Daughters reflect on their fathers

By MICHAEL JONAS

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

SOME FATHERS TAKE THEIR DAUGHTERS to the circus, others to a play or the movies. Architect Alexine Cloonan's dad took her to construction sites.

It's often taken for granted when a son takes after his father. After all, isn't it a dad's job to influence his sons while mom serves as a role model for the girls? Not necessarily, and as Father's Day approached, we asked some local women with familiar names to describe how their fathers influenced their lives.

Cloonan, a Newark resident, also sits on the city's Planning Commission. As a young girl, her father, a civil engineer, would bring her to work with him. "I spent a lot of time on job sites with him," said Cloonan. "He was my introduction to the world of construction."

Cloonan said her father was a wonderful teacher. "He injected so much optimism and joy, imagination and effort into his life and work."

Bonnie Mucha's dad Warren Nelson, built power plants for a living. With her long blonde hair and pointed comments, Mucha is a familiar figure at Christina District School Board meetings in addition to serving as president of the McVey

Elementary School PTA.

She remembers her father ingraining in her a desire to be the best. "He told me to do the best I can in everything," said Mucha. "If I take a job, I want to do the best job possible."

Mucha said she wishes she was nearer to her father, who lives in Wisconsin, where he recently celebrated his 70th birthday. "It's hard not talking to him as often as I'd like," she said. "But I still seek his advice."

New Castle County representative Karen Venezky said she got lots of advice from her father Ben Gauz while growing up in Hazelton, Pa. "He always had to approve what I wore," laughed Venezky, "because he owned a men's clothing store."

Venezky, also national vice-president of Hadasah which assists with medical training for third-world countries, said her concern for the community came from him as well.

"He was always dragging me to community meetings," said Venezky. "I think that's why I'm so involved in it."

Maureen Roser, assistant director of Newark's Planning Department and coordinator for the Newark Downtown Partnership, was told by her father Jack Feeney, an electrical supervisor with Dupont, to always be honest.

"He said it's better to pay the price up front than to pay the price for dishonesty later," said Roser.

"But then again," she added jokingly, "he's usually full of it."

Newark Nite on again

Better late than never will be true tomorrow night when the city hosts the rain-delayed Newark Nite on Main Street from 5 to 9:30 p.m.

City coordinator Jennifer Jones said except for a few vendors, every entertainer and organization will be on hand as originally planned. "We're keeping our fingers crossed on the weather," said Jones. "If it's canceled again, we do not reschedule."

Bowling attacked by prowler?

Newark Police are still investigating an alleged attack Tuesday night on Abbotsford resident Scott Bowling, candidate for city council in Newark.

According to Police Chief William A. Hogan, the incident was first reported to his department when Shirley Tarrant came to the police station on Tuesday night about 10:30 p.m.

"It apparently happened in his back yard around 9 p.m. Tuesday night," said Hogan yesterday, "but we still have no motives or suspects as of today."

Hogan said that another newspaper and a radio station had also called to ask him about the incident although the department had not yet issued a report.

The remaining three council candidates, Anita Puglisi, John Farrell and Martin Reynolds, each said they received a phone call from Newark resident Shirley Tarrant about the incident. Tarrant reportedly said the person or persons attacking Bowling said they were doing it to keep him off city council.

Reached at his home, Bowling initially said he was very upset that the incident was getting sensationalized. "I feel this was a random attack — nothing more," said Bowling, who claimed he did not know why Tarrant was making statements about the assault. "I really didn't want to talk to the police or anyone else about it."

In a subsequent phone call, Bowling said he "might have forgotten" to mention that the attacker said, "we don't want you on council," before the suspect ran away.

Despite this, Bowling insisted he absolutely did not think the attack was related to his campaign for city council. "I in no way think any campaign opponent, or any resident of Newark at all, is involved in this," said Bowling. "I can't say that strongly enough."

In Bowling's original version of the incident, the motion detector light went on under his deck Tuesday night and he went out to investigate. "I was walking down the side of the hill near my home when somebody grabbed me from behind and threw me to the ground," he explained. "Then they punched me in the stomach and ran off toward Barksdale Road."

Bowling said he was concerned because he has an ileostomy which began to bleed after the attack. "I drove to Nancy Turner's house to ask her to take me to the hospital," said Bowling. In his second telephone call with the Newark Post, he said that Shirley Tarrant drove the car which took him to the hospital.

According to Bowling, he has bruising in the area where he was hit and will follow up with his own surgeon about damage to the ileostomy. He was not admitted to the hospital

HAPPY 101ST BIRTHDAY!

Glasgow native Rose Whiteside recently celebrated her 101st birthday with an open house at her nephew's home in the Bear community of Liberty Terrace.

Whiteside, born on June 17, 1897, was one of 11 children of Frank and Lena Price. She and her brother, Robert, are the only two still living.

Whiteside, who lived in New York City before returning to Delaware, still enjoys attending church at St. Thomas AUMP Church in Glasgow where she is a member. Her recommendations for a long and happy life include plenty of rest, early rising, thanking God for another brand new day, and a cup of coffee.

Newark High student charged with disorderly conduct

A Newark High School teacher told police that on June 9 around 9:15 a.m., a 15-year-old female student acted in a disorderly manner and refused to leave the school. Police stated the student was not happy with the outcome of a court case involving the school on the previous day. The student was charged with criminal trespass and disorderly conduct.

Festival goers can party the length of Main Street from in front of the University Mall to Market East Plaza east of Tyre Avenue.

Newark Shopping Center is planning an International food court with ethnic treats from No. 1 Chinese, T'Adelphia, Saigon Vietnam, and La Tolteca among the offerings. Antique cars and motorcycles will be displayed in the shopping center also.

Three stages will have live musical performances throughout the evening: Montana Wildaxe, and Dallas and the Stillwater Band on stage at the Newark Shopping Center; New Direction, and Vic Sadot's Planete Folle at the Academy Building lawn; and Soul Avengers, and Jerry and the Juveniles on stage by the University Mall.

Businesses, vendors and community groups will offer music and entertainment, food, beverages, children's activities, handcrafts, art exhibits, information and sales throughout the evening.

The Children's Area, in a new location this year behind Abbott's Shoe Repair in Newark Parking Authority Lot 3, will have children's games with prizes, art activities, a giant slide, and a moon-bounce.

Also in the children's area, Jackie LaGuardia will present her songs for children at 5 p.m., a puppeteer with Miles of Smiles will perform at 6 p.m., and Jungle John brings on his animal show at 7:15 p.m.

Pony rides will be offered throughout the evening next to Newark Lumber while starting at 5 p.m., the Newark Rotary Club's dunking booth will be open for wet business at Academy Street. Among the dunkers is the Newark Post's own sports editor, Marty Valania, who will sit in the precarious spot atop a tank of muddy water from 6 to 6:30 p.m.

Main Street will be closed throughout the event from Tyre Avenue to South College Avenue. Free parking is available in the Newark Parking Authority lots off Delaware Avenue and off Center Street, and University of Delaware lots in various locations.

In case of inclement weather on Saturday, announcements about the event will be made on major radio stations and on the parks and recreation event line at 366-7147.

years. I have been anxious to implement my vision of what a high school can be and I look forward to the challenges awaiting me," said Carr. "Lake Forest High School is smaller than Newark but its community is just as involved and supportive."

Lt. Col. Charles Hill, director of Newark High's JROTC program, said Carr will be greatly missed. "This is a tremendous loss to Newark," said Hill. "Micky Carr is brilliant in terms of his organizational skills and dealing with people. He will be almost impossible to replace."

Hill also commented on Carr's "refreshing sense of humor," which Carr said Carr often needed. "The students loved him," said Hill, "including my daughter, who pointed out he's Irish - of course."

Recent Newark graduate Matt Harder agreed Carr was great with students. "He was the best guy in the building if I needed to talk to somebody," said Harder who now works for Junior Achievement. "He didn't lose his cool about things and I always appreciated that."

Parent Diane Baumgartner, co-chair of the school's Citizen Advisory Committee, said Carr will be missed for all his hard work covering special events at the school. "He always did a very nice job with events like 9th grade orientation, open houses and graduation, and the parents would like to thank him."

Baumgartner added that she and other parents were sorry he was leaving so soon. "We won't have a chance to personally wish him well," she said. Carr begins his tenure at Lake Forest on July 1.

Carr came to Delaware in 1976 as a psychologist and started the alternative program which would eventually become the nationally-recognized Option Program. After 12 years working with that program, Carr transferred first to Christiana High School and then to Newark.

In the mid-1980's, he co-authored "Changing Families, Changing Schools," a report by the Delaware Association of School Administrators. This led to the creation of the State Interagency Council for Children of which he was one of the founding members.

He also has published articles in national publications and has served as the president of the Delaware Association of Secondary School Principals. In 1993, he was chosen as Delaware's Assistant Principal of the Year, the first Christiana administrator so honored.

Plan for Newark Lumber site is unveiled

► PLAN, from 1

are seeking rezoning, major subdivision and a parking waiver for a 9,900 square-foot commercial and 51-space residential development to be known as Main Street Court.

"I saw the plan," said Clifton. "They want to keep the building on Main Street and have retail on the first floor with six apartments on the second floor."

Clifton said he would like to see another hardware store where the former lumber and hardware business operated for over 100 years. "It's convenient for people, Rickels is closed in College Square, and we need more critical services like this in the downtown."

Clifton thought that another possible uses for the old building with a footprint of 4,900 square-feet could be a restaurant of some kind.

All the other buildings on the approximately two-acre property will be razed, including the old house behind the Shell Gas Station. "I wholeheartedly endorse this," said Clifton. "Getting access from Chapel Street where the house is now is a problem."

The developer plans another entrance off Delaware Avenue, next to the pizza restaurant. "A four-story, L-shaped building with retail spaces under one part will go at that end of the property," said Clifton. "The other leg of that building will have parking underneath."

Clifton said the plan shows 45 apartments in the new building with one-bedroom units on the second floor. "They're talking about two-story apartments on the third and fourth floors with one and two bedrooms," Clifton said.

The District 2 councilmember is seeking feedback on the idea from his constituents. "My concern is the opinions of the citizens," said Clifton, "especially people living on Tyre Avenue which face the entrance off Delaware."

The site will need a 25 percent parking waiver, according to Clifton. "Too much parking would take away a lot of greenspace," said Clifton, who believes the site will be attractive to young professionals, graduate students and undergraduates.

"It seems like a good plan, as long as we have good developers," said Clifton. "With all the downtown development we've been approving, we'll either be known as the council with foresight or the council that brought Newark to its knees."

Clifton believes the plan, if approved and built, will change the "whole complexion" of that end of Main Street. "People will live here and shop here," said Clifton. "There are businesses out there watching the redevelopment here - a lot of business that would leave malls to get back to Main Street USA."

Fathers Day triggers memories

► FATHERS, from 1

Margaret Catts, the former executive director of the Newark Senior Center, and currently Head Lion of the Newark Lions Club, counts her father's advice among the most valuable she has ever received.

"When I was a child I used to go on nature walks with my father in Watkins Glen, New York," recalled

Catts. "Once we saw a single flower blooming in an out-of-the-way rocky patch, where no one would ever visit it."

"My father told me the flower didn't care if no one could see it. It was going to bloom, anyway. He told me you don't always have to do great things, but always bloom where you are planted."

Vibrant downtown is Bowling's priority

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Abbotsford resident Scott Bowling said a vibrant downtown is his first priority if he is elected to city council.

"I fully support the Newark Downtown Partnership just created and I want to do everything possible to make it a success," said Bowling, adding he was a little concerned about parking.

"I want to make sure we have parking that's convenient, safe and available," said Bowling. "I'd also like to see handicapped parking on the street as well as in the parking lots."

Bowling also would like to see a restaurant that could provide a focal point to bring people to Newark. "We have a lot of great places to eat, but don't have a single upscale restaurant, something like Cafe Bellissimo, that's set apart and would attract people from places like Wilmington for dining and shopping on Main Street," he said.

In the area of traffic congestion, Bowling said he would continue to support that Western Newark Traffic Relief Committee in its efforts.

"I also want to maintain the city-services which I have come to appreciate," said Bowling. "As far as water goes, however, I want to focus on improving quality and then down the road, work on quantity."

He thinks it is very important to take steps now to ensure the city will not lose customers when electric deregulation kicks in. "We can't wait until that jumps out at us," he said. "I'm concerned about the University of Delaware and other commercial customers who only have to purchase a minimum from the city. "Could they decide to produce their own electric, or buy a portion from another provider?"

Last but not least, Bowling hopes to find ways to "bridge the gap" between students and long term residents in the city. "It all comes down to communication and we need some work there," said Bowling. "I'd also like to find a way to provide incentives for landlords who are responsible and not costing the city any dollars."

Bowling, a credit manager at MBNA America Bank, is a graduate of Loyola College. Currently president of the Abbotsford Civic Association, he has lived in Newark for five years.

Water supplies top Farrell's list*Electric services also an issue

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

John Farrell addressed traffic in Newark, first, although it is not his top priority. "Ralph Reeb and his merry band of DeDOT engineers are doing what they can to tweak our traffic problems," said Farrell. "Council can't do anything but push the process and that's what I would help do."

Among the items he would try to change, if elected to city council, Farrell put Newark's water supplies at the top of his list.

Farrell noted that low water supplies are a perennial problem in Newark, especially after the summer when University of Delaware students come back. "We have five million gallons a day in the White Clay Creek and we only process three million," Farrell said. "I'd like to work with the Water Resource Agency to reallocate some of the amount we have to let go by for United Water."

He would also like to improve the water quality in areas like Rob-scott Manor and Yorkshire where high iron content caused the south wellfields to be closed down.

Farrell also wants to make certain that Newark retains and maintains current electric services. "A lot of people don't know that Newark's electric rates are 14 percent lower than the other local company," said Farrell. "And even though the rates are lower, they use the revenues to run other city services like police, parks and streets. We need to continue that."

When he came to the issue of public safety, the EMS supervisor laughed and said, "That's my life!" Farrell would like council to approve funding for a reverse 911 system in Newark similar to the one now used in New Castle County. "I've been interested in this ever since I went to meetings for the 800-megahertz System Oversight Committee," said Farrell. "This would be an enhancement — a valuable tool the police can use."

Farrell said he has been involved in the community as a volunteer firefighter and in the parks and recreation programs for years and plans to continue this as a way to be accessible if he's elected. "I do things with my neighbors but need to hear their concerns from them," said Farrell. "Often what seems a small concern for the city is a big thing in a neighborhood."

A resident of Newark for 25 years, Farrell lives in Woodmere with his wife and two children. He works for New Castle County where he has been an emergency communications supervisor for the past 15 years.

City services is top issue for Reynolds

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Martin Reynolds' top issues as a councilmember would be maintaining the city's high level of services. "This is especially important in the area of the parks program at a time when the county and other groups are cutting back on services," said Reynolds. "I think the city's trash and police services are very good and we ought to keep those going well."

Reynolds is concerned about electric deregulation on Newark. "We're moving into a bad new world because it is hard to know what electric deregulation will bring," he said. "Hopefully the city will be able to buy electricity at lower rates and provide more services."

Reynolds believes Newark needs a long term water supply. "But we need to do it in an environmentally-caring way," he noted. "If we dam White Clay Creek, we can never get it back."

He would like to investigate water that might be found at abandoned well-sites in Newark's north and south wellfields under Main Street and at Phillips Avenue.

Curbside recycling is another area that could use further review, according to Reynolds. "I hear people are happy to participate but not at the expense of services," said Reynolds. "More than 50 percent of the households participated during the pilot program at one time or another."

Traffic congestion is not something that a city councilmember can correct, said Reynolds. "We're playing with cards that are already on the table," he said.

He noted there are traffic issues of local concern to his District. "I would prefer not to see Casho Mill underpass ever grow an inch in any direction," he said, because I don't want to see Route 273 and Elkton Road become the de facto truck route leading to Hillside Road."

Reynolds said he has lost patience with the owners of the DelChapel site on South Chapel Street. "If the guy's not going to (clean it up), then the city should go ahead and do it," he said. "It will cost the city money, but we're paying for it in other ways already and this would just move it around on the accounting sheet."

Rentals concern

Reynolds and he believed some of the downtown development may help draw students out of neighborhoods with permanent populations. "We need to be attentive to problems that arise on the edges of the 'student zone' of housing," he said. "I would also like to see if it's possible to reward landlords who keep their place up."

A longtime resident of Newark, Reynolds is a graduate of Holy Angels School and Newark High School and holds a degree in economics from the University of Delaware.

Reynolds lives in Woodmere with his wife and three children and is a past president of the Woodmere/Timber Creek Civic Association. He is co-owner of Barba-Reynolds Insurance Agency in Newark.

Puglisi seeks traffic solution

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Nottingham Green resident Anita Puglisi said traffic congestion in Newark is one of her top priorities in running for city council.

"I serve on the Public Advisory Committee of WILMAPCO," said Puglisi, "and I've looked at this from a county and state perspective."

Puglisi said traffic is a concern "mainly in the core," but also on the western side of Newark. "I think everyone is coming to the realization now that Maryland will not agree to a bypass, though, so we need to look for other solutions," said Puglisi.

Puglisi believes the Newark Downtown Partnership is a great idea. "This should help the downtown tremendously with economic development," she said. "The city is wisely getting into it and getting a handle on it."

She is especially encouraged about the involvement of the University of Delaware in the venture. "The University and its students are not the bad guys here," said Puglisi. "I think they try to be good neighbors."

But Puglisi said she realized problems with rentals occurred in some areas of Newark more than others. "Some people have really been bitten by disruptive behavior and I don't have all the answers," said Puglisi. "I sympathize with older residents who have to live alongside (disorderly) students."

Puglisi

Puglisi is also committed to ensuring an adequate water supply for Newark as well as supporting efforts to find activities for young people in the city.

A 27-year resident of Newark, Puglisi is a former president of the League of Women Voters of New Castle County which she joined over 25 years ago.

In addition to representing Newark on the Public Advisory Committee of the Wilmington Area Planning Council, she is a board member of the Newark Housing Authority.

She holds a degree from Michigan State Teaching College and has studied urban affairs and public policy at the University of Delaware.

Is youth facility needed?

IN THE PAST SEVERAL YEARS, numerous persons in Newark have raised the idea of building a youth facility in the city.

Two summers ago, Newark Shopping Center was swamped every night with teens to young adults, socializing, fighting, strolling, cruising and just hanging out from twilight to the early morning hours. Merchants complained to the management and police about the vandalism and other behavior that cost them business.

Some of those young people told city council at that time they wanted a place to call their own without interference from supervision or adults. All they needed was a site and they would take care of everything else.

City officials and others tried to provide direction and assistance for this dream. A coalition of local residents, church leaders and officials spent considerable time talking with that group and others to try to find an answer.

Along the way those particular young people ceased showing up for meetings. But the city continued to look for answers.

Some residents also have continued to ask what can be done, most recently in a letter in the Newark Post this week about the coming special election.

City manager Carl Luft noted at a recent council meeting that a facility for youth was a long-time priority of the city Parks Department, but said he was reluctant to recommend one for liability reasons.

A youth facility owned and maintained by anyone would have costs for the city, at the very least in police and security. A youth facility owned and maintained by the city would cost considerably more, including liability for injury or other incidents on the site.

Perhaps one way to put this issue to rest, at least for this decade, would be a voter referendum to address the question. Would the residents support such a facility, financially or otherwise?

If not, it's just another case of "it can't help, but it doesn't hurt" to keep talking about it — going nowhere in our opinion.

A daughter of Delaware

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

MENTION GLORIA STEINEM, Germaine Greer, Betty Friedan or Kate Millett and listeners immediately understand that you are speaking of key strategists, proponents and spokespersons of the Women's Liberation Movement of the 1960s and 1970s.

Mention Florence Bayard Hilles and the response is likely to be a blank stare.

Yet in the early years of the 20th century, Mrs. Hilles, a socially prominent daughter of Secretary of State Thomas F. Bayard and the descendant of three U. S. senators, was a widely respected leader in the struggle for women's rights in Delaware and throughout the nation.

During World War I Mrs. Hilles was a member of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense and, at a time when few women were employed in defense industries, she became a munitions worker at the Bethlehem Steel Loading Plant in Wilmington. When the war ended she spent six months in France helping to rebuild damaged villages.

On the local scene she became a leader of the Equal Suffrage Association and was a member of a delegation of distinguished Delawareans who spoke in behalf of voting rights for women at a hearing held in Dover on Jan. 13, 1920. But despite this impassioned presentation, the participants in the constitutional convention rejected the women's petition a month later, 17-7, with every Democrat voting against it. It was three years later that another state provided the ratification needed for a revision of the nation's voting laws.

Mrs. Hilles also worked with the Prisoners' Aid Society, the People's Settlement and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and was legislative chairman of the Business and Professional Women of Wilmington. During her extensive travel in the U. S. and abroad, she acquired a valuable collection of autographs of prominent people she had met. A fine athlete, she won both women's golf and tennis championships in Delaware and singles and doubles tennis championships in the District of Columbia. She served as president of the Philadelphia Women's Golf Association and, for three successive years, captained the Inter-city golf team.

On Dec. 12, 1943, Mrs. Hilles' many achievements were formally recognized by the National Woman's Party of which she was a member. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont had given her private feminist library collection to the party with the stipulation that it be housed in a fireproof building. At the party's biennial convention in Philadelphia in 1942, it was disclosed that the coach house of the Alva Belmont Mansion, the party's Washington headquarters since 1930, would be renovated as a library and named in Mrs. Hilles' honor.

The dedication, scheduled during a week-long Bill of Rights observance in the nation's capital, attracted dignitaries from many states and several other countries, including a large delegation from Delaware. Among the guests were Sen. and Mrs. James M. Tunnell and Miss Marie Lockwood of Middletown, state chairman of the National Woman's Party. Pouring at a tea following the dedication were Miss Ellen LaMotte, author and DuPont family member, and Miss Olivia Taylor, great-great granddaughter of Thomas Jefferson.

The library, a collection of more than 3,000 volumes, had been augmented by gifts from all over the world and documented women's activities for more than a century. The coach house had been redesigned for library use by Miss Elise du Pont of Wilmington.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

The summer has not yet gotten really sweltering but this week's old photo is a very cool blast from the past. The view of Main Street at Academy shows, to the left, the old opera house, now Grassroots, before the "corner" door was added. The photo taken in December 1953 was sent to the Post by Barbara White of Windy Hills.

In an effort to provide more complete descriptions of our "Out of the Attic" photographs, volunteer historians of the Newark Historical Society are identifying and researching some historic shots. Readers are encouraged to send old photos to the Newark Post, "Out of the Attic," 153 E. Chestnut Hill Rd., Newark 19713. Special care will be taken. For information, call 737-0724.

Health planning council okays Omega

The state Interim Health Planning Council voted its approval of the Wilmington Medical Center's Omega Plan Tuesday night — virtually assuring the medical center of federal funding for its proposal.

In a small room in the Kent Campus Delaware Technical and Community College — packed with more than 60 people — the council's members voted 18-3, with one abstention, to recommend approval to the secretary of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for Plan Omega, the medical center's $73.6 million proposal to build an 800-bed hospital on 200 acres in Stanton, and to remodel a 250-bed Delaware division in Wilmington.

Glasgow High's Al Minker has a somewhat different alternative. Minker was selected 24th in the third round of the professional baseball summer free-agent draft by the Oakland A's, perennial powers of the American League.

Barrett Run not 'Thurgood Marshall'

After heated discussion, the Christina board of education renamed Barrett Run Elementary School after Thurgood Marshall, a former supreme court justice who recently died.

George Evans, board member, suggested that the school, for children in kindergarten through third grade, which will open in September, be named after Marshall because of the contributions he made to education.

Local volleyball team off to national tournament in Kansas City

One of the best young volleyball teams on the East Coast is from right here in Delaware.

The Delaware Gold 14-and-under team qualified for the national tournament starting June 25 in Kansas City, Mo.

The team captured first place in the Chesapeake Regional championships in Columbia, Md., to earn its invitation to Kansas City.

The Delaware team, featuring many girls from the Newark area, also finished third in the East Regional Championships held at Penn State University over Memorial Day weekend.

Issue for the 90s: School property tax reform

IT HAS BEEN DESCRIBED AS the most significant issue of the 1990's. The proposal: eliminate state-mandated school property taxes over a five year period while providing adequate and substantial funding to our public schools. Since state lawmakers unveiled the idea last month, my phone and the phones of other lawmakers have not stopped ringing.

If adopted, this bold school finance plan would require the state to assume essentially all of the local share of school costs in grades K-12 in exchange for a dollar-for-dollar reduction in local school taxes. All state education mandates and standards would be covered as would certain other education expenses. Property owners would save an estimated $250 million in local property taxes at the end of the five year phase-in period.

This school finance plan also requires the state to assume full fiscal responsibility for major capital expenditures now on the books but not in progress. This would include those projects that have been supported by positive referenda results. Any new capital projects which are subsequently approved by a state certification process would be funded at 100% by the state.

Under the proposal the Delaware resident who presently pays $1000 a year in school-related property taxes would see this tax reduced by $200 the first year, $400 the second year, $600 the third year, and so on through the fifth year. The plan is intended to provide substantial and adequate funding to public schools, but not necessarily to eliminate the option of local referenda.

In keeping with our bipartisan commitment to local control and decision making for schools, the option of local referenda would be retained. Districts that want to pursue programs and enhancements beyond what the state requires would be allowed to take their case to the voters through referenda.

By Stephanie Ulbrich

Local needs and interests in the Christina School District may differ from those in Dover. As one of the lawmakers responsible for developing this proposal I think school districts need this kind of flexibility.

By financing schools this way we can deliver needed resources to the schools on a fair and equitable basis. And, we will be able to do it on a timetable that makes sense. It makes no sense for resources to trail needs by months and years. The other reason for financing schools this way is that it gives us an opportunity to slash a tax that is widely viewed as onerous and unfair due to the huge differences in property tax rates around the state.

The timing certainly could not be better for such an approach. The state is benefiting and will continue to benefit from a strong and diversified economy that is producing historic surpluses. Equally important, this plan was set up to produce a net balance in total state expenditures. Although the state will assume essentially all of the local share of school costs (grades K-12) including state mandates and standards the increase in the state budget will be balanced on a dollar-for-dollar basis by tax cuts at the local level. The beauty of the idea is this net balance in total expenditures.

It is no wonder this break-the-mold school finance plan has been called the most significant issue of the 1990's. And it's no wonder my phone has been ringing off the hook with calls from residents offering favorable comments. Needless to say, I am hoping the Governor and state education officials embrace this idea so we can make this happen in Delaware.

Hilles fought for women's equality

► CHANCE, from 6

ington and featured a portrait of Mrs. Hilles on one wall. The building was named in a ceremony conducted by Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the National Woman's Party and the World Woman's Party for Equal Rights.

News coverage of the occasion described Mrs. Hilles as "a daughter of Delaware" and "a pioneer suffrage leader". The library, one report said, was "a fitting and permanent tribute to one of America's most illustrious women."

In acknowledging the recognition given her, Mrs. Hilles said, "That requests for material and information are coming from all over the United States is an indication of the general interest. Just as yearning for liberty and justice transcend national boundaries, so the question of equality of sex transcends political limitations."

Historians who catalog the achievements of feminists who have led the fight for equality have no difficulty in recalling the names Steinem, Greer, Friedan and Millett. But the successes of these contemporary advocates, at least in part, can be attributed to the efforts a half century earlier of a daughter of Delaware whose name is seldom recalled.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor

From: Monroe Hite Jr.
Barksdale Road

I represent myself and about six of my neighbors who want to know where the candidates for the city council seat in District 1 stand on some questions.

First, we want to know if they would recommend a bypass, if they would recommend one extending from Elkton Road to Barksdale Road, and why?

Second, where do they stand on building in floodplains which causes runoff in low lying areas like Timber Creek?

Third, would you vote to have a feasibility study done for new recreational facilities in Newark? This is a real problem in Newark. The parks and recreation department does a good job, but now we can't use the schools anymore and we need to do something.

Finally, would the candidates be open to a debate between them, and why? I'm trying to talk to the League of Women Voters about this.

I have talked to all of the candidates but one about these questions and we think a lot of people in this district would like to have answers to these questions.

It's a very exciting thing to have four candidates running. I want to know the person elected will represent District 1.

NEWARK OUTLOOK

Thwarting the evening hunger pains

"Every evening it's the same story. My family and I arrive home each evening about the same time. They are famished and I am tired. How can I keep them from eating snacks right before dinner?" I recently received this question at a program I was offering and once it was asked everyone had some ideas they wanted to share.

If your family is starved when they come in the door, you can almost guarantee they will head straight for the refrigerator without stopping or hesitating. So why not have the first course ready for them? A container of fresh veggies (prepared the night before) with a low-fat or yogurt dip will stave off starvation for awhile. Hide the chips, cookies, and candy.

Another suggestion given was to prepare a salad the night before. While the main course is cooking, you and your family can enjoy sitting down together for a "first course" to the meal.

Home-made TV dinners, store-bought dinners, stir-fry meats and frozen vegetable mixtures can be ready in a very short time with a little preplanning. Store bought dinners or TV dinners are typically more expensive though. Some attendees said they would rather make their own meals and freeze them to save money.

It was unanimous among the attendees. Using your microwave could help you prepare almost instant meals. Some preparations can be completed the day before; the use of leftovers was the number one choice.

Others said they make over a left over. For example, left-over baked chicken was used in a stir-fry the next day. Some food preparers used time in the morning before work to make part of the dinnertime meal.

Another time saver from one mom was to set the table before leaving for work. This saved her time in getting the food on the table.

Enlisting family members to prepare supper was also mentioned as a big help. That way everyone has a job and you can concentrate on food preparation. It also gives young children the opportunity to learn the steps in getting a meal on the table.

Trying to prepare dinner and get it on the table quick can be hard if you're tired and hungry. Using some of these tips will keep you from filling up on junk or opting to spend more money on quick meals or eating out. Happy healthy nibbling.

Dancing at the Coal Crackers Picnic

by Rachelle Kuchta
"Coal Cracker" will:

- Make you smile.
- Make you eat haluskie and pierogies.
- Make you do the "Chicken Dance."
- Make you feel like part of a family.
- All of the above.

According to 68-year-old Lillian Zanolini, who moved to Newark in 1975, the term Coal Cracker came from the way people used to crack pieces of coal to put in the stoves in their homes.

Zanolini helped organize a picnic in Banning Park for about 275 Coal Crackers gathered earlier this month to celebrate their roots in the coal-mining area of northeastern Pennsylvania. Over the past dozen years, attendance has steadily grown, according to the retired MBNA employee.

As party-goers gathered on a cool, late-spring day, many scanned each other's name tags in hopes of finding old friends and acquaintances. Ranging in age from a 6-year-old granddaughter to a 91-year-old retired coal miner, the crowd included people from nearly 50 Pennsylvania towns, such as Plymouth, Berwick, Freeland, Wilkes-Barre and West Pittston.

Zanolini, who attended the event with nearly a dozen family members, led the picnickers in singing "You are my Sunshine," and in dancing the polka.

Bill Gantz, an assistant cook at the picnic, said Zanolini is one of the most dedicated persons in preserving and celebrating the memory of the times in the coal region. While wiping his hands on his "Bill's Pierogies" apron, the 64-year-old Gantz explained most of those attending the event were either a person or descendent of a person who migrated to northern Delaware from the Pennsylvania mining region in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Gantz worked as a research technologist for DuPont for 32 years. Along with countless others, Gantz said he moved because the declining coal industry offered no opportunities.

He said the majority of people came to northern Delaware to work for General Motors and Chrysler because of the good pay and jobs that did not require specialized skills.

"The positive-thinking people left," added the former

Shenandoah, Pa., resident. "The heartbeat of the coal region is gone."

Gantz said he continues to live in Delaware for economic reasons and because the coal towns are now desolate. "They were very prosperous towns at one time when coal was king," he said.

Inside the park pavilion, decorations displayed the group's roots and pride in their past. A train of coal cars made out of black construction paper hung with red, white and blue clothespins on a clothesline along the side of the pavilion. "These people are very patriotic," said Zanolini. Each coal car represented two or three towns from which the members once resided.

Fifty-two-year-old Elaine Grand Field moved to Wilmington in the fourth grade from the town of St. Clair, Pa. The Elsmere resident, who talked her mother and sister into attending the picnic, said that St. Clair was "a safer place, a whole different way of life."

"It's like stepping back 25 years when I visit," said Field, who travels to northeastern Pennsylvania once a year to see family and friends.

She said she has a fulfilling life in northern Delaware. Then she glanced at the celebrating Coal Crackers and admitted she missed some things. "The (coal region) is home, and it will always be home," she said.

Posing questions about time

Jeanne Murray Walker, professor of English at the University of Delaware, has no time on her hands but plenty of questions about time in her head. Her latest book of poems, "Gaining Time," explores all the illusive qualities of time and how time in the present is tied to the past.

"I'm trying to explain when time lost its absolute character..." she wrote in the opening poem, "Simultaneity."

With many of the poems set in her childhood home of Parkers Prairie, Minn., the poems also take a peek back at the people who lived in Parkers Prairie in its early years. "My family left Parkers Prairie when I was eight," said Walker. "Ten years ago when my mother, my kids and I went back for a visit, I realized how fascinated I was by that small town."

A series of the book's poems, called "the Aunt Joe Poems," is loosely based on the life of Walker's real Aunt Joe, the woman who married the first man who came to town in an automobile.

Aunt Joe's life is told in short vignettes that Walker also is using as the basis for a play, "Rowing into The Light on Lake Adley," that will be performed next year at the University's Professional Theatre Training Program.

"It's like going back in time and hearing these people tell their stories as if they were talking - like sipping coffee with the dead," Walker said.

The book, published by Copper Beech Press, tells the tales of many other characters from the town, including the beauty operator who ran her salon in her living room, the proprietor of the general store, kids at the local high school, and a family of German immigrants.

One of the poems documents the moment the town was founded by a 27-year-old man who had walked for days through waist high grass in the heat of summer, searching for a place to settle. The poem starts:

Parker Homesteads, 1867
After the last spadeful of earth - his - knocks on his father's coffin, he walks home to the front door his older brother has locked forever. He is the youngest son, disinherited, with nothing but twelve dollars and the heat of his own heart to pitch like a tent against the cold.

And not an inch of land.

So he makes a bargain with America.

Walker, a fellow at the University's Center for Advanced Study, has also received a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship, five Pennsylvania Council on the Arts Fellowships and several Pew Fellowships.

A short drive can take you a long way back in time

By PHIL TOMAN

NEWARK POST ARTS WRITER

LET'S BEGIN WITH Toman's Test for Today! If you wanted to take a step back in time and visit an old tobacco plantation and manor house, how far south would you have to drive or fly? You may be surprised to know that only over the state line to just west of Cecilton, Maryland!

The Mount Harmon Plantation, overlooking the Sassafras River, with its 250 year old Georgian Manor House is open Tuesdays and Thursdays 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays 1 to 4 p.m.

Once a thriving tobacco plantation, it is located not far from the Girl Scout Camp at Grove Point, just off of Grove Neck Road. Mount Harmon is almost an island and recalls life and work in the 17th and 18th centuries on our peninsula. The plantation is remarkable well preserved, thanks to the Friends of Mount Harmon, an all-volunteer group dedicated to saving this lovely spot from oblivion or development.

While the tobacco Prize House, where the tobacco was pressed into barrels and stored until it could be shipped to England still stands on the edge of the Sassafras, it is the manor house which I feel deserves special attention. With its self standing plantation kitchen and other artifacts of the time, the house recalls domestic life in another, long past time. The beautiful building of ancient brick was completely restored about 30 years ago and filled with English, Irish and Scottish antiques which reflect Mount Harmon's commerce with the British Isles.

In this quiet location, it is like stepping back in time, albeit not like using H. G. Wells' machine, but a much easier trip to be sure. This is the time of Colonial plantations. It makes an interesting visit for old and young alike, with something to share with everyone. The appointments may make you feel you are in a fine museum, as indeed you are, but it is also a home that was lived in and used by people operating a business in the Colonial and Post-Revolutionary periods.

For the history buffs, Mount Harmon, now listed on the National Historic Register, began in 1651 as a land grant of 350 acres to Godfrey Harmon. Caecilius Calvert, the second Lord Baltimore who owned all of Maryland, made the grant. Mount Harmon expert June Cason told me, "It was a typical frontier plantation of colonial time. It was isolated and was a self-sufficient economic unit producing tobacco for shipment to England and, in exchange, receiving most of its necessities and luxuries from the mother country." When you visit Mount Harmon today, and I hope you will, you still get that feeling of another time, another place.

Has Mount Harmon been standing there is all of its glory waiting for us to come visit? Not quite. It fell on hard times, but its fortunes began to change in 1963 when Mrs. Harry Clark Boden, IV, a direct descendent of the Louttit and George families who lived on the plantation from 1760 1810, became the owner. It took her twelve years, before she completely restored the plantation to the quality of the original with the help of Albert Kruse, a well known restoration architect. She was meticulous in her purchases for the manor house to make sure what we see today was what we might have seen if we visited in the plantations in earlier days.

During the period of restoration, Mrs. Boden researched and published four volumes of diaries, "Mount Harmon Diaries of Sidney George Fisher, 1787-1850." These diaries are scheduled to be reprinted this year by the Delaware Historical Society.

In 1974 Mrs. Boden donated the plantation to the National Trust for Historic preservation and in 1977 her will created a fine endowment for the property. Today Mount Harmon is operated by the Friends of Mt. Harmon, Inc., a non profit corporation. A Tip of the Toman Topper to that group. Thanks to them we can visit there and enjoy a very special look at our peninsula's early history.

For more information, or to schedule a special event, you may write Friends of Mount Harmon, P. O. Box 65 Earlville, MD 21919.

Teachers praised at NHS graduation

By STEVE WESTRICK

STAFF WRITER

FRIENDS and family packed the Bob Carpenter Center to watch the 315 members of the Newark High School class of 1998 receive their diplomas on June 3.

Co-valedictorians, Elizabeth Oldach and Jacob Reidel each honored a teacher during their speeches. Reidel spoke of Latin and English teacher, Dr. John Reddington, while Oldach said band director, Lloyd Ross was always there for his students.

"Thank-you for your kindness, your patience and your love," Oldach said. "Thank-you for everything Mr. Ross."

Reidel said Reddington broadened the way he thought about all aspects of life, describing him as a true educator. "If there exists some sort of love a student can feel for his teacher, I have felt that for (Dr.

Reddington)," Reidel said.

Veterinarian Dr. James Berg of the Newark Class of 1971 was the guest speaker. Berg started a practice in Bear, and does a regular radio show and bimonthly column in a local newspaper.

Berg talked about changes that have taken place at Newark since he graduated, his decision to become a veterinarian, and the tradition of successful sports at Newark.

"I've had a pretty good life and Newark High gave me a real good starting point,"

Berg said.

In a lighter moment of the speech, Berg talked about the difference between dogs and cats. "Dogs will come when you call them. Cats will take a message and get back to you," Berg said.

Principal Frank Hagen told the students this should not be the end of their education.

"You must continue to be a life long learner," he said. "This is your challenge: You must except the fact that your life will be different from henceforth."

In his remarks, Christina school superintendent, Dr. Nicholas A. Fisher praised all Newark teachers and staff members for their part in educating the graduates.

But Fischer added that parents deserve most of the praise for their children's success.

"Sometimes we forget that most of the learning does not happen in school," he said. "Most of the learning happens outside of school. These people outside the classroom deserve credit for all these graduating students."

Before the ceremony, the students seemed to be filled with mixed emotions.

"I'm a little scared, but also excited," said Larry Heagren, who will attend Del-

Tech in the fall.

"(This is) a big step. A lot of people say this is the last step into becoming an adult."

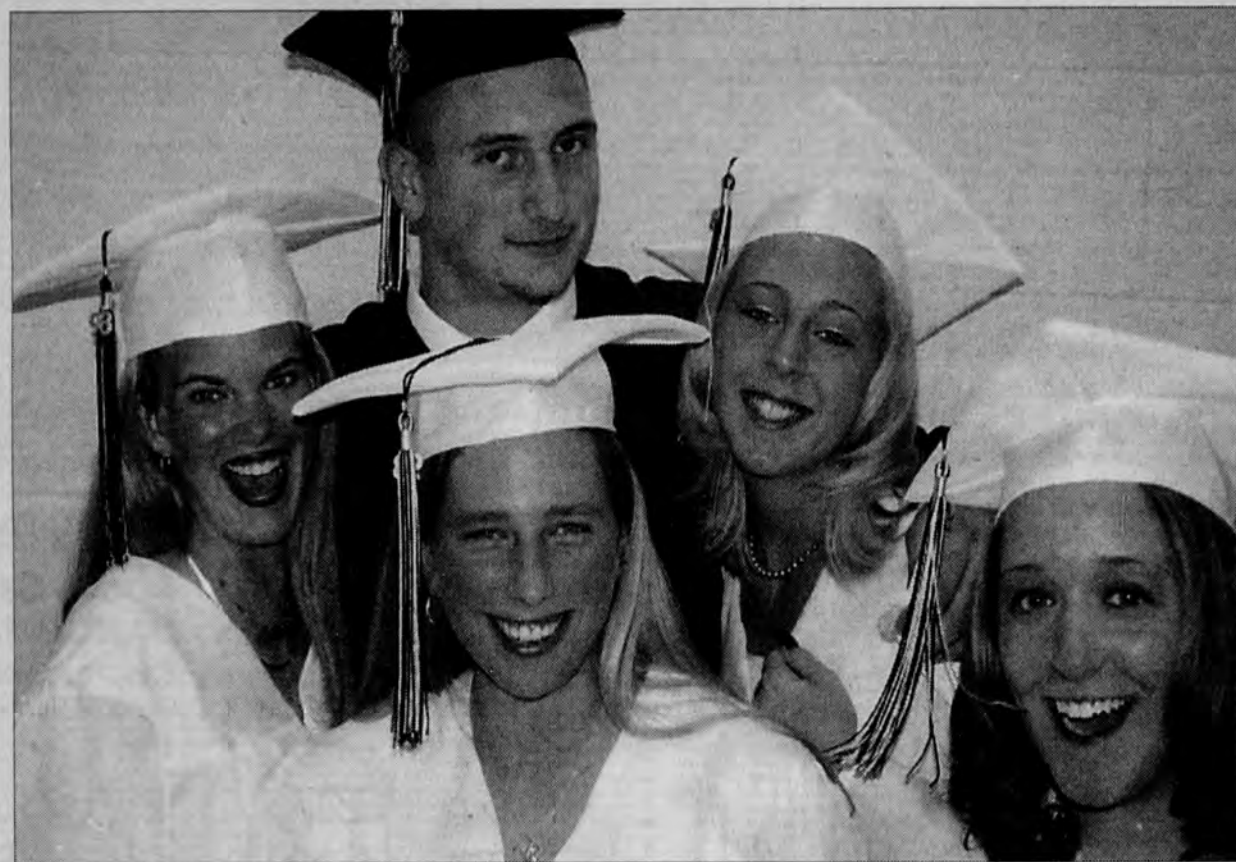

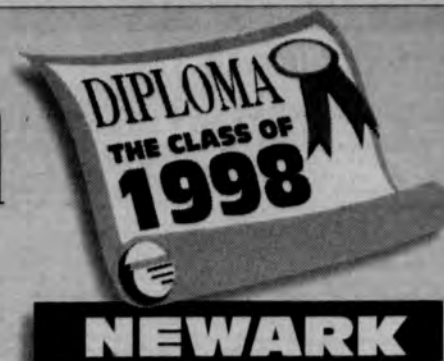

Andrea Clarke, who received a student of excellence award said she had a combination of feelings. "There is some relief, excitement and pride," Clarke said.

Clarke will attend Temple University and major in political science in the fall.

Jennifer Forshey and Tiffany George, yearbook editors who were also in orchestra together, said they will miss their friends.

"You have been with these people since fourth grade playing instruments," Forshey said. "By the time you graduate, you're going to miss them a lot."

Caravel goes forth with four valedictorians

By DENISE MATTHEWS

STAFF WRITER

CARAVEL ACADEMY'S Class of 1998 celebrated 12 years of hard work on June 3 in the school's gymnasium.

Surrounded by friends and family, the 51 graduating seniors passed through the traditional arch of roses held by the Junior Class with girls in long white dresses and the boys in white pants and maroon blazers.

As the graduates walked across the stage, they were robed in traditional graduation garb—girls in white and boys in maroon. President of the Board, Dorothy M. Peoples, handed out the diplomas. A personal profile was read about each student, and Headmaster P. Carl Rice added their caps as a finishing touch.

"This year's senior class consisted of a remarkable group of young people," said Upper School coordinator Judith Conway. "Their talents covered the ranges of musical, theatrical, academic, athletic, leadership and service."

Four valedictorians were selected from the class for their 4.0 grade point average—Jane Marie Chandlee, Christopher Raymond Beers, Kristin Meyers and Joseph Michael Stephens, Jr. All attended Caravel Academy for more than four years, were members of the National Honor Society and were awarded President Clinton's Education Award.

Chandlee attended Caravel since first grade. A Marching Band member since fifth grade, she also played soccer and contributed school news to a local newspaper. She has been on the Founder's Honor Roll throughout her entire high school career.

Beers has been a member of the Math League team since middle school and was on the school's state champion Odyssey of the Mind team. He was also named to the National Honor Society.

In her five years at Caravel, Meyers has participated in the Model UN, Math League and Science Olympiad as well as playing on the track, soccer and golf teams. A member of the Symphonic Band, she also directed the school's spring musical, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown!" Her play, "House of Dreams," was a winner of the Delaware Theater Company's Young Playwrights Festival.

Stephens has participated in the Math League for eight years as well as the Science Olympiad, the Foreign Language competition and Odyssey of the Mind. He is a member of the National Honor Society and has placed on the Founder's Honor Roll on all but one marking period since fourth grade.

According to school administrators, the Class of 1998 has been offered more than $1 million in scholarships to 26 colleges and universities.

FOR 320 students at Christiana High School, 12 long years of school finally came to an end on June 2, as the school celebrated its 35th annual Commencement.

Friends and family filled the Bob Carpenter Center to give the Class of 1998 their support and encouragement, while also honoring the school's faculty and staff. Christina District school superintendent Dr. Nicholas Fischer gave a brief address, before turning things over to the students. "I know you are much more interested in seeing these young people move across the stage," said Fischer.

Yemisi Olagunju and David Son Yoon shared valedictorian honors. Olagunju, winner of the National Achievement Scholarship, as well as the Robert C. Byrd Scholarship, took a moment to advise her peers about the future. "We've been together since junior high school and elementary school, and now we will be separated," said Olagunju.

"But we must make more goals, strive harder, and thrive."

For many of the students, the graduation was a chance to reminisce about the last four years. "Who could forget homecoming and the pep rallies?" said student government president Eleanor Adams. "I'll never tiana, and over the years donated an uncountable amount of sports and educational equipment to the school. She was also responsible for setting up the Ramir Abdul Waters Memorial Foundation to honor her late son.

"This is the beginning of your next challenge, make the most of it. America needs you," said Waters. "You have entered to learn, now go forth to serve."

forget these past few years and everything I've learned."

Senior-elect speaker Richard Prioleau offered the most practical advice of the evening, as he urged his classmates not to dwell on their high school years, but instead strive to reach new goals.

"For the people with feelings of sadness and nostalgia, get over it," said Prioleau. "We are finally one of those people staring back at us in the year book. Don't be one of those people the underclassmen see year after year back at school and say, 'didn't he or she graduate.'" Many of Christiana's seniors will go on to college in the fall. "My four years at Christiana were great," said Jennifer Rigler. "Now I plan to study elementary education at the University of Delaware."

Her friends Tina Simmerman, Jennifer Powell, and Shane Parkhurst all plan on attending DelTech. Simmerman and Powell will study nursing, while Parkhurst said he was leaning toward physics.

Crystal Myers, who graduated with honors, will be going to the University of Delaware as well.

Her grandmother Mary Charnick was especially proud for her granddaughter and her whole family. "I was a high school dropout, and her mother was kicked out of three high schools," explained Charnick. "Now Crystal is graduating with honors, and her mother is graduating from Wilmington College. It's really something special."

The final speaker of the evening was Valerie Waters, who was presented with an honorary diploma by principal Johnny Vann.

Waters, a teacher in Elkton, had two children who attended Chris-

Most achieving class ever at GHS

By MARTY VALANIA

STAFF WRITER

BY numerous standards the Class of 1998 was one of the most successful classes Glasgow High has ever had.

A crowd of about 3,000 watched as principal Robert Anderson presented the 325 graduates at the University of Delaware's Bob Carpenter Center on June 4.

"This class has accomplished some great things that it may not even know about," Anderson said. "As a group, it was awarded nearly $2 million in scholarships. And as a class, it won more Flight A and state championships than any other class in Glasgow High history."

"The young ladies of this class were awarded more scholarships than any other group of girls in school history."

Anderson also urged the graduates to serve other people.

"You all have great talents," the principal said. "Perhaps the greatest thing you can do with those talents is to help others."

Valedictorian Stephanie Ogburn recognized teachers Sheila Pozatko and Charles McVaugh for leaving a great impression on her. She also told her classmates to try and help others. "We are all achievers," she said. "Let's try to make an impression on other people's lives."

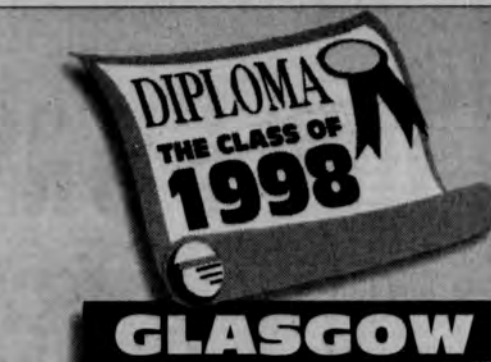

Student Government president Lee Geissler, who will attend the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., compared the class to a championship team, whose season has ended.

"High profile activities like football and basketball get a lot of attention," Geissler told the graduates. "But other student groups such as band, FFA and ROTC are just as important to the school. All our groups are equal and - like different roles on a team - all play an important role in the make up of our class."

"I look forward to starting another season. It may be with different teammates. But I look forward to the time when we can meet again in the all-star game."

Senior class president Gina Duncan told the gathering that the graduation signifies an independence. However, she urged them to call on their past experiences with their families to help them get through difficult times.

In addition to the speakers, the large crowd was treated to a stirring rendition of "The Wind Beneath My Wings" by graduate Katrina Lee Smith.

Denise Hall, the president of the school's Parent-Teacher association, was awarded an honorary diploma.

"I encourage people to volunteer," Hall said after accepting the award. "Parents are always around in the elementary school but seem to disappear in the later years of education. It's important for students to get support at that crucial time in their lives as well."

In a special moment at the senior awards ceremony the Outstanding Male Athlete award was given posthumously to Ivan Vidanovic. Vidanovic was the Delaware High School Soccer Player of the Year, who, along with his father, was tragically killed in an auto accident in January. He and his parents were on their way to a national banquet in Cincinnati where he was to be named a high school All-American.

Kristin Nau, the Delaware High School Volleyball Player of the Year and a four-time All-State softball player was the class's Outstanding Female Athlete.

A moment in time at Hodgson

By PEG BROADWATER

STAFF WRITER

HODGSON Vo-Tech's 10th commencement on June 5 was a special moment in time for 165 graduates to look back and remember at the Bob Carpenter Center.

Dr. Dennis L. Loftus, New Castle County Vo-Tech superintendent, praised the outgoing seniors. "I believe you are a true measure of our accountability," Loftus said.

The highest number of students available to do so in district history, 77 percent, had co-op jobs in the past school year.

"This class has been outstanding since arriving," pointed out principal Dr. Steven Godowsky. "Your togetherness and unity is a memorial to the tragedy over the last 15 months," he added.

Three Hodgson students were killed in a car accident while driving to school in November. Another student was driving the car at the time.

"Our goals are only as worthy as the effort we put forth to achieve them," said John Barletta in his salutatory address to fellow classmates. "Let us fulfill every expectation (the school administrators) had for us."

A highlight of the ceremony, a lively rendition of "One Moment in Time," sung by Erica Franco and accompanied by Robert Jensen, was followed by a standing ovation.

Julia Uniatowski, valedictorian, encouraged the graduates to never stop dreaming. "Protect our dreams from the bitter world around us," said Uniatowski. "From dreams come accomplishments."

Uniatowski accomplished plenty while at Hodgson. She received several scholarships and awards and was WPVI-TV's Best of Class because of her efforts.

Although she took technical drafting, originally thinking of a future as an architect, Uniatowski now plans to study animal science at the University of Delaware.

"I designed my own horse barn and plan to build it one day," she said. "Then I'll fill it up with horses - lots of them."

Everyone enjoyed the comical face taped on the cap of Dominick Juliano, seen as he tipped his head back while receiving his diploma.

"You can become anything you want," encouraged Godowsky, as he bid them farewell. "Make this a better world for your family, your community and yourself."

More like family than school at St. Mark's

By STEVE WESTRICK

STAFF WRITER

"St. Mark's has given to you the best it could," the Bishop of Wilmington told the 371 graduates on June 7.

"You will face a world that is not to eager to accept the values you have learned," added the Most Reverend Michael A. Saltarelli during the prayer to close the ceremony. "But we are confident, because we have given you the best we could."

Saltarelli presented all the graduates with their diplomas and handed out 24 academic awards.

St. Mark's also honored all the students who have received scholarships or grants to college. Those receiving financial aid awards made up 40 percent of the graduates.

Graduate Nicole Russo, who was selected by the faculty for most exemplifying the Spartan Spirit, gave the welcoming speech. "We have been personally changed by our experiences at this school," Russo said.

According to Russo, as freshman, the class song, "We Got Tonight," showed their narrow minds. However, by the time they were upperclassman the class looked more to others.

The junior song, "You Got a Friend," showed how the class had come together and were looking to each other, Russo continued, while the senior song, "Have A Little Faith in Me," was the class looking to their parents, assuring them the education at St. Mark's would provide them with a guidance through life.

Russo went on to assure the parents that the education at St. Mark's was worth any expense a private school may have caused. "There may have been times you questioned your tuition payments. But if you think education is expensive, you should try ignorance," she concluded.

In his farewell speech, graduate James A. Mercante described St. Mark's as starting point. "In a few minutes we will leave this building which has introduced us to the tension of opposites, into a world filled with a tension of opposites," he said. "Our only light in this dark, scary world facing us, is what St. Mark's has given us."

Before the ceremony, Jon Seiler, who will attend the University of Delaware in the fall, said he was glad he attended St. Mark's.

"It's a better atmosphere to learn (than a public school) and a better education," he said. "I'll probably miss it when I'm done."

Russo agreed that St. Mark's can provide more than public schools. "It's a family atmosphere," she said. "There is a feeling of prayer and love you receive."

1997-98 Athlete of the Year

JOHN TESTA
ST. MARK'S

State Champion Wrestler
State's Defensive Football Player and Lineman of the Year

All-State athlete will attend Clarion on scholarship

By STEVE WESTRICK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

JOHN TESTA IS THE youngest of five boys in his family. For that reason he learned early how to defend himself.

"Believe it or not I use to get beat up [by my brothers] when I was little," Testa said. "But I was tough enough to keep going after them."

Testa, a resident of Lamatan, turned the toughness he learned from his brothers into tenaciousness on the football field and wrestling mat.

In wrestling, Testa won his second consecutive heavyweight state title when he held off a determined Caesar Rodney's Marcelle Roberson 3-2, on February 28.

The win completed Testa's season's record at 39-2. He compiled a 115-39 record during his high school career.

Testa was rated the second best heavyweight in the nation by several publications throughout the season. However, second isn't a position Testa likes.

"Everybody in wrestling is striving to be number one," he said. "I guess you could be satisfied with second, but why? You don't go to the finals to lose. You work too hard to get second."

Still, that second ranking earned Testa a nearly full scholarship to Clarion (Pa.) University. Testa chose Clarion, a perennial powerhouse in wrestling and the school from which former Spartan Sheldon Thomas won his NCAA title, over such renowned wrestling programs as Michigan, Penn State and Pittsburgh.

"I never heard of Clarion before Sheldon went there," Testa said. "I never thought I would go there because it is so far away. But when my dad and I pulled up [to the campus] we knew it was the place."

One reason Testa chose Clarion was to extend his football career. On the gridiron, Testa was named lineman and defensive player of the year by the Delaware Sportswriters and Broadcasters Association.

Clarion, which has a Division II football program, will give Testa a chance to participate in both wrestling and football. It's an opportunity he would not have had at bigger schools like Penn St. and Pittsburgh.

"I'm going to wrestle the first year, then I would like to play football if I can," he said.

Testa recorded 19.5 sacks from his nose-tackle position last year. In one game against Delcastle, Testa managed to get to the quarterback six times.

"I think the key is my quickness," he said. "For my size I'm extremely explosive. I guess I can be considered a bigger guy."

(About 6-feet, 1-inch and 215 pounds.) But I'm not that big on the football field compared to other linemen who are 6-3 or 6-4.

"I believe in most sports, if you're not quick, you're not going to be very successful."

So how does Testa get his quickness?

"I guess I got it natural," he said with a laugh.

Testa added that he does a lot of training on his legs. For the upper body he does push-ups every night before bed.

St. Mark's wrestling coach Steve Bastianelli thinks there is more to Testa's success than just quickness.

"He is a tremendous competitor," Bastianelli said. "John Testa just loves the competition aspect of sports."

"[In wrestling] he is different from other heavyweights. A lot of high school heavyweights are pushers who look for stalling calls and counters. It's almost like they want the official to win the match for them. Not John. He has an attacking style and really goes after people."

According to Testa, the two people who have helped to shape his wrestling skills the most are Bastianelli and his brother Jason.

"There is something different about Bastianelli," Testa said. "I don't even know what it is. He is more than just a coach, he is a great person. He's down to earth and looks out for us in the off season and during the season with grades and all."

"Jason is an assistant coach at St.

► TESTA, from 21

Mark's. He has been there since my freshman year and helped me out a lot. I learned more about wrestling from Jason than from anyone else."

Over the last few years the trend in college wrestling is to find lean, quick heavyweights like Testa. Therefore, Testa should see a lot more attacking heavyweights like himself in college, something Testa feels could be to his advantage.

"Sometimes I had trouble with some of the bigger guys [in high school]. I've been told most college heavyweights run between 215 to 235. I like that."

Testa is looking forward to his first year in collegiate wrestling.

"I hope I have a decent season," he said. "You got to have standards when you're a freshman. You just have to do your best when you wrestle a defending national champion or All-American."

Testa didn't know if there are any returning All-American's on this year's Clarion's schedule.

"I hope not," he said with a laugh.

Blue tops Gold in All-Star baseball

Blue pitchers dominate contest

By STEVE WESTRICK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Five pitchers from the Blue squad combined to pitch a one hit, as the Blue team beat the Gold team 9-1 in the Blue-Gold All-Star Baseball Game Monday at Frawley Stadium.

Both St. Mark's John Warren and William Penn's Wes Heyman pitched a hitless inning during the win. Heyman finished the game by getting Caravel's Dan MacElroy to ground out to first base.

The Gold team got an early lead when Caravel's Bryan Brown recorded an RBI in the bottom of the first inning. That run was scored despite not recording a hit in the inning. Indian River's Heath Bunting was hit by a pitch and advanced to second on a ground out.

After he stole third base, Brown hit a sharp ground ball to score the run.

After the first inning, the Blue pitchers kept the Gold off balance allowing no more runs, while striking out 11.

The Blue bats exploded in the third and fourth inning, scoring four and five runs respectively.

“It's a great honor.”

SCOTT MCGILLEN
ST. MARK'S SENIOR OUTFIELDER

St. Mark's outfielder Scott McGillen said the game is all about having fun.

"It's a great honor [to be part of this game]," McGillen said. "If I were to go 0-for-2 in a St. Mark's game I would be [ticked] but this game is just about having fun."

Still, to Glasgow's Ed Ryan, who recorded an RBI double in the ninth inning, the game was about more than just fun.

"[The win] means a lot to me," Ryan said referring to the fact that Glasgow went 0-18 during the season. "It's my first win of the season and it's nice to go out on top."

Ryan added, the all-star win made it a little easier for him to accept a winless regular season.

Brandywine outfielder Andy Fox was named MVP for the Blue squad, while Indian River pitcher Steve Walls received the honors for the Gold.

Brown said he doesn't like losing any game, but this is a little more acceptable because it is impossible to establish focus in an all-star game.

"A game like this is just about having fun," he said. "There are so many players coming in and out of the game, different pitchers almost every inning, it is hard for anyone to focus on one position."

Glasgow hires DelPercio for football job

Former Middletown assistant coach Mark DelPercio has been hired as the new head coach of the Glasgow High football team.

The position originally became available when Dave Scott retired at the end of the 1997 season.

A search during the winter months lead to the hiring of Andre Creamer. However, Creamer left to become an assistant coach at division I-AA Southern Utah.

DelPercio, who was a finalist during the winter search, served as the offensive coordinator for the Cavaliers Division II state championship team.

Finding a new place for Mom was hard. But Wynwood is the right choice for us. The staff is wonderful. They're willing to work with me on nearly every aspect of her care. Best of all, around-the-clock care is available...there's always someone there for her.

Wynwood really means it when they say that they are dedicated to providing for a lifetime of needs. I told a friend how happy I am with Wynwood. She visited Wynwood, and now her mother lives there, too!

Deaton has arranged the execution of an agreement by Glasgow Shopping Center Corp. to lease 4,000 square feet of space at Peoples Plaza Shopping Center in Glasgow to State Farm Insurance. Deaton also announced the execution of a lease agreement between Glasgow Shopping Center Corp. and Sylvan Early Learning Center for 2,400 square feet of space at Peoples Plaza. Sylvan's tutorial center opened in May.

Deaton McCue & Co. is the leasing agent for both shopping centers.

Local realtors now 'sweathogs'

Several Patterson-Schwartz Real Estate Sales Associates recently completed an intensive 11-week course designed to help them achieve their professional goals. The Floyd Wickman course "Sweathogs" is the "longest running, most popular training program in the history of real estate with 75,000 agents who have "graduated" since 1980.

During the course, realtors learn to utilize proven programs and successful techniques to increase productivity.

Johnson named to SMC board

The Home Builders Association of Delaware has appointed Rick Johnson, manager of new homes with Prudential Preferred Properties, as a director for the Sales and Marketing Council.

Johnson, also co-chairman of the Builder's Showcase, will serve a one-year term.

The Sales and Marketing Council, marketing arm of the Home Builders Association, is responsible for seminars and activities which promote the home building industry in Delaware. The Council also sponsors the Regal Awards for excellence in home building and new construction sales within Delaware.

Johnson has been a licensed real estate broker in Delaware and Pennsylvania for the past 15 years with numerous honors and designations to his credit.

How to find the best real estate agent

With more than two million licensed real estate agents in the United States, it is no wonder many home buyers and sellers become overwhelmed at the prospect of hiring one.

"Using a professional real estate agent saves time and money," said Gail A. Light, president of the Delaware chapter of Certified Residential Specialists. "Professional agents offer sound advice and are responsible for the marketing, negotiating and financing of homes they list. This goes well beyond placing a classified advertisement, hanging a sign in the yard and holding a couple of open houses."

The Residential Sales Council, the 43,000 member trade organization serving top-producing residential realtors, offers the following guidelines for selecting a real estate agent.

Ask real estate agents what educational seminars and recent courses they have taken. Know who will work directly on your behalf, especially if you will have limited access to the agent.

Ask the real estate agent: How many years have you worked in the industry? How many transactions were you involved in during the last six months or year?

What is the average time a home listed with you stays on the market? How many of your listings expire unsold? Do you specialize in homes in my price range? Can you provide extensive information about my neighborhood? Make sure the agent is knowledgeable about the community and its schools, retail businesses and other offerings. May I see your testimonial letters or call on three or more references?

During initial meetings, the real estate agent should listen carefully, ask questions, clarify what you said and summarize any dialogues. Ask for a clearly written proposal describing how the real estate agent plans to sell your home. It should include a comparative market analysis, a profile of the buyer most likely to purchase your home, marketing strategies, financing options and closing information.

"Selecting a professional real estate agent based on this criteria may sound difficult," said Light. "It is common for consumers to hire an agent based on how high they list the home's asking price or the size of the commission. Just remember, the most expensive option for a home seller is a home that does not sell."

Kelly Windows among top 50

Kelly's Windows & Doors of Newark and Wilmington has won honors from "Remodeling" magazine as one of the professional remodeling industry's top achievers in 1997. The company has a showroom in the Sandy Brae Industrial Park off Otts Chapel Road.

"Remodeling" magazine, distributed monthly to 90,000 professional remodelers, is the number-one publication serving the remodeling industry in the U.S. The "Big 50" were featured in the May, 1998 issue.

According to editor-in-chief Paul Deffenbaugh, through smart marketing or business management, unique design, or industry or community impact, these remodelers set the standard for professionalism and integrity in the industry. "Being considered among the best is a high honor for our team," said David

Radulski, president of Kelly's. "It comes at a time when we're celebrating 10 years of successful service to our customers and looking ahead to the challenges of growing our installation business."

Radulski, his brother, Tim, and partner Sam Imhof founded the company in 1988. The Kelly's two locations serve builders, developers, remodelers, homeowners and do-it-yourselfers.
