the Morris Library parking lot, renovating Wolf and DuPont Halls and the construction of the Academy Street parking garage and office building. Construction on the Mall will include an addition to DuPont Hall, where science and engineering classes are held. The building is being torn down and then rebuilt with a 60,000-square-foot addition to make room for more staff offices and laboratory space. Officials expect the construction to be finished by December of 2001. The outside of DuPont Hall will be redecorated so it will look more symmetrical to Gore Hall, which is directly across the Mall from it.

Squire Hall is also getting renovations, including new fire alarm and sprinkler systems, new lounge layouts and new finishes in halls, lounges, students rooms and bathrooms.

Despite the Mall's chaotic summer appearance, it will be available for this year's Newark Community Day on the third Saturday of September, said Rick Armitage, the University of Delaware's Director of Government Relations.

The Mall has been the location of the local bash every year for the past several years, but it was unavailable last September on Community Day because the city was suffering from a severe drought.

"As long as we don't have a drought in September, and we don't have to keep people off the grass on the Mall, then Community Day will go on as planned," he said.

The Academy Street garage and office building is also under construction. It will hold approximately 500 cars and a 38,000-square-foot office building, and is expected to be finished by February 2001.

The complex will provide space for the University's Housing Career Planning Services, Human Resources, Public Safety and Theatre and a three-tier parking deck.

The Morris Library's exterior will have a whole new look when summer is over. According to university maintenance offi-

Amtrak aims to clean up rails

Rail police join in fight against graffiti and other vandalism

By KATY CIAMARICONE

Since Amtrak started a railroad cleanup program last summer, more than 220 arrests have been made along the Northeast corridor.

Repeated incidents of trespassing and vandalism around railroad sites, many of them in the local area, led to the program and charges, according to Amtrak officials.

Mary Anne Lorimer, a spokesperson for Amtrak, said the nationwide program was created last June after railroad officials found a large increase of graffiti and trash in a number of areas along the corridor.

The corporation has since hired 18 additional plain-clothes police officers to patrol railroad regions on several sites in the region.

Amtrak officials are also offering a cash reward of up to $500 to people who call and provide information leading to the arrest and prosecution of individuals engaged in vandalism.

Law enforcement agencies operating in communities adjacent to the Amtrak lines are assisting in the effort.

Locally, the program has helped to catch a number of vandals, said Lt. Tom LeMin of the Newark Police Department.

"We have made a number of arrests recently for graffiti and there are a lot more to come," LeMin said. "Vandals don't think they're harming anyone, but people do own this property, so there are victims."

"Railway commuters look out the windows and have to see trash and graffiti everywhere and it really looks trashy."

Amtrak recently named the area of Churchman's Crossing, near the Christiana Mall, as one of its three new "hot zones," where graffiti has become an increasingly large problem.

The other two are located in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Lorimer said teenagers often use graffiti to gain recognition within their groups of friends. "The harder a place is to reach, the more praise kids usually get for painting graffiti on it," Lorimer said.

The Amtrak cleanup program will not only give passengers a more pleasurable experience, LeMin said, but could also save the lives of those attempting to vandalize Amtrak property.

"This is not Main Street that people are painting here, this is graffiti under bridges and other high-up places," he said. "This is dangerous."

Fewer freshmen expected at UD

Some tripled-up rooms but 'better shape' than past years

By KATY CIAMARICONE

Despite the plethora of new apartments going up all around town, and the large number of students that are soon expected to reside in them, University of Delaware officials said the dorms are still booked up for the fall semester.

"As of now, we are full," said Linda Carey, director of housing assignments for the university.

Before the end of the summer, three new apartment complexes will be added to downtown Newark. Combined, they are expected to house at least 700 University of Delaware students, though only one of them is directly affiliated with the university.

This year, there are 6,970 beds in the dorms for students to occupy, and all of these have already been reserved, Carey said.

For the past few years, the university's freshman class has been extremely large, she said, and this year is no exception.

The university will not feel much competition from the new apartment complexes this year because there is an incoming freshman class of approximately 3,200 students.

University policy states that students are required to live either in the dorms or with their parents during their first year, Carey said.

In fact, she said, the apartments have been beneficial to the dorm arrangements this year. Last fall, an overabundance of students applied to live in on-campus housing.

More than 3,550 freshman made the incoming freshman class in 1999 the second largest in the school's history.

College housing officials were forced to squeeze three students into a two-person room.

There are still approximately 60 double rooms that are being converted into triples this year, Carey said, but this is a significant decrease from the 284 triples that students were sharing last year.

She said she is still in the process of reassigning students, and she hopes that number of triple rooms will be lowered even more before move-in day.

"We are certainly in better shape than we were last year," Carey said.

They know where the Gap is - and other stores, too

By MARY E. PETZAK

The GAP has come to Newark, but, although it involves green shirts, it's not about a retail clothing store.

The Goodwill Ambassadors Program, referred to as GAP for short, has been up and running on Main Street since the end of June.

According to assistant planning director Maureen Roser, Ambassadors wearing green city of Newark's logo in beige and beige cargo shorts, are ready to "bridge the gap between downtown" and the public. "This is only a pilot program," said Roser. "We hired a coordinator and two Ambassadors - pro-Newark people!"

Roser said the city will see how the program is going, get feedback and evaluate it before deciding whether to continue it after Oct. 1.

area. In addition, they supply downtown maps and directories, and provide assistance with the new parking meter system. They also can serve as walking escorts, if necessary.

"So far, a number of people have said that they are interested in seeing more arts-related activities and better parking around the city," said Ambassador Bruce Zabel.

With new college students every year and their parents often visiting the University of Delaware campus, city officials are also deciding whether an information booth on Main Street would be worth building.

All Ambassadors will receive training in public relations, Newark history, CPR/first aid, and equipment operation, said Roser. Armed with a cell phone, they will also be proficient in verbal judo, a method of defusing confrontations used by law enforcement agencies.

Their rounds include Main Street from Tyre Avenue to the University Mall and back again, including the Newark Shopping Center and municipal parking lots.

Ambassadors will be on hand Fridays, noon to 7 p.m., Saturdays, 1 to 8 p.m., and Sundays, 1 to 5 p.m.

As Judd got behind the wheel, McMilin and the other two passengers hopped on the trunk of the Judd's car. Delaware ozone levels exceed federal limits

New Castle, Kent and Sussex counties consistently exceed the new federal eight-hour ozone standard, according to a new report released by Clean Air Council, titled Smog Watch 2000. The report, written by the Clean Air Network, documents air quality data across the country over a three-year time-span from 1997 to 1999.

According to the report, Delaware can be categorized as a member of the "Dirty dozen" — a grouping of states across the country in which more than 75 percent of the counties are in exceedance of the federal ozone standard. Members of the "Dirty Dozen" include: Conn., Del., D.C., Ind., Md., N.J., N.C., Ohio, Pa., Tenn., Va., and W.Va.

On average, smog levels in Delaware have remained fairly consistent over the three-year time-span. However, on days of high ozone concentration, the state's average smog level far exceeded the new federal eight-hour health standard for ozone. The new federal standard measures ozone over an eight-hour period (versus the old one-hour standard). Any measurement over 85 parts per billion (ppb) is unhealthy to breathe according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

"Smog levels in Delaware, over the past three years, averaged over 97 ppb," according to Joseph Otis Minott, Esq., executive director of Clean Air Council. "Each summer, Delawareans in all three counties face severe health effects as a result of high levels of smog," added Minott.

Smog (ground-level ozone) forms when nitrogen oxides (NOx) and volatile organic compounds (VOCs) heat in the presence of sunlight. Sunlight is a strong factor in ozone production, thus ozone levels are the highest on warm, sunny summer days when the air is stagnant. In Delaware, the biggest contributors to summer smog are coal-burning power plants, cars, and trucks.

cial, the library's former parking lot will be transformed into a grassy knoll with walking paths. The area will also take on a new name: Hullahan Circle.

The area will no longer serve as a parking lot, but to make up for the lost parking spaces, the area behind the library will be expanded.

"When it is done, this will be the formal gateway to UD's Newark campus, a nice place to take a leisurely stroll," said Thomas Taylor, a landscaper for the University.

Another place for strolling is the new mini-park near Amstel Avenue and Orchard Roads. The area near the Blue and Gold Club has also gotten a makeover and now contains a brick walk on a much-traveled byway.

Upgrades at the Carpenter Sports Building are expected to be complete by the beginning of the school year. In addition to improved accessibility, University workers are also reorganizing space, upgrading finishes on the interior and improving the heating/air conditioning systems, lighting, roofing and alarms.

University officials said they expect a new soccer/track and field facility to be complete by October. The former field and stadium was demolished and a new facility on the same site will include a sand-based soccer field of optimum size and a 400-meter competition track.

Senior Center expanding bus service to Route 40

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Newark Senior Center is expanding their bus service to include residents in the Bear/Glasgow area.

"We will be adding another bus which will allow us to expand our bus service to the Route 40 area by the end of August," said executive director Jean Williams. "If you know someone in that area who desires transportation to the (Newark Senior Center), please have them call so we can begin to develop the route."

The bus, which costs 25 cents one way, picks up seniors who are members of the center at their homes. According to Williams, the new bus service will initially be available only on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. "We want to use the bus on the other days for short trips to the mall and other locations in New Castle County," said Williams. "If we see there is enough demand in the Route 40 area, we will look at making it five days a week."

The current bus route in Newark makes two runs in the morning starting at 8:30 a.m. "The bus starts taking people home again in the afternoon between 1 and 2 p.m.," Williams said.

Williams said the new route will only go as far as homes on the west side of Route 40 between Pleasant Valley Road and the Christiana area near Route 7. "Some seniors are on the bus for over an hour, now," said Williams. "If there are places with community centers or offices where we could pick up several people at once, we could make more stops and include more areas."

A senior center bus also makes shopping trips to College Square Shopping Center and trips to the beauty shop, podiatrist and eye care center. An older bus which made short runs only in the Newark area finally "died" this year. "We turned that one back in to the state," explained Williams. "We pay for maintenance and gas, but they have to go back to the state when we're done with them."

The senior center received their buses from the Delaware Department of Transportation under a program funded with federal and state monies. Non-profit agencies are eligible for awards of vehicles purchased through DeDOT each year.

For information about the senior center bus or other services, call 737-2336.

Smaller tuition rate increase for UD 2000-2001 academic year

Tuition for full-time University of Delaware undergraduate and graduate students will increase by almost three percent for Delawareans and by four percent for nonresidents - the lowest percentages of increase in two decades.

The new annual rates are $4,510 for Delawareans, an increase of $130, and $13,260, for nonresident students, an increase of $510.

"Providing a high quality education at an affordable rate is one of the University's top priorities," University president David P. Roselle said. "Over the last decade, we have been able to minimize increases in tuition while dramatically increasing scholarship support."

Full-time graduate tuition is the same as that for undergraduates, with the exception of those pursuing the master of business administration (MBA) degree.

New, full-time regular MBA tuition is $5,690 for Delaware residents, an increase of $160, and $13,260 for nonresidents, an increase of $510.

Citizen thought CSX bridge looked 'unstydy'

By KATY CIAMARICONE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

North Chapel Street, usually clogged with traffic around the clock, remained oddly deserted more than 36 hours after abrupt closure by the Delaware Department of Transportation.

DeDOT officials suddenly closed Chapel Street under the CSX railroad bridge on Monday after complaints that the railroad overpass was looking "unstydy."

According to Mike Williams of DeDOT, a citizen called with concerns about the appearance of the bridge.

After investigating the situation, DeDOT officials closed off Chapel Street between the Newark Shopping Center and the traffic light at the intersection of Chapel Street and Cleveland Avenue.

"We thought it was better to be safe than sorry," Williams said. "We were worried about what potential hazards were in store for cars passing underneath the bridge."

There were a few minor concerns with the anchor bolts and cracks in steel pier caps on the overpass, Williams said.

CSX officials investigated the site Tuesday morning and then agreed to begin making repairs.

However, representatives of CSX were quick to assure local authorities and residents that the overpass was safe.

"I want to make it very clear that only a few minor repairs were needed and they have no impact on the structural support of the bridge," said Robert Gould who handles public relations for CSX railroad.

Gould said the bridge was inspected in March and nothing was found wrong with the structural safety of the bridge at that time.

CSX continued to allow trains to use the rail line and overpass.

"The incident should not be blown out of proportion," Gould said. "Apparently, folks called because they noticed some water leaking from the cracks of the bridge."

"But bridges have normal 'give' in them. An engineer would understand that there is nothing unsafe about that bridge, but out of respect for concern by the state, we reacted very promptly and are taking care of the situation."

Gould said the repairs were expected to take only a few days. As of midday on Wednesday, the road was still closed and no workers were on site.

The crime that keeps on giving

This week we heard about an on-going project in Philadelphia to beautify city neighborhoods and unify residents. For at least a decade, people living there have been asked to help design murals that reflect their hopes, dreams and beliefs about themselves.

Dozens of these design-by-committee artworks now adorn walls of buildings and other structures throughout that city.

One of the most striking is a full-length portrait of a former local basketball player on a multi-story building. It might be instructive to note he is depicted wearing a suit and tie and not in athletic gear.

Philadelphia, like many other cities, also has its share and to spare of other wall drawings known as graffiti.

While hardly in the category of robbery, assaults, drug dealing, or murder, this crime has the distinction of being highly visible, impossible to ignore, and lasting long after it's originally committed.

Graffiti — painted, marked or sprayed — along with sticks and stones, can cause plenty of hurt.

Newark long ago joined the ranks of cities in battle with criminals who choose to sneak around and advertise their fear of failure to be noticed.

In recent years, we have also embarked on efforts to present locally meaningful wall art designed to lift the community spirit in a positive way.

Now, Amtrak has started a program along the Northeast corridor of their rail line to clean up the view dubiously enjoyed by train passengers on their way to work or play.

For a state trying to lure people onto trains as commuters, it will help to have a less depressing view for daily commuters than trash and mile after mile of graffiti.

Acts of graffiti and other vandalism start out small and local. But, inevitably, they spread and they last and they feed upon mutual displays of antagonism and brutal indifference to the rights of the rest of us.

We applaud any and all efforts to find, arrest, and most of all, deter, those who place graffiti on objects. For some of them, it is almost a full time avocation.

The rest of us would like to go to our real jobs each day without facing the demoralizing sight of defaced walls and buildings and mailboxes and signs and poles every step along the way.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Michael Alexander

I travel north through the intersection of Route 896 and Old Baltimore Pike every morning to get to work. About two to three of those days, there is someone traveling south on 896 making a right turn west onto Old Baltimore Pike while I have the green arrow.

I understand they are not required to stop, but only to yield. However, no one wants to yield. They try to beat me to the spot, causing me to have to yield.

Sometimes people aren't even looking and cruise on through causing me to have to stop in the intersection and yell something I wouldn't normally. It scares me knowing that people are so ignorant about safety and traffic laws. Ignorant people in vehicles kill!

I think this intersection needs to be monitored in the morning hours (7-9 am) for the mindless morning robots. This has simply happened too many times now for my comfort.

Winston's Restaurant and Grainary Station in 1978

This week's photos show the before-and-after renovations of the former Southern States farm store at 100 Elkton Road. The top photograph, taken in October 1977, depicts the early stages of building work. The lower photo, taken in July 1978, shows the renovation work near complete as Grainary Station opened, featuring Winston's Restaurant. The photographs were loaned by Newarker Ed Miller, who operated the restaurant, later the site of the Mirage Restaurant and now Bombay Palace. "Out of the Attic" features historic photographs from Newark's history, recent and long ago. Readers who have a historic photo and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. Survey of local water supply planned

As a result of considerable discussion of the problem of protecting the existing water supply for the town of Newark, field men from the State Board of Health office in Dover will be here in a few days to make a survey of the territory surrounding the wells in the Depot Road section.

The town wells are extremely valuable, it is pointed out, as they tap perhaps the only water level in that section of the hundred.

Both the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Continental Fibre Company have drilled unsuccessfully on adjoining tracts.

Firemen hosts to thousands at 14th Carnival

With a blaze of lights, a swirling crowd, band music, merry-go-around squawks, and a roar of many voices, Newark's 14th annual Firemen's Carnival swung into action Saturday night.

Close to 5000 people jammed the Carnival grounds on Academy Street.

General Chairman Fulton announced that the receipts had reached the record mark of $1600 for the opening night.

City faces restrictions

Representatives of county water authorities agreed to recommend mandatory water restrictions in northern New Castle County within a week if water supplies do not dramatically increase in that time.

Newark, Wilmington, and New Castle municipal agencies as well as United and Artesian water companies planned to ask the governor to convene the Drought Advisory Committee as soon as possible to review the growing water shortage.

On July 21, Governor Thomas R. Caper issued a drought advisory urging residents in northern New Castle County to conserve water voluntarily.

PAC asks $5000 to counter the Alliance grant

The Positive Action Committee (PAC) is requesting $5,000 from Newark's City Council in answer to a $5,000 grant the city gave to the Citizens Alliance for Public Education last week.

The Alliance is a coalition of 80 organizations seeking the peaceful implementation of court-ordered busing, while PAC claims 4,000 members who oppose court-ordered desegregation.

District tackles choice

The Christiana School District will follow the mandates of the Delaware legislature and implement school choice in 1996, according to superintendent Iris Metts. "We are now analyzing the (legislative) bills and amendments," she told the school board recently. "We have only a small window of opportunity for review before the public expects procedures to be in place."

Starting with the school year 1996-97, students will be able to enroll in any public school in the state subject to the provisions of the school choice bill.

GUEST OPINION

Will Newark Lose Heart and Soul to Alcohol OD?

By LLOYD KLINE

GUEST COLUMNIST

"Newark" means different things to different people. By zip code, it ranges from northwestern Wilmington suburbs to Cecil County, Md., and overlaps a slice of Chester County, Pa. It shares partial and spotty jurisdiction, here and there, with New Castle County and the state of Delaware. As a transportation hub, its economic confluence extends to and from distant locales in every direction. Its public school students leapfrog to and from disconnected points in Bear, Wilmington, and localities beyond and in-between.

Yet, Newark suffers no identity crisis. You know you're close to home when you pass Nutter's Store, Suburban Plaza, or Chestnut Hill, Library, or Possum Park roads, Louviers, or White Clay Creek State Park.

You enter its heart and soul when you bottom out on Paper Mill Road, pass Fairfield, the country club, Devon, or Bins; top the Amtrak bridge, leave Kirkwood Highway at Cleveland Avenue, or funnel on to Main Street via the C&O underpass. That's the essential Newark, the heart and soul offering a vibrant, occasionally zesty, mix of students, campus pros, and long-term non-transient neighbors.

The mix is at its peak when Community Day brings elements of all three to the University campus mall for a celebration of everything from local talent, a flea market, and various service organizations, to liberal and conservative political issues and partisan organizations. It reaches a cosmopolitan culinary climax for me, at least, in the authentic egg rolls sold as fundraisers by one or another association of Southeast Asian students.

Without its central neighborhoods and campus, there would be no Newark in any nonsuburban sense except for the University and some vaguely related zip codes. No distinctive area, no unique character, no meaningful identity, no sense of community. Probably not even a community-oriented Main Street.

But central Newark also harbors a big problem — a drinking problem. Area phone directories list at least 20 liquor stores with Newark addresses, about half of them within city limits. Further, some 26 restaurants in or near Newark also house bars or offer alcoholic drinks as menu items. High-volume liquor discounters augment the alcohol availability nearby in New Castle County and across the Maryland line.

Of UD students surveyed, 89 percent said it is easy or very easy to obtain alcohol in or near Newark. Sixty percent said they had consumed five or more drinks at a single sitting within the prior two weeks. Fifty-seven percent of those under 21 had within the past month gotten alcohol from fellow underage students, 82 percent from students 21 or older.

They are not alone. Teens and other post-adolescents from as far away as Frederica, Md., Oxford, Pa., and far-flung hamlets in rural Cecil County, Md., have darkened Newark police blotchers for incidents ranging from knife fights and rioting to property damage, public indecency, and sexual assault — most fueled by alcohol. They know what UD has discovered by market analysis: Underage or not, you can get drunk in Newark for $2.50 a night. At some "parties" you can luck into that dubious opportunity absolutely free.

In short, as the University has launched innovative and modestly successful efforts to counter its long-time reputation as a "party school," Newark itself is in dire probability of turning into a "party town" — a powerful magnet for young out-of-towners who apparently have little to do at home but abandon it for the yellow brick road to Newark.

No one in Newark wants to host that kind of party. Most of us would much rather simply enjoy a safe, viable, attractive commercial life on Main Street and environs all year long, as well as those authentic egg rolls once a year on the University campus.

Two concert greats coming to Delaware stage

Two of the greatest stars of the concert stage on either side of the Atlantic will be at Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts this fall. The luminaries are violinist Itzhak Perlman and pianist Andre Watts. Perlman will be at the Grand Opera House Sunday, Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. and Watts on Sunday, Nov. 19 at the same time.

When I was looking over the press books of these two gifted artists with Stephanie Staats Lonie, communications manager at the Grand, the books might have been more appropriately titled "Thesaurus of Superlatives."

Itzhak Perlman was born in Israel in 1945 and studied at the Academy of Music in Tel Aviv. He came to New York in 1958 and appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show. His warmth and his passion for music won the hearts of a whole country that Sunday evening on CBS. After studying at the Juilliard School he won the Leventritt Competition in 1964 and his star began rising. It hasn't stopped since!

American Andre Watts got his big break at the age of 16 when Leonard Bernstein chose him to make his debut with the New York Philharmonic Young People's Concerts broadcast nationwide on CBS. Only two weeks later Bernstein asked him to substitute at the last minute for the ailing Glenn Gould in a performance of Liszt's E-flat concerto with the New York Philharmonic. I don't know exactly how many careers have been launched when an artist was a last minute substitution, but Andre's was.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

These two superb artists aren't the first offering on the Classical Program at the Grand Old Lady of Market Street for the 2000-2001 season. The opening of that season is only a little over six weeks away and it is one of America's finest regional orchestras, The Nashville Symphony under its music director Kenneth Schermerhorn. Appearing with this fine orchestra are two internationally known violin artists, Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg and Mark O'Connor. They will perform a work by Mr. O'Connor called "Double Concerto for Fiddle and Violin." Also on the program of Wednesday, September 20, are Beethoven's "The Creatures of Prometheus," Ives' Symphony No. 2, and Strauss' suite from "Der Rosenkavalier."

Three other outstanding orchestras, one from England and two from Russia, will also be center stage at the Grand this coming season. These three will combine with the United States entry, the Nashville Symphony, to make the 2000-2001 season full of orchestral fireworks!

Young by standards of other European orchestras, the Russian National Orchestra is only ten years old. It was founded during the sweeping political changes at the end of the U.S.S.R. and the beginning of the new Russian Republic. Many of their players came from great Soviet orchestras, looking for the end of state control and artistic freedom. When they gave their first concert in 1990, their acclaim was immediate. Virgin Classics offered the RNO a recording contract and the precision and depth of their performances raced across the continents in CDs. It became the first Russian orchestra to play at the Vatican and to tour Israel. The orchestra will perform at the Grand Friday, Feb. 16, at 8 p.m.

At the other end of the time line for Russian orchestras is the Bolshoi Symphony which dates from 1776. Much of its growth, and later international adulation, came from the demands of Tchaikovsky. The composer not only demanded brilliant ballet dancing, but a ballet orchestra able to soar with the dancers.

With the advent of communism, the best players of many aggregation began to move toward the state supported Bolshoi Symphony. The orchestra is in great demand around the world and has toured extensively.

Music Director Mark Emier will be on the podium when the Bolshoi is with us at the Grand Opera House Monday, March 26 at 8 p.m.

The final orchestra on the Two internationally renowned soloists, Itzhak Perlman on the violin and Andre Watts on piano, will be part of the 2000-2001 classical music programs at the Grand Opera House.

Grand program is The Academy of St. Martin in the Fields founded in 1959 by Sir Neville Mariner.

It was formed as a small conductorless sting ensemble specializing in Baroque music since orchestras of that time did not have conductors. Then came an exciting recording contract and records and CDs made the orchestra's name known around the world. They will be with us in March 2001.

I'll have more about the exciting 2000-2001 season at the Grand Opera House in my next column. In the meantime, you may stop by the Grand box office at 818 The Market Street Mall, or reach them by phone at 302-652-5577 or 1-800-37 GRAND.

Get in on this Grand experience, pun fully intended!

NEWARK OUTLOOK

Eat dark leafy greens for health

'Tis the season to harvest the greens. Hardly any foods are so nutritious, and yet, except in Southern-style cuisine, eaten so little as leaf vegetables like kale, collard or spinach greens.

Greens are fat-free-provided you don't cook them in lots of butter, oil, or bacon fat, or drown them in dressing. Many varieties are rich in beta-carotene and other carotenoids, vitamin C, folacin and other substances that may protect against cancer and other diseases. Eat greens raw or only lightly cooked to get the most nutrients.

The darker the leaves, the more nutritious. For example, romaine lettuce has about six times as much vitamin C and eight times as much beta carotene as iceberg lettuce. Many leafy greens are good sources of iron, calcium, and other minerals, as well as fiber.

A four-ounce serving of dandelion greens, kale, turnip greens, arugula, spinach, beet greens, or mustard greens supplies enough beta carotene to meet the RDA for vitamin A. A four-ounce serving of kale, arugula, mustard greens, and turnip greens supplies enough Vitamin C to meet the RDA.

Four ounces of arugula, turnip greens, or dandelion greens supplies at least as much calcium as half a cup of milk, while beet greens, spinach, dandelion greens, swiss chard, and kale are best for iron.

Nearly all greens are good fiber sources. Even iceberg lettuce is a modest source. And chicory (curly endive), collards, escarole, and watercress may not be tops in any particular nutrient, but they still have plenty to offer.

Greens must be kept cold to stay fresh. Your market should display them in refrigerated or iced racks. At home, keep greens refrigerated in a plastic bag. If bought fresh, most varieties should keep at least a few days.

The longer greens cook, the greater the loss of vitamins and texture. Steam mild greens such as spinach and chard in a little water until just tender. Strong-flavored types such as collards and mustard or turnip greens benefit from longer cooking in seasoned broth. Blanch them before adding to soups or stews to lessen their bitter taste. You can sprinkle on a flavored vinegar such as balsamic or rice.

Don't throw away all the outer leaves of lettuce or any leafy vegetable, which are usually the greenest and by far the most nutritious. Just wash carefully in cool water and enjoy your summer greens.

Robert Kramer, pastor of the Evangelical Christian Church joined Randy and Justin Frey in helping himself while Ron Bramble (white shirt and jeans) chatted with neighbors. The Community association provided hot dogs and beverages while everyone was encouraged to bring picnic food to share.

It's all about neighbors

Neighbors, family and friends of residents on Tyre Avenue and in George Reed Village held their second annual Picnic in the Park in July.

"Three years ago residents formed the East End Civic Association," said Tyre Avenue resident Tina Jackson. "Since then community spirit and pride have been renewed."

In addition to monthly meetings, the residents and association members share information about community events and concerns. Jackson said 16 rain-soaked adults and children worked on Earth Day to clean up trash, old lawn furniture and brush around the community.

The residents appreciated help from the city of Newark when Parks Superintendent Tom Zaleski arranged for removal of the results of the day's efforts.

POST GAME

Check out the NABF World Series

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Some of the best 16-18 year-old baseball teams in the country are in New Castle County this weekend for the National Amateur Baseball Federation's World Series.

Valania

The tournament is being hosted by the Grand Slam Diamonds, Delaware's entry in the NABF. Games have taken place throughout the week at the University of Delaware and Frawley Stadium between 10 teams from across North America.

"It's the first time in 33 years that the World Series has been east of the Mississippi," said Diamonds manager Murphy, who was an-conference third baseman at the University of Delaware in the late 1980s. "We've hosted regionals before and did a pretty good job. We put in a bid for the World Series and got it. It should be a great time."

"In other parts of the country, NABF is big time. There are over 15,000 teams nationwide. It's just around here, that it's not as prevalent."

It's a great opportunity to watch some quality amateur baseball. And since the Diamonds have had such a terrific record all summer, it also may be a chance to cheer the local team on to a title.

So take the time to go see some great baseball. It should be a lot of fun.

Kudos to all the baseball volunteers

July was a month where if you wanted to see a youth baseball game, you could do so every night of the week at various fields around the area.

Both Little League and Babe Ruth held their district and state tournaments last month and, as usual, our area had its share of winners on the field.

What's more amazing, however, is the amount of winners of the field that it takes to get these tournaments organized and played.

Each league seemed to have dozens of people volunteering their time to coach, work on the fields (goodness knows, we've had more rain than the last five Julys put together), work in the concession stands and umpire.

None of these tournaments could've taken place without the dedication of these people. Some of them don't even have children in the leagues anymore.

This group of volunteers does such a good job that many parents and players take for granted that their fields will be ready when they get there.

The fact is, they wouldn't be without their hard work.

They deserve as much recognition as all the local all-stars.

Newark National seeks repeat

Newark National's Brandon Farmer helped the District 2 Senior Division champions into last weekend's state tournament at the Midway Little League complex.

Senior All-Stars top Seaford, move closer to Eastern regional

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark National moved one step closer to another trip to the Eastern Regional with a 3-1 come-from-behind victory over Seaford in last Friday's winner's bracket final of the Senior Division (15-16 year-olds) state championship series at the Midway Little League complex.

Newark could have wrapped up its second straight state title with one more win on Sunday or Monday.

Eastern Regionals begin Saturday in West Deptford, N.J.

Brandon Farmer blasted a curve ball deep over the left-center field fence in the bottom of the fifth inning to break a 1-1 tie and give Newark National its first lead of the well-played game.

Seaford threatened in the sixth inning but Newark centerfielder R.T. Plumsky saved his second run of the game by gunning down a runner at home plate for the inning's third out.

"I wasn't sure I could get him, or not," said Plumsky, who earlier in the game scaled the 10-foot high fence to make a catch and take an extra-base hit away from Seaford's Brian Bird. "I just came up and got rid of it real quick, kind of like a catcher throws."

Plumsky's throw was right on the money and Newark catcher Tim Doherty applied the tag.

Plumsky gave Newark an insurance run in the bottom of the sixth by singling and eventually scampering home from third base on a wild pitch.

Pitcher Mark Rash sealed the victory with a 1-2-3 seventh inning. Rash scattered seven hits and struck out nine.

"That was real baseball," said Newark National manager Dick Vitek. "That was a great game. We got a great pitching job from Rash and we played great defense all around."

It was Seaford that got the game's first run in the first inning.

Leadoff batter Justin Quillen got hit by a pitch, moved to second on an infield single and scored on the first of Nick Pegelow's three hits.

Seaford, behind the pitching of Pegelow, held that lead until the fourth inning. Plumsky led off with a double down the left field line. He scored a batter later when Rash singled to right. After two quick outs in the fifth, Farmer hit his homer.

"I had just missed earlier in the game," Farmer said. "I mean I know I just missed by a little bit on an earlier swing. This time I got a curve ball and it went."

"This was not like a Little League baseball game. This was a great game. And we just didn't come out and blast home runs. We showed we can play defense and do the little things right too."

Farmer also made two big plays at second base. "What can you say about Farmer," Vitek said. "He made some great defensive plays and then gets the big hit. It was a big win."

In addition to Plumsky's and Farmer's fine defensive efforts, shortstop Andrew Swarter made an outstanding play on a ground ball in the hole to save a run in the fifth inning.

Erec Spiese also picked up a hit for Newark National.

“We showed we can play defense and do the little things right too.”

Canal Major softball all-stars fall in the state tournament

M.O.T. takes control of series with extra-inning first game win

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

It was a game fitting of a matchup between the state's two best Major Division All-Star teams.

Middletown-Odessa-Townsend (MOT) knocked off Canal 7-5 in a thrilling seven innings in last Friday night's first game of the best-of-three state championship series at the Canal Little League complex.

Alicia Paige and Regina Shore each scored a run in the top of the seventh inning to break a 5-5 tie. Paige then managed to stave off a bases-loaded Canal threat in the bottom of the inning to preserve the victory.

It was Canal, though, that provided earlier heroics, scoring twice in the fifth inning and another in the sixth to send the game to extra innings.

Trailing 5-2 entering the fifth, Shannon Szabo started a Canal rally by drawing a walk and stealing second base. Desiree Lake then reached safely on a hard hit ground ball. Lara Krygier followed with a sharp single to right field to score Szabo. Lauren McCartney's ground ball then scored Lake to cut the MOT lead to 5-4.

Canal, like it had against Suburban in the District 2 championship game, rallied again in the sixth inning. Diana Witmer led off with a walk and moved to second on a wild pitch. Two batters later, Jenna Ranauto rocketed the ball back through the middle to score Witmer with the tying run.

"We didn't get our heads down," said Canal manager Cindy Szabo. "We battled back all night. I think we were right in there."

MOT took command of the game with four runs in the third inning. Paige's two-run triple to right-center was the inning's big hit. Brittany Clark, Regina Shore and Melissa Masone also contributed hits in the inning.

Canal hurt itself with an error and some miscommunication in the field. "We made a couple of mistakes out there that hurt us," Szabo said. "But we bounced back well from them and played well after that."

Ranauto pitched well for Canal, striking out 11 MOT batters.

"Jenna did a good job for us," Szabo said. "She came back after that one tough inning."

Paige struck out nine for MOT and gave up six hits. She was also able to escape two bases-loaded situations.

MOT took a 1-0 lead in the second inning as Shore walked and eventually scored on a wild pitch.

Canal answered with two runs in the bottom of the second. Krygier started the rally with a single to right field. McCartney followed with another single and a stolen base to put runners on second and third.
