Dear Dunn:

I wrote to the Secretary today and through an error we did not make sufficient copies of the letter, so I can again not send one herewith. I am sure you will see this letter, and I think you will find some comment of interest in it. I am sending you herewith a few clippings from the London TIMES which may be of interest. The one reviewing a recent book on "Nazi Germany" is of interest, especially the last sentence. The remark of the reviewer that the author might have given more sympathetic treatment to some "of the merits of Nazi organization, education and social achievement, to which he gives only faint praise" is indicative of the lack of understanding there is among even so many intelligent people of the real nature of these aspects of Nazi Germany and of the dangers which Nazi education really has for Europe."

With all good wishes,

Cordially yours,

George S. Messersmith

James Clement Dunn, Esquire,
