Blue-Gold game brings out best in players, buddies

Newark High School's Kenny Chandler and Tom Bockius give a lift to a new found 'buddy.'

by Bruce Johnson

St. Mark's Mike Benefield sees eye to eye with 'buddy' Christopher Cox.

Glasgow High School's Vaughn Bond has gained a reputation for being tough. On the football field, he has zeroed in on ball carriers, crunching them like a junk yard compactor demolishes cars. Often emotional on the field, his reputation has earned him the title of Dr. Doom.

Yet, there is a tender side to Glasgow's co-captain and All-State middle linebacker. Preparing for the 31st annual Blue Gold All-Star Game, which benefits the mentally retarded of Delaware, Bond has been able to display that special side of his character.

The game will be played this Saturday, June 28, at 2 p.m. at Delaware Stadium.

Bond has teamed with neighborhood 'buddy' Chris McDonald and the two have fast become good friends. They have spent a great deal of time together with Bond inviting McDonald out to join his other friends on various weekend adventures. However, like most all-star athletes, Bond was a bit apprehensive prior to their meeting.

"I didn't know if I could talk to him," said Bond with a grin. "I've known him before because he lives in my neighborhood, but I was nervous. I was scared that I wouldn't know how to act around him and that I'd be boring."

But, Bond quickly discovered that his 'buddy' Chris had many of the same characteristics of his other friends: honesty, friendliness, loving, loyalty and a need for laughter. Presently, their friendship has grown to mean so much to Bond that the game itself has become secondary.

"I haven't even thought about the game," said Bond, who plans to attend Norfolk State College this fall. "I'm just having so much fun with Chris."

According to Bond, the friendship has also taken on a dimension of education.

"Sure you learn a lot about them and how they act and think and that they're just like normal people," said Bond. "Chris has got more manners than anybody I've ever seen. But it also helps me out. I think I've learned a lot about myself. I think we learn

Council Cracks Cruisers

by Michael Ricci

Newark City Council has slammed the brakes on night-time cruising in an attempt to lessen Main Street's noise, pollution and congestion.

Council voted 5-1 Monday to adopt an ordinance which makes it illegal to drive any motor vehicle past a designated "traffic control point" in downtown Newark more than twice in two hours.

Councilwoman Louise Brothers (District 2) cast the sole dissenting vote.

The new law is in effect daily between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m. along a stretch of both Main Street and Delaware Avenue running from Library Avenue to Elkton Road. This section of downtown roadway marks the heart of the loop typically followed by vehicles cruising in Newark.

Fines for violation of the ordinance range from $25 to $300 and/or no more than 90 days in jail.

"We're not going to catch every vehicle, but it's a gamble for (people cruising)," said Newark Police Capt. Lawrence Thornton. "The beauty of it is that they don't know who you're looking at."

Newark Police plan to enforce the ordinance by picking spots along the designated area where they can observe passing vehicles. Police will record vehicle types, license plates and the time traffic moves past the point.

Although council approved the ordinance, several members initially questioned both the constitutionality and enforcement problems of such a law.

"(Police) do it elsewhere - they can do it here," said City Manager Peter Marshall.

City Manager dedicates life to public service

by John McWhorter

When he first arrived in Newark, City Manager Peter S. Marshall didn't quite know where he was going. Not that he didn't have any goals in mind, he just couldn't find the municipal offices where he was supposed to interview.

He finally found them in the aged Academy Building on Main Street.

"When I first came to Newark, I was not impressed by the municipal offices," Marshall said, "but when they told me they were building a new office, I changed my mind."

That was in 1973 and 13 years and one new, easy to find municipal building later, Marshall and the city know where they're headed, and how they have gotten where they are.

But Marshall's journey began long before he ever heard of Newark, Del.

After graduating from Westminster College, he got his start with the Pittsburgh Public Works Department as a street surveyor, then went on to the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School to work on a master's degree in government administration.

In 1962, he became a city management intern in the small town of Port Huron, Mich. From there, he moved to Brighton, Mich. a town which Marshall characterized as "small but full of everything."

"It was a great experience because the town had everything a city had, but it was on a smaller scale," Marshall said.

He stayed in Brighton for five years, but moved to Hermitage, Pa. because Michigan's weather was just a little too harsh.

"I enjoyed Michigan," Marshall said, "but the winters were long and cold and Hermitage offered the contrast of a growing suburb surrounding an old industrial city."

After five years there, he was once again searching for new opportunities and heard Newark was looking for a new manager.

He decided to pay the town a visit and, despite his experience with the municipal building, found "an active university town with many cultural and other opportunities."

By August of 1973, Marshall had moved to the town and had begun his new job. As it turns out, he and the position have fit well together and he has been here ever since.

"I enjoy the job because I'm in the position to get things done and to see good things happen," Marshall said. "The city is just the right size because I get to be out in the field and not just sit behind a desk."

But while things have gone well in the past, Marshall is careful to point out the city still has some problems. He cited the increased land development in and around Newark which has caused his staff to be spread a little thin, and said he has to be careful to not overlook the consequences.

"We still have a problem in some of the neighborhoods with irresponsible people, but the police are doing a good job controlling it," Marshall said.

He also mentioned the ongoing problem with traffic and transportation but said that, over time, the problems should be ironed out.

Despite some of the growing pains the city has had, Marshall notes that many projects are going very well.

"The Clean and Green campaign has been a big step to improve the city," Marshall said, "because it is conditioning people to care for their environment."

Marshall also pointed out that much of the care has come from the University of Delaware community and said the students who helped in the Clean and Green campaign did a "super" job.

"There's a good level of cooperation between the city and the University," Marshall said.

But being a manager is not all that Marshall does, and sometimes he can be seen around town taking advantage of all the things it offers.

He likes to exercise and enjoys swimming and bicycling to keep in shape, but also likes "little hobbies" such as woodworking and sketching.

"There are many cultural things to do here," Marshall said, "and if you want to be active, you can be. You'd be hard-pressed to find a better place to live."

City Manager Peter Marshall keeps tabs on Newark from his office in the Municipal Building.

896 bridge repairs seen on schedule

by Michael Ricci

Seven months after its start, the $2.45 million Del. 896 bridge reconstruction work is right on schedule, according to the project's state supervisor.

Current plans call for the bridge and adjacent road to be complete and open for traffic by late August, said Steve Bunting, supervisor for the State Department of Transportation.

The reconstruction, which began in November, has been "one of the most problem-free jobs that I've had to deal with," Bunting said.

Work on the bridge and its connecting roadway, located on Del. 896 just north of the Chrysler plant and the University of Delaware's athletic complex, is being funded by both the state and federal government.

In addition to almost completely rebuilding the bridge, which crosses Conrail railroad tracks, the project involves road improvements and installation of several new traffic lights leading up to the bridge.

By the end of this week, Bunting said, an entire new bridge deck should be in place. Work still to be completed includes laying of asphalt on the bridge approaches, installation of barriers to protect pedestrians and general maintenance and cleanup.

In an effort to reduce future traffic congestion on the bridge's south approach, the main entrance to the University's Field House has been relocated to a site across from the Chrysler entrance, where it is directed by a traffic light.

Construction work on both the bridge and road is being done by Greggo and Ferrara Contractors of New Castle.

Unless the area receives heavy rainfall or unusually hot weather in the next two months, Bunting said the project will remain on schedule.

"We'll have everything in pretty good shape by the time the University comes back (in the fall)," he said.

The 896 bridge construction is on schedule.

Day Nursery facing extinction

by Michael Ricci

Time is quickly running out for the Newark Day Nursery, which must find a new home by late August in order to survive.

The 25-year-old Nursery, temporarily located at the Temple Christian School, was formerly based at the West Park Center. The nursery was forced to move after the Christina School District announced plans to reopen West Park Center as an elementary school in the fall.

The day nursery must vacate Temple/Christian by the last week of August.

If the Nursery can find another temporary home for the next three years, the University of Delaware has offered use of a four-acre parcel of land on Wyoming Road at a cost of just $1 per year on which to construct a permanent home.

"The real problem is surviving," said Marcia Watson-

Whitmyre, president of the Nursery's board of directors. "If we close in August, we would not be able to reorganize."

A major problem facing the Nursery arises from the fact that any potential day care building must meet stringent fire and licensing regulations. In addition, Nursery officials hope to keep their building as close as possible to Newark, since most of the children they serve are members of families who live or work in Newark.

About 40 percent of the center's children have parents who work for the University.

"It's more of a problem than money," according to Nursery Director Ellen Benner, who thinks the United Way and other organizations will help finance the Nursery if a suitable home is found.

"We only have two options at this point," said Watson-Whitmyre. "To close in August permanently (or) to purchase a parcel of land."

So far, she said, attempts at renting a suitable building have failed. In addition to meeting licensing requirements, she said, a potential site needs about 10,000 square feet of outdoor space for playground facilities.

The Nursery, which now serves more than 50 children between the ages of six weeks and six years, "is the only day care (center) in Newark that provides a sliding-scale tuition" which enables low-income families to afford its services, Watson-Whitmyre said.

The center probably lost about 20 children recently because parents are uncertain of its future, according to Benner.

Despite the impending deadline for locating a new home, the Nursery officials remain somewhat optimistic about the center. "There's always a chance that something will come up," Benner said.

ERCON

Emergency aid

Where would you turn if fire struck and suddenly everything you owned was gone? Did you know there is immediate help for disaster victims within the Newark community?

The Emergency Response Committee of Newark is an organization of volunteers who help people who have suffered significant personal loss and injury as a result of fire or other catastrophe by supplying food, clothing, shoes, furniture, and basic household items. ERCON is located on the lower level of the Newark Emergency Center, 324 E. Main St.

ERCON serves as a link between the victims and organizations which seek to offer relief. Whenever possible, volunteers go to the disaster scene to offer comfort and emotional support. Food, clothing, shoes, and basic household items donated from organizations and concerned individuals are distributed as needed.

By providing support services, ERCON members seek to reduce the mental anguish experienced by Newark's disaster victims.

ERCON is partially funded by the City of Newark. Because continued support for the program is needed, the Emergency Response Committee of Newark encourages financial donations. If you or your organization are interested in joining the Emergency Response Committee of Newark, or are interested in supplying items for distribution, please call 302-738-4017 or write to: Emergency Response Committee of Newark, Newark Emergency Center, P.O. Box 7559, 324 E. Main St. Newark, Del. 19714.

Bane

Sweetens 'lemon law'

State Sen. Margo Ewing Bane, R-8th District, has introduced legislation to strengthen the rights of consumers under Delaware's automobile warranty "lemon law."

Bane's updated Lemon Law II would fine-tune the law, which has been in effect for two years, by implementing recommendations from the Division of Consumer Affairs and the office of the Attorney General.

"Delaware's lemon law has worked for consumers. But, like a car that has been on the road for a while, the law needs a tune-up," Bane said. "Lemon Law II will make changes to allow us to gather information on dispute decisions and to better monitor the process to make sure it is working for consumers as intended."

"After two years of watching the law work," she added, "it is clear that too many arbitration hearings are held in other states and too many disputes drag on for too long. The hassle involved in pursuing a complaint has left a bitter taste in the mouth of some consumers, and caused them to give up even when their complaint was legitimate."

Oberle eyes sixth term in house

William A. Oberle

Republican William A. Oberle Jr. of Scottfield, the state representative for the 24th District for the last 10 years, has announced that he will seek reelection.

Oberle has held leadership positions in the House of Representatives since 1983 and presently serves as majority leader.

As leader, Oberle sets daily and long range legislative priorities and has lobbied for cutting taxes, arguing that "tax cuts work for individuals and for the good of the entire state by stimulating the economy and keeping Delawareans at work."

Oberle has also argued for increasing the size of the budget dedicated to maintaining schools and other public buildings. This year the budget for repairing school roofs, heating systems and other items will exceed $5 million. Though his leadership responsibilities involve him in numerous and complex statewide issues, Oberle said he believes the voters of the 24th District probably know him best for his emphasis on family, education, labor issues and law and order.

This session, for example, Oberle sponsored legislation pertaining to boating under the influence, a bill enabling a second unit count of students in growing school districts, a bill providing various minimum mandatory sentences for anyone convicted of vehicular homicide, and a bill enabling the Department of Corrections to charge inmates for the cost of their incarceration.

In the labor area, Oberle is well known for his efforts in the area of "blue collar" job creation and this session was solely responsible for the creation of the Buy American Task Force — a special group composed of labor leaders, educators and representatives of industry with the task of encouraging more open and fairer international trade, extending services to displaced workers and improving the economics curriculum in Delaware high schools.

Oberle said he uses every opportunity to champion the cause of what he calls "rugged individuals" in Delaware's small business sector and introduced legislation this year to reduce the gross receipts tax, a tax he says "is sapping the strength of thousands of small businesses."

Oberle is married and has three daughters. He is employed by the DuPont Co.

In addition to his legislative and professional responsibilities, he is a member of the Scottfield Civic Association, the National Rifle Association, the Newark Jaycees and the Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 4.

Winterthur announces new director

Winterthur Museum and Gardens Director Thomas A. Graves, Jr. today announced the appointment of Louis F. Gorr as the museum's deputy director for finance and administration. Mr. Gorr's appointment, approved by the executive committee of the board of trustees at their June 17 meeting, will be effective September 1, 1986.

"Louis Gorr has both the business management and museum management experience vital in overseeing Winterthur's assets, both financial and physical, as the museum enters a new era. He is active in the museum community and is respected for his expertise on a national level. We're pleased to welcome Louis Gorr and his family to the Winterthur community," commented Dr. Graves in announcing the appointment.

Presently the director of the Dallas Museum of Natural History and the Dallas Aquarium, a position he has held since 1979, Mr. Gorr has served a number of museums and institutions. Previous positions include serving as director of the Dallas County Heritage Society and Old City Park Museum of Cultural History, Dallas; director of the Department of Historic Sites and Preservation for the Fairfax County Park Authority, Virginia; and special assistant to the director of the National Museum of History and Technology, Smithsonian Institution, Washington.

Mr. Gorr's contributions to the museum community include acting as a senior examiner for the American Association of Museums' Professional Accreditation Program and as a reviewer for the National Endowment for the Arts and Institute of Museum Services challenge grant programs. He has also been an adjunct professor of Museum Studies at the University of Oklahoma and has served as president and trustee of the Texas Association of Museums. He is actively involved in writing, teaching and publishing about the museum profession.

Prior to receiving his MBA in Business Management from the University of Dallas, Mr. Gorr was awarded BA and MA degrees from the University of Nebraska at Omaha. He has also pursued post-graduate study in American Material Culture at the University of Maryland.

Mr. Gorr succeeds Wesley A. Admas, who is retiring, as deputy director for finance and administration. Mr. Gorr and his wife, Madeleine, will move to Wilmington in early September, where they will reside on the Winterthur estate.

New Delaware stamp issued

Post Office to mark states state's 200th anniversary of signing of Constitution

Delaware's stamp

Delaware will have a 22 cent stamp in December of 1987 to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the ratification of the United States Constitution.

The official announcement of this stamp, which has long been rumored, was recently made by Assistant Postmaster General

Gordon Morison. Pennsylvania and New Jersey will also have stamps in honor of their ratifications which took place in 1787, and there will be both a stamp and postal card commemorating the opening of the Constitutional Convention.

The Delaware Heritage Commission has been working with the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee of the United States Postal Service on plans for this stamp. U.S. Senator William V. Roth, R-Delaware was instrumental in securing the stamp; according to Jerome O. Herlihy, chairman of the Commission's Stamp Commit-

"I am pleased that I could play a part in the bicentennial of the Constitution and Delaware's signing by asking that a commemorative stamp be commissioned as a tribute. National recognition is only appropriate for the state that started a nation," Roth said.

A variation of the Heritage

Commission's logo, which includes a feathered quill and an inkpot and the words "We the People ... Freedom's First," will be submitted as the design for the stamp.

Additional constitutional commemorative stamps, which will total 28, will be issued in the coming years.

Michelle Crouse, a senior at Caravel Academy, is one of the four students selected to represent the state of Delaware at the 50th national conference of the National Association of Student Councils held June 22-28 in Oklahoma City, Okla.

She will be one of the 1,300 student council leaders and faculty advisors from across the country to attend this conference.

With a theme of "Celebrating Our Heritage — Challenging Our Horizons," the conference program will present workshop sessions on leadership skills, effective student government projects, and student activity program development. Delegates representing every state, the District of Columbia, U.S. territories, and neighboring countries will discuss social, educational and political issues and will take part in an exchange of ideas.

Crouse is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard James Crouse of Newark and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mansfield of Lyndalia.

Since entering school in the first grade, Michelle has been a straight A student. She has been the past treasurer and vice-president of the Caravel Student Government, and she was recently elected to serve as president next year.

This past year, she was the treasurer of the Delaware Association of Student Councils and will serve as vice-president of the state student government next year. She was also selected to represent Caravel in Girls' State this Summer.

Crouse has been a varsity letter winner in volleyball, basketball and softball since entering Caravel in the eighth grade. She had the lead role in Caravel's musical production, "Fiddler on the Roof," and she was selected to be listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students as a result of her many accomplishments. She was a National Honor Merit Society Award winner in both science and mathematics and was also recently elected president of Caravel's Zonta Club, which is one of the school's service clubs.

While at Caravel, Crouse has received academic achievement awards in mathematics, science, French, English and social studies.

NASC is sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, a 36,000 member professional educational association based in Reston, Va., just outside the nation's capital.

Teaching 'Kid Ability'

Program educates children to protect themselves

Teaching children to protect themselves from abuse is the object of Kid-Ability, a Girls Club program which will be introduced to a first group of Delaware children later this month.

Toward the goal of self-protection, the program tries to build children's self-esteem, provide them with guidelines to assess which situations are safe and which are unsafe and teach them where they can get help when they have problems.

Kid-Ability teaches children that "they are not powerless against an adult," says Mary Kay Hockabout, national Kid-Ability director. "The children in the program learn to protect themselves by using what they have — a strong voice, a strong posture and assertiveness."

Kid-Ability is a six hour workshop developed by the Girls Club of Omaha in collaboration with Girls Clubs of America.

Hollace Ann Calhoun, a staff member of the Girls Clubs of Delaware, attended a training session in Indianapolis earlier this year to become a certified instructor in the program, and Girls Clubs of Delaware will introduce the program to Delaware by offering it this summer.

The first 200 will be able to attend workshops without charge, but Girls Clubs of Delaware, the only franchised Kid-Ability provider in Delaware, intends to continue to offer the workshops afterward at a charge of $10. It will be offered to school, church and community groups as well as Girls Clubs members and it is for boys as well as girls ages 7 to 13.

It is expected that in addition to Wilmington sites, the program will be introduced into Claymont, Newark and Smyrna by fall.

Workshop materials include a workbook the children can use during and after the workshop. It starts and ends with a questionnaire about what children would do in several common situations: A stranger offers you a ride; a friend's mother offers a ride; a teacher hugs you and "it feels good" or a relative touches you and tells you not to tell anybody.

Although sexual abuse cases were the main reason for the program's development, Kid-Ability should give children skills to protect themselves from other forms of physical abuse and exploitive situations according to Suzanne Rocheleau, executive director of Girls Clubs of Delaware, who is a trained social worker.

A secondary purpose is to educate parents and other adults about the dangerous situations children can encounter. Parents of all participating children will be asked to attend an orientation session before the workshops, and adult volunteers will help with the workshops after receiving training as "team coaches."

Calhoun said the first workshops will be offered for groups of 20 children, although groups of up to 40 are envisioned later. Children view films and videos, use exercise handouts and do some role-playing in the large group and smaller groups led by trained adult and teen volunteers.

The small groups — about one team leader to five children — help younger children feel more comfortable she said, "and we think it might make it easier for children to talk about sensitive personal experiences."

An important aspect of the program is to teach the children the difference between appropriate and inappropriate behavior. "We don't want children to be fearful of normal adult-child relationships," Rocheleau said. "We want them to be able to recognize the potentially dangerous kinds of behavior and language and be able to protect themselves from that."

Registration for the first workshop is full, but parents who are interested in future workshops, or in becoming volunteers for the program may contact Hollace Calhoun or Victoria Cooke at Girls Clubs of Delaware, 656-1697.

4-H

Regional meeting

The Northeast Regional 4-H Volunteer Leader Forum will be held in Wilmington this year, according to Delaware area 4-H agent Joy Sparks. The event will be held at the Sheraton-Brandywine Inn, Oct. 16-19.

Leaders attending the conference will participate in workshops and seminars which will teach them to "Lead the Way" in meeting today's challenges in 4-H. The event, coordinated by Sparks, is being planned and implemented by a group of 4-H leaders.

A main objective of this year's forum is to help leaders develop skills in management and communications. Seminar topics include leadership and directional skills, community and family relations, and ways to make 4-H more visible.

Speakers include Dr. Hope Daugherty and Dr. Thomas Zurcher. Daugherty is a retired U.S.

Department of Agriculture worker and an enthusiastic 4-H volunteer. She has worked with child and family development programs and is interested in keeping 4-H organizations vital and active.

Zurcher, who is from Minnesota, will use stuffed animals to present a fun and unique way of bringing animal science to all 4-H'ers.

The convention will also provide a place for 4-H leaders to meet each other. "This is a great opportunity to make new friends, interact and develop plans for future 4-H programming," says Sparks.

The registration deadline is Sept. 10. Sparks encourages participants to register early as a large turnout is expected and hotel space may be limited.

For more information or registration contact the county 4-H office in Newark, telephone 451-8965.

Gray will be attending the University of Delaware, majoring in Fashion Merchandising in the Fall and is currently taking a summer school course at the university. In her spare time, Gray enjoys part-time modelling, travelling and sports. Gray is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Rodney J.H. Gray. Her grandmother, Tilley Gray is over here on vacation from London.

Fresh Air

Hosts sought

"It's boring in the city in the summertime. There's nothing to do. I like going to the country because it's quiet. I go horseback riding, swimming and meet new people."

That's how one Fresh Air Fund child described the difference between her summer in New York City and one spent in Newark.

Fresh Air children are 6 to 12-years-old, and volunteer host families may request the age and sex of their visitors. The Friendly Town program is so successful that 60 percent of all Fresh Air children are invited to visit the same families, year after year.

The organization is looking for volunteers to become host families in the Newark area. For information on becoming a volunteer host, call Cathy Peoples at 239-4200.

Mickey Irr dables with functional art

by John McWhorter

When the word art is mentioned, people usually think of a picture on a wall or a statue on a pedestal, but Newark's Mickey Irr would like to change all that.

She believes art should be functional, and for the last 15 years she has been weaving her way to see that ideal become reality.

Irr, a member of the Yorklyn Artisans and various other craft guilds, picked up the hobby of weaving in Wisconsin after attending an adult education course.

That experience has evolved into a full time effort aimed at creating everyday objects which are useful as well as beautiful.

A native of western Pennsylvania, Irr led a "simple and unstressful life" as a child and said she now uses weaving to return to that low pressure lifestyle.

"I like things that are simple," the softspoken Irr said, reflecting on her philosophy, "and I see weaving as a way to enrich my life."

She went on to explain that because weaving is a fairly simple process, it is often neglected as an art form. But she said it shouldn't be.

"We have fibers all around us, and we use them on a daily basis," Irr said, "so it seems natural to make practical things more decorative."

The practical things she makes most often include tablecloths and rugs, which help to pay for materials and supplies, but she also likes to create wall hangings.

"You can recreate almost any picture through weaving," Irr said. She pointed to a woven picture of the University of Delaware's Old College which she wove using standard thread.

She then pointed out another hanging in which she used magnetic recording tape.

Oftentimes in the weavers trade, necessity ends up being the mother of invention. Irr's latest project incorporates plastic strapping tape, and she has also used nylon fishing line. "The ideas suggest the material," Irr said, "or else you just use what you have."

As there are hundreds of different fibers, there can be thousands of combinations which can, in turn, create quite a few diverse projects.

"There's always plenty of ideas," Irr said. "The trouble is using all of the ideas in your head."

With weaving, unlike painting, the artist can only work on as many projects as she has looms, and for Irr, that means one project at a time.

"My favorite project is the one I'm working on at the time, because I have to finish it before going on to the next," Irr said.

Currently, she is trying to start a business and said that she is learning a great deal from the experience. In addition to weaving, now she must learn marketing and all the other activities related to making a business go.

But, in spite of the time she spends taking care of business, she still manages to spend four to six hours a day at the loom, time that has been well spent.

She has recently won a first place award for home interior weaving at the Manning Hand Weaving Show and her works have been exhibited in the cities of Boston and Milwaukee.

"There's been a resurgence in the art as more people learn to weave," Irr said, "and the emphasis is changing from quantity to quality."

That suits Irr just fine because her goal of making weaving more accepted as an art form can only get closer with increased recognition. "I want to see people accept weaving more as an art form, and begin to use art every day," Irr said.

Study recommends state realign home care payments

A Task Force appointed by Health and Social Services Secretary, Thomas P. Eichler, has recommended that the State revamp the way it pays for nursing home care for Medicaid eligible patients.

Representatives of the nursing home industry, the Department and community agencies served on the Task Force, which was charged with developing alternative approaches to nursing home reimbursement that would be sensitive to issues of quality, cost, and access to care.

Medicaid is a Federal-State funded program of medical assistance for the poor and low income elderly and disabled persons. There are about 1,500 Medicaid patients in private and public nursing homes at any given time.

In a report to the Secretary which pointed out that there will be more people who need nursing home care in the future, the Task Force suggested two alternatives for a patient based system of reimbursement. The recommended method is a patient assessment system which recognizes five different levels of patient needs and pays a different rate for each level depending on the amount of nursing care needed. This system directly links payment to the needs of the individual patient.

An alternative is to pay different rates for patients classified as needing skilled or intermediate care. However, since a patient assessment commissioned for the Task Force by the Department of Health and Social Services indicated that many intermediate care patients actually require more care than skilled care patients, the Task Force stated that this alternative was not as attractive and would not necessarily result in increased access for persons who need higher levels of care.

The recommended patient assessment system would cost the State about $1 million dollars more than the current system, which pays a single rate regardless of patient needs. The report pointed out that the higher cost estimate is associated with changing needs of an increasing very aged population. Other changes recommended by the Task Force are designed to encourage efficient performance by nursing homes in meeting those needs, and to restrain costs that are not essential for patient care.

Other major recommendations are:

• Costs should be broken down into five cost categories. Ceilings should be established for each category, with the exception of property costs and the nursing cost center in the patient index system.

• To promote efficient service delivery, incentive payments should be given to facilities which are below the ceiling in two categories which are not directly related to patient care. However, to assure that quality is not sacrificed for financial gain, the Task Force recommended that there should be a maximum incentive payment.

• The recently instituted method of handling super-skilled patients under contract should be continued until there is sufficient data to evaluate it.

• Recognizing that all new systems will be administratively more complex, the Task Force recommends that any new system not be implemented until October, 1987, and that the State provide technical assistance in the coming year. One implementation option is to phase in the more complex patient assessment system in two stages. If this is done, the cost center system would go into effect in October, 1987, and the patient assessment implementing the system over two years.

In a letter to the community which accompanied the report, Secretary Eichler praised the Task Force efforts and stated that he will make his decision on the recommendations within six weeks, after the report has been reviewed by the Governor, members of the General Assembly and the community. Funds for any change will be requested in the Department's 1988 budget.

Federal approval will be required for any new reimbursement method.

Testing

Pressure gauges

Delaware Cooperative Extension will be testing pressure canner gauges from 9 a.m. to noon Friday, June 27 at the Cooperative Extension office on South College Avenue.

Pressure canners with a dial gauge or weight with a sliding core type gauge should be tested each year before using to preserve food. This program, sponsored by Cooperative Extension, is free and open to the public.

Mothers

Classes open

Nursing Mothers Inc. will sponsor a free class, "Breastfeeding Your Baby," on Wednesday, June 25. The one-night class for expectant and breastfeeding parents will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room of Christiana Mall, near Penney's Court.

Topics to be discussed include the advantages of breastfeeding your baby, getting started, the father's role in the nursing experience, and nursing while working. Additional classes will be held in August and October.

Nursing Mothers is a non-profit organization which offers support and advice of a non-medical nature for those mothers who choose to breastfeed their babies. They provide monthly meetings for mothers in 19 locations around New Castle County, and the surrounding areas of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Awards

Quality of Life

Quality International and the American Lung Association announced the establishment of the annual Quality of Life Awards at a press conference on June 5 in New York.

The award will be conferred each year on individuals who have made a significant contribution to the quality of life by promoting healthy lifestyles and smokefree environments. Quality International is the program's principal sponsor.

The award, a bronze sculpture by art student Aaron Keppel, was unveiled on June 5 at the gallery of the New York School of Visual Arts. Awards will be presented at ceremonies later this year to outstanding representatives in eight industries and professions including sports, business, education and volunteer service.

"We've worked closely with the Lung Association for several years," said Catherine Travers, general manager of the 100-room Quality Inn Skyways in New Castle. "Quality International was on the forefront of the trend toward no-smoking accommodations and we've been active in a number of fundraising efforts. This program is an excellent way to recognize others who have contributed to the fight against lung disease."

Ten percent of the hotel's guest rooms are set aside for non-smokers as a part of the Quality International program. Quality International pioneered mandatory systemwide no-smoking rooms in 1984, when 10 percent of the rooms at every Comfort Inn, Quality Inn and Quality Royale were designated no-smoking. In addition, the company donates $2 to the American Lung Association for every no-smoking room reservation received through a special toll-free number — (800) 228-LUNG.

Quality International includes nearly 900 hotels open or under development throughout the world.

ENTERTAINMENT

THE ARTS

by Phil Toman

"Mostly Mozart," the phenomenally successful indoor music festival which was begun at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in New York some twenty years ago is still going strong. It gets a lot of coverage in the press, coverage it deserves. There is, however, another "Mostly Mozart" festival which is only six years old, doing quite well but which many people don't know much about. I hope this column will correct some of that problem.

I refer to the festival at the Kennedy Center in Washington. It begins today and will run until Saturday. A shorter season, to be sure, but a most interesting one.

In our nation's capital the Mostly Mozart Festival orchestra will be conducted by the festival's music director, Gerard Schwarz. The photo with my column today shows Mr. Schwarz getting ready for tonight's opening.

At the Kennedy Center there is a unique pre-concert program each evening which adds to the enjoyment of each concert. These programs begin one hour before the concert, 7:30 p.m. After the formal concert, the audience retires to the River Terrace, weather permitting, for dancing and refreshments. That's a pretty hard combination to beat! Everything is included in the cost of the ticket.

Tonight the soloists are David Bar-Ilan, piano, Carol Wincenc, flute and Heidi Lehwalder, harp. The pre-concert program includes Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," Donizetti's "Larghetto in G minor," Bach's Sonata in C major and Gossec's Tambourin. The 8:30 concert is an all Mozart one featuring "Les Petits Riens," K. 299b, Piano Concerto No. 18 in B flat major, K. 456, Concerto for Flute, Harp and Orchestra in C, K. 299 and the Symphony No. 31 in D major, K. 297.

Tomorrow night at the festival

the Cleveland Quartet is featured. The members are Donald Weilerstein and Peter Salaff, violins; Atar Arad, viola and Paul Katz, cello. Two guest artists will also be with the quartet, Carol Wincenc, flute and Richard Goode, piano. The 7:30 program will be Haydn's String Quartet in F major. The main concert will include two Mozart works, Quartet for Flute and Strings in D major, K. 285 and the Piano Quartet No. 1 in G minor, K. 478. The program will conclude with Mendelssohn's String Quartet No. 1 in A major.

On Friday evening, Mr. Schwarz and the orchestra will be back with two guests, Richard Goode, piano and Cho-Liang Lin, violin. Pre-concert performances will be Beethoven's Piano Sonata No. 9 in E major, and Mozart's Sonata for Piano and Violin in D major, K. 306. At 8:30 they will present Haydn's Symphony No. 14 in A major, two Mozart works, Piano Concerto No. 25 in C major, K. 503 and Violin Concerto No. 1 in B flat major, K. 207. The final work will be Haydn's Symphony No. 89 in F major.

Saturday will find Scarlatti piano sonatas and Mozart's Sonata for Violin and Piano in G major, K. 379 on the pre-concert program. The 8:30 program will include Mendelssohn's Overture to "Die Heimkehr aus der Fremde," two Mozart works, Piano Concerto No. 17 in G major, K. 453 and Violin Concerto No. 5 in A major, K. 219. The final work on the program is Schubert's Symphony No. 6 in C major.

Tickets of admission to the pre-concert, the concert and the River Terrace Dancing are only $13.50. For information and reservations you may call 1-800-424-8504 or 1-202-254-3600. You really ought to try this Mostly Mozart Festival. It is a super way to celebrate summer!

On the stage of the Concert Hall in Washington's John F. Kennedy Center, Gerard Schwarz makes a point about the music to be performed this evening as the sixth annual Mostly Mozart Festival opens. The festival will last through Saturday and feature the orchestra and the Cleveland String Quartet with many famous soloists.

Winterthur offers 'special subject' tours

This summer, visitors to Winterthur Museum and Gardens, the former du Pont estate near Wilmington, can enjoy seven "special subject" tours offered weekdays only.

From June 17 through Aug. 8, visitors can select from a variety of two-hour guided tours of the renowned collection of early American decorative arts. Tours are offered Tuesdays through Fridays at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

A new tour focusing on Henry Francis du Pont and the evolution of the Winterthur Museum explores in-depth the inspiration and method behind the outstanding collection of American furniture and decorative arts.

Other tour topics include Queen Anne furniture, American needlework, textiles, oriental carpets, and 17th-century and William and Mary furniture. The popular "Journeys in Cathay" tour, focusing on oriental influences in American furniture and decorative arts, will also be presented. Topics change daily.

For the casual visitor, the "special subject" tour provides a wide range of tour options. Each tour looks at a select part of the museum collection. For antiques and design devotees, the tours can provide an informal, weeklong course in early American decorative arts and the development of the Winterthur collection. Admission is $12.50 per tour for adults, $10 for Guild members and $6 for students 12 to 16. Children under 12 are not admitted.

Space is limited; tours should be booked in advance by calling the Winterthur Information and Ticket Office weekdays during museum hours at 654-1548. If tours are not sold out, tickets will be available at the Pavilion reception desk 15 minutes before the tour begins.

Summer Theatre

Diverse productions planned at U of D

This summer, four guest artists—Tia Riebling, Doug Tompos, Jane MacPhaile and Dante Giammarco—will be featured in the University of Delaware's Summer Repertory Theatre. Productions scheduled are The Great American Backstage Musical and As You Like It. Performances of The Great American Backstage Musical are scheduled for June 27, at 8:15 p.m. and June 29 at 7:00 p.m., July 5, 11, 17, 19 at 8:15 p.m., and As You Like It on July 4 at 8:15 p.m., July 6 at 7:00 p.m., and July 10, 12, 18 at 8:15 p.m. All performances will be in Mitchell Hall on the University of Delaware campus.

Tia Riebling studied at New York University and made her Off-Broadway debut in Preppies and American Passion. Ms. Riebling recently played "Shawn" in the workshop of Smile written by Marvin Hamlisch and Howard Ashman which opens on Broadway in November. She also performed the role of "Tia" in the film A Chorus Line and appeared on Nickelodeon Network as "Slenda Goodbody" in Bodybuilders. Her regional credits include "moth" in A Midsummer Night's Dream and "Zaneeta" in Music Man at the Walnut Street Theatre.

Doug Tompos, originally from Dayton, Ohio, performed and studied acting internationally. He received his B.F.A. in Acting from Syracuse University and performed leading roles there in such plays as Dark of the Moon, Kennedy's Children, and The Golden Apple. He recently appeared as "Raymond" in the Off-Broadway revival of Jerome Kern's Very Warm for May and as "Patrick" in the American Musical Theatre production of Mame. Regionally, Mr. Tompos has performed such roles as "Barnette Lloyd" in Crimes of the Heart, Goethe in The Lion in Winter, and the title role in Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat.

After graduating from the Juilliard School, Jane MacPhaile toured extensively throughout Europe and the United States with The Louis Falco Dance Company. Jane made her debut performance with James Cunningham Acme Dance Company at

The Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., and has continued to perform in repertory with them since. Most recently, she premiered in New York in the original play Tell Me No Lies at the Theatre for the New City and with The Chelsea Repertory Company in Bring Me Your Love.

Dante Giammarco comes to the University of Delaware Summer Professional Repertory Company after extensive theatrical experience in the Wilmington-Philadelphia area. He has performed with the Pennsylvania Stage Company of Allentown, The Delaware Theatre Company, Peoples Light and Theatre Company, Hedgerow Theatre, The Philadelphia Company, and the Villanova Theatre Company. He has enjoyed performing roles such as "Galileo" in Brecht's Galileo, the "father" in Pirandello's Six Characters, and "Banquo" in Macbeth starring the late Richard Basehart.

The Great American Backstage Musical by Bill Solly and Donald Ward is a funny, fast-moving musical that evokes the Technicolor world of 1940's Hollywood musicals. An obscure singer and an unknown songwriter find romance against a backdrop of auditions, misunderstandings, self-sacrifice, world war, and overnight stardom.

Shakespeare's As You Like It is a play of merriment and good humor which brings gay and happy laughter at the perplexities that love can bring. This delightful play is full of glorious poetry, brilliant characterization, and ingenious mingling of common reality with idyllic grace.

The University Theatre box office, located in Mitchell Hall, will open on June 16. For ticket reservations and information, call the box office at 451-2204, between noon and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Single ticket prices are $8 for the General Public, $6 for Faculty/Staff and Senior Citizens and $4 for Students. Summer Subscriptions offering reduced prices for both shows are available to the General Public at $12, Senior Citizens at $10 and Students at $7.

'Agnes of God'

At Bacchus June 27

The John Pielmeier play "Agnes of God" will open Friday, June 27 in the Bacchus Cabaret Theatre of the University of Delaware's Perkins Student Center on Academy Street.

The play, which is the summer production of the Bacchus Players, will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, June 27-28 and July 4-5 and 11-12.

Tickets, at $7 for the general public and $3 for University students, are on sale at the main desk in the Perkins Student Center.

"Agnes of God" was first produced in a staged reading at the 1979 Eugene O'Neill Conference in Waterford, Conn. Introduced in play form at the famous Astors' Theatre of Louisville New Plays Program in 1980, it began a successful Broadway run in 1982, receiving a Best Play citation and a Tony nomination for Geraldine Page's performance as the mother superior.

This is its first local production. "Agnes of God" concerns a young nun who is found to have given birth and then strangled the baby at an isolated convent. A psychiatrist is appointed to determine whether or not the young woman is fit to stand trial and is assured that the seemingly innocent, naive girl has no recollection of the child or conception.

In her aggressive quest for the facts, the psychiatrist faces the mother superior, a woman of God whose past as a wife and mother gives her a strong knowledge of the world outside the convent.

Directed by Barbara Zeiler, lecturer in psychology, and presented by Jack Sturgell, coordinates cultural programs, both at the U. of D., this production will feature Martina Haw as the psychiatrist, Ellie Forsberg Young as the mother superior and Ashley Isard as the young nun. All three are veterans of previous Bacchus Players productions.

Ellie Forsberg Young portrays the Mother Superior in the University of Delaware's Bacchus Players production of Agnes of God, Bacchus Theater, University Student Center, Academy Street, Newark.

Del. Theatre slates 86-87 schedule

The Delaware Theatre Company of Wilmington, the state's only resident professional theatre, has announced three of the five plays for the 1986-87 season.

The classic drama, "Our Town," will open the Theatre Company's eighth season on Oct. 23 and will run until Nov. 28. It has been nearly 50 years since Thornton Wilder placed Grover's Corners on the theatrical map, with audiences watching the daily occurrences of the Gibbs and Webb families.

Two one-act plays will fill the second production slot from Dec. 4-20. "The Second Shepherd's Play," a medieval Christmas tale retold for modern stage, and "Romulus Linney's 'Why the Lord Came to Sand Mountain,'" a unique musical folktale, are the featured selections for the Christmas season.

The third play to be announced is A.R. Gurney Jr.'s outrageous comedy-of-manners, "The Middle Ages." Spanning a period from the mid-1940s to the late-1970s, the play follows the wildly careening life of Barney, a prodigal son who searches for respect and acceptance from his blue-blooded family. The date has not yet been selected.

The additional two selections for the 1986-87 season will be announced during the first week in August.

Subscription sales for the upcoming season are underway. A five-play subscription can be purchased for the price of four productions. Discounts are available to senior citizens, students and groups of ten or more people. For information or a brochure, call the Delaware Theatre Company box office at 594-1100.

The Delaware Theatre Company's new home is located at Water Street and the Avenue of the Arts in the Christina Gateway area of downtown Wilmington.

Del. Art Museum and Theatre Company to host film series

Beginning on July 15 and concluding on August 19, the Delaware Art Museum and the Delaware Theatre Company will co-sponsor a series of six films—all with actors and theatre as their themes. The "Theatre in Film" series will be screened Tuesday evenings at 8 p.m. at the Delaware Theatre Company. The Theatre Company is located on the Avenue of the Arts, just off Wilmington Boulevard in Wilmington.

The series will open with "Stage Door" (U.S., 1937, B&W, 92 minutes) on July 15. Directed by Gregory LaCava, the film stars Katherine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers, Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds and Lucille Ball.

A classic comedy-drama of aspiring actresses in New York City. Adapted from the Edna Ferber-George Kaufman play, the action revolves around the boarding-house home of three stage-struck women. Hepburn plays a naive rich girl trying to succeed on her own; Menjou, a propositioning producer; and Leeds, a hypersensitive actress.

"To Be Or Not To Be" (U.S., 1942, B&W, 99 minutes) is next on July 22. The film, directed by Ernst Lubitsch, stars Jack Benny, Carole Lombard, Robert Stack, Signe Hasso, Lionel Atwell and Sig Ruman.

In this witty satire, Benny stars as an actor whose Polish theatre troupe is put out of business by invading Nazis. His band of thespians put their acting skills to the test when they become involved in espionage and must "hoodwink" the Gestapo. Carole Lombard, in her last film, and a perfect supporting cast help make this a classic of the genre.

On July 29, "A Double Life" (U.S., 1947, B&W, 104 minutes) will be shown. Directed by George Cukor, the film stars Ronald Coleman, Signe Hasso, Edmund O'Brien and Shelley Winters.

Coleman gives a bravura Oscar-winning performance as a famous Broadway actor who psychologically immerses himself in each of his roles. His wife/co-star (Hasso) begins to worry when his character's rages in "Othello" seem earnest and his choking much too real. A waitress, with which he has a dalliance, worships him as a kindly father figure. One of these women turns out to be terribly wrong about her man in this brilliant melodrama by Ruth Gordon and Garson Kanin.

"All About Eve" (U.S., 1950, B&W, 138 minutes), the definitive movie about show people and an Oscar-winning Best Picture will be shown on August 5. Directed by Joseph L. Mankiewicz, the film stars Bette Davis, Ann Baxter, George Sanders, Celeste Holm, Gary Merrill, Thelma Ritter and Marilyn Monroe.

In this story of theatrical ambition, deception and hypocrisy, Davis stars as a powerful aging stage actress at the apex of her career. After hiring a seemingly innocent and adoring young fan as her personal secretary, she becomes suspicious that her protégée is actually plotting to steal her boyfriend and a coveted role written especially for her. Their confrontation at a party is a display of fireworks rarely matched on celluloid.

"The Producers" (U.S., 1968, C, 89 minutes) is next on August 12. Mel Brooks directed and wrote the Oscar-winning screenplay for this wild comedy gem which stars Zero Mostel, Gene Wilder, Dick Shawn and Estelle Winwood.

Mostel stars as a theatrical producer who charms gullible little old ladies into investing in his shows. After falling on hard times, a neurotic accountant (Wilder) comes up with a sure-fire way to make a fortune: oversell shares to a show then make sure it's bad enough to close opening night! Of course, things don't always go as planned for our would-be con men.

The final feature to be shown on August 19 will be "The Dresser"

(U.S., 1983, C, 118 minutes) directed by Peter Yates and starring Tom Courtenay, Albert Finney, Edward Fox and Zena Walker.

An excellent film adaptation of Ronald Harwood's play about an aging actor-manager whose very survival depends on the constant pampering and prodding of his dresser. Finney, as Sir, and Courtenay, as Norman the dresser, are superb. A must-see for anyone who loves acting and the theatre.

The cost of the series is $15. Advance registration is recommended. The deadline for registration is Friday, July 11. To register or for more information, contact the Delaware Art Museum's Education Department at 302/571-9594.

'Restless Sea'

The Delaware Museum of Natural History's Natural Wonder presentation for Sunday, July 6 will be a showing of the Disney film classic "The Restless Sea."

The film is the result of a partnership between scientists and Disney animators to create a definitive study of oceanography. Topics covered in "The Restless Sea" include the history of the sea and oceanographic exploration, gravitational effects on tides, and an exploration of the ocean's currents.

Natural Wonder presentations take place the first and third Sunday of each month throughout the year. Programs cover all areas of natural history and are geared for the entire families enjoyment. They may be demonstrations, slide-lectures, workshops, special tours, or films.

The presentations are free with regular Museum admission and require no reservation.

The Delaware Museum of Natural History is located on Del. 52 five miles northwest of Wilmington. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1.75 for senior citizens, students, and children six and over. Children under six are admitted free of charge.

For information, call 658-9111.

The cost for each weeklong camp is $40 for Museum members and $50 for non-members. As different subjects and projects will be covered each week, participants may wish to register for both camps at a reduced fee, $65 for Museum members and $85 for non-members.

Two workshops for younger children (5-8 years) will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. on July 7-11 and July 14-18. These workshops will cover boneless animals, bony animals, the senses in humans and other animals, and the world around us.

The fee for each weeklong workshop is $30 for Museum members and $40 for non-members.

Workshop and science camp class sizes will be limited and pre-registration is required.

To register send name, address, telephone number, child's name and age, the course title and date, and a check (payable to "DMNH") to The Delaware Museum of Natural History, P.O. Box 3937, Greenville, Delaware, 19807. The last day for registration is July 1.

Most people would think that the owner of a clock shop would have a lot of time on his hands. As a small businessman you need to make the right decisions about how you allocate your time, and about how you spend your money.

Making the right decision about advertising can be frustrating and expensive. Since I've started advertising in The NewArk Post, my advertising dollars not only go much further, but they get results. Thanks to Tina Mullinax, my ad representative, who is not only friendly and efficient, but also a real professional, the time I save making up an ad is shortened and with her advice, the layout is always great.

OPINION

The folks at the Delaware Development Office have got to be jumping with joy over the near-candidacies of presidential hopefuls Pete duPont and Joe Biden.

I mean, what better means of marketing Delaware than having two of its favorite sons popping up everywhere from New Hampshire to Iowa.

Let's face it, Delaware has an identity problem. Sure, the "Small Wonder" slogan has gone a long way towards defining the state to our neighbors nearby. But get anywhere west of Maryland and north of Pennsylvania and no one is quite sure what — or if — Delaware is. When we moved to Kentucky, the first thing Owensboro Messenger-Inquirer Publisher Lawrence Hager said to me was, "So you're from Delaware, huh? You know, your home state is so small it only deserves to have one U.S. senator."

At least he knew of Delaware, something which could not be said of the majority of his newsroom. Nearly all of the reporters and editors came from Kentucky, Indiana or Tennessee, and nearly all thought Delaware was in New England.

"Delaware? Oh, yes, I understand the foliage there is just lovely in the fall," they would say. I would reply that, indeed, we do have some beautiful foliage but that the region most noted for its autumn splendor is well to the north.

And, because they did assume Delaware was in New England, it took an extra long period of time for the Kentuckians and Tennesseans to warm up to "the Yankee."

I would protest that I wasn't really a Yankee, that Delaware, like Kentucky, never really chose sides during the Civil War. (What I didn't tell them was that two of my forefathers did, indeed, see combat for the federal side in Delaware volunteer regiments.

Heck, Delaware isn't north of the Mason-Dixon line. It's more kind of east of it, I guess.

Some of the reporters sort of understood that Delaware was somewhere near New Jersey, but they had the idea that it was east of that state, perhaps on an island or something. They had gotten that idea from seeing those national weather maps on television. You know, the kind that makes Delaware so small there isn't room to write the state's name in the appropriate block so they draw an arrow into the Atlantic?

And, of course, there were always the standard lines we all get used to hearing. "Dela-where?" and "Delaware, now what state is that?"

But now we have a chance to change all that. Two high-caliber Delaware politicians are about to appear, duPont and Biden, the glowing native sons dawning from the nation's eastern horizon.

POSTSCRIPT

by Neil Thomas

Both men are bright, witty and well-spoken. Both have the personal qualities to wage top-notch races. And both speak well of the type of politician — Republican and Democrat alike — that the state seems to produce time and time again. As their near-campaigns gear up, you can be sure America will discover the land of the Blue Hen. And none too soon.

CAPITOL COMMENT

BY U.S. Rep.

Thomas Carper

We, as Americans, take pride in our nation's preeminence in health care, and we have a lot to be proud of. However, if we use infant mortality rates as an indicator of our nation's health, we see a frightening trend.

Since 1981, infant mortality rates in this country have ceased to decline and are actually increasing. From 1982 to 1983 the rate of infant death rose by 3 percent and again by 6 percent in 1984. It is estimated that rates rose about 9 percent in 1985, a growth rate that is phenomenal. For black Americans, the reality of infant mortality is even more shocking — infant mortality rates for blacks are twice as high as those of whites.

For Delawareans, infant mortality is a major concern. Except for 1983, Delaware's infant mortality rate has been above the national average. Data from the Delaware Office of Vital Statistics in the Division of Public Health vividly illustrate the continuing problem. In 1984, Delaware had an infant mortality rate of 10.35 infant deaths per 1,000 live births, while the state's non-caucasian infant mortality rate was a tragic 16.84. In Wilmington, that non-caucasian rate was 20.70. Eighty nine other Delaware babies in 1984 died before their first birthday.

I am relieved that this serious problem is receiving serious attention. Earlier this week, I attended a conference on infant mortality in Wilmington, where the new report on infant mortality was released. In cooperation with the Southern Regional Task Force on Infant Mortality chaired by South Carolina Gov. Richard W. Riley, Delaware Gov. Michael N. Castle convened this important conference to begin implementation of recommendations released by the Southern Governors Association last November.

Fortunately, the crisis of infant mortality is receiving similar attention at the federal level. Congressman Mickey Leland of Texas has introduced H.R. 4630, the Medicaid Infant Mortality Amendments of 1986. I am pleased to be a cosponsor of this important bill whose purpose is to increase access to prenatal care by low-income, high-risk pregnant women. In addition, the bill would increase access to pediatric care for their infants, thereby reducing infant mortality and morbidity.

Ignoring the special needs of pregnant mothers and newborn children in high-risk groups will result in high financial and human costs. The actions we take now will pay off in a healthier society down the road.

COUNCIL/from 1A

Thornton agreed, citing the success of similar laws instituted in Allentown and Harrisburg — two cities in Pennsylvania.

In Harrisburg, which has had an anticruising law since March, police have cut back cruising without having to make a single arrest thus far.

All that's needed for the law to succeed here, Thornton said, is planning by local police and "a person with a sharp eye."

Councilman John Suchanec (District 1) commended the ordinance, saying that cruising "if not at the top, is very near the top" of Newark's problems.

In other matters, the council said it remains interested in purchasing the Doubleday Park baseball field from rock star George Thorogood. A decision on whether to buy the field will be made during a special meeting next Monday at 8 p.m.

The council also accepted the resignation of deputy alderman Richard Franta. The resignation left the city without any alderman since Alderman Vance Funk III also recently announced plans to leave his post this summer.

Thomas Ferry, a Newark attorney, was appointed temporary deputy alderman based on a recommendation made by Funk to the council.

Airman Samuel L. Collins, son of Samuel L. and Carol R. Collins of North Bronleaf Road, Newark, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations. In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Collins is a 1984 graduate of Christiana High School.

Armament systems

Airman Kelvin L. Grinnage, son of Marvin L. and Martha V. Grinnage of Tiverton Circle, Newark, has graduated from the aircraft armament systems specialist course at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

The course provides instruction for students to load nuclear and non-nuclear munitions, explosives and propellant devices on aircraft.

During the 13-week course, students were also instructed to maintain, install, modify and repair aircraft bombs and rockets.

Hynson

Training finished

Airman 1st Class Harold E. Hynson Jr., son of Harold E. and Mary E. Hynson of Eastfield Road, Newark, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Hynson is a 1979 graduate of Glasgow High School.

All-Star game slogan might read: "We play that we all may learn" instead of "We play that they may learn."

"I'm learning alot about mentally retarded kids and I found out that they're normal just like us," said Jimmy Marvel, Bond's teammate at Glasgow. "They're just a little slower, but if you take time with them you find out that they're very special people."

One of the first lessons that the all-stars learn is to get over their fears of their handicapped 'buddies' and realize that they are loving and caring individuals who have much to offer.

"At first you're not sure what to expect," said St. Mark's queen candidate Tracey Flynn.

"They're very stereotyped, but really they're normal kids. They like to do everything that normal kids like to do and except for their mental and physical handicaps they're fine."

"For awhile I asked myself was this going to be worth it," said Kristal Keiser a queen candidate from Newark. "It does take alot of time and I wondered if it was going to be a pain but it really hasn't and it's been alot of fun."

Another important lesson that the All-Stars learn from their buddies is the freedom of emotional expression. One of the greatest joys for the All-Stars is experiencing the sincere and intense love that the 'buddies' bestow upon everybody.

"I was amazed at how comfortable they are around us and how quickly they adjust to new situations," said Pam Rittburg a Newark cheerleader for the Gold squad. "I just met Kelly (McDonald) and I thought she'd be real shy, but she's real friendly."

"They have no reservations at all," said Flynn. "Where I have fears about meeting new people they just run up to you. They have taught me to be more open and friendly and not to have so many reservations about meeting people."

For St. Mark's tailback Mike Benefield, his relationship with his 'buddy' Chris Cox has developed into a brotherly tie.

"You learn alot about them and you learn not to feel sorry for the kids," said Benefield after wrestling with little Chris.

"I just saw Chris and he came running across the field with his arms wide open. I don't have any brothers and sisters and I get a real kick out of seeing him and it makes me feel good inside."

Like most of the participants of the Blue Gold All-Star game, the experiences and relationships will not end when the last few seconds tick off the game clock. As is the beauty of the event, the game will live on forever.

"I used to think that I could never handle a handicapped child and I was really scared to have one," said Rittburg. "Now I have a completely different attitude. They are really very special and they can do so many different things."

As for Dr. Doom, the All-Star game will reach beyond memories and attitude changes towards maintaining a new found friendship.

"It's not just for this game and it shouldn't be like that," said Bond. "If you really get involved with your child then you'll stay with him after the game. It's not just a role that ends on June 28th. I'll always be there and so will he. We plan to keep in touch."

The Blue Gold All-Star game will feature much more than just a grid-iron match-up between some of the best athletes in the state.

The All-Star committee has organized several pre-game and post-game activities geared for the family.

Pre-game activities will start at 1 p.m. with the musical groups the "Banjo Dusters" and the "Grand Finale Barber-shop Quartet." Plenty of food will be available and fans should be prepared to be entertained by a host of jugglers, clowns, and mimes including the annual return of the Phillie Phanatic.

Other pre-game activities include a parade which will feature Governor Mike Castle and Miss Delaware and Miss Delaware/USA. Newark's own Amy Gee will sing the national anthem.

At halftime, the 5 K Blue Gold All-Star run will finish within the stadium grounds. There will also be a presentations of Special Olympic Awards and the All-Star band will perform.

Post game activities will begin shortly after the game with the musical group "Kids Incorporated."

In last weekend's tournament, the girls proved that they get just as much 'kicks' out of soccer as boys do.

Ms. Fits in Soccer

Pioneer girls highlight Tournament

by Bruce Johnson

Their soccer name is the Kirkwood Ms. Fits and if you say it quickly enough it can sound like misfits. But these age 16 and under soccer girls are far from feeling out of place on the soccer field. In less than a year of competition, these athletes have fit into the world of soccer like a finely kicked ball fits snugly into the webbing of the goal.

While the world of boys soccer continues to grow by leaps and bounds, the girls clubs have begun their own ascent into the sport. Nowhere was this more visible than last weekend when ten girls teams from three states participated in the Sixth Annual Kirkwood Soccer Tournament.

Although the boys outnumbered the girls by almost 10 to 1, over 150 girls ranging in age from 10 to 16 proved that girls soccer is not just a passing fad.

In the Kirkwood League, there are four girl soccer teams, with the Ms. Fits, who started last fall, being the original team.

"My daughter wanted to play soccer and there was no team that she could play on," said Ms. Fit organizer and manager Ron Sturm. "Since my son plays in this league I started calling a bunch of kids and put together a rough team."

One of the problems facing Sturm was finding girls who weren't already committed to another sport. Never begin introduced to soccer as a possible athletic endeavor, the girls sought other means to fulfill their sports needs. Yet, Sturm was able to group together a variety of girls, and since then the league has been getting more and more phone calls from interested girl soccer players.

"Let's face it, the girls are not the page-boy blondes like they used to be," said Sturm with a smile. "They may not be as physical as the boys but they're out there to play."

Play indeed. The girls displayed an athletic flare, grace and physical toughness for the sport that few girls would have admitted they had years ago. From a distance, it was impossible to tell if they were girls or boys.

"I think it's great to see the girls eight and nine years old hustling and running around and being real athletes," said Tournament Director Dave Sysko. "When you watch the big girls you realize that there's nothing feminine about the way they play the game."

Although the girls admit that through inexperience they have yet to acquire the necessary skills to become competitive with some other girl's teams, their enjoyment of soccer is equal to that of anyone. With that as a keystone to their development, women's soccer has a bright future.

"I think it's going to just keep building," said Sturm's daughter Magan, a Dickinson High School student. "Now there's a little girls team and more and more girls are trying out. Someday it will be just as big as the boys."

Although the girls have met with very little resistance from outside forces and have been thoroughly supported by the Kirkwood League, they realize there are some who view soccer as strictly a male sport.

"If you look around, girls are playing everything else, so why not soccer," said Leslie Minor of Christiana High School. "It's not just for boys to play sports and be rough and stuff. Girls can do it too."

"There's a lot of people who are prejudiced and I don't think that's right," said the younger Sturm. "If a person can play a sport I don't think it should matter what sex you are."

Although there have been recent

Weaver soars at Nationals

Qualifies for U.S. travelling team as alternate

by Bruce Johnson

Of all the millions of girls who practice gymnastics competitively, Newark's Wendy Weaver has found herself to be one of the top 25 gymnasts in America.

Weaver, Delaware's only elite gymnast, earned that ranking by finishing 22nd at the United States Gymnastic Championships held last weekend in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Weaver just missed placing in the top 20 by .06 of a point, which would have qualified her for the travelling U.S. team. However, she has made the team as an alternate and if any of the top 20 girls can not make a meet Weaver will be asked to substitute.

"It's the best meet I've ever had," said Weaver from her Indianapolis hotel room. "I'm very happy because I didn't even expect to go to the championships. However, it's also a little depressing because I missed the travelling team by .06 points."

After the compulsories, Weaver found herself in 13th place with a combined score of 43.06. She had strong showings in each of her events, particularly the beam, in which she scored a 9.15. Ironically, it was the beam that proved to be Weaver's downfall Saturday. Weaver fell off the beam twice and scored a disappointing 8. However, Weaver scored one of her highest marks ever in major competition with a 9.5 on the vault. Her all-around total was 71.58.

"I didn't feel any pressure because I had accomplished all my goals," said Weaver. "I felt pretty relaxed and figured whatever happens happens."

Weaver's next stop will be the Sportsfest in Texas, which slated for the end of August.

Sean Wallace

Vyes for spot on All-Select team

Sean Wallace of Newark competed for a northeastern states' all-select soccer team during the 11th annual William & Mary Invitational Soccer Tournament held June 7-8 in Williamsburg, Va.

Wallace is just the second Delaware select player to be appointed to the Region I Under 17-1/2 All-State team. The region includes 15 northeastern states.

At William & Mary, the Region I team was led by coach Dieter Ficken, who is head coach at Columbia University. Observing the tournament was Derek Armstrong, the U.S. Olympic Youth national coach, who was scouting regional players for invitation to tryouts for the national team which will be held later in the season.

In the two days of competition, Wallace's Region I team was undefeated. It allowed just one goal while scoring six against some of the top club teams from four states.

Wallace is currently a member of the Delaware State Under 17-1/2

Select Team. This is his third year as a state select player.

He also plays for the Wallace FC Under 19 team which just won the McGuire state championship, and he is a defensive stopper back on the St. Mark's High School varsity team.

Wallace was one of just two new players added to the Region I Under 17-1/2 All-Select team last April following tryouts at Vernon Valley, N.J. There he competed for the open positions against 71 of the top players from 13 northeastern states.

Wallace's summer soccer schedule is quite full. He will compete in a regional tournament at Penn State University on the July 4 weekend, then head for Niagara Falls, where he will play in the McGuire Cup tournament.

In early August, Wallace will be in Bermuda to train for one week with the Bermuda national team. Later that month, he will travel to Trinidad to compete in the CONCAFF tournament.

Blind Athletes

Biley, 14, was attending his first national championships. He is a border line vision case. He was a freshman letter winner on this year's Christiana High track team.

Other medalists were:

•Pat Robinson, who won four gold medals and one silver medal, and who set national records in the 400-meter run and in powerlifting.

•Virginia Johnson, who won three gold medals and two silver medals, and who set national records in the long jump and in powerlifting.

•Joe Hojnicki, who won three gold medals and two silver medals.

•Wayne Marsh, who won one silver medal and one bronze medal and who set an unofficial national record in the bench press phase of the powerlifting competition.

•Tom Johnson, who won four bronze medals.

•Owen Gillespie, who won one bronze medal.

Also participating from the Delaware team were Karen Robinson and Pattie Clifton. The head coach was Ken Curtis.

Among special guests at the Long Beach games were Wilt Chamberlain, who lit the torch to open the event, and Monty Hall.

Gildea's clinches Championships

Offense erupts in Bucco's sweep

by Bruce Johnson

After playing the role of the bridesmaid for the past two seasons, Gildea's Raiders discovered that three's a charm as they waltzed away with the Newark Amateur Spring Championship last Saturday on the first day of summer.

After dropping the opening game to Leroy Hill's Buccos, the Raiders swept the next three games, including last Saturday's doubleheader, to clinch the five game series in only four games. Scoring only two runs the previous weekend, the Raiders exploded for 20 runs in supporting Brian Honeycutt in the first game 8-3 and Chris Curtis 12-4 in the second game.

"Three's the charm," smiled Raider manager Mike Foraker as champagne dripped off his face. "I guess three times and you're out, and if we had lost this one they probably wouldn't let me manage anymore. We've got a great bunch of guys who really came through during the playoffs."

In the first game, the Buccos jumped out to an early 1-0 lead on the strength of Drew Gee's RBI double. However, it would be the last time the Bucco's would be out in front. In the top of the third, the Raiders crossed the plate five times, taking advantage of two Bucco errors.

The Raiders recorded four hits in the inning with the key blow being Nick Caputo's game winning two run home run.

The Raiders scored three more runs in the top of the seventh on only one hit as they took advantage of poor Bucco fielding. Nick Caputo boosted his RBI total to four with a two run double.

Yet, the key to the first game came in the bottom of the fifth when the Buccos threatened with one out, men at second and third and the tying run at the plate. But Raider pitcher Honeycutt reached back and struck out the next two batters to retire the side and burst any hopes the Buccos had of mounting a comeback.

Honeycutt, who has pitched for the Minnesota Twins farm system, lost to the Buccos the previous weekend 5-1 despite giving up only two hits. Unfortunately for Honeycutt, one of those hits was a grand slam which just cleared the short left field fence at Doubleday Park. Although suffering from a sore arm, Honeycutt wanted to even the score at Banning Park, which is closer to being a regulation major league field.

"I really wanted to pitch against these guys," said Honeycutt, who struck out seven. "I didn't care how much pain I had to go through. I just wanted to see what I could do on a regulation field against this team. I really wanted this one."

With two victories under their belt and only one to go, the Raiders maintained their edge by scoring nine runs in the first three innings of the second game.

"I told those guys that the first thing we had to do was to score runs," said Foraker. "Anytime you're in a doubleheader and you win the first game, you want to come out and jump ahead because that keeps them down."

The Raiders Howard Zebley led the 11 hit and 12 run attack with four hits of his own while crossing home plate four times. Caputo continued his hot streak, recording five hits and scoring twice. In all, the first five members of the Raider batting line-up accounted for all but one run and all but one hit in the impressive second game win.

The Raiders also benefited from four Bucco fielding errors during the game, which brought their error total to eight the day.

"They made the errors and we took advantage of them," said Foraker. "It's not to say that we're really any better than they are. It's just that today was our day and it wasn't theirs. That's baseball."

The Raider's tags out Bucco's Dave Just who had wandered too far off first base.

Baseball scholarships

The University of Delaware baseball program has received, through a private gift, funding for athletic scholarship grants.

The gift makes baseball the fifth University intercollegiate sport to grant athletic scholarships. The programs funded presently are football, men's and women's basketball, and women's field hockey.

The news of the funding was greeted with pleasure by veteran Blue Hen baseball coach Bob Hannah.

"The addition of these funds to our program is a welcomed step in support of a program that has developed an outstanding winning tradition over the years. We hope that these funds will allow continued improvement in our program through the quality of players this funding will allow us to recruit for the University," Hannah said.

Delaware has compiled a record of 558-252-5 during Hannah's 22 years as coach making it among the winningest baseball programs in the East. Included in that record is nine ECC baseball titles and nine NCAA Tournament appearances, the most recent being in 1983.

Name new assistant

University of Delaware Athletic Director Edgar N. Johnson has announced the establishment of a second assistant fulltime men's basketball coaching position at the University of Delaware and the appointment of Dennis A. Felton to the post.

Felton, a 1985 graduate of Howard University in Washington D.C., joins Larry Davis as an assistant to Blue Hen Head Coach Steve Steinwedel.

Felton was a National Junior College Athletic Association Region All-Star at Prince George's Community College in Maryland where he earned an associates degree with a concentration in journalism in 1983 before attending Howard. He graduated from Howard in 1985 with a cum laude degree in communication. He lettered for the Bison basketball team in the 1983-84 season as a guard who earned All-Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference Academic All-Star honors.

Since graduating, Felton has served as an assistant basketball coach at Oxon Hill High School in Maryland and most recently at Charles County Community College in LaPlata, Md. He also was a coach and counselor at the Dr. J. Basketball Camp at Morgan State University in Baltimore.

Steinwedel welcomed the appointment of his second fulltime assistant coach noting that "the addition of a second staff member will be able to improve not only our day-to-day coaching but will also assist in scouting and recruiting plans. Dennis brings a solid background to the position and we welcome him to Delaware."

Farrance

$2,000 scholarship

University of Delaware women's track and field standout Alison Farrance has been awarded a $2,000 National Collegiate Athletic Association Postgraduate Scholarship, the NCAA office has announced.

Farrance, a graduate of Concord High School, was one of 20 collegiate women in the nation to be awarded the $2,000 prize given annually by the NCAA to outstanding student-athletes. The scholarships are awarded to graduating students to use for postgraduate study at the university or professional school of their choice.

A three-time East Coast Conference Scholar-Athlete, Farrance graduated from Delaware this spring with a 3.947 grade index with a double major of economics and English literature. She was selected as the University of Delaware Alumni Association Outstanding Senior Woman this spring and earned the American Association of University Women Award and the Charles N. Lanier Economics Prize as well as being named to the Department of Economics Panel of Distinguished Seniors.

Farrance, who was selected to the Academic All-American First Team in 1985 and is a nominee this year, closed out an outstanding career for the Blue Hens this spring.

She won three straight ECC indoor triple jump titles and two outdoor titles during her career, setting conference records in both. She also leaves Delaware as the school record-holder in the outdoor and indoor triple jumps, the indoor 500 meters, and as a member of the mile, 1,600 meter and 3,200 meter relay teams.

A member of the Omicron Delta

Epsilon and Phi Beta Kappa Honor Societies, Farrance plans to enroll at the University of Pennsylvania this fall to pursue a master's degree in economics.

Soccer/from 1b

occurrences of girls playing soccer on various high school boys teams, it can sometimes prove unfulfilling for girls who lack the size, experience and skills of boys. The Kirkwood Soccer League solves these problems.

"On this team I get a lot more playing time," said Minor. "If I played on the Christiana team it would be tough because they're so much bigger and they've been playing longer, so I would sit the bench a lot."

"If you're on a boys team you might be friends with them but you never feel included," said Ann Marie Swartz from Newark High School. "It's just not as special being on a boys team."

The girls also proudly realize that they are maintaining a tradition that was started by their great-great grandmothers who demanded the right to vote in the first part of this century.

"The more that women do the more it helps," said Swartz. "The more that guys realize that girls can do things, then everyone's going to realize and change their attitudes about women. Because of us, other teams are starting out and that feels good to know that we're helping out."

And how are the neighborhood boys accepting girls soccer? Well, judging from the audiences that gathered around the Ms. Fits game on Sunday, they are adapting very well.

"The boys teams are always supporting us," said the young Sturm. "They are always watching our games and giving us a lot of encouragement. That's really nice."

LIFESTYLE

We Americans like to think that we control our pets. We claim to need them for altruistic reasons: to give a dumb animal a good home, to teach the children responsibility and to respect the rights and lives of others. We also want them for prestige, for protection, for companionship and for as many other reasons as there are pet owners.

While most experts agree that we do, indeed own our pets, most agree that we do not control them.

Maybe most of us are in control of our pets — for a while, at least. But let's be honest. Within three months of the date of acquisition, the pet has assumed command of its environment which includes its purported masters.

Take my family. I was finagled into getting a cat for reasons too involved to go into here. Suffice it to say that a sign that said "Free Kittens to a Good Home" convinced my children that if we didn't take a kitten then we didn't have a good home.

Now this cat controls my sleeping habits. He wants to go out at 6 a.m. He is out no later than 6:10 a.m. Have you ever tried to sleep through a cat that wails and laments and isn't afraid of things being thrown at him, and when things are thrown at him wails from under the bed? Because of this, I am sure the person who invented the word "caterwaul" knew my cat's grandfather.

The dog has much the same control. In the spring, when the sap runs high in both trees and males, he goes "acourting." And he always does it late at night. Naturally, he never thinks to call us and tell us he will be in late and not to worry. So, of course, we worry, pace the floor and wring our hands until he comes cruising in at 5 a.m. (a mere hour and ten minutes before the cat goes out) wearing a silly, satisfied smirk and not the least bit apologetic about sleeping through the day while we trudge off to work.

Think about the people you know with pets. Vacations are planned around them. Working people have to go straight home to let the dog out. Pet owners get up early and go to bed late to meet the pet's schedule.

We subject ourselves to cold and wet and heat so that furry beasts get exercise. We carry foolish instruments so that the dogs' calling cards aren't left behind. And the owner isn't even in control — it goes where the pet wants to go, and at a speed determined by the pet.

Then there is feeding them. Pets, as they get older and canier, train their owners not to give them pet food. How many of us save part of our spaghetti for the dog, and when we open a can of tuna automatically set some aside for the cat?

It takes a person of strong character and iron will, not to mention a heart of stone, to deny anything to a dog who has polished and perfected the "I adore you, and I will save your life on command, and I am starving to death" look or to the cat who weaves around ankles purring

HOMEFRONT

by Dorothy Hall

urgent words of love and veneration.

Don't forget medical care. We seem to take better care of our pets than we do of ourselves. The government should come up with a program of medical insurance, appropriately called Peticare. With the millions of pet owners in this nation, it would be a sure vote getter.

We make unusual accommodations for our pets. If our pets get fleas, we bathe them with costly shampoos, powder or dip them in smelly, expensive concoctions, purchase exorbitant collars for them, and dose them with specialty formulated Vitamin B-12 and brewer's yeast. We coddle them and empathize with their discomfort. If a family member or friend had fleas, would we do the same?

Finally, look closely at pets as protectors of family life, honor and property. At a recent visit to the vet, I polled the owners and found the following names: Scooby, Cookie, Muffin, Bundles, and Sniffy. If you were a mean person intent on burgling someone's house, and overheard the owner of the house say "Attack him Bundles," would you be scared, even the teeniest bit?

Medical Center sponsors Outdoor Health Fair

The Medical Center of Delaware hosted 4,000 former open heart patients at an outdoor health fair entitled "An Affair of the Heart" Saturday, June 21 on the grounds of Christiana Hospital.

The fair was held to celebrate the opening of the Center's open heart surgery program.

Lt. Gov. S.B. Woo and Dr. Gerald M. Lemole, director of the Center's new open heart surgery program, were among the guests. William Simmer, chairman of the Center's board of directors hosted a short program to welcome Lemole and the heart team.

Many suppliers of materials and equipment for cardiac surgery were on hand to display their wares.

The American Heart Association, Delaware Division, had a booth and the Center's Inservice Education Department, responsible for patient cardiac education was also on hand. Several food vendors sold foods good for a healthy heart diet and entertainment was provided by the All State Jazz Band and a Jazzercise group.

Bamberger's characters Raggedy Ann, Pot Belly, Paddington Bear and Ms. Fleur greeted guests.

Lemole brings with him to the center other experienced members of his professional team, including Dr. Kathleen W. McNicholas, who is board certified in both adult and pediatric cardiovascular surgery, and two anesthesiologists. A perfusionist group has joined the Center to provide the necessary pump team.

Lemole, who has been a consultant at the Center since 1975, has been responsible for or performed 10,000 open heart procedures. More than 4,000 of these patients are Delawareans.

Nutritious low sugar jams

Jams and jellies are a particularly good way to store the freshest summer flavors for year-round enjoyment.

But some health-conscious people are put off by the amount of sugar which has to be added to conventional pectin-based jams and jellies. Others are on low-sugar diets but don't want to give up their morning jam on toast.

The good news is that two pectin products are now widely available that can either cut down or cut out the sugar in jams and jellies, according to Sally Foulke, a University of Delaware extension home economist.

One way to get a low-sugar product is to use a "lite" pectin, sold as Sure-Jell Light. Manufacturers say this product is formulated with the correct amount of pectin for reduced sugar levels. But the home economist cautions that accurate measurements are essential for good gel formation. As with regular pectins, using even less sugar than the recipe calls for, doubling the recipe or increasing the fruit may cause the jelly to be soft.

Lite pectin works only with granulated sugar, not honey, corn syrup or artificial sweeteners. "Carefully follow the recipes that come in the box," Foulke says. "Though it may seem like a good idea, don't try to make your traditional recipes by substituting lite pectin for regular liquid or powdered pectin. The adjustments aren't that simple."

For long-term storage at room temperature, all jellies and jams — regardless of their sugar content — must be placed in sterilized canning jars with sterilized lids and processed for five minutes in a simmering water bath in which bubbles occasionally break the surface.

Paraffin is no longer recommended for sealing jams and jellies because in hot, humid climates, such as Delaware's, the wax may pull away from the sides of the jar, leaving the product susceptible to mold.

After processing, lite-pectin-based products can be stored safely in a cool, dry, dark place for up to a year. Lite-pectin products should not be frozen, according to Foulke, because the gel breaks down. Once a jar has been opened, it should be stored in the refrigerator.

The second product, a low-methoxyl pectin, is used in making jams and jellies with little or no sugar. It works by combining with a calcium compound (included with the product) rather than with sugar. Sugar or any other sweetener, such as honey or an artificial sweetener, may be used in small quantities for slightly sweetened jams and jellies.

Commercially, this product is available as Mrs. Wage's Light Home-Jell, and it can be found in natural food stores, some food cooperatives and at the supermarket.

As with all pectins, accurate measurements are important. And, the home economist stresses, all utensils must be completely dry before use to prevent the product from lumping.

As processing may cause low-methoxyl jams and jellies to become grainy and runny, Foulke recommends storing them in the refrigerator for use within two to three weeks. For longer storage, they may be frozen.

UNIVERSITY

U.D. Hosts Family

"The host family program at the University of Delaware might be described as hands across the ocean," said Dr. Dean C. Lomis, international student and scholar advisor at the University. "The program is a way of making lasting friends for America."

"We try to place incoming foreign students with American families, so that they can have a place to stay when they first arrive in this country," said Lomis. The students can also visit between terms when the dorms are closed or for holidays or other special times.

However, the students do not live with the host family all the time, he said. The idea behind the program is to provide support for international students to help ease culture shock and to provide support for students who are far from their home.

Culture shock occurs when the student first experiences a new way of living, Lomis said. The student has to get used to new foods, a new place to live, and sometimes even a new way of dressing. It can be hard to adjust to all of these changes at once, and a host family can help make the adjustment by just providing friendship and advice.

"But the most important part of the host family concept is providing an opportunity for people from other countries to find out what American life is really like," he said. "It helps eliminate stereotypes about our country."

"One of the great success stories of the host family concept took place during the 1950s," said Lomis. "In 1957, when Russia was making inroads in Egypt, an American consul in Alexandria, Egypt, proposed that the State Department invite young Egyptian diplomats to visit the United States and stay with American families."

"The State Department like the idea, and the diplomats came and stayed in peoples homes without any government involvement other than their initial welcome in Washington."

"One Egyptian said that he came here inclined towards not liking this country, but said that when he left, he left being pro-American. That young Egyptian diplomat was Anwar Sadat, who became president of Egypt in 1970."

"The students who come to the United States are sold on America and American products when they go home," said Lomis. In addition to stimulating the U.S. economy when they are here by spending money on their education and living expenses, they further stimulate the economy by buying U.S. products in their own country."

Being a host family also gives us a chance to get to know people from other cultures, said Vera Wagenfuhr, chairwoman of the host family program.

Many life-long friendships have been formed between a host family and their student, she said. Often host families will visit their student in their home country when they return.

"Some families say that even after having a student stay with them for a few days, when it is time for their student to move into his dorm or apartment, it's like having one of their own children leave," said Wagenfuhr.

There are about 50 host families now, but many more are needed, said Wagenfuhr. "It's exciting being a host family," she said, speaking from her own family's experience.

People who are interested in being a host family can contact Wagenfuhr at (215) 255-4977 or they can call the International Center at the University of Delaware at 451-2115.

You kick the tires. We've kicked the rate.

To 11.5% for used cars between now and July 31st.

There's never been a better time to buy a quality late model used car than right now. And Delaware's Bank is offering its lowest rate in seven years. But only for a limited time. Through July 31st, Bank of Delaware is offering 11.5% APR for the purchase of 1985 and '86 model cars. And the rate is only 1% more for 1983 and '84 models. It's a great opportunity to take advantage of the current buyers' market in top quality used cars. But it won't last long. Apply at your nearest Bank of Delaware office or call 429-1011 in New Castle County or 1-800-292-9603 in Kent or Sussex Counties. A great rate for a great opportunity! That makes a difference for Delaware. That's why we're Delaware's Bank.
