Roselle's legacy

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A nearly 1,000-point increase in SAT scores for incoming freshmen.

A 75 percent increase in full-time graduate students.

An increase in the number of endowed faculty positions from 21 to 106.

An increase in the endowment from $326 million to $1.2 billion.

And, of course, the Bob Carpenter Center, Gore Hall, Lerner Hall, the Courtyard by Marriott and the Center for the Arts to name just a few of the new buildings that are now on campus.

That's just a small sample of what was accomplished at the University of Delaware during outgoing president David Roselle's leadership.

While there is an obvious excitement about new president Dr. Patrick Harker as he takes over the reins next week, let's not forget everything that David Roselle accomplished during his 17-year tenure.

Roselle transformed the University of Delaware from a quality state and regional university into one that has much more national exposure and one that has climbed all the college rankings year after year.

There's no question that the campus has been upgraded in terms of physical improvements over the years. Every summer there have been projects undertaken all over the campus and the results have been magnificent.

A SALUTE TO THOSE WHO SERVE

Newark businessman crafts poetry to honor heroes

James Manniso holds a framed poem and print saluting members of the U.S. Military. His work is available online at soldiergifts.com. Above: An example of Manniso's work. This print was done for all branches of the armed forces.

An entrepreneur, retired engineer and former Golden Gloves boxer, Newark businessman James Manniso surprises, somewhat, when he speaks on one of his many other talents: writing poetry.

Through his Newark-based business, Prints of Poetry, Manniso sells poems he has written in tribute to the veterans of the Vietnam War, the men and women who serve in America's Armed Forces and firefighters that risk their lives, everyday, in their own communities.

The poems appear on colorful, commemorative posters, just below a painting by a professional artist that depicts the scene. The posters can be framed and dedicated to a particular serviceman or woman with the addition of a gold plaque.

Manniso said he began reading poetry as a teenager, but it wasn't something he showed off. "Because when you grow up in South Philadelphia, you do not want anyone to know that you're reading poetry. Even though I was a boxer, I didn't need anymore fights," he said.

The first lines he wrote came to him in the early 1950s, he said, when he was in the Navy serving

Kelli Racca, Christina District's supervisor of facilities services, told the school board on Tuesday night that they need all the help they can get to develop a Neighborhood Schools plan that meets the mandate of the General Assembly. "We have to use the capacity in buildings we have," Racca said. "We need the public's help to decide what we can do, or where to fight for a hardship exemption."

School superintendent Lillian Lowery echoed the challenge. "We've got to put out a plan that is compliant with the Neighborhood Schools Act and our existing buildings."

Trap closes, auction planned

A sign outside the Trap advertises a public auction of its contents to be held next month. The restaurant is closed and the building will be demolished to make way for a new office and apartment complex.

Thompson family ran popular Newark restaurant for 25 years

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

With little fanfare, the Trap seafood restaurant on Elkton Road closed its doors earlier this month. A sign in front of the building advertises a public auction to be held in July for a sale of items inside.

The Trap opened as the Crab Trap in 1982, owned by Paul Thompson and his family. It started out in the back room of the High's Dairy outlet, and the facility grew as the business did. Thompson and his family ran the business for 25 years. The restaurant catered to a mix of residents, from college professors to retirees, construction workers to professionals, and the many regulars that came in, some more than once a week.

In an interview last February, Thompson posited that customers were drawn to the familiarity of the Trap. "They keep coming back.... They're comfortable with it. It's not new and modern and brassy," he said then.

But the facility was due an update, and, in recent years, Paul Thompson's son, Tim, took on the project.

Last year, Newark's City Council approved Tim

Thompson's proposal to revamp the corner with new retail space and apartments. The first phase of the project — to build two brick buildings with eight townhouses each behind the Trap restaurant — has been completed. Tenants began moving in earlier this month.

The second phase of the project requires the demolition of the restaurant and a small office building on the site. Thompson said demolition should occur sometime this summer with construction starting by early fall on a new, J-shaped building that will front Elkton Road and Amstel Avenue. This building will have retail space on the first floor and six, upper-level apartments.

Thompson said closing the restaurant his family ran for 25 years was somewhat emotional, but he "crossed that bridge," he said, during the design and approval process.

"The real emotional thing, I think, happened a year and a half ago when we got the project approved. I knew then what we were doing was a reality," he said. "Now, this is kind of the denouement."

The closing, he said, was tougher on his father. "I guess the finality of it didn't hit him until the business closed," said Thompson.

Some of the Trap will live on, and longtime customers will have a chance at owning a piece of memorabilia. Nearly everything in the restaurant, including large kitchen equipment, tables, chairs, even the paintings that hung on the walls, will be up for auction on Monday, July 9, from noon to 4 p.m. and Tuesday, July 10, starting at 10 a.m.

The auction, which will take place at the Elkton Road site, is being handled by John J. McGrellis III. For more information, visit www.mcgrellisauction.com.

Barksdale Road condos get OK

Council approves Main Street project, too

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Two development projects got the OK at a meeting of Newark's City Council on Monday night.

With 7 to 0 votes, council approved a proposal to build 12 townhouse condominiums at a 1.16-acre property at 711 Barksdale Road and one to build a 2,400-square-foot mixed-use building at 209 E. Main Street.

Matt Longo of Hillcrest Associates said the Barksdale Road project, known as "Sutton Place," will be marketed "to adult buyers and professionals that would like to live close to downtown." Owner Ed Sobolewski said prices for the 2,000-square-foot units with two-car garages would start at $350,000.

The project stipulates that no more than two unrelated tenants will be able to live in each townhouse, an effort to prevent the development from turning into student rentals.

Planning Director Roy Lopata said the restriction has been effective in other developments. "We're not interested in increasing the rental market in this area," he told council.

Most discussion on the project centered on a fence that will separate the property from the CSX right-of-way. The back of the property borders the railroad tracks; townhouses will be built 100 to 280 feet away from those tracks.

Though the city's planning commission recommended a masonry wall, city council voted, instead, to require the developer to install a chain link fence after the developer argued that the masonry wall could cause problems with stormwater runoff and graffiti.

Longo described the townhouse architecture as English Tudor-style and said the project "will be very pleasant looking from Barksdale Road."

With little discussion, council approved a request by Gahunia LLC to build a 2,400-square foot brick building with three, two-story apartments in the now-vacant lot at 209 E. Main Street.

The property, said attorney Mark Sisk, is owned by Dr. Narinder Singh, a physician who has practiced in Newark for 30 years. The new building, known as "Bela Place," will be used for residential and commercial purposes.

CITY BRIEFS

Country Club review moved to August

Planning Director Roy Lopata said Monday the Newark Planning Commission may begin its review of the proposed residential development of the Newark Country Club property earlier than anticipated.

"It looks like the process may start at the August planning commission meeting. At least that's our tentative plan at this point," he said.

Last week, Lopata said the review would start in September "at the earliest." However, because the internal review went faster than anticipated, that date has now changed.

At this point, said Lopata, it looks like the project will be reviewed by the planning commission at its Tuesday, Aug. 7, meeting. The meeting starts at 7:30 p.m., in council chambers. Developers have submitted plans to build 268 single-family homes on the property along West Main Street. The project is to be known as "Country Club Estates."

Changes at Newark post offices

After a recent evaluation of the Newark mail delivery operations, the United States Postal Service has opted to make some minor adjustments to several mail delivery routes in town.

A spokesman for USPS said mail carriers now stationed at the post office on Main Street will be relocated to the main Newark office on Ogletown Road.

This move will help "improve operational efficiency and eliminate some excessive internal transportation between the stations," said Ray V. Daiutolo of USPS public affairs.

Daiutolo said customers should not see any change in their mail delivery because of the carriers' move. Retail operations at the Main Street post office will not be affected, he said.

Sidewalk approved

At Monday's meeting, Newark City Council approved a contract for the installation of a sidewalk along Old Paper Mill Road at the base of the city's reservoir.

Funds for the more-than-$130,000 project were made available, in part, by a grant from Delaware Land and Water Conservation Trust Fund, said Carol Houck, assistant to the city manager.

State awards more than $133,000 in Merit Scholarships

Students from the Christina, Red Clay, and Colonial school districts, as well as the Delaware Military Academy and St. Mark's High School, were among high school seniors receiving more than $133,000 in 2007 Merit Scholarships from the state of Delaware.

The Delaware Higher Education Commission (DHEC) announced the recipients of state Merit Scholarships for the 2007-08 academic year. Merit scholarships are competitive awards based on a student's academic performance, participation in school activities and service to the community. Students can apply for Delaware merit scholarships in their senior year of high school and all five awards are renewable.

"The students who compete for these scholarships have dedicated themselves to achieving a high standard of academic excellence," said Carylin C. Brinkley, DHEC programs administrator. "There is a great deal of pride felt during the review process when you realize how committed these young people are to their education and communities. The Commission wishes all of our recipients continued success in their future academic journeys."

Three memorial merit scholarships honor state legislators and provide full tuition, fees, room, board, and books at public colleges in Delaware. Alissa Sheila Werzen of Thomas McKean High School received the B. Bradford Barnes Scholarship, while Ashley

E. Glover of Polytech High School received the Herman M. Holloway Sr. Memorial Scholarship. The B. Bradford Barnes Memorial Scholarship, in honor of the former Speaker of the State House of Representatives, is awarded to one student each year enrolling at the University of Delaware. The Herman M. Holloway Sr. Memorial Scholarship, in honor of Delaware's first African-American State Senator, is awarded to one student at Delaware State University.

Charles Emmett Clark and Heather Renee Lehman, both of Caesar Rodney High School, were recipients of Charles L. Hebner Memorial Scholarships. The Charles L. Hebner Memorial Scholarship, in honor of the former Speaker of the State House of Representatives, is awarded to one student at each school who is majoring in the humanities or social sciences (preference is given to political science majors).

The Diamond State Scholarship and the Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship assist students attending regionally accredited colleges in any state. Winners of the Diamond State Scholarship receive $1,250 per year while Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship recipients receive $1,500 per year (based upon funding from the U.S. Congress).

For the 2007-08 academic year, 45 students were awarded Diamond State Scholarships and 14 students received the Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship.

Winners for these awards were:

Happy Birthday America!

By JON BUZBY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

Parades, picnics and fireworks. Sounds like the 4th of July to me. But is that all our kids think it is – fun and games? Or do they know the real reason we celebrate this holiday?

There are no gifts exchanged or egg hunts. Flowers are not given and nobody dresses up. You don't see it advertised in the mall months beforehand.

This holiday lacks the cost and the hustle and bustle of the other popular ones (maybe why it's one of my favorites). And yet, we have more reason to be excited about this celebration than any other holiday. It's this holiday when we celebrate a gift that is absolutely priceless – independence.

When we parents were growing up, a war was something we read about in history books or watched on television reruns of MASH. Now, unfortunately, you see it live on the news every night. I'm sure many kids have come to accept war as just part of their everyday life. But do they truly understand why we fought the Revolutionary War – and celebrate the victory annually in July?

Independence Day, declared a federal holiday in 1941, is celebrated on July 4 because that is the day when the Continental Congress adopted the final draft of the Declaration of Independence to separate from England.

How many of your kids know that? They've probably heard of England and most likely know a bunch of presidents signed some sort of declaration. But do they truly know how our forefathers battled for their country's freedom?

Do they realize there is more to July 4th than barbecuing and watching parades?

Have they figured out that those Patriots that now play football in Foxboro are really named after soldiers who often starved while winning battle after battle during the Revolutionary War?

Do they know the reason we have parades on the fourth is to celebrate our freedom, not gather free candy flung from fire engines?

Do we remind our kids that it's not just a day off from work for us, but rather a day to take a few minutes off from the horseshoe game to be thankful for our freedom? Do they understand freedom? Probably not – they know no different.

Do they really know what a "John Hancock" is? How often have they heard you say, "I'll just sign my John Hancock," but really have no clue that it is the most easily recognizable signature on the Declaration of Independence (so the King of England could read it without his spectacles).

Do they know that both the author and editor of the Declaration of Independence, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, coincidentally died on July 4th?

Some of my fondest memories are from watching fireworks with my son. Do our kids know that the tradition to shoot off fireworks to celebrate America's birthday comes from England's tradition to shoot off fireworks to celebrate important events.

Perhaps you can start a new tradition this Independence Day and give your children a gift – the gift of history. Take a few minutes away from the barbecue and horseshoes and explain to them why you are celebrating. Fireworks, picnics, parades and a history lesson – what great traditions.

As you sit and enjoy the spectacular fireworks show on the University of Delaware athletic complex, tell your kids to be thankful that there aren't really bombs bursting in air and that the noise will end without any lives being lost.

There is no greater country than the one we live in, and you owe it to your children to make them understand why that is and how it happened.

Happy Independence Day! Enjoy it. Appreciate it. And don't ever take it for granted. And make sure your kids know why you don't.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic features a photograph of a Fourth of July festival from years past. The photo came from the in-house archives of the Newark Post. Readers who have a historic picture and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. For information, call the Newark Post, weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 737-0724.

Federal Excise on power is added to town bills

The next bills for electric light to be sent Newark residents by the Town Council will show the effects of the Federal excise tax, which started Wednesday, June 21. The bills for June will contain the three per cent addition covering from June 21 to June 30.

In addition to this, it is pointed out, there will be a two-cent tax on each check, under the Federal measure, and an extra cent after July 6, above the present two-cent mailing rate, if the check is sent to the Council by mail. This will probably increase the amount of revenue to the Federal government from each payment of a town electric bill.

George L. Lynch Co., Dover, gets Newark Street contract

improvement program for this year, in the bidding last Thursday night. The contract was signed by Mayor Frank Collins and the contractor this morning.

The winning bid on the total work was for $12,460.20, which is much lower than the winning bid of $18,240.00, of last year, when the O'Connell Company, of Wilmington, was the victor.

A Harrisburg, Pa. – based investors corporation has indicated its desire to build 200 housing units for elderly Newark residents – if the Newark Senior Housing Corporation comes up short in its bid for federal funds this fall.

Police drill to prepare for desegregation

Area police met last week for crowd management control training in preparation for court-ordered desegregation in September, the Weekly Post has learned.

COMMENTARY

Church supports bill against discrimination

To: the Editor

From: Rev. Gregory Chute, Gary Jackoway, president and Paul Baumbach, social justice chair of the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Newark

The Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Newark supports the passage of Senate Bill 141 which prohibits discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. We urge the Insurance & Elections Committee to release the bill from committee quickly for full consideration.

In 2006, our church, with more than 200 members and which has recently enjoyed our 50th anniversary in Newark, voted to take a stand to oppose discrimination based on sexual orientation in all its forms. Because we value the inherent worth and dignity of every person, we are compelled and proud to confront such discrimination. We support the passage of Senate Bill 141 not because it allows for special privilege, but because it allows for equal rights and access; freedoms we all deserve and cherish.

Discrimination of any sort is hurtful, whether it is based on gender, race, creed, age, ability or any other reason. Our government is called to safeguard the rights of all of its citizens. It is time now for the state of Delaware to accept the reality of safeguarding its citizens from discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identification as well.

It is time for Delaware to join the list of 20 other states, and the District of Columbia, which specifically prohibit such discrimination. So we ask you to accept the responsibility of leadership and support the passage of Senate Bill 141. Stand with the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Newark in protecting the rights of all our citizens, and celebrating the uniqueness of each of us.

Campus, athletic programs have been updated

► UPFRONT, from 1

The quality of the students that have entered the school has increased steadily during Roselle's presidency as well. It's become a more difficult college to get into, which raises its stature nationally.

At the same time, however, there is more opportunity to get a UD degree for in-state students. With the SEED program and the affiliation with Delaware Tech, more Delaware high school students have the chance for a higher education.

Fans of the university's athletic programs have seen progress as well.

The football team won the NCAA I-AA national championship in 2003 and the men's and women's basketball teams have been to their respective NCAA tournaments. The men's lacrosse team went to the Final Four this year and the baseball team has made several appearances in the NCAA Tournament.

The entire athletic program has been upgraded by moving from the America East to the Colonial Athletic Association. In turn, the scholarship support has increased from $1.3 million in 1990 to more than $6 million today.

Of course it would be impossible to talk about Roselle without mentioning his incredible ability to raise money for the university. Whether it's the capital campaign, which blew past its original goal of $225 million (to more than $450 million) or the quadrupling of the endowment, it's all been a benefit to the university.

It's why financial aid has nearly tripled during his tenure, it's why there are more endowed faculty positions, it's why there are more scholarships and it's why the campus looks so much better.

So while we welcome Dr. Harker to Newark, let's realize that David Roselle is a big reason that UD was able to entice a reputable replacement.

His legacy here is a great one.

Barbecuing food safely

By MARIA PIPPIDIS

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

As the warm days of summer. Perfect for cooking outdoors with family and friends. As it heats up outside, it's important to pay close attention to how you handle your barbecued foods. Following food safety guidelines to prevent harmful bacteria from multiplying and causing foodborne illness will help keep family barbecuing a fun activity that's healthful too.

If you're using meat that has been frozen, you'll want to completely thaw before grilling so it cooks more evenly. Use the refrigerator for slow, safe thawing or thaw sealed packages in cold water. You can microwave defrost if the food will be placed immediately on the grill.

If using a marinade, marinate food in the refrigerator, not on the counter. Poultry and cubed meat or stew meat can be marinated up to two days. Beef, veal, pork, and lamb roasts, chops and steaks may be marinated up to five days. If some of the marinade is to be used as a sauce on the cooked food, reserve a portion before putting raw meat and poultry in it. However, if the marinade used on raw meat or poultry is to be reused, make sure to let it come to a boil first to destroy any harmful bacteria. Keep meat and poultry refrigerated until ready to use. Only take out the meat and poultry that will immediately be placed on the grill.

When using a cooler, keep it out of the direct sun by placing it in the shade or shelter. Avoid opening the lid

Looking for a summer road trip?

Take a tour of 'Delaware Curiosities'

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Need to get away but don't have the time or money to go far? A new guidebook by Insider's Guide tells of the wacky, weird and outrageous places you can visit right here in Delaware.

The book, "Delaware Curiosities," shows readers the adventures that can be had and sights that can be seen throughout Delaware's three counties. Author Beth Rubin, a resident of Annapolis, Md., who has vacationed at Delaware's beaches since the 1960s, explored the locations first hand.

"Over the years, I've schmoozed with the natives, gone down less-traveled roads and attended more than my share of odd events. I can tell you, unequivocally, there is no shortage of curiosities in the First State," she writes in her introduction.

Some of her highlights include Ebright Azimuth off Route 202 in a mobile home park, the state's highest point at 448 feet, a Dover museum dedicated to Victrola players and a Wilmington man who created the world's largest rubber-band ball, which weighs in at more than 3,000 pounds.

With a chatty and humorous writing style, Rubin shares little-known Delaware facts. (Did you know the inventor of the Heimlich maneuver was born in Wilmington?) and points readers to the state's more interesting happenings — the Diamond State Drive-in on U.S. 13, Bargain Bill's Flea Market in Laurel and the Punkin Chunkin Fest in Bridgeville, for example.

And, she can't leave out the

NASCAR races held twice yearly in Dover. "It's a big deal in Dover," she writes. "Bigger even than the senior prom. Or your first wedding."

Several Newark locales make the cut, including Jake's Hamburgers' original location on Ogletown Road and Matilda's Australian restaurant on Route 896.

The Battle of Cooch's Bridge makes an appearance with the tale of Charlie Miller, a Revolutionary War soldier said to have lost his head in crossfire near Welsh Tract Church Road.

But don't let your road trip curiosity end in Newark as there's plenty to explore. Writes Rubin, "Heck, the state is only 97 miles long and 37 miles wide. Get up early, and you can see it all before lunch!"

"Delaware Curiosities" is available now in bookstores.

Keep picnic food cols to stave off bacteria

► OUTLOOK, from 8

too often, which lets cold air out and warm air in. Pack beverages in one cooler and perishables in a separate cooler.

Be sure there are plenty of clean utensils and platters. To prevent foodborne illness, don't use the same platter and utensils for raw and cooked meat and poultry. Harmful bacteria present in raw meat and poultry and their juices can contaminate safely cooked food.

If you're eating away from home and carrying food to another location, keep it cold to minimize bacterial growth. Use an insulated cooler with sufficient ice or ice packs to keep the food at 40 °F or below. Pack food right from the refrigerator into the cooler immediately before leaving home. Also, find out if there's a source of clean water. If not, bring water for preparation and cleaning. Or pack clean cloths, and wet towelettes for cleaning surfaces and hands.

Precooking food partially in the microwave, oven or stove is a good way of reducing grilling time. Just make sure that the food goes immediately on the preheated grill to complete cooking.

Cook food to a safe minimum internal temperature to destroy harmful bacteria. Meat and poultry cooked on a grill often browns very fast on the outside. Use a food thermometer to be sure the food has reached a safe minimum internal temperature. Beef, veal and lamb steaks, roasts and chops can be cooked to 145 °F. Hamburgers made of ground beef should reach 160 °F. All cuts of pork should reach 160 °F. All poultry should reach a minimum of 165 °F. Never partially grill meat or poultry and finish cooking later. After cooking meat and poultry on the grill, keep it hot until served — at 140 °F or warmer. Keep cooked meats hot by setting them to the side of the grill rack, not directly over the coals where they could overcook. At home, the cooked meat can be kept hot in an oven set at approximately 200 °F, in a chafing dish or slow cooker, or on a warming tray.

When taking food off the grill, use a clean platter. Don't put cooked food on the same platter that held raw meat or poultry. Any harmful bacteria present in the raw meat juices could contaminate safely cooked food. In hot weather (above 90 °F), food should never sit out for more than one hour. Refrigerate any leftovers promptly in shallow containers. Discard any food left out more than two hours (one hour if temperatures are above 90 °F).

Following these key strategies will keep bacterial growth at bay and will keep your food tasty and healthy. Enjoy the barbecue and family fun.

Verizon to assist domestic violence victims

In an effort to assist victims of domestic violence and honor the opening of their new store in Center Pointe Plaza, Verizon Wireless donated $1,500 to the YWCA Delaware through its HopeLine Program, which assists domestic violence survivors and non-profit advocacy agencies by providing essential communication tools of wireless phones and wireless services and financial grants.

In addition, the company also announced the start of a community cell phone drive to benefit the YWCA Delaware. Now until the end of July, Verizon Wireless will donate $5 for every phone collected at Verizon Wireless' new location at 1202 Churchman's Rd., up to 1,000 to the YWCA.

The community is encouraged to support this effort by dropping off their no-longer-used cell phones.

Poet drew on experiences in Navy, firefighting

► POETRY, from 1

as a radar man on a destroyer escort. As he describes it, he was on watch one night. "It was a beautiful night, and I guess the muses were stirring and the spirit was moving, and I wrote," he said.

Manniso continued writing poetry through a short career as a Philadelphia firefighter and during his time in night school, where he studied to become an electrical engineer.

An English teacher encouraged him to write, and helped him approach it more like a poet, less like an engineer, leaving some things to the readers' imagination, he said.

Now at 71, Manniso continues to write "about love, beauty, nature, God, military – anything that comes to my mind."

He drew on his experiences in the Navy and as a firefighter for his series of poems that salute those who serve.

Reading the opening lines to his poem about Vietnam, Manniso says in a voice, strong yet hushed, "Proudly we served. Though little understood we held our ground. We fought and died and cried and sometimes laughed, but proudly we served."

UD teams honored for academics

Five University of Delaware athletics teams were among over 800 Division I sports teams earning public recognition awards recently by the NCAA for their latest Academic Progress Rate (APR) scores.

The Blue Hen men's cross country, men's track and field, women's cross country, women's track and field, and women's tennis teams all were honored for posting multi-year APR scores in the top 10 percent of all squads in their respective sports. The public recognition awards are part of the broad Division I academic reform effort.

The 839 teams receiving awards this year represent 217 Division I colleges and universities, or two-thirds of the 326 institutions that compete in NCAA Division I athletics. High-performing teams receiving awards posted APR scores ranging from 975 to a perfect 1,000, said NCAA President Myles Brand.

"These teams prove once again that student-athlete are students first, and many of them are excellent students," said Brand. "I want to personally congratulate these teams and their student-athletes who are working hard in their sport and in the classroom and setting a great example for all students."

Among Colonial Athletic Association schools, only William & Mary and James Madison had more teams honored by the NCAA than Delaware. William & Mary had 13 teams recognized while James Madison had six, Delaware had five, UNC Wilmington and Virginia Commonwealth had three teams each, Hofstra and George Mason each had two teams honored, and Drexel and Towson each had one team honored.

Throughout the NCAA, women's tennis teams were the most honored with 64 teams earning recognition followed by women's volleyball (54), women's golf (52), men's golf (51), women's cross country (49), and women's tennis (40).

The Delaware men's track and cross country programs are led by head coach Jim Fischer, the women's track and cross country programs are led by Sue McGrath-Powell, and the Blue Hen women's tennis program is led by head coach Laura Travis.

St. Mark's QB named MVP

A highly efficient aerial attack and a stubborn defense keyed the Blues to a 21-7 victory over the Gold in the 52nd annual Blue-Gold All-Star Football game, held on Tubby Raymond Field at Delaware Stadium before a crowd of more than 11,200 fans last Saturday night.

The Blue's starting quarterback, Scott Wallace, out of St. Mark's, won the game's Michael Webb Outstanding Player Award.

Wallace turned in a fine passing performance, going 10 for 18 for 142 yards. He also ran for 48 yards, including several big plays to achieve key first downs.

"It's a great feeling, everyone wants to end their high school career with a win," said Wallace. "I never thought I'd be throwing to the Sallies tight end to clinch the game, but Andrew Szczerba and I worked together during the spring, got to know each other, and I found out he's a pretty good guy."

Wallace, who's headed to the University of Massachusetts, also tossed two touchdown passes, both to Szczerba, who received the Blue Hen Touchdown Club's Outstanding Lineman trophy. Szczerba caught five passes for 75 yards. He also played defensive end for much of the game.

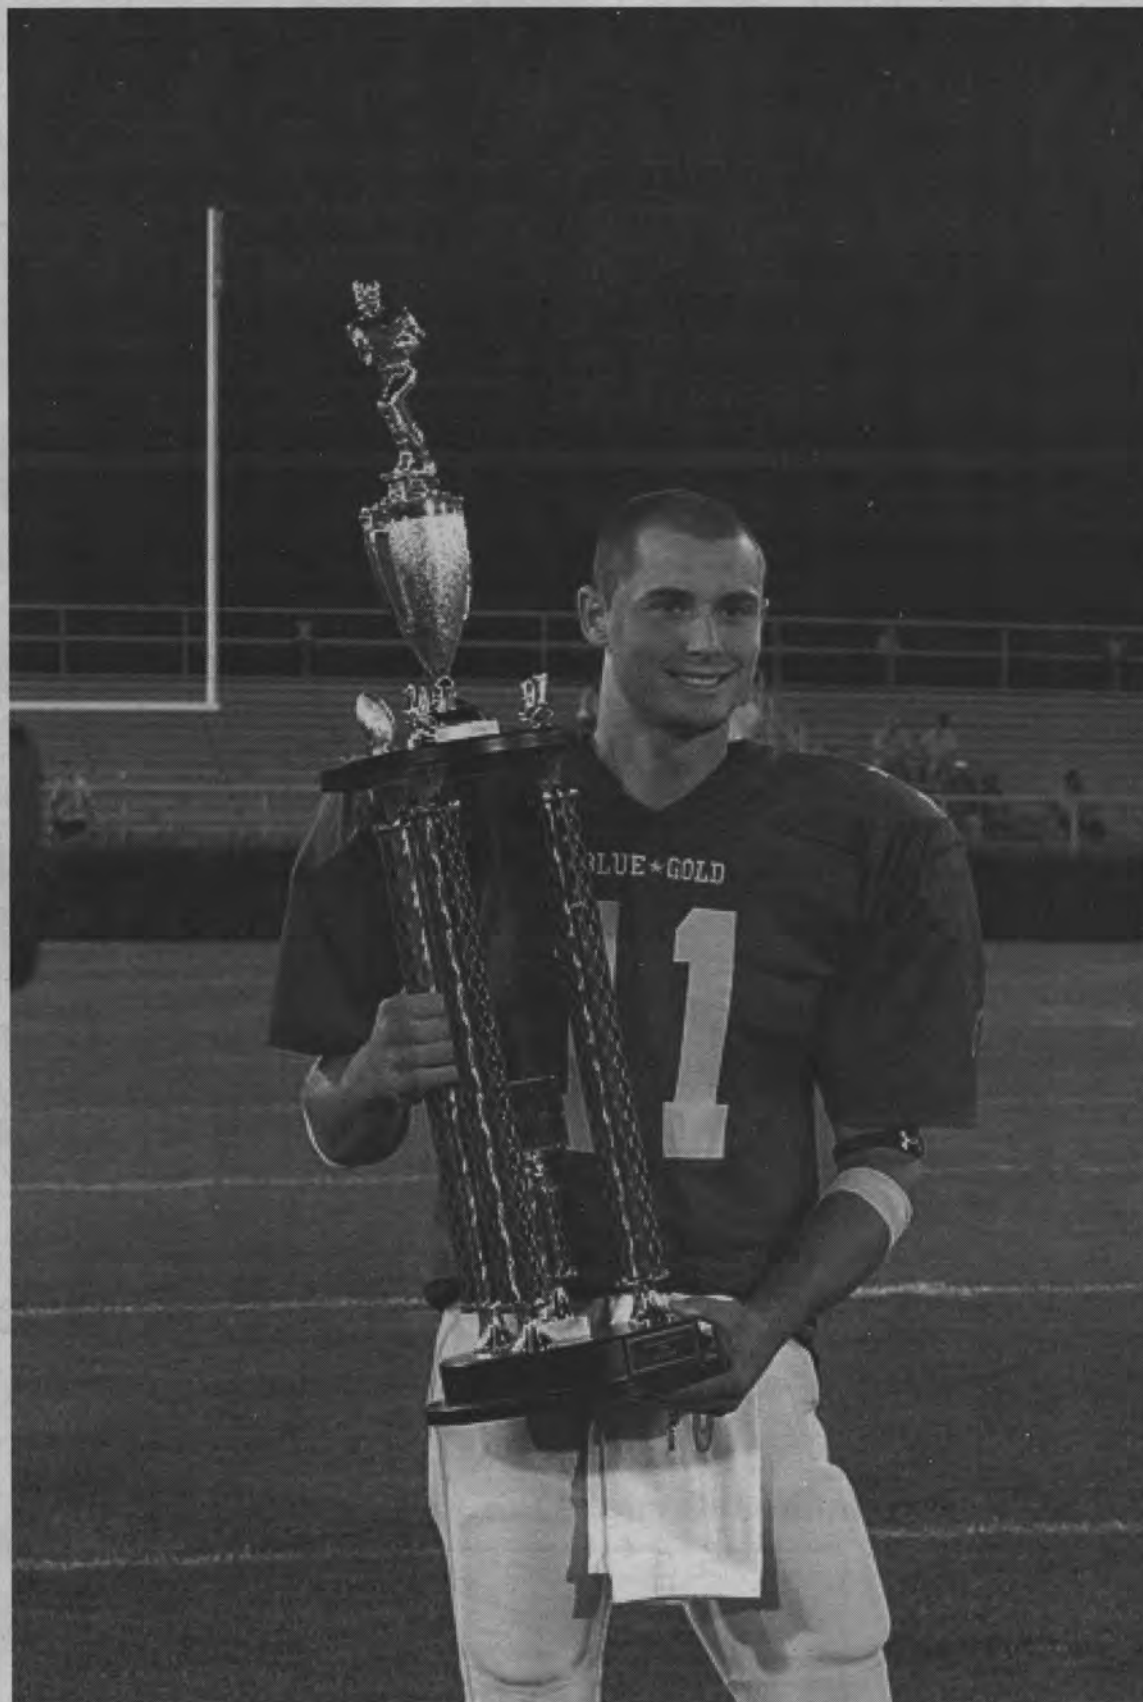

"This game was definitely more than I thought it would be," said Szczerba. "But meeting all the guys and having a buddy made it an awesome experience."

He's headed to Penn State to continue his education and football career as a Nittany Lion.

The Blue squad built a two touchdown lead midway through the first quarter. Wallace hit Szczerba in the back of the end zone for a 20-yard touchdown at 8:29. Archmere's Alex Tosi added the extra point.

On the Blue next possession, the team marched 62 yards on 11 plays, the drive ending with a one-yard run by Howard's Dean Sutton.

Meanwhile, the Gold offense was struggling to make any headway against the Blue defense.

Gold coach Mike Tkach from Milford High, used all three quarterbacks to try to spark the offense but to no avail.

"This was definitely the best week of my life," said Gold lineman Mark Osman.

The Christiana graduate said no one was upset that they came up a little short on the scoreboard.

"We still had a great time. It was unbelievable what we experienced as a team this week," he said.

The Gold offense recorded its first first down in the second quarter, and finally got on the scoreboard when Delmar's Allan Preston hit Sussex Central's Brian Scott on a 66-yard touchdown pass. Scott was wide open down the sideline when the Blue defensive back slipped after going for a great fake.

Antwon Trimbull, from Laurel High, kicked the Gold's lone extra point.

"We just made too many mistakes tonight," said Newark graduate Joe Pfitzenmeyer, who played both offensive and defensive line positions.

"I felt pretty good on the field tonight. There were a few things I could have done better, because I always look to improve," he said. Pfitzenmeyer added the best part of the game for him was having his buddy, Stanley Brooks II, out on the field, and having a chance to speak with him before the action.

The Blue's clinched the victory late in the fourth quarter on a Wallace to Szczerba three yard TD pass with under five minutes left to play.

The game was delayed for about 20 minutes when Hodgson's Ryan Sweetman was injured.

Sweetman was taken to the hospital for precautionary medical testing.

The Blue team has now won two games in a row, three of the last four, and leads the overall series 27-22-3.

NSA plan timeline to be presented on July 2

► SCHOOLS, from 1

items on the July 2 agenda: a revised Board of Education Policy Manual; a timeline for meetings and public input to design a Neighborhood Schools plan; and an October referendum.

Using a geographic mapping system, a consultant from the University of Delaware created graphics for the District showing the residence location of every student. "According to these graphics, 90 percent of middle school students would go to Gauger if we just use the NSA," Racca said. "More than 1,200 students would be assigned to Marshall Elementary."

Racca also noted that there are 1,364 K-5 students in the District's five schools in the city of Wilmington. "But, we have 3,500 seats in those schools. What do we do to use that capacity and still comply with the NSA?"

Racca also noted that the demographics of the District's student population is "very different" than it was in 2000 when the NSA was passed. "People don't realize how the level of poverty and economic disadvantage has changed," Racca said. "Fifteen of our schools — elementary, middle and high school — have over 40 percent of students eligible for the Free and Reduced Lunch program."

In addition, Racca said, for the first time, the population of black students District-wide is greater than that of white students.

Realigning student feeder patterns and schools for any NSA plan will require funding. "We have some [capital] money in hand from previous projects," Racca said. "We need to determine what we need to implement the NSA, even if it is only a verbal referendum to approve moving that money into new projects."

The state Department of Education will not accept a District's NSA plan that requires a referendum for funding. "We have to have the approved referendum already in hand when we go to the DOE with the plan," Racca explained.

Meetings for public input, plan design and public review are scheduled throughout July, August, September and October. The school board hopes to hold a referendum on Oct. 30, and present the District's completed NSA plan to the State Board on Nov. 15. "This will put us in a position to get our funding in the January state Bond Bill, so we can turn this over immediately for [the 2008-09] school year."

Lowery said a Website is being set up with information and the timeline for the District's NSA plan. "We will also have it set up so the public can comment online," Lowery said. "We really need the entire community's help."

Lowery emphasized the complex and interlinked nature of the challenges facing the District. "For example, if we can't do this, we will be the only [school] district in the state of Delaware without full-day kindergarten in 2008."

Lowery and Daniel Cruce, Christina's manager of human resources, took their problem and concerns to Dover last week. "We shared all this information with legislators," Lowery said. "We've also invited [Wilmington] city council to be part of the NSA Design Team. We're going everywhere we can to seek input and help."

Information and copies of the NSA timeline and meetings schedule will be available at the next regular board meeting on MONDAY, July 2, at Bayard Intermediate School in Wilmington.

State bills would mandate recycling

In its closing days, the Delaware General Assembly may take up legislation that would change the way trash and recyclables are collected throughout the state.

House Substitute 1 for House Bill 146 would establish a mandatory residential curbside recycling program statewide.

State Rep. Pam Maier, R-Drummond Hill, one of the bill's prime sponsors, says this approach is overdue. "Voluntary programs have been in place for 15 years and the percentage of material we're recycling has remained stagnant at 14 percent," she said.

The legislation sets a goal of boosting residential waste recovery to 30 percent by January 1st, 2010. Fifty percent of the commercial waste stream would be expected to be recycled by the same date.

"Residents will be asked to separate recyclables from garbage and simply place the two containers on the curb," said Maier. "The haulers will then collect these separated items and take them to a local processing facility."

The act would levy a $3-per-ton assessment on all non-recycled solid waste disposed of in Delaware. The money collected would create a fund that would be used to help pay for various aspects of the recycling system.

Maier said there will be no "trash police" under her bill. "Enforcement ... would begin at the landfill. The Delaware Solid Waste Authority would check the haulers' loads and, if necessary, would remind them to inform their customers of the proper procedure. Before we know it, recycling will become second nature."

The act also deals with the issue of yard waste management, which became an especially controversial subject in New Castle County after it was banned from the Cherry Island Landfill earlier this year. That ban has since been delayed until the start of 2008.

HS 1 for HB 146 would encourage the creation of private yard waste management facilities. However, if these facilities fail to materialize, the Delaware Solid Waste Authority would be charged with establishing and operating them.

A second bill (House Bill 246), also sponsored by Maier, would establish a system for creating "trash and recycling districts" to serve the unincorporated areas of New Castle County.

Such districts — formed with the input and consent of residents — would give a single waste-hauler the exclusive rights to service a defined geographic area. The county would solicit bids, award contracts and tax residents to pay for the service.

Council accepts report by ad hoc committee

limit for that section of the road is 25 miles per hour, but traffic counts by the Newark Police Department indicate cars typically travel speeds of 36 miles per hour.

For those reasons, the city is asking DelDOT to study traffic calming measures that could be used to slow traffic and make the state-maintained roadway safer.

Traffic calming is a design tool meant to influence driver speeds and behavior. Examples of measures include traffic circles and using paint stripes and signs to visually narrow roadways and make drivers more aware of speed limits, bike lanes and pedestrian crossings.

DelDOT is being asked to assess what affordable traffic calming measures may work for South College Avenue.

In supporting the request, Councilman David Athey, who has made traffic safety one of his primary concerns on council, said "We need to be more diligent and try to do what we can to control the speeds."

Also at Monday's meeting, council accepted a report by the Newark Traffic Calming Ad Hoc Committee, which formed in January 2006 to study pedestrian and transportation safety issues in Newark.

The report, said committee member Heather Dunigan, recommends a more simple process for determining whether a road is eligible for traffic calming measures. That process involves Newark's Traffic Committee and residents of the proposed street.

Also, the report recommends that eligibility be expanded from Old Newark to citywide, as crash rates on some of Newark's roads for the 2000-2005 period are two times to more than three times the average of New Castle County, according to data from the Wilmington Area Planning Council.

IN THE NEWS

Newark youth win big at Livestock Classic

Four youth in the Newark area were among winners at the 6th Annual New Castle County 4-H/Smyrna High School FFA Chapter

"Summer Livestock Classic," which was held on Saturday, June 9, at Hooper's Equipment in Middletown.

Winners from the Newark area were Kaitlin Klair, who was named Reserve Champion for Market Lamb; Ray Burns, who won Novice Senior Showmanship for Goats; Jenna Morris, who received Senior Showmanship for Swine; and Alex Swan, who won Novice Junior Showmanship for Swine.

This was the second of three in-state livestock shows in which 4-H and FFA members from Delaware competed. This year's show had many exhibitors and animals, including steer, goats, swine and sheep.

Exhibitors competed for prizes and bragging rights with their respective animals, but more importantly, gained valuable experience and knowledge in maintaining a successful livestock project. The youth also measured their progress as they work towards the highlight of the show season – the Delaware State Fair and Junior Livestock Auction.

In the showmanship classes, judges evaluated how well each exhibitor presented his or her animal and demonstrated knowledge of the project animal. During the market show, judges evaluated the animals for their desirable traits of muscling, structural correctness, conformation and eye appeal.

The event ran under the direction of the livestock committee: Keith Shane, Smyrna High School Agriscience teacher and FFA advisor, Wally and Karen Gott, Brian and Linda Somers, Bill and Joan Powers, Ron Gouge, Dwight Poffenberger, Warren Voshell, Katie Powers, Daniel Reynolds, and Jordan Ashby, New Castle County Cooperative Extension Agent.

For more information about the New Castle County 4-H and Youth Development program visit <http://ag.udel.edu/extension/index.html>.
