

NUMBER 44

DELAWARE LOSES BY A SMALL SCORE

On a field more like a miniature lake than a football oval, Gettysburg defeated Delaware by the score of 6 to 0. Although the Delaware boys were outweighed over 15 pounds to the man, they put up a plucky fight, and standing ankle deep in mud held their heavier opponents time and again.

In the second quarter, after two end runs, Gettysburg placed the ball on the four yard line. Three straight line plunges netted a touchdown. Sawyer carrying the ball on the final play. Dayhoff kicked the goal.

Delaware's offense was weakened considerably on account of the sloppy condition of the field, Taylor failing to get away for one of his characteristic long end runs more than two or three times during the game. Had the field been in anything like the proper kind of shape, the Blue and Gold would doubtless have returned with a sealp added to their string, but as conditions were there was nothing to it but the straightest kind of old-fashioned football.

For Gettysburg, Lawyer, Dayhoff, Beegle and Beek starred. For Delaware, Taylor and Handy were the best ground gainers. The lineup:

THE TIME FOR WORK

Following the startling statements made by the visiting committee representing the State board of Education in regard to Delaware's rural schools, the lectures of Mrs. de Garmo, who has recently toured the State, coincided with practical suggestions and timely advice.

The poorly ventilated, poorly heated, and uncomfortable country schools, with the close and unitary outbuildings, which are familiar to us all, are among the things which Mrs. de Garmo is seeking to eradicate. She claims that such schools will exist as long as impassable roads make the consolidated school unpracticable.

This handicap is already largely removed from New Castle county, and the completion of the duPont boulevard will give the entire state a large proportion of improved roads.

The illustrations and descriptions of what has been accomplished in other sections by the consolidated school, in contrast to the present lamentable conditions in our State, convinces us of a weight of sins of omission which can be relieved only by immediate action.

Educational thought, since the building of the rural schools, has undergone a change. Mental development is no longer the sole object of the system, but an effort enters into the plan to provide for the physical development as well. Science and statistics have long since proven the impossibility of health in such surroundings as the visiting committee has described, and we wonder how an enlightened community can tolerate the existence of these conditions, rather than sit idly by in complacent indifference.

Read the article in another column which tells some of the ways and means devised by the others' Congress in Mrs. dearmo's State, for the betterment of the boys and girls. Does the story not contain suggestions for Delaware?

SPEAKER FROM DELAWARE

T. Coleman duPont addressed the first American Road Congress at the American Association for Highway Improvement and Affiliated Organizations that opened in Richmond, Va., on Monday and will conclude Thursday.

The meeting will bring together one of the best engineers, road officials, traffic experts, legislators, railway officials, manufacturers, contractors and agriculturists, who devote their attention to the many important problems of road construction, maintenance and administration.

Delaware has only one more game before 1911 record is complete. The last contest of the season will be with Dickinson College on the home field next Saturday afternoon.

Red Cross Christmas seals will be put on sale next week, in all public places except the post office, where they will not be handled until nearer the holiday season. The 1911 seals are most attractive in design. They are sold at one cent apiece as in former years, and must be placed on the back of mail matter, and not on the face.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM H. KELLEY
William H. Kelley, 67 years of age, died very suddenly at the Delaware Hospital about eleven p. m. on Monday, November 20. Mr. Kelley, apparently in his usual health, was taking a pleasure trip to Wilmington in company with Mr. S. M. Donnell, in the latter's machine, when he was stricken with apoplexy of the brain. Mr. Donnell discovered that his companion was seriously ill shortly after leaving Marshallton, and hastened to the Delaware Hospital, where the best medical attention was received. The stroke was not considered fatal by the hospital authorities, and the death following within a few hours was a shock to all.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence on Friday at 2 p. m., Elder Eubanks officiating. Interment in Head of Christian Cemetery. Services at the grave in charge of Independent Order of Odd Fellows, No. 12.

MARY SHORT BROOKS
Mary Short Brooks, aged 85, widow of Thomas Brooks, of Chester, Pa., formerly of White Clay Creek hundred, died November 20th at her late residence, 719 West Second street, Chester, Pa. Services will be held at the house (this) Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Interment at Christiana Cemetery, Thursday morning. Meet train at Stanton, 10.10 a. m. A short service at the church.

EXCELLENT SUGGESTIONS

From Mrs. de Garmo's talk

A large number of people attended the lecture held in the Oratory last Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Frank de Garmo, of St. Louis, Mo., under the auspices of the Office of Good Roads, Washington, D. C., gave an interesting and instructive illustrated talk on "The Welfare of the Rural Child and Good Roads."

A great work has been done along this line in Mrs. de Garmo's native State. The idea had its beginning from the reading of a report from the U. S. Government in 1908, which rated Louisiana as fifty-first in literacy. The intelligent population was startled at this revelation and nine women of the State determined to investigate the cause. They met in Shreveport, Louisiana, to discuss the matter. One of the number gave as her opinion, the condition of the roads as the greatest factor in the solution of the problem. She cited for her own case as an example, having been forced to leave her ancestral country home in order to place her children in school. All who heard realized the weight of the argument, and an effort was immediately made to have a government road expert visit that section at the next Louisiana State Fair. The department at Washington granted the request and a representative devoted several months to the work of educating the people of that State to a desire for better roads. On all occasions the lecturer was made the hero of the day—escorted by brass bands and speaking from bowers of flowers. Enough money was raised for two miles of model road with a model cottage at one end and a model school house at the other. After such a beginning the movement has progressed until now no State in the Union surpasses Louisiana in point of good road laws.

Many of Mrs. de Garmo's slides illustrated the ways in which the improved roads have affected the entire social life of the community. A picture of one school before showing the small log school house and the teacher with three pupils and a road of mire and mud holes over which to travel, was most pleasantly relieved by the one that followed, showing the same site, a new building replacing the old one and thirty-seven happy children on the playground. A fine consolidated school in Indiana was shown, also the carries-alls in which the children were collected from a four mile radius. There are about two thousand of such schools in the United States, where in addition to the pleasure of a wider social circle and all that follows, the pupil enjoys the improvements that years of experience have revealed to the educational world.

The impossibility of such a system with the poor roads that are found in some districts is evident. One principal of such a school after a hard fight for consolidation had written to Mrs. de Garmo that four miles couldn't pull fifteen children down grade to school.

An idea which has gained in favor where these schools have proved a great success is that of providing lunches for the noon hour through the domestic science department of the school. The fireless cooker is used, the food being placed there by the pupil whose turn it happens to be, after the close of school in the afternoon. Each pupil provides his own cup and is served delicious soup or something seasonable at the noon hour of the following day. Mrs. de Garmo believes this will become a part of the domestic science course of each school within the next ten years.

The State president of the Mothers' Congress of Louisiana has devised many means of increasing the opportunity of the child to become a happy and useful citizen. Among such movements are the Boys' Patrol and the Girls' Pick and Shovel Corps. The boys under the age of sixteen are fitted with national guardsmen's uniforms and patrol the roads, each one agreeing to keep that part in front of his home in condition. They are taught to use the King Road Drag, to drill, and to perform feats of physical endurance becoming a member of the patrol. The girls have an organization which fits their needs. The qualification for membership to this secret order is the ability to this secret order is the ability to darn, patch, and make buttonholes, cook three kinds of meat, make three beverages, cook three vegetables and make three desserts.

The model cottage built at the expense of the ladies, provides another example of the well-directed energy of the boy and the girl. Every piece of furniture in the building is the handwork of a boy under sixteen and all the artistic touches and home decorations, the work of girls of the same age.

The work done in this State was highly commended by Theodore Roosevelt during his Presidency, also by Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, and Honorable Elsworth Brown, former president of the National Educational Association.

The speaker plead for a vote which would provide federal assistance in providing this surest means of social betterment, for those districts too poor to provide it for themselves—where the people are literally ostracized from April until December—and suffer mentally, morally and physically thereby.

Mrs. de Garmo is enthusiastic over her work. She firmly believes in the axiom quoted from the report of the organization she represents—"What you would see in the future citizen, you must instill into the child in his home, school, church and social center."

LIFE'S MELODY

"Why not cast a gleam of sunshine over Life's rough road today? Why not brighten up the shady spots we find along the way? Just a little smile will do it; or a kindly word to show we appreciate the efforts of our fellow-beings so. That we wish to let them know it by a friendly glance or nod. Which shall surely help them upward on their pilgrimage to God."

"Be good—and let who will be clever; Do noble things, nor dream them all day long. And so make life, death, and the vast forever One grand, sweet song."

"O, heart of mine, we shouldn't Worry so! What we've missed of calm, We couldn't have you know! What we've met of stormy pain, And of sorrow's driving rain, We can better meet again, If it blow!"

"The strange way, my dearie— The bright world and cold; For God gives one the violets, And God gives one the gold."

The strange way, my dearie— Its blue skies and gray; But God shall read the riddle There—at His judgment day."

"And up the east another day Shall chase the bitter dark away; What though our eyes with tears are wet? The sunrise never failed us yet."

The blush of dawn may yet restore Our light and hope, and joy once more; Sad soul, take comfort, nor forget That sunrise never failed us yet."

"Sunshine-making is a blessed task; Cheery hearts, like lovely, wide, blue sky, Banish weary gloom and give fresh hope. Check the rising tear or thoughtless sigh."

Put the golden sunshine in each day; Others need the cheer that comes through you— Need it most when outer sky's dull gray, Leaves the sunshine-making yours to do."

"If Nature have a word for thee, 'Tis this, be brave; 'Tis this, be strong; Let all thy heart be full of cheer, And fill the measure of the year With thrill of happy song."

BOOKS WANTED

A school for tuberculosis children having been opened at Hope Farm, whereby the children inmates are to be enabled to keep up with their studies, books are now desired by those in charge for the pupils.

The kind of books particularly desired is that which would be of benefit to children in the primary grade, including story books, etc. Persons having them would help Hope Farm materially by leaving them at the office, No. 1 West Fifth street, Wilmington.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Now, that another year is rapidly drawing to a close, it is fitting that we should turn away from our various occupations and professions in life, and render thanks unto Almighty God for the many blessings with which he has brightened our lives throughout the year.

The great blessing of peace has dwelt in our midst, and an all-seeing eye has watched and guided our course. Therefore, in recognition of these benefits and blessings, and following the recommendation of the President of the United States, I, Simon S. Pennewill, Governor of the State of Delaware, do set apart and do recommend that the people of this State on that day refrain from their usual vocations, and in their homes and places of worship offer unto God thanks for the bounteous gifts that have fallen from His hand, and pray for the continuance of His Divine favors.

Thursday, November 30th as a day of Thanksgiving and Prayer;

In Testimony Whereof, I, Simon S. Pennewill, Governor of the State of Delaware, have hereunto set my hand, and caused the Great Seal to be affixed, at Dover, this first day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred and eleven, and the year of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and thirty-sixth.

By the Governor: Simon S. Pennewill, Charles S. Richards, Secretary of State.

THE DEBUTANTE

In a recent issue of one of our leading dailies, in a department cleverly conducted in the interests of women, we find delightful tributes to those happy creatures known as debutantes.

All quite appropriate, no doubt, but there follows some suggestions for the hostess who entertains the debutante and her friends at dinner before the dance or the drama; suggestions as to the arrangement of the table and the details of the service. We quote in part: "On the right of each plate are arranged in a circle the glasses to be used during the meal—one glass for cocktail or sherry, which should be served with the relishes, another for white wine to be served with the fish, a glass for Bordeaux to be served with the entree and one for Burgundy, to be served with the roast. If champagne is to follow, the glasses should be placed upon the table when the wine is ready to be served. Liquors are served in special glasses after coffee."

Ah, doesn't coffee sound rather tame in company like that? After all that stimulating, my butterfly goes to the dance or the drama.

At any rate, the works of the world does not wait for sluggish brains, when the day dawns. Man smiles; he ponders. Do women want the ballot? Well, there are two ways of looking at the matter. Honest, thinking women are working for that privilege, while in many a staid, sober town where your butterflies of the social glass are an unknown quantity, there are young men, just as idle, and just as reckless, who use the ballot in as trifling a manner as they live their lives.

THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES

THE HEALTH OF THE CHILD

Superintendent George W. Twinn, of the Wilmington schools, has arranged for professional study by the city teachers, of "The Health Indexes of the Child."

The Journal of Education gives the following interesting facts concerning this work:

There are eleven cities in the United States that have the floors of the school rooms washed daily, and eighty per cent. have them swept daily. This is wholly the result of modern health campaigns. It is not a great while ago that in many cities floors were only washed in vacation and swept but once a week. There are six cities that have the floors washed every other day. Altogether there are eighteen cities that wash the floors oftener than once a week or less than two per cent. Seven per cent. of the cities wash the floors as often as once a week. More than eighty-five per cent. of the cities do not wash the floors as often as once a month. Nearly fifty per cent. do not wash the floors oftener than twice a year. A third of the cities do not wash the floors oftener than once a year. Five per cent. never wash the floors. There are thirty-one cities that have the school house windows washed weekly. One-fifth of the cities wash the windows monthly or oftener. Half of the cities wash the windows as often as three times a year. In seven cities the windows are never washed, and in one-fourth of the cities not oftener than once a year.

It would be extremely interesting to know the number of women in the various boards of education, and whether or not the presence of women on the boards has anything to do with the variations in the standards of cleanliness. The teacher has a great deal to do in caring for the health of the children under her control, but she must take school room conditions as she finds them and a statistics show, these are not always hygienically the best. The cleanliness of the school room and its proper heating and ventilation furnish the physical conditions that are fundamental to the mental progress of the child. The efficient janitor is one of the most important employees of the board of education, for upon his work the health of the children largely depends.

SOCIAL WELFARE WORK

A State Conference on Social Welfare Work, under the United auspices of the Social Service Committees of the New-Century Club, the Associated Charities, and the Hebrew Charities will be held in Wilmington on December 6 and 7. The Wednesday meetings will be held in the New-Century Club on Delaware avenue and the Thursday meetings in the Temple of Truth, Washington street, above ninth.

Subjects relating to forward movements in welfare work, Training of Feeble Minded and Defective Children, Remedial Loans, Co-ordination of Charities, School Nurses, Juvenile Court and Probation Work, Conservation of Human Welfare in Industry will be discussed by able and experienced speakers.

Churches, institutions and societies are invited to send two delegates whose names may be sent to the secretary. Out-of-town guests will be entertained at luncheon on Wednesday, at the New-Century Club. Guests should notify the secretary by December first. The members of the committee follow: Miss M. H. Shuman, chairman; Miss Emma Worrell, Mrs. Frank M. Jones, Mrs. Catharine B. Burchard, Miss Helen Croston, Mr. J. H. Gordon, Mrs. K. P. Stafford, Miss E. P. Bissell, Mrs. E. G. Robinson, Mrs. Charles Warner, Mrs. A. D. Warner, secretary.

PEACE SUNDAY

The American Peace and Arbitration League of New York City is planning to observe Sunday, November 26, as Unity Sunday throughout the United States and Great Britain, the object being to urge the signing of the arbitration treaty between this country, Great Britain and France. On the day set aside special sermons will be preached. The matter was brought up at a meeting of the Ministerial Union of Wilmington recently, and it is probable that many Delaware clergymen will observe Peace Sunday.

GOSPEL OF GOOD FARMING

The State Colleges of Agriculture of Maryland and Delaware, and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company started on Monday to carry the ideas of up-to-date farming to the people of the Delaware peninsula.

By the use of a special train, which has been provided by the railroad company, State college agriculturists are touring the entire peninsula, stopping at forty-two stations for the purpose of giving practical talks on farming subjects of vital interest to every section. Six days will be required to make the tour, but provision has been made to have talks given at such points that no farmer on the peninsula will have to go very far from home to attend.

This educational work which is being done among the farmers of the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia peninsula is in pursuance of the policy of the Pennsylvania Railroad to upbuild the rural districts of the territory traversed by its lines. During each winter since 1908 the company has been operating these trains with a view to covering every division of the system. During the week, the lecturers on the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia Peninsula Farmers' train will pay particular attention to soil fertility, good seeds, apples, berries, cantaloupes, white and sweet potatoes, poultry, tomatoes, lime and alfalfa. These subjects have been selected by the State College authorities as they all blend together in the one principal thing for which the peninsula is noted—truck farming.

Dr. R. S. Hill, director of Farmers' Institutes of Maryland, and Wesley Webb, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture of Delaware, are in charge of the train. The speakers are practical farmers who have made a success in the various lines of agriculture.

DELAWARE PEACE SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Peace Society of Delaware was held last Wednesday evening in Friends' Meeting House, Ninth and Tatnall streets, Wilmington. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: George A. Rhoads, president; J. Chandler Pyle, Benjamin R. Smedley, and Emma Worrell, vice-presidents; Charles S. Philips, secretary; Richard Maris, treasurer.

NOVEMBER 22, 1911

A STRONG INTERVIEW

Profound hope for the furtherance of world peace was expressed by Cardinal Gibbons in an interview with James C. Greenman, whom the distinguished prelate addressed himself as follows:

"I sincerely hope that the new arbitration treaties negotiated by our national governments with Great Britain and France will be ratified by the Senate. They should receive the support of the whole country. It is of the utmost importance that civilized nations should bind themselves in advance to submit to arbitration all international questions which can be settled by the application of principles of law and equity, and I can see no reason why there should not be appointed joint commissions to investigate international controversies and determine whether particular questions are of such a character, so that each nation will be in honor bound to submit those issues to international arbitration rather than to resort to war. That idea represents the best spirit of the age. It has behind it the endorsement of the Christian world."

It was something to sit beside the venerable primate of the Catholic Church in America and hear him sound again the call to international peace that is stirring the men and women of all civilized countries. In his Baltimore home, surrounded by memorials of his friends, dead and living, among them the greatest and noblest of earth, he seemed so frail, so gentle, so remote from the sorrid strife and ugly commonplace of vulgar life. But in spite of his 77 years and the sweetness and simplicity of his life, Cardinal Gibbons seems as much statesman as churchman and there is a singular and affecting directness in his manner, an unmistakable, and sometimes dramatic, ring of American patriotism in what he says and how he says it. When he speaks of the present and future of the United States his blue-gray eyes light up with pride and love, his slender figure grows more erect, his keen, intellectual countenance shines with enthusiasm, and his whole manner betrays the stirrings of emotion. One gets a rare and lasting impression of profound patriotism.

War, Like the Duel, Outgrown.

The rain drifted mildly against the windows as the talk progressed, yet even the humblest pedestrians in the street looked up as they passed the white-haired Cardinal's house; for all the princely scarlet of his dress he is recognized as a man of the people.

"Among the many advantages of international arbitration," continued the Cardinal, "it seems to me to be a very serviceable breaker against war because its deliberate and orderly procedure gives a nation's blood time to cool. Formerly it was only necessary to slap the face of a foreign minister and that was considered a sufficient casus belli. Think of a condition in which a personal affront like that was regarded as a justification for the slaughter of multitudes!"

"Duels between individuals were once frequent in this country. Even in the United States Senate and the House of Representatives an insult would be followed by armed combat. The nation, however, has grown wiser and better, and the duel has been relegated to the museum of extinct social monstrosities. I do not see why the same influence that led to the suppression of duels between individuals should not produce a like result in the affairs of nations which are simply aggregations of individuals. General international arbitration treaties seem to me to be the surest and quickest means through which the universal peace may be effected, or at least approached."

"When we consider the evils of war our eyes are directed almost exclusively to the combatants themselves. We have no thoughts for the non-combatants. The truth is that the most frightful sufferings of war are borne by the wives and children of those who fight in the field. The bitter agony of their waiting and anxiety is far worse than the mere physical hardships and sufferings of the armed men. A wound to the loved one in battle strikes more cruelly those who have to wait at home. Physical suffering usually obviates the fear of death. Men can suffer and die bravely in the excitement of war, but harder, much harder to bear is the moral agony of those who must wait, without power to help their dear ones in danger."

A Waste of Blood and Treasure.

"The financial side of war, too, has its strong aspect. It is proper that the world at large should have something to say about quarrels between particular nations. The commerce of nations is now so involved and related that war between two nations is an interference with all nations. For instance, I have $20,000 invested in German securities. Germany goes to war, and I must suffer, although I am an American citizen. International efforts to prevent war rest upon equitable as well as humanitarian rights. The result of war is not only a loss of life, but also a partial paralysis of trade."

"Men will not fight if they have time to grow cool. Nations will not fight if they have time to think. The penalties and degradations of war are too great, the agonies of the weak and helpless, the aged and other non-combatants are too horrible, the waste of wealth, the destruction of industry and commerce are too vast, to be endured when there is a way to peace. I am in favor of the general arbitration treaty principle and I endorse the idea of the new treaties with Great Britain and France because I believe that questions which might otherwise result in war should be first taken away from the influence of party politics and considered seriously in the calm neutral air of some impartial tribunal whose findings must at least morally bind the contending nations to submit to international arbitration all questions which may be found solvable according to principles of law or equity. The world's greatest need is a breakwater against temporary passions. War is too horrible to be entered upon in cold blood and with deliberation when there is any other possible way to settle the question in dispute."

I think that one of the things that will redound most to the glory of our country in the future will be its enthusiastic devotion to the movement for international peace. Devotedness to this noble purpose alone will stamp the United States as a truly Christian country, for universal peace among men—the brotherhood of men—is essentially Christian. Before the advent of Christianity, war was the rule; peace the exception.

Master's Teachings Have Not Failed.

"In spite of the fact that the divinely-appointed spokesman of Christianity eloquently pleaded for universal peace among all men and all nations, and that, in defiance of this constant appeal, wars were waged, still it must be admitted, that they occurred less frequently than before and were conducted with less cruelty and less inhumanity. The reasons for this, if time permitted, could be clearly stated. However, it would be unjust to infer from this fact that Christianity has failed in her mission of peace to the nations. It should be borne in mind that the Christian religion enforces her humane precepts, not by the sword, but by moral and religious sanctions; and that, in contending for peace, she has to struggle against the most formidable of earthly forces, and the most impetuous of human passions."

It is a gratifying fact that, with a population of about 100,000,000 the army of the United States does not exceed 100,000 men, who are scattered for the most part along the frontiers of the country. This force, while sufficiently strong to preserve our domestic peace, is too insignificant to excite the fear or provoke the jealousy of our neighbors. Our best security lies in the supremacy of the law, in the loyalty of our citizens; in their strong attachment to our free institutions and in abstention from entangling alliances.

"That the cause of international peace is gaining ground is evident from the fact that war is no longer precipitated among Christian nations, as in former times, at the whim of the sovereign; but the voice of the people is heard through their representatives, and the press, at least in constitutional governments. Commercial interests and fraternal and social relations between the nations of the earth, are now becoming so intertwined that one country can hardly inflict an injury on another without having the blow recoil upon itself."

Arbitration Humiliates None.

"In well-ordered society the disputes of individuals are settled not by recourse to a duel, but to the law. Would it not be a blessing to humanity if national controversies were composed on the same principles, and that the just cause of a nation should be vindicated by an appeal to arms? Then to refuse as well as in private litigations, could be applied the words: 'Thine is he armed that hath his quarrel just.' And this amiable system, while protecting the rights of the weak, would not humiliate or wound the national pride of the strong, since it does not attempt to trench on the sovereignty or autonomy of any power."

"Christianity has not only diminished the number, but has mitigated the horrors of war. In pagan times the conqueror rarely showed mercy to the conquered. Vae victis, woe to the vanquished, was his usual motto. The cities were laid waste. The wives and daughters of the subdued nation became the prey of the victorious soldier. The defeated kings and generals were obliged to grace the triumph of the conqueror. They were led away in chains and doomed to hopeless captivity."

"Contrast the treatment of the Jews under Titus with the conduct of General Grant toward the conquered Confederate States. Both generals were engaged in a civil war. Judea was as much an integral part of the Roman Empire as the Southern States were of the Federal Union. Its inhabitants appealed to the clemency of Titus as forcibly as the vanquished States appealed to the magnanimity of the Northern general. Yet Grant in allowing the Southern leader, with his officers and men, to return home after the surrender at Appomattox Court House, was not particularly praised for his humanity."

"Imagine General Lee, with his surrendered army, led in chains through the streets of Washington, the victorious troops bearing aloft the confiscated treasures of Southern homes and sanctuaries and the victims compelled to erect a public monument to their own shame!"

Reign of Prince of Peace Near.

"Let us cherish the hope that the day is not far off when the reign of the Prince of Peace will be firmly established on the earth, when the spirit of the Gospel will so far sway the minds and hearts of rulers, that standing armies will yield to permanent courts of arbitration, that contests will be carried on in the council chambers instead of the battlefield, and decided by the pen instead of the sword."

"If we do not insist that before men go to war they shall do everything in their power to settle their dispute by arbitration, then might becomes right."

LOCAL NEWS

Services will be held in the Head of Christiana Church next Sunday morning and in the afternoon at the Christiana Church, Rev. A. Van Overen, pastor.

The schools of the town will be closed next week, owing to the Teachers' Institute and the Thanksgiving holidays.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church have named a committee whose duty it is to see that the church is properly ventilated. They promise for the future a comfortably warm room as well as pure air.

The Sigma Nu Fraternity will give a dance in the Newark Opera House on December the eighth, the first social function of this kind ever given by this fraternity.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, whose wonderful voice has charmed people in all parts of the world, will appear at the Grand Opera House, Wilmington, next Friday night for the benefit of the Homeopathic Hospital.

The ladies of Head of Christiana Presbyterian Church will serve the annual Thanksgiving supper in the basement of the church on the evening of Thursday, November 30th.

O. W. Widdoes, Newark's popular expressman, has purchased a Buick delivery car which will be at the service of the public within a few days.

Miss L. R. Swayne spent Monday in Trenton, N. J., observing the sixth grade work in a number of the schools of that city. The Newark pupils of that grade were favored with a holiday.

The ladies of Ebenezer M. E. Church will give a supper on Thursday, November 30th, from 5 to 9 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Curtis and Mrs. C. C. Jones left their Newark home last week for Wilmington, where they will spend the winter.

Thomas Major and family have moved into the Mrs. E. C. Jones' property, lately vacated by James Sutherland and family.

The Delaware Corn Growers' Association will hold its annual meeting and exhibit at Dover, December 14 and 15.

Henry M. Taylor, treasurer of the Remington Machine Co., and president of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, was elected on Thursday to the presidency of the American Vulcanized Fibre Company, to succeed Frank Taylor, his brother, who died recently.

Miss Elizabeth Briscoe, of Wilmington, formerly of Newark, sailed Saturday for Italy. She will spend the next six months visiting points of interest in Europe.

The work of laying new sewers in West Elton is being pushed rapidly. Over 2,000 feet have already been laid.

Delaware College Freshmen defeated Elkton High School last Wednesday in a game of football by the score of 10 to 0. The game covered two fifteen minute quarters.

Mrs. R. C. Reed, of Elmira, N. Y., spent last Wednesday in Newark. Dr. Reed, who recently accepted the professorship of Veterinary Science at Delaware, will move his family to the town the first of January.

Mr. Lewis Thomas has accepted a position with the Jacob Thomas Wall Paper Co. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will make their future home in Newark.

Between the years 1908 and 1910 the number of schools giving agricultural instruction has increased from five hundred and forty-five to eight hundred and seventy-five.

It seems that the ladies of Salisbury have decided that to have their town beautiful and healthful the hog must be banished. A vote is to be taken on the subject in the near future.

The Civic Club of Pocomoke City, Md., has centered its activities for the present, upon beautifying "The Causeway," one of the entrances to the town, which is at present disfigured by the dumping of rubbish along its borders.

The Commercial Travelers' National League has issued a protest against the permission by the management of hotels, of the "tipping" of employees. Furthermore, the threat is made that the patronage of the members of the league will be refused those hotels that do not comply with the request.

The farmer's wife in Southern Indiana and Western Kentucky has "gone" her spouse "one better." Turkeys are plentiful and cheap, but she and her sisters have combined and say they will sell no birds until better prices are allowed.

The clever little industry of gathering and marketing Christmas greens will soon be in full swing for the year 1911. Holly and mistletoe are plentiful in the lower part of this State, and are harvested, bought and shipped in the same systematic manner used in handling other crops, and yields pleasing returns.

SQUIBS

"Dickinson" has always claimed that Delaware wasn't on the map. Now, they play football here Thanksgiving. Luck to the dickens.

A little girl went into a local store yesterday and asked if any one knew where Dr. Steele's butcher shop was.

Don't fool yourself by going to Philadelphia, Chapman carries Chestnut street goods. Just step in and see his lines of men's furnishings.

The new schedule on the Pennsylvania Railroad goes into effect on Sunday. Newark has been awarded one extra train going north on Sunday. It is a flag stop.

According to the theory of progress held by some of the Post friends, this fact should not be mentioned since it might be interpreted as a knock on the town. One idea is rather the opposite—that by consenting to such treatment without a word of protest shows a lack of that spirit which prompts business, towns or men to move.

To think of Elkton having six more trains a day than Newark!

Rather than a knock for the town it seems to us that it is a boast. Newark deserves more recognition. She will get her deserts, only when the citizens realize that in some instances they must be demanded.

The Post is a friend to Newark, but thank God it has not reached that stage of a self satisfied air that sees no need for improvement. If we have climbed to the top of progress—then bring us another ladder.

The Newark Post is doing things

PEOPLES COLUMN

Editor of the Post:

Will you let a native Newarke express his thanks to Mrs. Taubenthaus for her interesting and suggestive letter to the Post about the intellectual dry rot in Newark outside the class rooms of Delaware College and the laboratories of the Experimental Station? It is what I 'oft have thought, though ne'er so well expressed.

Strange, it has often struck me, that Newark—long called the Athens of Delaware—should be nearly the only large town in Delaware which does not have courses of lectures of a cultural character! True, we are to have this winter a course arranged through the good offices of Dr. Vaughn, the new professor of history—and all honor to this new member of the faculty for his part in it! But can there not be other lectures besides these four—something of a more literary nature, like those delivered years ago with much success, when town and college were much smaller, under the auspices of the University Extension Society. This admirable organization is still in the field, furnishing at small cost excellent lectures on a wide range of subjects—especially belles-lettres—some of them representing the very flower of the scholarship of Oxford and Cambridge.

As Mrs. Taubenthaus says: Delaware College assuredly owes something to the community in which it stands—more indeed than it has heretofore given. The main duty of a college is, of course, to teach the arts and sciences and prepare for life those who enter as students.

Its secondary duty, according to modern rule, is to reflect light and learning and culture upon those living in the vicinity of it and constantly strive to widen its sphere of influence.

Has Delaware College done this? Does Newark's social life furnish any marked indication that it is any more intellectual than that of Wilmington, Smyrna, Dover or Milford? If not, why not?

Another thing. Why can not Delaware College extend the privilege of its fine library (under careful restrictions) to those residents of the town who are zealous for knowledge and culture? I do not mean necessarily to let books be taken out but certainly to let them be consulted in the library where there is such a wealth of reference books. Many other colleges do this and it has been found to work excellently and to be productive of great good in their communities. N. V. Z.

"RICHMOND" Suction Cleaner

Here is an Electric Suction Cleaner which weighs but ten pounds instead of sixty, and all that any vacuum cleaner or suction cleaner can do, this one does. It represents as great an advance over heavyweight vacuum cleaners as those cleaners represented over brooms. For it is the lightest and simplest suction cleaner ever designed. There is nothing to wear out. There are no gears, no diaphragms, no valves. Nothing to jiggle loose. To operate simply attach to any electric-light socket.

SOFT MOLASSES COOKIES.

Seal 1 cup molasses and pour it over one-quarter cup of butter. Add one-half cup sugar, 1 level teaspoonful of salt, 1 level teaspoonful ginger, 2 level teaspoonfuls cinnamon. Dissolve one-half teaspoonful soda in one-quarter cup milk water, and add to the molasses mixture. Stir in enough flour to roll out and cut. Sprinkle with granulated sugar and bake in moderate oven.

OAT MEAL COOKIES.

1 cup sugar, 1 cup oat meal, (rolled, uncooked), 1 cup flour, 1 large tablespoonful butter, 2 eggs, 2 level teaspoonfuls cinnamon, 1 level teaspoonful vanilla, 1 level teaspoonful baking powder. Cream sugar and butter, add eggs. Beat very light, add flour and baking powder, oat meal, spices and vanilla. If dough is too thick to drop from spoon, add milk. Bake in a moderate oven.

SOUR MILK CAKES.

Mix 2 one-quarter cups sifted pastry flour, 1 level teaspoonful soda, one-half teaspoonful salt, 1 level teaspoonful ginger, 1 cup sugar. Stir in 1 cup sour milk, one-half cup cooking molasses and 2 level teaspoonfuls melted butter. Beat well and bake in muffin tins.

OAT MEAL CRISPS.

Melt one rounded tablespoonful butter and one-half cup sugar in one-half cup hot milk. Add one-half level teaspoonful salt, 1 level teaspoonful lemon juice, 1 cup rolled oats, (uncooked), and enough Graham flour to make soft dough. Drop from teaspoon on greased pan some distance apart and bake in a moderate oven.

BALTIMORE COOKIES.

1 cup raisins, 1 cup shredded orange, citron and lemon peel, 1 wine glass cherry, 1 teaspoonful cinnamon, 3 eggs, 2 cups flour, one-half teaspoonful soda (dissolved in little water), one-half teaspoonful salt, 2 tablespoonfuls melted butter. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Drop far apart from spoon, onto greased tins. Bake in a moderate oven.

NUT COOKIES.

2 cups sugar, 2 cups flour, 2 level teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half teaspoonful salt, 4 eggs, one-half cup milk, 2 cups nut meats, chopped fine. Beat butter with sugar till creamy. Add the yellow of eggs, salt, vanilla, and beat until foamy. Add the milk, beat again; add flour and baking powder, beat, add nuts and bake the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Drop from spoon on greased tin and bake in moderate oven.

JUMBLES.

One-half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, one-quarter cup milk, 2 eggs, 2 level teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half teaspoonful almond extract, flour to mix—not too stiff. Cream sugar and butter, add eggs and beat until very light. Add milk, flavoring, little salt. Sift flour twice after adding baking powder. Mold into little balls, place on greased tin, pat with hands until thin. Place raisin or one-half English walnut on each. Bake in a moderate oven.

SPICE CAKES.

One and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup sour milk, 2 cups chopped raisins, 3 eggs, one-half nut-meg, 1 level teaspoonful cinnamon, 1 level teaspoonful cloves, 1 level teaspoonful soda. Add flour to make stiff enough to roll and bake in a moderate oven.

HERMITS.

Mix 1 cup sifted flour, 1 level teaspoonful soda, 1 level teaspoonful cinnamon, 1 level teaspoonful nut-meg, one-quarter teaspoonful salt, one-quarter teaspoonful cloves. Add 2 cups of seedless raisins which have been washed in boiling water and drier. Blend one-quarter cup butter with 1 and one-half cups sugar. Add 2 well beaten eggs, 3 tablespoonfuls of milk and the flour mixture. Beat well, add enough flour to make dough just stiff enough to stay up on greased pan when dropped from teaspoon. Bake quickly. If they run together cut in long narrow strips when taken from oven.

"If a friend of mine gave a feast and did not invite me to it I should not mind a bit. But if a friend of mine had a sorrow and refused to allow me to share it, I should feel it most bitterly. If he shuts the doors of the house of mourning against me, I would move back again and again and beg to be admitted, so that I might share in what I was entitled to share. If he thought me unworthy, and to weep with him, I should feel it as the most terrible humiliation, as the most terrible insult for which I could be indicted as me. He who can look on the loneliness of the world and share its sorrow, and realize something of the wonder of life, is in immediate contact with divine things, and has not as near to God's secret as anyone can get." Oscar Wilde.

COZY CORNER—Molly's Work Bag

My gift today is designed for usefulness. Molly explained, as she saw my interested and inquiring glance. "I received the one from which I am copying this last Christmas, and it has given me so much satisfaction!"

She was surrounded with pieces of cretonne, braid, pasteboard, etc., which odds and ends were soon to grow into a convenient fixture for the sewing table or corner of the room.

She had already cut three pieces of paste board about ten and one-half inches high and six and one-half inches wide. The next step was to cut the cretonne which was a pretty piece of cloth covered with a design of violet and green coloring. Two strips about 20 inches in length were used. These were stitched together so as to divide into three sections, of a size into which the paste board snugly fit. About one-half an inch was left on each side of the middle section in order to allow freedom for folding. After the cardboard had been inserted the outer edge was bound with green braid. A large pocket about eight inches in depth was formed from a 18 inch strip gathered, with a rubber run through the casing was sewed in the upper left corner, and another smaller one in the lower right corner. On the left section was sewed a diamond shaped cushion of plain green. The center section was fitted with a needle case of plain green, a rectangular pin cushion, and two strips of green braid stretched at about an inch apart, making a convenient place for the scissors and thimble to be slipped for safe keeping. The third section in addition to the pocket, was ornamented with a heart-shaped pin cushion of green.

Loops of the green braid were fastened to the corners by which the receptable may be hung on the wall. The space between the sections makes it possible to fold instead, if preferred.

Fair are the flowers and the children, but their subtle suggestion is fairer: Rare is the roseburst of dawn, but the secret that clasps it is rarer: Sweet the exultance of song, but the strain that precedes it is sweeter. And never was poem yet writ but the meaning outmastered the meter.

Fair are the flowers and the children, but their subtle suggestion is fairer: Rare is the roseburst of dawn, but the secret that clasps it is rarer: Sweet the exultance of song, but the strain that precedes it is sweeter. And never was poem yet writ but the meaning outmastered the meter.

Never a daisy that grows but a mystery guideth the growing: Never a river that flows but a majesty sceptres the flowing: Never a Shakespeare that soared but a stronger than he did unfold him; Nor ever a prophet foretells but a mightier seer hath foretold him.

Back of the canvas that throbs the painter is hinted and hidden: Into the statue that breathes the soul of the sculptor is hidden: Under the joy that is felt lie the infinite issues of feeling: Crowning the glory revealed is the glory that crowns the revealing.

Great are the symbols of being, but that which is symbolized is greater: Vast the create and beheld, but vaster the inward creator: Back of the sound broods the silence, back of the gift stands the giving. Back of the hand that receives thrill the sensitive nerves of receiving.

Space is as nothing to spirit, the deed is outdone by the doing: The heart of the wooer is warm, but warmer the heart of the wooing: And up from the pits where those shiver, and up from the heights where those shine, Twin voices and shadows swim starward and the essence of life is divine.

AN INTERESTING LECTURE

Newark turned out in force last Thursday evening to do honor to Rev. Gerhard J. Schilling of Bolivia, who lectured in the College Oratory on "The Roof of the World," as he termed this interesting South American country.

Over one hundred slides beautifully illustrated the talk, and gave the audience an excellent idea of the mountainous country and the strange customs of the people.

The listeners embarked on an imaginary journey making a difficult landing at an unimproved harbor of Peru, thence travelling overland to Lake Titicaca, from there overland to La Paz. Maps showing the comparative size of Bolivia and the small portion connected by railroad, emphasized the difficulty of travel in that land. The two branch roads built by the firm of Frazer and Yount were of especial interest to the Newark audience.

Dr. Schilling has lately received news from the Bolivian government of an appropriation of $10,000 for the establishment of a Protestant school at Cochabamba during the next year, and an appropriation of $27,000 for the next five years for the furtherance of the same.

The missionary, although nominally on a vacation, finds little of his time his own. Since his arrival in this country, he has visited his family only twice.

As an appreciation of the willing response to Newark's request for a lecture, Dr. Schilling was presented with the proceeds, which amounted to seventy-five dollars. The gift came as a great surprise.

THE RECALL

One of the judicial districts of Oregon is now furnishing an example of the beauty of the new system of recalling judges. Recently a man was tried in that district for murder. The people, or a great many of them, thought that the man was guilty and ought to be hanged, but the jury found that he was not guilty. Then the people, or many of them, got angry with the judge and charged that the verdict was due to the incompetency and lack of knowledge of the law on the part of the judge. In Maryland the jury is judge of the law in criminal trials, and the Bar Association thinks it is a bad system and that the judge, who is supposed to have studied law, should be the judge of the law and the jury the judge of the facts.

But this theory does not seem to prevail in Oregon. The people in the Second Judicial district think that neither judge nor jury should be judge of the law, but that the people at large should be the judges. And whenever the judge make a decision which a majority of the voters do not consider good law, then he should be voted off the bench. What a fine judicial system! Why have a court? When a man is charged with murder why not put it to the vote of the county whether he shall be hanged or acquitted?—Baltimore Sun.

HAVIN' A DOG FER A CHUM

Havin' a dog fer a chum, 'ts' me! Ain't any chum in the world kin be

Just like a dog is, ner's gentle an' true. An' alluz a trustin' an' leavin' on you. Like you are on him all the days of his life. In this world of sorrier, an' struggle, an' strife.

Havin' a dog fer a chum when a boy— That's most the startin' an' endin' uv joy!

Fer no chums are just like such chums as a kid. An' a pup 'at he's picked up some-where an' 'en hid.

Till his farrer and muvver found out an' raised—well, I'm not the one 'at's a-goin' to tell!

Havin' a dog fer a chum makes y'u feel So wholesome an' hearty an' useful an' real.

Fer somehow a dog knows a man by the back, An' he'll follow y'u faithful enough ruin' the track.

I've daily existence with love and affection— Because he believes at his chum is perfection.

Havin' a dog fer a chum—mercy me! Ain't any chum like a chum dog kin be.

With his old tail a-waggin', that look in his eyes, That faithful devotion y'u soon realize.

When he comes in the mornin' with leap and with bound An' is watchin' all night, with the soul of a hound!

—The Bentztown Bard.

'Tis all a myth that autumn grieves, For, watch the rain among the leaves;

With silver fingers dimly seen It makes each leaf a tambourine, And swings and leaps with elfin mirth.

To kiss the brow of mother earth: Or, laughing 'mid the trembling grass,

It nods a greeting as you pass. Oh! hear the rain amid the leaves,

'Tis all a myth that autumn grieves! —Samuel Minturn Peck.

Absent Ones

Absence makes the heart grow fonder but the memory of the absent one becomes vague and dim. You long to picture in your mind just how "HE" or "SHE" would look, but there's a mysterious something which makes this mental picture impossible.

But if you had a photograph before you, then you could recall the forgotten face, yes, even the kind acts, the gentle words.

Wouldn't that "ONE" so far away appreciate your photograph too?

CHANGES AT B. & O.

A new time table will go into effect on the B. & O. R. R., Sunday, November 26. Changes in time of trains will be made as follows:

Eastbound, the 7.27 a. m. train is changed to 7.25; the 6.46 p. m. train to 6.53 and the 10.32 p. m. train to 10.40.

Also the 7.20 p. m. train will hereafter stop only to discharge passengers from points west of Washington.

Westbound, weekday train due at 6.09 p. m. changed to 6.10 and Sunday only train at 6.31 p. m. changed to 6.22.

SUCCESSFUL TOUR

The farming tour being conducted by the Pennsylvania Railroad, is proving very popular, about 500 farmers taking advantage of the opportunity the first day of the run. Four lectures were delivered to large audiences at Smyrna where the stop for the night was made. Among the speakers were Professor Harry Hayward, who discussed soy beans and Professor C. A. McCue, tomatoes and apples.

AN IMPORTANT PROBLEM

Among the subjects to be discussed at the December conference of Social Workers is the "Training of Feeble Minded and Defective Children." In view of the statement made by one of Delaware's educators that of the 38,000 (approximately) children in the schools of New Castle county at least from 500 to 600 of them should be under the care of a State institution for feeble minded children, the need, is an urgent one.

THE SICK

Mrs. J. W. Lowden, of White Clay Creek, who has been suffering with nervous prostration, is greatly improved.

The condition of Mr. Abner Strahorn, who suffered a stroke some time ago, has been marked by very slight changes.

Mrs. J. Pearce Cann and daughter Rebecca are convalescing after an attack of typhoid.

Mrs. Groves Whiteman, of Millford X Roads, who has been seriously ill, is much improved.

THE AMERICAN IDEA

How the American spirit runs through the world! Just now we see it in China where a large number of people led by a group of progressive men, have set up a republic and are asking this nation and others for recognition that the proper international relations may be created and maintained. Simultaneously, it is appearing in Persia where there is a new struggle for the independence and progress. It has been at work in Turkey and Portugal where the old order of things has passed away and where there is a struggle upward toward the real liberty of man.

We don't think enough about the great things that have resulted from the wisdom and heroism of the fathers of 1776. We are too apt to belittle their work and want to change it. Yet it is apparent to any observing person that they were acting not for themselves alone, but for humanity. In less than a century and a half the gospel that they preached and practiced has spread far and wrought great things for mankind, and it is still at work. A thing so tried and so proved ought to be held sacred. The time has not yet come when we may cease to measure the utterances of the demagogue by the standard set up on these shores in the last quarter of the eighteenth century. No better government has anywhere been created, and while other peoples are patterning their own governments after it, it is the sheerest folly for us to do it. We may adapt it—yes, but despoil and destroy it—never.

Merchants in Newark have some Christmas surprises in store. Watch our ads.

The prices for poultry are lower than they have been for years.

Thanksgiving is a day observed, most by those who have occasion, least.
