Spring Finds Town In Building Boom; Several New Homes

Orchard Road, Wollaston Tract And East Newark Seem Centers Of Recent Building Operations

CONTRACTORS SEE BIG SEASON

With at least a dozen new homes in the course of erection within the town, or immediately adjoining it, prospects for as many more during the summer months and a decided upward trend in property and land values, Newark appears to be in the midst of another building boom.

Contractors and real estate men alike see in the activities this spring, the possibility of a steady growth, especially in the portions of the community outlying the town limits. Due, of course, to the lack of suitable sites, little building is being contemplated in Newark proper. In the Orchard Ridge, Depot Road, and Lincoln Highway sections, both east and west of town, however, notable activity prevails.

Wilmingtonians Coming

It has been earned on good authority that two new homes will be built in the near future for Wilmington people on Orchard road; that the recently developed Armstrong property opposite the Country Club will see new houses before many months have elapsed; and that the Depot road section, particularly that division of land known as the Wollaston tract, will hold at least three new homes before the year ends.

James H. Hutchison, J. Clifford Willis, and Charles W. Greer, well known Newark contractors and builders, are reported to be very busy this spring on new operations.

One of these men, in discussing the situation here the other night stated, however, that "houses are being built mostly for sale now; on a rent proposition, they will hardly carry the load for the owner."

Which brings to mind the fact that, despite the great number of new dwellings which have been built here in the past three years, comparatively few desirable residences can be rented this spring. Prospective tenants still outnumber available properties.

Building Notes

A new home is being built for John Cordery on Kells avenue, fronting south. J. C. Willis is in charge of the operation.

Mr. Willis has about completed his new dwelling on Winslow road, in the Orchard Ridge section. It is understood that it will be offered for sale.

James H. Hutchinson, besides erecting a new home for Armand Durant on Orchard road, is building a bungalow for himself in the same neighborhood.

Work is nearing completion on the new home for George Jackson along Elkton road. Charles W. Greer is the contractor.

Cellars have been dug for two houses on the Wollaston tract by Herman Wollaston. One dwelling will be built this spring; it is understood.

Workmen have completed the laying of a new roof on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Proud on East Main street.

John B. Miller is having a new enclosed porch built across the front of his home on West Delaware avenue.

J. C. Willis, local contractor, announces that he is building a new dwelling for Cletus Boyd at Iron Hill station, Maryland.

The work of transforming the old Jex mansion on West Main street for Norris N. Wright has about been completed. When the lawn has been put in shape, it will be, in the minds of many, one of the show places of the State. Alfred Ward designed the changes, with the Smyth Construction Company of Wilmington, handling the contractor's end.

Dedicate Library

Announcement was made today of the formal dedication exercises at the new State War Memorial Library on the University campus on Saturday, May 23rd. The dedication will take place at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Definite program plans are as yet unavailable. It is expected, however, to have speakers of note on hand at the exercises. Dr. Walter Hüllihen, president of the University, will preside.

At 1.30 o'clock the same day, a combined academic and military procession will form on Frazer Field, and will proceed to the library prior to the opening of the program.

Those in charge of the dedication expect to have more detailed plans ready in a few days.

JURORS LEAVE OPEN VERDICT AT INQUEST

Fix No Responsibility in Death of Charles Smalley, Hit by Auto, March 7th

An inquest into the death of Charles Smalley, aged 26, son of a merchant at Harmony station, was held Saturday afternoon in the funeral parlors of Robert T. Jones here.

After hearing somewhat conflicting testimony in the case, the jury rendered an open verdict, failing to fix responsibility for the death.

On the evening of March 7th last, while he was fixing a tire along the Newport Pike at Richardson Park, Smalley was struck by a passing car, and seriously injured. At the hospital, he died of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was unconscious practically all the time.

At the inquest hearing, it was testified that Ora Reifsnider of Lyndalia was the driver of the car which struck Smalley. Reifsnider, it is alleged, swerved his car to avoid striking a boy on a bicycle, and in so doing, struck Smalley a glancing blow, knocking him to the ground.

The inquest was conducted by Deputy Coroner Hirszel.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN

Newark and Elkton firemen were called to the Warrington farm near Barksdale, Md., about four miles west of Newark Sunday evening. On their arrival, the firemen found the big barn on the place a mass of flames. A hay and straw rick were also destroyed, and sparks for a time threatened the homestead. All the livestock were saved, according to reports.

The State Fire Marshal of Maryland has been asked to investigate the fire. Feeling prevails the community at Barksdale that the blaze was the work of an incendiary. The loss is estimated at $6000, partly covered by insurance.

Governor Ritchie, In Speech Here, Sees Dangerous Constitution Changes

In a brilliant address before townspeople, students and faculty in Wolf Hall Friday evening, Hon. Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, awakened his hearers to a new sense of responsibility, when he outlined what he called "recent revolutions" in the existing standards of our Constitution.

While Governor Ritchie is nationally known as a fearless and able proponent of States Rights, and strict adherence to the Constitution, he made little or no effort Friday night to divert his talk into such a plea. As he stated at the beginning, it was his mission to merely enumerate the changes in our constitutional order not to discuss them as issues. Throughout, he kept to the line of exposition. It was a carefully prepared, scholarly address and won for the Governor many complimentary remarks in the informal reception which followed the speech.

Seated on the platform, with the speaker of the evening, were Dr. Walter Hüllihen, president of the University; Ex-Governor Charles R. Miller of the Board of Trustees, and Dean Merrill Van G. Smith. Governor Ritchie was introduced by Dr. Hüllihen, an old friend and college chum.

Newark Cagers Beat Seaford For Title

Doyle and His Mates Run Roughshod Over Down-State Champs 23-12

Before the largest crowd ever to see a High School basketball game in this State, Newark's smooth-working five completely humbled Seaford last Saturday night for the championship of Delaware, 23-12.

Eight hundred people jammed the Dover Armory to see the struggle. Newark sent down a score or more of cars loaded to the gunwales with royal rosters. Their cheering section, it is reported, was the largest and noisiest in the drill hall. Seaford, Laurel, Milford and Georgetown also sent large delegations to the game.

Coach Nunn's outfit went into the lead in the first minute of play. They were never headed thereafter. The short, weaving attack which has characterized their play from early season, showed new perfection Saturday. Their passing dazzled Seaford; and when Newark hove within range of the basket, they couldn't stop Chalmers or Patchell. Seaford had one pet play—a long, looping direct pass from tap off, intended for a fast moving forward under the basket. Unfortunately for Seaford, Captain Doyle, Newark guard, had a habit of camping under the ball. Their one play crushed, Seaford had no attack. Therein lies the story of the game.

Different Style of Play

The question is often debated among basketball fans as to the relative merits of the Southern D. I. A. A. styles of attack and defense, compared to the Northern half methods. From unbiased reports of the game at Dover Saturday, granting that Seaford is the very best lower Delaware (Continued on Page 2.)

English Scholar Speaks

Professor Rose Addresses Assembly On "Chivalry At Sea"

Before a gathering of students, faculty and townspeople which taxed the capacity of Wolf Hall yesterday morning, Professor John Holland Rose, of Cambridge University, England, delivered a lecture on "Chivalry On the Sea."

Carrying his hearers down through the centuries of sea warfare, Professor Rose outlined the gradual decline of barbarity and piracy. His address showed that he was a complete master of his subject. Historical references, names of famous admirals of history and ancient seaports seemed everyday language to him.

Professor Rose was introduced by Dr. E. B. Crooks, with whom he is stopping while visiting in Newark. Accompanied by his wife, the famous historian is on a short tour of this country. Perhaps his greatest contribution has been his biography and writings on the life of Napoleon.

Newark Doctor Becomes Godfather Of Triplets Born To Dean Family Sunday

At a family council held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dean, near Oglethorpe, last night, names were bestowed on three bouncing boys who arrived last Sunday.

Dr. Raymond Downes of Newark, attending physician in the case, was, as a result of the conference, signally honored by having his name bestowed on one of the little newcomers—Ray-Downes Dean. The two remaining boys were christened Herbert Workley Dean and Robert Cecil Dean.

Reports from the bedside this morning indicate that the triplets are progressing very nicely. The total weight of the three at birth was 16 1/4 pounds. Mrs. Dean is resting comfortably. In general, the household has taken on a rosy glow of pride and satisfaction.

All day Sunday and Monday, callers stopped at the Dean home to offer their congratulations to the happy father. The phone rang ceaselessly. In short, the event held the undivided attention of the entire community over the past week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean now have five children, the oldest being almost three and the next in order, a year old. The mother before her marriage, was Miss Lillie Rea, of Philadelphia. Mr. Dean is a brother of Clarence Dean, of Newark, and when a boy lived on the old Dean homestead north of here. Mrs. Dean's mother, a twin herself, by the way, was a Miss Cooper before her marriage, and at one time lived near Newark.

Mrs. Dean is being attended by her sister, Mrs. A. M. McKinney, a nurse. The proud father, all smiles and chuckles, welcomes the callers to the farm, and tries hard to look unconcerned. He has for the past several years attended market in Wilmington, conducting a stand on King street near fifth.

LOCAL COUPLE ELOPE TO CHESTERTOWN, MD.

Miss Alta Crouch and James Gregg Married Saturday Last; Surprise Friends

Something to be compared to a sensation accompanied the announcement Monday that Miss Alta Crouch and James E. Gregg, both well known young people of town, had eloped last Saturday to Chestertown, Md., and were married that afternoon.

Although it was their intention to keep the wedding secret the news trickled out Monday of this week.

Miss Crouch is a graduate of Newark High School, class of 1923, and is very popular among the younger set of the community. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Crouch, of Elkton road. She is 18 years of age. The groom, who is 19, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gregg and lives with his family on Main street.

While their many friends were aware of the romance, all were greatly surprised to hear of the elopement, as were the two families.

Slight Fire Yesterday

Two Engines Rush To Curtis Home On West Main Street

Both engines of the Aetna Hose Company were called out shortly before noon yesterday to the home of Alfred A. Curtis on West Main street. Rumors that the big house was ablaze caused great excitement for a few minutes.

The flames, however, were confined to a pile of rubbish and leaves in the rear lawn, and were easily put out by chemicals.

Vocational Progress

Seniors Visited Unionville School Saturday

Seven Seniors at the University, who are preparing to teach upon graduation, visited Unionville, Pa., consolidated school last Saturday. The group was in charge of R. W. Heim. A short visit was also paid the Du Pont High School, on the Kennett Pike.

Members of the David Grayson Club of Seaford, an organization of Agricultural and vocational students, visited the Experiment Station and the college farm on Saturday last.

Dr. Charles L. Penny and Professor Quesita Drake are representing the University of Delaware in connection with the mid-year Conference of the National Safety Council Chemical Section which will be held in the Hotel du Pont, Wilmington, May 22 and 23. In addition to the University of Delaware those co-operating in connection with the National Safety Council are Delaware and South Jersey Chapter of the American Chemical Society, Delaware Industrial Accident Board, and the Delaware Medical Association.

In addition to Dr. Penny and Professor Drake, Mr. Lester W. Tarr of this town is a member of the program committee.

Brush Fire Halted

Newark firemen were called Saturday to the farm of John L. Holloway, along the P. R. R. about a mile east of Newark, to fight a field blaze which for a time threatened destruction of the farm buildings.

Mr. Holloway, in discussing the incident, paid high tribute to the efficiency of the local firemen and the splendid help of friends and neighbors who helped put an end to the flames.

Negro Badly Stabbed By Wife In Brawl; Assailant In Jail

William Saunders, Jr., in Serious Condition in Hospital; Wife Claims Cruel Treatment; Held for Court

STABBING OCCURRED SUNDAY

His intestines punctured by a deep stab wound inflicted by his wife Sunday, William Saunders, Jr., owner of a Negro barber shop on New London Avenue, lies in a serious condition in Homeopathic Hospital, Wilmington.

Late reports indicate that he may recover from his wound.

Marcella Saunders, his wife, is lodged in the New Castle County workhouse, charged with attempted murder, and awaits the outcome of her husband's injuries. She was arrested soon after the stabbing by local police, and lodged in the town jail. Later she was taken to Greenbank.

Fought Over Booze

According to Mrs. Saunders, her husband had been drinking heavily recently and the climax of their domestic troubles came on Sunday in the Saunders home. In an altercation, said to have been caused by an argument over drinking, Saunders was stabbed in the abdomen. His wife is said to have used a small pocket knife.

That all has not been going well in the Saunders family is the statement frequently made since the stabbing. The wounded man is the son of William Saunders, a leader of the Negro colony on New London Avenue.

At the hospital, where Saunders was rushed following the trouble Sunday, surgeons immediately operated, and closed an incision made in the small intestines. It was stated at the hospital Sunday night, that Saunders had a slim chance for recovery. Monday and Tuesday, however, saw a change for the better come over him.

The Saunders woman, according to police here, claimed that her husband treated her cruelly when drunk.

Seagers' Threats Fail

Charged by his wife with "making threats to do bodily harm with a knife and club," Clarence Seagers of New London avenue section of town, was haled before Magistrate Thompson Monday and in default of $1000 bail was committed to the Workhouse to await the next term of court. The alleged altercation arose Saturday last in the Seagers home. The prisoner has been in the toils of the Law on sundry other occasions, according to police here.

LESLIE FINALLY GUILTY

After two unsuccessful attempts to convicting of alleged thievery in homes along the Elk River, "Captain Jack" Leslie was finally pinned down by a jury in Cecil County Court last night and found guilty of larceny of goods from a house near Charles-town. The case against Leslie has aroused great interest in this section.

The new jury, drawn Monday, was given the case early last evening. A short deliberation preceded the announcement of the verdict. State's Attorney Clayton handled the prosecution.

Boy Struck By Car

While running across Main street in the thick of traffic early Saturday evening, Harvey Jerome Scott, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Scott, of near Centonville, Md., was struck and knocked down by a car driven by Harry H. Cleaves of this town. The car was stopped instantly and the child crawled from under the machine. The accident happened opposite Handloff's department store.

Mr. Cleaves at once rushed the boy to the offices of Dr. Wallace Johnson. Upon examination, it was found that he suffered slight injuries to his face and one ear. It was reported that the boy viewed the moving pictures later in the evening. The boy started across the street and his father called him and he turned and ran directly into the car's path.

LATEST REPORT ON ASSESSMENT LIST

Mr. J. P. Wright, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, called two weeks ago to consider the assessment list, was reached in Wilmington this afternoon by phone just as we go to press. He gave the following statement:

"That it is my judgment still that the list should be turned over to the committee appointed at the Citizens' Meeting to constitute what might be termed a Committee on Revision. This committee should go over the list, making what adjustments that they thought should be made, and return in the form of a recommendation to the Board."

Relative to the publication of the list, Mr. Wright said that he personally thought it should be done but that it was a matter for the Committee on Revision and the community taxpayers to decide. He said further that he would immediately get in touch with the committee and with Mr. Townsend, who was appointed to secure a copy, and arrange for the calling of another citizens' committee. It is expected, therefore, that another meeting will be called to receive the report and take action on the immediate procedure.

A Minute With JOE SPIVUS

(By Himself)

Mr. Conductor:

Will you kindly focus your watery optics on this one from
The Evening Journal:

POSSIBILITIES OF BLACKMAIL IN WEER BILL HORRIFY PEOPLE (EDITORIAL)

The Weer Super-Prohibition bill is full of menace to the people of Delaware.

No one, however innocent, ever could feel that his home was his castle or that it would be respected were such a law on our statute books.

What would prevent bandits, in the guise of officers of the law, presenting themselves at anybody's house at any hour of the night, ransacking the premises and taking what they wanted for themselves without any of the risk to the marauders which usually goes with such an undertaking?

The possibilities of blackmail and lawless intrusion contained in the Weer bill are unlimited!

Now I don't aim to be no hard crusted double distilled pull-back, but if I thought for one minute that my old friend George Carter put that darned thing on the front page of his paper for ME to swallow, I should do one of two things—call a doctor or write him one o' my stinging letters.

But beins' George and I was such good friends when he used to live in Newark, I can't help but be lenient. He appears to be all wrought up over something or other. Just what it is, I can't exactly tell.

Leastways, I know he don't mean all that stuff about ransacking folks houses by officers, and before any of you gullible citizens up on Main street, begin to believe it, let me have my say, will you?

To see ole George Carter, in that rusty Ford of his, chewing an ole cigar and flanked on one side by a dog, and the other by a hoss blanket, drivin' lickety-split to Wilmington; to see him playing out in his yard with the kids; tellin' jokes on them college girls which went buy with their fellas, and plantin' garden seed along towards dark—I says, to see him doin' those things like I seen him do, you just know that he would be the first one to ask them "marauders" into the parlor, for a sociable game of pinochle.

There's somethin' a-bitin' at George these days. I don't mind him layin' on hard with both hands on this man Weer's "To The Last Quart" bill. I agree with George. So does most everybody else. They's nobody trying to argue him down. If he's really fightin' with anybody, it must be his shadow.

I grieves to see my ole friend ashoutin' and carryin' on like this, certain. Sally Ann just said tonight, "Joseph," says she, "wouldn't it be nice to have George down here some day for sauer kraut and weenies, then you and him could play cribbage all afternoon." Since the only time I gets sauer kraut is when company's around, I guess it's up to me to send for George right quick—cause I do love my kraut.

So all I got to tell you high-hatters up in town is to let me handle this here thing. George is all right. He's just been up there among them Wilmington dog robbers so long that he's lost the smell of the country. It just ain't natural for him to be screaming third-act-murder like this. I'm the feller for the job of getting him oriented again, and I don't mean perhaps.

How's your early onion bed these days?

—JOE SPIVUS.

Hold Big Pep-Fest

As a means of arousing spirit in the title game with Seaford last Saturday, a big rally was held in the High School here Friday afternoon of last week at the close of classes. Speeches, music, and cheers galore shook the old Academy building for more than an hour.

"Jack" Bright As Ever

Little "Jack" Daly, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Daly of Depot Road, who suffered a broken leg when struck by a car two weeks ago, is recovering nicely at his home here.

"Jack" took his misfortune in his usual brave manner, and the prospects of several weeks with his leg in a cast is tempered somewhat by the fact that he is at home.

can produce, with Newark in the ascendancy hereabouts, it would certainly seem that the Northern half teams play a faster, more scientific type of basketball.

Whether Seaford saw Victory Saturday night is problematical. It was merely a glimmer, a forlorn hope, at the end of the first five minutes. Spectators saw in Newark one of the best High School teams in years.

Chalmers Stars Again

They were also afforded the opportunity to see one "Shorty" Chalmers in action. "Shorty," to our mind, is the best all-around basketball player in the State. At Dover Saturday, he played his usual smooth game—never upset, always in the right spot at the right time, uncanny of eye, and a racing shadow when dribbling the ball. There is no need to heap on the praises, however. Everybody knows "Shorty's" ability. And there were four other men on the team, whose right to praise is only exceeded by our helpless groping for words.

Captain Doyle, Patchell; long, lean Jaquette and diminutive "Jimmy" Malone—all did their share; any single one would have failed, had it not been for the other four. It was teamwork for forty hard minutes that brought the title to Newark again. They were all stars.

Nothing To It

Under the ceaseless attack of the Newark outfit, Seaford fought gamely. They gave their best, but it was not enough. Stack and Bell, and the long, rangy Huston, about whom had been built the "loop" pass, found the going mighty rough.

The first half ended 13-3 in Newark's favor.

The second half opened.

The steady rain of shots at the Seaford basket continued. Chalmers and Patchell stormed continually. Doyle and Jaquette broke down any counter attack. Malone "worked the floor." It was Newark's ball most of the time. As they pecked away, the score mounted. Occasionally, Seaford broke through and scored. Cheers from the Down State contingent—but feeble cheers, for all that.

Chalmers and Patchell; Patchell again—so it went for the final twenty minutes. Newark eased a bit at the stretch and came into the final whistle under wraps, with the title well sewed up.

Thereupon, the Newark rooters took charge of the ceremonies for a few minutes. The score:

thought to another championship in the preliminary game at Dover, Saturday, when they downed the Laurel girls, 28-18.

The two teams left plenty of room for conjecture as to the fine score. The game was fast and furious from whistle to whistle. Caesar Rodney, to many Newark rooters, looked to be far and away the better team.

Several of the Newark sextette saw the game. Caesar Rodney, it will be remembered, blocked Newark's road to a girls' championship this year.

PLAYHOUSE

In a contest for the capital prize in the creation of wholesome stage humor it isn't likely there would be but a single entry, and that one, the inimitable star, Raymond Hitchcock. To the theatre-going public of the entire country, and even of conservative London, where he has received the homage of King and commoner; the endearing sobriquet, "Hitchy," unqualifiedly conveys par in popular stage diversion. "Hitchy" is coming to town" is a slogan that invariably tests the capacity of the theatre, and this season the event is made doubly important in the announcement that the famous comedian will be seen in "The Sap," a new play that fits him like a glove, at the Playhouse, Wilmington, Thursday and Friday nights, this week.

Visit Workhouse

The Sociology class of the Women's College, under Dr. Crooks, visited the Workhouse at Greenbank, and the Ferris Industrial School for boys, on Thursday, where they made a study of conditions. The members of the class were Miss Georgia Wiggins, Miss Sallie Calloway, Miss Sara Massinger, Miss Anne Passmore, Miss Moss Tyler, Miss Kathryn Hubert, Miss Leslie Blackwell, Miss Ruth Butler, Miss Elizabeth Crooks, Miss Mabel Conoway, Miss Hazel Allen, Miss Marjorie Brosius, Miss Ruth Ewing, Miss Pauline Moore, Miss Dorothy Nunn and Miss Dorothy Heyd.

New York Grange Halls

During the past 12 months, 12 new Grange halls have been dedicated in the state of New York and at least a half dozen more are ready for that interesting ceremony. The most expensive of the group cost $40,000, and ranged in cost at the way down to $1200. In New York state there are 512 Grange-owned halls, whose total value exceeds $2,000,000. In many instances Grange members gave liberally of time, timber and other materials and thereby made possible a successful building project which could not otherwise have been achieved.

Elkton Starts War On Mosquito Evil; Many Support Plan

Chamber of Commerce, Rotarians and Council Cooperate in Cleaning Up Marshes This Summer

That a determined warfare on the mosquito plague will be waged by Elkton citizens through the hot weather this year, is assured from recent preliminary plans made public. In past years, suffering from the pests has been acute and enjoyment of summer evenings has been positively impossible, except where porches are well screened.

At present, the plan is to use waste oil from the garages and mills of the town for alleviating the trouble. Marshes which adjoin Elkton on two sides, are mainly responsible for the swarms of insects during the summer.

Organizations Join

The Elkton Chamber of Commerce at its recent turkey dinner at the New Central Hotel endorsed this plan, which has been tried in other towns, for the elimination of the mosquito.

The Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon at the New Central Hotel also endorsed the plan and will cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce.

The Elkton Town Council on Wednesday evening decided to use every means possible to exterminate the mosquito, and in order to do away with breeding places of the pests have requested all residents of the town to notify the Bailiff if they have any ashes or cinders, and the town's auto truck will haul them to the marsh at the south end of town, free of charge. Mr. D. J. Ayerst, superintendent of Radnor Mill, has offered to dump all sawdust from that mill on the marsh. The aid of all citizens is requested to exterminate the mosquito.

Another Word on Assessment

"There are several other reasons why we believe assessment list should not be advertised publicly but we believe the reasons here given are sufficient to warrant and justify us in assuming the position or stand that we take in the matter."

The above is a paragraph taken from a letter of the Assessment Board giving reasons why the request for publication should not be granted. In another column we reprint the letter in full that we may be perfectly fair. The reasons stated in the letter, it may be said with considerable emphasis, have not satisfied the opinions of the taxpayers. And in many quarters, questions are raised as to what are the "several other reasons" as quoted above. It is just possible that one or all of these may be what is causing all the trouble.

The community has been and is very quiet about this thing. There has been naught but dignified discussion and dignified requests. There has been nothing asked for other than what is theirs by simple right.

But the quietness and dignity of the situation have increased rather than lessened the feeling. The spirit of fairness prevails, the citizens want to do the right thing and at the same time they do not wish this to go by default.

The List can be published—that is certain. No other opinion has been expressed—not even by the Board. The refusal is only an inclination, "not inclined to reverse its position"—so their letter reads. This is not a decision to be based on inclinations. It is one of just right and wrong, legal or illegal. It is the Taxpayers Request for what they think is Right vs. the Inclination of the Board—that's all.

We have no desire to publish the List if the Community doesn't want it. This paper is not looking for news or political sensations particularly. If we were, we would publish the list by the right given under the law.

Our position is one of trying to get it adjusted with fairness to all, and publicity will do it and leave no suspicion, which now is increasingly prevalent in many quarters since the Board's reply to the Citizen's request.

Our personal appeal for ourselves is simply this—Select three men who know properties and values in and around Newark and we accept their verdict. We do not care to enter in the discussion where personally interested.

We have now this suggestion: This is a Community affair. The Community asked Mr. Wright, chairman of the Citizens' Meeting, to secure the List. George L. Townsend was appointed to secure the List. A Committee of Revision composed of J. K. Johnston, James D. Davis and O. K. Moore, were appointed to go over the List and make recommendations. Let the Chairman and those appointed report back to the Community and receive further instructions. This can be done by a Citizens' Meeting. We would suggest calling such a meeting.

The whole thing can be adjusted easily by co-operation of the Rights of Citizens and Duties of Officials.

Reasons Why List Is Not Published

Wilmington, Delaware, March 17, 1925

The Newark Post,
Newark, Delaware.

Dear Sir:

We have your favor of the 16th, renewing request for privilege of printing the Newark Assessment list and reason for refusal.

Replying thereto, would advise, that the Board is not inclined to reverse its position in the matter of granting permission to publish Assessment list for several reasons, namely:

That the assessment books have been hung in public and convenient places throughout the County for fifteen days for the benefit of all taxables, which included Newark and Vicinity.

That the above fact of the lists being so hung were extensively advertised in the principal newspapers of the County; that every opportunity was given to the taxables to ascertain their assessments.

That the taxables of the County still have the right and privilege until May 1st, to view their assessments, and appeal therefrom if deemed necessary, in the office of the Board, Public Building, Wilmington, Delaware.

That if any inequities occur they can be presented to and adjusted by the Board rather than their extensive publicity and controversies.

That if any mis-statements or mis-information occur or are prevalent, it is thru continued publicity and agitation and not of the Board's making.

That continued publicity and agitation as suggested can accomplish little or no good.

We do not agree with you that the publicity that you desire and give will aid us in our work but to the contrary is detrimental and injurious.

There are several other reasons why we believe assessment list should not be advertised publicly but we believe the reasons here given are sufficient to warrant and justify us in assuming the position or stand that we take in the matter.

The Board's function is to make an equitable and true assessment of property values and this is what we have aimed to do, regardless of arguments to the contrary.

We sincerely trust that the reasons as here given for our position in the premises will be accepted in the spirit tendered, i. e., a true and equitable assessment for all, we beg to remain

Respectfully,

BOARD OF ASSESSMENT, NEW CASTLE COUNTY.

"Good Roads, Flowers, Parks, Better Schools,

PUBLICITY OF ASSESSMENTS

(From Every Evening)

Newark citizens, in common with many others throughout New Castle county, raised serious objection to the valuation of their properties for county taxation as fixed by the County Board of Assessment for this year. They protested in public meeting, and made overtures to the board for a copy of the assessment list of their district. Their request was forwarded by THE NEWARK POST, which desired to publish the list, but refusal was the reply of the board.

In setting forth reasons for its refusal, the county board at first very properly pointed out that the lists had been hung up in public places for a stated time, thus affording property owners opportunity for obtaining information. Also, it would have been possible for copies to have been made of the lists when thus exposed to general inspection. But in respect of two other reasons in justification offered by the board in its reply, exceptions may be taken. They were:

"That continued publicity and agitation, as suggested, can accomplish little or no good."

"We do not agree with you that the publicity that you desire to give will aid us in our work, but on the contrary, is detrimental and injurious."

Dissatisfied taxpayers will not accept these reasons with equanimity. Nor do they intimate any desire on the part of the county board to promote publicity in any manner. On the contrary, they intimate that the county board would prefer as little publicity as possible, in order to reduce to the smallest compass the appeals from their figures. With good grace the board might have refused on the ground that full opportunity for securing the desired copy had been given, and that to comply with the request later might have interfered with their regular work on the board. But there is no sound reason for the board's manifest objection to publicity which, as a rule, is a good thing in such matters.

The lesson to be learned from this incident is that taxpayers must realize that "eternal vigilance is the price of" other things than "liberty"; that if they are interested in their property assessments they must keep an eye on them and act promptly; that they may not expect anything more from the assessment authorities than the law definitely provides for; and that if they desire copies of the assessment lists they will have to secure them when the opportunity is offered by their exposure in public places, as required by law.

THAT NEWARK ASSESSMENT

(From Sunday Star)

Whatever brains a politician may conceal under his hat prior to his occupancy of an official position, in many cases, once he is seated in office the aforesaid brains apparently shrivel up to microscopic proportions. He forgets that he is living at the public crib, and that the public is paying his salary, and soon indeed he enters that select company of pooh-bahs whose principal rule of conduct is to deny taxpayers any consideration, redress, or amelioration that may be desired. Not even a drop of water is to be given to the thirsting unless it is written in the law and will cause no increase of work or bother of explanation.

Thoughts like these are bound to arise when such a petty attitude is assumed as that taken by the New Castle County Assessment Board in answer to the protests of Newark residents concerning real estate assessments. The Board of Assessment was asked to permit the assessment list to be published in a Newark paper in order that the taxpayers might learn just what changes have been made.

Quite a modest request, and it would naturally be assumed that the Board would be pleased to let the assessments be made public as it was possible to make them. For are the members of the Board not public servants, and living at the expense of the taxpayers? And are they not to make fair and equitable assessments? If so, why not adopt any and all methods of making these assessments fully known to those who have to pay taxes based on them? If a newspaper offers to publish such a list gratis, why refuse the offer? Surely this much should be done for the people who pay the taxes and the salaries of those who assess and collect them.

Here is a whole community which holds a town meeting, and backed by the Council, Chamber of Commerce and representative citizens it asks to have the assessment list printed. It is not the request of an individual or a newspaper but of a whole community. Not that the individual's right to ask and be granted should be minimized, but so often the still, small voice is drowned out in the hubbub. All asked that the list be made public at no expense or trouble to the Board.

The answer of the Board is a denial for the second time of the request for the list, with the avowal that the list had been hung in certain places, and, PUBLICITY WOULD BE DETRIMENTAL AND INJURIOUS TO THEIR WORK. The Board states that continued publicity can accomplish little or no good.

Under the circumstances, the Board can only remove doubt of its good faith by having the list published at once. An assessment has been over which some discussion has been raised. It is the evident purpose of the Board, for certain specious reasons which they allege, that this list be kept from publication in the press. At once every one wonders "Why?"

The assessment may be fair and equitable, but when actions like this are taken, doubts are bound to arise. Such doubts can easily be wiped out by taking friendly counsel with the Newark taxpayers, and working with them to adjust any alleged errors. But it is poor doctrine for the Board to assume that its assessment is like the ukase of a Czar and is not to be questioned.

Our advice to the Newark taxpayers is to demand once more this assessment list, and fight to the last ditch to have it published. It is their right, and no silly position that the king can do no wrong should be allowed to stand in their way. They pay the taxes, and those who assess them must come to the realization that they are merely the people's servants, and unless they desire to be put in the position of putting over the assessment under cover, and foisting it on the taxpayers secretly, they must grant the request.

If the assessment is fair and equitable, as the Board avers it is, then why not let the world know about it? Why be backward about letting the whole of Newark know about this fair and equitable assessment by having it published? It is the fair and manly thing to do, and the Board should say in effect to the citizens of Newark, "Gentlemen, here is the assessment list of Newark. We believe it to be fair and equitable. The assessment is on your properties, and you should be fully cognizant of it. Therefore, lest by chance some injustice has crept in unknown to us, we want everyone interested to have a chance to see it and we don't care if you publish it in every paper in the county. We are here to do our duty justly and fairly and not to put anything over on the taxpayers."

Such a position would disarm criticism. An opposite course only increase it.

$650,000 IS COST OF PROPOSED BRIDGE

R. R. Span Over Canal Near Summit Bridge Authorized By Congress Recently

The Rivers and Harbors Act authorizing an agreement for the construction of a new Pennsylvania Railroad bridge over the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, has been confirmed. According to the terms of the agreement the new bridge, which will cross the waterway at the station known as Canal, just east of Summit Level or deep cut known as "Little Culebra." The new span will replace that long used by the Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania system. Cost of the new bridge will be $650,000. The railroad itself is to be built on plans approved by the government, which will pay two-thirds of the cost or approximately $435,000.

Plans for the span have already been prepared by the railroad engineers and have been approved by Col. Brown and the Engineer Board of the War Department. Work on the structure will commence at once. The new bridge will be similar to those of the lift type, designed by Harrington, Howard and Ash, Kansas City, for other points along the canal, except that it will be heavier, to sustain the weight of trains. It will span a waterway 110 feet in width. When the lift is raised, the flooring or tracks will be higher than that of the Brooklyn Bridge. Thus masts carried by the largest ships, will have no difficulty in passing beneath it.

DOCTOR ARGUES WITH TRACK WATCHMAN

Gates Come Down on Physician's Car Here; Fight Follows

Temporarily losing his head when gates at the B. and O. crossing here came down without warning while his car was on the tracks, Dr. J. Raymond Downes strode over to the watchman's box and entered into an altercation with William Stafford, Negro, who handles the gates.

From an account of eyewitnesses, blows were struck by both men, a heavy nut in the hand of Stafford inflicting a scalp wound on the doctor.

Dr. Downes was later treated by Dr. Wallace Johnson for his injuries. No arrests were made.

HOG CHOLERA OUTBREAK ON KENT ISLAND

Eastern Shore Communities Warned Against Spread of Plague

Centreville, Md.—Six months ago an outbreak of hog cholera originating at Fredericktown, a colored settlement six miles west of Stevensville, spread to twenty farms and caused a loss of some two thousand dollars before being eventually stopped by vaccination and clean up measures. A similar outbreak of somewhat less seriousness occurred at much the same time at Kingtown, another colored settlement of the Island. Both outbreaks were finally conquered through the prompt and efficient service rendered by Dr. W. H. Wright, Veterinary Surgeon in charge of anti-hog cholera work in this area.

Last Friday and Saturday brought the second episode in the story of Kent Island hog cholera. A small outbreak was located again at Kingtown and word immediately reached Dr. Wright, who came at once. Steps were promptly taken to avoid any loss and quick arrangements were made for two meetings, the purpose of which was to teach the colored population at first hand the precautions requisite in the control of cholera. Slides for magic lantern were soon secured as well as a moving picture machine to tell the story. The meetings were held in churches at Kingtown and Fredericktown, with an attendance of some fifty at each affair.

The sixth annual Easter dance, given under the auspices of Walter L. Fox Post No. 2, American Legion, at Dover State Armory on Monday evening, April 13th, at nine o'clock, will close the Winter's social season.

In previous years these dances have been wondrous success and were greatly enjoyed. This year's program with George Madden's orchestra promises more success and a much better time for everyone.

Athletic Council Annual Dinner Held Last Thursday Eve

Coach McAvoy Delivers Strong Plea for Clean Sports; Western Athlete on Program; Sports Reviewed

Several score athletes, faculty members and Alumni attended the annual dinner of the University Athletic Council held in Old College last Thursday evening.

Dr. W. Owen Sypherd, president of the Council, presided and acted as toastmaster. Briefly summing up the achievements of the Council during the past year, he spoke of each sport in passing, and at the close, introduced the speaker of the evening, F. M. Holmes, former All-Western Conference halfback, now a resident of Wilmington.

Mr. Holmes dwelt particularly upon the value of athletic training in schools and colleges, and their resultant benefits when the individual gets into business. He told the athletic body that the spirit of fight and pluck that a man acquires in athletics carries him on well in the field of business. He said that the most valuable training that athletics give a man is the ability of keep trying in the face of bad breaks. His talk was given a very hearty reception.

McAvoy Speaks

Coach William McAvoy, who retires from his position at the end of the present collegiate year, spoke at length on clean sportsmanship and suggested during his talk several much-needed additions and improvements to the athletic equipment at Delaware.

"Mac" proved to be a popular speaker with the gathering and he was given an ovation as he concluded his talk.

Dr. Hulihan, president of the University, was another speaker. He spoke principally on the subject of mass athletics, or sport for every student. He, along with Coach McAvoy expressed his earnest hope that a new gymnasium would soon be forthcoming at Delaware.

Short talks on various sports now in season at the University were given by captains of the branches, including Captain Mannix of baseball, Captain Malloy of tennis, and "Bill" McKelvie, student coach of the track. The evening closed with the singing of the Alma Mater.

Report Methodists May Join Two Wings Of Church This Year

M. E. Church, South, May Combine With Northern Group As Result of Conferences This Spring, Says Paper

The Methodist Conference, opening today in Wilmington, has one big problem before it, according to the Centreville, Md., Record, when the organization will likely make a decision regarding the proposed union of the Northern and Southern branches of the Church. Says the Record:

"The subject of having the two denominations unite has been a transitory one for several years and has but recently been brought to a definite state of settlement. The subject was voted upon by the Bishops of both Churches, with the result that the majority favored the proposed union. It now only remains for all the conferences of both churches to vote in favor of the plan to bring about the union. Several district conferences of both denominations have already been held and so far the majority of the delegates favor the union.

"There is but little difference between the two churches. Originally they were the same, but the disputing question of slavery in 1845 caused a large group to withdraw from the parent body and form a new organization which they called the M. E. Church, South. From that day until this, the negro has not been admitted into this branch. In the M. E. Church north, to the contrary, the negro has had his own rights and holds his own conferences. Also there are no women preachers in the M. E. Church, South. The other has women preachers. These two facts have, in the past, formed the chief barrier against a union. Now, however, it would seem that the two denominations will soon function as one organization.

"Should the proposed union take place, and in all probability it will, there would be practically no changes made in the work of the two churches. Each would have separate conferences, etc. However, there would be this difference, both would be under the same executive jurisdiction.

"The Church Census of 1923 shows that the M. E. Church, South, has 2,339,151 members. The M. E. Church, North 4,774,520. Should the two unite the new church would have a membership of over seven million people."

GOV. RITCHIE TALKS ON CONSTITUTION

there sprang up individual differences such as class against class, state against state. A real government was needed. States issued their own currency and made tariff laws one against the other. And so the fathers of our nation once again met.

"They formed a national government with power at least to coin money, regulate commerce, provide for national debt and to regulate foreign affairs. But that government was not to be so strong as to impair or threaten freedom and liberties of the individual, or the right of the individual to settle their home affairs at home.

"The power was given to the Federal Government to settle those things which concerned everybody and left everything else to the states. It also guaranteed the individual against governmental aggression or interference. It was difficult to ascertain the protection the individual needed. History has taught us that; the experience of the colonists had been sufficient to teach that. And so these things were gathered together and put in the first Ten Amendments.

"The Bill of Rights gave to the individual the freedom of religion, speech, press, the right to peaceably assemble and petition, a security against unreasonable searches and seizures, a jury trial in criminal cases, immunity against self incrimination, trial in State where the crime was committed, the right to life, liberty, and property unless deprived by due process of law. Those things constitute our liberty," said the speaker. "Not one," said he, "can be taken away without opening the door to tyranny or oppression. There is no instance in history of tyranny that has not been caused by denial of one of these guarantees."

"For one hundred and twenty-five years these rights were ours in fact as well as in promise. Except slavery, which caused the Civil War, there was no denial during all those years.

Income Taxes

From this point on, the speaker

emphasized particularly the new trends involving the rights of individuals and States. In particular, he called attention to taxation.

Governor Ritchie outlined the history of former attempts to tax individual incomes prior to 1913, showed that they were arranged primarily as necessities during wartime, and were then uniformly repealed. Until the past ten or twelve years, no attempt had been made to inaugurate such a sweeping tax system, under the authorization of Congress as is now on the statute books, he said.

Said the Governor: "Therefore, there is now no limitation upon the power of the Federal Government to tax incomes. It can tax them as high as it pleases, which means that it can take as much of a citizens income as it pleases. The government's power is complete, arbitrary and despotic. Nothing like it was ever contemplated by our Constitution.

"The easiest and most tempting way of all ways for the government to raise money, during life, is to take the income from labor and property through taxation, which is subject to no limitation or restraint; and after death, by an inheritance tax which takes as much of the property as the government wants, and to this extent destroys capital itself.

"The first power the government never had until 1913, after a period of one hundred and twenty-four years, which covered growth and development from small beginnings to the greatest nation on earth."

Additional "Revolutions"

Following the discussion of taxes, and a short time dwelt on the Eighteenth Amendment, Governor Ritchie went on down through the more recent entanglements which appear to be obscuring the rights of the individual as laid down in the original Constitution.

In summing up his observations, the speaker said:

"What has become of the guarantee against double jeopardy, when the States are permitted to punish a person for the same act for which the Federal government has already punished him, as if it made some difference to the individual that he is being prosecuted the second time by a different set of public officials from those who prosecuted him for the same offense the first time?

"What has become of the individual's immunity from being compelled to testify against himself, when an involuntary bankrupt, compelled by order of the Federal Court to surrender his private papers, may be prosecuted before the same Court for anything incriminating that may be found in them?

"What has become of the right to be tried in the State where the offense was committed, when everyone involved in a case of conspiracy may be brought to and tried in any State in the country wherein any one of the alleged conspirators is charged with committing an overt act, even though none of the others were ever in the State or anywhere near it?

"What has become of the freedom of speech and press, and of the right of peaceful assembly, when, through denial of the right to use the mails or other form of governmental prosecution, proceedings are taken against newspapers or individuals whose only offense is to print or to speak what they believe to be the truth about public affairs or the exercise of the governmental power."

In its conclusion, Governor Ritchie's speech betrayed the deep feeling he had in his subject and sentences here and there showed conclusively that he, for one, was unalterably opposed to the Government's invasion into the rights and immunities of the citizen. He carefully avoided, however, a direct arraignment of the new trends in Constitutional interpretation, but left no doubt in the minds of his hearers that "taking the teeth out of the Bill of Rights" would eventually lead to serious consequences.

At the end of his address, he thanked his audience "for listening so patiently to my efforts in explaining a subject in which I am deeply interested."

Guest At Hullihen's

Prior to the lecture, Governor Ritchie was a dinner guest at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hullihen. Members of the Faculty, guests from Wilmington, and Newark friends of the distinguished visitor were seated at the dinner table.

Weddings

Worrall-Brewer

A wedding of great local interest was quietly solemnized at the Presbyterian Manse here Saturday afternoon at six o'clock when Miss Emily Worrall, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth E. Worrall of this town, became the bride of Wayne C. Brewer, formerly of Lewes, Delaware, but now of Newark. Rev. H. Everett Hallman conducted the ceremony.

While close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Brewer expected the announcement of their marriage shortly, the actual ceremony came as a surprise. The only attendants at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. A. Frank Fader, with whom Mrs. Brewer has made her home for the past seven years.

Following the ceremony, the bride and groom left for a short wedding trip. They are now comfortably settled in their newly furnished home on Cleveland avenue.

Mrs. Brewer is well known and extremely popular with Newark people. She is a graduate of the High School and has been secretary in the Fader Motor Company for some years. The groom was a former student of Delaware College, and was a member of the class of 1921. Since leaving college he has been engaged in the automobile business at Lewes. Recently he accepted an offer in Wilmington, and will make Newark his home. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

NO CROSS-WORD CONTEST THIS WEEK

While The Post will continue to publish a Weekly Cross-Word Puzzle for the entertainment of its readers, no prizes will be offered until further notice.

A decided falling off in the number of returns the past two weeks have convinced the promoters of the contests that there is usually an end to all things, including brain teasers. Dozens of fans are still sending in solutions weekly, and no doubt will be disappointed in reading this announcement. Both The Post and the Opera House wish to thank everyone who have helped make these contests highly successful. One week's returns recently totalled over 140 separate solutions.

On this page for several more weeks, you will find a Cross-Word Puzzle. Don't miss this feature.

White Children Being Sheltered, With Great Aunt, In Negro Home Near Ridgely

(From Caroline Sun)

At the farm home of Grace Henry, colored, located near Ridgely, Md., a white family is sheltered. The family is composed of an old lady and three interesting children—Margaret, aged six years, and Benjamin and Franklin, twin boys, two years of age. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Erickson, who formerly conducted the Ridgely Hotel, are somewhere in New Jersey.

The children and the aunt of Mrs. Erickson were placed in the colored surrounding for a short time only, and for the shelter, board and other things too numerous to mention Grace Henry was to receive $15 per week. Up to today (11 weeks) Grace has received just $60 from the Ericksons, and for the past month has not heard from the parents of the children.

A Sun reporter visited the colored home Wednesday morning to ascertain some of the reported talk going the rounds in the community. His attention was first drawn to Margaret, who was standing in a field watching two colored men playing. Then to the two bright-eyed twin boys, who were on a porch playing, while the old aunt was watching over them.

It has now been eleven weeks since the white family were "dumped" in the colored home, to remain there for a short time only. Grace is growing weary of her responsibility and something must be done to relieve the situation. She says the Ericksons have not made good their promises, and besides she is opposed to mixed races occupying the same house and eating in the same dining room.

Erickson came here last summer from Centerville. He rented the Ridgely hotel, but most of the time was out-of-town soliciting business for fly-killer and automobile polish. It was at the hotel that he and his wife became acquainted with Grace Henry. The authorities will probably make an immediate investigation as to the surroundings and the conditions of the homeless white woman and the three dear little children.

Sauer Kraut Supper

DELAWARE ON THE GRILL

A FEW RANDOM OBSERVATIONS BY A MARYLAND NEIGHBOR

"WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH DELAWARE," BY WILLIAM J. ROBERTSON IN THE BALTIMORE "EVENING SUN" OF MARCH 20th.

It is a pity old Delaware hasn't a William Allen White—or a Henry L. Mencken—to answer the important question, "What is the matter with Delaware?" Delaware today is what the United States, as a whole, is today. All the good and evil in America is represented within this little commonwealth of three counties.

Delaware's use of the whipping post, designed primarily for the wife beater, but employed with considerable advantage in making the stopovers of stick-up men and second-story artists as uncomfortable as possible, is symbolic of the Puritanism of old New England. The whipping post is what Boston would be if she only dared. And it is but a point or two removed from the use of the unwritten laws in Texas, Oklahoma and Georgia.

The antiquated system of recording deeds and other documents which was used in George Washington's time is still being used with that depth of affection which only politicians can put into things that they use—with strings of fat plums hanging on the old state, city and county patronage trees! Clerks whose bent figures are often seen in the pages of Charles Dickens today are found huddled over huge books or record, straining their arms and eyes in hopeless long-handled chronicles of deeds and miss deeds. The present General Assembly is looking into the matter of installing a new system of recordation, but the looking-in is comparable to the act of the gentleman who asked the lady if he might see her a moment and, when she acquiesced, gazed at her through a pair of field glasses and went on about his business.

"Ask the man who owns one," is a patented remark used in the advertisement of a well-known automobile; but it could be applied fittingly to Delaware's charters of incorporation. These charters satisfy; they please; they advertise themselves; and Delaware is famed far and wide for her corporation charters. Why? Because these charters are granted right and left to anybody who comes along and permits any and every body who is capable of paying the required fee to do anything he or she wants to do, except commit murder and arson! Perhaps you remember the howl that went up throughout the Middle West and the East a year ago in regard to quack doctors. If you will study the map, you will find that their quackness originated at Dover, Del., in the form of charters to a so-called university, investing it with powers to turn out physicians, dentists, osteopaths and what-nots every two or three weeks, if it desires! Some good souls—not including the worthy barbers who buy summer homes with the fees they get from the charter applicants—realize that something is wrong, but they argue that the revenue derived from the issuance of these charters is not to be frowned at, even if the editors of the newspapers do come out in ringing tones and shout that Delaware is selling her body and soul. If a quack doctor could only come into the State, unsuspected, and amputate a half dozen members of the Legislature where the collar is put on, the people might by chance awaken to the fact that it would be well to have a State utilities commission, empowered to issue and revoke charters and hold hearing on quo warranto proceedings. But the said doctor seems to find business more lucrative just now in St. Louis and Connecticut.

Several years ago a handful of astute gentlemen got their heads together and created what is now known as the filing fee law, which is a part of the State income-tax law, and the measure was adopted by the General Assembly. Today every male and female of age must pay a filing fee of $3 whether he or she has an income return to make out or not. The filing fee was designed to reach certain negro citizens who had never paid any tax; but instead of reaching them it reaches the poor gent who has a wife and five grown daughters to support and who has to pay the neat little sum of $21 in filing fees for the family, in addition to his income tax. The filing fee has been called "obnoxious" by the newspapers; but what the average citizen thinks of it is a statutory offense! Efforts are being made, it must be said to the credit of the present State Legislature, to knock the filing fee into a cocked hat—and possibly raise the taxes, if the raise can be made quietly enough not to reach the ears of the poor working-man.

Permit me to enumerate some additional joys which the fertile minds of our legislators, guided by the piety of unhung gentlemen and members of the Anti-Saloon League, have put off on the "peepul." A few days ago the Governor signed a bill making it compulsory for teachers in public schools daily to read a passage from the Bible to the pupils. The Jews protested on the ground that the law is unconstitutional, and cited the First Amendment to the Federal Constitution and the preamble to the State Constitution. Inasmuch as the legislators were not familiar with these quaint little bits of American literature, the bill was passed with as much flourish and pleasure as a young girl shows playing "September Morn," despite her mother's injunctions not to go near the water!

Not content with this strong effort to bring back the pleasures of pre-Reformation days, the able statesmen conjured up what is known as the Weer bill, designed to tighten up the leaks in the so-called Loose State prohibition law. A loose-tongued wag from Sussex county as described the Weer bill as being "much tighter than the Loose law," with which everybody seems to agree. The Weer bill prohibits the possession of liquor in any quantity, and the physicians—including the quacks and the corner druggist—are prohibited from prescribing or selling the stuff to a thirsty populace. The Weer bill is not unlike the measure which the Hoosier Legislature recently enacted into law and includes everything except sniff inspectors—gents detailed to sniff the aroma of alcoholics!

The tightness of the Weer bill is not the most interesting feature about it. The startling thing is that a group of gentlemen who have the courage to call themselves "respectable citizens" and who claim that they are original prohibitionists are protesting against the law on the ground that it interferes with a citizen's personal liberty! In other words, they are using the same arguments that the so-called wets used in the old days against the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act. This aspect of the fight for and against the measure is one of the most hopeful things that has happened in Delaware since our representatives signed the Constitution in 1787! It reveals a humanness in our "respectable citizens" that we poor sinners had about concluded they never had and never would possess. The Weer bill, at this writing, is before the State Senate, having been passed by the House, and is being discussed pro and con by the "respectable citizens" on one side, and members of the clergy and anti-saloonists, on the other. Members of the clergy do not at the moment class themselves as "respectable citizens." Personally, I think the passage of the Weer bill would be a splendid thing for Delaware. It would be another strong rope with which the prohibition calf might slowly but surely hang itself!

After our illustrious legislators had returned from the inauguration ceremonies in Washington, where they had gone at public expense, and heard General Dawes give the United States Senate a strong hunk of something that rhymes with bell, they got down to the consideration of a race-track bill—a measure which would permit Delaware to hold races like those in Maryland. The bill permits "wagering"—and for once the long-haired tribe is right in opposing the bill; for it is unconstitutional. The State Constitution prohibits wagering. Even so, the measure is likely to pass, because, as I said before the Federal and State Constitutions are not to be found on the bookshelves of a majority of our able representatives in the General Assembly.

I have described the kind of statutory clothes which the Commonwealth of Delaware is wearing today. It can be seen that she has a strange mixture—colonial colors with modern jazz draperies. One moment she appears to the eye as the ghost of an old three-batter who followed Washington at Valley Forge. The next minute she is like the Thanksgiving Puritan who goes to the meeting house with a gun over his shoulder; and again she is not unlike Charlie Chaplin with his baggy trousers, funny walk and pathetic mien. Over these the Supreme Court of the United States has thrown a strange-looking garment which is described as "the right to search and seize automobiles without a warrant," which makes the ensemble the perfect American commonwealth of today—representative of all commonwealths in this land of the brave and the free—brave bootleggers and free drinkers!

P. Coale and Millard F. Coale; first account of Henry L. Constable, executor of Emma L. Hogg; first and final account of Rebecca J. Cooper, administratrix of Rachel A. Cooper, and distribution struck on same.

The Parish Club of Trinity Church cleared $50 on their bake and delicatessen sale held in the office of Mr. Henry Constable last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Catharine McPhail Jenkins, of Baltimore, was arrested early Friday morning by a traffic officer who found that she had parked her car across the state highway between North East and Charlestown, and when ordered to remove the machine ran it into a ditch, putting it out of commission.

Mrs. Jenkins had been to Philadelphia with a companion, where they purchased liquor, and were on their way back home when picked up by the state police. She was charged with driving her car while intoxicated, and Justice Gove S. Scotten fined her $100 and costs. Not having the fine, Mrs. Jenkins spent 36 hours in Elkton jail. Late Saturday evening she was released when a woman who refused to give her name, came to Elkton, paid the fine, and took Mrs. Jenkins back to her home in Baltimore.

Acclaim Big Victory

High School Students, Headed By Band, Resurrect Hearse

That the "corpse" did not arrive in time to enjoy the ride failed to disrupt the High School victory parade through Newark streets Monday night.

In celebration of the big basketball victory over Seaford High School, the boys and girls of the school, headed by the full personnel of the Continental Band, and with signs, cheerleaders and everything, properly observed the occasion.

From some cobwebby resting place, they dragged out the ancient hearse, made famous in other parades. That it was empty failed to dampen the ardor of the parade; that it stalled near the B. and O. station merely caused a slight hesitation in the march. It was a highly satisfactory evening, taking it by and large.

Delaware Baseball Outlook Indicates Lack Of Sluggers

McAvoy Has Men Out For Practice
Every Day This Week—Pryor Will Be In Shape Soon—Two Outfield Jobs Open

The balmy weather of the past few days has given the Delaware baseball enthusiasts plenty of opportunity for early training, and Frazer Field is a busy place every afternoon at the close of classes.

Coach McAvoy and Captain Jim Mannix are handing the squad daily, and with a few more days devoted to ironing out the wrinkles in unused arms, and sharpening the batting eyes, real work will commence. Short workouts, batting practice and an occasional light game is the rule now.

Need Hitters Badly

From a defensive standpoint, the Blue and Gold nine appears to be as good as last year's combination. New blood injected into the fight for positions has evolved some material which should make for a well-rounded fielding club. Lichenstein, Hunt, Gibson and McVaugh appear to be the probable first choices for the infield positions. Hunt and Gibson are veterans, Lichenstein is a smart fielder of no little reputation, and McVaugh looks good at first base. From a casual viewpoint, the infield appears to be the tightest part of the defense at present.

Jimmy Mannix will, of course, direct his team from center field. The other two positions, however, in the garden have not been filled.

Maxwell, Ash and Ickler in the catching department, and Beck, Harper, Kayhart and Lord are twirling them up for batters. Pryor, last season's ace, is recovering from two abscessed teeth, and is slow in getting into shape.

The outfield openings have been filled this week by Jackson and Cherpak, both scrubs last year.

The one great handicap to overcome, looks to be the lack of consistent hitters. Most of the men are as yet untried in this department. McAvoy's salvation, then, appears to be in the form of a surprise package or two in the Freshmen.

While a good fielding team, supporting a clever pitcher, can keep many runs from the plate, it becomes more and more evident each year that sustained batting all the way down the lineup wins the most ball games. A weak hitting club is the bane of every coach.

As the days pass by and the pitchers open up a bit in batting practice and start them zipping over the corners, there will then be time enough to accurately judge the prowess of Delaware's 1925 nine. While the balls are "floating" in, there's no justification in predictions of any sort. On the field, one can usually sort the

Varsity Ball A Success

Brilliant Costumes Mark Revival Of Masquerade At College

Bandits, Monks, cowboys, and terrors, with sideburns, Lavendar, Old Lace and farmerette; Buster Browns, ballet dancers, and Pierrots, mingled with unusual cordiality for such a diversified assemblage Saturday night last in Old College. In fact, according to the onlookers in the gallery, such a friendly symposium of all the temperaments in the world was most encouraging. Proponents of the World Court had a most satisfactory evening.

The occasion was the revival of the Varsity Club Masked Ball. Originated four years ago, it swept to great heights twice, was banned, and emerged again. George Madden's Orchestra kept the seventy-five couples in training throughout the evening. It was a brilliant spectacle and in the minds of many, the most enjoyable party of the current season. Dancing ruled from eight until twelve.

President W. S. Jackson of the Club, aided by his committee, had charge of the dance. The patronesses were Mrs. W. J. McAvoy, Mrs. Smith, Miss Pruegger, and Miss Taylor.

HOCKESSIN GRANGE ENTERTAINS HARMONY Jolly Time Held Monday Evening With Over 100 Present

Over eighty members of Harmony Grange visited their neighboring grange at Hockessin Monday night, where they spent a most enjoyable evening.

Several talks were given by prominent grangers from over the county, including Havery Walker, of Harmony, former State Master, and Representative Irvin Klair.

During the course of a short business meeting, the matter of forming a garden seed pool among Hockessin and Harmony members was brought up in a report given by a committee. The idea seemed to meet with favor and it is likely that such a pool will be started. Further decision was withheld pending inquiries as to lot prices.

During the lecture's hour, a surprise gift party was held. Hockessin hosts and hostesses presented to each visitor, in addition to their own membership, strange and weird gifts, ranging from rubber balls to corn flake boxes, each fitted out with string, to be worn around the neck. The gifts were taken one by one from a large trunk in the center of the room. A half hour of great merriment followed this novelty.

Further entertainment consisted of a reading by Mrs. Dennison, jokes by Mrs. Nutter, a reading by Mr. Buckingham, and a piano solo by Elizabeth Mitchell.

Concluding the evening's fun was a short play, and a radio skit, in which "news items" concerning Harmony and Hockessin Grangers were "broadcast" from an upper room. Refreshments, served late in the evening, consisted of ice cream and cake.
