UD's hotel gets "A' in hospitality COURTYARD AACTOOL

By MARK CORRIGAN

MCORRIGAN@CHESPUB.COM

Those familiar with the University of Delaware know of its tradition as a world-class educational institution and of its innovative ways of teaching beyond the classroom. Just a few minutes drive west of the university, a classroom was built to augment one of the school's management programs. The building, the Courtyard by Marriott at the University of Delaware, might not be what you expected, but its clever disguise houses one of the area's most innovative educational programs.

innovative educational programs.

Starting in the 1996, UD created the Department of Hotel, Restaurant, and Institutional Management, a part of the Alfred Lerner College of Business & Economics. The program goes beyond the normal curriculum to provide a well-rounded outlook on the operations of businesses in the hospitality sector. According to Department Chair, Dr. Robert Nelson, "The HRIM Department provides a business based liberal arts education. The curriculum was designed and is kept with input from leading industry executives. HRIM students take the lessons learned in the classroom and apply them to the operation of two hospitality businesses on campus: the Vita Nova Restaurant and our Courtyard by Marriott Hotel."

Questions raised about access to hospital medical records

By DOUG RAINEY

DRAINEY@CHESPUB.COM

A physician, who specializes in patient records technology, says "chickens have come home to roost," following a report of a first-year Christiana Hospital resident allegedly using patient records in conducting intimate medical examinations of patients.

The suspect in the case is Shyamkrishnan Ramdas, 27. The cases involve six women. ages 20 to 32. He is accused of having unlawful sexual contact with the patients. He was dismissed by Christiana Care and is now being sought by authorities.

Scot Silverstein, a consultant on medical informatics and an adjunct faculty member at Drexel University in Philadelphia, supervised electronic patient records technology efforts for Christiana Care in the mid to late 1990s.

Silverstein said he warned that regular monitoring of attempts to get access to patient records was necessary, but was told such efforts were not needed. He said he came away from the experience fearing that abuses could occur. "The chickens have come home to roost," he added in a telephone interview.

Silverstein says he was affected by his experience at Christiana Care and in seeing later cases of abuse of patient records.

Hotel wins numerous awards

► HOTEL, from 1

The 126-room Marriott Hotel, opening in 2005, is owned by UD and is located on the Laird Campus, at 400 David Hollowell Drive, Newark, next to UD's Clayton Hall. The hotel is independently managed by the Shaner Hotel Group, an organization that operates 30 Marriott franchises.

"When the hotel was conceived, back in 2000, the concept of incorporating an educational component was very important to the university, because we had a hotel/restaurant program since 1996," stated Bill Sullivan, Managing Director, Courtyard Newark at the University of Delaware, and a 1974 graduate of UD. Sullivan continued, "And to get students hands-on hotel experience, we had to arrange with local hotels for the students to visit."

Citing the logistical problems of arranging these visits, the University of Delaware built the hotel, thus providing education and experience to students in the HRIM program and accommodating the needs of visitors to the school.

The Courtyard by Marriott provides all the amenities of other Marriott hotels, and also features an on-site classroom, where HRIM students take four classes in their junior year as part of the Lodging Module of their curriculum. A fifth class, called the Hospitality/Lodging Practicum, acts as a sort of living laboratory, where, according to Sullivan, "Students spend about 120 hours rotating though various positions within the hotel; everything from housekeeping to working with me for a shift. So they get a full overview of what it takes to run a hotel, they get as much hands-on experience as is practical with the time we

on a group project involving feasibility study in opening their own hotel. Presentations are made before HRIM teachers and local bankers to provide a realistic critique on the projects. The Marriott's staff also use the students' help in hotel-related projects, such as marketing campaigns.

Ted Hosmer, a senior graduating in the spring of 2011 and working part-time at the hotel, commented on his time in the program. "This was a semester I was looking very forward to. All the shifts were great." Shifts included, housekeeping, supervision, cooking to the hotel kitchen, room service, engineering, and night audits, which require students to come in either a Friday or Saturday night to perform their duties. Though staff was on to assist him, he said, "You are the one who is doing it, and they are there to help you." Students also participate in sales calls for the establishment and in working with customer feedback surveys.

Sullivan noted that while other universities have hospitality programs and school-owned hotels, UD's program is unique in that provides a higher level of interaction between the students and the hotel staff.

The work between both the students and staff has garnered the hotel numerous awards including being ranked in the top ten Marriott hotels, out of the 880 Marriotts world-wide, since the hotel opened. Other awards include the Marriott Courtyard Diamond Circle Award in 2008.

Another singular feature of the hotel is the Experimental Guestroom, or "X-room" as it is called, where new features are tested to see if the technology and features can be integrated into Marriott system. Items, such as mattress covers made by local company W.L. Gore & Associates, Microsoft Media centers, fast universal chargers, and environmentally-friendly hair dryers and shower heads, have made their debut in the X-room. Items are suggested by Marriott's own development department, as well as local and regional entrepreneurs who bring their suggestions to the Newark location.

Sullivan said that a new product being tested is a video system that allows you to see who is outside the door of your room. The system is an upgrade of the peepholes used in present hotels.

Design innovation is another feature of the hotel, in that it was one of the two first hotels in Delaware to be awarded the Delaware Green Lodging Certification. "Green" features include optional linen service, recycling, and water and energy conservation.

The Courtyard by Marriott also features specials and package deals, such as the Brandywine Valley Wine Trail, where participants can stay over and receive two passports (good for up to one year) to the eight vineyards on the trail. Other packages include passes to Longwood Gardens and a special VIP program for UD parents, where they can earn savings on rooms, restaurants, shops, and attractions in the Newark area.

This week, the 'thud factor' is at work A digital history...

By DOUG RAINEY

DRAINEY@CHESPUB.COM

In our business, we call it the "thud factor."

......

This week's edition of the Newark Post runs an impressive 40 pages, a recent record. On top of that is the Summer Camp Guide and Discover Newark, our annual guide to the city and immediate area.

That means this paper will land with a thud at selected households or if you drop it on the dining room table after picking a copy up on Main Street.

Making at least a modest contribution to this strong performance is the fact that overall awareness of the Newark Post is up, due to an aggressive presence on the Web, as well as through social media such as Facebook

In the past, the impact of the paper often ended at the city

That higher level of awareness is also resulting in more stories and story ideas from readers.

Thanks to the web, we cover news in an area running from Prices Corner to the Maryland Line and into southern New Castle County, while retaining a focus on Newark.

None of this means that the sluggish economy we have faced for the past couple of years has gone away.

As Main Street merchants will tell you, the battle continues for customers with a multitude of choices, as well as limited times and all too often limited funds.

With that said, Newark remains a bright spot in the state's economy, thanks to growth at the University of Delaware and continued investment in downtown.

UD does face cuts in the upcoming the state budget as well as a reduction in federal stimulus funding. The university is seeking more flexibility in spending state funds as a way to make the dollars go further.

Tough decisions will have to be made, although indications are the impact will be reduced by long-running efforts to streamline operations at the university.

In the meantime, contruction work at UD will continue to take up some of the slack as it focuses on becoming a world-class insti-

A curious vote

Also, on this page you will see a letter regarding a controversial vote taken by the New Castle County Council.

In essence, a council member slipped the lifting of a deed restriction on a proposed Lowe's store in Bear into the consent agenda of the council. The consent agenda in Newark, and in the New Castle County, bundles items that are believed to be noncontroversial, allowing streamlined voting.

The maneuver upset many and confused nearly everyone. Was the councilman showing off his ability to put one on other members?

It was a bad move in all respects and a re-vote is needed. This is especially true as the new Council Executive Paul Clark struggled with ethical issues regarding his wife Pam Scott, a leading land use lawver. While Clark attempted to build a "firewall" around land use decisions and his wife, the situation had simply gotten too difficult. After all, New Castle County's government is limited in scope and mainly includes law enforcement, sewage collection, parks and libraries, with land use being the area most prone to controversy.

What we learned over the weekend is that Scott is resigning from the law firm, which will take the pressure off Clark.

The one thing Newark residents can be proud of is that their City Council is not prone to such maneuvers. The consent agenda is used properly.

Revote sought for Bear development

From: John D. Flaherty, President, Delaware Coalition for Open Government

To: New Castle County Conncil

As members of an organization devoted to achieving transparency and a high degree of informed public participation at all levels of government, the Board of Directors of the Delaware Open Coalition for Government (DELCOG) reduests that New Castle County Council take immediate action to remedy the improper vote taken on February 8, 2011, concerning the Governor's Square development property at Del. 7 and U.S. 40 in Bear.

Clearly, it is not the intent of New Castle County Code that laws be enacted in this fashion.

The vote on the resolution lifting the deed restrictions on the proposed Governor's Square III Commercial Center should be re-considered and rescinded and then should be rewritten as a County ordinance and brought up for a vote in an appropriate manner.

Placement of the deed restrictions on the proposed Governor's Square III Commercial Center on the consent calendar requires informed discussion on the part of Council.

Strict adherence to appropriate and legal procedures is vital to the effectiveness of New Castle County Council.

Deceptive practices on the part of any member of New Castle County Council can undermine trust in the entire institution and impair the public process.

collection is available via the library's web page. Users can scroll down to the "Detailed Contents List" which includes information on the interviewee and date of interview, with links to the online audio files and transcripts.

The Iron Hill Museum oral history collection consists of 37 interviews (originally recorded on 58 audio-cassettes) documenting the history of the Iron Hill School No. 112C, which was one of the African American schools built with the support of Pierre S. du Pont.

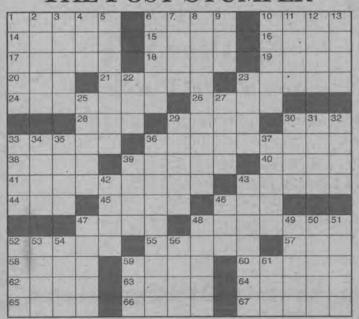

Oral historian Roberta Perkins and Laura Lee, then director of the Iron Hill Museum, initiated the project in 2003 to record stories related to the Iron Hill School No. 112C. Additional interviews in the collection document life in the Iron Hill community and nearby Pleasant Valley, as well as education provided in a few other Delaware schools in Hockessin, Milton and Claymont.

The interviews include but are not limited to discussions of community and school life, relationships between the schools, civil rights, transportation issues to and from school, employment and churches.

Digitization and transcription of this collection is ongoing and additional materials will be added to the online collection as they become available.

The creation of this digital collection was a collaborative project of the University of Delaware Library Center for Digital Collections and Special Collections Department. Staff involved included Mary Durio, associate librarian and head of the Center for Digital Collections; E. Evan Echols, assistant librarian, Special Collections Department; Mark Grabowski, CITA systems programmer IV and coordinator, library data and server support; and Rebecca Johnson Melvin, librarian and coordinator of manuscripts in the Special Collections Department.

High speed chase takes part in three states

Newark Police have charged Curtis McCoy, of Oxford, PA, with a variety of offenses after he led officers from Newark, Cecil County, MD, and the Pennsylvania State Police on a three-state, high-speed chase on Feb. 14th. (See story, Page 8).

Newark Police were notified that a Pennsylvania State Trooper was in pursuit of a white GMC pickup truck that was approaching the city along Route 273, after it had left Chester County and Cecil County. The suspect, McCoy, had left the scene after being stopped by the trooper in Chester County and had attempted to run him over and ram his cruiser head-on.

Newark authorities were dispatched to Route 273, near the development of Christianstead and Delrem Rd., to place stop stick tire deflation devices in the road. The GMC approached at approximately 75 miles an hour and slowed to about 60 mph after running over the obstacle. The pursuit continued along Rte. 273, with both the Pennsylvania trooper and Newark Police behind. A second set of stop sticks were deployed at Bent Lane/Briar Lane, with the truck running over them too. The truck continued, going eastbound on W. Main St, heading towards the Deer Park Tavern, near New London Rd. and the railroad tracks. The truck lost control and crashed into a building, located at 314 E. Main St., causing approximately $50,000 worth of damage to the structure and to office equipment located inside.

The trooper suffered head abrasions and the suspect suffered abrasions and a broken fibula as a result of the crash. Both received medical attention and, due to the majority of the violations occurring in Newark, McCoy was detained by Newark Police.

McCoy later told authorities that he had fled the initial scene because he had no license, no insurance, and was also a wanted criminal.

McCoy was charged with over 30 violations and committed to the Howard R. Young Correctional Facility in lieu of $87,700 cash bail.

Bank robbery suspect in custody

A 57-year-old man could face charges in a a TD Bank robbery in Newark a week ago last Tuesday. He was identified as Sean William Sweeney, of Williamstown, N.J.

He is believed to have robbed a TD branch in Brick, N.J. on Tuesday, the same day he is accused of holding up the Newark branch. He is also suspected of robbing the same New Jersey bank in 2009, according to a story in the Asbury Park Press. Police in New Jersey said they received considerable help when a camera image was released after the Garden State hold-up. Sweeney was arrested in New Jersey on Thursday, according to the newspaper report.

Man arrested for drug lab

A 59-year-old New Castle man has been arrested on charges of operating a drug lab. New Castle County Police

New Castle County Police identified the man as Terry Olson, 59, who resides in the 500 block of Basin Road.

He has been charged with multiple felony drug offenses after it was discovered that he was manufacturing illegal drugs in the basement of his home. At the time of his arrest, a large switchblade knife belonging to Olson was also found.

Last week officers received a tip that Olson was possibly manufacturing methamphetamine n his home. During the investigation, officers were able to gather enough evidence that confirmed the information that they had received and a search warrant was executed at his home Tuesday afternoon. County Detectives, with the help of members from the United States Drug Enforcement Agency (U.S.D.E.A.) and officers who are certified in dealing with such materials, searched the home and found a large clandestine laboratory in the basement of the residence. Olson was also contacted at that time and taken into custody without incident.

Olson was charged with possession of a deadly weapon during the commission of a felony, manufacturing methamphetamines, maintaining a dwelling for keeping controlled substances and possession of drug paraphernalia. He was arraigned and committed to the Howard Young Correctional Institute after failing to post $33,500 secured bail.

Landscaper, two others charged

Three men, including two from the Newark area, have been arrested and charged with the theft of snowplowing and landscaping equipment.

New Castle County Police identified the men as John Kitchen, 22, who resides in the 2300 block of Henlopen Avenue in Wilmington; Leonard Cullum, Jr., 20, who resides in the 100 block of Meadowood Drive, near Newark; and Kevin Denison, 36, who also resides in the 100 block of Meadowood Drive.

All three men have been charged with multiple thefts and related offenses after a monthlong investigation into thefts from residences, businesses and a church.

Police reported that New Castle County officers Sr. Corporal Michael Hopkins and Corporal James Hoban conducted a traffic stop on an older model Buick Roadmaster station wagon operated by Kitchen.

The Roadmaster was reportted as a suspicious vehicle in the area of Milltown Road just before the officers stopped the vehicle. Officers were able to link Kitchen and Cullum to multiple thefts in the Wilmington, Hockessin and Newark areas.

Kitchen

Cullum

Detectives have since learned the thefts took place as early as October 2010.

The investigation indicated Cullum and Kitchen would remove Meyer brand hydraulic snowplow pumps from vehicles equipped with snowplows. The pair operated at night and also took other snowplow equipalong ment with lawn garden and equipment. Detectives have also determined

Denison would then sell the stolen items over the Internet.

Denison, according to police, is the owner of a local landscaping business. Police cannot determine if the thefts were intended to sabotage or damage the business of Denison's competitors.

On Friday, all three men went to the Corporal Paul J. Sweeney Public Safety Building in New Castle County to turn themselves in to police. Kitchen and Cullum have been arraigned and released on $9,000 unsecured bail. Denison has also been arraigned and released on $8,000 unsecured bail.

Bank robber sought

Police in Delaware believe a man who used a bomb threat to rob a bank in Newark last month might be familiar to area residents.

Lt. Mark A. Farrall of the Newark Police Department said investigators believe the bank robber might frequent the southern end of Cecil County, as well as Middletown in Delaware.

Newark Police have released new photographs of a possible suspect in the bank robbery, as well as a composite sketch based on witness recollections. Police said the photographers were not taken during the bank robbery, but did not say were the images originated.

According to police, the bank robber first telephoned the PNC Bank branch at 230 E. Main St. and told an employee he had planted a bomb inside the bank, which he threatened to detonate if his demands were not met.

He then instructed the employee to place an undisclosed amount of cash just outside the bank's front door, police said.

Soon after the money was placed outside, a man walked up, grabbed the cash and walked away.

Bank employees reported the robbery to police at 9:16 a.m.

Bomb-sniffing dogs canvassed the interior and exterior of the bank, but no explosive device was found, police said.

According to witnesses, the man who picked up the cash was white, about 40 years old, roughly six feet tall, with an average frame and a long scar down the right side of his face.

He last was seen wearing khaki pants, a light hooded sweatshirt and a dark jacket. Police said they believe he might drive a small, two-door red sedan.

Home invasion arrests

Four arrests were announced following a home invasion of a residence suspected of being a sales location for drugs.

The robbery occurred at an apartment in the 500 building of the University Courtyard Apartments on Tuesday, February 15, at 7:55 p.m. During this incident, a victim answered a knock at the door. Upon answering, he was confronted by three masked male suspects, one armed with a baseball bat and another armed with a handgun. The victim was struck with the bat and a struggle ensued with two of the suspects while the third suspect held the other five occupants of the apartment at gunpoint. The suspects demanded cash and a safe from the injured victim. During the struggle, the victim removed the mask of one of the suspects and identified him as an acquaintance. During subsequent police investigation detectives identified all three suspects along with a juvenile suspect who acted as the get-away vehicle driver. Investigators also recovered the weapons used in the robbery along with the stolen safe.

The injured victim was transported from the scene by ambulance to Christiana Hospital where he was treated for a broken orbital socket.

The investigation indicates that illegal drug activity was conducted at this residence and believe the suspects were searching for drugs and/or drug proceeds.

Building sees more damage

Newark Police once again have received reports of property damage at 360 E. Main St. The business recently reported an office break-in where office equipment was taken.

This time four front windows were broken, at a cost of $50 each. A tenant living over the business reported hearing the damage, but not seeing anyone causing it. Police are comparing the two cases to see if there is any connection between them

Newark business hit by pickup

ing from a vehicle chase that started in Pennsylvania and ended up causing damage to a building on Main Street.

At the end of Feb. 14th, Pennsylvania State Police chased a suspect from Pennsylvania into Delaware.

That chase resulted in the pickup truck hitting the headquarters of FORTE,

a marketing agency.

FORTE President Mark Manniso reported the vehicle caused damage to the building that is currently undergoing repairs. No one was inside the building at the time of the crash.

The offices stayed in operation with the help of a temporary heating system. Phone, fax and computer link service was restored. (See story on Page 6.).

Richard Nolan

Richard J. Nolan died on February 12, 2011, after emergency surgery.

He was born in Hoboken, NJ on June 19, 1941, and lived in Pittsburgh until college. He was the son of the late Richard and Frances Nolan. He graduated from St. Bonaventure University and began his business career as an auditor for Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company.

In 1966, Dick joined Manufacturers Hanover Trust in New York and lived with his family in Glen Rock, NJ where he coached youth sports, and where he was active in the Independence Day Association and chaired the Bicentennial Fourth of July parade.

Continuing with Manufacturers
Hanover Trust, Dick brought his family to Delaware in 1983. After subsequent mergers with Chemical Bank and then Chase Manhattan Bank, he became President and Chief Executive Officer of Chase Manhattan Bank of Delaware.
He was a member of St. Mary Magdalen
Church and a fan of CYO and high school basketball

Upon retirement, Dick enthusiastically volunteered much of his time as a board member of Special Olympics Delaware, the ARC of Delaware, The Little Sisters of the Poor, and the St. Francis Finance Committee. He was particularly proud of his newest calling - shipping and delivery at Waggies by Maggie & Friends - where Dick was a hero to the Waggies bakers.

He is survived by Mary Ann, his wife of forty-five years; his children, Anne and John Jordan of Garnet Valley, PA, R. James Nolan and fiancee, Megan Gebski of Newport, RI, Patricia and Mark Gordon of Wilmington, DE, Kathleen Nolan of Boston, MA and Elizabeth Nolan at home. Each brought endless inspiration and pride to his life, Also surviving are his sister, Anne Kathryn Green and husband, Art of Pittsburgh, PA; and his aunt, Sr. Elizabeth Shearn of Beltsville, MD. His four grandchildren, Frances and Grace Jordan and Ella and Claire Gordon were the source of his greatest joy

Mass of Christian Burial was offered on Wednesday, February 16 at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, Weldin Road, Wilmington.

In lieu of flowers, the family will appreciate contributions to one of the following: Special Olympics Delaware, 619 S. College Ave., Newark, DE 19716; Delaware Foundation Reaching Citizens with Intellectual disABILITIES (DFRC), 640 Plaza Drive, Four Seasons Center, Newark, DE 19702; Waggies by Maggie & Friends, P.O. Box 7933, Wilmington, DE 19803; or to a cause of your choice. For online condolences, please visit www. chandlerfuneralhome.com.

Case raises questions...

▶ RECORDS, from 1

"One could ask, then, why the medical resident was able to access these medical records, and why the unauthorized accesses apparently took some time to discover by 'investigators," (presumably law enforcement officers), only after com-plaints were made," he wrote on his blog on medical records issues. "I am also concerned about the characteristics this former trainee was seeking in reviewing the EHR. A history of gynecological or breast disease to serve as a ploy for performing an intrusive exam? Was he looking for a psychiatric history? A history of prior sexual abuse," he wrote.

Delaware State Police said Ramdas gained access to the computerized hospital records of the six victims prior to the incidents and then performed "physical exams" on the victims. He failed to provide clinical documentation of the examinations in the victims' hospital charts. Delaware State Police have obtained warrants for Ramdas charging him with six Counts Unlawful Sexual Contact Third Degree and six Counts Abuse Mistreat or Neglect a Patient or Resident of Facility.

Christiana Care did issue a statement about the incidents. An excerpt follows:

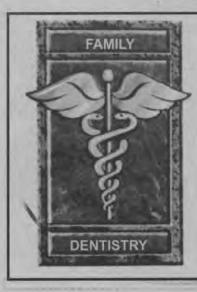

An excerpt follows:

"Our rapid response when the allegations were first reported revealed no systemic issues contributed to this incident. As an organization guided by learning, we are continuing a thorough review of best practices in hospital security to determine if there are any new security measures we should adopt. We remind and encourage all patients and family to always ask health care providers to identify themselves, explain why they are there to see the patient, and explain the care provided to them. All Christiana Care employees are required to prominently display their identification badges. We deeply regret the alleged incidents and our concern for the affected patients is shared throughout our health system."

Christiana Care was also asked to respond to questions about safegaurds and detecting red flags regarding patient records, but has not released a response.

Jason Miller, spokesman for the Delaware Attorney General's Office said questions about access procedures should be directed to Christiana Care, but added the office did not consider the investigation of the case to be wrapped up, since the suspect has yet to be arrested.

Are you a saver? Research says—just start!

By MARIA PIPPIDIS

NCC EXTENSION OFFICE

Recent research suggests that if you have a savings account you're more likely to save. What this says to me is just opening an account with a few dollars can get the ball rolling. And with February 20 - 27th, 2011 being America Saves week, it's is a great time to just do it. This year the Delaware First State Saver campaign is providing an enticing incentive to get started and involved. Each month of February, March and April a winner will be drawn and provided a $100 savings bond. Free Money! What are you waiting for?

What is the America Saves cam-

It is a national program that provides information and resources to help people save money. A local coalition of organizations and businesses work together to offer special services for citizens who enroll in the program and save. The Delaware First State Saves campaign is coordinated by the Delaware Financial Literacy Institute.

Enrolling is easy. You can go online to the First State Saves website at http://www.firststatesaves.org/ and click on Enroll Now. Fill in a bit of information and make a pledge to yourself that you will save and you're 80% done.

This website is loaded with information about saving as well as the services provided by local partners. By enrolling you have:

· Access to no fee and low fee accounts and products offered by local financial institutions.

· Invitations to attend 100's of free Money School classes and events. (www.delawawremoneyschool.com)

· A free subscription to the quarterly American Saver newsletter.

· A fact sheet on savings strategies. · An America Saves membership

All of these benefits cost you no money. You just have to set a savings goal, use a new or existing bank account to make regular deposits or credit union partners provide low or no cost saving and checking accounts. As a First State Saver you have access to these accounts. The information about these accounts are listed on the Financial Products page of their website: http://www.firststatesaves.org/ about/financialproducts.asp

What's the other 20 percent? Well, that is your commitment to yourself to follow up on the goal you have set. That means setting aside the money to accomplish your goal. It means readjusting your spending just a bit to pay yourself first. It means feeling proud of yourself for doing it and feeling more Do It and you too can be a First Class

Trailer removed from business

A 16-foot utility trailer was removed from Easy Lift Co. Inc., on Sandy Drive. Suspects entered the yard area by cutting the chain on a gate and driving off with the trailer. It is valued at $2,000.

No witnesses were found and no physical evidence found at the scene, but video footage shows two suspects walking up to the fence, cutting the chain, opening the gate and hooking up the trailer to an unidentified pickup truck.

Police are canvassing adjacent businesses to see if additional footage captured the

Business takes bullet

Authorities are investigating a property damage incident where a local insurance agent's office windows appeared to have been shot at. The incident occurred early last Thursday morning at Terry Schmeck Insurance Agency, located at 300 Creek View Dr., Newark.

A search of the premises showed that two bullet holes in the windows were evident at both the front entrance and at a rear office. No witnesses reported seeing or hearing anything strange. Police are reviewing video footage from nearby businesses to develop a suspect description.

Suspects take tankless water heater

Employees from Tailor Made Homes told Newark Police that a Rinnai tankless hot water heater had been stolen from a construction home on Trout Stream Dr., Newark. The tank was located in the basement and is worth $1,500. No other items were taken or disturbed in the house.

Police found no fingerprints or other physical evidence at the scene. Witnesses stated that they saw no unusual activity, but were unsure, due to the fact that the site sees a lot of traffic from workers and contractors. No suspects have been named

Delaware students recognized for raising online safety awareness

Two Delaware students were recognized for helping to raise awareness of online safety. A recent study found that one in five children online is approached by a sexual predator who may try to set up a face-to-face meeting.

"As parents and grandparents, we try to teach our children to be safe and responsible," said Gov. Jack Markell. "We teach them to lock their doors, to wear seat belts, and to look both ways before they cross the street. Safety in cyberspace is just as important, but can be more difficult to communicate. Alexandra and Joe did a great

Two Delaware students job making this message clear."

Alexandra Peralta, a sixth grader at Shue-Medill Elementary School, near Newark and Joey Riccio, a fifth grader at St. Matthew's School, were among only twelve grandprize winners nationwide in the "Kids Safe Online" poster contest. The students presented the Governor with an autographed copy of a national calendar that features their work.

"I'm very proud of Joey and Alexandra, as well as the other students who are keeping themselves safe online," said State CIO and Cabinet Secretary Jim Sills. "State employees have been volunteering since 2006 to share Internet Safety presentation with more than 9,500 students. Each time they visit a classroom, they find kids eager to learn how to keep themselves safe."

In 2010, volunteers from the Department of Technology and Information (DTI) delivered 48 presentations to 31 schools reaching 3,500 students. The lessons use video, music and games to teach children how to recognize and minimize the risks associated with online predators, cyber bullying, sexting, and social networking.

"As an educator, I know that the Internet is a wonderful resource for our kids, but I also know that there are dangers online," said Secretary of Education Lillian Lowery. "I hope parents and teachers will familiarize themselves with the materials on DTI's website."

DTI maintains a website devoted to cyber security, dti. delaware.gov/information/cybersecurity.shtml, with a large section devoted to resources for parents and games and activities for kids. This website was recently named "The Best of the Web in a contest that evaluated the cyber sites of all 50 states."

Asperger's Syndrome and finding your sport

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

Best-selling author Shonda Schilling says that if you've met a child with Asperger's Syndrome and other autism spectrum disorders, you've only met one, because each is unique. Her 11-year-old son, Grant, is one of those children.

Shonda is the author of "The Best Kind of Different: Our Family's Journey with Asperger's Syndrome." If the last name rings a bell, it's because she's the wife of retired Boston Red Sox, Arizona Diamondbacks and Philadelphia Phillies All-Star Curt Schilling. That's right, the guy with the bloody sock. Ironically, Shonda says the first time Grant played baseball it "was a disaster" and now he has no interest in it.

Her son was diagnosed with Asperger's when he was seven years old, and according to an excerpt from her book it sent the family household into "chaos."

She says the challenges of raising a child with Asperger's or any autism spectrum disorder are many, and those same challenges exist when it comes to youth sports.

Grant, who Shonda says is "phenomenal" athlete, has found success in the sports of indoor soccer and swimming. She says outdoor soccer is too wrapped around it, and basketball is the one sport where you can really see the drastic difference in ability. Despite through trial-and-error now knowing what activities are best for her son, her advice for any parent of a child with Asperger's who wants to play a particular sport is simple: "If they love it, let them play it."

The mother of four suggests parents talk to the coach before the season and find out first and foremost if in fact that coach even wants to have a child with Asperger's on the team. If so, give the coach some techniques he can use to deal with some of the common behavioral issues that are bound to occur. Shonda says the most important thing is to make sure the child participates in all of the practices and plays the entire season.

"Too often, when you have a child with Asperger's who might not be able to find his shin guards one night it's easier to just say, 'Forget practice tonight.' But you can't let that happen. It gets them out of their routine.'

Shonda says that coaches and parents who don't understand Asperger's often think a child's behavior is a result of poor manners or being disrespectful, when, in fact, the child is just overly focused on something else.

"When you are coaching Grant, he might talk too close to you or touch you because big and he can't get his arms he has sensory issues, and that can be awkward," Shonda says. "But nothing they (children with Asperger's) are doing is out of disrespect. If they don't look you in the eye and are locked in on a thought and can't answer you, it's because they can't break free from that thought. It's just the way their minds work.

Shonda suggests to coaches that being firm and avoiding choices will help prevent situations from spiraling out of control. But, despite the use of all types of techniques and interventions, there will still be times when a child with Asperger's will lapse into atypical behavior, as Grant did earlier this season in the middle of a soccer game.

'His shoe was untied and he became completely disconnected from what was going on around him," Shonda recalled. "He sat down in the middle of the action and just focused on trying to get his shoe tied up again, which he doesn't know how to do. The coach learned from this and the next game as soon as he saw Grant's shoe come untied, he immediately took him out, tied his shoe in a double knot and sent him back in."

Like a lot of parents, Shonda coaches her daughter in softball, but says that it's best for her and Curt to not coach Grant

"I am his comfort zone. I need to make that break and teach him that other people are in charge. He knows I'm in charge, but he needs to learn that others can be too."

Shonda, who says the experience of raising Grant has made her a better person, hopes that her book and any attention that comes from it or any other article written on the subject will only enhance the experience for other children with Asperger's, including those who participate in youth

"I-think parents need to take their own selfish goals out of [youth sports] and we have to get back to the basics of raising happy, respectable children. Somehow we are taking the fun out sports. We are teaching achievement, being the best, winning. Somehow, the fun is not there anymore. And it should be."

Her husband, Curt, agrees completely, and not just when it comes to dealing with a child with Asperger's, but any child: "Being a 'star' when you are talking about Asperger's has to be about the child. But I'd argue that's the case with any child. What you want for your child will likely never have anything to do with what your child truly wants. Your children will rise to the occasion, excel at things they love and want, not what you want them to love and want.

"Grant loves to swim, but something happened in a practice that made it a nightmare.

Shonda and Curt Schilling, with their 11-year-old son, Grant.

... So now, when he goes to practice or a meet, yes, he's disappointed when he finishes last but you can sense the pride in him that he actually did it. And our reinforcement and pride comes in knowing our 10-year-old faced a real physical fear, overcame it, and 'went

'That works for us. There's no need for Olympic gold, just win a daily struggle one time, then build on it.'

Delaware gets 1st win in 14-inning game

A two-out, bases empty rally turned into a two run top of the 14th to send the University of Delaware baseball team to its first victory in 2011, as they defeated UNC Greensboro 3-1 on Sunday afternoon.

Senior Aaron Mascoe started the rally with a two-out single to right field. After Dave Anderson was hit by a pitch, DJ Long sent a pitch back up the middle, allowing Mascoe to score the eventual game-winning run. Pat Dameron added an insurance run with a single to right, scoring Anderson to round out the game.

Delaware (1-2) junior Devon Pearson pitched six innings, allowing six hits while only giving up one run. Freshman Chad Kuhl made his Delaware debut pitching four shutout innings of relief, allowing two hits and striking out three batters. Stephen Richter earned his first win of the season after pitching 3.1 innings without allowing a run.

The teams traded zeroes from the fourth through the 13th innings, keeping the score knotted at 1-1. Both starters pitched the first six innings before handing it over to the bullpen. UNC Greensboro's (2-1) bullpen performed as well as the Blue Hens, giving up six hits through the final eight innings. Delaware's bullpen gave up two hits while striking out five on the afternoon.

The Spartans opened the scoring in the second, but the damage was quickly taken care before a rally was started. After getting the first two batters out, Matt Crump hit a solo homerun to left field, giving the Spartans the lead. But Pearson quickly got the next batter to fly out, ending the inning with only the one run.

The Blue Hens promptly responded with a run of their own in the top half of the third. With one out, Mascoe roped a double to left center field. Anderson reached on a fielder's choice as Mascoe moved to third on a throwing error by Kris Richards. Long knocked in his first runner of the game, hitting a sacrifice fly to right field, scoring Mascoe.

The Spartans threatened to add runs on multiple occasions, but the Blue Hen defense denied all chances. In the third, with runners on the corners and one man out, the Spartans attempted to steal second. As the runner was attempting to steal, the runner on third took off for home, but a relay from Anderson to Mascoe cut the runner down at the plate.

In the seventh inning, the leadoff hitter singled to right field to start off the frame. After a walk put runners on first and second with one out, Kuhl induced a double play ball, ending the inning with a 4-6-3 double play.

UNCG could have ended the contest in the 11th with a runner on third and only one out. The coaches (head coach Jim Sherman was ejected with one out in the seventh) played the matchups, as the Blue Hens brought in relievers to face one batter each, as Brandon Hinkle replaced Michael O'Keeffe and got the second out with a short fly ball to right. Then Richter came in and got Crump to fly out as well, ending the threat.

Delaware had a chance in the 13th to put a few runs on the board, but were shutout once again. After loading the bases as the first three batters walked, UNCG got out of the inning with a foul out, a strike out, and a fielder's choice.

But the Blue Hens were able to cross the plate in the 14th with the two runs, setting up Richter for the victory.

Richter got the first two batters out on a groundball and a pop up to Long at second base.

After a walk to Crump, Richter ended the game with another ground ball as Anderson tossed it to Long at second for the force out

Long finished with three hits and two RBI's while Dameron, Logan Gallagher and Mascoe each contributed

The Blue Hens travel across the country this weekend as they head to square off against National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association preseason ranked No. 11 Arizona State starting on Friday. The first pitch on Friday is schedule for 8:30 p.m. ET.

Newark enters Great American Main Street competition

Earlier this month, the Downtown Newark Partnership shipped off its application in its quest to become a finalist in the Great American Main Streets competition.

A key part of that effort was a short video on downtown Newark. Here's the link in case you haven't seen the video already:

Five years for Fusion Fitness

Shown with owner Nic DeCaire at the Fusion Fifth Anniversary Party were employees Crystal Gibson, Melissa Boleslawski and Leigh Anne Emrich

By this time in February, many residents may have become sidetracked from their January New Year's resolution to get in shape. Last Saturday, however, one Newark resident celebrated five years of promoting fitness and healthy lifestyles in the city. On Feb. 19, Nic DeCaire, owner of Fusion Fitness Center, commemorated this personal and professional milestone with a member appreciation party hosted at Kildare's Irish Pub on Main Street.

"I was driving down Main Street looking at the different businesses that have come and gone over the past couple years, and I'm really excited about what we've been able to grow and accomplish in the past five years as a member of the Newark community," DeCaire explained.

A personal trainer for more than a decade, DeCaire attributes the success of his facility to a focus on individualized attention, leading to more noticeable results. In the past year, he expanded Fusion by adding a personal training studio, allowing members to participate in group classes that employ the same techniques as one-on-one instruction at a more affordable price.

In addition to his work as a trainer, DeCaire also shares his expertise in feature stories and columns in various publications, including The News Journal and Club Industry.

"I enjoy writing because it allows me to be more of an expert concerning what we do in the field," he explained. "I'm able to give information to people who may not be able to afford a personal trainer, but who are still interested in learning about the steps that give results."

Although DeCaire is enthusiastic about

Although DeCaire is enthusiastic about encouraging active lifestyles in Newark, he also makes it a priority to support the city in other ways as well. Every year, Fusion Fitness sponsors multiple organizations, most recently the Newark K-9 division, Kids with Confidence and Kay's Camp.

Kay's Camp.

"My father owned his own business and I learned the importance of giving back to the community through his example," he said. "I know how important it is to show my support."

Chipotle lovers

Fusion Fitness might have a couple of additional customers when Chipotle Grill opens later this year at the former Copy Maven store on Main Street.

The Post's Facebook page, http://tinyurl.com/5wohnn8, took a quick poll on why there is so much buzz about the establishment coming to Newark after a long delay involving fees and possibly lease arrangements.

The post, and another pinpointing the location of Chipotle, generated a dozen comments, a record for the page.

It turns out that at least one Chipotle lover has been known to drive to West Chester for a burrito turned out under the chain's "Fresh Mex" concept

In the meantime, a couple of other spots, California Tortilla and Santa Fe make a pretty mean burritos on their own.

Ethical Eating Series under way in Newark

What is "Ethical Eating?" Earlier this month, The Newark Natural Foods Co-op teamed up with the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Newark (UUFN) Green Sanctuary Committee to kick off the first of a 3-part "First Saturdays" series on Ethical Eating. The workshops, held at the UUFN, are exploring the concept of ethical eating as it relates to consumer awareness, responsibility, and choice.

UUFN members Donna Shand and Mary Cannon, who also is a Master Foods Educator with the New Castle County Cooperative Extension, led this program titled the "Eating Local Workshop." About 50 people discussed "Locavore Concepts" – the possible impacts of eating locally. Gina Cimino of the Co-op and Denise Hartranft of Village Imports in Newark prepared and served a lunch, with a focus on natural, organic, locally produced, and fair trade food.

What are "Locavore Concepts?" There are numerous aspects to these choices – several who attended are planning to develop a weekly food-interest group, with a fresh topic or topics at every meeting. The impacts include: developing relationships in the community, wider adoption of sustainable agriculture, keeping land in use as farms, and contributing to the local economy.

Workshop participants were challenged to consider their priorities and use those priorities to make ethical food choices. The workshop included a display of groceries and a discussion about how to tell if a grocery item is produced locally.

The March program will be a "Vegetarian Winter Cooking Class." The April program will be an "Ethical Consumer Choices Panel," during which local experts will speak on the local food movement, organic farming, fair trade principles, vegetarianism, and other topics. For dates and times see the Co-op website at www.newarknaturalfoods.coop/calendar, The Newark Post online calendar at www.newarkpostonline.com/calendar, or contact Donna Shand at 302.252.7654.

Weathering the Storm: A Group for Individuals in Career Transition

Weathering the Storm (WTS) is a support and networking group for individuals in career transition sponsored by the New London Presbyterian Church and the Christian Life Center. The group meets from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. every other Thursday night in Community Hall at the New London Presbyterian Church building.

WTS provides information, guidance and emotional support to job seekers and those who want to change careers, without regard to religious affiliation.

In addition to typical job search topics such as resume writing, networking, and interview preparation, WTS takes a more holistic approach to selecting speakers with topics that would help and encourage job seekers. As an example, since depression rates are high for those who are unemployed, WTS had a psychologist come in and address how to recognize the signs of depression.

WTS sends out weekly email newsletters with information on upcoming speakers, regional networking events and regional job opportunities. WTS also has a Weathering the Storm Linkedln Group and a WTS Yahoo Group where even more information is posted. There is no cost to attend WTS meetings. No childcare is provided.

Luck and the Job Hunt, March 3, 6:30 p.m.-8:30 p.m.

Please plan on joining WTS on Thursday, March 3, when Barry Davis presents "Luck and the Job Hunt"

As a result of participating in this workshop, you will:

Learn the 4 key characteristics that all Lucky people possess.

· Identify how to build actions into your work and life that attract Luck.

 Discover the three critical personality traits that make Luck happen and learn what you can do to develop them.

Strategic networking will be from 6:30 p.m. until 7 p.m. so please come early and bring at least 20 copies of your completed self-marketing plan, your group networking profile, and your business cards to share with fellow attendees so we can help one another network into our strategic companies. This can be a great tool to help you find employment, but you need to come prepared. Please report to Jim Power, who leads the strategic networking session.

New London Presbyterian Church is located at 1986 Newark Road (Route 896) in historic New London Township, PA. For more information, please call (302) 894-9223 or go to the website at www.nlp-

DHA Wellness Clinic

The Delaware Humane Association will be holding a Wellness Clinic for cats and dogs on Saturday, March 5, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Concord Pet Foods & Supplies in Suburban Plaza, 312 Suburban Drive, Newark.

Low cost vaccinations, microchipping, and New Castle County dog licenses are available at the clinics, which are held monthly in partnership with and on-site at Concord Pet Foods & Supplies stores throughout New Castle and Kent Counties in Delaware. All vaccinations are administered by a licensed veterinarian.

Rabies, distemper, and bordetella (dogs only) vaccinations are $15 each and HomeAgain Microchips (permanent identification for pet/owner reunion) are $25 each. Prices vary for New Castle County dog licenses and payment is accepted separately from payment for vaccinations and microchips. For complete licensing information, visit http://www.dehumane.org/doglicensing.

Clinics are first come, first served, and cash or checks only are accepted for payment. Cats must be in hard plastic or cardboard carriers, and dogs must be wearing a collar and non-retractable leash. Your pet's most recent previous rabies certificate with veterinarian's signature or stamp must be presented to receive a 3-year rabies vaccination.

For complete information and things you should know before you attend a DHA Wellness Clinic, please visit www.dehumane.org/wellness-clinics or call (302) 571-0111.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic item is a W. T. McLain photograph of the image of Little Joe Curtis on the inside wall of the Curtis Paper Company plant. The image became visible from the outside during the demolition of the plant. The image became associated with Curtis and its reputation for producing high quality paper. As the image caught on as a company logo, it was sometimes called the Curtis Quire Boy. A quire is a unit of measure equaling 24 pieces. It was widely used in the industry from the days of paper sheets hand made one at a time. The Curtis plant property is now owned by the City of Newark. Plans are being developed for recreational use of the site.

Visit the Newark History Museum located at the historic passenger train station on South College Avenue. The museum will be open now through March by appointment for groups, individuals, and special events. Call 368-9845 for arrangements. The Newark Historical Society invites donations or loans of objects, stories, pictures and other artifacts of places, activities, people, and life styles in the Greater Newark Area for its permanent collections.

Contact the Newark Historical Society by voice mail at 302-224-2408, by postal mail to P. O. Box 711, Newark, DE 19715, or by email to newarkdehistoricalsociety@yahoo.com.

Newark company wins national award from SBA

Forty-Four small businesses and eight individuals were honored for the critical role they play in research and development for the government and for their success in driving innovation and creating new jobs.

The Tibbetts Awards, given by the U.S. Small Business Administration, honor outstanding small businesses and individuals who participate in the SBA's Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program.

"Winning the future requires redoubling our commitment to supporting innovative entrepreneurs like those we honor with Tibbetts Awards," said Karen Mills, SBA administrator.

Among the awardees was

ANP Technologies Inc. of Newark, Delaware. "This award represents the culmination of an effort we began in 2004 when we submitted our first Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) proposal," said ANP Technologies' Chief Business Officer, Tom Bodnar. "We won both Phase I and Phase II of this SBIR contract, as well a subsequent Phase III full-rate production contract. This effort has become a cornerstone of our business development."

ANP Technologies' Tibbetts Award recognizes the company's work meeting the Department of Defense's (DoD) never-ending demand for rapid, light-weight, sensitive, and accurate biological agent detection systems. Its technology is currently fielded by various DoD branches and is used as one of the nation's first lines of defense.

"As a research and development company, participating in the SBIR Program is essential to our ability to be creative in developing technological breakthroughs," continued Bodnar. "Today, thanks to our SBIR success, we are able to accelerate the DoD product development cycle, which often takes more than 10 years, and cut that in half. Although originally designed for military use, the same technology has also found commercial applications including medical diagnostics and biological drug development."

Dr. Ray Yin, ANP's founder and chief technology officer, accepted the award at a ceremony in Washington, D.C. Afterwards, he met with SBA Administrator Karen Mills and attended a reception at the White House.

"This is a proud day not only for ANP Technologies but also for Delaware's small businesses," said Jayne Armstrong, district director of SBA's Delaware District Office. "Companies like ANP represent the best in American ingenuity and are the driving force behind our economic recovery."

Founded in 2002, Newark,based ANP Technologies is the world leader in developing and commercializing various nanobiotechnology-based platforms for applications related to biodefense, biologic drug development and testing, medical diagnostics, and therapeutic drug delivery.

The Tibbetts Awards, named after Roland Tibbetts, who was instrumental in developing the SBIR program, are presented to companies and individuals from all over the United States

college honors

Local students earn

who are beacons of promise and models of excellence in high technology.

Tibbetts Award winners are selected based on the economic impact of their technological innovation, and on whether they have met federal research and development needs, encouraged diverse participation in technological innovation, and increased the commercialization of federal research.

The SBA's Small Business Innovation Research program accounted for approximately $2.5 billion in federal research and development funds in FY 2010 and is coordinated by the SBA in cooperation with 11 federal agencies.

Gov. Jack Markell and DuPont announced that DuPont plans to invest more than $50 million over five years to expand its biotech soybean research and development program. The proposed investment will include expanding and improving biotech research facilities at DuPont's Experimental Station in Wilmington and at its Stine Haskell Research Center in Newark. The proposed expansion is expected to add 75 new, full-time jobs in Delaware by the end of 2015.

"For generations, DuPont has helped shape our state's reputation as a cradle of innovation. Their investment will help expand both that reputation and, more importantly, their work force," Markell said.

"This plan includes a significant expansion of our overall biotech research effort," said John Bedbrook, vice president — DuPont Agricultural Biotechnology. "It would increase the speed at which we can bring new products to the market and help farmers around the world increase yields through tolerance to environmental stresses, insects and disease."

"The expansion plan includes new soybean research laboratories, tissue culture facilities, environmentally controlled growth rooms and greenhouses, which not only benefit soybean R&D efforts but also extend research resources for other core crops.

Welcome to Greater Newark

hether you're visiting for the day, have just moved to the area or have lived here your whole life, you're bound to enjoy all the region can offer. This guide will help you Discover Newark - then and now. This year, we have tweaked Discover to include some businesses you don't see on your average Main Street, as well as websites to popular destinations.

The region, which includes the communities of Glasgow and Bear, is steeped in cultural diversity and history. In 2008, the City of Newark celebrated the 250th anniversary of England's King George II granting a charter to the town.

History plays an important role in daily life here, but the area also has a vibrant present and a promising future. Newark's downtown provides a lively atmosphere for shopping and dining. The city hosts fun, family-friendly events throughout the year, including Newark Nite, Taste of Newark and Community Day. These events attract tens of thousands of visitors to Newark's downtown every summer and fall.

The University of Delaware enhances the city's youthful feel and adds to the athletic and cultural activities offered in the region.

It's an economically vibrant area, within Newark and in the Bear and Glasgow regions. Business expansion is complemented by new homes, and city leaders and organizations have made economic development a priority for the coming years.

We welcome you to Greater Newark and hope you enjoy traveling through the region, putting down roots here, or just visiting for the day.

A look into Newark's colorful past

ing George II took time away from his busy schedule of managing a country to consider the future of a piece of land "ten miles west of New Castle, at the intersection of two very public roads, the one leading from New Castle to the Cross Roads in Chester County, and the other leading from Kent and Sussex to New Garden."

This land was known to its inhabitants – many of them English, Welsh and Scottish immigrants – as Newark. And, on that April day, King George recognized the town's powers to have "fairs yearly, and one weekly market there for the encouragement of trade." Thus, the town of Newark became official.

Businesses in the region, including the St. Patrick Inn, served travelers en route from the Chesapeake Bay area to colonial Philadelphia. Saw and gristmills were powered by local streams, and nearby Iron Hill supplied iron ore. Farmland surrounded the village.

Soon, a new industry came to town
- one that continues to drive Newark's economy today. The State of Delaware in 1833 recognized the need for higher education and granted a charter to a new institution, Newark College, later renamed Delaware College.

In 1914, a Women's College began operating, and the two institutions combined in 1944 as the University of Delaware.

The village of Newark grew into a small city around the college and marketplace. Railroads linked Newark to points north and west. Curtis Paper Company, Continental Fiber and National Vulcanized Fibre brought industry to the economy. In 1855, the town's first bank was established.

The population grew through the 1920s, and a retail market developed in conjunction with the university. World War II and the Korean conflict hurried the pace of industrial and commercial development. DuPont opened facilities in the 1940s, and the Chrysler Corporation constructed its Newark Assembly Plant in 1951.

A charter from the State of Delaware in 1951 effectively doubled the city's size, creating the basic outline of today's Newark.

By the late 1990s, Newark renewed its commitment to the downtown core. The city worked with builders to redevelop historic buildings, and the Downtown Newark Partnership formed of representatives from the city, university and business community to improve economic vitality.

The expansion of the University of Delaware in the 2000s and the continued work of the City government and the Downtown Newark Partnership have created a renaissance in the downtown area, bringing with it new businesses, services, and culinary choices.

The closing of the Chrysler plant in 2008, resulted in an opportunity for growth for the city, with the University of Delaware acquiring the site, with plans for a technology and medical education center on the site.

The resulting intermingling of residential, university and retail uses creates a busy and lively environment, attracting Newark residents and others from Bear, Glasgow and beyond.

Unique events and special happenings have made downtown Newark a destination.

A brief history of Bear-Glasgow

Early settlers of the Bear-Glasgow area would be hard pressed to recognize it today. In the 1700s the area was largely agricultural with flour and saw mills keeping farmers busy.

The old Bear Tavern, from which the community took its name, flourished during early colonial times. Stagecoaches would stop with weary travelers heading west on what we now call Rt. 40, then just a dirt road. And yes, George Washington stopped and drank here on his way from Wilmington to Mount Vernon, a trip that was documented by a receipt dated Aug. 10, 1795.

In 1809, the New Castle-Frenchtown Turnpike Company was organized. The turnpike became an important thoroughfare which came through Bear. It was a main road used on the East Coast from approximately 1817 to 1833.

In 1829, the General Assembly authorized the construction of tracks along the turnpike. The 17-mile railroad, some distance south of the road and turnpike, began operations with horse drawn cars, which looked like stagecoaches on July 4, 1831

An English locomotive arrived the following year, and the "Delaware" made its maiden trip, opening the first regular steam passenger rail line in the country. This led to prosperity in the region and fueled the progress of Bear and Glasgow throughout the 1800s and beyond.

The Newark business scene

Newark has been busy with business since an open-air market first opened on Main Street with a charter from England's King George II in April 1758. Today, businesses continue to thrive on Newark's Main Street and beyond.

Many companies have served generations of customers here, and their stores double as Newark landmarks. Some businesses, especially those in the restaurant industry, are up-and-coming and have created a new buzz that has attracted customers from around the region.

Though all of Newark's businesses are worth mentioning here, that is impossible. Instead, here's a history of several that have become Newark institutions over the years.

Minster's Jewelers

"Retailing changes as our country and our economy change," said Marilyn Minster of Minster's Jewelers.

She should know. Minster's Jewelers, which opened in the summer of 1955 as part of the then-newly constructed Newark Shopping Center on Main Street, has remained flexible and changed with the times.

"Thousands came to the Newark Shopping Center," Marilyn reminisced, "not only to see the only in-town Shopping Center in Delaware, but also to enjoy the entertainment."

Main Street, at first two-way, became one-way April 2, 1957, which upset the Newark Shopping Center owner. He was sure they needed the two-way traffic for business.

Marilyn said, with a laugh, that she wished the owner was alive today because he would be amazed at all the traffic on Main Street.

Minster's opened with a complete jewelry store and gift shop – silver, crystals, watches, diamonds, gift items, cards, stationery, watch and jewelry repair, as well as a complete optical department. Later on, they added a full service bridal registry.

Minster's Jewelers Since 1895

However, the retail climate changed with the opening of more and more gift and card shops. Minster's responded by gradually phasing out their giftware and cards.

With the advent of "discount," Minster's again changed with the times. Their focus was now just on jewelry, colored stones, karat gold and diamonds. The jewelry repair section moved to the front of the store. A glass partition was put in, so that customers could watch their jewelry being repaired.

Minster's started in Elkton, Md., in 1895. The same family has owned the business for 112 years.

Marilyn started working in the business when she was a teenager, and, 65 years later, still doesn't tire of getting up and coming to work. It is her passion, she said. www. minstersjewelers.com

Deer Park Tavern

While Minster's has a long history in the Newark area, a few businesses in the city date back even further, with origins in the 1700s. One of those businesses is the Deer Park Tavern at the intersection of Main Street and Elkton Road.

The tavern sits on (or near, there is some debate) the spot occupied by the St. Patricks Inn, a favorite resting place for travelers passing through Newark in the 1700s. Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon (known for their line – the Mason-Dixon line) were said to have stayed at the inn with their team in 1764.

During the American Revolution, soldiers stayed there, and, it has been said that George Washington spent the night there. Another famous, rumored guest was Edgar Allan Poe, said to have visited in 1843. The Tavern proudly displays a black Raven in Poe's honor.

At some point, a fire destroyed the St. Patrick Inn. James S. Martin bought the 243 acres of land, including the rubble of the inn, and built the Deer Park Hotel in 1851. He named the hotel after his farm, which got its name from a grove of deer that often filled the nearby landscape.

In much more recent history, the Deer Park underwent major renovations in 2001 under the ownership of local restaurateur Robert Ashby. Ashby restored the building, opened up the second and third floors for offices and a fine dining area and added a porch onto the second floor.

The tavern continues to be a favorite choice for Newark residents and University of Delaware students for a night out on the town, www.deerparktavern.com

Bing's Bakery

When Tom and Carla Guzzi bought Bing's Bakery, in November 2005, they felt as if they were going into partnership with Selena Bing.

"We still feel her presence here," Tom said. "She wanted to make sure Newark continued to have a bakery."

Bing's, founded in May 15, 1946 by Russell and Selena Bing, is the second oldest continuously operated business on Main Street. Located at 253 E. Main, it's a full-line scratch bakery. Brides-to-be come to Bing's for their wedding cakes, oftentimes because their mothers and grandmothers also got their wedding cakes at this bakery.

"We're a tradition," said Carla. "The other day a mother came in to get a birthday cake for her 42-year-old son. She's been getting his birthday cake from Bing's ever since he was born."

Tom, who was head baker at Bing's Bakery since November 1996, was taken aback when people would come in and ask for Selena's autograph (Russell Bing died in 1979; Selena passed away in 2006). It happened more than once.

"Selena believed in the community," Tom said. "She was on several committees, like the Downtown Newark Partnership."

Tom and Carla, originally from Staten Island, New York, are committed to upholding, and expanding, the Bing's legacy and have included several diverse baked goods in their day-to-day operations, like New York Style Cheese-cakes and cannolis.

"At the end of the work day," Carla said, "whatever hasn't been sold is donated to local charities. We're determined to start fresh, everyday." www.Bingsbakery.com

McDonald's on Main Street

Leonard Dukart, a Chicago native, opened the first Mc-Donald's in Delaware on E. Main Street, March 15, 1960. It was the 225th franchise in the United States, and one of the first McDonald's on the East Coast.

Leonard's son, Les Dukart, remembers the day the doors opened. "It took awhile until it really became successful," he said. "McDonald's wasn't a household name at that time, and never were hamburgers sold that cheap before." Hamburgers sold for just 15 cents, and fries, milk-shakes and sodas rounded out the menu.

Les said his father, a friend of McDonald's' founder Ray Kroc, had a lot of confidence in the product, and time proved him to be right.

Now, the family owns a dozen restaurants – seven in New Castle County, including two in Newark, and five in Pennsylvania. Four family members – Les and his brother, and Les' oldest son and grandson – continue to work in the family business.

The building has been renovated several times, once out of necessity. An explosion at the store in December 1974 destroyed the original building. The explosion happened when a CO2 canister fell over in the basement and punctured a gas line, said Les. "Thank God very few people were hurt and nobody was killed," he said.

When the store reopened in 1976, it was a new, modern facility with a drive-thru – the third one to open on the East Coast. The Newark location also had one of the first Playplaces, said Les. "We've been trailblazers in McDonald's," he said.

Newark Natural Foods Co-op

In the summer of 2005, the Newark Natural Foods Co-op celebrated its 30th anniversary.

The Co-op began informally in 1967 as a food-buying club, a place for Newark residents to purchase unrefined, organically grown food.

As the number of people ordering food grew, the Co-op found space at a local church to set up shop. Then, in 1975, the organization incorporated and moved to a location on Haines Street where Switch skateboard shop is today. The Co-op began selling shares to households at $50 a piece.

Membership grew, as did the variety of foods available.

NEWARK BUSINESSES, from 7

In the late 1980s, the Co-op decided to have a more competitive image and moved into the Main Street building where it continues to thrive today.

Now, the active membership of the Co-op exceeds 3,000 households. The organization continues to serve the purpose laid out in its bylaws: "... to be a social service organization; to set up and operate facilities for the benefit of consumer members; to provide goods and services whose production and distribution are based on sound ecological and cooperative development; to advance the cooperative movement; and to service members within the scope of the Articles of Incorporation and to the fullest extent permitted by statute." www. newarknaturalfoods.com

Herman's Quality Meats

Herman's Quality Meat Shoppe opened in 1967 in the former McMullen's Market on Main Street. Luther and Jeanette Herman were the original owners and received help from their children, Tim, Lynn, Terri and Curt.

In 1970, the family moved their business to a location on Cleveland Avenue, where it's been ever since.

The business has been an integral part of the community for more than four decades. Herman's has hosted school visits and supported a variety of organizations, from the American Cancer Society to Little League Baseball. www. hermansqualitymeats.com

Dr. Cox (times three!)

The Green Mansion at the stoplight at Academy Street and E. Main Street has been "home" to the Cox family since 1940.

Dr. Thomas Cox, who took over the dentist office in 1975, said that his father, Dr. Clyde Cox, bought half of the Green Mansion, which is made from Avondale Green Stone, in 1940. Clyde was in Florida, providing dental care to U.S. troops a few years later, when he got the call to buy the other half of the building.

Asked what he remembered about his father's 30-plus years of practice, Thomas talked about Miss Law, who worked in the office. "They argued all the time," he said. "She did everything – filing, answering the phone, bookkeeping, mixing fillings, X-rays, cleaning the office." Clyde would say, "Miss Law, I need you back here," and she'd reply, "I'm on the phone, I can't be in two places at one time."

Thomas elaborated, talking about how his father would sing, trying out songs on various patients, and Miss Law would say, "Don't be singing so many songs. We have other people waiting!"

When Thomas took over the business, he enlarged the workspace. He knocked down a wall that separated the office from his grandmother's house (she lived there from 1950 – 1955), and now his grandmother's old kitchen is the present-day dental staff's lounge.

Thomas expects to retire in about seven years.

Erin, his daughter, who works in the office now as a dentist, will take over. "My staff remembers sitting her (Erin) on the counter when she was a little thing, and now they will be working for her," he said, laughing at the thought. http://coxfamilydentistry.net/

The National 5 & 10

The National 5 & 10 on Main Street is a true piece of Americana.

Around the turn of the 20th-century, Louis Handloff took the train down from Philadelphia to find a better place for his family to live. He liked what he saw in Newark, and he opened his first variety store, called Handloff's, in the front room of his home. Later, the name was changed to the National 5&10.

Aprons were the first items to be sold. Louis would buy the fabric in Philadelphia, and his wife, Mollie, would make them. Now, the store sells a variety of goods, from University of Delaware apparel to home furnishings and even Halloween costumes.

Fourth-generation owner Brian Handloff says the 5 & 10 was "sort of the early 20th century version of a general store." www.national5and10.com

Government

City of Newark

The City of Newark's council-managed, non-partisan government operates under a home rule charter, permitting self-governing in matters that do not conflict with state or federal government.

Newark City Council is composed of the mayor, who serves a three-year term, and six council members, elected from geographic districts, who serve staggered two-year terms.

The city charter prohibits the mayor or council from any involvement in the administration or daily operations of the city so the city manager, appointed by the mayor and council, supervises daily city business and oversees the work of seven directors of city services, the Chief of Police, and Alderman's Court.

City services include police protection, trash collection, snow removal and street maintenance, electric service, water distribution, waste water collection, planning and zoning, building code enforcement, recreation programs and budgeting.

All city offices are open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. till 5 p.m. The municipal building is at 220 Elkton Road. For more information, visit www.cityofnewarkde.us or call 302-366-7000.

New Castle County

County Council is made up of 12 elected officials from their respective districts. The council president is elected at large. The county's functions include planning and zoning, law enforcement, sanitary sewer, county parks and libraries, including the Newark Free Library For information about county services and meetings, visit www.co.new-castle.de.us.

State of Delaware

Due to the small size of the state, many functions typically handled by counties and cities are conducted by the state, including public health, public assistance and roads and highways outside of municipalities. The Delaware State Police handle calls to most commercial properties, while in New Castle County residential areas outside of Newark and other municipalities are handled by New Castle County Police. For more information, visit www.delaware.gov.

The Aetna Fire House on the corner of Academy and Delaware opened in 1922 and remains active today.

Ashland Nature Center. Hockessin

The Delaware Nature Society maintains this nature center at the intersection of Brackenville and Barley Mill Roads; includes walking trails, a native plant garden, butterfly house and seasonal exhibits. Call 239-2334 for more information.

Lum's Pond State Park. Glasgow

Delaware's most diversified park offers fishing, hiking, swimming, boating, camping and picnic sites near the state's largest freshwater pond. Call 368-6989.

Glasgow Park

Located at Pulaski Highway & South College Avenue in Glasgow, this 298-acre park is home to "Bear Mountain," a massive sledding hill that is one of the biggest in all of Delaware. A 2.7-mile, paved walkway loops around the park, which features hiking trails within a wooded area. Those who haven't visited in a while will marvel at the $10 million worth of improvements made to the park. Call 302-571-4006 for more information.

Newark offers artstic and cultural diversity

The Newark area offers a wealth of cultural activities. On any given night, residents can attend a performance by a community band, view an art show at a downtown restaurant or catch the latest production by a local theater or dance group.

In addition to the wide range of public events sponsored by the University of Delaware, the region plays host to many organizations that promote performing, visual, dramatic and musical arts. Here is a look at some of the best:

Newark Arts Alliance

This non-profit organization, which started in 1993, plays an active role in the Newark community. The NAA hosts art exhibits throughout the year at its in-house gallery, offers a number of educational programs and an art camp, Camp Imagine, for children of lower income levels.

Recently, the NAA relocated to Main Street in Market East Plaza. Stop by their gallery at 276 E. Main Street, Suite 102, to learn more about the group, or visit www. newarkartsalliance.org.

Chapel Street Players

Chapel Street Players have been performing quality theater productions in Newark since 1934.

The Playhouse is located in the heart of Newark at 27 N. Chapel Street, just off of Main Street. Shows cover a range of genres.

For more information, visit www.chapelstreetplayers.org.

Newark Community Band

The Newark Community Band celebrates 25 years of making music this year. The concert band is made up of mostly amateur and some professional musicians from the city of Newark and surrounding areas

Ages and backgrounds of members vary greatly, from students majoring in music to older residents who haven't picked up a musical instrument since their high school days.

The band does several performances a year. For more information, visit www. newarkcommunityband.com.

Newark Symphony Orchestra

This talented group of volunteer musicians performs classical music programs with a high-level of skill and has been deemed "Delaware's finest community orchestra."

Under the direction of Simeone Tartaglione, the orchestra performs chamber and full symphony concerts.

For more information, visit www.new-arksymphony.org.

Local Restaurants

Newark has seen a culinary renaissance in the past few years with the addition of new restaurants and new menus at old favorite spots. When in town, be sure to try some of these downtown establishments.

The Deer Park Tayern -108 W. Main St.

A must for any out-of-towner, The Deer Park Tavern was established in 1851 and has stood out in the minds of locals ever since. The Deer Park plays host to local talent on a regular basis and serves a variety of American fare, including burgers, sandwiches, nachos, and wings. www.deerparktavern.com.

Newark Deli and Bagels -36 E. Main St.

Located on Main Street, Newark Deli and Bagels has received many awards. It offers omelets and other breakfast offerings throughout the day. Its freshly baked bagels and breads can be paired with a selection of homemade, gourmet cream cheeses.

Wireless Internet access is available for customers with laptops. Hungry but in a hurry? Place your pick-up order in advance by phone or right here on their website, www.newarkdeliandbagel.com.

Kildare's Irish Pub -45 F. Main St.

Building on the concept of the traditional Irish pub as a social center, Kildare's surrounds itself with artifacts, heritage, and, most importantly, food from the Emerald Isle. The Irish-inspired cuisine, with a nod to American palates, is prepared using only fresh ingredients, never frozen. Different aspects of the establishment, such as the Victorian Pub, the cottage dining room, and the hand-hewn log chairs, honor the sentiment of the pub being an extension of the home. www.kildaresirishpub.com.

Cucina Di Napoli -76 E. Main St.

Priding itself on using fresh, local ingredients, Cucina Di Napoli offers a step up from traditional Italian fare. Lunch specials and big portions are additional features, as well as al fresco dining or inside seating. www.cucinadinapoli.com.

Caffé Gelato -90 E. Main St.

Caffé Gelato quickly worked its way into the hearts of locals with its northern Italian, Mediterranean-inspired dishes and homemade gelato. The menu is complimented by a selection of over 50 wines. The restaurant has received numerous awards and continues to impress Newarkers with its specialty dinner series, live music, and featured local artists. www.caffegelato.net.

Catherine Rooney's -102 E. Main St.

A new-comer to Newark, but an old favorite in Trolley Square in Wilmington, this pub and restaurant brings together the best of Irish hospitality and American cuisine. The menu is extensive as is the beer selection. Be sure to stop by to catch your favorite team on television, whether it be soccer, rugby, baseball, or football. Catherine Rooney's also features Sunday brunch, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. www.catherinerooneys.com.

Stone Balloon Winehouse -115 E. Main St.

Situated on the former site of the famous Stone Balloon bar, the restaurant/bar features one of Newark's largest wine selections. Open for lunch, brunch, and dinner, the Winehouse offers small plates, shared plates, large plates, artisan cheeses, and a host of tempting culinary delights. www.stoneballoonwh.com.

Home Grown Café -126 E. Main St.

A new favorite of Newark residents. Established in 2002, Home Grown is noted for its vegetarian options but also offers a wide variety of fresh seafood and steaks. A full take-out menu is available, but it would be a shame to miss out on the restaurant's unique décor and funky atmosphere. Local musicians visit on selected dates, and the work of local artists is displayed throughout the restaurant. www.homegrowncafe.com.

Iron Hill Brewery -147 E. Main St.

Iron Hill was established in Newark in 1996 and has since opened six additional locations. Iron Hill is best known for its award-winning, fresh brewed beers, but the brewery's lunch and dinner menus are also popular with locals and visitors alike. Fresh root beer is also a great treat. www.ironhillbrewery.com.

Klondike Kate's -158 E. Main St.

Klondike Kate's is nothing short of a landmark on Main Street. Always good for a casual lunch or a night out with friends, Kate's offers a wide selection of dishes, including a classic steak, an enormous plate of nachos, and an extensive list of specialty drinks and desserts. Live entertainment on selected dates. www. klondikekates.com.

Ali Baba - 175 E. Main St.

Ali Baba brings culture to Main Street with authentic Middle Eastern cuisine. The menu features a variety of Moroccan, Lebanese, and Iranian dishes. The exotic tapestries adorning the walls, sofa seating, and belly dancers add to the ambiance of the restaurant. For those who aren't quite so daring, don't worry - belly dancers perform only on special occasions and standard seating is available.

Santa Fe Mexican Grill -190 E. Main St.

Santa Fe Mexican Grill is a favorite spot for both business people and students alike in the downtown area. Providing quality, authentic cuisine at an affordable price, Santa Fe sees large crowds for both lunch and dinner. Top it all off with a margarita or an ice cold beer and it may become your favorite spot too. www.santafemexicangrill.net.

The Saigon Vietnam Restaurant - 207 Newark Shopping Center

The Saigon Restaurant offers authentic Vietnamese cuisine along with new gastronomic ideas, cooked by partowner and head chef Lan Chen. Exotic cocktails and new creations help to round out a truly special experience and to make Saigon a culinary destination worth coming back to again and again. www.thesaigonrestaurant.com.

Newark is the quintessential college town

The city of Newark is a proud home to the University of Delaware's (www.udel. edu) campus and students.

Founded as a small, private academy in 1743, the university has been building its reputation as a fine institution of higher learning for more than 250 years.

Recently, Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine ranked it in the top 20 of the 100 best values among high quality public institutions of higher education.

The university enrolls more than 16,000 undergraduates and over 3,500 graduate students. As a state-assisted, privately controlled institution, the university seeks to enroll students from diverse backgrounds and a wide variety of geographic regions.

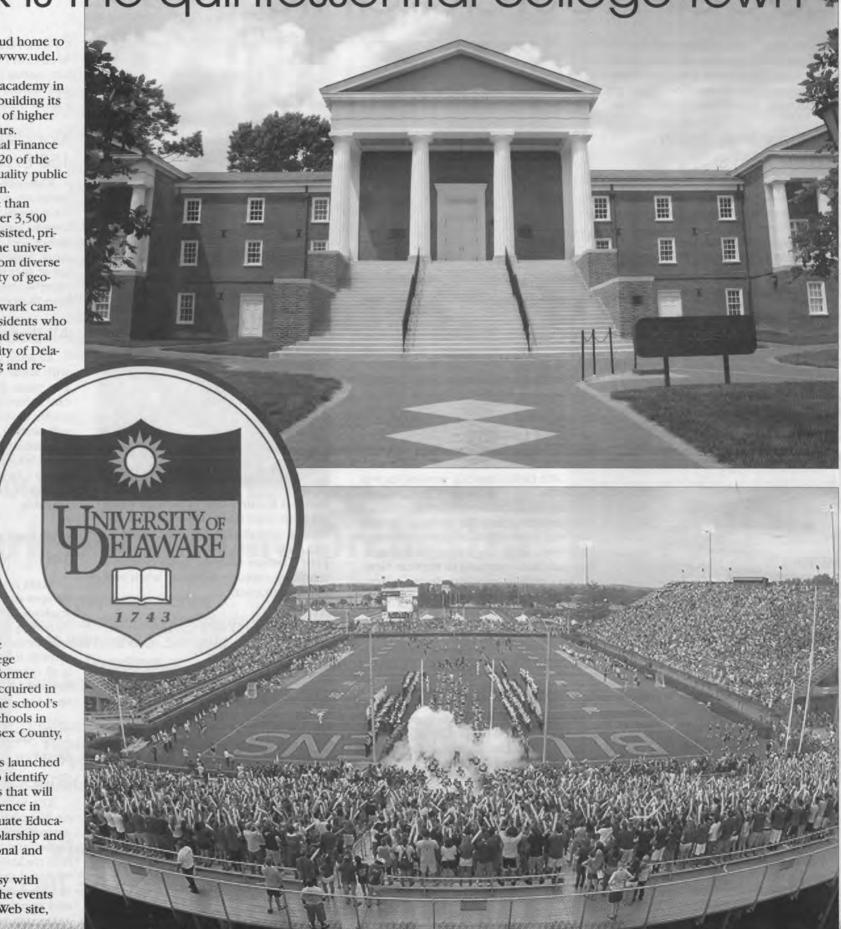

Currently, 60 percent of Newark campus undergraduates are nonresidents who represent nearly every state and several foreign countries. The University of Delaware is committed to enrolling and retaining minority students.

Students participate in all aspects of the community, everything from city council meetings to community clean-ups and cultural events. Many students live in rental housing and apartment buildings in neighborhoods surrounding the campus and join residents in taking advantage of Main Street's shops, restaurants and downtown events.

Presently, the Newark campus takes up more than 970 acres. Expansion into the
272-acre parcel on South College
Ave., which was home to the former Chrysler Assembly Plant and acquired in October 2009, will augment the school's facilities. The university has schools in Wilmington and Kent and Sussex County, as well.

President Patrick Harker has launched a strategic planning process to identify the handful of major initiatives that will continue UD's path to prominence in core mission areas: Undergraduate Education; Graduate Education; Scholarship and Research; and Public, Professional and Community Service.

The university is always busy with cultural and sporting events. The events calendar can be found on the Web site, http://www.udel.edu.

Nearly a dozen libraries serve residents

New Castle County has 11 libraries, including branches in Bear and Newark.

In addition to traditional library services, these facilities offer public access to the Internet. Users can access magazine and newspaper databases.

The libraries offer a range of daily activities for children, teens and adults, including a variety of clubs (everything from chess to quilting), academic discussions and film viewings.

For a listing of events, contact your local library or visit the New Castle County libraries' web site, www.co.new-castle.de.us/library/ home.

To receive a library card, adults ages 18 and older must complete an application and show proof of their current address. Identification can be in the form of a driver's license or state ID, utility or credit card bill, check book, vehicle registration, cancelled mail or lease or mortgage agreement.

A year-around look at Abraham Lincoln

In commemoration of the birth of Abraham Lincoln on Feb. 12, 1809, the University of Delaware Library each year mounts a new exhibition of items from the Lincoln Collection of the Lincoln Club of Delaware in the Lincoln Exhibit Case, adjacent to the Special Collections Exhibition Gallery.

The 2011 commemoration consists of two separate exhibitions celebrating the receipt of two significant gifts of collections related to Abraham Lincoln. The first exhibition is on view now through June 6, and the second will be on display from June 14-Dec. 20.

"Selections from the Thomas Herlihy III Collection" is on view through Monday, June 6, 2011.

Herlihy is a Wilmington attorney who has had a lifelong interest in Lincoln's life and career, and he has built a significant collection of books and other materials on Lincoln and the Civil War era. A longtime member of the Lincoln Club of Delaware, he has been a board member and served as president of the club in 1982, continuing a tradition of Herlihy family service to the Lincoln Club. Herlihy's father, Thomas Herlihy Jr., served as president in 1975, and his brother, the Hon. Jerome O. Herlihy, served as president in 1982.

Herlihy, who also served as vice chair of the Delaware Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Commission from 2006-2009, portrayed Abraham Lincoln for many years as a Lincoln re-enactor, appearing as the 16th president in schools and community organizations throughout Delaware and the surrounding region.

The Herlihy collection includes a diverse array of books, ranging from 19th century accounts of Lincoln's life, presidency and assassination to broader topics, such as the history of the Civil War, slavery and the Confederacy.

A number of books are from the library of Thomas Herlihy Jr. and bear his bookplate.

The University of Delaware Library received the extensive historical map collection of the late Pearl Herlihy Daniels as a gift from her sons, Thomas Herlihy III and the Hon. Jerome O. Herlihy. Both are members of the University of Delaware Library Associates, the friends group of the University of Delaware Library. Mrs. Daniels also was a member of the Library Associates, including serving on its Board of Directors.

Another significant gift the library received in 2010 is the Otto C. Rentner Lincoln and Civil War Literature Collection.

The Rentner collection contains a variety of books, journals and ephemera focusing on Abraham Lincoln and the Civil War era. The collection is particularly strong for books published in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Otto C Rentner was born on Sept. 17, 1887, in Chicago. He received his law degree from the Illinois College of Law (now Kent Law School). After law school he practiced law at Rentner and Meyer Law Firm in Chicago. He became an assistant judge in the Circuit Court of Chicago and was very active in Democratic politics. In 1946 he moved to Appleton, Wisc., to join the Aid Association for Lutherans Insurance Co. as general counsel, then vice president, president and chairman of the board. He was a Lincoln and Civil War scholar for most of his adult life and was a member of the Lincoln Society of Illinois. Mr. Rentner died June 29, 1964.

"Selections from the Otto C. Rentner, Lincoln and Civil War Literature Collection" will be on display from Tuesday, June 14, through Tuesday, Dec. 20.

Both exhibitions can be viewed during the regular hours of the Morris Library. The curator of the exhibitions is Timothy Murray, head of the Special Collections Department in the University of Delaware Library.

Downtown parking

Driving and parking in Newark isn't as difficult as it may seem, as long as you know where to look for spaces.

Downtown streets are lined with metered spots. A quarter will buy you 20 minutes.

Three city parking lots are accessible by way of Main Street or Delaware Avenue, but if you miss them don't fret. Just turn left, turn left and turn left. Doing so will take you back to the other end of Main Street, where you can take another shot at finding parking.

If you're planning to dine or shop downtown, ask to have your parking ticket validated. Many downtown businesses now validate their customers' vouchers for the city parking lots.

Every Sunday, parking is free at all municipal meters and off-street lots. The city provides free parking for holidays and special events, as well.

One of the city's three public lots switched over from multi-space, metered parking to a gated, ticketed lot. Now customers making use of City Lot #1 behind the Galleria and between Delaware Avenue and Main Street, can obtain a ticket when they pull into the lot and pay at a pay station before exiting.

The automated pay stations (one in the Galleria lobby and one in the parking lot) accept coins, dollar bills and credit cards. The machines provide change.

First time at Summer Camp?

Conversation topics to explore with your child

By Bob Ditter American Camp Association

Sending your child away to camp for the first time is a major milestone for most families, one that is often marked by excitement, anticipation, and perhaps even some anxiety. Though camp is certainly about making friends and having fun, it is also about being on your own and being a part of a community. One of the most important things you as a parent can do to help prepare your child for both these aspects of camp is to talk with your child about it before he/she goes. In fact, it may be better to have several occasional, shorter talks rather than one long conversation as children often absorb more when there is less to think about at one time. I also find that children do better with this sort of conversation if it is part of a more general conversation and if it is part of a pattern of talking, either at the dinner table or while riding in the car doing errands.

The following are some sample topics for discussion that will help prepare your child emotionally for their big adventure:

Friends

Camp is not anything if it is not about making new friends. If you are shy about meeting new kids, then learn to get to know others by being a good listener. Remember also that not everyone in your cabin, bunk, or group has to be your friend, and you don't have to be everyone else's friend. As long as you treat others with respect and they do the same with you, then having one or two friends at camp is fine. If you have more, then that's great!

Activities

There are many exciting things to do at camp, many of which you may never have tried before. If your child tends to be a bit homesick or worried about being homesick, remind him/her about the excitement of going to camp: Remember, when you first decided to go to camp, what made you so excited? You may not like all the activities, or you may be better at some than others. That's normal. I, however, hope you are willing to try. The more you put into camp, the more you will get out of it!

Cooperating

You, like every other camper there, will be part of a cabin, bunk, or group. As your parent, I hope you will cooperate with others and help out. That's part of what makes camp so special - kids helping each other out. Most kids will help you if you are friendly and help them. Give yourself time. One thing about camp is that almost everything is new — the kids, the activities, the routines, the bed you sleep in, the bathroom. It takes a few days to get adjusted, so be patient with yourself. Most of the time you will be having so much fun you won't mind all the changes, but if you do, remember that you will get so used to things that by the time you come home you will miss all those things!

Helping out

Camp is about fun, but it also requires that you help out. Clean-up is part of camp. You do it every day! As your parent, I hope you will cooperate!

Getting help

Everyone has good days and bad days. If you are having a problem, your counselor is there to help you! You don't have to wait to tell us if you are upset about something. After all, if your counselor doesn't know what might be troubling you, he/she can't help you. Be honest and ask for what you need. If your counselor doesn't seem to be concerned or doesn't help you, then you can go to the unit director, head counselor, etc. Parents should know who these "back-up persons" are and how their child will recognize them if they need to.

Being positive

It's a great thing to remind your first-time camper about his or her strong points. I would focus not just on what they do well, but their positive qualities as well, such as what makes them a good friend or the type of person other kids would want to know. Helping children identify their strengths can help them when they are having a setback — one of those inevitable growing pains all children have from time to time.

Talking with your child about these kinds of issues is a great way to show support as your child gets ready to take this important step on the road to being more resilient and self-reliant. For you as a parent, it can give you more peace of mind as you allow your child to participate safely in a broader world.

Ready, Set, Camp!

Finding the right camp

You are considering a summer camp, but how to choose? There's a camp that is ideally suited for every child, providing a summer of growth and fun whether your child attends a day or overnight camp, a specialized or traditional camp. With a little help from the camp professionals at the American Camp Association, here's some sound advice that helps parents sort through the choices and benefits that camp delivers. As spring approaches, parents and children can look forward to planning for the future—a future that includes the opportunities for exploration and discovery that arrives with summer camp.

When is Your Child Ready?

Children are ready for new experiences at different stages. Parents know their children best and these questions can help gauge whether this is the summer your child will start camp.

What is your child's age? Children under age seven may not adjust easily to being away from home. Consider the day camp experience to prepare them for future overnight camp.

How did your child become interested in camp? Does your child talk about camp on a sustained basis? How much persuasion is necessary from you?

Has your child had positive overnight experiences away from home? Visiting relatives or friends? Were these separations easy or difficult?

What does your child expect to do at camp? Learning about the camp experience ahead of time allows you to create positive expectations.

Are you able to share consistent and positive messages about camp? Your confidence in a positive experience will be contagious.

A camp for every child—the perfect fit

Camp can last for just a few days or stretch to all summer long. It's well worth the trouble to investigate the variety of choices offered by camps before your child packs a backpack. These questions help you consider the options.

Where do you want your child to go to camp? Locally or far away? While each camp experience has something unique to offer your child, this is an opportunity for families to assess what they value for their campers.

Benefits of Camp Nearby:

Easier to evaluate and visit
Friends and family are likely familiar with camp
Minimal travel costs
Likely contact with classmates or children from same region

Benefits of Camp Far Away:

More choices
Different experiences, different geography,
even different languages
Promotes independence, particularly for early and late adolescent campers
Diversity of campers

Chance for family to visit and vacation at close of camp

Tips on choosing the right camp for your child

► CAMP SELECTION, from 3

Great exposure to camp experience with less expense

Minimizes homesickness

Benefits of Longer Sessions

(four-twelve weeks)

Strong sense of belonging to camp community

Chance to learn new skills

Development of specialized skills

Multiple opportunities for learning and enrichment

Lifelong friendships

Opportunities to contribute to camp culture

Boys Only, Girls Only, or Co-ed?

Now may be the opportunity to explore the choices and benefits of all boys, all girls, or co-ed camps.

Benefits of Single Sex Camps

Breaking gender stereotypes—girls interact with women in position of authority and boys interact with men who act as nurturers

More opportunities to "be yourself" without impressing or competing with the opposite sex

Camp philosophy may be tuned into gender strengths and weaknesses Brother or sister camps may share activities

Benefits of Co-ed Camps

Breaking gender stereotypes—girls interact with women in positions of authority and boys interact with men who act as nurturers

Mirrors and prepares campers for everyday living in a co-ed world

Allows families with a boy and a girl to attend the same camp

Offers diverse points of view
Breaks through rigid divisions set up in

Breaks through rigid divisions set up in school when campers participate in equal footing

Traditional, specialty, and special needs

Choices abound when it comes to camp programs. One may highlight a wide variety of activities geared to campers of all ages and skill levels, others, because of their setting and expertise, may concentrate on one or two activities while providing traditional activities as well. Parents of children with special needs are pleased to learn about the range of camp activities that help kids be kids first.

Benefits of Traditional Camps

Wide variety of activities Chance for campers to try new activities Exposure to more campers and staff at varying activities

Benefits of Specialty Camps

One or two specialized activities (often combined with traditional offerings)

Expectation for increased proficiency during camping session Deepens knowledge and skill in particular area of interest or ability

Benefits of Special Needs Camps Activities geared to campers' abilities

Knowledgeable staff with expertise to understand campers'

strengths and challenges

Supportive and fun atmosphere to share with others

The value of camp

What happens when you make the decision to choose camp? You open up a world of discovery and learning for your child, a world that values children for who they are and who they will become. Camp gives each child a world of good.

Six things to consider when packing for Camp

1. Footwear is important for children at camp, especially when they are hiking, spelunking, running, and heading to the beach! ACA recommends families consider packing boots, tennis shoes, sandals, lots of socks—and dress shoes, if the camp requires them. And don't forget to break in shoes and boots before camp begins!

2. Headgear is a necessary packing item for camp in order to protect a camper from the sun and also bugs. ACA suggests that parents consider packing scarves, bandannas, baseball caps or a sunhat, as well as needed eyeglasses, sunglasses, and swimming goggles.

3. Clothing is a necessary component of camp, just don't expect any to return home clean! ACA recommends families include T-shirts, a swim suit, and shorts for hot days; a jacket, sweatshirt, jeans for cool or cold days; and a raincoat or poncho for rainy days. Also, long pants will protect a camper from poison ivy, bugs, and thorns during hikes. Check with the camp to see if dress clothes are required.

4. Bed and Bath is an aspect of camp that can't be ignored, as having fun and getting dirty go together for most kids! ACA recommends a family bring towels, as well as a blanket, pillow, pillow cases, sheets, sleeping bag, laundry bag, and mattress pad.

5. Bathroom Kits are essential, even though there is no guarantee they will always get used as often as parents would hope. ACA recommends families provide campers with a brush and comb, shampoo, soap and soap container, toothbrush and holder, toothpaste, deodorant, insect repellent, feminine products, sun block, shaving gear, and lip balm with sun block in it.

6. Gear can keep a child entertained during those rainy or slow days. ACA recommends packing books and magazines, flashlights and batteries, a water bottle, and writing materials. When considering electronics, musical instruments, and other special gear, check with the camp about policies.

The bottom line - camp costs

Parents know that camp is an experience that will last a lifetime. However, they may worry about the cost, especially if there is more than one camp-aged child in the house. The good news for parents is that there is a camp for just about every budget. While fees to attend camp vary, they can range from $75 to over $650 per week for American Camp Association-accredited resident and day camps.

Parents may also reduce the costs by asking the right questions. When talking with the camp director, parents should ask the fol-

· What is the refund policy? Refund policies vary greatly from camp to camp. Some refund for illness only, some will give a total refund prior to certain date, and some don not refund at all. Most camps will ask for a small non-refundable deposit at the time of application, which may or may not go toward the cost of tuition. It is important to know the refund policy before you send any money.

 Is there financial assistance available? Many camps offer camperships, which is a partial or total subsidy of the tuition costs, but parents need to ask if they are available. Although they are usually awarded based on need, don not assume that you make too much to qualify. It is important to apply early.

· What is included in the tuition? Day camps will typically include transportation as part of their tuition. Resident camps may offer limited transportation, such as a van ride from a major local train station. Other amenities to ask about are fees for special programs and trips, laundry service, camp canteen, special equipment that is required and service organization membership. Also, ask the camp director if it is appropriate to send spending money with your

 Are special discounts available? Often, camps will offer special discounts for such things as early registration, full-season enrollment, and enrollment of multiple family members. If more than one special discount applies, parents may only be able to take advantage of one.

The great news about homesickness

Christopher A. Thurber, Ph.D. American Camp Association

That's right . . . there's great news about homesickness! For starters, you should know that:

 Homesickness (or "missing home") is normal. In study after study, researchers found that 95 percent of boys and girls who were spending at least two weeks at overnight camp felt some degree of homesickness. Children at day camp may also feel pangs of homesickness, but less frequently.

• Homesickness is typically mild. Nearly everyone misses something about home when they're away. Some campers most miss their parents; others most miss home cooking, a sibling, or the family pet. Whatever they miss, the vast majority of children have a great time at camp and are not bothered by mild homesickness.

 Homesickness is something everyone can learn to cope with. In fact, research has uncovered multiple strategies that work for kids. Most kids use more than one strategy to help them deal with homesickness.

• Homesickness builds confidence. Overcoming a bout of homesickness and enjoying time away from home nurtures children's independence and prepares them for the future. The fact that second-year campers are usually less homesick than first-year campers is evidence of this powerful growth.

• Homesickness has a silver lining. If there's something about home children miss, that means there's something about home they love — and that's a wonderful thing. Sometimes just knowing that what they feel is a reflection of love makes campers feel much better.

So if nearly everyone feels some homesickness, what can be done to prevent a really strong case of homesickness? Here's a recipe for positive camp preparation:

· Make camp decisions together.

Arrange lots of practice time away from home.

• Share your optimism, not your anxiety.

· Never ever make a pick-up deal.

OK, then, what are the most effective ways of coping with homesickness at camp? What advice can you write in a letter or e-mail to your son or daughter if you get a homesick letter?

Anti-Homesickness Strategies

Stay busy. Doing a fun, physical activity nearly always reduces homesickness intensity.

• Stay positive. Remembering all the cool stuff you can do at camp keeps the focus on fun, not on home.

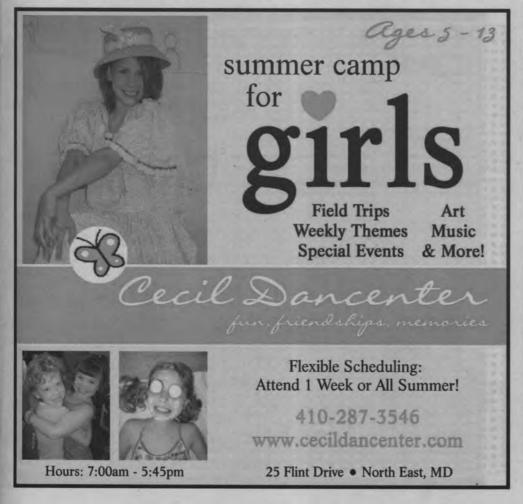

• Stay in touch. Writing letters, looking at a photo from home, or holding a memento from home can be very comforting.

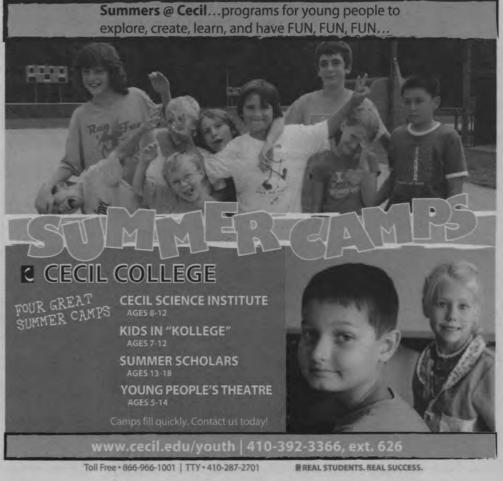

• Stay social. Making new friends is a perfect antidote to bothersome homesickness. Talking to the staff at camp is also reassuring.

• Stay focused. Remember that you're not at camp forever, just a few weeks. Bringing a calendar to camp helps you be clear about the length of your stay.

• Stay confident. Anti-homesickness strategies take some time to work. Kids who stick with their strategies for five or six days almost always feel better.

Mom and Dad, your help preparing your child for this amazing growth experience will pay huge dividends. After a session of camp, you'll see an increase in your child's confidence, social skills, and leadership. And while your son or daughter is at camp, you can enjoy a well-deserved break from full-time parenthood. Remember: Homesickness is part of normal development. Our job should be to coach children through the experience, not to avoid the topic altogether.

Prevention and care Your child's health at camp

By Linda Ebner Erceg American Camp Association

Letting go means different things to families. Growth. Independence. Opportunities. No arena is more challenging for parents than entrusting their child's well-being to others.

We have our medicine cabinets brimming with bright Band-Aids® and children's cold medicines, not to mention the ready hug and kiss when the need arises. So, what's a camp to do?

A look at what camp health professionals are talking about helps parents prepare for a child's camp experience. Linda Ebner Erceg knows campers literally from the inside out, and as a camp nurse and leader in the field of camp nursing, she shares some of her know-how with parents.

Camp health form — what happens after you "stick out your tongue"

The camp health form provides the perfect opportunity to assess the overall state of your child's health and growth. Preparation should include parents reflecting on some of the following:

- Growth and development (physical, intellectual, emotional)
- Eating and sleeping habits (changes are important, too)
  - · Recent illnesses or injuries
- Immunizations (also note travel, especially outside the U.S.)
  - Fitness
  - · Behavior
  - · Family life adjustment or challenges
  - · Puberty and other developmental issues

Whether pediatrician or family practitioner, your child's doctor is an active partner sharing a common goal — the health and wellness of your child. And this partnership informs the next partnership you are about to establish — the one with your child's camp.

A thorough exam prior to a camp session allows you to take the necessary steps to communicate fully with the camp's healthcare staff. The physical is also a chance to update that very important health history.

Communication is a two-way street

Camp directors and health-care staff are eager to discuss the health concerns and needs of campers. Armed with your own observations and information from your child's health-care provider, you can ask the right questions and provide the information that creates the most positive experience for your child.

Families with children experiencing chronic health problems may occasionally forget to share some of the routine care instructions — second nature to them, but unfamiliar to camp nurses and staff. This also is a major step in assuring that your child will not be marginalized because the staff is unprepared to smoothly integrate medicines or treatments into the camp routine. Have a management plan in place before your child begins camp and determine how the camp will communicate that plan to its staff.

Another area of concern for camp professionals is a child's exposure to health risks from traveling, particularly outside the U.S. Again, sharing this information about travel previous to camp will lead to a more complete picture of your child's health and will strengthen the partnership.

For more tips on health forms and questions to ask a camp director or health professional, visit www.CampParents.org.

Something is making me sneeze — allergies and asthma

Children's health profiles are best described as moving targets.

Allergies, both mild and severe, can exhibit themselves for the first time at camp or be exacerbated because exposures at camp vary from those experiences while at home. Parents need to get the assurance from camp staff that they are prepared to address these symptoms if they occur, as well as the procedures they follow.

Camps offer a rich profile of activities for children, and given various health concerns, parents are advised to carefully select a camp for their child with this in mind. Children who have asthma, for example, aren't necessarily a good match for a camp emphasizing scuba diving or rock climbing, while a strong pioneer or crafts program at another camp may be a perfect fit for their child. Parents will want to learn what accommodations camps can make for health issues while at the same time presenting a range of activities appropriate for their camper.

Emotional and psychological wellness

For campers with diagnosed psychological challenges or in cases where parents are unsure about a child's behavior, parents need to talk with the child's professional care provider and assess whether the child is a good risk for camp at this stage. Just as a pediatrician needs information about the camp under consideration, so, too, does the child's mental health practitioner. A shorterstay camp, for example, offering a two-week stay, has a very different skill set profile for campers than one offering a longer-term stay. Day camps offer another option for parents to consider — maintaining a familiar routine at home to balance the challenges of a program filled with new faces and new activities.

Stress happens - even at camp!

Sometimes in our rush for community and togetherness, we forget that contemporary children are often used to solitude, and, may, in fact, need quiet time and space to reflect on their day. Providing a child with a clock radio with headphones or a CD player tucked under a pillow may allow your son or daughter to decompress. Ask the camp director or camp health-care provider about opportunities for private time. Maybe the camp library is the perfect place — or a sheltered outdoor spot away from the fray of games will provide the quiet and restful area that your camper may seek. Talking with your child ahead of time reassures both of you that camp can and does accommodate many different personalities and needs while offering a wealth of activities to share.

Preparing for group living

Be consistent. That's one of the most important maxims of parenting. But wait! At camp, we ask children to turn some rules upside down: share bunk beds, equipment, bathrooms, and even talk to strangers. The good news is camp creates the perfect setting to learn these new skills in a supportive environment.

Designed for healthy living

When we think about it, camp practices what parents and health professionals are always preaching: be active, get up off the couch, turn off the TV, stop snacking before meals, listen to others, cooperate, eat a variety of foods, sleep well. It's a nearly invisible set of rules that makes a world of difference. At camp, we believe that enthusiasm for a healthy life is, in the best sense, contagious!

Programs help children love their planet Earth

Whether a child makes his home in the heart of the city or the fields of the heart-land, daily life can make getting "back to nature" hard for any family. Yet experiencing the outdoors helps children gain enhanced abilities to learn, lead, and experience contentment, as well as gain a lifelong interest in caring for planet earth.

A toad or a frog?

Parents who want to be sure their kids know a toad from a frog and a catfish from a crawfish don't need to go it alone. Camp programs are among the very best ways for children to get to know first-hand a very important family member — Mother Nature.

Take James, for example. Despite being included in many family travels, James and the natural world had only a passing acquaintance, and his parents were wise enough to send him into the woods for camp.

"We have a little potato patch down by the river, and the kids can catch a trout in the river and dig up potatoes and bring them back to camp, learning what it's like to live off the land," explains Sandy Schenk, owner and director of Green River Preserve camp of Cedar Mountain, N. C. "When James's parents came to pick him up at week's end, he dragged his duffle bag across the parking lot, gave his mom and dad a big hug, and fished out his prize from camp, a huge potato, and gave it to his father. He was so proud. This was a first — he made a connection between the earth and food, and you could just see the light bulbs turn on."

Almost all camps incorporate hikes and nature activities, and some go an extra mile to immerse kids in nature and the environment. "We find that getting kids into the natural world is transformational," says Schenk. "Nature's a magnificent teacher because everyone is treated the same. Pushing yourself is something that happens naturally in the out of doors. And when you see kids helping each other over a slippery rock wall, it's amazing. We see each child come out of the program with a greater understanding of nature and better sense of self."

Eagles' Nest Camp of Pisgah Forest, N.C., has been teaching kids to take care of their natural world for decades. "In our Explorer's Club class, kids are out in the woods, streams, and bushes, really getting a feel for the amazing biodiversity of the Northern Appalachians," explains Noni Waite-Kucera, executive director of Eagle's Nest Foundation. "To have kids be able to explore and be a part of that is a real gift for them."

Eagle's Nest also sponsors camp craft classes, helping children learn to read a map, build a fire, and leave no trace. "We teach every camper how to respect and avoid making an impact on the environment," she says. Even an earth art class uses items found in the forest for woodland sculptures, which campers then leave behind to biodegrade and contribute to the health of the forest ecosystem.

You are what you eat

Environmental programs don't always take place exclusively in the outdoors. Enter the kitchen! The Whole Kitchen program uses holistic ingredients, fresh foods, whole grains, and local produce. "We grind our flour from wheat berries, and the kids make the bread," Waite-Kucera says. "It's all a way to show how nature provides for us, and why we need to return the favor."

Sometimes, a camp's location can provide built-in environmental lessons. At Windsor Mountain (formerly Interlocken), camp life centers around a small farm and camp garden nestled in the foothills of New Hampshire on the edge of a 4,000-acre nature preserve.

"We offer kids a chance to get their feet wet in the morning dew, to feel the grass under their feet, to lie down in the field and look up at the stars. Our activities help them understand how Mother Nature is delicate and why we care about helping to protect her," says Sarah Herman, director of the camp.

Art and nature

Campers harvest vegetables from the garden for the salad bar and help take care of the farm animals. Children with a special interest in nature also can go directly into the marsh to learn about its animal habitats, into the woods to create natural art, or on a bog-wading ecological adventure. For older youth, three-day, off-campus trips can take campers backpacking, mountain climbing, rafting, and more — all with an eye to building awareness in the natural surroundings.

Regardless of which you choose, nearly all campers leave with an enhanced appreciation of the outdoors, and some even take environmental skills into their own communities. "One of our campers who enjoyed our garden wrote to tell us that he's volunteering his time to a community garden project," Herman says.

It's that kind of lifelong love for nature that camps of all types can foster. "Fear of the woods and nature walls off so much excitement for too many children," says Schenk. "We feel like we're opening a door for many of our campers, so they can enjoy natural parks and wildlife preserves for the rest of their lives."

Doing what comes nature-ly

According to Camping Specialist Gary Forster of YMCA USA, camps are an ideal setting for creating environmental awareness in our children. "Children seeing animals in a natural setting for more than just a day and understanding how their choices have an impact on all systems of life is just the beginning. From awareness grows an appreciation, and from that standpoint, we see children who are ready to act."

Interrelationships Plants and animals live in communities that meet their special needs, and are connected through a "web of life." To make good decisions, we need to be honest about how our choices will affect the other living things around us. The choices we make now can affect the future of everything we care about.

Cycles The building materials of life (air, water, soil) are used over and over again. Conservation doesn't mean just using less: it means learning to respect how natural systems work, and then working with them. It's the "circle of life."

Awareness Leads to Appreciation, which leads to Action.

Spending time in the outdoors can bring people closer to God, closer to each other, and closer to the beautiful natural world.

It can relieve stress, improve health, and it results in people learning to care. When we care, we act differently. We're in charge of our own actions first, which can positively change our family, our community, and our Resources The decisions we make everyday have lasting consequences. The more we understand how things work, the wiser we can be in our decisions. We can all learn to reduce, reuse, and recycle our natural resources. When we understand the responsibility we have to each other, and to the living things around us, we can rethink old problems and create wonderful new solutions!

Energy Flow The sun is the source of energy for all living things. Green plants (Producers) turn some of that energy into food, some of which is then used by animals (Consumers); which can eventually be broken down for use again (by Decomposers). We also harvest the sun's energy when we use solar, wind, and water power, and when we use fossil fuels like gas, oil, and coal.

In your own backyard

- · Start a recycling program at home. Find out what your community recycles and what happens to the recyclables.
- Save 3-5 gallons of water when you brush your teeth - no need to keep the water running.
- At the store, consider the packaging — is it disposable
- or reusable/recyclable?
- · When cleaning, choose rags that can be reused after washing.
- · Plant a tree in your backyard or neighborhood - help keep the air clean.

Camp Terminology.

Assembly: A meeting, usually once a day, where campers and staff gather to hear announcements, sing songs, and share news.

Buddy system: You choose a buddy for swimming or some other activity, and you stay close to that person and make sure they stay out of trouble.

Bunk: This can mean both the cabin you sleep in and the actual bed inside the cabin. If there are "bunk beds" you get to choose upper or lower.

Campfire: At night the campers and staff gather around a large bonfire to sing and tell stories.

Counselor: These are the grownups who lead the campers and teach activities. If it's an overnight camp, they usually sleep in the tent or cabin with the campers.

Crafts: Most camps have some kind of arts-and-crafts program. You might learn to weave a basket or make a wood carving. You'll probably make things you can take home as souvenirs or gifts to your family and friends.

Free time: Most camps follow a schedule with planned activities and events. During free time you can read, take a nap, write letters, or maybe go to the camp store and buy a treat.

Free swim: This is time in the pool or lake when you can just paddle around or play with friends instead of taking swim lessons.

Taps: If you stay at a live-in camp, you'll probably hear this bugle song played at night, slow and peaceful, to put the camp to sleep.
