Dr. Hullihen Addresses Newark Lions

"One of the outstanding differences I found in comparing the Americans with the French, was the buoyant optimism that speaks out of every American eye and the dull despair and hopelessness that you read in the faces there," Dr. Walter Hullihen, president of the University of Delaware, stated before the regular meeting of the Lions Club of Newark at the Newark Country Club Tuesday evening.

States Opinions

Appearing before the local organization as the guest of Dr. T. A. Baker, specialist in animal breeding at the university, Dr. Hullihen gave opinions and impressions formed during a recent business trip to France, where he made an investigation of the foreign study plan.

"I was greatly impressed," the college head stated, "by the shabbiness and poverty of the people, with their clothing and unpainted houses."

"They despair of bettering their conditions and their attitude seems to be that no matter what the breaks are, we are in a net from which we cannot escape."

In regard to the Spanish situation, Dr. Hullihen stated that even people on the "inside" did not seem to know which cause they favored. The general trend, however, leans toward the rebels because of the peoples' abomination of Communism and the belief that the royalists are in the hands of that group at this time.

England Concerned
Evidence that England is greatly concerned about Spain's troubles and the possibility of another war, was illustrated by Dr. Hullihen, who stated that an attempt to insure (Please turn to page 8)

Gatherings Planned

Finally, the alumni bicentennial committees all over the country will be called upon for assistance in planning and conducting a series of scholarly gatherings, seminars, academic ceremonies, national alumni meetings, scientific exhibits, and other events that will feature the University's 200th anniversary celebration in 1940.

In all of these projects the alumni in New Castle, Kent and Cecil counties will work with other groups of Pennsylvania graduates and former students throughout the world under the leadership of Thos. Health Exhibit Now Available For Public Use

The exhibit of the State Board of Health which attracted so much attention at the Harrington Fair is to be made available for use at schools, conventions, club gatherings and similar occasions throughout Delaware, as a part of the fight against venereal disease.

Prepared on sheets of natural finished plywood to make it thoroughly portable, the exhibit was attractively executed in modernistic designs and striking colors. Plastics supplied by the duPont Company add a pleasing and strikingly modernistic note to many of the items of the exhibit.

Various portions of the exhibit set forth a prevalence of syphilis in Delaware, and in the United States, comparing the number of new cases with the number of new cases of other diseases, stressing the necessity of early treatment, and the highly probable disastrous results if medical consultations and care is delayed.

A recorded illustrated lecture is part of the exhibit and sets forth forcefully the complete story of the dangers, ravages, and methods of treatment of syphilis.

Requests for the use of the exhibit should be addressed to the State Board of Health, Dover, in ample time to assure booking.

SERVICES FOR REED TODAY

To Be Buried In Coffin He Built Himself

William A. Reed, 90 year old, of near Newark, will be buried today at 2 o'clock, daylight saving time, in a coffin which he made for himself ten years ago. Death came on Monday, August 9, a week after his removal to the Delaware Hospital, Wilmington.

Born In 1847

Born June 5, 1847, Mr. Reed has lived with his nephew, Robert Reed, on a farm near Wilson Station in Pender County, N. C. A cabinet maker and ship joiner by trade, he decided to construct his own coffin in order to reduce funeral services. Constructed of cedar wood, the coffin and outside box are excellent pieces of handiwork.

Following its completion, it was delivered to Robert T. Jones, local undertaker for finishing touches and then shipped back to the farm.

Old Mason

Born in Delaware, Mr. Reed lived for many years in Wilmington. He was the son of the late Robert and Margaret Reed who migrated from Ireland. He joined the Lafayette Lodge A. F. and A. M. of Wilmington, 66 years ago and was the oldest member of that organization.

Church, Wilmington and was the last member of the lodge who attended those exercises. He is the last child of a large family. A brother, Robert Reed, died here some years ago.

For many years Mr. Reed was employed at the shipyards in Wilmington and during the World War sailed on the "Mallinex" as a carpenter, a boat which he had help construct at the Pusey and Jones shipyard.

Two sons and two daughters, besides several nieces and nephews, survive. Services, conducted by the Rev. Andrew Mayer, will be held from the Jones Funeral Home, with the Lafayette Lodge holding Masonic rites at the grave. Interment will take place in the Masonic plot in the Brandywine Cemetery.

No Organization Has Record To Compare With Grange — Yearsley

By Robert Yearsley
Lecturer, Delaware State Grange
No organization has a record that can compare with the Grange when it comes to fighting for agricultural equality. We commenced that battle a half century before any other farm organization now in existence was born and will continue the struggle for generations yet to come. The Grange has been the friend not only of agriculture, but of the consumer and of good government. It has been the defender of great moral and civic ideals. In this crisis in national and world history, when enduring foundations are being shaken, the challenge should go forth to every sincere believer in a richer America and a better rural life.

Our Equality Campaign has brought in thousands of members over the nation. A new program of Grange membership and service dedicated to Miss Carrie Hall and to the women of the Grange, is under way. The closing day is December 4, the seventy-first birthday of the National Grange. Completion of this job in a manner good for the Grange, good for agriculture, and better still for the America, are the primary objectives.

Harmony Grange will resume meetings Monday evening, August 16. Delaware State Grange will hold its first annual field day Thursday, August 19, at Richardson Park on Silver Lake at the northern entrance to Dover. Sports will start at 10 a. m., standard time, followed by basket lunch at noon. Prizes will be offered to the Grange having the largest percentage of members present at 1 p. m., standard time. The address of the day will be presented by Louis J. Tabor, master of the National Grange. All Grangers and their friends are invited to attend the outing.

MEETING SLATED FOR SEPTEMBER

$200 Voted Firemen For Rally

Originally scheduled to be held on June 14, but postponed because of the University of Delaware's commencement exercises, the second annual meeting of the Newark Chamber of Commerce will take place on Monday, September 13, at a place as yet undecided.

The date was set at the regular meeting of the board of directors which took place at the Deer Park Hotel, Monday evening.

Haney Heads Committee

George M. Haney, appointed chairman of the committee on arrangements by President George F. Jackson, will be assisted by William S. Hamilton and George Danby in making plans for the affair.

In response to an appeal made by the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company, the group voted $200 for the support of the state firemen's convention which is scheduled to be held on September 7 and 8, 1938.

Given first rights on the location of the meeting, the local firemen, due to the expense involved, found it necessary to appeal to outside sources for support. The affair, if held here, will bring several thousand people to Newark for the two days. An effort is also being made to promote Newark as the site for a meeting of the Atlantic Seaboard Hardware Association which will be held this fall.

Displeased with the appearance of the business section around Christmas time, movement was started for the decoration of Main Street during that period.

Town Is Drab

Contrasting Newark to several other small towns, one of the members pointed out that the local section was drab and lifeless, a condition which neither served as an incentive to shoppers nor reflected the true Christmas spirit.

An investigation of the expenses involved for the lighting during this period will be made by Messrs. Jackson and Herman Handloff before next session.

Following the enthusiastic response given "Dollar Day" last week, it is hoped that the enrollment will increase considerably by the next general session. Meyer Pilnick, chairman of the mercantile section, in making his report for the two-days' sales committee, stated that the majority of the business houses seemed to lean toward organization. He was high in his praise for the buying public, the business houses and members of the committee who so willingly supported Newark's first "Dollar Days" since 1933.

Values Offered

"I was especially anxious to see local merchants offer real bargains for this two-day attraction and the response made by them was especially gratifying," Mr. Pilnick said. "Not a purchase was made on Tuesday." (Please turn to page 8)

Negro's Throat Slashed; Stranger Eludes Police

"Henry" Escapes After Attack Saturday; Fines
Imposed By Magistrates

Called to the troublesome intersection of New London and Cleveland Avenues Saturday night at a late hour, Officer James E. Morrison found Gene Brisco, 70-year-old Negro, with his throat slashed. Rushed to the offices of Dr. Wallace M. Johnson, 257 E. Main Street, the wounded man was revived after six stitches had been placed in his neck. The wound is not serious.

Police are searching for a strange Negro named "Henry," who is charged with the attack. Witnesses at the fracas were non-committal when questioned by police. Brisco refused to swear out a warrant for the mysterious "Henry's" arrest.

Fined For Disorder

Officer Morrison arrested John Martin, colored, a newcomer here, on a disorderly conduct charge Tuesday. Unable to pay a $5 fine imposed by Magistrate Daniel Thompson, Martin was sentenced to serve 10 days in the New Castle County workhouse.

C. E. Aldrich, Washington, D. C., paid $10 and costs following a hearing before Magistrate Benjamin Eubanks Sunday for reckless driving. The arrest was made by Officer Samuel H. Tibbitt.

Lesson for August 15

GOD GIVES LAWS TO A NATION.

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Matt. 22:37-39.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Good Laws.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Moral Law.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why a Nation Needs Laws.
YOUNG PEOPLE'S AND ADULT TOPIC—Basic Laws for a Nation's Life.

Basic laws have been laid down by God for the orderly administration of his universe. Men see them clearly in the physical universe, although at times they do not recognize the One who created all things. Physical laws are of great importance, but of even deeper significance are the moral and spiritual laws which control the human life. There is in the world a moral law—a distinction between right and wrong—which man may ignore only to his own sorrow, and which he cannot abrogate or destroy. All laws of men which are true and right are founded on this underlying moral law, and are in reality simply a development and interpretation of "God's Code of Morals"—the Ten Commandments.

These commandments given to Israel at Mt. Sinai are worthy of careful study on the part of every reader. They may be grouped under two divisions.

I. A True View of God (vv. 1-11).
The first and most important question to be asked regarding any law is, "By whom was it established?" Legislation by an unauthorized person or organization has no power over others. Who gave the ten commandments? Verse 1 tells us "God spoke all these words."

Men sneer at theology as being out of moded, but the fact is that Christian doctrine is the only safe foundation for Christian character. Unless my view of God is right, my life will be wrong. Until I know him I will not appreciate the authority of his law.

2. Whom to worship (vv. 2-3).
There can be but one true God, and he alone is to be worshipped. He is a personal being, ready to enter into communion with each one of us. No image or likeness can take his place. Bowing down before idols, no matter what they may be called, is expressly forbidden by God.

3. How to worship (vv. 6, 7).
We are to love him and keep his commandments. There is to be no sham about this, for no matter how sweet and pious may be the praise and prayer of a man, he has taken the Lord's name in vain unless he keeps the Lord's commandments by holy living.

4. When to worship (vv. 8-11).
God has ordained that man should not incessantly bear the burden of toil. He is to have a day of rest and a time for worship, undisturbed by the duties and responsibilities of daily labor. America needs a mighty stirring up about the desecration of the Lord's day. The stalwarts of the last generation fought a valiant battle against a rising tide of secularism and worldly pleasure. Now no one seems to care. Do you?

II. A Right Relationship to Man (vv. 12-17).

To be right with God means that we will also be right with our fellow man. Conversely, the man who is manifestly wrong in his relation to his fellow man is either not right with God at all, or he is not living out his Christian life in practice.

1. Family life (v. 12). The fifth commandment has to do with the relation between child and parent. There is a plain and direct command that father and mother should be honored. Only in respect and obedience to parents can the child possibly find true and proper development.

2. Physical life (vv. 13, 14). God is interested in our bodies. Already we have noted his provision for a day of rest each week. Now we are reminded of the sanctity of human life. "Thou shalt not kill," and remember there are many other ways to kill a man than by shooting him. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith makes a telling point by reminding us that we may kill others by selling them tainted food, intoxicating liquors, or "dope," by neglect of duty, by careless driving, by failing to provide employees with sanitary and healthful surroundings. A solemnizing thought—"thou shalt not kill."

There is another way that the body may be destroyed—by its misuse in adulterous living.

3. Social life (vv. 15-17). "Thou shalt not steal"—and remember any dishonest appropriation of what does not belong to you is stealing—call it what you will. And "false witness"—how it has honey combed our very civilization. Not a little of it is found within the church, more shame upon us. Lastly, we come to "covetousness"—which has been called one of "the respectable sins of nice people." It is subtle and often hidden. Let us root it out of our own lives by God's grace.

New York—In the embellishment of the grounds of the New York World's Fair of 1939, 10,000 trees of many species, brought from several eastern states over hundreds of miles of railroad, highway or water for transplanting, will be part of the exposition's $1,500,000 landscaping design. EVEN THE BEST MAKE MISTAKES

People have become so accustomed to good public service that when an organization like the Diamond State Telephone Company makes a blunder they are inclined to view the situation in astonishment. And that in itself is a tribute to the efficiency of the telephone organization.

Confusion in placing telephone calls for aid at the time of fires in Newark is creating a dangerous situation. Far too many times the Christiana Fire Company is brought racing to Newark in answer to calls, while the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company's equipment stands idle because no alarm has been registered here.

The difficulty comes through the fact that Christiana's listing, under a Newark number, comes ahead of Aetna's in the special grouping of fire stations in the telephone directory. People here and Diamond State operators too often call the first Newark number that meets their eye and that number is for the Christiana company.

The boys in the neighboring town are willing volunteers and prove their worth by prompt response. But why bother them when Newark has sufficient equipment much closer to the scene of local fires? There is danger in delay at the time of fire and people will be wise to make sure of their number before calling aid.

The telephone concern gives every service possible and willingly cooperates in the matter of public protection. Their mistakes are few and those that disturb the fire interests in Newark and Christiana can hardly be charged against them.

While their operators frequently misinterpret the listings at the time of fires here, why don't the people most interested—the fire victims—place their own calls direct, making sure of their numbers before they call. The telephone company's problem is to keep lines in order so that calls properly made reach the intended destination. That function is efficiently and thoroughly discharged.

It's the public's own responsibility to learn that Newark 2911 and 2917 dialed on the telephone will bring help from the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company, while Newark 6054 will bring a willing group of firemen from Christiana. The difference in time may save a home.

A WORTHY AND ENVIABLE RECORD

We pause to offer congratulations to an outstanding newspaper in a neighboring town—the CECIL WHIG—which celebrated its ninety-seventh year of publication this week.

Established in 1840, the well known paper has faithfully carried out its duty to the people of Elkton and Cecil County. In the long years of its existence it has never missed a single issue—a feat that is both rare and commendable.

Launched shortly following the formation of the American Whig Party in 1834, the Northern members of which eventually founded the present Republican Party, the paper has been faithful in its adherence to the original ideals.

Murray Janvier Ewing, present editor and only the fifth in the long span of the paper's history, resided for a period in Newark. He still retains ownership of valuable property here.

We hail Mr. Ewing, his paper and the community it represents with greetings for continued success and congratulations for a task well done.

JOBS FOR THE UNDERTAKER

Four out of every five automobile accidents occur on dry roads in clear weather. Four out of every five automobile accidents involve cars driving straight ahead.

Here is the statistical proof of the disregard for every rule of courtesy and safety that characterizes the reckless or incompetent motorist. He constantly overestimates the "safety factors" of good roads and modern cars. A straight highway and a clear day act as bait to make him "open her up"—with the result that the undertaker gets about 37,000 new accounts each year.

A National Safety Council survey lists the seven most important causes of fatal accidents, in order, as follows: Exceeding speed limit or driving too fast for road and weather conditions; driving on the wrong side of the road; disregarding stop signs and signals; usurping right of way; cutting in; passing on hills and curves; failure to signal for stopping and turning.

These driving errors cause the great bulk of all serious accidents, and the first is by far the worst. Every one of them is a human error—and every accident they produce could be prevented if individual drivers would observe the most elementary rules of caution and proper driving.

In conclusion, here is one more fact you might think over next time you feel the urge to step on it: At 20 miles per hour, one accident in 61 is fatal, while at 50 or more miles per hour, one accident in every 11 produces a corpse.

COOPER THINKS OF FILM COWBOYS

Worried over the decreasing jobs available to film cowboys since the decline of Western pictures, Gary Cooper announced this week, plans to purchase and stock a co-operative ranch which he will turn over to the unemployed punchers. The tall actor, himself a former cow hand will buy 30 acres of choice grazing in the vicinity of Triunfo, 40 miles north of Hollywood. On this land he intends to build a dormitory and mess hall to accommodate 50 men and will stock it with enough cattle and equipment to make it a going operation. Those selected for this experiment will be given equal shares in the profits as long as they participate in its activities, Cooper said. When a man falls out another will be appointed to take his place. The idea for this co-operative venture came to Cooper when he heard the stories of some 100-odd riders engaged for the Tarrat car in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Adventures of Marco Polo", in which he is starred. He discovered that in the good old days of action pictures an average of 400 experienced cowboys were employed daily, but that the average today is only 20. "This experiment won't cost a great deal," said Gary, "and I'll be helping some of my old friends out of their temporary troubles. I plan to turn the operation of this ranch over to these men without supervision from me. It will give some of the boys who've been riding hard luck a chance to rehabilitate themselves and work on their own." Cooper further announced that he would complete purchase of the ranch property in a few days after he is finished with his present picture assignment.

Leveled to finance highways, sales taxes on motor fuel cost only $1,000,000 in 1919, or a few cents per motorist. In 1936 the cost was close to $900,000,000, or over $30 per motorist. Estimates for 1937 indicate a total cost of nearly $1,000,000,000, greatest in history. Despite the enormous increase in cost, proportionately less of the revenue is being used for highways. Millions of dollars are diverted to general purposes, thus causing neglect of roads and menacing public safety. These levies, which constitute a retail sales tax sometimes exceeding 40%, highest ever levied on an essential commodity, make the motorist America's Taxpayer No. 1. Another big gasoline taxpayer is the farmer, who owns and operates about one-fourth of all motor vehicles. Diversion of road money to general purposes hits him hard because he pays expensive taxes for roads which never are built. Biggest tax collector is the service station operator, one-third of whose time, equipment, and labor consists of collecting taxes from his own customers! Hope for improvement is seen by automobile clubs, taxpayers' organizations, and Petroleum Industries Committee in the growing sentiment for repeal of the federal gasoline and oil taxes, and for amendments to state constitutions confining the use of gasoline tax income to roads. It is believed also that the continuing increase in motor vehicle registrations and in gasoline consumption soon will make possible the reduction of gasoline tax rates, thereby curtailing costs to each taxpayer.

STATE THEATRE BRIEFS

Friday and Saturday

Lovely Jean Arthur comes to the screen in another of the rough, hardscrabble roles which made her famous in "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town" in the new Preston Sturges comedy "Easy Living". Sharing stellar honors with Edward Arnold, and appearing opposite Ray Milland, Miss Arthur plays the role of a working girl who is given a $50,000 cable coat under the most amusing circumstances, and then has to live up to it. The coat causes a crisis on Wall Street, saves a fashionable hotel from bankruptcy, patches up a beautiful love affair between Arnold and his wife, and wins Miss Arthur a handsome husband in a mile-a-minute story. This film marks the first major appearance of the handsome Milland, the man who leaped to the top rung of screen popularity after his appearance opposite the lovely, Dorothy Lamour in "Jungle Princess". The cast also includes Luis Alberti, Mary Nash and a score of other well-known players.

Monday and Tuesday

William Powell and Luise Rainer, both nominated for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award for best screen performances of 1936, are united for the third time in M-G-M's "The Emperor's Candlesticks" which plays this house these two days. Miss Rainer received her nomination for her performance as Anna Held in "The Great Ziegfeld". Powell, who was teamed with her in that picture, for "My Man Godfrey". Miss Rainer won her first acclaim following her screen debut with Powell in "Escapade", whence she soared to stardom. "The Emperor's Candlesticks", based upon the best-seller novel by Baroness Orczy, is a story of spy intrigue that races across Europe at a madcap pace. The supporting cast of the film is made up of Robert Young, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan and Henry Stephenson.

Wednesday and Thursday

You movie fans who will go to see the comedy-drama, "The Go Getter" are warned to be prepared for a shock right at the beginning of the picture. The episode that introduces the star, George Brent, is a reproduction of the tragic crash of the U. S. dirigible Macon into the Pacific Ocean a few years ago. Brent is a member of a crew as he goes down. He escapes with his life, but loses a leg, and therefore has to quit the Navy and get a job in civil life. In this manner he meets up with Peter B. Kyne's famous old fiction character, Cappy Ricks, played by Charles Winninger, whom everyone remembers as the Cap'n Andy of "Show Boat", both on the stage and the screen. He also meets Cappy's daughter Margaret, who is played by the ethereal blonde star, Anita Louise. The film deals with the various tests through which old Cappy puts Brent, before giving his consent to a courtship; and how Brent successfully emerges from them.

Widening River of Taxes Deluges U. S. Motorists With Higher Cost

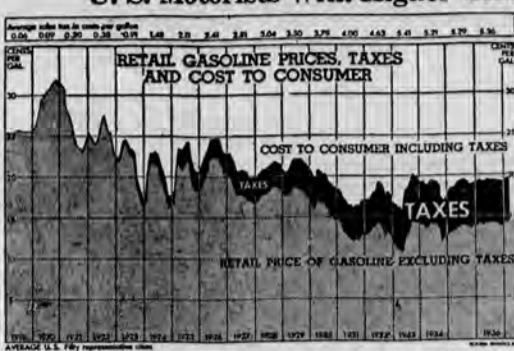

Chart shows how cost of gasoline taxes has increased since 1919, largely offsetting economies resulting from 50% reduction in gasoline prices. Preliminary estimates of the American Petroleum Industries Committee indicate these heavy retail sales taxes will extract nearly $1,000,000,000 from motorists' pockets this year.

Duplicating and hidden taxes, paid first to federal and then to state governments whenever and wherever gasoline is purchased, make a widening river of taxation deluging motorists with a higher cost. These taxes force motorists to pay one-third more for motor fuel.

Leveled to finance highways, sales taxes on motor fuel cost only $1,000,000 in 1919, or a few cents per motorist. In 1936 the cost was close to $900,000,000, or over $30 per motorist. Estimates for 1937 indicate a total cost of nearly $1,000,000,000, greatest in history.

Despite the enormous increase in cost, proportionately less of the revenue is being used for highways. Millions of dollars are diverted to general purposes, thus causing neglect of roads and menacing public safety.

These levies, which constitute a retail sales tax sometimes exceeding 40%, highest ever levied on an essential commodity, make the motorist America's Taxpayer No. 1.

Another big gasoline taxpayer is the farmer, who owns and operates about one-fourth of all motor vehicles. Diversion of road money to general purposes hits him hard because he pays expensive taxes for roads which never are built.

Biggest tax collector is the service station operator, one-third of whose time, equipment, and labor consists of collecting taxes from his own customers!

Hope for improvement is seen by automobile clubs, taxpayers' organizations, and Petroleum Industries Committee in the growing sentiment for repeal of the federal gasoline and oil taxes, and for amendments to state constitutions confining the use of gasoline tax income to roads. It is believed also that the continuing increase in motor vehicle registrations and in gasoline consumption soon will make possible the reduction of gasoline tax rates, thereby curtailing costs to each taxpayer.

roads are charging 30 cents to Wilmington, when according to the mileage it should only be 25 cents. Town Council should take immediate action to have this unfair practice discontinued.

It is expected that this general practice will be followed by all Eastern railroads affecting local passenger fares. When the general changes in passenger rates were put into effect in June, 1936, the railroads generally prepared temporary tariffs producing the 2-cents-a-mile fare in coaches and 3-cents-a-mile fares in Pullman cars, adding in each instance a sufficient amount to make the fares end in "0" or "5".

From the Evening Journal-Every Evening, Wilmington, August 2. A light reduction in railroad fares from Wilmington to a number of cities was effective as of yesterday. Railroad officials termed it not a reduction but an adjustment of fares since the cut from 3.6 cents a mile to 2 cents for coaches made in June last year.

Among the "adjustments" in coach fares from Wilmington now in effect are:

To Philadelphia from 55 cents to 50 cents; to New York, from $2.35 to $2.30; to Pittsburgh, from $7.55 to $7.

There is no change in the fares to Baltimore or Washington. Nor is there any change in commutation tickets.

Thanks To You, Sir—
Editor—
May I offer my sincere congratulations on the splendid issue of the new and greater Newark Post.

As one who has served at the helm of the Post when it was but a "stepchild" to other endeavors and later a printing job in a commercial shop, I am very happy to see it back at its original position as the most important task in a well appointed shop manned by real craftsmen.

I have had the pleasure of working with Edna Dickey, Frank Balling and John Sparklin. I know they have the real spirit of the Newark Post and will prove invaluable in keeping the paper in the direction in which it is definitely headed.

Once again I say: "Congratulations and Good Luck to all!"

"Washing" For Oil

Dr. Thomas G. Delbridge

WASHING sand or gravel for gold is probably the oldest process used by man in his centuries-old search for the precious metal. Now the principle of the washing process has been applied to another field to provide the motorist with high grade lubricating oils "washed" from the crude product.

"Improvement in the quality of lubricating oils through the solvent, or 'washing' process, has marked one of the most notable technical advances by the petroleum refining industry in recent years," says Dr. Thomas G. Delbridge, manager of the research and development department of The Atlantic Refining Company. "Use of new bearing materials and types of bearings in the new cars created the necessity for improved lubricants. By 'washing' the oil instead of following the older method of distilling it, the industry has been able to produce materially improved lubricants in which substances likely to sludge or form carbon have been eliminated."

The process of "washing" the oil involves the use of apparatus in which oil and solvent are mixed. The mixture is then allowed to settle. The solvent, containing impurities removed from the oil, settles to the bottom as one liquid layer, while above it the purified oil.

Health Workers Protect Themselves Against Tuberculosis

Practicing what she preaches, this Henry Street Visiting Nurse has the hospital doctor give her the same tuberculin test she has been urging for others.

Should a raised reddish area appear within forty-eight hours, an X-ray will be necessary to discover how much damage, if any, has actually been done to the lungs by the tubercle bacilli that have already entered the body.

Knowing the value of discovering tuberculosis in its beginning stages when the disease is curable, health workers often follow their own advice and have their doctors regularly examine them. When tuberculosis is discovered, the wise patient enters a sanatorium at once for the rest and constant medical supervision that can best be secured there.

The modern doctor uncovers tuberculosis by modern methods.

In New Field

Whether he's so disgusted with the whole grid picture at the University of Delaware and will cease his heretofore untiring efforts to unearth football material for the Blue and Gold, is a speculation that only Johnny DeLuca can answer.

The polished Wilmington attorney, who has wielded a quiet but mighty hand in Delaware's athletic affairs for a number of years, has been named head of the new professional team in his home town. If Johnny is discouraged over the situation at the local seat of learning and henceforth concentrates his endeavors on the new combine, who is there to blame him?

DeLuca has done a lot for Delaware—a lot that isn't known and a lot more that isn't appreciated. He has figured ways and means of steering football talent to Newark and he'd probably give his right arm to see the Blue and Gold perched on a pinnacle with Minnesota, Notre Dame, Pitt and a few others.

But even a DeLuca can get discouraged and, while it's only a hunch with us, we have an idea that Johnny will foster his future efforts on the Wilmington grid team that won't be harassed by regulations, faculty bans and squishy principles.

RWR

Fertile Field

While it was impossible for us to attend the dinner last week that served to announce the new pro club, we are more than enthused over the idea.

We like football, but it isn't always convenient for us to be trailing off to Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore to see it. There are others like us, too. Circumstances, financial and others, often necessitate a visit to Frazer Field for a glimpse at the great fall sport. The result, however, is seldom satisfying.

Last year, relief was afforded on Sunday afternoons at Fort duPont, where interesting contests were staged for the entertainment of as many as 10,000 spectators at a single game. Imagine a mob like that at Frazer Field?

RWR

Night Games?

No doubt last year's specimen of football at Delaware City had a great deal to do with the forming of the new team at Wilmington. No better example could have been supplied. And with Larry Fath, mainspring of the soldier contingent, flirting with the Japs from his post in Hawaii, Captain Chadwick, coach of the 1936 Red Devils, off on a new assignment, and other important figures in the set-up transferred, it is hardly likely that the Engineers will be able to offer anything like the great array of a year ago.

While much has been said concerning Pennsy. Field, the site of the new team's home games, improvements mentioned do not include lights. It is possible, of course, that Sunday afternoon games are planned, but what about opponents and spectators? Both are necessary.

Many National League teams are slated on a prospective schedule, but those clubs are pretty well occupied on Sundays. Even the ones that might be available for Sunday dates will demand considerably more than pocket change for guarantees, which will have some effect on admission charges.

Too heavy a toll, of course, will drive fans elsewhere—to Philadelphia, for instance, where regularly scheduled National League battles are played.

RWR

They Would Help

Night games would be the ideal thing for the professionals to consider, if we know anything. No better example can be found than in the Eastern Shore Baseball League, where bigger crowds are handled (at higher admission fees) on an average night than can be assembled on the most ideal afternoon.

Lights, too, might awaken the athletic interests at Delaware to the wisdom and profit of playing nocturnal battles on Fridays. Instead of continuing the costly practice of bucking Penn, Villanova and a score of other institutions with far more attractive teams and schedules, on Saturday afternoons.

If DeLuca's team reaches the point of installing lights and does nothing better than show Delaware the way to an improved athletic program, with proper equipment and suitable buildings—the fruits of larger football receipts—then that team will have accomplished a lot for the whole state.

Flashes

AT LAST! The past week saw the belated conclusion of the second annual Newark Post tennis tournament which began on June 20, and required ONLY about a month and a half for completion.

With bad weather hampering the matches at the outset, interest seemed to dwindle and the journey became blotched with forfeitures, cancellations, and postponements.

Definitely scheduled matches were in many instances halted because of the periodic rains which may have helped the growth of Jim Brown's tomato crop but proved the principal hindrance to the competitors.

Seven defaults, two of them into the final round, told the story of a good idea gone wrong.

WE CAN'T force "Old Man Weather" to carry all of the burden of criticism for despite the storms, he at least made some amends by sending "Old Sol" to put in some overtime and the courts were usually dried up in speedy fashion.

We're inclined to shift most of the fault to the players themselves. But why cry over spilled lime; let's turn to the singles.

DESPITE HIS DEFEAT, Ned McCully showed a stamina which was amazing. Cleverly placing and executing his shots, Steve Bartoshesky's strategy kept the Newarker on the run most of the match. He was tired after the first set but came back to take the second and after dropping the third, made a desperate but futile effort to even up the match in the final.

You'd have to see the match to realize just how the Wilmington player's adept placements preyed upon the local racket wielder's energy.

Tantalizing chop strokes, dropped just over the net, would bring McCully racing into the forecourt and a consistent passing shot down the sideline would net a point for the champion. A lob shot was not included in the "Little Napoleon's" repertoire, while McCully, in attempting to get by his opponent at the net, would invariably set the ball up to be the victim of an overhead smash which cost him point after point.

In passing out an orchid to McCully, it may be said that he refused to stop trying and never did he dog it as he made try after try for muscle-stretching shots. His efforts were not in vain for on numerous occasions almost impossible saves were made.

He was prevented from taking any offensive measures most of the way, because of Bartoshesky's forcing shots which played a steady tattoo along the side and base lines.

The scores by no means paint a clear picture of the match as it really was, for despite the Wilmingtonian's cramping tactics, the Newarker made several rallies which kept him within striking distance. Twenty-three points more were scored by the winner in four sets, or an average of a little over 1.4 points more per game.

One of the most interesting events of the match occurred in the last set when, with a score at 3-3, McCully found his own delivery taken from him without his being able to annex a point. The tables were reversed on Bartoshesky's service, however, when the Blue Hen found himself on the short end of a love game.

The proverbial turning table took on the appearance of a merry-go-round swept through Ned's serve round in the next canto when Steve without the loss of a point.

A FRESHMAN SENSATION on the University of Delaware tennis team this year, Bartoshesky, seeded number four in the tourney, made it obvious that Coach Jones can expect great things from him in the future.

His overhead smashes were not just plain luck, they were carefully timed and executed; his point-winning placements were not the hit-and-trust-to-providence kind, but the result of remarkable foresight and quick thinking; and his assortment shots, for the most part, left little to be desired.

He had more chops and cuts than a butcher.

The lad's got something.

ANYONE INTERESTED in selling a set of not-too-expensive golf clubs might see Chris Laskaris, who admits he's pretty disgusted after the showing made in the doubles finals.

DESPITE THE FACT that the crack of wood against horseshoe can still be heard and the water-lovers still aren't forced to break through a couple inches of ice to take a dip, the days of the punt and pass thrills aren't far off.

The question of who Lyl Clark's aid is going to this year is something to turn over in your mind. "Bud" Schilling will not return as assistant coach, it has been reported. In case you've forgotten—Dick Roberts, local ultra ultra athlete, will lead the Hens in their 1937 campaign.

Wilmingtonian Wins In Four Sets

Stewart And Fidance In Last Round For President's Cup

COURT STRATEGY PROVES TOO MUCH FOR McCULLY

Assortment Of Shots Enables Bartoshesky To Cop Net Finale; Doubles Played By Ace Seeds

Stephen W. Bartoshesky, University of Delaware star, brought the second annual Newark Post tennis tourney to a close on Sunday when he proved his superiority over Ned McCully, local star, who was unable to cope with the Wilmingtonian's slam-bang and clever court game.

Forced to four sets when McCully succeeded in annexing the second at 6-2, Bartoshesky captured the first, third and fourth chukkers by 6-3, 6-1 and 6-4 counts.

Strategic Play

A scorching straight-armed drive supplemented with a variety of chop and cut strokes kept McCully on the defensive most of the route as Bartoshesky's strategy kept the Newark player back on his heels and off balance and only on rare occasions permitted him to take offensive measures.

Taking the bull by the horns, the Blue Hen started laying golden eggs at the outset as he cracked McCully's service with the loss of a single point and then took his own delivery with little effort.

Leading 4-0 in the third as McCully served two double faults, the Wilmingtonian ace fell back before McCully's inspired barrage and the game was deuced four times before the Newark racket wielder made his first dent in the win column.

After coping his service at love, Bartoshesky again broke through the Newarker's delivery.

McCully Attacks

At this point, trailing at 1-4, McCully started an attack which, coupled with his opponent's errors, netted him two games and again put him in the running. The opportunity was short-lived, however, as Bartoshesky ran through the next two with the loss of only two points.

It was in the second set that McCully reached his peak as he fought his opponent stroke for stroke, cracked his service in the third game to take 2-1 lead and, after an exchange of deliveries, swept through the last three to cop the set at 6-2.

Obviously weakened by Bartoshesky's scattered shots which kept him running around like a frightened hare, McCully was unable to stand against the vicious attack which the Wilmingtonian unleashed in the third canto.

With the count knotted at 1-1 as both players held service, the Hen star blasted through the next five games to run out the set at 6-1. Employing the "top" in court strategy, Coach R. W. Jones' protégé kept the local player off-balance with his clever placements and a killing over-head smash.

Bartoshesky Clicks

It was an easy series of games for Bartoshesky, who, with his strokes once more clicking, met trouble only in the last game when the score was deuced three times.

Despite the fact that he had been pushed around the court in no restful manner, McCully came through with a sensational rally in the final set.

After dropping his opening service, the local star cracked his opponent's delivery with the aid of two double faults and then emerged into the lead as he copped his own.

A faulty service in the next game, in which he served double twice, almost cost Bartoshesky another delivery, but he rallied to take a deuce canto and then proceeded to cop McCully's with the loss of two points. Play was faulty at this point.

Newarker Rallies

Trailing 2-3, the local hope was not to be outdone as he applied pressure and lots of it to crash the Wilmingtonian player's serve and knot the count.

A relapse and applied pressure by Bartoshesky caused McCully to drop his delivery without taking a point, but the Newarker came back again in the eighth game to take his opponent's service at love.

Knotted at 4-4, Bartoshesky tightened his play and turned it on to annex the last two games and the match with the loss of only one point.

It was a well-played match throughout with the winner's effective placements and clever court game predominant in the match.

As a result of his victory Bartoshesky becomes the second University of Delaware player to have his name engraved on the trophy. He was also awarded a gold medal as a permanent award.

In a poorly-played contest, the doubles team of McCully and Jack Bridgewater downed Chris and Leo Laskaris in four sets.

LEGION ON FLAG HUNT

Team Goes To Huntington For Series

Manager LeRoy C. Hill, Sr., led a party of 18 players and staff which left Newark yesterday headed for Huntington, W. Va., and a crack at the regional title in the annual "Little World Series" staged by the American Legion. The series opens Friday, with Huntington and Lebanon forming the opposition for the Newark team.

Sponsored by the J. Allison O'Daniel Post, the local team has had easy sailing so far this year. No opponent entered the field in Delaware, which gave the Newark team the state championship without a contest being played.

A mix-up in Maryland caused the Free State to drop from the picture, which aided the Newarkers to the district title without the necessity of playing a single game.

Papermakers In Thrilling Win Over Stars, 6-5

Four Runs In Tenth Give Providence Margin Over Negroes

Stopped without a run after the second inning, Hughie Moore's revamped Providence team came to life in the tenth stanza Sunday to score four times and grab a thrilling 6-5 victory over the Elktion Stars at Delbert Field, Elkton.

A Negro counter rally, which gave the fast-stepping homesters three markers in the closing portion of the round, almost deadlocked the count before "Nellie" Richards, Providence's third slinger, managed to stem the tide.

Played as the opening half of a scheduled double header, the game lasted three hours and 30 minutes. The closing portion of the bill was rained out in the second inning with no score showing for either team.

Deaver Is Starter

"Big Bill" Deaver, former Delaware pitching great, toed the slab for the Papermakers at the outset but gave way to Charlie Sprout, Richards finished the battle. The trio limited the hard-hitting Negroes to six blows. Four Providence errors proved costly.

Gibbs was on the knoll for Elkton and went the limit. He was touched for a pair of runs in the second, but settled down to pitch nice ball until the tenth. The Papermakers tagged his offerings for 11 blows, with Richards leading the attack.

Graves, Elkton shortstop, had a pair of doubles and a single to lead both teams at the plate, but he was given little assistance by his mates.

Trailing by a 2-0 count, the Negroes landed on Deaver in the sixth for the necessary runs to knot the score and finished with a three-run outburst that threatened to erase the Papermakers' lead.

Roland Pusey Jackson, captain-elect of the Delaware team, opposed Richardson in the abbreviated nightcap that was terminated by rain.

Continental Drops Game To Jr. Legion

Twilight Leaders Stop National and Yorklyn After Close Defeat

With Caleb Warrington holding Continental Diamond Fibre to four bingles, Junior Legion marched off with a 7-5 verdict over the current leaders in a Newark Twilight League game last Wednesday night. It was the youngsters' last appearance prior to entering the "Little World" games at Huntington, W. Va., this week.

With Warrington rapping the ball for a pair of hits, one of which was a double, the Legion tapped Buck Ewing's offerings for six important bingles. Steve Burke had a triple for the winners.

The Legion tallied thrice in the opening frame, added a run in the third, and tagged three more markers in the fourth. Continental registered single runs in the second and fifth, while tallying a trio in the third. A fast double play—Melvin Brooks to Piliwick to Steve Burke—ended a Continental threat in the final session.

Ewing In Comeback

Making a return appearance against National Fibre last Friday night, Ewing halted the 1936 titlist with seven hits as Continental marked up a 4-1 triumph. Rube Argo, on the knoll for National, deserved a better fate as he fanned ten in limiting Cullen's clouters to four blows. Ewing retired eight on strikes.

Hal Hickman paced Continental's attack with a double and single, while Woodring had two one-basers for National. Ren George's double was the only other extra base drive in the game.

Yorklyn, recent member of the Del-Penn League, took it on the chin at Continental Field Tuesday night, 3-2, with Reggie Conway in complete charge of the situation for Continental throughout.

THIS WEEK—150 YEARS AGO

The Story of the Constitutional Convention of 1787

BY RAYMOND FITCAIRN

"WE, THE PEOPLE"

During the first week of August, 1787, members of the Constitutional Convention meeting in Independence Hall heard three striking words which formally identified the real masters of the new government they were creating.

Those words were, "We, the people"—a phrase distinctly associated with our nation throughout all its 150 years of history.

They introduced the opening sentence of the preamble of a draft of the Constitution presented to the Convention from its "Committee of Detail" when it reconvened on August 6, after ten days recess. There were many other phrases and provisions in that preliminary draft which remain in the United States Constitution today. But there were also proposals which were amended in subsequent actions by the Convention.

Among its many provisions, the report as submitted proposed that the new government should be called "the United States of America" for a term of seven years, and that the Executive, Legislative and Judicial branches.

The Executive power should be in one person known as "The President of the United States of America," with the title, "His Excellency." He was to be chosen by Congress for a term of seven years, and to be ineligible for re-election. There was no provision for a Vice-President.

Legislative authority should reside in a Congress composed of two branches: a Senate and a House of Representatives, with powers to levy and collect taxes, to regulate commerce with foreign nations and other duties more or less familiar today.

The upper branch, or Senate, should be chosen by the legislatures of the several states, and be composed of two members from each state, who would serve for six years. Apart from legislative duties, it was given authority to make treaties, to appoint ambassadors and Judges of the Supreme Court, and to settle disputes between states respecting jurisdiction or territory.

The lower branch, or House of Representatives, should be composed of members chosen by the people every second year. All bills for raising or appropriating money were to originate in the House of Representatives, which was also to have power of impeachment.

All acts of the Congress were to be in pursuance of the Constitution, and acknowledged as the supreme law of every state.

The Judicial power was to be vested in one Supreme Court and in such inferior courts as Congress should create. Judges were to hold office during good behavior.

Prolonged debate followed submission of the report. Beginning on August 7, it continued through many days.

Probably the first serious discussion centered on the qualifications of electors who would vote for members of the House of Representatives. Some members proposed limiting the vote to property-owners. Others fought to make it as broad as possible.

"There is no right of which the people are more jealous than that of suffrage," insisted Pierce Butler, of South Carolina.

"The right of suffrage is certainly one of the fundamental articles of a republican government," said James Madison, of Virginia.

Ultimately it was agreed that electors in each state should have the same qualifications as electors of the most numerous branch of their state legislatures.

voice. "Indeed my lad'll be delighted. How did you know?"

"Cause Sid had to wait on the hill all the time for someone to give him a turn," was the response in Bobby's treble.

Buying For Others

The machine resumed its humming. "How do you get the boy interested?" asked Mrs. Temple. "Last year when buying Grandpa a present, my two couldn't understand why a train or building blocks were not suitable gifts for him—I suppose because he often played with theirs to amuse them. I insisted upon a book and they lost interest."

Her hostess laughed. "Aren't we all a little like that?" she asked. "We buy for another what we want most for ourselves. I try to arouse sympathy within the child's range of experience. We talk about other people's wishes. Grandpa's hands get very cold—like Bobby's did the day he lost his gloves. What would you think of buying Grandpa warm gloves?"

The suggestions soon came from the child himself. Giving is more fun for us than receiving. Why not let little ones share this joy?"

Rodney H. Schunder, chairman of the Delaware City branch of the American Red Cross, in his annual report, announced a total of $108.55 in the checking account and $151.55 in savings.

In reviewing the past year's work, Mr. Schunder said, "This branch did splendid work during the flood and $165.43 was sent to the Red Cross Chapter for relief. Several truck loads of clothing and many useful articles were also shipped.

"This branch has also helped local people in distress. Material was furnished for the girls in the Delaware City High School for the making of dresses and swimming classes were conducted at Port duPont where 150 children were given instructions.

In submitting the report of the New Castle organization, Ann J. Dugan, secretary-treasurer, said, "During the winter months the school teachers of New Castle

"Here, take all these into my room. I'll help you wrap up." Heavy footsteps mingled with a patter of very light ones ascending the polished stairs.

Bobby Goes Shopping
The mother turned to her friend, "Tomorrow Bobby and I are going shopping for Daddy's present. Bob has put aside some of the money he earned by doing special jobs and errands. Besides this, he has saved a box of pennies to buy a gift for some outsider, less fortunate than himself. We keep our eyes open for the right one. This year Bob found that person himself. I think I hear Mrs. Brown, the woman who cleans for us, coming now." The mother drew Mrs. Temple into the next room.

The side door creaked open and a little later the humming of the vacuum cleaner sounded through the house.

This was the signal for a patter of eager feet down the back stairs. "Mrs. Brown," piped Bobby's shrill voice, "here's a present for Sid. Please put it by his bed on Christmas."

The cleaner was shut off. "What a beautiful sled! Just what Sid wanted." This in Mrs. Brown's

HER WATCH KNOWS WHERE SHE IS

Flying Hostess Says Whole United States One Big Time Map

YOU'RE flying at ten thousand feet—blue sky above, cloud banks below. Where are you—over city, village, plains, mountains, an old red barn, a bend in a river? You ask Beatrice Miller, pretty hostess on the TWA transport plane that flies between Cleveland and Newark. She looks at her watch and tells you—twelve miles east of Columbus!

How does she do it? Why, it's all part of the elaborate time-keeping system by which distance is figured in minutes in modern flying, and each member of the flying crew plays his or her own special part.

Miss Miller has a time map on which distances are set down by minutes. If she wants to know where she is at any given moment she simply finds out from the pilot the ground speed at which the ship is flying (ground speed means actual territory covered in terms of miles), consults her Hamilton, checks the time map and tells the passenger exactly what spot he is flying over. She also keeps a log in which she notes down the exact moment of departure and arrival of the plane, from taking off to arrival at destination.

A pilot uses his watch in even more intricate reckoning of speeds and distances. As Jack Knight, 2,000,000-mile flying veteran of the United Air Lines explains:

"When we fly over an airway marker beacon—we call it a 'fix'—we check by our watches to find out how many miles we have flown. We then add or subtract our air speed (depending on whether the wind is with or against us) to the flying speed for which our controls are set, and so determine our ground speed."

And there you have the importance of perfect timing in modern travel. Indeed a timepiece is so important an instrument in scientific modern flying that two major airlines have adopted an official make of watch, noted for its absolute accuracy, as part of the regular equipment of the staff.

New York—The Tylon, a three sided spire 700 feet in height at its needle-like tip, which, with the Perisphere, a 200-foot globe, forms the dominant, impressive architectural group of the New York World's Fair of 1939, is the first triangular tower ever to be constructed, according to the extensive research of its designers. It rises to the height of a 50-story building.

C. of C. Meeting

day or Wednesday that the buyer was not given a great value," he stated.

Over 70 business men were approached by the committee and of this number, 61 cooperated.

Supplementing Mr. Plinick's announcement and serving as a barometric reading for the bargain days were the reports of various members of the board who had been in direct contact with many of the business men.

In contrast to a few complaints reports of unparalleled business for the two days were given, as many merchants reported new sales marks in the history of their houses.

The question of whether this attraction, because of its pronounced success, should become a semi-annual affair, was postponed for further discussion.

A report by Mr. Handloff, revealing that the listing of vacant quarters for the Delaware Park meeting last month was carried on efficiently and proved to be a real convenience.

Fifty-five rooms and apartments were included in the list prepared, the majority of which found occupants through the work of the chamber's committee.

Much the same procedure as that followed for the last mass meeting will be followed for the second general session next month.

Mr. Handloff was instructed to send return postal cards to every member of the chamber. Work of soliciting the support of non-members will be left to the membership committee, headed by Dr. George W. Rhodes. The enrollment now numbers 34.

Those present were Messrs Jackson, Handloff, Haney, Danby, J. E. Dougherty, Hamilton and Plinick.
