27 Of 29 Alarms Prove Field Fires Since Last Friday

From last Friday through Tuesday of this week, Aetna volunteer firemen responded to 29 fire alarms with an average of 34 men in each case, and with a total of 67 pieces of fire apparatus involved.

Aetna Fire Chief George Smith said yesterday that 27 of these alarms were field and brush fires that "should not have occurred."

Newark's fire chief cautioned that "when these men and equipment are tied up fighting unnecessary field and brush fires, they are not available for structural fires which may occur at any time, any place."

Upon third and fourth alarms, many volunteer firemen leave their places of business to lend a hand in the emergency," Smith continued.

Newark Fire Marshal William M. Donahue has requested all residents of the Aetna fire district to practice fire prevention the year around.

"If every citizen assists in fire prevention, the number of fires and fire loss will be greatly reduced," Donahue declared.

Schools To Decide On Mid-Week Play Of Nite Basketball

Local Board Of Education Cites Game Interference With Student Scholarship

At the request of the Newark Board of Education, administrators of schools in the Blue Hen Conference will meet tonight to discuss the future of mid-week night basketball games.

The question was raised by the Newark board in a letter dated Jan. 11, that stated in part:

"We do not believe that athletics should be permitted to interfere with the academic achievement of students in high school. We believe that mid-week evening games do interfere with the academic achievement of participants, both players as well as spectators. We have evidence to this effect."

"We have proposed to eliminate such mid-week evening games. Our proposal has been that we play games on Friday nights only."

"In view of the schedules we have proposed further that we play each school once only, just as we do in football."

"We would not be averse to playing a mid-week game in the afternoon, after school hours, with a second game of the week then on Friday night, if this is felt desirable by conference schools."

Featured speakers will be Mrs. Jean Rindlaub, vice-president, Boston, Barton, Durstine and Osburn, Inc.; and Norman E. Gottlieb, vice-president and counsel, National Better Business Bureau, Inc.

Urban Affairs Division At UD To Prepare City Master Plan

Council Approves Planning Commission Recommendation To Employ U. D. Group At $20,000 Maximum; Second Public Hearing Scheduled To Validate Revised Pay Plan

Meeting in regular session last Tuesday night for the final time prior to the April 10 municipal election, Newark City Council approved an agreement with the University of Delaware urban affairs division, subject to signed approval of the contract by university officials, for preparation of a master plan for the City of Newark by the division at a cost not to exceed $20,000.

Concerning the proposal approved by the Newark Planning Commission, Edward C. Moore of the urban affairs division said that the contract is more binding upon the university than upon the city, and that the $20,000 figure is a maximum cost for the comprehensive plan, not for the consultation services by the division with "day to day problems" in development of the program.

These mapping costs are not included in the $20,000 figure, Moore explained in answer to Mrs. Betty McClendon in the audience, but City Manager J. Francis Neide said that the consultation services by the division with "day to day problems" in development of the program.

These mapping costs are not included in the $20,000 figure, Moore explained in answer to Mrs. Betty McClendon in the audience, but City Manager J. Francis Neide said that the consultation services by the division with "day to day problems" in development of the program.

Francis E. D. McCann of the planning commission, objected to the council's apparent misunderstanding of procedure in treating the planning proposal as an ordinance with a required two readings.

"This is not an ordinance," McCann said. In urging immediate action, he pointed out that others were interested in obtaining the services of the university group, and that Newark would have to be promptly to be the first community in the state to obtain these services.

Moore said that formal wording of the contract had not been approved by university attorneys for lack of opportunity, but he stated his belief that no other changes might be made.

Council approved the contract subject to university signature.

Planning commission recommendations that the municipal zoning ordinance be amended to provide for one-half acre lots as advised in the land use report of last Feb. 3, and for zoning of the city's stone drainage and flood control measures, were referred to Solicitor Alton Tybout.

Robert Extermination

Concerning a proposed ordinance for rodent control with the demolition of buildings, Tybout said that he had been unable to find such legislation in Wilmington, but that he would continue search for such a model ordinance cited by Councilman George Wilson for past extermination certification required with the raising of rodents.

City Manager Neide was authorized to advertise for bids to provide a traffic signal at East Cleveland Avenue and North Chapel Street, and the blinker light at Corbit and West Main streets is to be relocated at the intersection of Hillside and West Main.

Neide announced that Robert Bolling, municipal electrical engineer, had submitted his resignation with dissatisfaction at the limited advancement provided with recently revised salary scales.

Councilman George Wilson objected to passage of the ordinance amending the municipal salary and wage plan at the last regular meeting of council, without a formally-called public hearing. He pointed out that contrary to protocol, the audience had not been invited to speak on the measure, and because of this omission, he questioned the validity of the ordinance.

Solicitor Tybout stated that he could find no definition of "public hearing," and that this was a matter for council to decide.

Council decided to readvertise a second public hearing on the matter, and approved a second "first" reading at the current meeting.

Concerning a communication from the Delaware Mayors Association, council concurred with Elsmere in that community's announced intention to seek recovery of money fines levied by local magistrates.

Levy Court Voice

Neide urged preparation of a bill to provide for Newark representation on the New Castle County Levy Court. The Levy Court recently rejected such a proposal.

Stevens Offers Advice On Pruning Ornamentals

Shearing and clippings are good practices to use on a French poodle, but not on most ornamental plants says Robert F. Stevens, University of Delaware extension horticulturist.

Although there are exceptions such as hedges, pruning of ornamentals should preserve the natural shape of the shrub or tree, rather than make it symmetrical.

Shade trees should be pruned now unless the buds have started to swell greatly. Other plants that may include evergreens and late flowering shrubs—those that bloom in June, July and August.

Peace Corps Chief Cites Need of 1,000 Aides In Ag Field

The Peace Corps urgently needs 1,000 men and women with agricultural backgrounds, according to James Gibson, chief of the agricultural division.

On a recent visit to the University of Delaware, Gibson said opportunities are immediately available for men and women over 18 who have been raised on farms or who have had successful farming experience.

"High school graduates with farming experience can apply even though they have not been to college," Gibson explained. "Also welcome are applications from farmers in their 30's, 40's or 50's—and older if their health is sound."

Countries that have requested farmers include India, Malaysia, North Borneo and Sarawak, Philippines, Thailand, West Territories in the South Pacific, El Salvador, Colombia, Bolivia, Chile, Brazil, Venezuela and Jamaica. A person can apply for the country of his choice.

According to Gibson, Peace Corps volunteers will perform a variety of jobs, including operation and maintenance of farm machinery; management of livestock and poultry; soil conservation; building farm structures; operation of dairies; maintenance of diesel engines; organizing 4-H, FFA and other farm programs.

Teachers in agricultural subjects are needed as are home economists, rural sociologists, and persons with experience in farm cooperatives, Gibson said.

The Peace Corps provides all expenses, including transportation, housing, clothing, food, medical care, vacation, and incidentals. After they complete their two-year assignment, volunteers will receive an additional payment of $1800," Gibson said.

Applications can be obtained by writing to the Peace Corps, Washington 25, D. C.

Dr. Ott Announces Deadlines At U.D. For New Students

University of Delaware deadlines for applications for admission beginning with the 1962-63 school year, have been established, and applications for the fall term must be received by Sept. 1, and for the spring term, by Jan. 5.

Dr. Edward Ott, director of admissions, said the deadlines will apply to all incoming freshmen, transfers and special students.

He termed the move an "administrative necessity" caused by the increasing number of applications each year. It wasn't so bad when we were handling 700 new students a year, but the number has grown to over 1,200," Ott said.

The extra time will provide opportunity to evaluate each application, and confirm dormitory allocations, Dr. Ott concluded.

Len Dukart Cites Hamburger Intake During Past Year

Did you eat your 133 hamburgers in the past year? If not, you have a beef coming—or, more precisely, 295 ground beef patties a week. That's the average weekly consumption of hamburgers at McDonald's in Newark, according to a survey by McDonald's at 374 East Main Street on the occasion of its second anniversary in local business.

People in Newark have eaten 1,000,000 McDonald hamburgers since the restaurant opened for business on March 15, 1960.

Hamburger consumption nationally last year was up four and one-half per cent over 1960, McDonald's survey revealed, part of an increase in meat-eating in general and beef-eating in particular.

The average American ate 162 pounds of meat last year—including 53.8 pounds of beef, and U.S. families ate more than one-third of the world's supply of beef last year.

In Russia the average person ate only 68 pounds of meat in all for the year.

Locally, in an average week, McDonald's uses up to two tons of beef, a ton and a half of potatoes, and almost 30 gallons of catsup.

Manager Len Dukart reports.

AN EDITOR GOES TO WASHINGTON

During a recess last Monday in the Department of State's Foreign Policy Briefing Conference at Washington, this editor sat in the spring sunshine at the 23rd Street entrance of the State Department building overlooking the Lincoln Memorial, and concluded that if all is not well, this nation is making every effort to correct that condition—there is much cause for satisfaction with the present—and there is much hope for the future.

Speakers at the Foreign Policy Briefing Conference attended by invitation from Secretary of State Dean Rusk, including Luther J. Reid, director of the office of special affairs, Bureau of Public Affairs; Conference Chairman George W. Ball, under secretary of state; General Norstad, supreme allied commander, NATO, Europe; and George H. Decker, acting chairman, joint chiefs of staff; Harlan Cleveland, assistant secretary of state for international affairs; Chester Bowles, the President's special representative and advisor on African, Asian and Latin American affairs; Fowler Hamilton, administrator of the U. S. Agency for International Development; George C. Elmer, under secretary of state, and U. Alexis Johnson, under secretary for political affairs.

In their discussions of United States foreign policy, the gentlemen convinced this editor that they are dedicated to the preservation of all that is good in our American way of life, and at the same time, laboring mightily to establish world-wide peace and freedom.

Each of these men is serving as a national and world leader. With their evident ability and personal magnetism, selfish motive could be far better provided for in private enterprise.

There are at least two sides to every story—a State Department official said Monday that he was not aware of any internal problem that did not have five or six sides. Some were 35-sided—but, often—too frequently—our representatives and their appointed aides in Washington are the butt of careless conversational commentary, a conference such as that to which we were invited this week is a stimulating, soul-stirring experience—provides a healthy transfusion with the plasma of patriotism—and sweeps away any trace of sophisticated cynicism with the demonstration of every serious business being well conducted. United States foreign policy was defined simply as an effort to make the non-communist world "hum with success."

The United Nations was described as a school of political diplomacy with the "difficult, dangerous business of peace" and with its three major objectives of general disarmament, peaceful use of outer space, and a planned program for the improvement of economic growth of underdeveloped countries.

Since World War II, in a political upheaval without precedent, 12 countries have become independent; in none of these people choose communism; and in none of these has communism been established. This transformation from communism to sovereignty has been accomplished without a shedding of power troops except for Korea, and doubt expressed that the man or men in the Kremlin who led the Korean War received medals for effort that resulted in the establishment of the NATO and rebuilding of American military might.

Last year, 2,217 meetings were held with 104 nations participating in the UN Building, and under the UN and 100 small nations for the first time may stand and speak with dignity.

Concerning the NATO with Atlantic, Channel, Allied Southern Commands it was stated that its basic missions are to defend the people and territories of NATO countries; contribute to the preservation of peace with adequately armed and equipped forces to halt aggression—"and we have the power"—to give validity to such forces; and to provide for political negotiations.

How successful is the NATO? It has maintained uninterrupted air access to Berlin with 25,900 air passengers landing during the first week of this month, and the situation in Germany in 1951 with the query "what month was it?" has been allayed.

The United States was described as stronger than the Soviet Union in nuclear warfare were forced upon us; combat units were sent from 11 to 16 during 1961; and at no time has the capacity of Russia exceeded ours. Russian air defenses are as capable but not as complete as ours, with the Nike Zeus our most effective defense against ICBM's. The Peace Corps was cited as "spectacularly successful" in the threat of Communist China is tempered with China's problem of providing 4,000,000 additional tons of food each year—8,000,000 in 1963—12,000,000 in addition to production in 1961—just to feed its increasing population. And the per-capita food production in Red China was the level of the civil war period in 1950.

The communist hopes of economic, political, and social progress in Western Europe have been defeated with the help of the United States, it was pointed out, and the rift between the East and West indicates a break in Red relations, with the Soviet becoming a "have" nation, less inclined to take chances than China as a "have not."

The failure of Soviet agricultural policy was cited, with 48 per cent engaged in agriculture compared with 10 per cent in the United States. An American farm worker produces food for 40—A Russian farmer feeds four or five.

The State Department in Washington has the legendary big city daily newsroom shoved way back in the shade when it comes to excitement and world crises. Wires hum with latest developments from the far corners of the earth—and these events require study and action rather than literary and mechanical relay.

Current crises were listed as the Dutch-Indonesian problem believed nearing a solution with major agreement on both sides; Vietnam with its 16,000 guerrillas; Laos and its inability to create a neutral government; Algeria, but with current optimism for resolution; the Congo where leaders give little evidence of grasping basic issues; and Angola where an uneasy peace is imposed by Portuguese forces.

Concerning U. S. policy with regard to Cuba, it is to reintegrate Cuba with the western hemisphere through a strategy of economics, and condemnation by her hemispheric brethren.

State Department plans include patience, flexibility, and long-term competition with Russia—firmness, and no cheap victories.

The United States can afford nationalism. Communism can't.

And as a State Department spokesman said, "I am convinced that this great nation of ours is on the right track." We'll buy that!

Letters To The Editor

Dear Bill:
Dr. S. J. Wright turned over to City Manager Neide some old and interesting town "Financial Statements" that were in his family's possession. They date from 1891 to 1912. I thought that many residents would be interested in them.

In 1891, Dr. H. G. M. Kolkoff, President of Council, (no mayor then), reported:

"Our streets formerly lighted with gasoline lamps, run upon a moonlight scale are now lighted all night, and every night, with incandescent Electric lamps of almost double candle power."

Taxes collected were reported as $3,565.12. This was supplemented by 76 male dogs at $30 each—$2,280 and three female dogs at $1.00 each—$3.00, bringing total tax up to $5,848.12.

They meticulously listed each voucher number, in whose favor, the purpose, and amount. Vouchers 272-273-274 covered Messrs. D. Shellender, Wm. Gamble, Nathan Sanders, $2.00 each for "Police Service." Auditors were S. M. Donnell, S. J. Wright, W. T. Wilson.

James Hayes, water works superintendent, reported he used 82 tons coal for pumping, and "Your entire pipe line consists of 7,343-ft. 10-inch pipe; 7,217-ft. 6-inch pipe; 643-ft. 4-inch pipe. Total 15,203-ft. with 36 fire hydrants." His inventory at the pumping station included "one sink, one comb case, one looking glass, one coffee pot, two cuspidors."

On construction of the town building "Your auditing committee begs leave to report that the financial statement has been carefully examined and found correct." They, "desire to further state" it was a two-story brick structure 55x24-ft.; "ample accommodations, admirably arranged for Town purposes." First floor for storage of fire apparatus.

dropped two for a total of 74 at 50 cents each. The "road tax" was set at 25 cents. The property tax remained at 75 cents per hundred. Real estate assessment zoomed up $48,235 over 1891 for a total assessment of $433,653.

Water Works Superintendent Arthur Homewood reported "the water was used once for fire purposes, on New London Avenue, at the Colored Church." In the inventory, fire hydrants remained at 36, but the two cuspidors reported in the inventory of '91 were not reported in 1893.

In 1894, four more male dogs must have hit the trail, for only 70 were taxed at 50 cents each. The water department reported improvements with "six fire pails have been added to the equipment," and "The water was used for fire purposes once at

E. W. Haines' barn."

Receipts for 1893 included "Received for Merry-go-Round license . . . $9.50. Rec'd from Uncle Tom's Cabin license . . . $3.00." Under disbursements, Leslie Hill, W. Barton W. Murphy were paid $1.50, $1.25, $2.00, for "Watching"; $30 was appropriated to the Acta HH & Ladder Co. Lewis Bias received $7 as "Dog Catcher."

In 1897 there is no reporting of the dog population or dog tax collected. It might be that an expenditure listed in 1898 has something to do with this . . . L. Byus was paid $3.56 for "Killing dogs." There were problems in those days . . . James Wilson was paid $1 for "removing dead horses."

Things were looking up in 1899. The water department reported,

"The well that supplies the Town has improved considerably this spring, and believe we will have all the water we need for our own use, not including the B&O Railroad at present." Fire plugs were still holding at 36.

The well reported as picking up in 1898 was in real good shape in 1900 for it was reported "We will have all the water needed for the supply of the Town, also for the use of B&O engines."

$100-MILLION EXPANSION

Our current five-year forecast (1962 through 1966) reveals the need for over $100-million in new construction during this period to meet the challenge of maintaining adequate, dependable service to all customers—present and future.

The largest single project in this five-year expansion program will be the installation of an additional, large power generating unit at Edge Moor Power Station in Wilmington . . . the fourth unit to be installed at this station. Construction is scheduled to start in 1964 and be completed in 1966. Our Peninsula-wide system will require additional distribution facilities, most of which will be for new services, meters, transformers, poles, lines, etc. as new customers are added and service is increased to present customers. Additions to our transmission network will include new substations, lines and towers; our gas production, transmission and distribution facilities are scheduled for expansion and extension to meet growing demands and a variety of miscellaneous projects and the purchase of tools, vehicles, etc. will balance out our $100-million program.

This investment in new facilities is visible evidence of our faith in the future of Delmarva Peninsula. It is your assurance we shall continue to make available adequate, dependable service at economical rates to everyone, everywhere in the area.

Little Difference In 1962 Farm Outlook From That Of 1961, McAllister Reports

The 1962 farm outlook can be summarized in a few words, W. T. McAllister, farm management specialist at the University of Delaware, reports. "Not much different from 1961."

Looking at U.S. agriculture as a whole, McAllister says, this would appear to be favorable. Gross farm income was up over 1.5 billion dollars but farm costs increased enough to reduce the gain in net farm income to about one billion dollars. Higher prices for a few commodities and a record volume of marketing combined with government payments under the feed grain program, accounted for this favorable situation in 1961.

Whether the outlook for 1962 is favorable or not depends on individual commodities produced and the ability of farmers to adjust to changing conditions, McAllister believes.

To many Delaware farmers, another year like 1961 is not a favorable outlook. In fact, it would be almost a disaster to broiler and turkey producers and potato growers. On the other hand, producers of livestock, eggs, some vegetable and fruit crops, and soybeans welcome another year like 1961.

Dairy Products

Supplies of milk and dairy products will be even more abundant than in 1961. Milk production per cow will continue the long time upward trend, more than offsetting the decline in cow numbers. Demand for some milk products, as measured in terms of per capita use, has been declining for several years.

Consumer purchases of fluid milk, ice cream, and American cheese has changed relatively little over the last 10 years, but use of fluid milk was much lower in 1961. Some increase in the use of non-fat dry milk and cheese has occurred but this has been well below the level needed to balance the supply of milk with demand.

A substantial amount of the anticipated increase in milk supply in 1962 probably will end up in government-owned storages which are already well-stocked from past purchases. The milk price support program has been a costly one and indications are that costs will be even higher in 1962.

Broilers

Broiler production increased by more than 12 per cent in 1961, sending the number of broilers raised over the two billion mark. This was many more than the market could absorb without a substantial price reduction.

Many of the forces which created the unfavorable situation in 1961 are still active and are likely to result in another large crop of broilers in 1962.

To some extent the industry has learned to live with a "tighter" situation. They have been forced to put into operation "cost reducing programs" which have been fairly effective in minimizing the shock of very low prices.

Many broilers were produced in 1961, and perhaps even a few more are likely in 1962. Even with this large crop, prices in 1962 should average between one-half to one and one-quarter cents above that of 1961 as domestic demand and foreign markets continue to expand.

Eggs

Egg producers experienced a satisfactory year in 1961 but closed out the year with lower prices, this giving some hint of what to expect in 1962.

The egg supply next year is likely to increase more than population growth. Since the trend in per capita egg consumption is down, the increase in egg supplies will result in prices below the 1961 level during the most of 1962.

Turkeys

Like broilers, turkey producers suffered from over-expansion resulting in prices lower than over experienced before by most growers. Total output was up 30 per cent over the large crop of 1960. Preliminary reports indicate a potential crop in 1962 as large as that of last year.

Hogs

Hog producers have experienced several years of reasonably satisfactory prices. However, this has not resulted in any large increase in hog numbers. The 1961 fall pig crop is expected to be only one to two per cent larger than a year ago and the spring farrowing intentions of U.S. hog farmers are expected to show only a modest increase.

Hog prices should be fairly strong during the first quarter, but during most of 1962, hog prices will not equal those of a year ago and will tend to work gradually lower as the year progresses.

Farmers with good management should find hog production a fairly profitable enterprise in 1962.

Beef Cattle

"The outlook for cattle prices is about the same as in 1961. Fed cattle prices are not expected to drop as sharply next spring as last year, and may be over 1961 price levels during most of the summer months. Slaughter cattle prices in the fall will likely be a little below the fall prices of 1961."

Cattlemen will continue to increase their herds in 1962, the fifth year in a row. Growth in cattle numbers has been backed up with a strong consumer demand for beef so that prices have been maintained at generally profitable levels.

Modest profits can be expected in 1962 for the cattlemen that know their business.

Ashton Advises Motorists "To Drive Defensively"

The coming of spring weather will boost the volume of driving—and that will boost the volume of accidents unless Delawareans are prepared to "drive defensively," J. James Ashton, manager of the Delaware Safety Council, warned this week.

This requires, Ashton explained, constant alertness for illegal acts and errors of other drivers, and willingness to make quick adjustments to avoid accidents.

"The defensive driver does not expect all other drivers to behave according to rules, or to respond to a situation exactly as he would. He is prepared for reckless, illegal and clumsy behavior on the part of other drivers," Ashton concluded.

Beta Sigma Phi Presents TV Set for State Hospital

"Quality," Keynote Of Farm-Home Week In Three-Day Program On Local Campus

Quality was the keynote of the 1962 Farm and Home Week program on the University of Delaware campus in Newark.

President John A. Perkins, in a general session address before several hundred first-day visitors, said that providing quality higher education for the growing numbers of Delaware youth of college age, at costs comparable to those at neighboring, larger institutions, will be the major objective of the university in the next decade.

Perkins used a film to show how attendance at the university is expected to reach the 6,000 figure by 1972—nearly twice the enrollment of last September.

Behind the expected enrollment boom, is Delaware's rising birth rate—50 per cent higher than the national average—and the state's growing industries which annually attract hundreds of new workers and their families, Dr. Perkins explained. Another factor that will boost university enrollment is the increasing difficulty of finding out-of-state institutions.

W. T. McAllister, extension economist with the University of Delaware, reported that in a survey of chain stores, 50 per cent of the stores contacted indicated they preferred Delaware poultry. "This means these stores will buy local poultry if we can supply the quality they want," he said.

Although the demand for quality poultry in the U.S. is increasing, recent developments in Europe tend to darken the future of the export market, according to another poultry session speaker, C. C. Warren of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

W. R. Murray of Frankford, Del., presented that the broiler industry is being caught in a moving glacier of population seeking space to live, work and grow.

"The glacier is well down the Jersey Coast and already Wilmington is joined to Philadelphia by dense, populated and industrialized growth. New Castle County is choked by a flow of traffic that requires a toll road leading from the Memorial Bridge to the Maryland line," he declared.

Other speakers in planning were Dr. W. S. Bonner, University of Arkansas; Gerald P. Vaughn, U.S. Department of Agriculture; Dr. Edward S. Overman, and Dr. George M. Worrlow, and Dr. W. M. Crosswhite, University of Delaware.

"Whether you like it or not, you are engaged in a death struggle with weeds," Dr. D. A. Shallock, weed control specialist at Rutgers University, told farmers. "Weeds attack your alfalfa seedlings, compete with your corn for moisture, make your sweet potatoes hard to harvest, your hay barely fit for feed and if you don't watch it, may even poison your livestock," he said.

Among current weed problems is Johnson grass. "Once a farm is invaded by Johnson grass, it spreads fast and renders fields unfit for crops," J. A. Meade, University of Maryland agronomist reported.

Strip tillage was suggested as a practical and economical new cultural method by E. N. Scarborough, agricultural engineer with the University of Delaware, plowing only land that is to be used.

Advice for homemakers purchasing new rugs was given by Wilmer D. Cressman, public relations manager of James Lees and Sons Company. And because half the products are different today than they were 10 years ago, it's no wonder homemakers are confused when selecting a new rug, he said.

Wayne Hicklin Elected

President Of Avon Firm

The board of directors of Avon Products, Inc., has elected Wayne Hicklin as president.

Hicklin, who joined Avon in 1938, was executive vice-president and has been a director since May, 1960. He succeeds Russell Rooks, who died on Jan. 31, 1962, as president.

James Rathmell, floriculture and nursery agent of Pennsylvania State University, told a home gardeners audience that the first step in growing good house plants is to choose the right plant for the available light and then to adjust growth factors according to the rate of plant development.

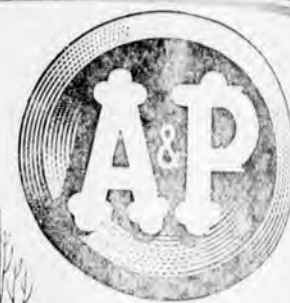

"Eat what you want after you've eaten what you should," advised Mrs. E. V. McCollum, nutritionist, who said food does one or more of three things—it provides the body with calories for heat and energy; builds and repairs body tissues; and regulates body processes.

"Failure to render assistance to impoverished nations could be nothing short of catastrophic in America's efforts to secure a real and long-range defense of our way of life," U. S. Representative Harris B. McDowell, Jr., told a capacity audience at the final general session on Thursday.

Speaking in support of the administration's long term financing of foreign aid, Congressman McDowell warned Americans not to expect miracles in the shift from short to long-term financing. "Economic development in the great alum continents of the world is an extremely complex and mammoth process. It is slow and cannot be compressed into one or two generations. In the Western countries, economic development took five generations at least," he declared.

Pork has lost favor with the consuming public in recent years, according to Howard H. White, vice-president of Arbogast and Bastian Packing Company. Consumption can be stimulated, he pointed out, by producing top quality pork and following an aggressive campaign of advertising and promotional activities.

New directions in fabrics and fashions was the basis of a talk by Miss Beth Peterson, home economist for the Du Pont Company.

This Townsend relay report from Bill Fletcher, happily said and sound beside the Sound on Carolina's Outer Banks after the storm that the Newark Post's former editor had just caught 17 large-mouthed black bass in a 20-minute bait-casting session on Currituck Sound beside the Fletcher's storm-free house.

And things aren't too slow near Newark for some people. Paul Musselman showed up yesterday with three bass weighing from three to five and a half pounds that Tom Kay caught fishing in the waters of the North East River while fishing as Dr. Musselman's companion.

"Tom Kay is a fisherman," Paul Musselman declared with real conviction and with little or no commentary on his personal angling success.

Bass of the striped variety—the Chesapeake Bay rockfish—were completely absent or outnumbered last Saturday evening as with Can's Gibby Young, Mitch Justice, Bill Murray, Warren Lewis and Gus Tugnon, we trotted a tiny Tony and a white bucktail in the clear blue water of Eastern Bay, south of the Kent Narrows into the cove.

Gus and Warren mugged the trolling rods in the cool, windy, shadows, while we soaked up the leadward sun on the foredeck with Messing Justice and Murray.

And then a series of surface splashes stimulated some serious thoughts of fishing as what appeared to be a school of rock showed some half mile off the left—port—bow.

As we prepared to relieve our birdwatching patient—and strikeless—trolling friends again, however, the surface splashing was recognized as take-off tactics on the part of a flock of Old Squaw sea ducks—late migrants that seldom show during the hunting season—a travel tardiness that is little occasion for regret by wildfowlers since the Old Squaw fancies fish and its flesh is reminiscent of solidified cod liver oil—by cod? as Down-east Al Priestley would say.

With that bit of recognition, we permitted Warren Lewis and Gus Tugnon to troll without interruption. Cruising down the Chesapeake from North East to Kent Island proved to be a surprisingly pleasant experience.

All hands were a bit reluctant to climb out of the car at the Pen Mar Yacht Basin into the cold wind-whipped North East River, but when we cleared Turkey Point, the wind subsided and we went sailing down the Chesapeake Bay with wind and water on their better behavior, and less chill in the air than in a last excursion of the fall.

Swarms of canvasbacks, mallards, and pintails, with a sprinkling of buffbreasts and goldeneyes teified around Poole's Island, and a great bald-headed eagle soared on mighty matched, but matchless pinions over the island trees, while thousands of Canada geese arose from the open water of the bay before the boat.

There are rock in the upper bay. A pair of commercial men were hauling a gill net below Poole's Island, and we paused to watch them disengaging striped silver rock from the mesh and pitching them into a great slithering swarm of strippers already stashed away in the open cockpit of their workboat.

"Plenty big enough," Mr. Young said with real feeling. Needless, we wound up fishless, too, but after leaving the boat near the Narrows and driving off Kent Island by car on the way back to Newark, we enjoyed a sunset curtain call with Nature's presentation of a big whitetail buck deer ambling across a cleared field beside the road.

RAYMOND'S NINE
Coach Tubby Raymond's University of Delaware baseball team opens a 29-game schedule tomorrow against Trinity College on Frazer Field here in Newark.

Blue Hen Captain Gary Hebert at shortstop, will lead the Delaware team on a week-long trip to the South — and Newark's Brandy Davis, after scouting the college tourney in Florida, will join the Delaware team as an observer. Brandon looks young enough to play, but as a former Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder eligibility would present a problem.

POSTED
This Townsend relay report from Bill Fletcher, happily said and sound beside the Sound on Carolina's Outer Banks after the storm that the Newark Post's former editor had just caught 17 large-mouthed black bass in a 20-minute bait-casting session on Currituck Sound beside the Fletcher's storm-free house.

And things aren't too slow near Newark for some people. Paul Musselman showed up yesterday with three bass weighing from three to five and a half pounds that Tom Kay caught fishing in the waters of the North East River while fishing as Dr. Musselman's companion.

"Tom Kay is a fisherman," Paul Musselman declared with real conviction and with little or no commentary on his personal angling success.

Bass of the striped variety—the Chesapeake Bay rockfish—were completely absent or outnumbered last Saturday evening as with Can's Gibby Young, Mitch Justice, Bill Murray, Warren Lewis and Gus Tugnon, we trotted a tiny Tony and a white bucktail in the clear blue water of Eastern Bay, south of the Kent Narrows into the cove.

Gus and Warren mugged the trolling rods in the cool, windy, shadows, while we soaked up the leadward sun on the foredeck with Messing Justice and Murray.

And then a series of surface splashes stimulated some serious thoughts of fishing as what appeared to be a school of rock showed some half mile off the left—port—bow.

As we prepared to relieve our birdwatching patient—and strikeless—trolling friends again, however, the surface splashing was recognized as take-off tactics on the part of a flock of Old Squaw sea ducks—late migrants that seldom show during the hunting season—a travel tardiness that is little occasion for regret by wildfowlers since the Old Squaw fancies fish and its flesh is reminiscent of solidified cod liver oil—by cod? as Down-east Al Priestley would say.

Coach Heineken's Lacrosse Champs Face Nine Games

Delaware's defending district champion lacrosse team will face nine opponents and engage in two scrimmages this spring, Coach Mickey Heineken reports.

Entering his first year as the Blue Hen coach, Heineken was a member of the 1961 squad that won the Middle Atlantic District Section B title with an 8-2 record, the best in the university's history.

The Hens opened with scrimmages against Massachusetts Institute of Technology yesterday, and the University of Massachusetts is the foe today—both at Frazer Field.

Delaware will open its regular season at home on April 14 against Southhampton.

Heineken expects to have 12 lettermen, including the Hens' leading scorer, Bill Wagamon, of Milton, Del., who had 24 goals and earned a berth on the All-Penn-Dei League first team.

The Hens will have to rebuild their defense because of the graduation of Jim Pappas, all-conference goalie.

Bill Lehman, midfielder from Delaware, N. J., will be team captain.

Charley Derrick Heads Swimmers As Hens' Captain
Charley Derrick, junior physical education major from Wilmington, has been elected captain of the 1962-63 swimming team, Coach Harry Basstrom announced this week.

Derrick established a team record in the 200-yard butterfly this season with a time of 2:37.8, and was a member of the record-setting 400-yard medley relay team.

A graduate of P. S. in Port High School, Derrick succeeds Dan Rosevelt of Richmond, Va., who guided the Blue Hens to a 6-4 record in 1961-62.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day The Eighth Pole

A reader wants to know: "Where do you start counting to find the eighth pole?" Reference to the various striped and banded poles found at intervals along the inside rail of a race track is frequently a source of confusion to a newcomer. A term of dialect among more knowledgeable racing fans is "He doesn't know where the eighth pole is." The pole in question is also called the "furlong pole." Each furlong, or 1/8th of a mile, and each 1/16th of a mile, is marked by a pole. The eighth pole is located 1/4th of a mile before the finish line. By the same token, when it is said "They're at the half" it doesn't mean they are half way through the race but that they are at the half-mile pole or 1/2 mile from the finish. Probably the best known pole in racing is the eighth pole where, for a few seconds in the 1920 Dwyer Stakes at old Aqueduct it looked as though the great Man o' War had met his match in John P. Grier. Big Red moved on to win easily and romantically legend has it that he "broke John P. Grier's heart." For a broken-hearted horse, however, John P. Grier went on to do very well against other than Man o' War. When old Aqueduct was torn down to make way for the Big A, the eighth pole was saved and it now stands in the plaza in front of the grandstands at the new Aqueduct course.

Nate Cloud Chosen Basketball Captain For 1962-63 Hens

Nate Cloud, 6-6 junior center from Wilmington, has been elected captain of the 1962-63 University of Delaware basketball team.

Leading the Blue Hens in scoring and rebounding for two consecutive years, including the recent 18-3 season which is considered one of the best in Delaware history, Cloud was named to the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference All-East team and to the Middle Atlantic Conference second team.

Over two seasons, Nate Cloud has scored 750 points in 40 games for an average of 17.5 points. He appears a sure bet to be the fourth Delaware player in history to cross the coveted 1,000-point career mark. He has averaged 14.5 rebounds over two years.

Coach Irv Wisniewski, who enjoyed his first winning season in eight, said Cloud is probably the best all-around player he's ever coached. "He's all-everything in my book," Wisniewski said.

A mechanical engineering major, Cloud is a Conrad High School graduate.

WORLD SERIES HIGHLIGHTS

DID YOU KNOW A Series game once was halted by irate fans until an innocent player was removed from the game? According to the newly-published World Series Encyclopedia, this was in 1934 when Detroit fans, angry with Ducky Medwick for nicking Tiger Marvin Owen, showered the Cardinal outfielder with debris. After the field was cleared, Medwick met a second barrage. Realizing fans wouldn't leave Joe alone, Commissioner Landis ordered him removed from the game "so we can finish it."

Delaware Defeats Syracuse In Practice Baseball Test
Coach Harold Raymond's Delaware baseball team beat Syracuse 7-4 in a practice baseball game last Monday on Frazer Field.

Syracuse ousted the Blue Hens from the District II playoffs last spring.

The Blue Hens, with clutch hitting by John Strode and Reeves Montague staged a five-run rally in the seventh inning.

Steve Sandra started and in a four-inning stint yielded only two hits and an unearned run while striking out five.

Jim Unstead finished, giving up three runs in three innings.

Champions Airmans Guide, Cicada 90 Nominees In $250,000 Distaff

The elite of America's fillies and mares, including 1961 champion Airmans Guide and Cicada, appear among 90 nominations for Delaware Park's 1962 renewal of the $250,000 Distaff Big Three—world's most coveted and richest series of its kind.

The announcement by Racing Secretary Allan Levin follows a final tabulation resulting from the special winter triple-entry blank opening the $60,000 Oaks, the $40,000 New Castle, and the world's richest filly-and-mare race, the $100,000 Delaware Handicap, which always feature the final three Saturdays of the meeting.

Delaware Park will run from Monday, May 28 through July 31. The year 1962 is the first that the entry for Delaware Park's filly and mare races has not topped all in the nation. This year could perhaps be a tie, the figure 90 also being the total in the series conducted by the New York Racing Association.

The triple-entry blank originated at Delaware Park in 1956 as part of its annual promotion of fillies and mares.

An advantageous offer restricted to the month of January, the three-entry blank has proved a vital factor in stressing not only the Distaff Big Three, but also other filly and mare racing.

Senior Wes Stack of Seaford, Del., returns to captain the squad. Stack was undefeated in the mile and two mile events last year. Jimmy Flynn is entering his second year as coach of the Blue Hens.
