GORE WOWS UD STUDENTS WITH EDUCATION MESSAGE

Fresh off his debate with Jack Kemp, Vice President Al Gore Gore brought the Democratic message to a crowd of about 3,000 students and Democratic faithful at the University of Delaware's Bob Carpenter Center on Oct. 10.

Gore told the Delaware students about Clinton's plans for tuition tax credits and described the Dole-Kemp team as out of touch and unable to understand why students need financial help to attend college.

"They're not familiar with families like yours. They don't understand that we are a stronger nation when we reach beyond our own individual ability to care for me, me, me and reach out to strengthen us, us, us," he said.

Pretty soon 'not a Things To Wear'

By MARY E. PETZAK

THE LAST DAY for Gershman's Things To Wear on Main Street is at hand. Owner Norman Gershman announced this week that his Newark store has been leased by $ Buys starting Nov. 1.

"I will be semi-retired as of Oct. 30," said Gershman. "The stores in Wilmington and Rehoboth will stay open through the end of the year but then one of those will close as well."

At this point, Gershman said it looks like Rehoboth, the location of his original store, will be the only site to remain in operation.

Christianstead resident Lori Schwander, manager of the $ Buys opening at the location in mid-November, said the store will sell quality items, including gifts, cosmetics, household products, toys, stationery, snacks and can-

Olan R. Thomas was honored for 30 years of service to Newark when a new city park named for him was dedicated on Oct. 10. Thomas, first elected to Newark's council in April, 1964, subsequently served a record 13 terms for district six before retiring in 1994. He presently serves on the recently-formed Western Newark Traffic Committee.

Surprise, surprise.

Sport utility vehicle lined up for Newark plant

CHRYSLER CORPORATION has confirmed that it will build a sports utility vehicle at the Newark assembly plant starting in September 1997.

"We're retooling for a Dodge sport utility vehicle at the Newark plant," said Chrysler spokesperson Nicole Solomon. "There will be a formal announcement in January of other company plans there."

Industry analysts and others have been discussing the vehicle, well before the plant closed in July for retooling. At that time almost 3000 people were furloughed with 95 percent pay so retooling as well as construction of a new 871,000 square-foot paint facility could proceed at the site.

However, the auto maker broke its silence on the subject this week after announcing strong third quarter earnings, along with plans to expand its production of trucks and sport utility vehicles.

Furloughed personnel will be coming back in groups to learn the new line, according to Chrysler

Bill for train station repairs is in Repairs from a fire which lasted only minutes at the historic Newark Train Station will cost more than $20,000 dollars.

On Monday night, Newark city council approved emergency repair work to be done by the Robert Neef Restoration Company for $23,144. The Sept. 6 fire at the site damaged a window, interior trim work, and the ornamental overhang on the station platform.

According to Fred Herald, administrative assistant for the city, the damage combined with the smoke odors and soot which permeated the entire interior "made it virtually impossible" to occupy the building and also jeopardized security.

Police Chief William Hogan told council that a "suspect developed early in the investigation" of what is believed to be an arson fire, but the police do not have enough evidence at this time to charge anyone.

City manager Carl Luft said the city was working with the police union, which has an office in the station, to develop new security measures there. "They have suggested removing the public phone installed outside the station because the police believe that attracts young people there, and cutting trees for better visibility."

Other suggestions include increased warning signs to trespassers and a video camera connected to the police station. At the present time, the station has smoke and burglar alarms connected to Newark police which helped limit the fire damage in September.

In addition to the police union, the Newark Historical Society, and the Newark city employees credit union also have offices in the building described as the "most elaborate station between Philadelphia and Baltimore" when it was built in 1877.

Commuter service on track

Commuter rail service to Newark is on track again thanks to an agreement reached between the Delaware Transit Agency and the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transit Authority this week.

An agreement to continue the R2 commuter rail service between Philadelphia and Wilmington until June 1999 came after months of negotiation and two extensions of the existing contract.

"This decision is excellent news not only for the thousands of area commuters who already use the R2 line," said Governor Thomas Carper, "but also for area businesses and those who will benefit from extended service in the coming months and years."

In addition to existing service, the agreement allows for future expansion of commuter rail service to points beyond Wilmington, including Newark.

A preliminary schedule, tentative cost provisions, and a commitment to service upon completion of construction in the fall of 1997, were written into the agreement which mirrors the present DelDOT-Amtrak agreement on extended commuter rail service.

In November of 1995, the city of Newark approved plans for a new passenger rail station off South College Avenue. The $7 million project, which includes a parking lot, accessways and related passenger facilities to be built in phases, has been on hold until a service agreement could be signed.

Expanded service will be in place in time to "blunt the impact of impending reconstruction of I-95," according to the governor.

"As we attempt to build transportation alternatives which are both user-friendly and environmentally responsible, we must not overlook the importance of commuter rail service and other forms of mass transit," said Gov. Carper in announcing the agreement.

According to reports from DelDOT and SEPTA, about 2,200 commuters take the train each weekday. Since 1989 annual ridership has grown 180 percent from 158,000 to 477,000.

A bigger bark helps

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

PAULA CARTER'S first indication that something was very wrong in her Nottingham Green neighborhood came when her cocker spaniel, Jack, began to bark.

"I was in my basement studio around 10:30 in the morning," said Carter, who creates pottery under the name Paula Camenzind. "Between the machines and my tape player, it was very noisy. Jack came downstairs barking furiously and that's not like him."

Carter said she went upstairs to look around and Jack led her to the door. "When I went outside, I saw that a neighbor had fallen off his roof and was lying in his yard," said Carter.

The neighbor, a retired school teacher, had been cleaning his gutters when he lost his footing and fell. "I went to the hospital with him," said Carter. "He broke his wrist, and his ankle and shattered his hip. He has to have a complete hip replacement."

The seven-year old Jack has had juvenile cataracts and can only see out of one eye. "I think he heard the neighbor calling for help," said Carter. "He really can't see that well."

Jack normally only barks when things get disturbing, according to his owner. "He doesn't like it when the washer gets off-balance and bumps around," said Carter. "He also barks when our two cats get in a fight."

Other humans also provided some assistance in getting the neighbor to the hospital, said Carter. "The dispatcher at 911 could not have been nicer and the paramedics and people from Aetna fire company were very quick, kind and professional."

Carter said on the way home from the hospital, she stopped at McDonald's and got a Jack a hamburger. "He likes people food," laughed Carter. "Our neighbor said he's going to buy Jack some Oreos when he gets better."

Catalog's not in a drawer anymore

INTERNET ACCESS and an electronic card catalog are now only a finger-tip away at all New Castle County Public Libraries.

According to the county executive Dennis E. Greenhouse, information formerly stored in card catalog drawers has been transferred to TIPCat (The Information Place Catalog), an electronic computer filing system. In addition, libraries are wired to the Internet for access to information worldwide.

Since TIPCat is connected to all county libraries, users can locate books and reference materials throughout the county library system from one location.

Yvonne Puffer of the Newark Free Library said the card catalog there has been on-line for about three weeks. "It seems to be working fine," Puffer said, noting that some people even left when the computers went down one day. "They said they'd come back when the catalog was up again."

Puffer added that people should not hesitate to ask for help if they need it. "We are glad to show you how to use it, but we can't if you don't ask."

The Newark branch has 13 computer terminals available for library users including one that "talks and goes to large print." In the future, said Puffer, the library plans to have dial access so people can call up information from their home computers and a KIDSCat in the children room. Self-service check-out with electronic scanners is also in the offing.

Funding to bring the county library system on-line came from $1.43 million in New Castle County monies, $493,000 in federal Library Services Construction Act Title II funds, and $425,000 from the state of Delaware under contract with the Delaware Division of Libraries.

A recent poll indicated 69 percent of those interviewed gave a favorable rating to library services in Delaware communities. "The finding of the Harris poll is a clear indication that Delaware library services are viewed by voters as critical to our communities and very successful at providing what voters want," said Tom Sloan, state librarian of Delaware.

The poll, conducted by Louis

Harris and Associates, Inc., was based on statewide interviews with 1,023 registered voters.

Traffic upgrades moving at snail's pace

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

TRAFFIC IMPROVEMENTS in Newark remain in limbo as reports and promised work from DelDOT continue to move at a snail's pace.

According to spokesperson Carla Kenney, DelDOT is "reviewing plans for synchronization of traffic signals in downtown Newark and should be setting up a meeting with Newark police soon."

Police Chief William Hogan said last week that he had not heard from DelDOT and was going to call for an update on the project. "I hope it's soon because it would be excellent for the community," said Hogan.

In June, Anthony DiGiacomo, senior planner for WILMAPCO, said the hardware for the traffic network was "ready to go and the computer is in Newark's police headquarters already."

Charles Freel, director of External Affairs for DelDOT, told Newark city council in July that computer synchronization of traffic signals in Newark would begin at the intersection of Library Avenue, Ogletown Road and Main Street by September. "People should see some improvements there," promised Freel.

DelDOT officials said hardware for the program is already in place and, once sensors are installed, the network will help adjust the flow of traffic. Computer simulation of the proposed signal changes indicate that traffic will be more evenly spread over the network, resulting in fewer delays, a slight increase in average vehicle speed, and a reduction in the number of vehicles stopped at a red light which do not clear the intersection on the next green light.

A little-seen view of the Elkton Road bridge over the Christina River between Suburban Plaza and Casho Mill Road.

Cable for the estimated $300,000 project was purchased some time ago, according to DiGiacomo, but the computer program itself has held things up. "This is not just taken off the shelf," DiGiacomo explained.

Meanwhile, permanent repairs to the deteriorating Elkton Road bridge over Christina Creek could be delayed for a year while DelDOT waits for funding.

"Right now DelDOT is doing core testing on the bridge to determine the extent of the deterioration," said Kenney. "We don't know if the bridge needs to be completely replaced or just needs an overlay."

According to signs posted some time ago by DelDOT, the weight limit for the bridge already has been reduced to 15 tons. "The substructure is substandard," said Dennis O'Shea, a bridge management engineer for DelDOT. "The concrete which supports the abutments is in bad shape."

Kenney said DelDOT will replace the "bearing pads" and "firm up the joint seals" in the supports of the bridge. "These preliminary repairs should be starting any day," said Kenney, "so that the weight limits now in place can be removed."

Until the extent of permanent repair work is determined, Kenney said DelDOT will not know if the bridge needs to be closed or can remain partly open when that work starts next year. Funding for the work is not expected until fiscal year 1998 which starts next July.

Chief Hogan said the weight limits have caused traffic problems on South College Avenue because that is the logical alternative for trucks which cannot proceed on Elkton Road. "We have a 'passive detour' in effect at the bridge, which means truckers make their own decision about which route to take," said Hogan. "I want the bridge repaired as soon as possible because with all the bikes and pedestrians on South College already it not a good situation."

Increased work force possible

spokesperson Paul Walraven. "The new line starts in September 1997 but we'll be working on pilots starting in March," he said.

Workers at the plant are looking forward to building the new line, said Walraven. "In the past, when we've been an overflow plant, we had to use the systems set up before the line came here," said Walraven. "It's exciting to be the primary builder for the new line and plan the whole process ourselves."

Plant manager Jim Wolfe said earlier this year the company will start phasing employees back in the the spring and continue until the fall of 1997 when full production of the new vehicle begins. It is not yet known how many workers will be needed at the retooled plant or the substantially larger paint shop.

Construction of the paint facility, already underway for over a year, is expected to be complete in the spring. "That's on a very aggressive schedule," said Wolfe. "It usually takes three years to build a paint plant."

Chrysler facilities manager Roger Walker said that the paint facility will not be ready for use until the summer of 1997. "There's still a lot to do after the shell is complete and we need to install the equipment," explained Walker.

Four different construction groups are working on the retooling and new paint shop at the same time. "Whenever possible we're using local contractors," said project manager Ed Mercer. According to Wolfe, over 2000 building and construction workers are involved in the two projects.

Total cost of all the building and renovations at the site will come to a half-billion dollars, said Mercer.

"The new paint shop is costing $283.5 million and the retooling is about $200 million."

The Wall Street Journal quoted one industry analyst as saying the new vehicle will be larger than Chrysler's Jeep Cherokee, but smaller than the General Motor's Chevrolet Tahoe.

That would seem to suggest that the vehicle would be based on the Dodge Dakota, a mid-sized pickup truck that is somewhat larger than competing models in an industry segment that includes the Chevrolet S10 and the Ford Ranger.

The vehicle is also expected to fill a gap in the Dodge truck product line. Dodge does not have a sports utility model for its dealer network.

While sports utility sales have slowed down, Chrysler officials see room for further growth.

SOMEONE'S KNOCKIN' AT NEWARK'S DOOR

SOME FOREIGN VISITORS are coming to stay in Newark and desperately need a place to lay their heads.

According to Christopher B. Wolfe, legal studies coordinator for the University of Delaware, 10 Ukrainian legal professionals will spend four weeks here in classes and seminars studying the American legal system. They also will visit courtrooms and agencies to see our legal process first-hand.

"Imagine, if you will, attempting to create a modern, efficient legal system in a country which has only ratified its constitution in the past few months," said Wolfe.

Wolfe said the need in post-totalitarian societies is not to transform their existing social, political and economic institutions, but to actually create them. Leadership in such areas must "more or less simultaneously" set up a state, a legal system, a democracy, a civil society and a market for doing business.

The eight men and two women are coming through the assistance of a grant awarded to the university, but housing arrangements have not worked out. "We are in desperate need of host families for the participants," said Wolfe. The homestay experience is viewed as a highlight of the entire program.

Wolfe said either single people or families could volunteer for a homestay lasting for two or four weeks. Anyone interested is asked to call 831-6291 as soon as possible.

On the right track

Finally. Thanks to an agreement hammered out between the State of Delaware and SEPTA, we are likely to see commuter train service between Newark and Philadelphia in another year.

SEPTA had played hard ball with Delaware, as it struggled to come up with ways to cut massive operating losses and a politically driven route system that made its fares among the highest in the country.

SEPTA's problems were not entirely of its own making. The nation is littered with expensive transit systems that came out of the Congressional pork barrel. The older SEPTA system was deprived of the opportunity to enjoy the type of funding that allowed Washington, D.C., to construct its shiny metro or Morgantown, W. VA., to construct a budget busting people-mover system.

It wasn't the responsibility of Delaware to help bail out the troubled transit system. However, the higher subsidy paid by Delaware will be enough to allow SEPTA to operate service to Newark on a break-even basis, according to published reports.

We remain skeptical about the ability of SEPTA trains to do much about reducing traffic, although every little bit helps. I-95 is an unfortunate combination of a regional artery and commuter route that will always become clogged on a moment's notice.

What is exciting is the economic boost that will come with train service. Businesses will have an easier time finding workers with specific skills.

University internship and co-op programs will benefit, since students will be able to work in a wider geographic area.

Eventually, the Maryland rail transit system (MARC) might operate trains into Newark, allowing for additional opportunities for area residents.

It adds up to an exciting future for Newark and a return to the past when (in some respects) it was easier to get around.

EDUCATIONAL PERSPECTIVES

The overweight school II

By JACK BARTLEY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

IN THE LAST EPISODE of the continuing saga of the overweight school, G. H. School was seen bogged down on Route 896 questioning its sexual identity (Amoeba or person? To split or not to split?) and attempting to solve the problem of student corpulent bloat. We join the elephantine edifice as it weighs in with possible solutions.

"Let's see, I just had a new make-over including a new transplant to replace that thinning roof top of mine. The doctor said that with any surgical process there would be some seepage, but I didn't think he meant leaks inside! Oh, well, it will probably seal up in time. I can't believe that nasty Dr. Bartley said I was too fat! Why, with so many students, there are just more of them to love! Ha, ha, that's a good one! Anyway, I tried to diet last year. I took my fat to an Academy, but as is the case with most crash diets, the fat came back. I think I'll get a second opinion before I do anything too drastic this time. I may simply need a paint job to look young and fit again."

So, School went to get an opinion that would put a positive spin on its unhealthy condition. School asked the custodians, but

PASSING THOUGHTS

Thoughts before going into wild blue yonder

By JAMES B. STREIT JR.

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

CLEARING MY DESK, getting ready for a cross-country airplane flight in a Cessna 172 with my 12-year-old son, I come across these column notes:

• Here in Newspaperland, we hate elections. As voting day approaches, all the political fanatics appear on our doorstep. People we haven't heard from in months or ever suddenly become our frequent correspondents and best friends. They offer us "advice" and "tips" that, if printed, would buoy their candidate's electability. While you don't see them here, you witness the results

All whining concluded, we really don't mind. It's our job as community journalists to sort it all out and proceed in a fair, balanced manner. When we put our heads on pillows at night, we feel pretty good about our efforts, given the resource constraints of a community newspaper.

What we hate, though, are those campaign signs! They're ugly. They're boring. They're everywhere!

What I really hate, too, is their effectiveness. Years ago, papers like this got the lion's

War-time recalled

Newark residents, particularly those with a mechanical turn of mind, were interested in the train of four trucks, carrying mounted three inch anti-aircraft rifles.

The trucks, U.S. Army front-wheel drive machines, passed through here Sunday morning.

Quarantined

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Egan, on Wilber Street, was placed under quarantine by Dr. Steel when he diagnosed the illness of Melissa, their small daughter, to be scarlet fever.

No other cases have been reported in the town, however, and the tot is improving steadily.

Local cow produces new record

A special production testing report from the Holstein-Friesian Association of America shows that U of D Sensation I Valom 6963822, owned by the University of Delaware, Newark, produced 21,786 pounds of milk and 801 pounds of butterfat in 365 days.

The two-year-old cow made the record under Dairy Herd Improvement Registry rules, a program that incorporated the DHIA records of Registered Holstein cows into the national association's breed improvement programs.

Science students may get touch of live animal life

School science teachers may add a touch of animal life to their classes this year with a traveling "mini-zoo," accompanied by Hans Rosenberg, supervisor of the Brandywine Zoo.

Rosenberg and representatives of his small-animal collection are prepared to visit classes in the schools to talk about the animals and their life habits, and to familiarize young people with the Zoo and its inhabitants.

Investigators work to find if ditch cuts into wetlands

A Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control official reported Tuesday that a complaint by Newark residents about a city drainage ditch being dug in a wetland area is still being investigated. Mike Mihaffee said DNREC was "still investigating for a violation" and whether or not the ditch located on Barksdale Road near Williamsburg Village, was on property that was the jurisdiction of the federal or state government.

Newark approves $295,000 in grants

The City of Newark approved the allocation of $295,000 in Community Development Block Grants at Monday's council meeting.

The Community Development/Revenue Sharing Advisory Committee submitted to Council a review of grant applicants and an outline of recommended allocations. Fourteen programs and projects will receive funding. According to Maureen Roser, Associate Planner, the committee has been evaluating applicants, activities and funding levels since June 13, 1991.

Eric Emenheiser - St. Mark's

St. Mark's High soccer player Eric Emenheiser certainly had a week worth remembering.

Emenheiser, a junior center-halfback, scored three goals and added three assists in two Spartan wins over Archmere and Glasgow.

Emenheiser has nine goals and 10 assists on the season following up a 10 goal season of last year.

"Pages from the Past" is compiled from early editions of the Newark Post and its forerunners by staffer Julia Sampson. Efforts are made to retain original headlines and style.

Part two: The people at Continental

■ This is the second of a two-part guest column recounting one local resident's memories her years at the Continental Diamond Fibre Company on South Chapel Street. This week's Out of the Attic photo shows the writer and the company softball team.

AFTER I RETURNED to Continental in 1948, I worked in the personnel office for the next three years, and also substituted in the first aid room on Saturdays for Miss Elizabeth (Lizzie) Grimes, our company nurse.

Miss Grimes, a striking woman with her white uniform and crown of white hair, formerly had been a nanny for the Wright family who owned Continental. I held her in high regard as did many others. More than once I saw her administer first aid to punch press operators with severely-injured hands who would then be transported by Aetna Fire Company's ambulance to the hospital or to Dr. Nutter's office at Delaware Avenue and Haines Street.

My primary duties in personnel included filling out various forms for new hires — some of whom stayed only a day or two. On the other hand, we had many long-term employees as our attendance records reflected.

Women were routinely slotted into lower-paying jobs in those days and I don't remember any persons from minority groups ever applying although there were two or three who worked there at the time.

In general, a camaraderie flourished within the walls of the three-story, now boarded-up building. Purchasing and engineering departments were located on the first floor, sales on the second, and accounting on the third. When we stood in the hallway to punch the time clock, there was laughter and jibes. Rip Smith supplied us with never-ending jokes.

During my time as an employee there were company-sponsored bowling teams which played at the Newark Bowling Alley on Main Street where Goodwill Industries is now located.

At one time, Continental had its own band and a men's baseball team. The company owned and maintained a playing field with bleachers on Haines Street.

We also had a women's company softball team, then referred to as the girls' softball team. I played right field. In 1946, we won the state playoffs that propelled us to the regionals at the Eastman-Kodak Field in Rochester, New York. Continental picked up the food, lodging and transportation tabs for the team members but unfortunately we were unable to bring back a trophy.

The labor market began to change around 1950 after the Chrysler Tank Plant and DuPont Company, which were paying higher wages, came on the horizon. Continental paid low wages and things like free parking were considered fringe benefits.

In 1951 I finally left Continental and its 8 a.m. whistle to accept a purchasing department assignment at the Chrysler Tank Plant. The Korean War had started. Times and the economy were changing, and it seems that just about the same time Newark forever lost its small-town uniqueness as well.

School bus dos and don'ts

I RECENTLY ATTENDED a "Moving Kids Safely" Conference, sponsored in part by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. It reaffirmed what I have always believed: We have an awesome responsibility in keeping our children safe from harm. Reaching adulthood physically is not easy for children or their guardians. This is a particularly important issue now that children are back in school. So many of them are transported to and from school by bus. My attention to this safety issue has been heightened over the last month. Not only have I read about crashes involving motorists and school buses, I witnessed such an accident this week while driving my own children to school.

Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death among children. Children aged 5 to 9 are at highest risk of being hit by a car, because they dart out into traffic. When traveling by bus to school, your children cannot rely on motorists to drive carefully. So take the time now to reinforce the rules of safe bus riding with your children.

By Cindy Genau

Children should: Never play by the curb at the bus stop while waiting for the bus to arrive. Wait for the bus to come to a complete stop before boarding or exiting the bus. Not run for the bus after it is in motion or try to jump onto the bus when the operator is closing the doors. Watch their step and take time when boarding and leaving the bus. (Injuries and fatalities can occur because as children hurry to get on and off the bus, the strings on their coats become entwined around the handrail.)

■ Always hold onto handrails after boarding until they find a seat.

■ Stay seated in the seat and never stand while the bus is moving. Take ten giant steps away from the bus when exiting, a danger zone exists 10 feet away from the bus in every direction. This is the area in which a child is not visible to the bus driver or other motorists.

■ Cross only in front of the bus. Stop at the edge of the front of the bus, listen for cars that may be approaching, and look to the left, right and left again. If vehicles are coming in either direction, wait until the vehicles have come to a complete stop. Make eye contact with the bus driver as they begin to cross the road. This way children make certain the bus driver sees them and knows when they have completed crossing the road. Walk Smart and never run. Remind your children to look left and right as they cross the road to continue to check for oncoming cars.

You can help your children make good choices about how to get to and from school safely. Talk with them about following these safe bus-riding rules. Remember the motto of the National Safe Kids Campaign—Safe Kids are no accident. Travel Safe!

Harvesting good business at Suburban Plaza

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

LAUNCHED IN 1989 after years of opposition from the local community, Suburban Plaza continues to flourish on Elkton Road with little fanfare and a welcome lack of notoriety.

Gore Apparel recently opened a larger store in the 150,000 square-foot shopping center where they have been located since 1992. "We used to be called the Lattice Works when Gore first opened in Newark on Main Street," said Gore associate Kris Erickson. "But this is still the only W. L. Gore retail store in the world."

Erickson said the company likes the location because it has plenty of parking and is accessible to I-95. "We have customers who come from north Wilmington and Philadelphia so that's important."

The company considered expanding their store but decided to move when a new 16,000 square-foot pad site opened up, along with additional store spaces. "We wanted a location at the front," said Erickson, "and we wanted to stay in the shopping center."

Like others who work and shop there, Erickson also points out one of the most notable features of the center. "It's very clean with lots of plantings," Erickson said. "We'd like to see more retail business in the center—maybe a yogurt store or restaurant—but it's nice as it is."

Eric Mayer, sales associate for Bellevue Holding which manages the center, said his company tries to get "strong tenants" who want to stay and operate a good business. "We've had a lot of interest in the new retail spaces but not necessarily from retailers," said Mayer. "Shopping centers are changing and because of parking and accessibility concerns, we're seeing a different type of user."

Tenants likely to be moving in soon include a group of doctors from Union Hospital in Maryland and an H & R Block tax office. "Shoes and clothiers go to malls, now," said Mayer. "We'd also like to have a sit-down restaurant at the 5,000 square-foot pad site still available next to the Wilmington Trust bank. Several large chains are interested in that."

Mayer said his father, Eric Mayer Sr., spent over ten years trying to put the deal together to build the center.

"Our family looked a long time for a builder before we hired Bellevue (who did the construction at the site), and then I came here to make sure everything continued to be done right," said Mayer.

The Mayer family first sought planning approval from New Castle County in 1985 and were discouraged by community opposition. But the developers had a dream and in 1988 approached Newark about annexation, rezoning and subdivision of the site.

A proposed shopping center, hotel and office building for the 82-acre site was not well received because the city's comprehensive plan at the time recommended offices for the area but concessions from the developers ultimately saved the day.

"Among other things we dedicated three acres along Elkton Road to the city for open space and they had right of first refusal on three more," said family member John Mayer. "We really believed this was a good deal for the city—after all, the family still lives here and we wanted to protect this for our children and grandchildren also."

Eric Mayer said he understands that people wanted to preserve farmland but it wasn't useful anymore. "This was such a nice place to grow up," said Eric Mayer. "But the family couldn't keep it that way and people need a place to shop."

The Mayer family retains control of the property for 99 years, unlike other sites where the developer walks away at the end. "It's nice today and it will be nice tomorrow," said John Mayer. "Because our family is still in it right up to our necks."

The owner of Kirk's Flowers at the shopping center, John Mayer said retailers liked the site before it even was finished. "Acme was going to close at the Park n' Shop and move out of Newark but agreed to stay if they could be in a new shopping center," said John Mayer. "They were our anchor store."

John Mayer said tenants include many local retailers. "Cost Cutters are local people and the Deli moved here from Kirkwood Highway," he said. Fulton Paper, which opened in 1992, moved from another location on Elkton Road.

Mary Doody, who together with her husband John Doody owns Books & Things News at the center, said they moved there in March of this year because it seemed to be a growing center. "We already have the Brookside News and were not ready to expand but this was too good an opportunity to pass up," said Mary Doody.

Both Doody's teach in the Christina School District and spend seven days a week running the two newsstands with the help of their son.

Some other businesses at the center are Spa-lon, Concord Pet, Happy Harry's, Vision Optix, Campbell Travel, Merrill Lynch, Re/Max Realtors, Nail Salon, Video Showplace, Liberty Mutual Insurance, Joy Garden and Cafe Americana.

A newly-formed Suburban Plaza merchants association is holding a Harvest Festival & Sidewalk Sale there this weekend. Starting at 11 a.m. on Saturday, a costume contest, face painting, and reptile and magic shows will take place throughout the day.

Among other activities on Sunday shoppers can bring their own carved pumpkin for judging at noon, or arrange a pet portrait at Concord Pet. Prizes, balloons, free hot dogs, soda, and cider are being offered as well as other "give-aways" in most stores.

Despite the center's success, John Mayer still fumes when he thinks about the struggle to build. "When we opened the Acme, two of the people who protested the most were here on the first day!"

His cousin, Eric Mayer, adds, "I saw them. They came to get the 'freebies' like everybody else."

- Current State law excludes train yards from participating in the Emergency Planning and Community Right to Know Programs

'All this bad news is giving me a headache'

► BARTLEY, from 6

they said it was impossible to handle all the waste being produced by the excess students. The hallway arteries were being contaminated with undigested food and indigestible polystyrene trays. School asked the advisors, but they said that they were getting office cirrhosis and that it was difficult keeping the toxic students from contaminating the healthy ones. School finally asked the principals, and even though they tried to tell the students to stay where they were supposed to stay, they continued to seep into areas in which they did not belong.

"All this bad news is giving me a headache," School groaned. Unfortunately, it was no ordinary headache. At 11:30 a.m., just as more food was being piled into the throbbing hallways, the mounting internal pressure caused an aneurism to rupture at a weakened stairway G and students spilled out of School's body. They spurted into cars and their exodus stained others, such as Stone S. Throw and Ron McDonald.

"Help!" cried School. "Somebody do something!" Clot forming guards were dispersed to stem the flow, but as soon as they arrived, an artery burst on the other side of School's body with such intensity that it actually caused the students to smoke! "Oh, my! I can't go through this every day! I need some help, not just a second opinion! I guess I could go back to the Academy, but it didn't work the last time and it was very expensive. What will I do?"

School thought hard and finally remembered there was an HMO (Helpful Main Office) full of doctors in Newark. "There's my second opinion! Maybe they can give me some additional clot forming guards to strengthen some of my weak areas." So School went to the HMO for a prescription. The doctors there listened very patiently and seemed to be very helpful. Some of the doctors even paid a house call, which is simply unheard of these days.

That should bring us to the conclusion of our saga and School should live happily ever after.

However, that is not the case. School is still fat, ruptures continue and the atmosphere conducive for learning that should be in School's lungs is contaminated with smoke. You are now probably asking yourself, "What about the prescription?" Well, have you ever tried to get a prescription filled quickly at an HMO?

'I can't imagine the responsibility of representing Newarkers' share of a candidate's promotional budget. In series of ads, hopefuls would list their qualifications and explain their platforms. While this is still true to a degree (as of this pre-campaign writing, there was but one political ad scheduled for this edition), the truth is — like it or not — road signs do promote vitally important name recognition.

► STREIT, from 6

I'd like to do a little recognizing of my own, with Streit's first and only campaign sign awards, I call them "Blemmies" as they surely blemish our thoroughfares.

The Blemmie for "Least Offensive Campaign Sign" goes to Ken Boulden, candidate for Clerk of the Peace. It's about three inches wide and looks more like a tent peg than a campaign sign. Its invisibility rivals his appearance as the fill-in weatherman on Channel 2 news.

My "Back to the Sixties" Blemmie goes to Dianne Kempinski, who hopes to be the Register in Chancery. Dig that purple, man! Far out! Solid! Together! Right on! Funky!

The "Earliest Out" Blemmie goes to Karl Kahlbacher, the Democratic challenger to state rep Stephanie Ulbrich. Even though he had no primary contest, Karl's crew was pounding their signs into the ground during the dog days of August. They must have sweat an ocean!

Incidentally, an "honorable mention" Blemmie goes to Stephanie, who has strategically placed one of her signs within ten feet of every Kahlbacher placard!

The "Say 'Cheese!'" Blemmie goes to Newark's own Jan Almquist, who's trying to unseat insurance commissioner Donna Lee Williams. We know she can smile.

The "Best Looking Homemade Sign" Blemmie goes to Barbara Erskine. Her husband and our friend, Al, must have spent many a night hand lettering her campaign renderings. I wonder if they were recycled from the last year? Runner-up honors go to the handwritten, Burma Shavesque series of Clatworthy signs that dot the median of Rt. 896 just south of Rt. 40.

The "Most Dangerous Blemmie" went to the campaign sign that blocked the view of oncoming traffic as Newarkers turn onto Casho Mill from Elkton Road. As of mid-month the sign had been removed and unfortunately I did not write down the perpetrator's name while looking around the obstruction.

And, now, ladies and gentlemen, the granddaddy of all the Blemmies, the top spot, the cream of the crop, the coveted "Big Blemmie" goes to — may I have the envelope, please? — yes, yes, the winner is Ray Clatworthy. As singer Ray Stevens, in his great 1950s Spike Jones-like hit "Santa Claus Is Watching You" proclaimed, "he's everywhere! He's everywhere!"

Unfortunately, I suspect, for Ray and his hard-campaigning family, votes count more than signs.

What a great day it was on Oct. 11 when the Olan Thomas park at Cleveland Avenue and Papermill Road was formally dedicated.

For almost as long as I have been in the newspaper business in four states and seven communities, Olan Thomas has not strayed from his Cleveland Avenue roots while serving the citizens of the town that we all call home.

As I've said before in this column, the job of a city councilperson is a thankless one. It is government at its best...and worst at the same time!

While some bonehead residents think councilpersons are making big bucks and lining their pockets, the reality is that local reps receive little compensation. Grass roots elected officials like Olan Thomas serve out of desire, not potential gain.

And how much could they gain? They're never home; meetings are scheduled aplenty and councilpeople are expected to be there. So what if they miss their kid's baseball game.

They're never right; no matter their vote, they offend some segment of their constituency.

They're expected at every flag ceremony, "rubber chicken" dinner and similar special occasions.

And the impact of their decisions can be, frankly, awesome (save the big green styrofoam plate controversy). There much ado today about the bypass but I wonder if the decisions made by the Newark City Councils of the 1950s and 60s could have placed us in this congestive dilemma today.

Summed up, I can't imagine putting up with the hassles and responsibility of representing Newarkers for one term let alone 30 years as Olan Thomas did.

And for all of those three decades he served out of his honest, humble, "down home" desire to help shape Newark into the kind of town that it is today — well run, visionary and responsive to the citizenry.

I've only come to know Olan in the four years that I lived here. But his reputation is legendary. I claim my friendship with his son — the "amazing" Bob Thomas, president of the Newark Historical Society and one-headed depository of Newark's history — as one of my cherished benefits of living and working in Newark. I love to hear Bob's recollections of his father's 30 years in public service in Newark. (You have to hear them from Bob because Olan is not boastful.)

The park dedication is a fitting tribute to Olan Thomas. And it's wonderful that he, his family and friends could enjoy the celebration while he was healthy, alert and still contributing to our community.

Newark's library has gone high tech. While it may be a decade behind the university in its electronic indexing, there's no diminishing the excitement over on Library Avenue about "Connection Day" last week. The card catalogs were headed to the recycling bins as the Newark and other county libraries went on-line.

The benefits to Newarkers are endless. Searching is easier. Reserves are simpler. Resources for research are greater.

I encourage you to secure a new library card, complete with your secret

PIN number. Then, check out the new TIPCAT system. If you're a low-tech type, relax, the friendly staff is anxious to nurse you along into the world of bits and bytes.

And while you're at it, look up our newspaper's site on the World Wide Web. The graphics are missing on the library computer system but you get free access to our proud-but-humble offering on the Internet!

Underpass has friends somewhere out there

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The good fairies appear to have been at work on the Casho Mill Road underpass, described as a "disgrace" by more than one resident recently.

"I've lived here 30 years and I go under that railroad bridge all the time," said a 60-year-old woman who wanted to be nameless. "It's terrible."

The woman said last week there was graffiti, obscenities, and even a swastika scrawled on the walls of the underpass. "I have friends coming to visit from Warsaw, Poland," she said. "How is that going to look to them?"

The woman claimed she had called Newark, state, and county officials trying to find someone who would paint the underpass but so far she has had no success. "If someone doesn't do it soon, I'm going to climb up and do it myself," she threatened. "And if I fall, I'm going to sue!"

Richard Lapointe of Newark's public works department said maintenance of the bridge was not a city responsibility but the city manager asked them to help in this instance. "We went out last week and painted over the swastikas," said Lapointe.

The railroad underpass and its approaches are jointly maintained by Newark, New Castle County, and DELDOT, according to Lapointe. "I'm not sure exactly who is responsible for each part," said Lapointe, "but the city of Newark takes care of the trash and vegetation on the roadway from the underpass to Barksdale Road."

Lapointe said Casho Mill Road is a state road and DELDOT normally would be responsible for potholes and vegetation obscuring road signs. "But that's a 'gray area' at that underpass," said Lapointe.

No one seemed to know who trimmed the vegetation back this week but the Yield signs were visible for the first time in awhile.

Jack Billingsley, a member of the Western Newark Traffic Committee, said vegetation and trash are a big problem at the underpass. "The whole thing's a mess," Billingsley said recently. "The vegetation gets so overgrown you can hardly see the Yield sign — someone's going to get killed there."

Billingsley is working with the city of Newark and the committee to get DELDOT to clean up the area and create a pedestrian walkway for safer conditions in the existing underpass.

"Girls receive less teacher attention, are less apt to see themselves reflected in learning materials, are not encouraged to pursue higher-level math and science; and are disciplined differently" in a co-ed classroom.

Local residents bringing $ Buys to Newark

dles, all for a $1 each.

Schwander's husband, Lew, and his partner Carole Iadiseria have operated another $ Buys in the Midway Plaza on Kirkwood Highway for the past two years. "We believe this is a great location for us," said Lori Schwander.

"We're hoping this will be number two of a thousand."

Gershman originally announced his plan for "semi-retirement" in August. (see Newark Post of Aug. 9, 1996). "I will manage the Rehoboth store, and two or three times a year my wife and I will have warehouse sales in the Newark area," said

Gershman.

The current fall and winter clothing will be moved to the Wilmington and Rehoboth stores but other remaining stock will be on sale in the Newark store until it closes. "Oct. 28 through 30 we will be having our final $10 bag sale," said Gershman. "When we sell the last piece we'll close the door — or we'll pack and move what's left."

The first Gershman's store opened on Rehoboth Avenue at Rehoboth Beach in 1966. Gershman's in Newark opened in 1969 at 50 E. Main Street, later moving to its present location. In 1986, the family opened a third store on the Market Street Mall in Wilmington.

An inaugural warehouse sale is tentatively planned for December, according to Gershman. "We'll be notifying people through our mailing list of over 1000 longtime customers as well as advertisements."

SAIGON VIETNAM RESTAURANT

At new location, restaurant still a favorite

THE SAIGON VIETNAM Restaurant has a new home: the Newark Shopping Center.

And owner Lan Du Chen couldn't be happier, except for one small detail - Not enough of her customers realize the mainstay on the Newark restaurant scene moved away from its original location on congested Ogletown Road last April.

The restaurant's new site, which measures about 5,000 square feet, is more than twice the size of the old place. Seating has increased from 65 to 120, and parking is also much easier to come by now that Saigon no longer relies on that small, cramped lot.

Yet, the old location and its many problems demonstrated just how good the restaurant's cuisine was. Vietnamese cooking differs from that of other Asian countries by offering more variety. It makes use of a dazzling array of sauces and seasoning - ranging from lemon grass to coconut to ginger sauce - and relies less on oil. The result is lighter fare.

"Everything is cooked to order," manager Pete Thiravong says.

This policy lets customers decide what they want and what they don't want. For example, some of the more health-conscious often want to omit MSG, sugar and salt from their orders.

"We'll find something else to flavor their food up with," Thiravong says.

Chen operated a restaurant in Vietnam before moving to Philadelphia in the late 1970s. She worked in that city's fabled Chinatown before setting up a shop of her own in Newark seven years ago.

"The beginning was hard," Chen said. "But some favorable writeups [in The News Journal and The Review] and a willingness to accommodate patrons have helped to make the restaurant a favorite around town.

Part of the Saigon experience is discovering the many different selections the menu offers. In fact, deciding what to offer can be overwhelming.

That's where the restaurant's friendly staff frequently steps in and assists new customers. The restaurant offers a variety of meats and vegetables that most Asian restaurants feature. But it's what Saigon's chef's do with the ingredients.

"We have a lot more variation in our appetizers," Thiravong says. "Chinese [cuisine] basically consists of different kinds of rolls. We don't just make rolls."

There's even variety in the rice at Saigon. The restaurant offers rice noodles, which are long and skinny and resemble pasta. And broken rice, which is made from tiny grains.

Honey-dipped string beans are one example of the restaurant's unique menu. Cold Beef with Sesame is another.

The entry consists of flank steak marinated with sweet and sour spicy sauce and topped with sesame seeds. Then there's the Lemon Grass Soup, which is spicy yet sweet.

Thiravong recommends this selection now that the cold weather is fast approaching. "It'll really open you up," he says. "It's a great winter soup."

Other favorites include the Saigon House Chicken, consisting of boneless chicken breast with broccoli in a rice wine sauce. Garlic shrimp is served stir-fry style. Saigon Duck is served with bean sprouts in a rice wine sauce. The list is endless.

The Saigon Vietnam Restaurant is open Tuesday through Sunday. The restaurant's hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. during the week and 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

Colorful Classics are music to the ears

THIS SUNDAY evening at 7:30 the Newark Symphony Orchestra will open its 1996-97 Symphony Series in the Loudis Recital Hall of the Amy E. du Pont Building on the campus of the University of Delaware. On the podium for his 14th season will be Music Director Roman Pawlowski. The starting time, 7:30, and location, Loudis Hall, are the same for all the concerts in the Symphony Series.

The program bears the title "Colorful Classics." To be heard are The Overture to "The Barber of Seville" by Gioacchino Rossini, the Concerto for Harpsichord in F by Johann Sebastian Bach and Symphony No. 3 by Ludwig van Beethoven, often called "The Eroica." The finale should be quite a task for the orchestra since many music historians point to this opus — with its strident opening chords — as ushering in the Romantic movement, but the orchestra has met many challenges before and I am sure this one will be met as well.

The NSO will be joined for the Bach by harpsichordist Karen Flint. She is the Artistic Director of Brandywine Baroque and a delight at the keyboard. She brings much to this opus.

A premiere is scheduled for the second concert of the season, Sunday, December 15. It is Pierre Jalbert's "Evocation." The composer wishes to evoke various emotions and states of being among the audience members by his composition, thus the title.

Jalbert has earned several awards for previous compositions including a Guggenheim fellowship, two Broadcast Music Industry Foundation composition awards, two American Society of Composers and Performers awards, a Society of Composers award, the Bears Prize in Composition and a Tanglewood Music Center fellowship.

The December program will also feature Richard Strauss' "The Four Last Songs" and Antonin Dvorak's Symphony No. 6. The soloist in the Strauss will be University of Delaware Associate Professor of Voice Marie Hadley-

An unusual podium sharing is in store for the NSO audience of March 16 in a concert billed as a "Continental Travelog." On the program, Piotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky's Capriccio Italien, Hector Berlioz's Hungarian March from "Damnation of Faust," Jaromir Weinberger's Polka and Fugue from "Schwanda the Bagpiper" and Georges Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1.

The first work of the evening will find Rosaria Macera, NSO concertmaster on the podium. She is also the orchestra director at the Shue-Medill Middle School and Newark High School. Maestro Pawlowski will conduct for the remainder of the evening.

On this program and the final program of the season there will also be a concerto, but neither the work nor the artist has yet been selected. In a tradition begun by the orchestra's founder and first music director, Harley S. Hastings, the NSO each year conducts a competition for young musicians. The two selected as winners will have the opportunity to demonstrate the musical talents in concert with the orchestra. The competition will be held in November.

The final concert of the season will be on May 10 and has been titled "The Stature of Russia." In addition to the concerto and soloist to be announced, the orchestra will offer Nikolai Rimsky-Korsakov's Russian

Newark stumbles against Wm. Penn

Newark High running back Corey Wallace reaches out to put the football in the end zone and give Newark a lead during Saturday's game against William Penn.

Overtime field goal gives Jackets first loss

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

NEW CASTLE — Newark High's football team did just about everything Saturday against William Penn — except win the football game.

Mike Baker kicked a 20-yard field goal in overtime to give the Colonials an improbable 17-14 win over the Yellowjackets in a key Flight A matchup at William Penn's Bill Cole Stadium. It was Newark's first loss of the season while William Penn improved to 4-1 and took control of the conference race.

The Yellowjackets appeared in control of the contest, leading 14-6 and driving for clinching score, when disaster struck.

On a fourth-and-five from the Colonials' 15-yard line, Newark quarterback Barry Zehnder was hit while attempting to pass and the ball fluttered into the flat where William Penn's Linval Ebanks picked it off and, with a Colonial convoy surrounding him, returned the ball 88 yards to cut the lead to 14-12.

William Penn quarterback Wes Hayman passed to Lavar Carter for the two-point conversion to tie score 14-14.

"Second guessing myself, I probably should've just run the football and made them go the length of the field," said Newark Coach Butch Simpson, whose defense played tough all day. "We called a middle screen there, which we thought was safe. I didn't want to throw it outside because of what could happen. But the play broke down and Barry tried to do his best to throw it away."

William Penn's other touchdown came on a 1-yard drive with just 36 seconds left in the first half. The score was set up when, from the Newark 35-yard line, a punt snap sailed over the Jackets' punter head and was recovered by the Colonials at the one-yard line. Two plays later Carter plowed into the end zone to cut Newark's lead to 7-6.

Newark took a 7-0 lead late in the first quarter when Corey Wallace scored on a three-yard run. The touchdown was set up when the Jackets recovered a William Penn fumble at the 13-yard line.

Following halftime, Newark quickly stretched its lead after recovering another Colonials' fumble, also at the one-yard line. Richie Parson ran into the end zone to improve the Newark lead to 14-6.

Newark stuns Glasgow with come-from-behind victory

Yellowjackets score 23 straight points in rally

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

GLASGOW — Pick a "it's not over until" cliché and it applies to Newark's stunning 2-1 come-from-behind volleyball victory over Christina District rival Glasgow Friday night.

Trailing 13-2 in the second game of the match, after already having lost the first game, the Yellowjackets rallied for 23 straight points to not only capture game two, but take a commanding 10-0 lead in the deciding game. Newark cruised from that point to a 15-3 victory in game three and won the match.

The win improved Newark's league leading Flight A record to 9-1 and 11-3 overall. Glasgow fell to 6-4 in Flight A and 7-4 overall.

"I thought it was over," said Newark Coach Bill Strickland, in his first year at the helm of the Yellowjackets' program. "I didn't think, the way we were playing, we had any chance."

"After the second time out I called, I really let [the team] have it. I've been low key all year because I'm new, but I told them if we were going to lose, we'd better go down fighting."

Fight back, the Jackets did, ripping off 13 consecutive points to tie the match 1-1.

After winning the second game, Strickland knew how difficult it would be for Glasgow to rebound in the third.

"We had a 12-1 lead over Christiana and lost," the coach said. "We know exactly how it feels. But I told the team, after we won the second game, to remember how we felt after the Christiana game. It's just very hard to come back emotionally."

Newark was led by Cori James, who collected 46 assists and 14 digs while Meredith MacIntosh added 17 kills and Megan Hoosty 16. Andrea Clarke contributed 13 kills and three kills.

Jill Biggs led Glasgow with 10 kills and 21 perfect passes while Natalie Dunlap added five kills, 20 assists and 18 digs. Kristin Nau chipped in with six kills and 21 perfect passes.

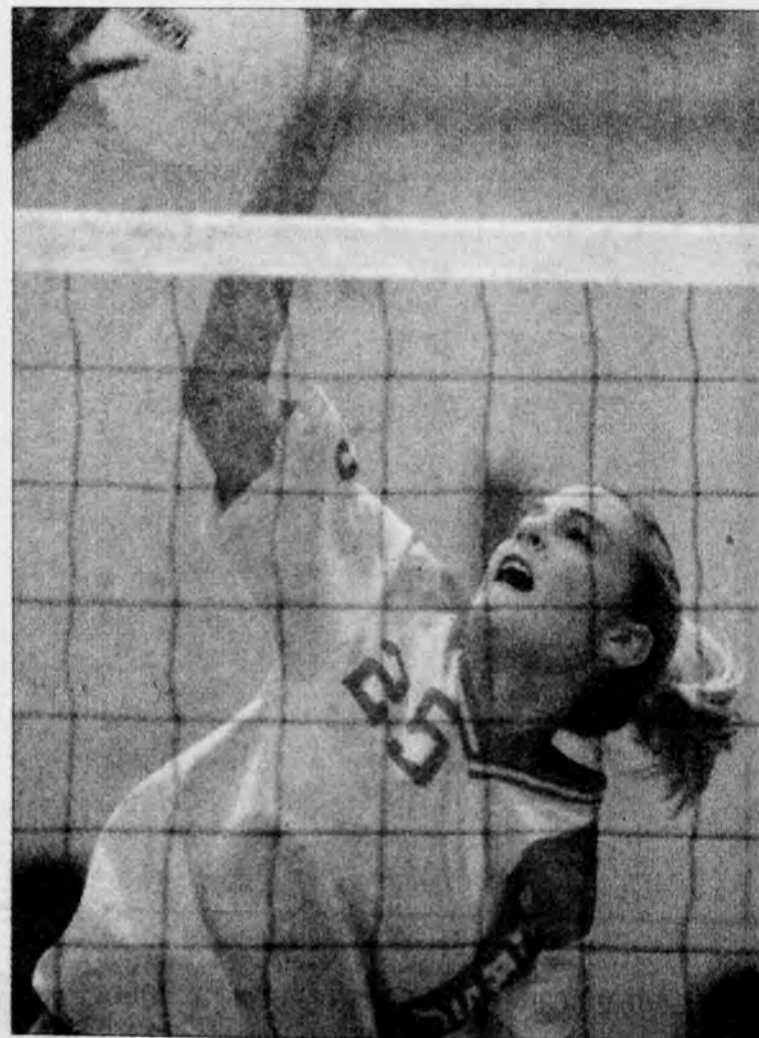

The win helped Newark stay on top in a competitive Flight A race.

"It was a big win in the conference," Strickland said. "If we don't win, Christiana has the momentum and Glasgow is only one win behind."

As it stands now, Newark has a two-match lead over Christiana and a three-match cushion over Glasgow.

Glasgow's Jill Biggs goes for kill in Friday's match against Newark.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Meredith McIntosh – Newark

When Newark High's Meredith McIntosh is at the top of her game, look out.

McIntosh, a 5-foot-9 junior, registered eight straight kills after the Yellowjackets fell behind Glasgow 13-2 in the second game of a Blue Hen Conference Flight A match last Friday.

She finished the match with 17 kills, 18 digs and 11 perfect passes. And the 'Jackets somehow finished Glasgow off.

Newark appeared to be in danger of falling into a first-place tie with district rival Christiana. The Vikings had won seven straight matches going into yesterday's scheduled bout at A.I. DuPont.

They trailed the 'Jackets by only match.

But McIntosh rallied Newark – almost by herself.

"When she's hitting with the proper arm swing, she hits the ball as hard and as well as anybody," Newark Coach Bill Strickland said. "We were bringing [middle hitter] Andrea Clarke quick into the middle, which freezes the middle blocker.

"And [setter] Cori James, of course, was putting the ball where [McIntosh] needed it."

Put simply, the team's best front line was playing to the best of its capabilities.

"I just got 100 percent more intense" after the team fell behind in the second game, McIntosh said. "I really tried to get pumped up for the sets. I knew a kill would really get us excited for the next point."

And the one after it. And the one after that.

"It was the game of my life, and the most exciting one, too," the 16-year-old Newark resident said.

She added: "I became more focused this year." If the team follows in her footsteps, the rest of the state could be in trouble come tournament time.

"We always have to be ready to play," McIntosh said. "When we play as a team – get our passes, our sets – we're unstoppable."

Caravel gridders one of state's last unbeatens

It seems Caravel's last winning football season occurred during the Bush administration. But the Bucs (5-0) start the season's second half with St. Elizabeth as the only two teams in Delaware with undefeated records.

However, the mantra going around the tiny school's campus this week is probably "Stop Bergey," a reference to halfback Josh Bergey. Caravel will have to shut down the feature back Friday night to beat Bergey's Tatnall team.

At least, the Bucs are at home after playing their last two games on the road. But their opponents, Harford (Md.) Tech and St. Andrews, were much weaker than Tatnall, Tower Hill, Mount Pleasant, St. Elizabeth and Archmere, who will all show up on Caravel's sched-

St. Mark's, Sallies tie in soccer match

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

WILMINGTON – Fans leaving Tuesday night's titanic soccer match between St. Mark's and Salesianum left with just one feeling – a hope that the two teams will play again.

The state's top two ranked teams played to a 1-1 tie and had many observers hoping for a rematch in November. That potential match would have much greater stakes and couldn't possible end in a tie.

The Spartans, now 11-0-1 on the season, began the game with a fierce attack which resulted in a Andrew Robert goal seven minutes into the game. Jason Dzielak fired a shot that banged off the crossbar and back to Robert, who headed the ball into the net.

"That's always our plan, coming out and attacking," said St. Mark's Coach Tom DeMatteis. "But after that score, I think we had a let up little by little for the rest of the game."

Salesianum (9-1-1) rebounded in the 38th minute on Pat Igo's penalty kick. The kick was set up when Sallies' Joe Noonan was tripped in the penalty area.

"I didn't have a good angle on that," said DeMatteis of the call. "But, no matter if it was a good call or bad call, we put ourselves in position to give up a PK. We were not as intense as we should have been and got caught backing up."

The game was played mostly in the midfield in the second half and the game proceeded to overtime.

The Spartans had the best scoring opportunity late in the second 10-minute overtime when Rob Roberto's header was deflected by Salesianum goalkeeper Jeff Stoklosa.

"It was a good save," DeMatteis said. "It was definitely going in."

St. Mark's outshot Salesianum 16-9 with Stoklosa recording 11 saves and Spartans' keeper Joey Ludica stopping seven shots.

"We just weren't as intense after that first goal," said DeMatteis. "That's why I think we can play better."

Brandywine holds off Newark

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

Brandywine's goal midway into the second half was all the Bulldogs needed to put Newark away in a Blue Hen Conference Flight A match.

The Yellowjackets' 2-0 loss Wednesday dropped their record 2-4, but gave the team plenty of reason for optimism. Why? Newark's defense played a solid match against one of state's elite programs.

And with 75 percent of the schedule left to play because of cancellations and rainouts, the 'Jackets' season is still promising. They embark on a mini-road trip beginning Friday afternoon at Glasgow, then visit Caravel Saturday morning. The team returns home Monday against North East (Md.).

"If we play with the same level intensity as today, you'll see us in the playoffs," Newark Coach Susan Wells said.

Unfortunately, the offense too often failed to generate pressure. "We get it [the ball] inside the circle," Wells said. "We just can't get it inside the cage. ...We work on [scoring] all the time. The skill level's there."

But the experience and the aggressiveness are frequently absent in the circle. The 'Jackets, however, appear to do everything else fairly well. The team played the Bulldogs to a 0-0 tie into the second half.

Brandywine's Carrie Green scored with 16:11 left to play. The Bulldogs' Katherine Bercaw added a meaningless goal just before the match's final whistle. For much of the match, Newark's defensive brilliance stymied the Bulldogs.

"I couldn't have asked for anything more from the girls," Wells said. "The kids played excellent."

The 'Jackets' players agreed with Wells.

"We played as a team today," said center link Sharmili Mathur, a senior. "We talked [and] we passed. The defense kept its sticks on the ball. It's just a matter of getting it [the ball] in the cage. It's all we lack right now."

Added Karen Von Steuben: "I think we played real well [considering] our competition." The left link said the team does everything but the put balls in the circle away, which she blamed on too many fouls.

"[We're] nervous," said Von Steuben, who scored two goals in Friday's 4-2 win over Middletown. "We end up thinking about too many things. [But] it's not a concentration thing. It's more of a hand-eye coordination thing."

ule.

But the Bucs aren't looking past Bergey.

"It's going to be a real challenge," said Bill Cain, the Bucs' two-way senior lineman who plays tackle on defense. "He's the key to their offense. All we have to do is contain him. [We have to] keep him in the middle, between the tackles."

"If he gets outside... then I think we're going to be in trouble. The ends have to do the job of closing off the outside routes," said Cain, who stands 6-foot-4 and tips the scale at 280 pounds.

Quarterback Alex Faircloth agreed.

"Don't let Bergey get outside," the junior said. "Force him inside," he added so the linebackers can collapse on him. "...The defense has to key on him the whole game."

Caravel enters Friday's game after routing St. Andrews 28-3 last Saturday. The Bucs also dismantled Harford Tech 44-6 in Week 4. Caravel Coach David Needs used both games to work on his team's passing game, and his Bucs threw for a season-high 150 yards against St. Andrews.

"When we started the season, we were a quarterback-fullback offense," Needs said.

But the last two weeks have given the coach the opportunity to

Caravel v-ball eyes tourney

Caravel's volleyball team may be one win away from qualifying for the state volleyball tournament after looking like it was on course for another mediocre season.

Coach Scott Huff credits the Bucs' comeback against Cape Henlopen earlier this month for setting a different tone. The team finished with a 7-9 mark a year ago.

Caravel had won the first game of the match 15-7 before falling behind 9-0 in the second game. Early in the season, Huff said, the team threw in the towel whenever adversity struck.

"We were kind of lackluster, going through the motions," he said. "We told the girls, 'You got to show some heart. This is a game we need to win.'"

Something finally fell into the place. A big something that had been missing during much of a respectable but uninspired 5-3 start.

The Bucs scored 10 of the game's final 16 points in a losing cause, but won the rubber game 15-13. "I think it was a turning point," the coach said. "It showed the girls what they could do."

Indeed. The Bucs, who have won their last three matches, carry some momentum into the regular season's final stretch.

They hit the road Friday against Wilmington Christian, then return home Saturday morning against Dover.

Huff believes defense and the team's ability to pass from the back row have been the key to its success. Having sophomore Kristin Mills, a bona fide basketball star last season as freshman, also helps. The coach said the middle hitter came into her own this season as a volleyball player.

"She dominates the game when she gets the ball," Huff said.

Bantam Hens win opener

The Delaware Junior Blue Hens, Bantam (13-14 year-olds) Gold hockey team opened its season with a 7-4 victory over the Frederick Phantoms.

J.P. Dawson had two goals while Shawn Collins, Mike Mooney, Jared Kranz, Chase Christian and Ryan Jones each added one.

Cooke Harvey and Seth Ricketts combined to stop 12 of 16 shots on goal.

PewWee Hens fall

The Delaware Junior Blue Hens Pee Wee Gold team fell 5-3 to the Warwick Wildcats in its opening game.

Justin Lutz, Brigid McClelland and John Brainard scored the Hens' goals. Josh Hurd, Lutz and Kyle Morrison had the assists.

Caravel hockey drops two

The Caravel field hockey dropped two contests during the week.

The Bucs fell 1-0 to Polytech and 6-0 to Wilmington Christian.

Concerned Hens get ready for tough stretch of games

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

There's not too many college campuses in the country where so much winning can cause so much consternation.

The University of Delaware football team edged Richmond 14-7 last week to head into this Saturday's Homecoming game against Northeastern with a 5-1 record and a number 10 national ranking — seemingly good numbers.

Yet, Delaware Coach Tubby Raymond said for the second week in a row that the play of his team threatened his theory of having to be happy with a win.

From this point of the season on, however, wins will make anyone associated with the Blue Hens' program extremely happy.

Northeastern, who comes to Newark with a 3-3 record, begins a stretch of games for the Hens, that includes in succession James Madison, William & Mary, Navy, Rhode Island and any potential playoff opponent.

The Huskies are coming off a 42-31 loss at Villanova — a team that trounced Delaware 27-0 — and two weeks ago beat Richmond 27-10.

"This is the best Northeastern team we've seen," said Raymond, who holds a 3-0 record against the Huskies.

Delaware beat Northeastern 37-10 last season and has outscored it 107-53 in the three meetings between the two teams.

The Huskies, though, have steadily improved. Of their 10 losses over the last two seasons, five have been by less than a touchdown and four by less than a field goal.

This year's squad features a strong defense that ranks second in the Yankee Conference in rushing defense and fourth against the pass.

The Huskies are third in the league in total defense, behind William & Mary and Richmond and ahead of Delaware.

Offensively, the Huskies are led by a strong passing attack that ranks fourth in the league. Quarterback Jim Murphy has connected on 60 percent of his passes and thrown for 1,406 yards. As a comparison, Delaware quarterback Leo Hamlett has completed 46 percent of his passes for 898 yards.

Homecoming festivities

Delaware has been very successful on Homecoming, winning 21 of 31 games including last year's 15-0 decision over Richmond.

There will be, as usual, a bunch of festivities surrounding the weekend starting with a Homecoming Carnival Friday from 2-5 p.m. on the University of Delaware Mall to kick off the weekend's festivities.

A pep rally will take place at 4:30 p.m. also on the Mall. On Saturday, there is a 5K Homecoming Campus Run Around beginning at 9:30 a.m. and a Goalpost Party following the game at the Delaware Field House.

Don't forget basketball

While much of the fall attention has been on the football team, the Blue Hens' basketball team quietly started its preseason practice session on Tuesday.

Coach Mike Brey, in his second season as the head coach at Delaware, will try to improve on a 15-12 record and a first-round loss in the North Atlantic Conference tournament.

This year the NAC has become the America East conference and Brey hopes the Hens have also changed for the better.

"Things are little more in place this year," Brey said of the differences from his first year. "The staff knows me now and knows what to expect. We also have a good nucleus of veterans who know the system plus a nice infusion of younger players."

The team is almost completely different than the one former coach Steve Steinwedel left behind. Just two of the 14 roster spots are filled with players who played two years ago.

"The big difference is the number of new faces," Brey said. "Our practices will be unbelievably competitive and we can only get better because of that."

Delaware opens its season against Delaware State at the Carpenter Center on Nov. 22. The Hens will also play two home exhibition contests against an AAU team and a team from Lithuania.

POST PICKS OF THE WEEK

This is turning into a crazy high school football season.

Last week, Newark, Christiana and Glasgow all lost. We picked, incorrectly of course, all three to win. The three losses led to a 3-3 record last week and lowered our season record to 14-8.

There are just four games to pick this week as St. Mark's has the week off and Glasgow and Christiana play each other.

Newark and Hodgson will try to get back on the winning track and Caravel will try to keep its unbeaten season alive.

NEWARK (4-1) VS. ALEXIS I. DuPONT (3-2) – Friday night Newark's Hoffman Stadium, 7. The Yellowjackets were heartbroken after last week's overtime loss to William Penn. Newark, though, has to realize that the season is hardly over. If the Jackets can win the rest of their games, they will most likely qualify for the state tournament.

There, they will have another chance to prove to William Penn, and everyone else, that they are the best team in the state. That journey begins Friday night against the Tigers. The Pick: Newark 27, A.I. DuPont 7.

CARAVEL (5-0) VS. TATNALL (4-2) – Friday night at Caravel's Bob Peoples' Stadium, 7:30. The Bucs, after two relatively easy wins over Harford Tech and St. Andrews, get a stiffer test Friday against the Hornets.

Tatnall is having a good year and have postseason hopes of its own. Caravel is definitely eyeing a state tournament berth but must keep winning. We feel it will this week. The Pick: Caravel 20, Tatnall 14.

HODGSON (4-2) VS. HOWARD (1-4) – Saturday morning at Baynard Stadium, 10:30. The Silver Eagles are coming off a tough loss to Dickinson and are looking to rebound against the Wildcats.

Hodgson, by winning the rest of its games, still has a chance to make the state tournament. That streak must start Saturday. The Pick: Hodgson 34, Howard 13.

CHRISTIANA (2-3) VS. GLASGOW (1-4) – Saturday afternoon at Christiana's Coder Field, 1. Both teams are coming off difficult losses. Both teams are probably disappointed with their win totals at this point of the season. Both teams love to beat each other, no matter what the records are.

This is a game that could rejuvenate either team's season. Right now, Christiana looks like the better squad. The Pick: Christiana 21, Glasgow 8.

Jackets fall to Wm. Penn

► NEWARK, from 20

"Defensively, it was a monumental effort," Simpson said. "But we didn't get it done offensively at all today. It was a combination of us and them. We just have to get better."

Newark's overtime possession was ruined by consecutive seven-yard losses which pushed the ball from the seven-yard line to the 21 and out of field goal range. A fourth down pass to Wallace gained 10 yards but was well short of the end zone.
