Miss Harriet Evans Still Unconscious

Seriously Injured By Automobile
Monday, Has Not Regained Consciousness

Miss Harriet Evans, one of Elkton's oldest and most prominent school teachers, was at 5 o'clock today, in an unconscious condition in the Union Hospital, Elkton, as a result of being struck by an auto, Monday.

Monday night, Miss Evans, who is seventy years old, in crossing the street, stepped in back of one car directly in the path of another. Miss Evans' leg was broken in two places and she was injured about the head and body. The driver of the car which struck her, Carlton Large, of Atglen, Pa., rushed her immediately to the Union Hospital. Large gave himself up to the police and was released on his own bond and witnesses testified that the accident appeared unavoidable. The car was owned by Vernon Williams, of Atglen.

Miss Evans is very well known in this vicinity, where she has spent her life teaching. She is sister of Postmaster William H. Evans, of Newark, and Postmaster George M. Evans, of Elkton.

Plans were discussed for a pilgrimage to the Chesapeake Bay Shore and while the proposition is not yet definitely decided, it was suggested that it be a two-day trip, starting from Baltimore in a special train and going to Jamestown, Old Point, Yorktown, Annapolis and other points on the ocean. This proposed trip will probably take place in June.

The annual dinner meeting of the Society will be held at the Gold Ball Room of the Du Pont-Biltmore on the evening of March 24.

Mrs. MacElwee had been apprehended on a warrant sworn to by Ralph Davis, of Newark, charging reckless driving and operating a car without a driver's license. Davis claimed that the machine operated by Mrs. MacElwee was four feet over the dividing line in the highway when it struck his machine.

The hearing Thursday night had been continued from the preceding Monday's court, and Robert Adair, attorney for Mrs. MacElwee, pleaded no defense on both charges. Mrs. MacElwee was fined $25 and costs on each count and asked an appeal, which was granted. The next hearing of the case will be in the Court of General Sessions, Wilmington.

J. Pearce Cann represented Ralph Davis.

Sees Daughter First Time In 31 Years

Last Sunday Mr. James E. Tasker, of North street, Newark, saw his daughter for the first time since she was a two-year-old baby, 31 years ago.

Mr. Tasker was separated from his first wife 31 years ago, and she, taking the baby with her, disappeared. The baby was brought up by an aunt and uncle and grew to womanhood without knowing of her father and without his having any trace of her whereabouts. Last December, Mr. Tasker first had a clue that his daughter was living, and last Sunday, in Rockland, they had a happy reunion. His daughter is now Mrs. Mary E. Keating, living in Rockland.

PROFESSOR LAPIE DEAD

Professor Paul Lapie, rector of the University of Paris, died last week, a victim of grippe. Dr. Lapie is known to the students at the University of Delaware as the man who, in cooperation with Dr. Walter Hüllihen last September, arranged for the group of American students who went to Paris this year under the Foreign Study Plan.

Press Association Met On Saturday

Business Meeting And Luncheon At
DuPont-Biltmore; C. S. Walls
Elected President

The Del-Mar-Va Press Association held its fourteenth annual winter meeting at the Du Pont-Biltmore, Wilmington, on Saturday. At the business session which opened the meeting, Charles S. Walls, of the Centreville Observer, was elected president for the coming year. H. C. McSherry, of the Dover Index, was chosen as vice-president, and William Metten, Every Evening, Wilmington, was re-elected secretary and treasurer. An executive committee was appointed consisting of S. E. Shannahan, of the Easton Star-Democrat; F. C. Usilton, of the Kent News, Chestertown; George Carter, the Evening Journal, Wilmington. George Carter, retiring president, presided at the business meeting.

During the business session, an open discussion on "Rates that pay and maintaining them," was suggested from the floor by Edwin H. Brown, of the Centreville, (Md.) Record. He remarked that many newspaper offices were run in a very unbusiness-like manner and that a publisher should base his rates in accordance with increasing costs. He added that he and his competitors had worked cooperatively on the rate question and had raised their rates a number of times without encountering much antagonism and no loss in total lineage. He stated that he found the local business man willing to accept an advance in rates when he was given a frank understanding of the newspaper's costs.

H. C. McSherry put a motion that efforts be used through the Press Association to bring about a more equitable adjustment in trucking rates between the states of Delaware and Maryland. A committee was appointed to work on the problem, consisting of Charles S. Walls and S. E. Shannahan. (Continued on Page 6.)

Prof. Hayward Talks To Cattle Breeders

Gives Holstein-Friesian Association
Instructive Speech On Marketing Pure Bred Cattle

Last Friday afternoon at Wolf Hall, the Delaware Holstein Friesian Association were given a rare treat when they were addressed by Professor Harry Hayward, on the selling of pure-bred cattle. Professor Hayward, who is one of the foremost authorities in the country on advertising and selling cattle, was formerly Dean of Agriculture at the University of Delaware. At present he is manager of the Agricultural Division of N. W. Ayer and Son, reputed to be the world's largest advertising agency.

Professor Hayward in the first part of his address discussed the product, or what type of cattle the farmer should breed to find a ready market. He pointed out that there existed a steady market for only pure bred cattle and that there are certain popular lines which always are saleable. He said that the breeder should (Continued on Page 4.)

The prizes were won by Mrs. Durham and Miss Frazer.

GROUNDHOG TURNS OVER FOR ANOTHER NAP

Today, according to time-honored tradition, Johnny Woodchuck, or plain Mr. Ground Hog, stuck his nose out just far enough for it to cast a shadow and then turned back in his hole to suck his paws and snooze through another six weeks of winter.

Had the day been dark he would have started spring house cleaning, for it would have meant to him that Winter would shortly give way to balmy weather.

February 2—Ground Hog or Candlemas Day, had primarily a churchy significance. It commemorates the presentation of the Christ-child in the temple and the purification of the Mother. However, since early in the Christian era, it has persisted as a weather forecaster. An old Scotch couplet says:

"If Candlemas Day be dry and fair,
There'll be two winters in the year."

Legislators To Visit University, Friday

The members of the State Legislature will pay their annual visit of inspection to the University of Delaware on Friday.

The Assembly members will be met at the 11 o'clock train by the University Faculty Committee and taken directly to the College Farm, where they will inspect the dairy building and poultry plant. From there they will go to Old College, and after going through that, will make a particular inspection of the old engineering building. After going through Wolf Hall, the Memorial Library, and the buildings at the Women's College, they will be entertained at luncheon in the new dining room of the Women's College.

The faculty committee will be composed of: Dr. R. W. Heim, chairman; Dr. Hüllihen, Dean Dutton, Dean Robinson, Dean McCue, Dean Smith, Business Administrator A. G. Wilkinson, Professor Eastman, Professor Wilkinson, Professor Crooks, Professor Schuster, Professor Koerber, Professor Thoroughgood, Professor Preston, Dr. Benner, Dr. Adams, Miss Kelly, Miss Allen, Miss Parker and Mr. William E. Hayes.

Ex-Governor Miller, chairman of the University Finance Committee, will probably arrive with the Legislators.

Farm Bureau to Promote Testing

At an executive committee meeting of the New Castle County Farm Bureau, held last Thursday, in the Farmers Trust Building, President H. C. Milliken appointed Wallace Cook and R. O. Bausman a committee to confer with the State Board of Agriculture, and formulate a plan that will continue the work of testing dairy herds for tuberculosis.

It appears that 60 farms with accredited herds, tested at State expense, and where compensation was made for reacting animals, are delinquent in having tests made at the next interval. If these farms do not apply for tests at an early date they will lose their certificate. These accredited herds are required to continue tests at their own expense, having a board recommended veterinarian do the testing. There are many more herds to be tested that have not a certificate.

Dairy farmers not having a certificate will soon find themselves in a serious position, as the cities of Baltimore and Washington will not accept milk except from tested herds, and it is expected that Wilmington and Philadelphia will in the very near future enact similar regulations.

The committee has already conferred with the Agricultural Board and other conferences have been planned. The New Castle County Farm Bureau intends to complete its membership drive this week, and expects to enroll at least 200 members.

The Novel Club met at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Heim on Monday night. Professor W. E. Matthews, the reader, reviewed "Tomorrow Morning," by Anne Parrish.

Newark Chamber Of Commerce Has Inspiring Meeting

Harvey Hill Tells Of Promotion Of Del-Mar-Va Peninsula;
Characterizes Chamber Of Commerce And Tells Function. Activities Of Newark Body; E. C.
Wilson Elected President

Last Thursday evening the Newark Chamber of Commerce held its fifth annual dinner and meeting at Old College. Harvey Hill, counsel to the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association, was the main speaker, and after telling of the history and purpose of the Del-Mar-Va Association, characterized the Chamber of Commerce and told of its true function. George Griffin, toastmaster, told of the accomplishments of the Newark Chamber of Commerce during the past year. After the general meeting, the directors met and elected officers for the coming year. E. C. Wilson was chosen president.

The meeting opened with a dinner. The guests were entertained by the Melody Boys, singing orchestra, and between courses Professor Phil Myers lead general singing.

After the cigars had been passed, George Griffin introduced Dr. Claude L. Benner, head of the Economics Department of the University, who, in turn introduced Mr. Hill. Mr. Hill told how a group of men had met in Salisbury, Maryland, December 28, 1925, to form a union to promote the possibilities of 6,000 square miles of territory known as the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula. This union later was named the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore

Association and set out to work under six general heads. First, to improve the Peninsula generally. Second, to advertise the resources and activities of the Peninsula and attract capital and population. Mr. Hill pointed out here that the Peninsula has always been undercapitalized and undermanned, and that of the 14 counties making it up, 5 of them had had a steady decrease in population since 1880.

Third, to take care of traffic. There is a yet no opening at the bottom and Baltimore is still as far away as it was ten years ago and the Peninsula has never had a rate status with the railroads.

Fourth, to take care of the problems of the farmer. The Peninsula is within 125 miles of the largest markets of the world and has never been able to enter them consistently and profitably.

Fifth, to promote local civic organizations. Five years ago there were only 5 chambers of commerce or boards of trade on the Peninsula, of which Newark was one.

Sixth, to establish a repository of records. Mr. Hill stated that at present in the files of the research department at Salisbury, there were facts on every county and town on the Peninsula, with over 1,300 photographs and minutely classified information with names of every group of individuals.

Mr. Hill stated that in May, 1926, $75,000 had been pledged and today $70,000 of it has been collected. Half of this has been expended in advertising, which has been remarkably successful.

He said that the Inventory Congress, February 16 and 17, was the most daring thing they had done yet, and they were going to inventory, primarily their liabilities and evolve plans for turning them into assets. The studies, surveys and recommendations which will be presented at the Congress are the work of experts in their individual lines.

Mr. Hill closed by stating that the Del-Mar-Va Association thought in terms of the whole Peninsula and that the local civic bodies were what the program leaned on for ultimate success. He characterized the Chamber of Commerce as a group of volunteer thinkers devoting themselves to the best interests of the community. He said that they were generally exclusive from a standpoint of brains and progressiveness, and that their primary function was that of (Continued on Page 8.)

Walter Geist Heads Del. Threshermen

At the annual meeting of the Delaware Threshermen, held last week in Dover, Walter Geist of Newark was elected president for the coming year. Other officers elected were: B. B. Bowden, Seaford, vice-president; E. L. Jones, secretary-treasurer; Executive committee: W. H. Carey, Mount Pleasant; Frank Palmer, Newark; John Cleaver, Middletown; E. Wright, Harrington; Harry Ford, Leipsic; A. W. Ellis, Seaford; L. F. Leslie, Georgetown; Howard Jones, Dover; Harold Short; M. O. Carey, Georgetown; Samuel Lester, St. Georges. Legislative committee: E. L. Jones, chairman, Dover; Edward Wright, Leipsic; W. H. Carey, John Cleaver, Dover. The newly elected officers were installed by J. B. Parker, of Franklin, Indiana. Mr. Parker was there as representative of the "American Thresherman."

A general discussion was held on the year's work and suggestions advanced to promote closer cooperation between the farm and threshermen. A resolution was adopted expressing appreciation of the assistance given the threshermen by the State Highway Department.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

Last night the Board of Education of Newark held their monthly meeting at the High School. All members were present.

University Asks More Money For Salaries

Needs Additional Instructors For Increased Enrollment; $6,900
More Asked

On Monday, former Governor Charles R. Miller, chairman of the Finance Committee of the University of Delaware, appeared before the Legislative Budget Committee of the State Legislature to examine the needs of the University for the next two years, starting July 1, next.

Ex-Governor Miller explained that the appropriation asked is exactly the same as that of the last two years except for the item for salaries included in the maintenance budget. The University is asking $158,900 a year for maintenance, of which an increase of $6,900 is for salaries. Governor Robinson, in his recommendation, had cut this to $152,000.

Ex-Governor Miller explained that two years ago when he was before the Budget Committee he estimated that the increase in student enrollment for the two years to end in June would be 75 to 80 and as a matter of fact the increase has been 140. He said there should be an extra professor or instructor for each additional 20 students which would mean six more instructors for the next two years but that President Hüllihen, to keep the budget down as well as possible, had agreed that it would be possible to get along with three more instructors and it is for these proposed extra instructors made necessary because of the great increase in enrollment that the increase in salary item is requested. He said it is thought there will be an increase in students of about 60 the next two years.

FARMERS GUESTS OF KIWANIS TODAY

Today is Farmers' Day at the Wilmington Kiwanis Club. Dean McCue is chairman for the day. It is expected that about 75 farmers will be guests of the club at the luncheon at the Du Pont-Biltmore.

Dr. Claude L. Benner will address the meeting on "The Economic Background of the Present Agricultural Depression."

REGISTRATION MONDAY

Next Monday will be registration day for the second term at the University of Delaware.

Delaware Chapter Red Cross Notes

Twenty-five postcards from Honolulu were received recently at the headquarters of Delaware Chapter of the American Red Cross, 911 Delaware avenue, Wilmington, from members of the U. S. Naval Radio Station at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. During the past fall under the supervision of Mrs. Pierre S. du Pont, Mrs. J. Montith Jackson and other loyal workers of Delaware Chapter, bags were prepared totaling 200 for the distribution abroad. These bags which contain necessary articles like a wash cloth, playing cards, cigarettes, key ring, pencil and pad and many other useful items were forwarded to National headquarters and from there some of them reached Honolulu to men in the service. The postcards acknowledging the receipt of the gifts attested the gratitude of the men and one of them sent the menu served at Christmas to them. It was some menu with turkey, fowl and all the fixings.

Six schools of Sussex county are preparing to construct a portfolio to be forwarded to some foreign country where the school children are affiliated with the Junior Red Cross, and which portfolio will contain stories and illustrations of America and its life.

Miss Marjorie Earp, executive secretary of Delaware Chapter of the American Red Cross visited Bridgeville where she attended a meeting of Reading Circle No. 1, comprising a unit of schools where the various teachers meet to discuss current events and their work. The schools and the teachers represented were:

Jacobs, Rachael Hastings; Tindale, Grace Hastings; Atlanta, Margaret Shockey; Conoways, Donald Richey; Browns, Myrtle Brown; Canon, Elizabeth Gibbons.

One of the schools will have an exhibit embracing the photographic likenesses of famous Americans. Another school will participate with an art and English exhibit. Another one will compare the life of the earliest Americans, the Indians, with the life of the ordinary citizen today. Another school will explain how the children of Sussex county learn to be thrifty. Another school will, through health posters demonstrate the Modern Health Crusade being conducted by the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society. Another school will prepare a letter or statement outlining the purposes of the portfolio.

The enrollment of Juniors this year has already gone over 21,000. The year which will close at the end of this school year, it is believed, will show a larger registration than last year. The interest among the pupils of rural schools appears to be more enthusiastic this year and is having its effect in the work done by the Junior Red Cross.

The special school districts have enrolled this year, which is giving the total number a big boost.

DELAWARE EXPECTED TO GAIN 3,000 POPULATION IN YEAR

In the Census Bureau estimates for the year ending July 1, next, Delaware is estimated to have 243,000 population, which will be a gain of 3,000 for the year, as the calculation July, 1926, stood at 240,000.

Delaware's population according to the 1920 census was 223,003, as of January 1, so on the basis of the estimate just announced, the gain in six and one half years will be 20,000.

The estimated gains for the year ending July 1, 1927, for Delaware's neighboring states are as follows: Maryland, 17,000; New Jersey, 69,000; Pennsylvania, 116,000.

Total population of the United States, July 1, 1927, is estimated at 118,628,000, as compared with 117,136,000, July 1, 1926, and 105,710,620 January 1, 1920. Only continental United States is included.

TYSON HAS SIXTEEN HORSES IN TRAINING

Herman Tyson, the well known Delaware trainer and driver, who is wintering a stable at Pinehurst, N. C., now has 16 head of trotters and pacers on the move. The string is headed by the chestnut pacer Golden Direct, 2:06 1/4, which Tyson drove to 13 victories out of 15 starts last season. His brand of speed is shown by the fact that at seven meetings his time was announced 2:09 1/4 or faster.

The fast sidewheeler Hal Bee, 2:02 1/4, also the property of Senator Charles D. Murphy, of Harrington, Del., and a Grand Circuit start of several years ago, never looked better and should show well this year. The now 5-year-old trotter Johnny B (4) 2:08 1/4, who acquired his mark over a half mile track, will be given a preparation looking to an extensive campaign over the half mile next season.

Wilmington's Official Dollar Day Next Wednesday, Feb. 9

According to information made known by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, the spring dollar day, a regular semi-annual co-operative sales event, staged by the merchant members of that organization, will be the largest yet attempted. It will be held on February 9th. Advice from merchants received at headquarters was to the effect that notable bargains will be offered on that day and every effort will be made to accommodate out-of-town shoppers.

Warning has been issued, however, by the Chamber, that only those merchants displaying official dollar day cards are participating in the event. These cards are distinguished with the emblem of the Chamber of Commerce.

An unusual feature of the event will be a Dollar Day Musical Hour, the dollar day serenaders broadcasting through station WDEL on the evening of February 8th, commencing at 7 o'clock. A fine program of musical selections has been arranged.

More than 50 of Wilmington's leading merchants are participating this year, and each have pledged to give to buyers more than full value. Radical reductions have been made in all lines of merchandise, the quality of which will satisfy the most careful buyer.

Among those who will display dollar day cards are Smith-Zollinger Co.; Ogden-Howard Co.; Wilmington and Philadelphia Traction Co.; Wilmington Dry Goods Co.; Metropolitan Chain Store; Stern & Co.; Morris Levy Shoe Co.; Arthur's Apparel Shop; Stone's; Baynard's, Inc.; Quality Store, Inc.; H. 1926 WEATHER

The weather fluctuations of 1926 in general differed in no important particular from normals established by more than 50 years of record, with the tendency to slightly warmer conditions than usual, says the Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture. In most of the country the growing season was also slightly longer than usual. Such variations, however, are expected by meteorologists, and during the period since the Weather Bureau records began many years could be selected showing greater variations than were observed in 1926.

The Rights of Dogs

(New York Times)

Balto, the Malamute dog that carried the serum to Nome, was only one of many valiant dogs of the Alaskan wilderness. From Little Squaw comes a story of another Malamute dog that understood his duty and saved life.

Two miners, who had borrowed Nigger, were crippled by an explosion. They were many miles from help. A note was fastened to the "husky's" collar: "Come! Both seriously injured." And Nigger was turned loose in a night 40 degrees below zero. He was off through the pass. Hours of the white Alaskan night he pushed on. Before morning he was whining at his master's door. A team of huskies was made up and late in the day the disabled men were hurried to Little Squaw. There a radio call was made to the United States Signal Station, ninety miles north, "to rush an airplane to take the patients to a hospital." Such is life in Alaska!

And in every clime under the sun the dog is a part of man's family. In the United States more and more the life-saving instinct of the dog is recognized. Scarcely an issue of a metropolitan newspaper does not publish one or more stories of the intelligence of dogs when their human friends are in danger. On Christmas night the barking of a dog aroused the caretaker of a hotel on Mount Schoenberg, near Vienna, in which more than 100 people were sleeping. Hundreds of clippings could be made every year of salvage of life by dogs of all degrees. A dog, as in the case of Robert Moultrie of Springfield, Mass., stands guard over his master's body and permits no one to approach it. A sense of the sanctity of life the dog seems to have even when his master is not in danger. In the neighborhood of Stamford, Conn., recently an Irish terrier accompanied into the woods an old man, who succumbed to a heart stroke. The terrier set off to his master's premises and, circling round, making off to return and always barking, induced him to follow to a grove where the dog's companion of the morning lay dead.

In our high pressure civilization, not only in the cities but in towns there are people who would have dogs exterminated as a chronic nuisance. But the dog gives more than he receives, and is willing to be the four-footed policeman and life guard of the community. If a dog has objectionable traits and bad habits, it is generally the fault of a master who neglects his duty. If a dog snaps or bites, it is usually in self-defense when struck or abused. By nature the dog is a friend to anyone who treats him well. With the new inoculation against hydrophobia, that disease should soon disappear. A Medical Research Council in England has discovered a preventative for distemper.

"THE NAKED TRUTH" AT PLAYHOUSE

All the movie fans and many of those who are not regular theatre-goers but always interested in seeing photoplays that are worthy and deserving of support will shortly have their opportunity to witness "The Naked Truth."

This film caused considerable comment in the dailies of Chicago when Judge Rynar of the Superior Court restrained the Censor Board from interfering with the showing of the picture. At a private screening in Chicago Judge Daniel Trade of the Moral Court of that City was so impressed with this film, of its vital and constructive lesson, that he has sentenced many of the girls who have come up before him on morality charges to see this film for three times and then report to the probation officer and give their impression of the film. These girls were admitted by personal card of the Judge through a special arrangement with the producer. At this private showing it was held that the most impressive way to teach the subject of hygiene to the youth of today is through visual education.

This film was made for the purpose of impressing the community of the importance of sex education at the proper time. It has an all star cast such as Jack Mulhall, Kate Lester, Helen Chadwick, Emmett King and Pauline Curley. The picture is very frank and to the point and hesitates at nothing. The Superior Court restrained the Censor Board from interfering with the showing of the film provided, however, the film is shown exclusive to adults. In addition to "The Naked Truth" the management will show special reels exclusive for women and for men only. The film will be shown at the Playhouse, Wilmington. Shows daily at 3.30, 7 and 9. Admission fifty cents.

Size of Farms and Farm Profits

The following report from R. O. Bausman, New Castle County Agent, shows the influence of the size of farms on the farm profits; taken from a survey of 92 practical farms in northern New Castle County. These figures have been abstracted from a business study conducted by Mr. Bausman for the University of Delaware extension work.

"The larger farms, on the average, gave the better net financial returns. Of the farms having less than 25 acres the average farm profit was $79. However, of the farms between 75 and 100 acres the average net profit was $1,264. This was due largely to the fact that the larger farms permitted the more efficient use of labor, made possible the more efficient feeding of the dairy herds, and allowed a wider diversity of enterprises.

"In discussing this phase of the farm business it is convenient to group the farms according to size as follows: those about 25, 50, 75, and 100 tillable acres. An analysis of the data of this farm business study shows that the average receipts per man during 1925 for these different groups of farms were $1,180, $1,399, $1,853, and $2,199, respectively. This is a fact of importance because labor was the largest item of expense in this area. Over one-third of the total average farm expenses was for labor. These data also show that the average value of the dairy products produced per dollar's worth of purchased dairy feed for the different groups of farms was $3.05, $4.08, $5.54, and $4.67, respectively. This is also a fact of importance because purchased dairy feed was the second largest item of expense in this area. In 1925, nearly one-sixth of the total farm expenses was for purchased dairy feed. It will be shown later in this bulletin that for the economical feeding of the dairy herds that it was necessary to grow a large portion of the feeds on the farms. The larger farms, therefore, lent themselves more readily to the dairy enterprises. It is also significant that the average number of sources of income amounting to $200 or more for the different groups of farms were 2, 3.1, 4.5, and 4.8, respectively. It will be shown later that the larger number of sources of income of the farms had an appreciable influence in improving the average farm profits. The larger farms, unquestionably, give greater opportunity for a wider diversity of enterprises."

"Although the larger farms, on the average, returned the better farm profits, yet some of the smaller farms in this area returned good profits. Of the 9 farms having less than 25 acres one farm returned a profit of more than $1,000, of the 34 farms having between 25 and 50 acres five farms returned profits above $1,000, of the 29 farms having between 50 and 75 acres 12 farms had profits exceeding $1,000, and of the 16 farms having from 75 to 100 acres eleven farms returned profits exceeding $1,000."

Elkton

Mrs. Kate Hanna was brought to Elkton jail Sunday night by Sheriff Logan, after a raid had been made on her home near Conowingo by the Sheriff and his deputies. About 50 gallons of alleged applejack were confiscated.

The will of Mrs. L. Helen Mackey, who died a week ago from injuries received in a fall at her home in Elkton, was filed for probate in the Orphans' Court for Cecil County. An estate valued at $30,000 was divided as follows: To her sister, Mrs. Emma S. Cameron, the sum of $2,000; to Amanda Cameron, the house, 804 Van Buren street, Wilmington, Del.; to Jasper Scott, Cecil Scott, T. Bayard Scott, Thomas B. Mackey, each $1,500; to Thomas Cameron, Violet A. Cullen, Miriam A. Cameron, Helen Scott, Florence Scott, Vianna S. Mackey, E. Lavinia Bye, P. Malcolm Bye, Mary E. Mackey, Helen J. Mackey, each $1,000; to Blanche H. Gibson, Helen Gibson, David Mackey, M. Barton Mackey, each $500; to Elizabeth Kirk, the sum of $1,000 to be invested by her executors, who are to pay her the interest during her life time and at her death to the trustees of Sharps Cemetery for the upkeep of the Mackey lot.

At the annual meeting of the Cecil County Chapter American Red Cross, the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: Chairman, Mrs. Victor Davis, Elkton; vice-chairman, Mrs. Wilmer J. Falls, North East, treasurer, Charles S. Pyle, Rising Sun; Chairman Life Saving, Rev. W. G. Harris, Elkton; Chairman Extension Service Men, Mrs. Wallace Williams, Elkton; Junior Red Cross, Miss Margaret Miller, Elkton.

John H. Terrell, John H. Minster, Harry W. Pippin, and Albert D. Mackey have been appointed a committee to confer with City Attorney Joshua Clayton, relative to changes in the proposed charter of Elkton. Many portions of the present charter are obsolete and a new charter is needed for the good of the town.

Elkton firemen were called out to extinguish a chimney blaze at the Jail on Monday evening, about 8.35 o'clock. The fire, however, was out when the firemen arrived. No damage was done.

The College Man and Work

There is no doubt that today industrial conditions favor the college man. But the college man who thinks that his greater learning gives him the privilege of working less hard than the man without such an education is going to end in disaster.—Charles M. Schwab.

The Herdsman Scientist

(The New York Times)

Professor Pupin, referring to the messages "sent us by the activity of our sun" spoke in the figure of the Psalmist, who said of the heavens: "There is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard." Michael Pupin learned this language as a herdsman's boy in Serbia. To him and to his fellow shepherds and herdsmen, as he said in an address in the Columbia chapel several years ago, the language of the heavenly bodies was as real as human speech. The impression deepened as he heard a famous Russian song telling of "star speaking to star." This picture dominated his modes of thought, and when he came to know the science, which has given him eminence among his fellow-scientists in America, he began to understand the language of the heavens in a more intimate way than that which helped the herdsman to locate his herd. The stars in their spectroscopic language spelled out to him the story of what was burning in their hearts or shining in their skies. The world to him became "a world of language, of messages, of communications." The broadcasters are not human beings only. Sun and stars not only speak in the language of the spectrum but, as is surmised, break into human long-distance wireless conversations with their own imperious voices. But it is these flaming bodies themselves that day unto day utter speech and night unto night show knowledge. One service of science is to listen with more highly sensitized instruments to what they are saying. It is their voices of which the physicist is speaking.

However, he does dream of other aeons in which there will be possible such speech as earth's. In an address delivered a few months ago at the opening of a physics laboratory at Vassar, he ventured to interpret the message of a young star somewhere near the boundary of our stellar system, reported by spectroscopy:

I am an astral baby now, and will be a baby still when, a million years hence, you receive this message. Many billions of years will pass before the ardor of my youth has cooled down to the moderation of your central star, the sun. Heaven only knows when I shall be as old as your Mother Earth. But when I reach that age I shall be a beautiful cosmic bell just like your earth and, responding to the clappers of the luminous stars, I shall add my voice to the celestial choir which is declaring the glory of God.

Thus does the scientist who has "Pupinized" cables so that the nations of earth may speak with one another mount in his imagination to the stars as he deepens his knowledge that there is a God—"the only knowledge that I have which is worth anything." He has incidentally shown great magnanimity in praising the works of the pioneers who discovered the new media of far communication and in giving them the credit, which is their due, for making possible the "lines" that have gone out through all the earth.

CONCERT BY FAMOUS COMPOSER AND ORGANIST

One of the most interesting and important organ recitals that has been given for years in Philadelphia will be played on the evening of Wednesday, February 9th, on the great organ in the Grand Court of the John Wanamaker Store, by Louis Vierne, titular organist of Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

The position of organist at Notre Dame is perhaps the most sought-for organ post in France, and it has been held by a large number of the most distinguished French organists. The position of titular organist there carries with it a life tenure and M. Vierne is one of the most famous of the long list of organists who have held the place.

Many very successful concert tours of Europe have placed M. Vierne among the greatest masters of the organ of his period, and he has also achieved great fame as a composer and as an improviser. During his American tour he will play many of his own compositions as well as many of those by other composers which are highest in the concert repertoire for organ. He will probably give also examples of his masterly improvisation, an art once common enough among concert organists and pianists which, until recently revived by the French organists, had fallen almost entirely into disuse.

Among many new works which this famous French organist and composer introduces in America this season, is his first great work for organ and orchestra, entitled "Pieces Symphoniques." This consists of a special arrangement of three movements from three different organ symphonies. Lovers of the organ and of organ music will be pleased to learn that one of these movements is the famous Finale from M. Vierne's own First Symphony, a movement which, next to the Toccata from Widor's Fifth Symphony, is perhaps the most popular organ number composed since the days of Mendelssohn.

Tickets for this recital may be obtained upon request on and after February 2nd, from the Concert Bureau, The John Wanamaker Store.

MRS. TOWNSEND FINANCE CHAIRMAN Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. C. E. Pool Elected President

At the January meeting of the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. of the district of Delaware, held in Dover, January 27, the officers of the association were elected for the following year.

Mrs. Clarence E. Pool, of Macdonough is the new president; Mrs. W. Watson Harrington, of Dover, vice-president; Miss Helen Shalleross, of Middletown, secretary, and Mrs. D. W. Stevens, of Middletown, treasurer.

Mrs. George Townsend, Jr., of Newark, was appointed chairman of the finance committee. A camp committee consisting of Mrs. Clarence Pool, chairman; Mrs. Mattie Townsend and Mrs. Theodore Ferguson was formed. Two other members will be appointed by the Y. W. C. A. of Wilmington.

The treasurer reported that the debt on the building of Camp Otonka has been reduced to $2,700. Efforts are being made to make a payment on it every three months.

The question of rental of the camp by outside organizations was discussed and all details were placed in the hands of the camp committee.

The membership of the board of directors has been increased by the election of the following: Mrs. Douglas Davidson of Claymont, Miss Helen Shalleross of Middletown, Mrs. Theodore Ferguson of Blackbird, Miss Anna Cooper of Dover.

Kindly politeness is the slow fruit of advanced reflection; it is a sort of humanity and kindness applied to small acts and every-day discourse; it bids man soften towards others, and forget himself for the sake of others; it constrains genuine nature, which is selfish and gross.—Taine.

ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE

The Public Speaker (Of a Kind)

It is not only the young person who chatters. Just sit for a short while in a railway coach and you will hear marvellous things. It may be the politician telling his secrets, the business man his methods, the society woman her wiles, or the young girl her dreams. In one short week, a quiet listener heard such sentences as these: "No, I really haven't much hair. You thought I had? No, really, it's just that I fool the public." And, "Yes, she has her divorce. He never was any account. Didn't Jim used to go with her? Of course he did, though; he went with every girl in town."

And the woman going to the dentist chattered about how nervous she was. She told her companion what a dreadful nuisance her teeth were: "Why can't they last forever, or as long as our bones and muscles? But no, they are a trouble most of one's life. Look how little babies suffer with their teeth, and I can't remember the time when mine haven't bothered me. I told mother that I know a little of how a person feels who is about to be electrocuted, only this is not the end in my case; I'll have to go through with it all again next year, see if I don't!"

Toiling Tillie airs her views about her boss thus: "I just told him that he couldn't expect me to do more'n eight hours work in eight hours. And what else I told him was a plenty. It'll hold him for a while."

And yet another girl told of having received nine pairs of silk stockings for Christmas. "Yes, I may as well wear 'em," she said. "They'll just rot. It won't take me long to wear 'em out, though. I'm awful hard on stockings. Mother says I'm careless how I pull 'em on, but I'm not."

The most sober-looking man will comment on the ridiculous price that his neighbor is asking for his house, will name the man who wrote the complimentary article on the senator in last Sunday's paper, how it was worked up, and so on, and on, and on. Speaking above the noise of the train, the most intimate conversation becomes public.

THE CHANGING COLLEGE

Who Should Go To College?

Americans are just beginning to realize how much the colleges of the United States have been changing in the past 20 years. Rather uncritically the college, which should be the home of criticism, has grown, like other American institutions, in size of plant and personnel, in administrative machinery, in complexity. One can picture the consternation of the first faculties of Harvard or William and Mary, should they return today and see the thousands of students and hundreds of courses in Cambridge and Williamsburg; one can imagine Thomas Jefferson discussing college policies with an alumni secretary or a graduate manager of athletics. For aims and methods have changed no less than material equipment.

But the period of uncritical expansion is nearing an end. Sheer increase in numbers of students seeking admission to college has forced administrators and teachers to analyze more acutely than ever the function and procedure of college training. What is the essential responsibility of the college in our social scheme? Who should go to college? What should they do there, and how should they do it? What does the college owe its alumni and other adult learners? These are questions which are being earnestly reconsidered in the United States by such gatherings of teachers as the Association of American Colleges, the Association of American University Professors, and various regional and departmental societies. They are being considered quite as earnestly by undergraduates, whose interest in the problems of their own education is constantly becoming keener. The culmination of many smaller conferences was the recent meeting of the National Student Federation at Ann Arbor, with some 300 colleges and universities represented. There questions of curriculum and teaching, as well as student activities were vigorously debated.

As a result of these discussions, what answers are being given? In these articles I shall review some which seem especially important, and indicate further steps which may be significant.

Responsibility of the College

What is the responsibility of the college in our social scheme? Here there seems to be a consensus among teachers and thoughtful students. The college has been for too long regarded as a social, business and athletic club, and has tolerated and graduated men who have failed conspicuously to develop intellectual interests and enthusiasms. The college does not exist to prepare men for country-club membership, business success, or social acceptability. Its purpose is primarily intellectual, and, in a broad sense, moral: to furnish our civilization with men trained and eager to make living more intelligent, to control rationally all important social projects and policies, to replace crass satisfactions with sensitive discrimination. I know of no fairer statement than that formulated in the Dartmouth undergraduate report to President Hopkins:

"It is the purpose of the college to provide a selected group of men with a comprehensive background of information about the world and its problems, and to stimulate them to develop their capacity for rational thinking, philosophic understanding, creative imagination, and aesthetic sensitiveness, and to inspire them to use these developed powers in becoming leaders in service to society."

If this is to be accepted as the function of the college, how shall students be selected? This has become an acute problem in the past 20 years. Statistics compiled by the Association of American University Professors show that from 1900 to 1910 collegiate enrollment in this country increased 85 per cent, while population increased only 21 per cent; the corresponding figures from 1910-1920 were 96 per cent and 14.9 per cent. The college population in this country doubled within 10 years! Boys who would never have dreamed of going to college 20 years ago now have the means and the desire to go. Do they seek the gifts the colleges ought to be offering?

For some time colleges were only too glad to grow. Size here, as elsewhere, appeared to be an index to success. But at last faculties have begun to realize the liabilities of size. Education has become watered down when great numbers of boys, differing widely in ability and ambition, have been grouped together for mass instruction; incoherence of program and mechanical standardization of method have supplanted the former values of small communities devoted to well-understood aims and taught by men who knew their students. So there has arisen a demand for limiting the size of entering classes, and for imposing more rigid requirements on those who wish to come. Where formerly colleges would accept all boys certified from secondary schools in good standing, now in many cases only the upper third or quarter of the graduating class is acceptable. Many colleges insist upon examining all boys who seek admission. Still others give psychological tests as well. More and more colleges use personal-rating blanks, in which a boy's character and capacity for leadership are investigated as well as his scholarship.

Boys who fail to secure admission course, still find it possible to enter the less exacting ones. There are very few boys eager to go to college who cannot do so.

More Should Have Opportunities

Should we go farther and say that a large proportion of these boys ought never to enter college at all? Percy Marks voices the view of many teachers when he states that less than half of the undergraduates now in our colleges are intellectually able to profit from a true college course.

With this point of view I cannot agree. It is not true that too many of our boys go to college. We need to have more, rather than less, receive the broadening of mental horizon and the awakening of intellectual interests which college should give. The act is, not that too many go, but that they stay too long and fail while there to get what their capacity fits them for.

The college has gone on the assumption that the men it admits should stay for four years. This, it seems to me, is a mistake. A large proportion of the boys admitted to college waste their own time and the of the institution in remaining more than two years.

Every high school graduate of average intelligence and ambition should receive the general background of knowledge, and the cultivation of intellectual interests and standards, which the college may be expected to give during the first two years. At the end of that period most students should go to professional, business, trade schools, where specialization was on a relatively low plane is required. Only those who are intellectually of high caliber should be kept by the college for the higher quality of work, which juniors and seniors should be asked to do, in preparation for the higher professional schools.

Double Advantage

A double advantage would ensue. First, as many boys as possible would profit from the training which such a general course offers. In an age of narrow specialization, with intolerance and bigotry often in seeming control of social situations, it is of first importance that communities should have as many men as possible so trained. Colleges which refuse to offer this opportunity generously are failing to fulfill their social responsibility.

An excellent example of the need of such education may be seen in the two American service schools, the Military and Naval Academies. There, at the present time, thousands of high school boys of average intelligence are launched upon a highly specialized technical career, without having secured the fundamental cultural background which will enable them properly to appreciate their opportunities of travel, or to represent their country with distinction in times of peace. They have been made to sacrifice breadth of training for the sake of specialization which is narrow and excessive, if the opinion of Admiral Sims be accepted. His recommendation of a real college curriculum for men in the service, with intensive technical instruction chiefly at the end, seems a sound one.

Second, the colleges would gain by graduating at the end of the sophomore year all those men who now impede the progress of both teachers and able students in the honors work which should be done the final two years. Our colleges today are full of men just able to "get by," and satisfy the minimum requirements for graduation. By all means give these men a diploma at the end of their sophomore year; and by all means forbid them to remain in college any longer.

"Who should go to college?" At many average American boys as the colleges can arrange to teach. "Who should stay in college?" After the sophomore year, only those who are exceptionally able and ambitious. By Walter R. Agard, Dean of St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., from "The Christian Science Monitor," January 13, 1927.

Press Association Met Saturday

han, of Maryland, and John C. Saylor and H. C. McSherry, of Delaware.

After the business session, the members of the Association were entertained at luncheon by Charles W. Gibbs, new manager of the Du Pont-Biltmore. Mayor Forrest, a guest at the luncheon, addressed a few remarks and then asked to be excused. He left to wire a message of sympathy on the death of Mayor Bader of Atlantic City.

Harvey Hills, counselor to the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association spoke on the coming Inventory Congress and told of the part of the newspaper in the Del-Mar-Va campaign. He also mentioned the subject of rates and said he had not seen a rate card on the peninsula that was high enough for the newspaper to carry on the work it should do. Mr. Hills said that the Inventory Congress was the most daring move yet attempted in the Eastern Shore campaign and that it would be a meeting of experts to list not only assets, but liabilities and suggest measures to meet problems.

Mr. Hill told of inviting Henry L. Mencken to address the congress and read the telegram of invitation and Mr. Mencken's reply:

"January 26, 1927.

"Henry L. Mencken,

"Executive Committee Del-Mar-Va Association unanimously invite you. Address, 'Del-Mar-Va Takes Inventory Congress' at Salisbury on the evening of February 16 or the morning or afternoon of the 17th. You are invited to discuss any phase of subject lying close to your heart concerning our fine Anglo-Saxon strain of dry Americanism down here. Audience comprised of 600 farmers and business men will not expect you to prove any of your assertions. All traveling expenses, grub, everything, including safe conduct to and from the meeting guaranteed. You can bring your own press agent or we will lend you ours. Sincerely hope you accept, please wire collect.

"HARVEY J. HILL."

"Jan. 27, 1927.

"Dear Mr. Hill:

"Thanks very much for your invitation. Unluckily I am under a bloody oath to avoid public speaking, and so it will not be possible for me to baragane your association. I need not add that my prayers are with you.

Sincerely yours,

"HENRY L. MENCKEN."

Those present at the meeting were: George Carter, The Evening Journal, Wilmington; William F. Metten, the Every Evening, Wilmington; L. E. Shannahan, Star-Democrat, Easton, Md.; C. E. Bray, Star-Democrat, Easton, Md.; William F. Bratton, Elkton; Charles S. Walls, Observer,

WAR LIFE INSURANCE

A fine thing about our American government is its elasticity, its freedom from the chains of custom or precedent, its ability to move on an impulse for the aid of humanity. Take the action of the Chief Executive during the past week when he issued a proclamation appealing to the veterans who have war life insurance not to allow it to lapse and suggesting that those who had allowed it to lapse give consideration to the matter of renewal. It is estimated that over ninety-five per cent of the five million men we called into service during the war took out Government insurance. The Government has already disbursed over eight hundred and fifty millions of dollars as benefits either on account of death or because of permanent disability. But it also appears that less than six hundred thousand of the millions who took it are now carrying such insurance either term or converted.

The Government says money by reason of the lapses but that is not the way this government acts. President Coolidge not only appears to those holding policies to continue them in force but he has approved a plan by which even where the policies are lapses when normal health conditions continue, reinstatement is allowed for those who will pay two monthly premiums. For the disabled reinstatement is allowed if they will pay the balance of premiums due. The period from January 31st to February 7th, has been named for reinstatement, and the President asks the press, pulpits and all agencies to co-operate in bringing this lesson home to the veterans.

CHARACTER BUILT INTO BUSINESS

In 1875, Alexander Graham Bell said: "If I can make a current of electricity vary in intensity, precisely as the air varies in density during the production of sound, I should be able to transmit speech telegraphically." His prophesy became a fact within the following year.

Two years later, when the telephone was still regarded as a toy, Bell prophesied that cables of telephone wire could be laid underground or overhead and connect cities, towns and country. His prophesy is a reality.

"Fortunately for the country," says Arthur Pound, in his book, "The Telephone Idea," "the five men who nursed the infant telephone along had more than the average share of courage, faith, honesty and persistence. Chance brought them together; yet, considering the unity of the group and its well-rounded character, they could hardly have been better chosen if years of thought had been given to the combination. Bell, Sanders and Hubbard each owned three-tenths of the original Bell telephone stock; Watson, one-tenth.

"Bell, the handsome young inventor, third of his line who had taught the art of speech to the deaf, loved Gardner G. Hubbard's deaf daughter. Here is one of the most exquisite of American romances awaiting a novelist, a tender love story lasting from youth to age, and proceeding delicately, yet with rugged faith, from poverty to riches, from ridicule to fame, from insignificance to honors. Bell was trying to make the deaf hear before he invented the telephone, and he kept on trying to make the deaf hear long after he passed as a creative influence from the telephone scene.

"The docket of patent law history is not without cases in which inventors have been eulched out of fame and wealth by more practical or intriguing minds. No such unworthy heritage hangs over the history of the telephone; instead, from the first moment of association each of the original telephone pioneers stood ready to make the telephone 'go'."

About 1878, Theodore N. Vail was drawn into the telephone venture with the four pioneers. Thereafter the foundation and structure of the present American telephone system was laid, and it has stood the test of half a century, and given to America the greatest telephone system in the world.

If Vail, whom his associates relied upon to put the telephone business upon a solvent basis, had been crafty, greedy, narrow-minded or limited of vision; if he had been "a money grubber, or a financial buccaneer, or a cold, selfish person with small sense of his public responsibility," the telephone business would never have been developed as it has. That Vail was broad-minded and recognized the public interest in this new business, and developed it with this sense of responsibility, is evidenced by the universal use of the telephone in America.

The story of these telephone pioneers is worth repeating as an inspiration to struggling industries, and to show that honest and square dealing build a stronger structure than sharp practices.

B. & O. TO AWARD SCHOLARSHIP FOR 1927

In celebrating the fact that it has arrived at the ripe old age of one hundred years, the Baltimore and Ohio is proud of having started in college over two score boys and girls—not the children of its own employees, but farm boys and girls residing along the Baltimore and Ohio whose unusual ability the Railroad has recognized and desires to help develop.

Believing that junior farm club work is a necessary system of education for farm boys and girls, which system must continue to grow so that it will become available to much larger numbers of rural boys and girls, the Baltimore and Ohio announces that it will continue to award again this year, as has been done for the past five years, a one hundred dollar scholarship in this state to the boy or girl who most efficiently completes his or her project in agricultural club work during 1927.

The club members may enter any type of club work recognized and supervised by the University of Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, such as corn clubs, potato clubs, sewing clubs, canning clubs, calf clubs, pig clubs, etc.

The winners of Baltimore and Ohio scholarships have the alternative of using the scholarship for educational purposes at any recognized college or university or in defraying the expense of an educational trip to the Boys' and Girls' Sixth Annual Club Congress and International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, next December.

The Baltimore and Ohio has awarded 64 scholarships to date, 43 of which the winners chose to use for educational purposes at their respective state universities, while 21 chose the educational trip. Of the 43 club members who elected the scholarship for educational purposes, 28 have either graduated or are now in college in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia and Virginia.

Delaware farm boys and girls who have won Baltimore and Ohio scholarships to date are:

J. Paul Jaquette, Newark; Emma Wilson, Middletown.

ELECTRIC SERVICE NO LONGER LOCAL AFFAIR

"In the early days of the electrical industry," says W. E. Creed, of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, "the power generating station was a local institution, serving a single city or town with a self-contained system. Its service did not reach outside of its municipal boundaries, and it assumed no obligation beyond its own territorial limits.

"The development of large companies and the interconnection of transmission lines have changed all this. Power companies no longer find it economical to have separate generating stations in each city or town. Rather, they find it essential to connect dozens, and even scores, of cities and towns together, and to spread their network of distribution lines over wide areas. Electric service through this development has ceased to be a local affair, and has become a regional service. It is no longer confined to single cities or towns with local favors and local rates, but is spread out over a wide area, covering both the thickly settled city and scattered back country."

"There are two classes, those who serve and those who merely work."

INSECT ENEMIES OF THE FLOWER GARDEN

Farmers' Bulletin No. 1495, recently issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture appears under the title given above and contains a mass of valuable information in small compass of valuable pictures and descriptions of insects and their work, together with control methods, and will be of especial interest to amateur gardeners cultivating ornamental plants. Many of these insects, however, are a serious problem to commercial plant growers, who will find much of value in the bulletin. This bulletin may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.; price 15 cents.

"If we have the open ear, as well as the open mind, there should be no closed avenue of artistic experience, and Contrast, that goddest of ever-changing nature, will reveal many of the secrets of the deep-hidden soul of all art."

Louis Handloff 17 Years In Newark

Louis Handloff this week will hold his seventeenth anniversary sale, marking approximately his seventeenth commercial milestone in the town of Newark. Mr. Handloff came to Newark in the spring of 1910 and opened a store on the Pennourton property. His next location was in the building of the Maxwell estate, which property he purchased and still owns. Later, he moved his establishment into the building which now houses his Hanark Theatre. In 1921 he started construction on the fine building he now occupies and moved into it in December of that year. This present store is unusually large for a town of Newark's size, with its 4,800 feet of floor space.

Seasonable Recipes

Nut Bread

Four cupsful flour, six teaspoonsful baking powder, one teaspoonful salt, one cup walnut meats, one cup milk, two eggs, one cup sugar. Chop the nuts and mix with the flour and baking powder; add the eggs, well beaten; then the milk. Put the batter into buttered pans and let rise twenty minutes; then bake as light as bread.

Easy Plum Pudding

1 Cup suet.
1 Cup molasses.
3 Level teaspoons baking powder.
1/2 Cup milk.
3 Cups flour.
1 1/2 Cup milk.
1 1/2 Level teaspoons salt.
1/2 Teaspoon nutmeg.
1/2 Teaspoon cinnamon.
1 Cup raisins.
Mix suet, molasses and milk. Sift together flour, raisins, baking powder, salt, cloves, nutmeg and cinnamon; add to first mixture. Turn into a buttered mold and steam for three hours. Serve with hard sauce.

Nut Crullers

Beat three eggs lightly, add four tablespoonsful of sugar, four tablespoonsful of melted butter, nut meats and one teaspoonful of baking powder, with sufficient sifted flour to roll. Cut into pieces three and a half inches long and two inches wide. Cut two slits in each piece and give each one a twist. Fry in deep, hot fat, drain on brown paper and dust with powdered sugar.

BUTTERFLY SALAD

Individual portions of butterfly salad are prepared as follows: Cut a slice of pineapple in half and place the curved edges opposite each other with a date between them for the "body" of the butterfly. Thin strips of lettuce make up the antennae. Sliced, stuffed olives are placed on the "wings" with bits of pistachio nuts and maraschino cherries. Drops of yellow salad dressing are placed between the olives on the wings.

DUMPLINGS FOR A STEW

2 cups flour; 4 teaspoons baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 2 teaspoons shortening; 3/4 cup milk.
Sift together the dry ingredients; work in the milk gradually. As some flour thickens more than others, it is better to experiment in the amount. The mixture should be thick enough to hold its shape when placed on the meat or vegetables. These dumplings may be rolled to one-half inch thickness and cut with a small biscuit cutter, or they may be dropped from a spoon. The latter method requires less flour and makes the daintier dumpling.

We have reason to believe that all races of men have the same mental faculties, and that in general ability to learn they differ in no important degree. But due to many centuries of natural selection, the races of men have not now equal capacity to adapt themselves to the same environmental conditions nor to attain the same accomplishments.—Jerome Dowd.

NEWARK NEW CENTURY CLUB

The Newark New Century Club met in the club house January the twenty-fourth. Final plans were made for the benefit card party at the club house, Tuesday evening, February first. The chairman of the program committee announced that Dr. W. Owen Sypherd will lecture at the next meeting, Monday, February the seventh. Dr. Sypherd will discuss Kipling's story, "Without Benefit of Clergy."

After the business of the day, Mrs. Durant sang very sweetly. "Rose in the Bud." She was accompanied by Mrs. Robert Price. Mrs. Wm. Holton and Mrs. George Dutton played two duets, "Italy" and "Hungary," both by Moszkowski. These two numbers were greatly enjoyed for they were played beautifully and exceedingly well.

Dr. Claude Benner, of the University of Delaware, talked on the Mexican and Nicaraguan situations. He stated the situation in Nicaragua was not unusual and there was nothing to be alarmed about. He explained the situation in Mexico as to the geography, the population, the nationality and civilization, and that seventy-five per cent of the property was owned by outsiders. He showed that the Mexican idea was to get back their own property—while our country calls it confiscation. He said that if we break diplomatic relations with Mexico, it would mean the lifting of the embargo on arms, which might lead to a revolution in Mexico. Therefore, what this means to Mexico and property owners may give pause to matters, and Calles does not want this break on account of the fundamental problem. The members enjoyed this discussion and many questions were answered by Dr. Benner. At the conclusion of Dr. Benner's talk, the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. James C. Hastings, Sec'y.

PERHAPS THEY HAVE

Mrs. Knowall took a great interest in the doings of all the neighbors. "Well," said her husband, when he returned from business in the evening, "have you found out anything about the social standing of the new folks across the street?"

"Not yet," was the reply. "They have no car."

"No?"

"Yes, and they have no pom, no phonograph, no radio, and not even a grand piano. I can't imagine what they have got."

"Humph!" remarked friend husband, "perhaps they have a bank account."—The Forecast.

and $250 to $350 below the average for associate and assistant professors.

Most of the time of the hearing was devoted to discussing the maintenance budget and a number of the committee asked various questions relative to it. It was brought out that the total enrollment at the University, including Delaware College and the Women's College, is 700 and of this number but 129 are from outside of Delaware. Delaware students pay no tuition while those from outside of state have to pay $150 a year.

Senator Allen inquired of Ex-Governor Miller as to how many students do not enter Delaware College or leave after entering because of military training that is required. Mr. Miller replied he had never heard of any such cases and as far as he knew the question had never been asked before. He said he would get the information for Senator Allen and let him have it tomorrow.

Senator Allen also inquired as to other monies received outside of the state appropriation which receipts are not shown on the budget submitted. This information was furnished the Senator in the annual financial report of the institution for the year ending June 30, 1926, printed several months ago. Senator Allen thought it would be a good idea in the future for all institutions and commissions asking for state aid to set out in the budget what their receipts are from other sources. Ex-Governor Miller went into the matter of receipts from other sources in detail with the committee.

The matter of a new engineering building for the University was also discussed. A bill has been introduced in the House to appropriate $310,000 for the erection of such a building. He said it has been 21 years since Delaware College got an appropriation from the state for a new building other than a small appropriation about 15 years ago for a power plant. He said about 40 per cent of the students enrolled in Delaware College are taking engineering and that Delaware graduates in engineering are ranked by the Westinghouse Company among the first eight colleges in the country. He stated the present quarters for engineering are entirely inadequate as to buildings.

In the budget an item of $8,000 was asked for the poultry and entomology departments at the university and the Governor had recommended in his budget that this sum be $6,000 a year for two years. Ex-Governor Miller admitted he could not answer for this department but promised to have Dean McCue appear before the committee to give the information desired.

There was also asked $20,000 a year for two years for the agricultural department and experiment station and Governor Robinson in his budget cut this to $18,500 a year for two years. Dean McCue will tell the committee about this need as Ex-Governor Miller could not answer for these departments explaining that he was concerned with the maintenance charges of the University.

C. E. SOCIETY HOLDS BANQUET

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church, under the leadership of President Vernon Steel, is making ready for its part in the annual international celebration of Young People's Week. The affair will be opened by the local society on next Monday night with a banquet in the lecture room of the church at 6.30 o'clock. Miss Anna Frazer is chairman of the social committee and is arranging for the banquet. The evening will be marked by singing and addresses. The Reverend Harold E. Nicely, of Wilmington, will be the principal speaker, but short addresses will also be made by the Reverend H. E. Hallman, Miss Blanche Malcom, and by officers of the State Union. A volunteer group of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Baracca Class of the church will prepare and serve the eats.

As a preparation for the song service at the banquet on Monday night, a Christian Endeavor sing will be held at 7.30 Saturday evening at the home of Miss Anna Frazer. Arrangements for the musical program are in the charge of Miss Blanche Malcom.

Other features of the celebration will be announced later.

Thomas M. Heath, aged sixty-eight years, died on January 28 at his home near Head of Christiana Church. The funeral services were conducted by Reverend John McMurray, at the home, on Monday, at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in the Elkton cemetery.

Mr. Heath had been sexton of the Head of Christiana Church for about ten years. He is survived by Mrs. Heath and their seven children.

MRS. GEORGIANNA POPE

Mrs. Georgianna Pope, aged fifty-nine years, died on Sunday at the Homeopathic Hospital, Wilmington, where she has been a patient since Monday of last week. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Episcopal Church, in Cecilton, Maryland. Interment was made in the Methodist Cemetery, at Cecilton.

Mrs. Pope is survived by one son, Roger, of this town.

ENCOURAGEMENT ESSENTIAL

We often lay too much stress on education, forgetting the fact that a student stands in need of inspiration quite as much as information.

The storing of knowledge is important, but a boy or girl graduate frequently finds encouragement even more essential than the higher education.

There is a season at the end of schooling and at the beginning of practical experience—there is a time between this "hay and grass" season when a little encouragement seems so necessary.—The Silent Partner.

Now that they have closed the saloons to save our boys, and since they cannot close the garages to save our girls they might at least close the side roads.

Newark Chamber Of Commerce

pioneers and trail makers that fostered benefits that were just ahead of the official town bodies. That they acted as a volunteer barrage on problems that the town councils could not handle. He said that love of community and leadership that grew out of that love determined the ultimate destiny of a community.

After Mr. Hills instructive and inspiring speech, Mr. Griffin enumerated the projects that the Chamber of Commerce had fostered in 1926. Among them were the gas in Newark, the ambulance, the visiting nurse, educational pictures, the library and a protective agency. Mr. Griffin also gave some interesting history of Newark from the time it received its charter from George V, in 1758. He called on a number of members and guests, among them J. K. Johnston, H. Warner McNeal, Professor Brinsler, J. E. Dougherty, the Reverend Hallman and Mr. R. H. Morris.

Each guest found at his place at the table a treasurer's report for the year, and a "Back Newark" auto plate. During the general meeting, the following new directors were elected: J. Irvin Dayett, E. B. Frazer, Daniel Thompson and E. C. Wilson.

At a directors' meeting after the general meeting had adjourned, the following officers were elected for the coming year: E. C. Wilson, president; J. E. Dougherty, vice-president; Warren A. Singles, secretary; D. A. McClintock, treasurer. The last two were re-elected.

The directors appointed the following committee to the Del-Mar-Va Inventory Congress: George Griffin, D.

A. McClintock, E. B. Frazer, Dr. Claude L. Benner and E. L. Richards. They also drafted a resolution to the Town Council, urging 24-hour watchman service at the B. & O. grade crossing on North College avenue.

Those attending the dinner as guests were: Harvey Hill, Dr. Claude L. Benner and Chas. E. Jacobs, Jr.

THE NON-VOTER

John Hays Hammond former mining engineer who is justly entitled to the rank of a First Citizen, has done a lot of fine big things in his life but he has never undertaken a more praiseworthy task than the one in which he is now engaged, as an official of the National Civic Federation, in attempting to arouse a public clamor against our non-voters. The non-voter who enjoys all the advantages and the protection of our civic and political life, and who toils not, neither does he spin, is a man who deserves public condemnation. In Australia and New Zealand they are attempting to prod these people into a realization of their civic obligations by clapping a stout money fine upon them for non-attendance at the polls.

It is to be doubted if that course would be effective here where the non-voter is apt to figure he can make more money by working than bothering to vote, thus securing a profit on his delinquency. Hammond's words cannot be ignored, when he calls attention to the fact that at the last election only one-third of the eligible voters of the country turned out at the polls. When we appreciate that at that election thirty-four governors, thirty-five senators, the entire House of Representatives, nearly all of the State legislators and thousands of municipal officials were elected, this civic abstinence threatens our entire governmental system.
