Parents, teachers and children at Downes Elementary School in Newark held a "Jump Rope for Hearts" on Monday to raise money for the American Heart Association. Over 100 children in teams of six obtained pledges and then jumped rope non-stop for an hour-and-a-half. Miss Wilson, the teacher who proposed the idea, said some teachers and parents also jumped or helped turn the ropes. "It was a fun, fun event," Wilson said. Domino's Pizza provided lunch following the event and many parents, teachers, neighbors and businesses gave pledges. "We're up to $3,500 and all the pledges haven't come in," said Wilson on Tuesday.

Rental ordinance possible

The ordinance to limit rentals in Newark to areas where they already predominate was tabled for the second time on Monday night.

City council first tabled the so-called "rental cap" ordinance back in February, the same evening they imposed a 60-day moratorium on issuing new rental permits in the city.

This week, they extended that moratorium another 60 days.

City building director Junie Mayle told council that the reason for the moratorium had not changed. "I think we would be back where we were in January (if we lift it now)," said Mayle referring to the marked increase in permit applications at that time. "All the talk about limiting rentals was scaring people into buying permits they really didn't want."

Kells Avenue resident Jennifer Dean urged council to extend the moratorium. "it's really over for my neighborhood, if you don't extend it," said Dean during a discussion of whether the permit emergency still

A majority of Delaware citizens and educators strongly favor classroom size reductions to improve student achievement, according to a recent poll done by the University of Delaware.

The poll done by the University's education and research development center showed 98 percent of educators and 89 percent of citizens hold this position despite the high costs involved.

Other findings include rejection of monetary awards for school districts when they meet an absolute standard of student performance, but support from the majority of those taking the poll to compensate teachers for demonstrated competence.

"One very interesting point," said Audrey Noble, the University's senior associate for evaluation & policy analysis, "is the finding that people would like more indicators to be considered in determining the promotion of students to the next grade level."

Bauscher dispels rumors

Second district candidate for Newark City Council John A. Bauscher has rejected rumors circulating in George Read Village that he does not live in the district.

"They're mistaken" was the 53-year-old landlord's initial response when asked about comments made at the March meeting of the community's civic association. According to persons who attended the session, claims were voiced that Bauscher does not live at the 12 Caldwell Place address that he listed on his petition to run for the council seat.

"I have fulfilled all the requirements," Bauscher said Wednesday. "I have a signed lease and I pay utilities here. I am residing at Caldwell Place." He said he signed the lease on Jan. 8 and moved in a few days later.

Proof of residence is a basic qualification to run for office in the city of Newark, and in some cases it comes down to which piece of paper you accept as verification.

According to the City Secretary's office, a candidate for city council must be a resident of Newark on the day they file. Questions about a candidate's residential qualifications are referred to the city's Election Board.

Board president Sam W. Burns said he had complaints about two of the challengers in the April 13 election and requested proof of residence from all three - Bauscher, District 4 candidate Dan Beaver and Susan Heagy, a resident of District 1.

"All of them showed me electric bills, voter registration cards, and drivers' licenses," said Burns this week. "But all I know was what they had on the piece of paper." Burns said, the documents showed the addresses indicated on the candidates' nomination petitions.

A search this week of public records at the Recorder of Deeds office in Wilmington revealed a mortgage for 903 Church Rd., which is located in Council District 1. It was signed on Jan. 13 by Bauscher and lists his address as Church Road.

Language in the mortgage requires that Bauscher, the borrower, "establish and use the property" as his "principal residence" within 60 days of the signing and retain residency for one year from the date of occupancy.

Cooch honored for nature efforts

Newark resident Edward W. Cooch Jr., a familiar figure on the environment scene in Delaware, will receive this year's Delaware Audubon Conservation Award in April.

Cooch, an attorney, began his fondness for nature on the Delaware farm on Old Baltimore Pike near Cooch's Bridge where he was born and where he still resides. "I was prompted to get actively involved in land conservation when an oil company decided to start building in Delaware's Coastal Zone," Cooch said.

Cooch joined the board of directors of Delaware Wild Lands Inc. in 1962, shortly after its inception in 1961. He served in several capacities, including the presidency from 1984 until 1990. He has been actively involved in nearly every purchase Delaware Wild Lands has made and has worked tirelessly for days on end during some of the more difficult negotiations.

"His kind and gentle demeanor combined with staunch firmness when necessary, the ability to think things through, his sometimes maddening patience, and most of all, incredible love of natural lands, have served him well in life and in his efforts on our board of directors," said Holger Harvey, executive director of Delaware Wild Lands. "I am proud to consider him not only my mentor, but especially, my friend."

Cooch also serves on the Delaware Open Space Council and is president of the Christina Conservancy, created 17 years ago to promote, preserve and restore the natural and historical resources of the Christina River Watershed. He serves on the steering committee of the Annual Christina River Cleanup and single-handedly raised the money for removal of three sunken barges from the confluence of the Christina-Brandywine Rivers.

"Ned Cooch has demonstrated a deep commitment to protect the environment and Ned Cooch is himself a valuable Delaware asset," said former Delaware Governor Russ Peterson.

Cooch also served on the executive committee for the planning of the vision for the Christina and Brandywine rivers. "Each generation holds the land in trust and future generations have the responsibility to continue that legacy," Cooch said.

In addition to practicing with the law firm of Cooch and Taylor which he founded in 1960, Cooch has recently been appointed to the Riverfront Development Corporation Community Advisory Group. He is a director of the Historical Society of Delaware, a trustee of the University of Delaware Library and co-chair of the capital fund drive to raise $1,500,000 for the new state of Delaware Archives building.

Previous recipients of the Audubon award included Peggy Jahn, Lynne Frink, Gwynne Smith, Rick West, Jacob Kreshtool, Til Purnell, Don Sharpe, Barbara Lundberg, Leah Roedel, Ruth Ann Minner, Joseph Biden, Winston Wayne, Russell Peterson, Grace Pierce-Beck, and Newark resident Dorothy Miller.

Ideas welcome at Newark Library

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Staff and the Friends of the Newark Free Library are still looking for new ideas from library users about services and features.

Charlesa Lowell, the new director of the Newark Library, hosted a meeting this week at the Newark Senior Center to discuss ideas with the public. "We've already been getting dozens of ideas in our 'Library User Suggestion Box' which has been out since the beginning of March," Lowell said.

Suggestions range from a quiet room for reading without noise, a separate smoking room, an expanded CD and record library (including pop/rock/punk-style), additional staff workspace, new carpeting, to a return-book bin by the parking lot like the Elkton Library so the elderly and parents with young children can return books without getting out of the car, increased lighting, no bright lights, a separate storytime room with sinks, and better methods for locating music and CDs.

One idea Lowell really likes would be to have a coffee shop. "A coffee shop would be great for high school kids who attend Newark High School only a block away," she said. "I'd like to have more programs to draw them in."

Not surprisingly, the number one suggestion is more books — books of all types and interests and age levels.

Library users want more adult books and fiction, more high school and college-level science books, books on CDs, books on Delaware and Newark, more children's books, more poetry, more science fiction and fantasy. They asked for new sailing and wood-working books, books on ecology, environment, genealogy, cultures of the world, handicrafts, farming, jets, warfare, Vietnam, ships and submarines. New Yorkers want to read all about it, whatever it is.

Lowell said once the new plans are worked out, New Castle County which owns the library will be sharing them with patrons. "We can't really plan anything until we finish this part," she said.

Meanwhile, Lowell is proceeding with an idea of her own. The new director has "office hours" to visit with members of the community. Persons wishing to meet her and talk about the library can visit her on Mondays from noon to 1 p.m. and Tuesdays from 3 to 4 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. "If these times aren't convenient, I invite them to call for an appointment," she said. "I want to provide the best possible library experience for the customers of the Newark Public Library."

Landlords support new candidates for city council

The three persons challenging incumbents for seats on Newark city council have stated that rentals are a campaign issue for each of them.

Their campaign finance summary reports, filed this week, indicate the landlord business is interested in supporting them.

Susan Heagy, running in District One and owner of one rental, listed 10 persons as contributors to her campaign. Eight of those listed are Newark landlords, including fellow candidate John Bauscher, who has 15 rental properties. Earle Anderson of West Chester, Pa., with eight rentals in Newark, and Scott Ross, who has 10 Newark rentals, also contributed for Heagy. Anderson is also shown on the filing as Micro Investments, a business with a Newark address.

In District 2, Bauscher also lists 10 contributors, all of whom are landlords, including Micro Investments. Other landlords with multiple properties who have contributed to Bauscher's war chest include Elizabeth P. Connell, with five permits, Donald Wetlaufer with three rentals and Lloyd A. Hudson with eight rental properties. Bauscher also lists himself as a contributor at $600.

Dan Beaver in District 4 has listed 18 contributors, 11 of whom are landlords. His parents, Ray and Linda Beaver of New Carrollton, Md., who have four rentals in Newark, are on the list, as are Rosanne Corullon who has two Newark rentals. Beaver who owns three rentals, also contributed to his own campaign with $500.

Altogether, 26 people made contributions to one or more of the three campaigns. Of those persons, 10 made contributions to more than one campaign, and 18 are Newark landlords.

Three contributors, two of them Newark landlords, live outside the state of Delaware, and nine others live outside Newark, including four more landlords.

According a staff member of the Department of Elections, incumbent councilmembers John Farrell, Jerry Clifton and Thomas Wampler had not yet filed their 30-day reports as of Wednesday. The spokesperson for the election Commissioner's office said they were ordered to file their 30-day and eight-day reports together at the next deadline.

Shue Middle School's "Customer Service" team placed fifth in this year's Odyssey of the Minds Tournament. They were one of seven teams representing their school. Different addresses cause confusion for candidate

► BAUSCHER, from 1

Other recent mortgages obtained by Bauscher for other rental properties and filed in the recorder's office contain riders that deletes the residency provision, however, the mortgage for Church Road does not indicate any rider.

"I don't know what to tell you," Bauscher said. "When I applied for that mortgage last November, I was still living there (903 Church Rd.). At that point, I was intending to stay."

He said that he was unaware of the occupancy provision in the mortgage he signed in January for his Church Road property.

The council candidate said that he still receives mail at 903 Church Rd. but that he has changed "all pertinent things" to indicate his Caldwell address.

However, he said his checks still list his District 1 address.

Bauscher said, if elected,

"Absolutely, I'll live somewhere in the Second District." He said that he is negotiating to purchase property on Kells Avenue. His lease at the Caldwell Place address expires May 31, he said.

In campaign finance reports released this week by the Department of Elections, Bauscher was named as a contributor to both Heagy's and Beaver's campaign funds and his address was listed as 903 Church Rd. He blamed this discrepancy on his personal checks, which still list the Church Road address.

Bauscher, who holds 15 rental permits in the city, is challenging incumbent councilmember Jerry Clifton. It was Clifton and fellow councilmember Tom Wampler who early this year introduced an ordinance to limit the number of rental permits. Wampler is being opposed by Beaver, another city landlord.

April finish for cemetery wall

Cemetery owner Norris Wright hopes a wall at the cemetery on New Street will solve a number of problems.

"There's a terrible vandalism problem and a lot of rubbish from people cutting through there," said Wright, an attorney with offices in Wilmington.

According to the Newark public works director, Richard Lapointe, the wall between the cemetery and the CSX railroad line should be complete by the end of April.

Newark city council voted to extend the concrete wall that currently runs along the rail line near Fraser Field as part of an agreement which would provide safety upgrades at railroad crossings and along the tracks. Under the agreement, the city will build the fence with CSX funding and the owners of the cemetery will maintain it.

Wright said the new wall will be "right on" the property line and will not disturb any graves. "Let me repeat that," said Wright. "We did not interfere with any gravesites."

The Newark M.E. Church Cemetery Co. Inc. has owned the property since 1902, according to Wright. Members of his family are the principal stockholders.

Despite the name, the cemetery has no "formal or informal" relationship to any church. "We operate it as a private cemetery," explained Wright. "Anyone can arrange to be buried there."

Wright said funeral director Robert Foard helped in determining where to build the wall. "Bob Foard handles a lot of burials there," said Wright. "He has maps which show locations of the gravesites."

One side of the cemetery will remain unfenced. "The Chapel Street side will still be open, but we think this wall will still stop people who use the cemetery as a shortcut," Wright said. "It will look very nice."

Light at end of tunnel for rental ordinance

► ORDINANCE, from 1

existed. "It's an emergency."

Meanwhile, council instructed the city staff to prepare an ordinance patterned on one used in Lower Merion, Pa.

The Pennsylvania ordinance limits new student rentals to within 1,000 square feet, 20 times the lot width, of an existing one.

Newark is considering one which will limit a rental in a special category of "student homes" from being 5, 10 or 15 times the lot width from another.

"If we pass this ordinance with 15 times the lot width, the maximum number of new student homes would be 30 in the city under the 'Lower Merion' ordinance," said councilmember Karl Kalbacher. "I think this is the answer."

The ordinance would still allow unlimited rentals to families which would not be covered under this ordinance. "That's the beauty of it," noted city planning director Roy Lopata.

However, councilmember Gerald Grant said this would not work in his district where some people live in areas with high student rentals but could not sell or convert their properties to such rentals themselves.

"One new student rental would be permitted and the rest would be (out of luck)," said Grant.

Council proposed excluding specific streets which already have a majority of rentals. Since this will involve zoning issues, the ordinance will be heard at a special Planning Commission meeting on April 7.

In order to meet deadlines for public notice, the city will have two meetings for the Planning Commission in April. Mayor Hal Godwin said he is determined to have the rental ordinance ready for a public hearing and vote by May 24. "I said we would not vote on this issue while the University was not in session," Godwin told the staff, "and we have to find a way to honor that."

In addition, although Lopata feels they are mutually incompatible, staff will craft a second ordinance limiting rental permits in some areas to only two unrelated tenants. "I want to be able to at least consider it," said Godwin.

Vo-tech scholarship fund established by Newark business woman

Thanks to Iran Lawrence, internationally known fiber artist, interior designer and entrepreneur, students who complete their high school education at vocational-technical schools are now eligible for at least $100,000 in scholarships at the University of Delaware over the next five years.

Lawrence recently established the IranLawrence.Com Scholarship fund with 10 scholarships of $1,000 each to be awarded nationwide each academic year beginning in the year 2000.

"My personal research and experience have made me realize and understand the importance of vocational education early in a child's education," Lawrence said, adding that by establishing the scholarships she hopes to combat the image that vocational-technical schools are not for college-bound students and that they are "only trade schools."

University officials said the scholarships will be available to newly-accepted full-time, first-year degree students who have demonstrated evidence of high academic achievement, a clear statement of purpose regarding their college career, productive extracurricular school and community activities and financial need.

Special consideration will be given to students in the visual communication, video technology and printing technology divisions of the Academy of Communications and Publishing career programs at Delcastle Technical High School in Iran Lawrence and her teenage son, Darien, met recently with (L to R) Delcastle Technical High School principal John Moyle, University of Delaware President David P. Roselle, and Dennis L. Loftus, superintendent of the New Castle County Vocational Technical School District, to finalize agreements for scholarships to vo-tech students to attend the University of Delaware.

New Castle County. Lawrence's son, Daren, is enrolled in the program and will be attending the University of Delaware.

Lawrence said her son is her source of inspiration in establishing the scholarships. "Daren is very balanced, successful and centered young man," Lawrence said. "The IranLawrence.Com scholarships for vo-tech high school students is a public celebration of my own son's success, which I hope will spread like wild fire around the country for all parents and students to savor."

Dennis L. Loftus, superintendent of the New Castle County Vocational Technical School District, said, "A basic tenet of vocational-technical instruction is the importance of continuing education, so we are indeed pleased that Ms. Lawrence has chosen to designate scholarships for deserving vo-tech students."

The annual awards are renewable for up to five years, provided that the student continues to enroll at UD on a full-time basis, remains in good academic standing and demonstrates financial need.

As a fiber artist, Lawrence is known for her unique hand-dyed contemporary quilts, which are exhibited worldwide at major museums and in private collections, including the Algemene Bank of the Netherlands in New York, the White House, and in corporate offices belonging to Sears, Roebuck & Co., DuPont Pharmaceutical and more.

She also is the president of her own interior design art firm, Iran Lawrence & Co. based in Newark.

Lawrence holds a bachelor's degree in economics from the University of Delaware, a masters degree in interior design from Drexel University and a master of fine art in fiber and textile design from Temple University's Tyler School of Art.

She is a recipient of the University of Delaware's Presidential Citation for Outstanding Achievement.

For more information on the scholarships, visit the Iran Lawrence Foundation's web site at <www.IranLawrence.com/Foundation>.

Polltakers want classrooms

► EDUCATION, from 1

Noble said over 60 percent of both citizens and educators said the Delaware state test should be only one of many measures used to determine graduation and promotion of students.

Using a multiple indicator system is not as simple as it sounds.

"It raises the question of what an 'A' means," said Pamela Brown, senior associate in assessment.

Brown said other possible indicators were teacher evaluations of students' work habits, grading, and behavior all based on the teacher's judgment.

In terms of school climate, educators said that students not doing their homework is a serious problem facing the school while members of the public felt that students' use of illegal drugs is a serious problem.

Also, Delaware citizens agree that corporal punishment and out-of-school suspension are ineffective methods for reducing misbehavior in public schools.

Addressing professional development, poll results indicate that a majority of Delaware educators and citizens (93 percent and 88 percent respectively) support the training and development of school professionals.

Teachers said they like to meet and collaborate with colleagues, with 83 percent of educators reporting they have some opportunity to do this. However, the poll also indicates that beginning teachers are rarely given the chance to observe other teachers' classrooms.

Don't panic — help is on the way

CITY COUNCIL IS IN THE process of finally passing a rental ordinance which will limit the proliferation of student rentals, but still allow residents throughout the city to rent to families.

As one city councilmember dared to venture, "this may be the answer." And it comes, when and if it actually comes, not a minute too soon.

The subject of rentals, bubbling on the backburner in Newark for years, has all but boiled over in the last few months.

Council has held meetings and had discussions on the subject at almost every council session since January. Some of the public discussions of this one issue at those sessions have lasted for hours. A 60-day moratorium on new rental permits has just been extended for another two months.

Residents have been almost polarized over the issue. Some do not want any rentals in their community, some do not want student rentals, some want to be able to turn their homes into rentals, some don't know what they want, but have been infected with the sense of doom projected by all sides.

And to top it all off, the city is in the midst of elections for three city council seats. The usual wealth of rhetoric is already flying with two more weeks to go in the campaigns.

Rentals is the issue, although all candidates have tried to address other perennial Newark favorites such as traffic, noise and public information.

A lot of people have come to council meetings this year. It's been a feast of public input because of the rental issue. We hope they took time to observe the efforts the council makes to listen and respond to their comments.

Don't be panicked by the ill-informed and those with a significant stake in certain outcomes. Take time to listen and consider what will be best for years to come.

Newark is still a good place to live, despite all the issues, even this one.

Transportation and economic growth

By G. ALEXANDER TAFT

NEWARK POST GUEST COLUMNIST

AROUND THE COUNTRY, OVER 20 states including Delaware, Maryland, and New Jersey, have begun to forge smart growth strategies that have led to the implementation of over 200 individual smart growth laws. These laws direct existing urban and suburban development by adding multiple uses fused with many forms of attractively designed transportation facilities.

What emerges are highly-walkable centers linked by combinations of transit, roads, greenways, and biking.

Why refocus planning strategies? Our most coveted lifestyle goals — more personal time, convenience, and efficiency — have been lost as scattered, cluttered growth patterns force us to spend countless hours driving everywhere for everything with few travel alternatives.

In fact, the dramatic increase in daily car travel is one of the biggest quality of life challenges facing our region and the nation. Over the next 20 years, our region's transportation needs will continue to outstrip our population needs. Alarming forecasts predict by 2020, the daily miles traveled by autos will rise by an unprecedented 92.2 percent, almost five and a half times population growth forecasts of 17 percent.

While it is not easy to shake the entrenched patterns of fifty years of sprawl, it is clear that failure to do so will diminish the region's quality of life in the 21st century. The real potential for reversing these trends lies in thinking outside the proverbial box, envisioning attractive "livable" communities where transportation and land use resources are shared, transportation systems function through a multiplicity of modes, and individual mobility is not sacrificed. By moving our outmoded visions to 21st century needs, the region will be better equipped to attract new business, good paying jobs, and tourism.

Our image of community design is being seen through a new lens. There is a better understanding of leveraging basic transportation investments to produce major economic impacts. Intermodal investments provide proven economic returns by creating efficiency, stimulating new retail and residential development, and increasing the value and occupancy of office and retail space.

New progressive transportation and land use plans provide a solid platform for livable community design. Shaping Delaware's Future and Maryland Smart Growth initiatives have gained national attention for Delaware and Maryland as thoughtful policies. They strengthen already settled communities and preserve our finite inventory of open space and environmentally sensitive areas. New Castle County formulated the Unified Development Code to manage future land use. Towns throughout the region have

Sanitary engineer declares Newark's water supply system is not noteworthy

Mayor Eben B. Frazer received on Monday of this week the official report from Health Commissioner A.T. Davis of a survey made recently by R.C. Beckett, State Sanitary Engineer, of Newark's water supply, storage and pumping facilities.

In every way, the report is pleasing to the town authorities, and indicates that no other rural town in the State is provided by better equipment and a better supply of water.

Building a foundation to attain 2020 Plan written Municipal Comprehensive Plans to preserve historic centers and reinvigorate economies through compatible infill of vacant lots and redevelopment of obsolete uses.

The 2020 Metropolitan Transportation Plan, adopted in 1996 by the Wilmington Area Planning Council, established the region's first 21st century vision, calling for better management of current transportation assets, taking a maintenance first approach, squeezing capacity out of the system, and supporting existing communities. In addition to increasing road capacity, the Plan's major goal is to shift an additional 10% of future solo driver trips to some other means. New spending priorities must measure up to five major strategies: integrate transportation and land use, protect our natural resources, improve our mobility, manage our transportation system, and improve commerce.

The 2020 Plan is currently being revised as a three-year checkpoint and update process. Extensive community events include three 'Our Town, An Alternative to Sprawl' public workshops, focus groups, and community presentations. The updated plan will reflect promising ideas gathered from the public, the most recent trends, a progress assessment, and greater articulation of the means to achieve our goals.

To balance transportation investments to roads are complimented by attractive travel alternatives, WILMAPCO adopted a Transportation Investment Area Map. The Map aligns transportation spending with multi-modal expansion, management and preservation areas that are generally consistent with comprehensive plans and zoning maps of all jurisdictions in the region. Facilities will be preserved in less developed rural areas and along country roads. Management areas make the system run more efficiently through a variety of means such as adding capacity, technology applications, more efficient buses, shuttles and van pools.

Future investments, particularly in the multi-modal expansion area, have the potential to become the region's economic engine.

Regions that supply a variety of sophisticated travel means, coupled with attractive community design, are certain to outshine those still stuck in congestion.

Through the vision of the 2020 Plan, major employment centers - Wilmington, Churchman's Crossing, Newark, and Elkton - are gradually becoming linked by a system of travel choices.

Some strategies call for more urban methods like commuter rail, express buses and van pools using HOV lanes on I-95. Or, commuters could use local transit and connecting walkways. In areas such as the Route 202 and 141 corridors, residents and employees alike have the added benefit of the region's growing network of greenways that are connecting open spaces to residential and work places.

Modernization of Wilmington's transportation infrastructure will serve and safeguard the city's many assets, including its role as the state's major employment and cultural center. Improvements at the Wilmington Train Station are an excellent example of intermodal travel facilities that offer both local and regional connections. Regional trains, local commuter rail, local and regional buses, trolleys, taxis, parking, attractively landscaped sidewalks and safe crosswalks - all come into play.

The Wilmington study also tested the ability of new transportation investments to foster growth and infill development. The findings showed the city could accommodate 25 percent additional traffic growth without any measurable congestion. The downtown and riverfront area will be able to support at least 10.6 million square feet of new commercial space.

The Newark Train Station is our region's fourth commuter rail station. Its success has contributed to a 33 percent jump in overall transit ridership (including DART) in New Castle County. The new SEPTA stop allowed Newark commuters to make approximately 472,000 trips by providing easy access to Wilmington and Philadelphia.

Building on Newark's success, a Churchman's Crossing Commuter Rail Station is being designed along existing track to fill the line's gap between Newark and Wilmington. The service would relieve part of the congestion from I-95 and local roads. The new Churchman's Crossing Shuttle service and Christiana Mall DART hub-park and ride have helped boost the region's transit ridership. A new overpass under construction will expand road capacity at the busy Route 58 and Route 7 crossroads.

Ride sharing is gaining wide acceptance by area commuters. In less than a year, Transportation Management Association of New Castle County has matched 1,100 commute partners through the RideShare Delaware program.

Transportation design is also enhancing residential communities. A 1997 WILMAPCO survey revealed that 87 percent of respondents wanted better community design with a variety of travel options to be a priority of transportation and land use planning. Furthermore, communities are getting involved.

Middletown and Chesapeake City completely rewrote their zoning and design rules so future development must weave walking and biking links to historic town centers. Projects are underway in Hockessin, Arden, and Centreville to redesign areas surrounding major through roads to reduce speeds of fast moving trucks and cars that threaten the pedestrian safety of children and adults in the commercial cores of these villages. Plans incorporate attractive arrangements of trees, landscaping, and brick or cobblestone crosswalk surface treatments. In Wilmington and Newark, some landscaped curbs extend into the street to shorten crosswalk distances to slow traffic for safer passage.

One step at a time, we are building a foundation to attain the 2020 Plan's ambitious goals. Its success requires the continued involvement of individuals, community and business organizations, particularly during the current update process, so the Plan remains productive and has the most impact on protecting the region's economic vitality.

The item in the March 12 Post regarding discipline in our public schools by Ruth Kelly was right on the mark. When she stated that "I am accountable for my child's behavior," she accepts that she is responsible for the behavior of her child in the classroom as well as at home. All other parents are also responsible for their children.

Although I am now a senior citizen I recall that my father was responsible for my conduct at school. He was on the school board and pointed out that that I was in school to learn.

In those days teachers were permitted to administer spankings. I was disruptive once and got spanked. When I got home, I got another spanking which was more impressive than the first. I was never disruptive again.

So, Ruth Kelly, I commend you for your attitude, I commend you for being a responsible parent.

■ Newark Outlook is a regular feature, prepared each week by staff members of the University of Delaware's Cooperative Extension Office in Newark.

IT'S THAT TIME of year again. When all the receipts, W-2s and other documentation gets piled up on the kitchen table or desk. It is a great time to sort out and throw out. But what do you keep and what do you toss? I often get questions about which records people really need to keep.

The most important records are those that can't be replaced, or at least that would be costly in time or money to replace. Those items, such as Social Security verification, citizenship papers, marriage licenses, birth certificates, etc., should be kept in a safe deposit box or fire-safe box. Keep a list of those items, and copies, in your home file.

Other employment records for your home file include income records (paycheck stubs, yearly W-2s), contracts, fringe benefit information and pension and investment plan information. Keep W-2s indefinitely. They'll give you a quick check of annual contributions to Social Security, pension and other benefit plans.

Keep records that support tax deductions or income that you've claimed on your tax return at least three years after the tax is due or until the statute of limitations for that return expires. I like to keep my tax return, W-2s and all the supporting documentation in one place, that way, if needed, I won't have to hunt for items in other places.

After one year, most records can be transferred to an "inactive file" and discarded when no longer needed. Unfortunately, there's really no standard answer to when that will be.

But, as a rule, keep those credit card statements and checks that will support deductions on your tax return, or will need to be used as a proof of purchase for insurance or warranty reasons. Otherwise you can get rid of them after a year.

Setting up a record-keeping system for your employment records and financial documents might sound like a huge chore, but it's time well spent. Once established, your system can save you hours hunting for a paycheck stub or searching through drawers or boxes for information you need to complete a loan application or taxes-for example.

Start right now organizing this year's items. Don't worry about last year's. Just do it and feel better knowing you're more organized!

MACLARY Elementary School is preparing to celebrate its 30th Anniversary on Tuesday, March 30 – and again on Friday, April 30.

When the school originally opened off Possum Park Road in Newark, staff and students placed school pictures, letters, and other memorabilia of that time period into a capsule in the white cornerstone of the building.

Judy Scheffey, a third grade teacher at Maclary, recalled that a ceremony was held on a Sunday in December 1968. "We had a program in the cafeteria and people from (the district office), the school board, and the school superintendent were there," Scheffey said.

On March 30, school staff will open that capsule and display the contents to students during an assembly. Michelle Hersch, media advisor for Maclary's PTA, said it is possible that some of the original participants at the school 30 years ago will be present.

When opened in 1969, the school was honored by the American Library Association as having one of the "eight most outstanding learning resource centers" in the nation. The center was reported to have "unusual features" such as an audio-visual department with "film loop projectors, language skill developers, tape recorders, and record players."

Kathy Warner, parent of a fourth grader and a second grader at Maclary, said her children are so excited they can hardly stand it.

"When I read about the anniversary in the Maclary, I counted back the years, and realized I was in fifth grade there," Warner said. "I started calling all my friends and it was like a class reunion to be talking to them."

One of the people she called was Stephen M. Samluck, also a fifth grader 30 years ago. "I remember thinking, as a kid, that they didn't finish the school, because they left a piece out," he recalled. "It wasn't until the spring that the cornerstone was put in."

Items being placed in a new capsule to be buried on April 30 include students' essays on what our society will be like in 30 years, what they believe they will be doing in 30 years, current events, and the heroes of today. Additional treasures include the kindergartners' tape of popular children songs and hand prints from the preschoolers.

The new time capsule will be buried outside the school building.

'Splendors of Meiji' is once in lifetime opportunity

This is the second of a two-part series on what I think will be the finest and most exciting art show opening on our peninsula this year. It is "Splendors of Meiji: Treasures of Imperial Japan." It opens for its world premiere at Wilmington's First USA Riverfront Arts Center, 800 South Madison Street, on April 10. It will be open daily through September 6.

I will begin today with a vicarious tour of 11 galleries set up for Splendors of Meiji in the 25,000 square feet of the Arts Center. Your entry time is set forth on your ticket. The first thing you will receive is an audio device with helpful tour guidance once you enter the main exhibit area. When your group is called into the auditorium you will have an eight minute orientation to the exhibit. After that program you may start your tour.

Gallery 1 features art from the earliest part of the Meiji era, the time when Japan was first showing itself to the west. The next gallery is called "The Reality of Japan in America" and shows some of the art works which were first seen out side of Japan at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. These works, like those in the first gallery, are from the early part of the Meiji Emperor's reign. The Meiji era was from 1868 to 1912.

The next two galleries, 3a and 3b, are called "Japan Welcomes the World" and "The New Marketplace." These two blend beautifully into 4a and 4b, "An Island Nation of Mystery and Intrigue." Here the works of art become much more intricate and beautiful. Gallery 5 will be one to "slow you down" if you haven't already done so. It is the largest gallery in the exhibition and is called "The Golden Age of the Meiji Era."

Galleries 6a, 6b and 6c shift attention back to America again. They show some of the art works Japan sent to the St. Louis World Fair in 1904.

Broughton International saves the best for last. Gallery 7 features only works by the top artists of their time in "Artists to the Imperial Household." The work of 12 of those artists is displayed here. The recorded guided tour you have with you will be a big help, but stop and savor each of the works in this final gallery.

After you leave at your own pace, you will enter a gift shop. If you have really enjoyed the show and want to "take some of it home," there is a 384-page, beautifully illustrated catalog at the shop. There are, of course, many gifts and souvenirs in all price ranges too.

Tickets are now on sale by calling 777-1600. Be prepared to tell the box office both the date and the TIME you want to visit. Exhibition hours from April 10 through Sept. 6 will be 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., with the last admission program starting at 6 p.m. each day.

Ticket prices are $13, adults; $11.50, seniors; $8 college students; $4, grade K-12 students; $3, school groups and free for children under five.

To even try to begin to name the most beautiful (to me) of the 450 art works would be utterly futile. One work is more breathtaking than the next. The photo with my column today is a truly exquisite cloisonne enamel vase. This massive piece was created before 1893. You can see two eagles, one perched on a pine branch, one below on a rocky ledge. The colors are both beautiful and subtle. The catalog credits the design of the vase to Shin Shioda. He made it for the World's Colombian Exposition in Chicago in 1893. It was the hit of the show and seen by more than 27,000,000 visitors. It hasn't been shown here for many years.

Throughout Splendors of Meiji, you will see works of metal, lacquer, ceramic, enamel and Porcelain. Each of the objects reflects the extraordinary accomplishments of people whose mastery of technical skills was combined with their superior artistic skills. The result has to be seen in person and with time to examine each piece to be fully appreciated. The new Broughton International exhibit at 800 South Madison Street in Wilmington will allow you plenty of time. Take advantage of it.

There is DART bus service to the Riverfront Arts Center. If you are driving, go north on I-95 get off at the Maryland Avenue exit and follow the signs right to the parking lot in front of an along side the huge center, just across from Frawley Stadium.

Please get your ticket orders in early! This is a once in a lifetime event.

Passover starts this week

Passover this year begins on March 31 at sundown and lasts until sundown on April 8. The most important symbol of Passover is the matzo, the "bread of our affliction." Matzo is unleavened bread which means that the dough that is used to make it is not allowed to rise.

Jews eat matzo on Passover to remind them that the Children of Israel left Egypt in a great hurry and had no time to let their bread rise. The commandment to eat matzo if fulfilled on the first day of Passover but for seven days they do not eat leaven, or "chometz." Israeli and Reform Jews observe the first and last days as holy days on which no work is done. They hold one seder. Among Conservative and Orthodox Jews, Passover lasts for eight days.

For weeks before the holiday, preparations have begun in the homes of those who observe Passover in the traditional manner. Those foods that are forbidden on Pesach (cereals, noodles, beans, etc.) are used up before the holiday. The house is cleaned thoroughly because the chometz is absorbed into dishes and pots during the year. Glass and metal utensils have to be soaked or boiled. Ceramic utensils and dishes cannot be restored in this way, so most people have a separate set of Passover utensils and dishes that are brought out of storage. During the week before the holiday, special foods (marked with "kosher for Passover") are bought in preparation for the festival.

On the night before Passover begins (the night before their first seder), the search for leavened food takes place. Lights are turned out, a candle is lit and the family goes around looking for crumbs.

SECOND TO NONE

UD second baseman Laurie Brosnahan, a four-year starter who graduated from Glasgow High, awaits the results of a pitch during a double-header against Temple University last week.

Former Glasgow High All-Stater Brosnahan a rock in Hens' infield

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The University of Delaware's softball team appears headed for another successful season, and Glasgow High graduate Laurie Brosnahan is once again right in the middle of it.

As the Hens' second baseman for the fourth consecutive season, the sure-handed Brosnahan is continuing the successful career she began at Glasgow.

The senior co-captain is the Hens' leading returning hitter. She hit .273 last season as a junior, and had a .300 average before last Thursday's double-header sweep of visiting Temple.

In the opener, Brosnahan went 1-for-3 and had four assists in a 2-0 victory. In the second game, she drove in the game-winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning in the Hens' 4-3 win.

It was the first time Delaware had beaten Temple in softball since 1988.

Brosnahan showed her value as a fielder last season, when the Hens finished 27-20 overall and second in America East play, by making only nine errors in 241 attempts. She had yet to make an error this season.

Brosnahan has started all 128 games in her four-year career at Delaware, and is 10th all-time on the school's hit list with 94.

"She's done very well her four years here and she's going to be missed (when she graduates)," said Delaware Coach B.J. Ferguson of Brosnahan, who was selected to the conference all-tournament team last season.

"She's just steady. She doesn't look like she can hit the ball because of her stature (5 feet, 6 inches tall), but she's a good contact hitter and that's what we need to keep runners moving."

Brosnahan's ability to make contact, notable against Temple because of near-freezing conditions, and her speed down the first-base line helped produce the winning run against the Owls in the nightcap.

Last summer, Brosnahan helped the Maryland-based Renegades to the semifinals of the Class B Fastpitch Nationals in Alabama by hitting .563.

Brosnahan, who began playing in Canal Little League, was the first athlete at Glasgow to win 12 varsity letters and was a three-time All-State softball selection. At Glasgow, Brosnahan played shortstop. She's played her entire UD career at second, where most balls are hit because of the speed of the pitching.

"It's more challenging to play second base," said Brosnahan.

"It's a little different, but I like it there. I'm stuck there."

When asked what she likes best about playing

UD baseball team ends losing streak

Hens' arms, bats combine to crush St. Joe's, La Salle

By DAVID HUGHES

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Bob Hannah is used to winning, so the first month of this season has been a little strange for the University of Delaware's longtime baseball coach.

The Blue Hens, hit hard by graduation, dropped 10 of their first 11 games. It was the worst start in school history, and all the more shocking considering Hannah's amazing success in his 35 years at the helm.

It was also surprising given the presence of All-American outfielder and possible future major-leaguer Kevin Mench. But three straight victories last weekend, two of them lopsided, got the Hens moving in a familiar direction as Hannah zeroes in on his 1,000th career win. He stood just 15 shy of that historic milestone at 985 after Sunday's 4-2 win at La Salle.

On Saturday the Hens routed La Salle 9-1 at Delaware Diamond, which followed a 14-0 thumping of St. Joseph's on Friday.

Delaware (4-11) hosts Princeton in a double-header Saturday (March 27) and Wilmington College on Sunday, both starting at noon. Following the Liberty Bell Classic at Veterans Stadium on Wednesday, the Blue Hens begin America East league play against Vermont next weekend, and Hannah is eager to get to the meat of the schedule.

Brown smashes longstanding bowling record

By DAVID HUGHES

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Dyami Brown couldn't quite believe what he was doing a week ago Monday. Frame after frame the pins kept right on crashing.

The 24-year-old DuPont employee, who's only been bowling for three years, described it as "one of those zones" that, no matter where or how he rolled the ball at Blue Hen Lanes, it was perfect.

Brown was so perfect, in fact, he rolled a house record 868 series (279-299-290). That shattered the previous mark of 841 set back in 1982 by then-manager Rick Edwards.

"I was pretty surprised at what happened. It really blew my mind to do what I did," said Brown, a former Hodgson Vo-Tech football player. "I've never gotten that hot before. I just got so confident I couldn't stop. I'm still on Cloud Nine. It's hard to explain, I just got hot and stayed there."

Brown, who bowls in the Monday Mixers League at Blue Hen, had never done better than a 794 prior to this. He credited some good coaching and obtaining the right equipment for the lane conditions, plus the fact he's become a bowling fanatic who does it religiously six nights a week.

"It's been complete dedication to bowling, and this is a big payoff," said Brown, who spends most of his time at Blue Hen but also bowls at Bowlerama.

Brown's mom bowled for many years and he

Local basketball players earn all-state honors

Mills, Simpson head girls first-team

By DAVID HUGHES

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Joe Pennell recalls the lasting impact All-Stater Val Whiting had on Ursuline Academy's girls basketball program in the 1980s.

The Caravel Academy coach feels Kristin Mills has made a similar impact on his program. Mills, who became the first girl in Delaware history to surpass the 2,000-point plateau this season, is one of three players from Newark/Bear/New Castle area schools to earn first team recognition on the 1999 Delaware Sports-writers and Broadcasters Association girls and boys All-State teams.

Joining Mills on All-State are Steve Smith, boys Player of the Year from state champion William Penn, and Glasgow girls junior Lashanda Simpson.

Mills became the player who pushed Caravel into prominence under Pennell, former Ursuline coach. The only senior on a team consisting of nine freshmen and one sophomore, the future University of Delaware player carried Caravel to a 15-8 record and a quarterfinal appearance in the state tournament.

"The impact Kristin has had on our program is very similar to what Val did at Ursuline," said Pennell. "Before Val arrived we were OK, and after Val, well, you can see what Ursuline still is. The result was the pride the kids take in the program, she instilled that. I feel it's the same way with Kristin."

Mills not only is a great talent but a leader. She brought a level of stability to a very young team while establishing herself as one of the state's elite players.

Pennell joked about how she handled the hoopla of eclipsing the 2,000-point barrier "better than any of us!" Mills went over 2,000 against Wilmington Christian on Feb. 11.

A 17.3-average scorer this season, she finished her career with 2,131 points.

"I took off work early on the day she got to 2,000. I wanted to make sure she was calm," said Pennell. "But when I saw her she wasn't nervous or anything. The whole thing didn't faze her at all."

"We're really going to miss her."

JOE PENNELL

CARAVEL GIRLS BASKETBALL COACH

Pennell doubts there will be another player to come into his program like Mills.

"We're really going to miss her," he said.

The 6-foot-5 Smith also will be missed as the leader of William Penn's 25-1 boys state champs. Smith averaged 16.9 points and 11 rebounds as the Colonials won their first 15 games, then rolled through the state tournament, finishing with a convincing 78-42 championship-game victory over Lake Forest.

In the final three tournament games Smith played like a man possessed, scoring 56 points and grabbing 30 rebounds.

In the finals he led the Colonials with 24 points and 15 rebounds. Winning the state title erased the bitter memories of last year, when Smith missed a last-second shot from underneath that lifted Brandywine past William Penn in overtime in the state championship game.

"Steve wanted to come back and make up for last year, that was his goal from the very beginning of the season," said Steve Johnson, William Penn coach. "He was the leader of our team, and he was the best player in the state this season. He made his teammates better, and he kept us motivated toward the goal of winning the state title."

Johnson may be saying the same thing about another Smith in a year or two. Younger brother Devin Smith, a budding 10th grader, has a chance to follow in Steve's All-State footsteps.

Simpson, a junior, led Glasgow to a 21-3 record and a semifinal state tournament berth. The Dragons graduate just two players, and along with third-team All-Stater Kellye Hines will return a strong nucleus.

"Lashanda made third team All-State last year and she was probably better than that," said coach Larry Walker. "She's a tremendous talent and I felt strongly when I first saw her that she would develop into an All-State player."

A career forward, Simpson also played more on the wing position this year and could sink the 3-point-er. She averaged 14.5 points a game, 12.1 rebounds, 4.5 assists and 5.6 steals.

"She's a great player in every aspect," said Walker. "With her, Kellye and the others, we'll have a very good team again next year."

Caravel aims to defend its state baseball championship

By DAVID HUGHES

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The incredible memory of winning last year's state championship will last a lifetime for Caravel Academy baseball coach Paul Niggebrugge.

It was one of the surprise stories of the year in Delaware high school sports.

Niggebrugge's 10th-seeded Bucs, winless in eight previous state tournament games, swept to a stunning victory. After eliminating long-time powers William Penn, St. Mark's and Seaford, Caravel won the title in dramatic fashion by rallying for two eighth-inning runs to defeat Dickinson 8-7.

The final run scored when Niggebrugge sent the runners and the opposing pitcher balked. But now it's a year later, the celebration is long over, and Caravel is preparing to defend its title.

While Niggebrugge still relives that golden moment frequently, he knows it's time to start looking ahead.

"It's hard to forget. I'll certainly remember it a long time. It's sort of like, how can't you think about it?" Niggebrugge said this week. "But at the same time, it's history now. And I realize that all the great memories of last year aren't going to make us any better this year. Now my focus is on what we need to do to get back there and win another one."

That's a huge challenge. Caravel graduated seven players from last year's champs, six of them starters. Though Niggebrugge still returns a solid nucleus, he knows everyone will be gunning to dethrone his Bucs.

"We lost some fine kids, but we have a good group back and I'm optimistic," said Niggebrugge, whose team finished 14-7 last year after starting the season 4-6.

"We also play a good schedule with some top-notch competition. That should help us."

Pitcher/third baseman Adam Brown, a consistent .400 hitter for several years, leads Caravel's senior-dominated lineup.

It was Brown who got the Bucs' two-out game-winning rally started with a single in last year's title game. Brown will be part of a veteran starting rotation that also features left-handers John Sterling and Eric Comley, and basketball All-Stater Kristin Mills, who surpassed the 2,000-point career total this season.

"The pitching staff looks pretty good, and we'll be depending a lot on them," said Niggebrugge. "If they do as well as we hope they can, that will play a big part in us having another good year."

Catcher Dave Stevens, the Bucs' top hitter last year, also returns. Shortstop Dave Price is another key senior.

"It's hard to replace the kids we lost, but I think we have a real shot to do well again," said Niggebrugge.

The coach has scheduled several strong teams early, including defending New Jersey champ Edison and Maryland champ Riverdale Baptist. Those games will be played next weekend at home.

"Facing teams like that can help make us better," said Niggebrugge. "It can play a prominent role in how you develop as a team."

The state title is another factor. Niggebrugge hopes the experience of that victory will have a carry-over effect.

"One question I always asked my kids was, have you been there, and the answer was no," the coach said. "But now they can say they've been there. That experience is very valuable to build on. The leaders of our team, the seniors, need to share this information with the underclassmen. Anytime you win a championship you grow from that experience."

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

KEYSHA TILLER - HODGSON

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Hodgson Vo-Tech's Kiesha Tiller didn't have anything to prove when she took the court to start for the Gold Team in last Friday's Blue/Gold Girls High School Basketball All-Star game at Christiana High.

All Tiller did this season was lead the state in scoring with a 25.9 points-per-game average and haul down about 10 rebounds per game for the Silver Eagles, who finished 11-9.

Tiller, a third team all-state selection this season, also finished her career as the state's second all-time leading girls scorer with 1,631 points.

Tiller, of Middletown, didn't match her scoring average in the all-star game, and her team fell to the Blue 86-78.

But while playing only about half of the college-length 40-minute contest compared to the 32-minute high school game, Tiller dominated the floor.

She scored 14 points and grabbed several rebounds and some Blue passes.

Tiller, who plans to attend Delaware State University in the fall, scored eight of her points in the first half. Her fourth basket gave the Gold a 30-28 lead before the Blue went on a 10-0 run to end the half.

Tiller, a four-year starter at Hodgson who was Honorable Mention All-State last season, didn't start playing basketball until the eighth grade at Redding Middle School.

"I don't practice in the off-season, so it's probably in the family genes," Tiller said.

Tiller's leaping ability was evident as a toddler, said Keysha's father. Jumping from a couch to a chair was one early favorite activity.

"I think I was about one (year old)," Tiller said.

As for her all-star game performance, Tiller said: "I was trying to do both (win and have fun) at the same time. To me, I have to be competitive."

Off the basketball court, Tiller said she enjoys doing something just as much - singing.

"I sing everywhere," she said with a laugh when asked if it's limited to the shower. "It's just another God-given ability I have."

One place Tiller uses her voice is in her church's choir at Refreshing Spring Glorious Church of God In Christ, in Wilmington, where she also gets to sing solos.

"She's always singing (gospel songs) with her mother (Phyllis)," said Malcolm. "Around the house, in the car."

At DelState, Tiller said she plans to major in business management with a minor in vocal music. And, no doubt, probably cause a few opponents to sing the blues on the basketball court.

Before that, though, Tiller has one more season to complete. She also plays first base on the softball team. Last season, she was a Blue Hen Conference Flight B first-team selection, the third consecutive year she gained all-conference honors in that sport.

She was honorable mention all-state in basketball last season.

"She's very outgoing, but very humble," said her father, Malcolm. "But most of our involvement goes through Christ."

Personnel changes at Univ. of Del.

Charlie Roman and Paul Williams have been added to the University of Delaware's football coaching staff.

Roman, 30, is a secondary coach, replacing linebacker coach David Cohen, who was named defense coordinator at Fordham University.

Williams, 28, returns to his alma mater, where he was a cornerback for the Hens from 1992-95. The past two seasons, Williams was defensive backfield coach at the University of Pennsylvania. He will be a receivers coach with the Hens.

Former receivers coach Bryan Bossard took the same position at the U.S. Military Academy.

UD nine gets back on track

► HENS, from 19

"There's still a long way to go in this season and a lot of baseball yet to be played," said the mild-mannered Hannah, who is bidding to become the 21st coach in NCAA history to eclipse the 1,000-victory plateau.

"A lot of these guys are just getting untracked. Our objective right now is to prepare for the start of league play and try to establish some consistency. We've dug ourselves a deep hole record-wise, and we have a lot of work to do to achieve that consistency."

Consistency has been the trademark of Hannah's program since the 1960s. He's had just two losing seasons, and recent history has seen his national reputation grow even greater.

The Hens have surpassed the 40-win barrier each of the last five years, and last season's 43-10 team advanced to the NCAA regionals for the 10th time in Delaware history.

"It hasn't been too tough on us the way we've started out, because there's that tradition here," said second baseman Andrew Salvo, a sophomore transfer from Carolina-Greensboro who homered in both victories and has four in five games.

"We know we're going to win most of the time."

Sophomore shortstop Peter Maestres, a native of Delray Beach, Fla., and a JUCO transfer, said it's just a matter of the Blue Hens getting their confidence back.

Maestres socked a grand slam

"A lot of these guys are just getting untracked"

BOB HANNAH
BLUE HEN BASEBALL COACH

in the win over La Salle.

"There are a lot of young guys here, but the last 10 games have helped us mature and we're getting better," said Maestres. "We have a lot of dedicated guys here who want to do well."

The Hens also have superstar Mench, who will be the key as Delaware tries to get turned around. The St. Mark's High product was named Collegiate Baseball Magazine's Player of the Year last year when he led the NCAA in home runs (33) and slugging percentage (1.091).

Mench, a likely high pick in this June's amateur draft, crunched a pair of longballs against St. Joseph's, giving him a team-high six.

"Having a guy like Kevin on this team is great. He makes us a better team and we know he can help us win," said Salvo. "You know we're going to win games just with him being here."

Hannah is happy to see his team starting to hit the ball, because an offensive spree can create winning momentum.

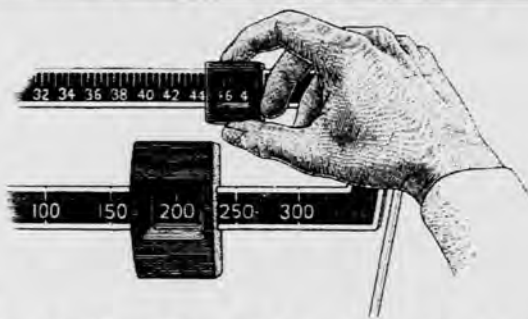

"We're starting to come out of our doldrums," he said.

Better pitching also has helped. Dave Mullin, the only returning member of the staff with significant experience, hurled a four-hit shutout against St. Joseph's, and left-hander Bryan Porcelli five-hit La Salle over eight innings.

The Hens' team ERA was a lofty 9.18 entering the recent homestand, but it's now under seven.

"We're pleased with these games. This is what we need to start getting back where we want to be," said Hannah.

Newarker leads Wm. Penn baseball

Gardner hopes for strong season

By DAVID HUGHES

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

If coach Mel Gardner's young arms come through this spring, traditional power William Penn should enjoy another successful baseball season.

Gardner's seventh-seeded team was ousted by eventual state champion Caravel in the opening round of last year's state tournament.

His top five pitchers graduated, so he'll be relying on three 10th graders - right-handers Jason Rogers and Wes Morrison and southpaw Bret Urban - to form the bulk of his rotation.

"We'll be a building team with those sophomores, but I think down the road they'll all be quality pitchers," said Gardner. "As they develop we'll get better and better. We have some offensive potential. I like what I see in the scrimmages we've had so far."

Jeff Rogers, John Cushing and Brock Donovan are the core of a potentially explosive Colonials' lineup.

Rogers, who will split time between third base, catching and pitching, batted .370 last year and will hit cleanup behind center fielder Cushing.

Donovan, junior sparkplug guard for William Penn's state champion basketball team, will play a similar role as the leadoff man. A dangerous baserunner, he'll set the table for the others.

"Brock runs the bases with reckless abandon," said Gardner, who will start five left-handed hitters. "He has great instincts. Put him at the top of the lineup and he can do a lot of things for us. In our scrimmages he's already scored from second base on wild pitches."

Donovan is slated for second base, but will begin the year in the DH slot. He's still recovering from a shoulder injury suffered on a pick-off play last year, but is expected to be back to 100 percent soon. The injury did not affect him in basketball.

"When he's ready he should move back to second base," said Gardner. "He's contending to re-hab the shoulder."

Catcher/outfielder Scott Linus also will be a key player. Linus, Cushing, Jeff Rogers and Joe Taylor are quad-captains.

"They're all great kids," said Gardner. "We'll have good leadership."

Kenny Stapleford will play second base until Donovan is ready. Junior Kevin Murphy will be at shortstop. Urban will play the outfield and at first base when he's not pitching, and football All-Stater Taylor is pencilled in at first when he isn't on the mound.

Dave Quirico, up from JV, will man one of the outfield positions.

"We can hit, so if we get the pitching we should be OK," said Gardner. "I'm hoping we'll be in the thick of the race."

Brown breaks record

► BOWLING, from 19

finally decided to give it a try. Now it's become his second love after football.

"I just decided to give it a try and I got hooked," he said. "I'm glad I did because I enjoy it a lot."

He enjoys it even more now after this historic accomplishment. His feat attracted a crowd on Monday, as word spread around the center of Brown's impending mark. Once he reached the late frames he became the center of attention.

"The whole alley was behind me," he said. "Now I want a 300 game. That's my next goal now that I've done this."

"I never figured I'd do something like this after just a couple of years."

Second baseman Laurie Brosnahan dives for a ground ball during a Blue Hens' game last week.

Brosnahan, Cariello help lead Blue Hen softball softball, she replied: "There's always something to look forward to. You can always improve on something. Plus, you get to be with your friends."

► BROSNAHAN, from 19

Brosnahan is joined on the team by freshman Amanda Cariello, a pitcher/outfielder from Bear who attended St. Mark's High.

Ferguson said Cariello is currently recuperating from a shoulder injury, but will see more playing time when she returns at an unknown date.

Cariello appeared in four games early this season and is hitting .300.

Delaware travels to Philadelphia on Saturday, March 27, for a double-header against the University of Pennsylvania at 1 p.m.

On Sunday, the Hens play a double-header against St. Francis (Pa.) at noon.

NEW Map of Maryland / Delaware Rivers, Streams, Lakes, and Chesapeake Bay

LOST STREAM MAP FOUND AND RESTORED

The recently published Stream Map of Maryland and Delaware resembles another map—known to Pennsylvania anglers as the "Lost Stream Map."

The "Stream Map of Pennsylvania" was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible—a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years after it first appeared in print. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates, declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key. Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology—the Maryland/ Delaware Stream Map was created.

Stream MAP

of Maryland/Delaware

Why every fisherman and boater needs this map

Professor Higbee's® Stream Map of Maryland/Delaware is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind. This new 2 x 3 1/2' foot color map shows virtually all of the 12,000 miles of Maryland/Delaware streams, plus lakes. Now, overlooked streams and lakes are easy-to-locate on one map.

Rave Reviews

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps." --John P. James, OBSERVER-DISPATCH-ULICA

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake... then 'Professor Higbee's Stream Maps' are without question the finest." --Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"Professor Higbee's Stream Map belongs on the den wall of every freshwater angler and paddler in the region." --Tom Meade, Providence Journal - Bulletin

Watershed Boundaries

Boundary lines for the 16 Maryland and Delaware watersheds, which drain into Chesapeake Bay, are shown on the Stream Map.

The entire Chesapeake Bay watershed covers 64,000 square miles in 6 states. Almost every drop of anything that falls on or spills in the watershed eventually ends up in the Bay.

Success in restoring the Bay begins with each individual protecting his or her own watershed.

You can also help by becoming a member of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, and supporting its efforts to reduce pollution, protect and restore habitat, restore fisheries, and educate and involve more citizens. The Bay belongs to each of us. Its survival depends on our actions today.

A portion of the purchase price helps the important efforts of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.
