Members of Newark C.A.T. (Citizens Against Traffic) are protesting the results of the License Plate Survey done here in December.

Prepared by consultants for WILMAPCO, the study concluded that previous estimates of through traffic in Newark, sup-porting the need for a bypass, were overstated.

On May 1, C.A.T. members met with DelDOT secretary Anne Canby and Alex Taft, director of WILMAPCO, to point out what the group believes are errors and inaccuracies in the calculations and data of the study.

The mistake was that WILMAPCO used the total number of vehicles counted by an electronic recording device and the license plates counted by surveyors (not all cars) to calculate the percentage of traffic in each category," explained Nancy Turner, president of C.A.T.

According to Turner, this caused a distorted result. "The percentage of through traffic

A waiver for almost 75 percent of required parking for two restaurants was granted to the owners of the old Farm and Home Building on Tuesday night. Representatives of the 1492 Hospitality Group told planning commissioners that current plans for the building at 123 East Main Street are two sit-down restaurants. each of which will contain 180 seats and 15 staff members during busiest shifts.

Newark's zoning code would normally require 150 off-street parking spaces but the site only has room for 42. "This is quite a large waiver,' said planning director Roy Lopata. "In the past we've given out 100

A special Mother's Day

By JULIA R. SAMPSON

.............................. NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

OTHING BRINGS MORE JOY to a mom than a hand-made gift from her child especially on Mother's Day. Ashley Renee Linton, a Newark resident and fourth grade student at Bayard Elementary in Wilmington, will display her Mother's Day gift at the Empire State Building in New York City for all to enjoy. Ashley is Delaware's first place winner in the 1996 KFC/Family Circle All-American Salute to Mother's national greeting card contest. Linton was among 51 students selected, one from each state and the District of Columbia, as a national semifinalist for creating an original Mother's Day card.

"My mom-mom told me about the contest last September," said Ashley. "I forgot all about it until I got a letter in the mail in January." As a winner, her card, along with was chosen as Delaware's hest.

the other top entries, will be on display at the Empire State Building for the entire month of May.

Although Ashley's card wasn't chosen for the national first-prize package, her parents, Brian and Brenda Linton, are just awed that she was chosen the best in Delaware.

"We're excited and proud of her," said the Lintons. "Ashley has always been creative." The Linton's refrigerator is adorned with crafts Ashley has made. She is also a little entrepreneur selling her 'stuff', as she puts it, at school craft fairs.

The Linton family took a day trip to the Empire State Building to see Ashley's card displayed. Ashley said New York was "fun and exciting and I also got to see Ellis Island and the Statue of Liberty.'

Janice Hawkinson, vice-president of the Bear/Glasgow Council of Civic Organizations, has stepped down as chair of the council's planning and zoning committee

Hawkinson, who will still be a member of the committee, made the decision for personal reasons but said she also wants to see more people involved in the committee's work. "There are a lot of people who think they can't do it," said Hawkinson, "but they can."

At their regular meeting on Monday night, the council unanimously elected Norman Spector of Clairborne as the new chair. Spector and 10 other members of the council sit on the committee which reviews zoning proposals with developers, solicits public opinion and addresses county officials on land-use in the Bear/Glasgow area.

In a related matter, the committee agreed to consider changes to the group's bylaws which define and clarify the committee's autonomy in making decisions on zoning plans without the vote of the full council.

President Deborah Cuomo said autonomy is necessary for the committee to do an effective job. Other members like Linda Bailey were concerned that a few persons could make decisions for "thousands of people."

They're working

The progress of the new Genuardi's "Store of the Future" in Glasgow has been slowed but not halted, according to public relations director David Genuardi.

"We've just completed the plans now," said Genuardi this week. "It's work closes Newark Library

The Newark Free Library, one of the most heavily-used branches in New Castle County, was closed for electrical repairs on Wednesday.

"We weren't able to give a lot of notice because we had to wait until parts were available," explained Gordon Hesse, public affairs manager for the Department of Libraries.

According to Hesse, during preparation for going on-line with computers at the Newark branch, improvements were required in the circuit breakers. "We saw that we needed a more reliable system," said Hesse. "We shut down because we had to turn off all electricity in the building to replace components of the present system."

All libraries in the county are expected to be on-line by the end of the summer. "Every one has been cabled for the computers," said Hesse. "We still have to do some electrical and telephone cabling as well as hardwiring the computers and arranging for the furniture to be installed."

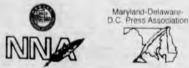

Once a library is on-line, the staff will work with the computers to "get the kinks out" before users have access as well. Libraries are already issuing new cards for the computer system and Hesse said some people don't want to carry two cards at once. "We're trying to do as much as possible to get people and the libraries ready for computers while still keeping the libraries open and running," said Hesse. "It's a little like trying to to repair a car while you're driving it."

Genuardi said the new store at Peoples Plaza will be a prototype which required considerable work and rework in the planning stage. "Actually this will be only the second one completed," said Genuardi. "The one in Langhorne, Pa., will be the first.'

The Genuardi family opened the present Glasgow store at a former Thriftway location in June 1995 with the understanding that it would be replaced by a "super" store this year.

Less than a month later their second Delaware store opened in another former Thriftway at Governor's Square Shopping Center in Bear.

THE NAVAL JROTC Drill Team at Christiana High School, in only its second year of existence, came home from a national competition with a first place win.

According to school administrators, the team was "the talk of the meet since they are only in the second year of the JROTC program."

Only 18 schools out of 350 programs nationwide were invited to compete at the Navy National Drill/Field Meet held recently at Norfolk State University in Virginia.

Eighteen Christiana cadets led by senior Matt Frosch took first place in the Inspection category.

"In civilian terms, they are the best-looking Navy JROTC cadets in uniform and military bearing in country," explained the Commander Bruce Shumway, who together with Master Chief Charles Baldwin, directs the cadets at Christiana.

should be more like 33 percent instead of 20-25 percent as stated in the survey," said Turner.

Turner also claimed that data from the second day of the study was not recorded and commuter traffic during the hours of 4:30-6:30 p.m. each day was not included in the study. "I don't know why," said Turner.

C.A.T. spokesperson Shirley Tarrant said that a DelDOT official conceded to her that the percentage of through traffic should have been 27 percent. Tarrant and other members of the group are currently circulating a petition addressed to Governor Thomas Carper to demand immediate traffic relief in Newark or members will vote only for legislators who will address the situation.

Taft reported that WILMAPCO went back to its consultants after the May 1 meeting and they will be issuing a letter to clarify the conclusions in the study.

"We did not use incorrect data or incorrect methodology," said Taft. "C.A.T. did present some technical questions and we will have another report after our advisory committee has a chance to review it."

Taft added that the number for the percentage of through traffic in Newark was accurate in the draft survey and would not be changing.

percent waivers, though." Lopata told the commissioners that the proposed restaurants are "an excellent use for the long vacant Newark Farm and Home property" and "appear to be in harmony with the character and development pattern of the central business district."

"A parking waiver is necessary in order to develop this property," added Lopata.

"There's just not enough parking space down there."

Development proposed by the building's owners last August included Mama Spaghett's Restaurant with a bakery attached, a brew pub and a clothing store.

Representatives told the commissioners on Tuesday night that plans now include the Italian restaurant and bakery to open by September 1996, another unnamed restaurant opening "sometime next year," and offices and storage upstairs.

"We're thinking about a steak house for the second restaurant," said owner Davis Sezna, "but don't hold us to it-that's just our thinking now." Sezna added that if the right retailer came along and wanted to rent space the owners might decide to do that.

in response to a question from commissioner Jan Baty, Sezna indicated that there were "no plans for a garden or outdoor eating" at the site.

Commissioners were complimentary about the plans although they added a condition to the waiver ensuring that the cornice on the "tower-part" of the original building would be "preserved and maintained."

"This is gorgeous-absolutely gorgeous," claimed commissioner James Smith of the architect's rendering. "It's going to make an empty building come alive and that's what we need."

A community resource

THE CROWD of silver-haired new facility. songsters sang and it truly was L a beautiful morning Monday when two near-centenarians cut the ribbon to officially open the new Newark Senior Center. While receptions for contributors and volunteers were held later in the day, the opening involved only the members of the senior center and its board and staff.

This is good. The state-of-the-art facility off Marrows Road is designed specifically to serve the needs of our area's growing senior population. From our perspective, the only thing wrong with the senior center was its aged Main Street facility.

Now, that has been corrected and its programs will be enhanced and expanded in the new facility. Bricks and mortar, in this case, will allow an already successful program to grow. The swimming pool, adult day care center, "lifelong learning" educational facilities and medical this new community resource, one services can better and more easily that some day could be important to serve our senior population in this you and your loved ones.

The new facility - by its mere design and existence - now is an important resource for the entire Newark community. Newark will play host to the Tour DuPont race this Saturday, when the second stage of the contest begins.

The second stage originally slated to take racers from Wilmington to Baltimore, was changed to begin in Newark and finsih in Columbia, Md.

"Ironically, we will face 50 more miles with the changes, because the race from Newark to Columbia is more than 130 miles, compared to 100 from Wilmington to Baltimore," said Michael Plant, Tour DuPont executive director.

Colonial School District, selecting second as a result of some desperate last minute trading with Christina School District, acquired Robert "Captain" Kidd, an elementary school specialist.

"We needed more strength in the K-3 area and we felt Kidd would deliver the type of program we need," said Shirley Eugeste, Colonial's general manager. "We thought Kennett was going to take him with their pick and we were delighted to see him available when it was our turn.'

Colonial's trade could prove costly. They gave up Jane Wordly, a 12-year veteran English teacher, third year social studies teacher Vernon Washington and a second round pick in the 1997 draft in the Christina deal.

When informed of the trade, Wordly said, "I think I still have a lot to offer. I can bring experience and leadership to the Christina organization and I fully expect to be teaching every day.

It may be more difficult for Washington since Christina is already loaded with experience in the social studies field. It is expected that Washington will be assigned to middle school or put on waivers in the substitute ranks. Christina may use Washington and the second round pick to move further up in the 1997 draft.

If Washington is placed on waivers, Christina will lower their wage expenditures and be able to spend more in bidding for free agents before the start of the school season next September. Colonial will not be a factor in free agency bidding since they will have to offer Kidd a handsome contract in order to sign him.

In a surprise move, Brandywine School District selected Del Monico with the third pick. Monico opted to skip college and go straight to the pros after a fantastic senior season down state. Monico is only the sixth student to declare eligibility for the teaching ranks without a college education. It is an extremely risky move for Brandywine, but many observers feel the risk will be offset by all the publicity surrounding Monico's decision.

The free publicity may also save the job of the beleaguered manager of Claymont High, where Monico is expected to be assigned. Claymont's manager has come assigned. under fire for declining enrollment despite offers of "A" grade give-aways and free parking for attendees. The hype may be enough to draw attention to the programs at the school and halt the exodus of students choosing other sites with more attractive promotions. A librarian, Chip MacIntosh, the fourth pick in the draft, was selected by Red Clay. MacIntosh is expected to challenge veteran librarian Paige Turner for the librarian spot at A.I. DuPont. "MacIntosh does more than check out books," a spokesperson for Red Clay explained. "He is also a qualified multi-media specialist. We expect to bring both MacIntosh and Turner to pre-school inservice and see which one sticks.

The juxtaposition of the Job Fair at Clayton Hall and the NFL draft was too much to ignore. This, combined with the front page news of high school basketball player Kobe Bryant electing to skip college, made me wonder about the value society attributes to educating our children relative to the ability to handle a gas-filled bag of leather.

Apparently, being a success at passing a football to a wide receiver is worth more than being a success at passing skills and knowledge on to students in school.

Oh, what a beautiful morning

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

N MONDAY MORNING, a crowd of excited seniors, every bit as noisy and rowdy as teenagers in a rock concert ticket line, waited under threatening skies for the official ribbon-cutting of the new Newark Senior Center off Marrows Road.

Longtime members, Fanny Budani, 90, and Maude Dennison, who will turn 100 in August, were asked to do the honors with the scissors. Budani, irrepressible on an average day, outdid herself as she blew kisses to the crowd and urged them to continue their support. "You have been the heart of the Newark Senior Center," Budani said. "It's you who have made this day possible.

Budani finished her speech by leading the assemblage in an impromptu chorus of "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning."

'Standing here two years ago amid corn stalks and hay bales, it was hard to envision this day," said John Suchanec, president of the center's board of directors.

You were squished into the old center," continued Suchanec. "I remember sitting at a meeting while flu shots were being given out, others were taking meals and someone was counseling older adult services-all in the same place.

Suchanec said he was coining a new phrase for the center, 'The Newark Senior Omnicenter', which he hoped would catch on. "This center deserves to be called 'omni' because it will have multiple centers of activity.'

The new omnicenter will have all the core facilities of a senior center, said Suchanec, including older adult information, a nutritionist, meals, congregating and meeting with friends. "In addition, the Adult Day Care Center will be here as well as a Health Center with nurses from the University of Delaware contributing their expertise to the special needs of older adults.

A therapeutic pool and fitness center will serve the ever-increasing number of "younger and younger seniors" who desire such programs. Suchanec took the opportunity to announce that the board has unanimously voted to lower the age to join the center to anyone over the age of 55.

Already cabled for computers. the omnicenter hopes to provide online information retrieval and distance learning in the near future. "This is the best of the old and the best of the new," Suchanec said.

The new center, still in the last stages of interior fitting, will host a Grand Opening reception for the public on May 19.

Museum shows history of farming

FEEL SO CONFIDENT that a visit to the Delaware Agricultural Museum and Village has the potential to be a fun-filled, educational outing for everyone in the family that I decided to remind readers about one our state's most interesting attractions. I have also listed some of the upcoming events planned at the museum for spring and summer.

In 1790, 90 percent of all Americans earned their livings from farming. Today, less than two percent of the population is involved in farming. As the number of farmers decreases, so does an understanding of our national rural heritage. The Delaware Agricultural Museum and Village in Dover preserves this important history of farming in Delaware and on the Delmarva peninsula, and shares this rich tradition with thousands of visitors each year.

The museum. which is located on north DuPont Highway in Dover just south of Delaware State University. was founded in 1974 and incorporated as a private, non-profit organization. The doors of the

Each year the museum welcomes more than 26,000 visitors, offers edu-

Guess what? Members of the Bear and Glasgow community are now able to take advantage of their very own YMCA chapter with a office in the Peoples Plaza off of Route 40.

Ray Adams, executive director, has been busy organizing new programs which include leadership development and family activities along with youth sports programs.

Some of the sports programs include soccer, basketball and street hockey. T-ball is scheduled for this summer, according to Adams.

Registration is going on now for the YMCA Day Camp held at Lums Pond. "Inquiries have been high and so far we have double the campers compared to last year. We are hoping to have 50 kids a week but we could take 100," said Adams.

The camp runs from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the pond. Before-camp care is offered from 7 to 9 a.m. and after-camp care is provided from 4 to 6 p.m. at no additional cost for working parents.

"The campers have full access to the boats, nature trails, pond and sports fields. There is a small amount of public traffic at the pond during the week. It's quite a facility," said Adams.

To register for the Day Camp or for additional information about the programs offered at the Bear/Glasgow YMCA, call 832-7980. Parents have the option to register their child for one week at a time or for the whole summer.

Adams anticipates that in the next three years the Bear/Glasgow YMCA will have a full service building to house all of the programs.

This year's Award went to Andrew E. Short, a tenth grade honor student at Glasgow High School. Short, whose interest in entomology started at an early age, developed and taught a junior entomologists camp at the Iron Hill Museum in 1994 and 1995. He has presented units on insects and butterflies at Marshall Elementary, also in 1994 and 1995, and taught several workshops for the 4-H. The award is named in honor of Dr. Phillip P Calvert. Calvert was a member of A.E.S. for 74 years and played a vital role in stimulating the interest of young people in insects. A.E.S. was founded in 1859 and is the oldest continuously-operating entomological society in the Western Hemisphere. R. VERNON VERNIER is a medical doctor, a teacher and an outdoorsman who has twice walked the length of the Appalachian Trail.

He also is a skilled musician who will take his place in the woodwind section on Sunday evening, May 19, when the Newark Symphony Orchestra presents its 30th anniversary concert in Amy duPont Hall on the University of Delaware campus.

Dr. Vernier has done far more than play an instrument during his long association with the orchestra. He chaired the 20th anniversary committee in 1986, has served five of his many years on the Board of Directors as president, compiled and edited the orchestra's policy manual and chaired its history subcommittee. His recollection of concerts, performers and memorable incidents is remarkable, but what he cannot precisely recall, he can extract from an impressive computer data base he has developed through the years. With a few keystrokes, he can produce a roster of more than 800 musicians who have appeared in various capacities with the orchestra since its inception.

Like many many such ventures, the NSO had Harley S. Hastings, former Coordinator of Music Newark School-Community Orchestra. By 1966 it had grown in size and ability and had become Permanent displays illustrate the long and varied tradition of agriculture in the state. These include A Harvest of Technological Change. Delmarvelous Poultry, Grandpa's Shop and Grandma's Attic.

The collections of milk bottles and agricultural whittling are the largest in the region, if not the country. I had no idea how many different dairies once existed in New Castle County, but was reminded of several I'd forgotten when I saw their bottles on display. There are several interactive displays for children (young and old) throughout the exhibit building, and more are planned for the future.

The selection committee highlighted Short's volunteer activities, in addition to his many accomplishments, which led him to be this years choice for the Calvert Award.

Last year Short participated in the first systematic macro invertebrate study of the White Clay Creek. This involved collecting and identifying all insect samples taken along the creek.

This year he plans to restore the 60-year-old insect collection at Lums Pond State Park and construct a new stream environment as part of the Mesocosm at Glasgow High School. All recognized students received a Certificate of Accomplishment and award letter from the President of the Society, a one-year membership in the A.E.S., the 125th Anniversary copy and a subscription one-year to Entomological News, and a one-year membership in the Young Entomologists' Society. In addition Short received a $50 check and the first runner-up received a $25 check.

Beat goes on at Symphony

T'S MAY! It's May, the lusty month of May ... " or at least that what Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe have been telling us since December, 1960. While the uptempo song from one of their greatest collaborations is looking forward to the fun of a season which begins with a May frolic, May in our time and in our area of the world means the end to "seasons" of another type. One such ending is coming up next Thursday, Friday and Saturday as the Delaware Symphony orchestra concludes its classical concert season at the Grand Opera House.

The DSO's 1995-96 season has been one of the finest with outstanding soloists, great guest conductors, the orchestra itself in fine form and, of course, Music Director Stephen Gunzenhauser firmly in command. From the looks of things, the final concerts are to be no exceptions.

The program, which begins each evening at 8 p.m., includes Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's Symphony No. 31 in D, K. 297. Johannes Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A Major, Op. 11 and Peter Ilitch Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No.

1 in B-flat minor, Op 23. As soloist in the Tchaikovsky, Stephen and the orchestra will be joined by Tzimon Barto who has been dazzling audiences on both sides of the Atlantic since he burst upon the scene about ten years ago at Gian Carlo Menotti's Spoleto Festival in Italy.

Mozart's three movement symphony (1. Allegro assai, 2. Andante and 3. Allegro) and Brahms' serenade are examples of both composers' juvenilia. That is one of the things which has always made the serenade so interesting since Brahms destroyed so many of the works of his youth - of course the music ain't bad neither! Then we come to a work which is loved by people who "don't even like classical music," Tchaikovsky's piano concerto. In the late 30s or early 40s, popular band leader Freddie Martin worked his magic with the concerto in a 78 RPM album called "Concertos for Dancing." Stephen is pulling out all the stops for his season finale.

Much of the excitement will also come from the soloist for the Tchaikovsky, the brilliant Tzimon Barto. His specialty includes the great virtuoso works of the 19th and 20th centuries. He has earned a world-wide reputation for his dynamic performances in these difficult compositions.

He has performed with many major orchestras including Orchestre National de France, Berlin Philharmonic, Santa Cecilia (Rome,) NHK Symphony (Tokyo,) Boston Symphony and National Symphony (Washington,) Philadelphia Orchestra, Chicago Symphony and Atlanta Symphony. His introduction at the annual Salzburg Festival was by none other than the Herbert von Karajan. I am

Box 1870, Wilmington, DE 19899, or stop by their 10th Street box office, or call 302-656-7374. You may buy tickets, if there are any left, at the new Grand box office before the concerts. And, students, don't forget the great price on "rush" tickets one hour before concert time, but be sure to bring you ID!

We really do have a great orchestra right here in Delaware. I wasn't around when it began in 1929, but I have been able to watch a lot of the growth since my youth. Remember the free concerts at the Playhouse under its original name, the Wilmington Symphony Orchestra? Then the name change, the move to Sallies auditorium and then, happily for us all, 17 years ago Stephen took the reigns. Did you know that in 1994 our orchestra was honored with the highest rating of any orchestra of its size by the National Endowment for the Arts? Well, now

Homeward Bound sets annual meeting

Homeward Bound, Inc., support agency for Emmaus House in Newark, will host their annual meeting 7 p.m. on May 16 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Anthony Felicia became the new president of the corporation's board of directors last July. At the same time, Nancy Berry, former business manager, and Mary Ellen Green, former assistant director. were named co-directors.

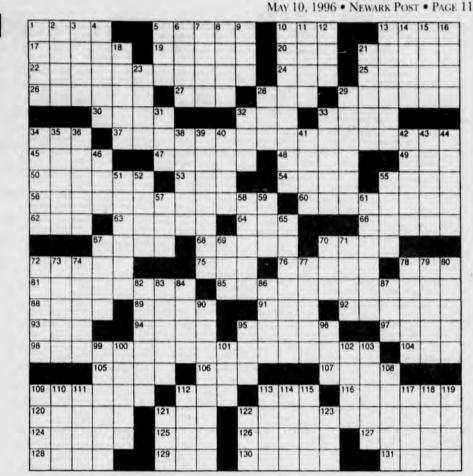

Reduced federal funding from the Office of Community Services and loss of the former Wilburfest shortfall in 1995. However, interns from the University of Delaware and Delaware Technical and Community College, as well as participation in the Lutheran Volunteer Corps program, funding of a Public Ally, and a moratorium on overtime and staff training have helped maintain the agency's level of service. In addition to long- and shortterm residential programs to help families obtain and keep housing, Homeward Bound provides a battered women's support group, parenting classes, food and household goods distribution, and statewide rental assistance among its services.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) -- A new drug has been approved that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain. This material has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis..." and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painini muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache.bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itism relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itism is an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work. Use only as directed

Newark Symphony marks 30th anniversary

SYMPHONY, from 8

Although it has been led by a number of capable guest conductors, it has had only two music directors. Founder Hastings served through the 1981-82 season and was succeeded in 1983-84 by Maestro Roman Pawlowski, who also directs the Delaware County Symphony, the Immaculata College Orchestra and the Young People's String Orchestra in Baltimore.

The NSO, which now can call upon 65 to 70 instrumentalists depending upon the requirements of the works being performed, has not only been concerned with its own welfare and improvement, but with the encouragement of young artists.

The orchestra's 1966 series, broadcast by radio station WNRK, received the "Golden Mike" award as the best local radio program in America broadcast in the interest of youth. In 1978-79 the orchestra began its sponsorship of high school and college competitions through which the winners receive monetary prizes and opportunities to perform as guest soloists in chamber and symphony concerts. Many of these winners have continued their musi- tras. Fundraising is an ongoing cal careers as teachers and performers. About five years ago, the Symphony also began to offer educational programs in the Christina School District, including free tickets for children attending concerts with their parents. Pre-concert lectures have been presented to enhance their appreciation of the performances they will hear.

Several orchestra alumni now perform as members of larger of symphonies in other cities, the most prominent being Judith LeClair, first chair bassoonist with the New York Philharmonic.

Other distinguished guests who have appeared with the orchestra are Louisa Marks, principal cellist with the Delaware Symphony; Katherine and Kristine Ciesinski, who have enjoyed careers as opera, oratorio and concert soloists in the U.S. and abroad; conductor Stefan Kozinski, son of the late News Journal music critic; and William Smith, associate conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Though it has made notable progress in the last decade, the NSO encounters problems and challenges faced by most community orcheschore which demands such mundane tasks as the preparation of direct mail solicitations, garage sales and phonathons, and time-consuming appeals to potential business and corporate donors. Fortunately, the symphony has received excellent cooperation from the University of Delaware, where most of its concerts and many of its business meetings are held, and has been partially supported by grants from the Delaware Division of the Arts. A recently revitalized Newark Symphony Society has provided additional support.

As Maestro Pawlowski observes, programming also is a major concern. "We know that our audiences enjoy Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart and Tchaikovsky," he said recently, "but we also have an obligation to present the music of new composers to give the public an opportunity to hear and evaluate it. I also must consider what the orchestra members find appealing to play."

The orchestra has had unusual opportunities to present new compositions in the last two years. Ms. Tina Davidson, a composer who is working with the symphony, OperaDelaware and the Wilmington YWCA under the nationwide New Residencies Program, has provided several compositions that have been favorably received. Her latest work will be presented at the May concert. A piece by University of Delaware faculty member Robert Hogenson was given its premiere performance last December, and Symphony No. 3 - From the Old World by local composer Will Copper has been scheduled in 1997.

In addition to Ms. Davidson's Over Salt River, which will feature soprano soloist Shannon Coulter, orchestra will present the Symphonie Tchaikovsky's Pathetique and the Strauss Horn Concerto with competition winner

Peter Starostin as guest soloist.

Starostin is the son of Sergei Orlov, dancer and choreographer with the Russian Ballet Theatre of Delaware. Peter studied at the Moscow Central Music School for gifted children and currently is a student at the Juilliard School of Music.

Concert tickets will be available at the door at $10 for general admission, $8 for senior citizens and $6 for students.

Officers of the Newark Symphony's Board of Directors are B. Jean Unruh, president; Dr. Paul A. Vance, Jr., vice president; Dorothy Boyd, treasurer; and Shirley Peters, secretary. Ms. Cherie Astolfi is business manager.

Not all berms created equal, Porter Square resident says

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Residents of Porter Square think the worst is over for the berm problems in their development similar to those experienced in other communities along Route 896.

"The berm separating Porter Square and Route 896 is being completely refurbished," stated John Finan, president of the civic association. "We had a tremendous problem with erosion and also a rodent problem."

Finan said the original berm had deteriorated "almost to the backyards" of the homes next to it. Erosion had caused the dirt in the berm to fill the drainage swale running through the community.

"The problem was that there was not enough plant cover," said Finan. Eroding berms filled with asphalt, concrete and other building rubble had spaces in them which made "a perfect natural habitat for rats, raccoons, mice-anything of that nature," explained Finan.

The solution was twofold. An exterminator was hired three years ago to control the rats that "were filtering out through the sewer systems" into the community at large. Finan said he assumes the exterminator's services will continue indefinitely.

Secondly, the berm was rebuilt to a height of 30 feet and filled with old rubble covered with 12 feet of solid earth. "The University of Delaware is involved in the design and plantings on the top to hold the earth," said Finan. "They're doing a really nice job."

The only way to avoid rats and other wildlife is to use solid dirt in the berms or engage an exterminator, according to Finan.

Residents of Stonesthrow and The Commons of Stonesthrow recently complained to DelDOT and the Julian Construction company about the berms separating their communities from the newly widened Route 896. According to residents, they were told asphalt and concrete fill was acceptable and did not pose any hazard to the residents.

Bike camp set for kids

New Castle County 4-H in cooperation with the White Clay Bicycle Club is sponsoring a weekend Pedal Power Camp for all children ages 8-12, who are interested in learning about bicycling as a sport and a recreational activity. The camp will be held May 18-19 at the Caroline County 4-H Park near Denton, Maryland. The weekend will include three supervised bike hikes through scenic Caroline County, classes and activities related to bicycles, recreation and a campfire. The cost for the weekend is $30 and includes transportation for campers and their bicycles from several locations in New Castle County, meals, classes and medical insurance. Supervision will be provided by 4-H staff and volunteers.

Campers will sleep overnight in a building at the camp. All campers must have an approved bicycle helmet as well as a bicycle in working order. For more information, contact the 4-H office at 831-8965. Extension programs are open to the public without regard to race, color, sex, handicap, age or national origin.

NHS Band receives awards in Toronto

Newark High's bands and orchestra received numerous awards for their outstanding performances at the Toronto Music Festival, the weekend of April 26th. In all, they won twenty six trophies, received six superior ratings and they also received four excellent ratings. The bands won five section awards and four out of six overall first place awards.

Overall Best Instrumental Champion Award for Highest Concert and Marching scores also went to Newark High. Proudly leading the marching band were drum majors, Monique Hite and Mona Parikh, who were awarded with the Best Drum Majors award. Best soloists went to Beth Donovan, Onaris Waters, Mike Matsumoto and Pai-Shan Chen.

Clarke attends weekend

Andrea Clarke recently returned the four day Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation (HOBY) weekend, April 18-21, held at Henlopen Hotel at Rehoboth Beach, Del. The goal of this foundation is to insure that the youth of today grow up to become responsible adults.

Clarke returned from this conference of twenty seven students, exclaiming that it was "the best experience of my whole high school career."

Impressed by the volunteer staff, the speakers who led discussions on world issues and the organization as a whole, Clarke came away from the conference feeling more self-motivated. But in her eyes, the best part of the weekend was meeting so many kids her age. To sum the whole event up, Clarke said, "It was awesome."

Newark-based Blue Hen Beer survives growing competition, now flowing from tap at Elkton Road

BEER BATTLES

By DOUG RAINEY .....

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

LUE HEN BREWING Co. recently won a small battle in the beer wars.

One tap at the popular Crab Trap restaurant in Newark now has Blue Hen rather than Pennsylvania's Yuengling.

Crab Trap co-owner Tim Thompson said the Delaware beer is selling well. "We also like to support local companies," Thompson said.

For Blue Hen founder and President Jeff Johnson the victory is part of the six-year-old Newarkbased company's battle to survive and thrive in a brutally competitive beer market. 'It has been a roller-coaster." said John Wisniewski, a Blue Hen shareholder and owner of Delaware Sporting Goods on Main Street in Newark. Johnson and a group of 17 stockholders founded the company in 1990, before the recent flurry of activities in microbreweries and brew pubs. Johnson worked with a brewmaster to come up with a recipe that met the German beer purity law and would allow the product to be marketed as a superpremium beer.

The beer was brewed at Lion Brewery in Wilkes Barre, Pa., with Wisniewski's van pressed into service to pick up the first shipment. Blue Hen never hid that it is said that if the company had opted to build its own brewery, it would probably no longer be in existence.

brewed in Pennsylvania. Johnson brew would be an uphill

Wisniewski agreed that the strategy allowed the fledgling firm to learn about the brewing business. "We did well in spite of ourselves," Wisniewski said, referring to the process of learning the complexities of marketing and dealing with federal regulations.

Thompson, a University of Delaware graduate, said the romance of brewing was a major reason for founding the company. While he always knew convincing beer drinkers to sample the was tougher than first thought. A key turning point came in 1992. Lion Brewery agreed to distribute the beer through its own channels.

Blue Hen also moved its prices a few points below the superpremium category.

Growth continued as the brand gained a foothold in South Jersey and the Philadelphia area. National recognition followed, with Blue Hen being selected as a World Champion Munich Lager by the World Beverage Institute. Last year, Blue Hen won a silver medal in the 1995 World Beer Championships.

In the meantime, sales of national brands, such as Budweiser stalled, while boutique labels, such as Samuel Adams were growing.

Brew pubs opened in the region, including three in Delaware.

Johnson figures that competition has intensified fifteen-fold since the first Blue Hen batch was rolled out. Joining the fray are big guys, such as Anheuser-Busch, Miller and Coors that are now rolling out specialty beer brands, such as Red Dog, Killian's Red and others.

Last year, Johnson - who had continued to run the company while working for AgrEvo, an agricultural chemical venture based in Wilmington - began working fulltime at Blue Hen.

While sales were growing, it was clear Blue Hen needed his entire attention, according to Johnson.

"I always thought that selling a little beer in a lot of places would work," Johnson said.

brew pubs and an army of big and small firms targeting the market, Johnson believes sales will have to grow to several times their current level to ensure that the company survives.

The company recently changed wholesale distributors, with Blue Hen now being offered on tap at a number of establishments in the Newark area besides the Crab Trap, Klondike Kate's, Deer Park, East End Cafe and Border Crossing. Blue Hen has also taken back its distribution rights from Lion, since that brewery is now planning to roll out its own brands.

While package store sales still account for more than nine-tenths of total sales, the availability of Blue Hen in bars and restaurants is key to getting past the biggest barrier getting residents to try the product, Johnson said.

At present, Johnson is investigating ways to get additional capital for the company so it can beef up its marketing efforts.

He is also exploring the idea of a brew pub that would produce a number of brews, but would not replace the arrangement with Lion Brewery.

That strategy has worked well for Samuel Adams, which has a brew pub operating under that name in Philadelphia.

Enemies are in St. Louis, Golden, Colo., not in Delaware

LUE HEN Brewing has a lot of competitors, including several on its home turf.

Company President Jeff Johnson does not believe Delaware brewers should concentrate on battling one anoth-

Instead, he believes the effort should center on increasing the overall market of "craft brewers" who nationally represent about one and one-half percent of the total brewing market, he said. The potential market for craft beers could increase to between 5 and 8 percent of the total market.

With the major breweries turning out their own specialty brands, Johnson believes the three brew pubs and two brewers in the state should work together by forming joint ventures and their own trade organizations.

The enemy, according to Johnson, is in St. Louis (Budweiser) and Golden Colo. (Coors), not Wilmington or Rehoboth.

Delaware currently has brew pubs in Greenville, Bear and Rehoboth Beach, with Rockford Brewing Co., operat-ing as a Wilmington-based microbrewery.

Another brew pub, Iron Hill; is now under construction on Main Street in Newark.

Caravel's Megan Biddle fires a strike in a recent game. Caravel had an up-and-down week, losing two and winning one.

aravel's softball team suffered back-to-back losses before regaining its touch with a 6-3 win over Archmere. Tuesday's triumph over the Auks gave the Bucs' postseason hopes a needed boost.

The Bucs (7-5) did a nice job of manufacturing runs against Archmere in the middle innings. They scored their first run in the second inning on a single by pitcher Megan Biddle, a sacrifice bunt by Jamie Keyes and two-out hit by Tammy Frazer.

Stephanie Rice led off the another fine outing by Biddle against St. E on May 2. The right-hander allowed only two unearned runs and struck out seven over eight frames.

"We've got strong pitching," said Caravel Coach Steve Baker, referring to the duo of Biddle and Katie Salony (3-3). "Other than the St. Mark's game (a 10-0 loss Saturday), we've given up only five or six runs the whole year.

'We're just not getting key hits. We're just not getting on base," said Baker, who's coached the team since 1989. 'We're hoping that it's mental. We hit in practice. There's not a kid on our team who doesn't take 75 swings a day. The coach points to Caravel's youthful lineup, which includes only two seniors. And to its schedule, which includes seven games against Top 10 teams and four others against underrated Catholic Conference schools. The Bucs finish the week with Dickinson tomorrow after Thursday's matchup with Wilmington Christian and a possible home date with Bo Manor today. The rest of the schedule includes a road games against Archmere and Padua on Monday and Wednesday before closing out the season at Milford Thursday. Baker said his team's deceptive record makes it a dark horse in the state tournament. Hitting will be the key.

GLASGOW - The Glasgow High softball team moved into first place in the Blue Hen Conference Flight A race with a 5-4 extrainning, come-from-behind victory over a spirited Newark High squad Tuesday afternoon.

With rain coming down and daylight running out, Erica Richardson scampered home from third base on a wild pitch to give the Dragons the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning. The to get a win fightwin improved Glasgow's record ing back from to 10-1 in the con-(11-1 behind. ference overall) and catapulted it past Brandywine (9-2 Flight A) – a 3-0 loser to William Penn Tuesday with just three conference games remaining

Just two innings before, however, Glasgow's conference championship hopes appeared doomed. The Yellowjackets, with the help of four walks and an error, scored twice in the top of the seventh to take a 4-2 lead.

Missy Latta, though, started a Dragons' rally with a double to lead off the bottom of the seventh inning.

Richardson followed with a triple to deep center field to score Latta. Jamie Sassaman's infield ground out scored Richardson to send the game into extra innings. "That was a big win," said Glasgow Coach Larry Walker. "We didn't play very well, but it's good to get a win by fighting back from behind like that. This can only help us down the road."

Newark (5-8, 3-7) jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning taking advantage of Glasgow pitcher Julie Van Deusen's wildness. The freshhurler man walked four batters and threw three wild pitches in the inning. Christine Bush led off with a LARRY WALKER walk and eventually scored on wild pitch.

Allison Bernick, who also walked, scored on Mary Gowen's ground ball.

"Walks were the story of this game," Walker said. "Julie fought through the rough times, though, and we were able to get the win."

Glasgow tied the game in the second inning when Melissa Pettee doubled and scored on an error and Brand Redrow hit a sacrifice fly to plate Latta.

Newark nips Glasgow in eighth

GLASGOW - Consecutive hits by Newark in the bottom of the eighth gave the Yellowjackets a 1-0 win over Glasgow.

Scott Hunt's leadoff double and Chris Adams' RBI single up the middle that was slowed by the wet grass put a sudden ending to Tuesday's Blue Hen Conference Flight A battle. Hunt's double capped a perfect 4-for-4 day at the plate.

The 'Jackets' George Griebel (4-1) and the Dragons' Bob Trzonkowski (5-1) each pitched complete games, and their teams made timely plays behind the hurlers in the field.

"It was huge," Newark Coach Jason Bedford, whose team improved its record to 8-3 in the conference to stay within a halfgame of first-place William Penn. 'Last week we lost a close game 1-0 [to the Colonials], and this week we won one."

Bedford singled out Griebel, who took advantage of his opportunity to be the Newark's No. 1 pitch-third with a hit, then reached second courtesy of a walk to Megan Heuberger. Rose Tassone laid down another sacrifice bunt to advance the runners. Lisa Delcollo drove in Rice on a fielder's choice.

The Bucs again proved themselves opportunists in the fourth, capitalizing on a leadoff walk to Biddle, a single by Keyes and a passed ball. Kelly Downey and Frazer drove both runners in with fielder's choice ground-outs. Delcollo's double in the fifth scored Heuberger and Tassone and gave Caravel a 6-0 lead.

Meanwhile, Biddle (4-2) cruised through Archmere's lineup, striking out 10 and surrendering only four hits. The Auks' three runs, scored in the sixth and seventh frames, were unearned.

"We're finally starting to put some passes together," he said. "We're playing better as a team and on offense."

He believes the trio of Guilfoyle, Kelly Dombroski and Andrea Lockerman should finally help take some of the defensive pressure off Kirchenbauer, his top scorer. "Those three with Jamie are starting to work a lot better because [the other teams] are leaving people open," he said.

UESDAY'S Newark-Glasgow showdown came

Glasgow showdown came off more like a boxing match than a baseball game.

The Yellowjackets and the Dragons jabbed at each other for seven innings, but neither could deliver the knockout punch that would put the game away. Until the bottom of the eighth inning.

With the score deadlocked at 0-0, Newark's Scott Hunt and Chris Adams, both recognized by the Newark Post for athlete of the week honors, came through with back-to-back hits to score the game's lone run.

Hunt led off the inning with a long double to left field. Adams followed with a single up the middle. The wet grass slowed the ball enough for Hunt to scamper home.

Adams, a first baseman, credited Newark Coach Curt Bedford for psyching him up before the plate appearance. Adams had sandwiched a hard shot to Glasgow pitcher Bob Trzonkowski between a pop-up and a fly ball that was caught. But the sophomore got a fastball down the middle of the plate, and he took advantage of it. "It felt good," he said. "We just had to come back and play our best. It's a cross-town rivalry.

the stretch should earn the Vikings an invitation after getting narrowly beaten out by Concord in '95. They face Newark Friday at home and Mount Pleasant Tuesday before finishing the season against Glasgow.

Don't let it end

Newark (9-3) picked up two big shutouts against Mckean and Glasgow. Goals by Julie and Emily Marx and Mackenzie Streit put McKean away last Friday. Julie Marx nearly blew the Dragons away by herself, scoring five second-half goals against the Dragons on Tuesday to break a 0-0 tie. (Freshman Nicole Luft scored the sixth goal.)

And they all came within the first 14 minutes.

Newark Coach Mike Clair said his decision to move some players to different positions may have been the key. And not abandoning the strategy of working their way in from the outside.

On Tuesday, defender Amy Hunt moved to midfield, center halfback Julie Marx moved to center striker, midfielder Emily Marx moved to sweeper and sweeper Andrea Beach moved to outside halfback.

In addition to Friday's game at Christiana, the Yellowjackets play at William Penn Saturday morning, then finish the season against Wilmington (Tuesday) and Mount Pleasant (Thursday).

'We're starting to peak," Clair said. "And this is the right time to peak. I hate to see games end at this point.'

school last Wednesday. Jennette Wikel, Erin Lindell, Susan Oberlander, Amy Pietlock and Katie Gannette also scored. Phipps scored another three more on Friday in the Spartans' 4-1 romp over Tatnall. Wikel scored the other goal.

But St. Mark's Coach Tom DeMatteis dodged questions comparing the club to last year's outfit.

"That's yet to be seen," he said. "The really tough competition will come in the state tournament. We still have to play Dover (which carries a gaudy 10-1-1 record) and Wilmington Christian.

"I'm pleased for the most part. I just want to make sure we're prepared for games like the one against Ursuline - games that are highly emotional, very competitive and have two evenly matched teams. How we deal with that is probably the key" to their postseason prospects.

DeMatteis was referring to the Spartans' 2-1 double-overtime win over Ursuline last Monday. The coach probably gave his team a passing grade against Tatnall. St. Mark's began the second half in a 1-1 tie.

"It was similar to the Ursuline game in that we came out strong in the second half," he said.

The Spartans played Dover Thursday. They finish the season with Wilmington Christian on Monday and Caesar Rodney on Wednesday.

Van Deusen and Newark pitcher Becky Street dominated the middle innings before the 'Jackets regained the lead in the seventh inning. Jenn Jones led off by reaching base on an error and Erin Conway followed with a walk.

Gowen executed a perfect sacrifice bunt to advance the runners to second and third base. Karen Von Steuben, with the bases loaded, also drew a walk to score Jones and Bush's ground ball enabled Conway to score.

Bernick, Jones. Conway, and Gowen all recorded hits for Newark while Street, who also singled, allowed just seven hits over the nine innings.

Richardson led the Dragons' offensive attack with three hits while Latta, Pettee, Redrow and Kristin Nau each added a hit. Van Deusen, who improved her record to 11-1 on the season struck out 12. and walked 11.

Glasgow, after playing Delcastle Thursday, has conference games remaining against Christiana (May 14) and Brandywine (tentatively scheduled for May 15).

The Dragons, after edging the previously unbeaten Bulldogs 1-0 on May 2, had two make-up dates (May 4 and May 8) against Brandywine postponed for one reason or another this week. Glasgow closes out the regular season May 16 against undefeated St. Mark's.

er after getting only a couple starts last season. "You give him the ball and you know you're going to get seven strong innings. And today I got eight.

Trzonkowski was certainly up for the challenge, but said getting away from the pattern he established for much of the game may have hurt him in the eighth. "I threw one too many fastballs," the junior left-hander said. "I should have been throwing curveballs."

He spoke of the team's maturity afterward, and its commitment to keeping their emotions in check particularly when it comes to the players' dealings with umpires. "I think we should get more respect than we do from other teams," he added.

Griebel, a junior, started the game strong with a strikeout and two ground balls, a good omen for the 'Jackets after he walked in the winning run during the early innings against William Penn on May 1. He retired the first seven hitters before walking the Dragons' Roger Richardson in the second with one out.

Glasgow's Justin Taylor followed with a single, but Griebel came back to strike out Matt Lantagne. With two outs, Al Gunter Jr. hit a hard ground ball off the glove of Newark second baseman Jeff Myers. But Myers retrieved the ball and threw out Richardson at home plate.

Newark's Sean McCullough also threw out Trzonkowski at home in the fourth after Griebel threw wildly into center field trying to start a double play. The 'Jackets also gunned down two runners at the plate against William Penn.

But the Dragons also had their day in the field. Taylor, Glasgow's left fielder, threw out Newark's Tom Emig after he slipped rounding second following Hunt's single in the third.

And Trzonkowski caught Newark's Jason Bedford trying to steal in the fourth. The southpaw stepped off the rubber and threw to first baseman Brian Barone as Bedford started running. Barone then fired a strike to second baseman Richardson who tagged him out.

"I think the biggest thing is we blew our chances [to score], espe-cially in the seventh," Glasgow Coach David Kohan said. "We didn't execute on getting the bunt down" following Shaun Watson's leadoff double.

But Kohan, 25, who's in his first year as the Dragons' head coach, got all he could ask for from his ace. Trzonkowski. "He's been pitching like this since Day One," the coach said. "He's a legitimate All-State candidate. They couldn't tell when the changeup was coming and when it wasn't

"I thought our defense played well enough. [The game] was for us to win," said Kohan, who is attempting to lead Glasgow to its first-ever state tournament appearance. "We didn't take advantage of the opportunities to knock runners in."

Time Out won't strike gold

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

TIME OUT SPORTS won't win Newark's Gold League this summer.

Of course, it's not as though the players forgot how to play softball, misplaced their gloves or couldn't get up the bucks to buy those ultraexpensive, high-tech aluminum bats.

They just decided to move over to the tougher Blue League. The players agreed to the transfer last November, the time of year when the boys of summer stow their gear away in garages across America.

"The guys just wanted to play competitive ball every night," said Time Out manager John Slack Sr. "The Gold's not as competitive as the Blue. The Blue League has a generally higher level of competition.

Time Out won the Gold crown

during the past two seasons and reached the finals of the postseason tournament before bowing to peren-nial champion East End/Bud Light in '95.

So far, the team has held its own. has beaten top teams like East End and Crab Trap and also triumphed over middle-of-the-roaders Yankee Restaurant.

The familiar names still appear on the lineup card, but there have been some noticeable changes to the roster. Slugger Rich Burris returned from his year's sabbatical playing for Yankee Restaurant. All Stars John Slack Jr. and Guy Remsburg as well as vets Joe and Matt Krawzyk, Mark Schroeder, Ken Farrall, Brian Niekamp and Joe Gutowski are all taking their familiar positions on the field.

But John Hermes and Dave Telep are on the team's injured list. And Henry Wagner and Steve Halfen won't be coming back. But Slack Sr., who doubles as general manager, convinced free-agent pitcher Ken Scott and infielder Lee Tadalon to sign on with his club after their team, Fair Hill Auto, folded. Other off-season pickups include two guys named Mike: Wallace and Elwood.

The club's style is still in tact, however. Traditionally, the team has lacked the power of Blue powers like East End and Taylor's Ink (which folded after last season). It compensates by single-ing its opponents to death.

"We're coming together," Slack Sr. said. "We're streaky hitters, and we play solid defense. And we normally don't make too many mistakes. The key is when somebody gives us four or five outs, hurt them.

"I know there are nights when we're going to get absolutely pounded," Slack Sr. said. "But there's not too much change to the way we approach the game. The guys are having a good time. It's a really nice league."

Viking trackmen make it two for two

Christiana boys track and field team has won the Blue Hen Conference Flight A for the second straight year with a new cast. And unlike last year, the Vikings relied mostly on endurance rather than speed to get over the finish line.

'This year, we weren't even ranked coming out of an undefeated season," Christiana Coach David Jones said. "The kids took that as a challenge.

Last season, the Vikings' bread and butter were the relay teams, which were decimated by gradua-tion: the 4-by-100 and 4-by-400

ARCHERENCE CONTRACTOR CONTRACTOR CONTRACTOR

on the 4-by-800 relay team. After losing to Hodgson in the season's first meet, Christiana ran off seven straight wins, culminating with its 15-point win over neighborhood rival Glasgow on May 1. Other guys who stepped up to the challenge were: John Fader, a shotputter and discus thrower; Seymour Williams, who specialized in the long jump, triple jump and high jump events; utility man George McBride, a sprinter who competed in the long jump; shot-putter David Madison; pole vaulter Walters; and hurdler McDonald Roberts, who also threw the discus.

Coach Jones also believes the team in years to come with the return of freshman Lincoln Caldwell, who ran on the 4-by-100 and 4-by-200 relay teams, and sophomore Brian Salernim who ran on the 4-by-100, 4-by-200 and 4by-400 relay teams and also competed in the triple jump.

"They have a lot of potential they haven't even tapped into yet," Jones said.
